conservative and economical way. The greatest care and every precaution has been taken not to interfere in any way with the commerce of cattle, except by such restrictions as are absolutely necessary to protect the cattle industry of the country. During the existence of the quarantine in Chicago the bureau obtained from the Union Stock-Yards an agreement that no cattle from the infected county of Cook should be admitted to its yards, and upon this understanding no restrictions were placed upon the movement of cattle through those stock-yards. In order that the bureau could be satisfied that this agreement was being kept, a guard was stationed at that place to see that there was no violation of the agreement. The same agreement has been made with the stock-yards in the city of Baltimore, and the same arrangement is to be made with the stock-yards in the city of Philadelphia. The cost of the work so far accomplished has been far less than was anticipated by those who for years have figured and made estimates upon the probable cost of stamping out this disease. It is more than probable that with another appropriation of the same amount as given to the bureau at the last session of Congress we will be enabled to properly extirpate this disease, provided the work is continued on the same plan and in the hands of the same force with which we have so far conducted the campaign. I have heretofore expressed similar views on this subject to the Senate committee in answer to a request from them, and I inclose herewith my letter to them on the subject and ask for it a careful perusal.

And now to the proposed bill before the Senate, known as the amended Palmer bill.

First. In my letter to the Senate committee I stated that I believed that it was preferable that the work of extirpating contagious diseases should be done by the Bureau of Animal Industry under State laws and not solely by national authority. The central principle of bill 2083 is the complete control of the subject-matter of contagious diseases by national authority as contradistinguished from State authority. Almost every State has already provided by legislation for contagious diseases among their domestic animals. Congress has admitted, or tacitly admitted, that the several States had this right to legislate for the protection of their animals and to provide the means and measures for the eradication of disease among them. In the law of May 29, 1884, Congress recognized that this power belonged rightly to the States and provided that the work of the national authorities should be done in co-operation with the State under State laws, the United States furnishing the necessary forces for its accomplishment for the general welfare of the country. While it is not in my province to call in question or comment on what may be constitutional rights, my duty being to enforce any law which Congress in its wisdom may think proper to pass, I believe it proper and that I am justified in stating as an objection to this measure that it would be ill-advised to substitute for a method of work which is of unquestioned constitutionality one that may be questioned, for the reason that in the enforcement of the law it would be a serious drawback to the work if resistance should be made by individuals whose cattle are being quarantined or killed or restriction placed upon their movement, who will take necessary steps to defend themselves and property by calling to their aid the powers of judicial proceedings, thereby impeding the successful accomplishment of the measures necessary to eradicate the disease.

Such judicial process being had they might result, possibly in putting a complete stop upon all work until the court of last resort can pass upon the constitutionality of the questions involved. It would also be almost impossible to secure a set of officers who would go upon premises to tag animals, and enforce the measures provided by the rules and regulations, if there was any doubt as to their power to do these things, for the reason that they would be personally responsible in damages for what might be determined by the courts to be unlawful acts. You will therefore see the necessity that exists that there should be no doubt or question as to the constitutionality of the law to be enforced, or as to the rights of the officers of the bureau to carry out the measures necessary to eradicate the disease.

Second. In my testimony before the Senate Committee on Agriculture, I expressed my opinion that no advantage would be gained by placing the work of the bureau in the hands of a commission. Obviously, the most important work of the Bureau of Animal Industry is of a scientific nature. To place the management, therefore, of scientific investigations in the hands of a commission, a majority of whom would be non-professionals, does not commend itself to my judgment. The decisions and conclusions arrived at by such a commission would not be acceptable to the people of the country, or have any weight as safe, sound, scientific principles. It is best that this work should be solely in the hands of scientific men. I think likewise that the plan of placing the executive work in the hands of a commission of doubtful propriety and not one that augurs success for its management. It has been almost universally admitted that executive work requires one head and one responsibility, and that when consultations and conferences are to be held, and differences of opinion as to how the work is to be carried on, are to be decided by a majority vote, it produces uncertainty as to action and a divided responsibility. The experience of the past has shown that the commission plan, whenever tried for executive work, has proved a failure, and I believe that it would be detrimental to the work contemplated in this measure.

I have some doubt as to the wisdom and propriety of selecting any one class of our people to place in charge of executing the laws. Representing, as I do, the head of the Agricultural Department, and the interests of all classes of agriculturists, of the stock-growers, of the dairymen, and of the general farmer, I do not approve that one class shall be favored as against another. I am not aware that the stock-growers' industry is more interested in the work of the Bureau of Animal Industry than are the other elements that compose the great agricultural class of this country. In fact, so far as pleuro-pneumonia is concerned, the history of the disease and where it is found, shows that the dairymen and the small farmer are the people who are most affected by the measures introduced to extirpate the disease. It is these men who are the sufferers, whose property is to some extent confiscated. So far the stock-growers of this country, the class from whom are to be selected the majority of this commission, have not yet felt the effects of this disease. Their industry has not yet been touched by the disease except by the fear that it might be introduced among their herds. Consequently if class legislation is to be inaugurated and if the interest which is most directly at stake is to be put in charge of this work, this commission should be composed of either dairymen or the small farmer. As to the advisability of establishing a precedent of this kind that a law of the United States is to be executed by a particular class, is a question for your consideration as Senators and legislators and not for mine, as an executive officer.

I pass by those provisions of the bill which invest the proposed commission and its agents with the right of visitation and search of the premises and among the animals of the farmers of this country for the purpose of finding disease or diseased conditions; also the provision that imposes a penalty of imprisonment or fine of $500, or both, for any resistance to these visitations and searches. I pass over, also, the provision delegating to this commission the making of laws and the fixing of penalties for their violation. It is a question for your judgment whether the legislative power conferred upon Congress to make laws and provide for penalties can be abdicated and delegated to any executive body, though it may be a commission composed of two practical stock-growers.

I am of the opinion that the proposed bill gives too much discretion as to the expenditure of the money appropriated for carrying out its provisions. You will observe that the bill provides for the extirpation of every disease that "animals are heir to." It leaves to the discretion of the commission which one or how many of these various diseases shall be eradicated at the same time. Under the circumstances it is possible for this discretion to be abused, and that the particular disease which Congress desires to be first eradicated may be passed by and another taken up. It seems to me advisable that Congress should define which diseases shall be stamped out, and appropriate money for those particular purposes, rather than that it should be left in this indefinite shape.

I feel obliged in my own self-defense, and in defense of the discipline and proper administration of my office, to call your attention to the fact that this bill purports to place this new bureau in the Department of Agriculture and under my control. A close analysis of the measure shows that this control by me is merely nominal, and that I have no effective check upon the work to be done by the commission. This bill provides that the rules and regulations for the carrying on of the work by the commission are to be made by them, and I have no voice in or control over their preparation. The bill also provides that this commission shall have the appointment of all the subordinates independent of my approval. I do not believe it is just to give out to the country that the Department of Agriculture is in charge of this work and that the Commissioner of Agriculture is responsible for its execution, when, in fact, the Commissioner has in reality no control over its performance. It places the Department in a false position. Under the present provisions of the bill it would be impossible for me to control this new commission. I trust that if the bill is to pass in any shape it will be so amended that my control over the bureau and the expenditure of the appropriation will be as complete and absolute as is my control over the other divisions in this Department.

In conclusion I can not refrain from calling your attention to the high standard of the scientific work accomplished by the present bureau and the position that it has attained in the scientific ranks of the world. From all parts of the country come acknowledgments expressive of the appreciation of the people in the discoveries that have been made and the results obtained in the scientific work of the bureau, and leading scientists have likewise given expression to their appreciation of the value of the service rendered by the bureau. The scientific departments of the various European governments are to-day watching with much interest the work of the bureau. They are following where the bureau now leads, and the results of their work are confirmatory of the results arrived at by the bureau. I take great pride in the high rank obtained by this division of the Agricultural Department, and I regret sincerely that any serious effort should be made to displace the present bureau that has so successfully accomplished results of so much value to the whole world, and in its place establish a bureau directed by non-professional men.

I am, very respectfully,

NORMAN J. COLMAN,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

Hons. J. B. BECK and J. C. S. BLACKBURN,
United States Senate.

Mr. BECK. Mr. President——

Mr. PALMER. Does the Senator from Kentucky wish to speak?

Mr. BECK. I only rise to say that I have no comments to make in regard to that paper. I approve very much of what the Commissioner says, and I thought it was proper it should go on the record so that the Senator from Michigan and other gentlemen could comment on it in the debate.

Mr. PALMER. I shall be very happy to review it some day hereafter, possibly. I am not at all astonished at that letter. I have no doubt it is an honest letter. It is a letter that any courageous, gamy man would write when he had been intrusted with a matter for three years with varying success and receiving from his agents cheering reports, expecting that he would overcome an evil that he was endeavoring to meet. I suppose the Commissioner thinks that he can compass it; but the fact remains that there is more pleuro-pneumonia in the country to-day than there ever has been, which I will try to show to-morrow.

At that time I may show some of what I consider the fallacies of the letter of the Commissioner, for whom I have the highest respect. I have no doubt that from his standpoint it appears to him just as he represents it, but I think that possibly there may be some exceptions taken to some of his conclusions.

Before we proceed further, Mr. President, I think it would be well to enlighten the Senate upon the distinctions made in the new bill between the proposed Bureau of Animal Industry and the one which now exists.

1. It discontinues the present organization and existence of the Bureau of Animal Industry and creates a new one with the same title, but enlarged powers and better machinery.

2. It puts a board of three persons in control of the new bureau, instead of a single veterinary chief.

3. It constitutes the board of two practical cattle-growers, of known executive ability, and a competent veterinary surgeon, as a substitute for and the more than equivalent of the present veterinary chief and the two practical agents provide for by the old law.

4. The new composition of the bureau elevates the practical and experience factors from the subordinate and purely advisory positions to which the present law assigns them, and places them in equal and associate authority with the scientific element.

5. The President appoints and the Senate confirms the board, instead of the Commissioner of Agriculture appointing the chief of the bureau, as at present.

6. The salaries of the members of the board are fixed at $4,000 per annum, instead of the $3,000 now paid the chief of the bureau and the $10 per diem paid the two agents respectively, so that the difference in the salaries will be merely nominal; that is, if these agents are kept as they ought to be kept, out all the while.

7. The board is required to make rules and regulations for its conduct, which must have the approval of the President of the United States before becoming operative, and is required to publish these rules and regulations and to record the same. All its work must be conducted under and be regulated by these rules.

These provisions for obtaining the President's sanction to rules and regulations, their record and publication, do not exist in the present law.

8. It is made the duty of the board to ascertain the existence of contagious pleuro-pneumonia, foot-and-mouth disease, rinderpest, swine-plague, and other diseases and disease-conditions of live-stock. This is not specified in the present law.

9. For the above purpose it is authorized to enter and make search, investigation and inquiry, in person or by agent, any premises or places in which disease is supposed to exist. This is not included in the old law.

10. The publication for the benefit of the general public, by newspaper publication, of the existence of disease is authorized, in addition to the notification (only) of common carriers required, by writing or newspaper, in the present law.

11. The board is authorized and required to establish and maintain quarantine of animals, places, premises, or localities to prevent the spread of disease. This does not reside in the law creating the present bureau, but is included in part in the provisions of the agricultural appropriation bill of last year.

12. The board is authorized to cause the appraisal and destruction of and payment for diseased or exposed animals. Animals not to be destroyed, however, except owner assents and accepts appraisal, and not to be paid for except at certain rates, and under certain circumstances fully defined. Authority to proceed under State law, if feasible, is granted.

These powers are in part only granted by the organic act of the bureau, but are much more fully given by the appropriation act of last year, which soon expires.

And I would say here that the Commissioner speaks of the constitutionality of the proposed law and the law under which he acts. I do not believe that any acts, even with the co-operation of the States under the present bureau, have been constitutional, and I believe that individuals, if they considered themselves oppressed, could obtain relief in the courts. However, I leave that for the lawyers to discuss.

13. The board is authorized to co-operate with the executives of States or Territories whenever said executives are empowered by law to do so and signify their readiness. The only new feature of this as compared with the old law is that legal authority for the co-operation of the State executive shall exist, except that the whole basis of operation under the old law was by co-operation with State authorities, whether they were empowered by law or not, and in no other way.

14. No special provisions are made by the bill for Texas fever, or for the conduct of the work in the District of Columbia, as proposed by the organic law of the present bureau.

15. The bill especially and distinctly defines the acts that shall be held misdemeanors under the provisions of the bill and fixes penalties therefor, as contrasted with the general and penalty clauses of the old law. A few new offenses, growing out of the new provisions of the bill, are specified, such as (a) refusing permission to enter; (b) obstructing officers and agents; (c) preventing operations of same; (d) violating or evading quarantine; (e) concealing existence of disease; (f) failing to report disease; (g) delivering or receiving diseased animals for transportation, or (h) violating rules of the board willfully.

16. The bill provides that when diseases shall become extinguished in a State or Territory the President shall proclaim the fact, as also when the same shall be true of the United States, in which case the fact shall be made known through the proper consular officers. That is a very important clause, for our exported cattle now are required by the orders of the privy council in England to be slaughtered in ten days after they arrive in port, and it makes no difference what certificates of inspection they may take here they are not considered as amounting to anything on the other side. If any animals are infected in this country and the disease is not entirely extirpated from the whole of the States they will consider them all as infected. They do not understand our State quarantine and our State institutions in contradistinction to the national economy.

17. The bill requires the board to keep an office and make full records and report to the Commissioner of Agriculture, who is required to report the same to the President, and he in turn to transmit the same to Congress.

18. The bill provides for the appointment of all such employés by the Commissioner of Agriculture as the board may deem necessary, their compensation, etc., and the expenditure of moneys, somewhat specifically, as the old law does not.

It provides that in cases of emergency outside the District of Columbia the board shall employ and make expenditures temporarily. This, I think, is the clause that gives the most anxiety to the Commissioner of Agriculture—the idea that this board should have in case of emergency any positive power without consulting the head officer. I think that it is very essential that they should have; and any one who knows anything about the disease by experience, by observation, or by communication with cattle-men, knows that the first want is a blow and the next a blow.

19. Provision is made, not included in the present law, for investigation on lines of transportation, upon which live-stock are exported and imported, and authority, not previously granted, is given the Secretary of the Treasury to establish proper regulations concerning exportation and importation of animals. This is a very important clause; and now I will state of my own knowledge that whereas the quarantine for imported animals is only three months, it ought to be from eight to ten. In pleuro-pneumonia an exposed animal should be quarantined at least eight or ten months before the danger of communicating disease is done away with.

Now, I would suggest to gentlemen who propose to oppose the bill—and I see there is a disposition to obstruct and oppose it, no doubt honestly and conscientiously—that they permit the committee to go on and perfect the bill with their amendments, and then we will welcome the onslaught from every side, and if we can not pass the bill in its present shape we hope to pass it with amendments so that it will be agreeable to the majority of the Chamber.

Mr. BUTLER. It is quite obvious that this bill can not be completed this evening, and I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

Mr. HAWLEY. Mr. President——

Mr. BUTLER. If the Senator from Michigan will yield for the purpose of an adjournment I will make that motion.

Mr. HAWLEY. I have a small matter of business which I should like very much to have attended to, if the Senator from South Carolina will withdraw the motion until the time comes.

Mr. BUTLER. Of course; I will withdraw it for that purpose.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Has the Senator from Michigan yielded the floor?

Mr. PALMER. I have not. I think as it is only a little past half after four we have a good half hour of work in us yet.

Mr. BUTLER. I did not hear the Senator.

Mr. PALMER. I do not understand the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. BUTLER. I simply ask the Senator from Michigan if he will yield for a motion to adjourn.

Mr. PALMER. I should dislike to do so, because I think we can have half an hour of good work before 5 o'clock. I shall be ready to yield at that time.

Mr. BUTLER. It is not possible to finish the bill this evening, and it is about the time we usually adjourn.

Mr. PALMER. We can act upon the committee amendments, and take no positive action beyond that.

Mr. BUTLER. Very well.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The pending amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 2, line 14, after the word "diseases," insert the words "and disease-conditions."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. EDMUNDS. The bill is now under consideration?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill is in Committee of the Whole, and the amendments proposed by the committee are being called for action.

Mr. EDMUNDS. Is this the first amendment?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The first three amendments proposed by the committee have been agreed to.

Mr. EDMUNDS. Already in Committee of the Whole?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. In Committee of the Whole.

Mr. EDMUNDS. Then the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, have agreed to make this new sanhedrim composed of practical stock-growers. That is one of the amendments agreed to. We will try to finish it out on the others.

Mr. PALMER. There are to be two practical stock-growers, I think.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The next amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 2, line 18, after the word "diseases," insert "or disease-conditions."

Mr. BUTLER. I do not quite understand just what that expression means. If it has been explained, I regret that I did not hear the explanation. I would be very glad to have the Senator from Michigan explain just what the term "disease-conditions" means.

Mr. PALMER. I think it is explained on page 2. I used my utmost endeavor to make it apparent before. I refer the Senator from South Carolina to line 8 of section 2, "or conditions which may convey disease." I think it will go a little further than that—conditions that might incite disease or induce disease.

Mr. HISCOCK. I ask the Senator from Michigan if he understands that it would mean a stable, the condition of a stable, the drainage from a stable, the yard in which cattle are kept, and all of those things surrounding a herd of cattle which might possibly promote disease?

Mr. PALMER. I think that that could fairly be so construed.

Mr. HISCOCK. It would include the ventilation of a barn?

Mr. PALMER. Although probably the committee will not go as far as that, except under certain circumstances.

Mr. HISCOCK. But the question is whether the law goes as far as that. My understanding of the meaning is that it does go as far as to take into account the construction of a barn, the ventilation of a barn, the drainage of the yard or place in which the cattle are located, and all of those things which might conspire to disease the cattle. In stating this I do not want it to be understood that I am not in favor of the bill.

Mr. PADDOCK. The description is a little too broad. It seems to me that the idea intended to be conveyed is that if there shall have been diseased animals in such sheds or barns, and on that account the sheds or barns shall have been infected, this clause shall apply. This is a disease not produced from such causes as the Senator from New York has suggested. It is not at all such a disease.

Mr. PALMER. If the Senator from Nebraska will excuse me, I think that taking the sentence as a whole it is very apparent that the definition is much more limited. For instance, "their protection and use, and also inquire into and report the causes of contagious, infectious, and communicable diseases or conditions which may convey disease"—not which may originate disease, but "which may convey disease." I think that it would apply merely to infected cars and stables and implements which might convey disease. I think that is the fair construction.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee.

The question being put, it was declared that the "noes" appeared to prevail.

Mr. PALMER. I ask for the yeas and nays.

Mr. HISCOCK. I should like to make an inquiry. As I understand, we are going through the bill and acting on the amendments proposed by the committee.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. We are acting first upon the committee amendments, in accordance with the usual custom of the Senate, after which the bill will be open to amendment.

Mr. HISCOCK. Will the propositions which have been inserted in the bill by amendment be subject to amendment?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Not in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. SHERMAN. But in the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Upon the pending amendment the Senator from Michigan asks that the yeas and nays may be entered on the Journal.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. HOAR. Let the pending amendment be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 2, line 18, after "diseases," insert the words "or disease-conditions."

Mr. GEORGE. It is a very important step for the Senate to take to insert that phrase in this bill when we have so much difficulty in ascertaining what it means. I desire to call the attention of the Senate to section 5, where it is made a criminal offense for any citizen to know of these disease-conditions and not report them to the board. If we are to pass the bill and make it criminal to do an act, it is certainly fair to the citizen that we should define the offense in such plain terms that he will know when he violates it.

In section 5 it is provided "that if any owner," etc., "shall knowingly conceal the existence of any case of any such diseases or disease-conditions, or the fact of exposure to said contagion, or conditions liable to communicate disease, and the location of said case or cases * * * he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable," etc.

I think when we attempt to pass a criminal law defining a crime for which a citizen may be punished, we ought to do it in such plain and unmistakable language that the citizen may understand when he is violating the law. As the phrase "disease-conditions" runs all the way through, being inserted by the committee, unless we can have in the act itself a fair and intelligible definition of what "disease-conditions" are, I think we had better not insert it in the bill.

Mr. PALMER. I do not think there can be any difficulty about construing the phrase "disease-conditions." The Senator from Mississippi refers to the amendment in line 10, section 5:

> Or any officer or agent charged with any duties under the provisions of this act, who shall knowingly conceal the existence of any case of any such diseases, or disease-conditions, etc.

How can that be construed in any other way than as a place where animals have been kept in cars, on steam-boats, or in stables which have not been disinfected, or some such exposure as that, where it was knowingly concealed? It seems to me fair to infer that that shall be construed to mean where he shall take pains to conceal.

Mr. GEORGE. Will the Senator allow me to interrupt him?

Mr. PALMER. Certainly; I always like to be interrupted.

Mr. GEORGE. When the Senator from Michigan was interrogated this evening as to the meaning of "disease-conditions" he included bad sewerage or any bad condition in the yard which might produce disease.

Mr. PALMER. Will the Senator permit me to interrupt him? Abstractly that is so. Concretely in this bill it can not be construed that way at all. If the Senator will read the bill I know he is too good a lawyer to say it could be seriously construed otherwise.

Mr. HOAR. Will the Senator from Mississippi permit me to suggest to him that the second section relates only to the matter of the investigation, and it can certainly do no harm to direct the board to investigate disease-conditions. Even if it be a somewhat vague term the board can very well interpret it; and the discussion which the Senator raises will come better when we get to the fifth section punishing the concealment. If more strict definition be required it can be inserted there. We had better go on and adopt this amendment and let the question come later.

Mr. GEORGE. I admit the force of what the Senator from Massachusetts says, but I supposed that if the Senate made a precedent by inserting this phrase where it first occurs it would be likely to insert it all the way through. I see no particular harm in the phrase in the exact condition which we are now considering.

Mr. PALMER. I will say to the Senator from Mississippi that if he will take the clause where it first occurs he will find the definition given. It is antecedent to the compound word "disease-conditions"—"diseases or conditions which may convey diseases."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The yeas and nays having been ordered on agreeing to the amendment, the Secretary will call the roll.

Mr. CULLOM. There ought to be a brief executive session, and I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. HAWLEY. I wish the Senator would wait a moment for a matter of unanimous consent.

Mr. CULLOM. Does the Senator from Connecticut wish to make a report?

Mr. HAWLEY. Yes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator from Illinois yield to the Senator from Connecticut?

Mr. CULLOM. I yield to the Senator from Connecticut for that purpose.

Mr. COKE. Before that is done I submit an amendment which I intend to propose to the pending bill, and I ask that it be printed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment will be printed.

JOSE ANDRES URTECHO.

Mr. HAWLEY. I report a joint resolution which I wish the Senate would immediately consider. If they will allow me to state very briefly the substance of it, I think there will be no objection.

The Government has several times permitted foreign governments to send cadets to West Point, they being at the whole expense. Nicaragua has had two there. One of them is there now, the son of the former President. The State Department sends a communication saying that Nicaragua has applied for permission to send another cadet there, and the Secretary of State prays that immediate action will be taken thereon, because the time is approaching for the beginning of the academic year. I present, in behalf of the Military Committee, the said joint resolution, and ask for its immediate consideration:

The joint resolution (S. R. 68) authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the Military Academy at West Point, José Andrés Urtecho, of Nicaragua, was read the first time by its title.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The joint resolution will be read the second time, at length.

The joint resolution was read the second time, at length, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of War be, and he hereby is, authorized to permit José Andrés Urtecho, of Nicaragua, to receive instruction at the Military Academy at West Point: Provided, That no expense shall be caused to the United States thereby: And provided further, That in the case of the said Urtecho the provisions of sections 1320 and 1321 of the Revised Statutes shall be suspended.

Mr. HAWLEY. Those two sections relate to the oath and the engagement to serve eight years, both of which the joint resolution suspends in this case.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Connecticut asks that the joint resolution may be now considered.

By unanimous consent, the joint resolution was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. CULLOM. I renew my motion that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After eight minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 5 o'clock and 3 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, April 6, 1888, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate the 5th day of April, 1888.

COLLECTORS OF CUSTOMS.

Thomas L. Harrison, of New York, to be collector of customs for the district of Oswegatchie, in the State of New York, to succeed William H. Daniels, whose term of office has expired by limitation.

J. Howard Manchester, of Rhode Island, to be collector of customs for the district of Bristol and Warren, in the State of Rhode Island, to succeed John Collins, whose term of office has expired by limitation.

John H. Thomas, of Maryland, to be collector of customs for the district of Annapolis, in the State of Maryland, to succeed Thomas Ireland, whose term of office has expired by limitation, John T. Hammond having died since his nomination was sent to the Senate. The nomination of John T. Hammond is hereby withdrawn.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

Twenty-fifth Regiment of Infantry.

First Lieut. Harry Reade, to be captain, April 1, 1888, vice Schooley, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. George W. Webb, to be first lieutenant, April 1, 1888, vice Reade, promoted.

Fourth Regiment of Artillery.

Second Lieut. Alfred M. Hunter, Fifth Cavalry, to be second lieutenant Fourth Artillery, April 3, 1888, with rank in the artillery arm from December 31, 1887, vice Phillips, promoted.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Captain.

Commander Winfield Scott Schley, a resident of Maryland, to be a captain in the Navy, from March 3, 1888, vice Capt. S. L. Breese, retired.

Surgeon.

Passed Asst. Surg. George E. H. Harmon, a resident of Maryland, to be a surgeon in the Navy, from March 25, 1888, vice Surg. Hampton Aulick, deceased.

Chaplains.

Walter G. Isaacs, a resident of Alabama, and Charles Henry Parks, a resident of New York, to be chaplains in the Navy, to fill existing vacancies in that corps.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, April 4, 1888.

[CALENDAR DAY, April 5, 1888.]

AFTER THE RECESS.

The recess having expired the House (at 11 o'clock and 45 minutes a. m., Thursday April 5) resumed its session.

Mr. REED. Regular order.

The SPEAKER. The regular order is the question on the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON] to the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MCMILLIN].

The amendment pending is that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Saturday next. Upon that a vote was taken by yeas and nays, which disclosed the absence of a quorum. The yeas and nays have been ordered, and the Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 2, nays 181, not voting 141; as follows:

YEAS—2.

Bacon,	Wheeler.

NAYS—181.

Abbott,	Dunham,	Kerr,	Rice,
Allen, Mass.	Dunn,	Laffoon,	Romeis,
Allen, Mich.	Elliott,	Laidlaw,	Rowell,
Baker, N. Y.	Ermentrout,	Laird,	Rowland,
Baker, Ill.	Farquhar,	Lanham,	Rusk,
Belden,	Finley,	Lehlbach,	Ryan,
Belmont,	Fitch,	Lind,	Sawyer,
Biggs,	Flood,	Long,	Scull,
Blanchard,	Foran,	Lyman,	Seymour,
Boothman,	French,	Lynch,	Shively,
Bound,	Fuller,	Macdonald,	Snyder,
Bowden,	Funston,	Mahoney,	Springer,
Bowen,	Gallinger,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Brewer,	Gear,	Matson,	Steele,
Brower,	Gest,	McClammy,	Stephenson,
Brown, Ohio	Goff,	McComas,	Stockdale,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Granger,	McCormick,	Stone, Ky.
Brumm,	Greenman,	McKenna,	Stone, Mo.
Bryce,	Grosvenor,	McKinley,	Struble,
Buchanan,	Guenther,	Meltac,	Symes,
Buckalew,	Hall,	Milliken,	Tarsney,
Bunnell,	Hare,	Montgomery,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Burrows,	Harmer,	Morrill,	Thomas, Ky.
Bynum,	Hatch,	Morrow,	Thomas, Wis.
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Haugen,	Neal,	Tracey,
Cannon,	Hayden,	Nelson,	Townshend,
Caruth,	Heard,	Newton,	Vance,
Caswell,	Henderson, Iowa	Nichols,	Vandever,
Cheadle,	Henderson, Ill.	Nutting,	Wade,
Chipman,	Hermann,	O'Donnell,	Walker,
Clark,	Hitt,	O'Ferrall,	Warner,
Cogswell,	Hogg,	O'Neall, Ind.	Weber,
Conger,	Holman,	O'Neill, Pa.	West,
Cooper,	Holmes,	Osborne,	White, Ind.
Cothran,	Hopkins, Ill.	Parker,	White, N. Y.
Cox,	Hopkins, Va.	Patton,	Whiting, Mass.
Crouse,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Payson,	Wickham,
Culberson,	Houk,	Peel,	Williams,
Cutcheon,	Hovey,	Perkins,	Wilson, W. Va.
Dalzell,	Hudd,	Perry,	Wise,
Darlington,	Hunter,	Plumb,	Woodburn,
Davis,	Jackson,	Post,	Yardley,
De Lano,	Johnston, Ind.	Pugsley,	Yost.
Dibble,	Kean,	Randall,
Dingley,	Kelley,	Rayner,
Dorsey,	Kennedy,	Reed,

NOT VOTING—141.

Adams,	Cowles,	Lagan,	Rogers,
Allen, Miss.	Crain,	Landes,	Russell, Conn.
Anderson, Iowa	Crisp,	Lane,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Miss.	Cummings,	Latham,	Sayers,
Anderson, Ill.	Dargan,	Lawler,	Scott,
Anderson, Kans.	Davenport,	Lee,	Seney,
Arnold,	Davidson, Ala.	Lodge,	Shaw,
Atkinson,	Davidson, Fla.	Maffett,	Sherman,
Bankhead,	Dockery,	Maish,	Simmons,
Barnes,	Dougherty,	Mansur,	Smith,
Barry,	Enloe,	Martin,	Sowden,
Bayne,	Felton,	McAdoo,	Spinola,
Bingham,	Fisher,	McCreary,	Spooner,
Bland,	Ford,	McCullogh,	Stewart, Tex.
Bliss,	Forney,	McKinney,	Stewart, Ga.
Blount,	Gaines,	McMillin,	Stewart, Vt.
Boutelle,	Gay,	McShane,	Taulbee,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Gibson,	Merriman,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Breckinridge, Ky.	Glass,	Mills,	Thomas, Ill.
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Glover,	Moffitt,	Thompson, Ohio
Browne, Ind.	Grimes,	Moore,	Thompson, Cal.
Burnes,	Grout,	Morgan,	Tillman,
Burnett,	Hayes,	Morse,	Turner, Kans.
Butler,	Hemphill,	Norwood,	Turner, Ga.
Butterworth,	Henderson, N. C.	Oates,	Washington,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Herbert,	O'Neill, Mo.	Weaver,
Campbell, Ohio	Hiestand,	Outhwaite,	Whiting, Mich.
Candler,	Hires,	Owen,	Whitthorne,
Carlton,	Hooker,	Penington,	Wilber,
Catchings,	Howard,	Peters,	Wilkins,
Clardy,	Hutton,	Phelan,	Wilkinson,
Clements,	Johnston, N. C.	Phelps,	Wilson, Minn.
Cobb,	Jones,	Pidcock,	Yoder.
Cockran,	Ketcham,	Richardson,
Collins,	Kilgore,	Robertson,
Compton,	La Follette,	Rockwell,

So the amendment was rejected.

The following additional pair was announced:

Mr. SCOTT with Mr. BAYNE, on this vote.

During the roll-call the following proceedings took place:

Mr. WEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. WEAVER. I make the point of order that in accordance with the special order, under which we are proceeding now, the hour of 12 o'clock having arrived, it is the duty of the Chair to have the Clerk read the Journal of the previous day, and thereupon the House will take order under the control of the Committee on Commerce.

The SPEAKER. The Chair can not do that without adjourning the House; and it is not competent for the Chair to adjourn the House.

Mr. WEAVER. Then I move that the House do now adjourn.

The SPEAKER. The Chair can not entertain that motion during the call of the roll. The Clerk will continue the call.

The roll-call was resumed, and completed.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

PRINTING AND BINDING FOR POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads will be discharged from the further consideration of the letter of the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting copy of a letter from the Postmaster-General submitting certain revised estimates for printing and binding for the Post-Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, and the same will be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The question recurs on the amendment of the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MCMILLIN].

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the time for the consideration of bills reported from the Judiciary Committee has expired by the terms of limitation in the order adopted by the House. It may be somewhat presumptuous, perhaps, in me to raise a point of order of this sort when the current of opinion seems to be antagonistic to the position which I shall assume——

I do not know whether the Chair hears me.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is listening to the gentleman.

Mr. LANHAM. I think, sir, that we ought to be governed in this high legislative body by principles of common sense, to say the least. We are supposed to be legislating for the great body of the American people, and we ought to be reasonably intelligent, practical, and sensible, I think, in all that we do.

Now, sir, the situation as I understand it is this——

Mr. HOPKINS, of Illinois (interrupting). That yesterday is to-day. [Laughter].

Mr. LANHAM (continuing). The session has advanced until the month of April. A number of committees of this House were pressing upon the attention of the Committee on Rules the necessity for assigning certain days for the consideration of bills reported from said committees. These different resolutions setting apart certain days for the consideration of such business went to the Committee on Rules. They carefully considered all these demands upon them for time——

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker, how does this matter come before the House?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman makes a point of order.

Mr. REED. But is there not a motion pending upon which a vote is to be taken, that when the House adjourns it be to a day certain?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman makes the point of order that the time fixed for the consideration of business reported from the Committee on the Judiciary has expired.

Mr. REED. How is that apropos to the motion to fix a day to which the House shall adjourn?

The SPEAKER. The point of order the gentleman makes relates to the consideration of that motion, and is to the effect that under the special order the House must now discontinue action upon the business from the Committee on the Judiciary, because the time which was assigned to that committee for the consideration of its bills has expired, and that under another order of the House the House must proceed to the consideration of business assigned to another committee.

Mr. LANHAM. I hope the gentleman from Maine will allow me to air my parliamentary researches. Perhaps it may vary the monotony of these proceedings.

Mr. REED. But it is such a violent variation.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Speaker, can I proceed?

The SPEAKER. Certainly.

Mr. LANHAM. When these resolutions fixing days for the consideration of business went to the Committee on Rules they investigated them and submitted a report to the House, and the House acted upon it. We are proceeding now, and have been proceeding in the last two days, under the special order found on page 2740 of the RECORD, to certain portions of which I desire to invite attention, in order to ascertain what was the reason and spirit, the object and intention of that resolution. The committee in their report say this:

The committee found that the assignment of more than thirty days was asked for, and as it was manifestly impossible to interrupt the regular business of the House for so great a length of time—

For thirty days. What did that mean? Days of twenty-four hours, I think. Thirty calendar days in the midst of the session, evidently—as it was manifestly impossible to interrupt the regular business for so great a length of time, the committee has made as just an apportionment among the several committees as it was possible to agree upon, and now submits its action for the consideration of the House.

Then they submit as their action the following resolution:

Resolved, That Tuesday and Wednesday—

Certain well-known days in chronology; certain well-known calendar days. But not only that—

Tuesday and Wednesday, April 3 and 4, immediately after the reading of the Journal, be set apart for the consideration of Senate bill 139, etc.

And after that is considered—

The remainder of said time is set apart for the consideration of any other bill or bills designated by the Committee on the Judiciary.

It was obviously the intention of the Committee on Rules and the intention of the House when it adopted the report to give two special calendar days, forty-eight hours I will say, to the Judiciary Committee for the consideration of that specific bill and then such other bills as might be called up by them after its consideration was completed. No other construction, it seems to me, can be given to it in view of the entire text of the report, the surrounding circumstances, and the statement made as to the pressure of time, etc.

Now, following that is this provision in the resolution:

That Thursday and Saturday, April 5 and 7—

Particular calendar days again—

immediately after the reading of the Journal, be set apart for the consideration of bills reported from the Committee on Commerce in such order as said committee may designate.

Further, on Thursday, April 5—

The House shall take a recess at 5 o'clock p. m.—

A particular hour. That is to-day. The great world understands that to-day is Thursday. I suppose there is no question of that fact anywhere else than in the technicality of this House. It was intended, sir, by the Committee on Rules and by the House, I think, that at 5 o'clock on this day the House should take a recess. How should we construe this resolution and this order? By well-known and usual rules of construction. How do we construe a will? The object, sir, is to ascertain the intention of the testator. How do we construe a deed or a grant? By the intention of the contracting parties. And what do we seek here to ascertain? The intention of the House of Representatives when they voted on this resolution.

What did they mean? Did they intend by giving two days for the consideration of this particular bill and other bills from the Committee on the Judiciary that a recess might be taken, that the time might be protracted ad infinitum, yea, even to the end of the session? That was not the intention of the House. It was not contemplated by the House at the time. No common-sense and ordinary construction of it would, it seems to me, logically reach such a conclusion.

Now I am met with the proposition that the legislative day of Wednesday has not expired, that technically and in legislative parlance this is not Thursday but is Wednesday, and I am referred to the rules. I find on page 266 of the Digest the following:

There must be an adjournment before the legislative day will terminate.

And a reference is made to the Journal of the first session of the Thirty-third Congress, page 804.

In order to understand the meaning of that reference—and there is here but a syllabus of the decision that was made—we have to go back to that Journal and see what was before the House. Every case stands upon and ought to be judged by its own particular circumstances. Let us see whether the same conditions obtained when that ruling was made that exist to-day. Was the House of Representatives then confronted by a similar order and surroundings to those under which we are now proceeding? I read further from the Rules:

And the adjournment does not take place by reason of the arrival of the time for the regular daily meeting of the House.

And a further reference is made to the same decision; and it proceeds:

And an adjournment does not necessarily take place at 12 a. m. on Sunday, nor is it against order for a majority to continue in session after the said hour, it being a question which must be left to be decided by the judgment and discretion of the House itself.

And a reference is made to the Journal of the first session of the Twenty-fourth Congress, pages 577 and 582.

Now, sir, in order to ascertain, if I could, the predicate for this legislative or parliamentary decision, I have gone back to those ancient Journals to find under just what circumstances these rulings were made. I hold in my hand the Journal of the Thirty-third Congress, on page 734 of which I find that Thursday, May 11, 1854, this proposition was pending before the House of Representatives:

Resolved, That all debate in the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union on the bill of the House No. 236, to organize the Territories of Nebraska and Kansas, shall cease at 12 o'clock to-morrow (if the committee shall not sooner come to a conclusion upon the same), and the committee shall then proceed to vote on such amendments as may be pending or offered to the same, and shall then report it to the House with such amendments as may have been agreed to by the committee.

The House went on, with varied motions and dilatory proceedings, extending in the Journal from page 734 to 804, where I find the following:

The hour of 12 o'clock m. Friday having arrived, Mr. Dean rose and inquired whether, under the first rule, it was not now the duty of the Chair to cause the Journal of yesterday to be read.

That is the very same point in effect made a while ago by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER], and which, perhaps, as made, was properly overruled. Now, what did the Speaker hold? The Speaker held that the rule referred to required him "to take the chair precisely at the hour to which the House shall have adjourned on the preceding day," but, as there had been no adjournment, he thought there could be no new meeting of the House and that the legislative day which commenced "yesterday" at 12 o'clock m. would not terminate until an adjournment did take place. He consequently decided that the Journal could not be read. The decision was made on that specific point of order and under the particular resolution to which I have invited the attention of the honorable Speaker and of the House.

Now, I say that that order of business was different and not parallel with the order of business under which we are now proceeding. Circumstances alter cases.

I now turn, may it please the Speaker and gentlemen of the House, to the other reference made in the Manual and Digest which I have cited. The proceedings had were on Saturday, March 26, 1836, on a contested-election case, I believe. On page 577 of the Journal of the first session of the Twenty-fourth Congress, I find the following:

"The debate was resumed and continued until 12 o'clock at night, when Mr. Lawler"—I do not know whether it was the same gentleman from Chicago that we have with us now bearing the same name [laughter]—"Mr. Lawler rose to a question of order and inquired whether it was in order for the House to continue in session after 12 o'clock at night on Saturday night;" that is, to continue its session on the Sabbath day. That was the specific point of order made at that time. "The Speaker decided that as a question of order he had no power over the subject; that he could not adjourn the House against the sense of the House; that the rules invested him with no power to do so." Granted that he could not adjourn the House. "He stated the practice of the House at some preceding session, which, from the Journals, it appeared had been for the House occasionally to continue in session on Saturday night until after 12 o'clock. It was a question, he said, which must be left to be decided by the judgment and discretion of the House itself, which alone could determine upon the necessity or propriety of continuing its session, and adjourn or not as the majority should determine, and that he had no power to declare it to be against order to continue in session if the majority otherwise determined."

The Speaker could very appropriately hold the very same thing now without any violation of the rule stated in keeping with the particular circumstances under which that rule was announced.

I grant, sir, although I am no parliamentarian nor the son of a parliamentarian, that the Speaker has no authority to declare this House adjourned, but I maintain that the Speaker does have the authority to declare that the hour or the period assigned for the consideration of business reported from the Judiciary Committee, under the common-sense construction and reasonable interpretation of the order itself, has expired by its own limitation, and that no longer is the consideration of this bill which we have been considering for the last two days in order. That is the point that I make, and I believe, sir, that to adopt any other construction is to do violence to what the Committee on Rules intended, and to what was the manifest intention and purpose of the House, and to involve us in confusion and inconsistency.

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman will allow the Chair to ask him a question——

Mr. LANHAM. If the Chair will permit me, I will say that I can not answer a parliamentary question very well. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER. The Chair wishes to direct the attention of the gentleman to one point. The Chair understands the gentleman from Texas to concede that it is not within the power of the Chair to adjourn the House.

Mr. LANHAM. That seems to be the ruling, sir.

The SPEAKER. Then if the House is not adjourned, how can the Chair cause the Journal of the preceding day's business to be read?

Mr. LANHAM. I am not asking, Mr. Speaker, to have the Journal read; I am contending that the period fixed by the House for the consideration of this bill has expired, and that its consideration is no longer in order. I refer to the very terms of the special rule under which we are proceeding. We are acting under a given rule which does not mention, eo nomine, legislative days, but which in its plain construction and meaning refers to calendar days. I submit that in view of all the facts and surroundings of the case, such must be construed to have been the purpose of the Committee on Rules and of the House. The rule to which I refer is a special rule of the House—a special order. I respectfully submit the question to the Chair.

Mr. DIBBLE. I need not remind the Chair that the question now before the House is upon a proposition relative to adjourning over, so that there is no question immediately pending to which this point of order would be pertinent; therefore I submit that it is prematurely taken. It is not necessary to go into a discussion of the decisions which the gentleman from Texas [Mr. LANHAM] has cited. I merely rose to suggest this further consideration, that the special order to which the gentleman has alluded was, so far as the pending business is concerned, practically superseded by the unanimous consent given at about half past two o'clock this morning for a recess. That of itself, it seems to me, settles conclusively the question which the gentleman has submitted.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not understand the gentleman from Texas to contend that ordinarily the legislative day does not continue until an adjournment; but he contends that under the peculiar phraseology of the order adopted the other day by the House it is the duty of the Chair, after a calendar day has expired, to declare that the business set specially for that day is terminated. And the gentleman contends for this proposition upon the ground that it was evidently the intention of the House when it made that order that the Committee on the Judiciary should have only two calendar days. Conceding that such was the intention of the House when it made the order, still it is very evident that the intention of the House has been changed, because it has declined to adjourn so as to permit that order to take effect; it has remained continuously in session, thus preventing the legislative day from terminating.

The strongest case, perhaps, that could be presented in support of the idea that the legislative day must terminate with the calendar day, is when the hour of 12 o'clock p. m. on the 3d of March arrives, at the expiration of a Congress; and more than once that question has been raised—once in this House, if the present occupant of the chair correctly remembers, by Mr. Benton, then a Representative from the State of Missouri, and once in the Senate by Mr. Cass, then a Senator from the State of Michigan. Those distinguished gentlemen contended that when the hour of 12 o'clock p. m. on the 3d of March arrived, the official terms of members themselves expired under the Constitution; that the presiding officer was no longer such; that the gentlemen sitting upon the floor were no longer members—in short, that there was no organized Congress in existence. Those gentlemen did not even ask that the House should be formally adjourned by order of the Speaker, but contended that it was the duty of the presiding officer to vacate his chair, because there was no Congress. Yet it has been invariably held that so long as the legislative day continued the terms of members continued. The Chair thinks there could not be a stronger case than that. It has been the universal practice of the House and the Senate since that time—and the Chair thinks before that time also—to remain in session on the legislative day of March 3 until 12 o'clock m. of March 4.

Mr. CASWELL. And I would remind the Chair of the precedent in the case of the electoral count in 1877.

The SPEAKER. And as suggested by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. CASWELL], in February, 1877, during the pendency of the counting of the electoral vote, Congress remained continuously in session from February 1 to March 2, and this period constituted legally but one legislative day.

In the case cited by the gentleman from Texas, which was decided in the Thirty-third Congress, it was evidently the intention of the House, in ordering that the debate should be closed "at 12 o'clock to-morrow," that it should cease at 12 o'clock on the next calendar day; but the House afterward determined otherwise, and by remaining continuously in session preserved the legislative day and defeated the purpose which it had intended in the first place to carry out.

Now, the Chair can not adjourn the House; that is conceded. The Chair can not cause the Journal of the House to be read until there has been an adjournment; that is conceded. And under the order which the gentleman from Texas has read the business of the Committee on Commerce will not come up until after the reading of the Journal; so that, if the Chair were to sustain the gentleman's point, the Committee on Commerce would not now be able to call up its business, but the House would remain in session as of Wednesday until an adjournment should take place.

Mr. LANHAM. Wednesday, then, might last until next December.

Several MEMBERS. Yes.

The SPEAKER. Of course it might; it might last until the official terms of the present members of the House shall expire, if the House should see proper so to determine. The Chair overrules the point of order.

Mr. LANHAM. May I ask the Speaker just one question, in order to illustrate the point I make? Are we not proceeding and have we not been proceeding for the last two days under the special order adopted by the House assigning the business of certain committees to certain days?

The SPEAKER. And the House now by its action defeats that part of the order which assigns Thursday to the business of the Committee on Commerce, just as the House, if it had on last Monday adjourned over till Thursday, as it might have done, would have defeated the whole order giving two days to the Committee on the Judiciary, notwithstanding its original intention to give those two days.

Mr. REED. We are proceeding under that order as modified by subsequent events.

Mr. DUNN. Right there I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. DUNN. If now, or later to-day, the House should simply adjourn, will the next legislative day be Thursday, the time allotted for business of the Commerce Committee?

The SPEAKER. It would not, the hour of 12 o'clock having passed.

Mr. DUNN. Under the usual practice in case of the prolongation of a legislative day, the House, when it adjourns, adjourns to meet on the next calendar day.

The SPEAKER. That is the usual practice.

Mr. DUNN. Then, if the House now simply adjourns, fixing no day to which it will adjourn, will not the next legislative day be the time allotted to the Committee on Commerce?

The SPEAKER. The Committee on Commerce was allowed two days by the order, but if the House should adjourn to-day——

Mr. DUNN. And they were the two legislative days next following the days given to the Judiciary Committee?

The SPEAKER. The Chair thinks that if the House should adjourn to-day, even without the order the gentleman suggests, when it adjourns it would be to meet on Friday. This, the Chair thinks, would result from the actual necessity of the situation under another order of the House, which provides that when the House shall adjourn it shall be, unless otherwise ordered, to meet at 12 o'clock on the next day; and Friday, the next day, being set apart for other business, the business of the Committee on Commerce could not come up for consideration under the order heretofore made.

Mr. MORGAN. Mr. Speaker, have not the rulings heretofore made with reference to this matter been based upon the fact that these Congressional proceedings and records in themselves import absolute verity, and can not be inquired into by any other tribunal?

The SPEAKER. Of course, and the Chair is governed absolutely by the records of the body over which he presides.

Mr. MORGAN. We are now engaged in making the record, and the facts assumed to be set forth by these records, which, as I have said, are understood to import absolute verity, and can not be inquired into by any other tribunal, should be the truth. The cases cited are good as precedents to establish that our records under certain conditions can not be inquired into, but not as a rule of conduct. We are the sole judges of our own proceedings, and no court or tribunal can inquire into them. We are the only tribunal to pass upon our own actions. Are we not, therefore, violating our duty in that regard as far as the accuracy of these records is concerned? Is is not the duty of the Speaker, when called on, to make the record speak the facts, unless overruled by the House?

The SPEAKER. The Chair thinks that is a question for the House and not for the Chair to determine.

Mr. MORGAN. Certainly our records, which import verity, should be what they profess to be. [Cries of "Regular order!"]

The SPEAKER. The Chair has overruled the point of order.

Mr. TAULBEE. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TAULBEE. I wish to know if the House refuses to adjourn on this legislative day of Wednesday, if that continues the business pending when we took the recess last night until that matter is disposed of?

The SPEAKER. It continues until the House adjourns.

Mr. TAULBEE. Then we will not adjourn. [Cries of "That's so!"]

Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota. I wish to make one inquiry which has not been touched, as I understand, by the ruling of the Chair upon the point of order raised by the gentleman from Texas.

I understand that ruling very well; but the point I wish to make is this: The special order adopted by this House provides that at 5 o'clock on Thursday the House shall go into recess for the purpose of reassembling at 8 o'clock, at which evening session certain business, enumerated in the order for the recess, shall be taken up for consideration.

Now, if by this order of the House, by which we are bound and under which we are acting at this time, that day means a calendar day, then nothing that has been done hitherto can prevent the House, except by its own action, from carrying out that order for the recess. I wish to repeat this, Mr. Speaker, so that my point may be understood, that if the order under which we are proceeding in the House here to-day means the calendar day and not a legislative day, then there has been nothing hitherto done which is inconsistent with the order that the House at 5 o'clock shall take a recess until 8 o'clock to take up certain other business, to wit, reports from the Committee on Military Affairs. Nothing has been inconsistent with that.

That being the case, then we come right back to the point of the gentleman from Texas, that when we reach that hour to-day, 5 o'clock, the question arises, to wit: What is the meaning of the order; whether it applies to this as a calendar day or a legislative day? If it be a calendar day, then, without any other act of the House, when we reach the hour of 5 o'clock, by virtue of the order under which we are proceeding, it is the duty of the Speaker to declare the House in recess and for the business indicated.

The SPEAKER. The Chair supposes that the general proposition stated in deciding the point of order of the gentleman from Texas embraces also the point now suggested by the gentleman from Minnesota. That proposition was that the legislative day continues up to the date of an adjournment; that is to say, the legislative day of Wednesday, April 4, 1888, continues until the House adjourns.

Now, if that be correct, then if the Chair were to declare a recess at 5 o'clock, the record would show—and this is the only record by which the Chair can be governed—that the House had taken a recess on the legislative day of Wednesday, and not on Thursday, as the order to which the gentleman refers specifies.

Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota. But—I beg pardon of the Chair—let me call attention to the record there. The House, if the Speaker will recollect—which of course he does—met on Wednesday morning at 12 o'clock noon. After a lengthy proceeding we adjourned until 11.45 a. m., or took a recess, which, I care not. The House took a recess until 11.45 a. m. That is an impossibility unless it means 11.45 of the next day. Therefore, even if the record imports absolute verity and may not be contradicted, the record is with us, because we adjourned at an hour earlier than we had assembled on the same day, as shown by the same record.

The SPEAKER. We did not adjourn at all.

Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota. We took a recess, which is a physical impossibility if it be accounted the same day. You can not take a recess to an earlier hour than that in which we met on a previous day, unless it be to a subsequent day.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is mistaken as to the fact. The House took a recess not only in the same legislative day, but in the same calendar day. It was taken at about half past 2 o'clock a. m. to 11.45 a. m., on the same calendar day and the same legislative day.

Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota. I think I have not made myself understood. If it be the same calendar day and the same legislative day, it must be the same day on which we met at 12 o'clock noon.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has decided the point of order. The question is now on the amendment of the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MCMILLIN], that when the House adjourns it be to meet on Friday next.

The question being put, there were—ayes 7, noes 71.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 2, nays 196, not voting 126; as follows:

YEAS—2.

Anderson, Iowa.	Neal,

NAYS—196.

Allen, Mass.	Baker, Ill.	Bliss,	Brewer,
Allen, Mich.	Bayne,	Boothman,	Browne, T. H. B., Va.
Anderson, Ill.	Belden,	Bound,	Brown, Ohio
Anderson, Kans.	Belmont,	Boutelle,	Brown, J. R., Va.
Atkinson,	Biggs,	Bowden,	Brumm,
Baker, N. Y.	Blanchard,	Bowen,	Buchanan,
Buckalew,	Gear,	Lind,	Russell, Conn.
Bunnell,	Gest,	Long,	Ryan,
Burrows,	Glass,	Lyman,	Scull,
Bynum,	Goff,	Lynch,	Seney,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Granger,	Macdonald,	Seymour,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Greenman,	Mahoney,	Shively,
Cannon,	Grosvenor,	Maish,	Sowden,
Caruth,	Grout,	Mansur,	Springer,
Caswell,	Guenther,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Cheadle,	Hall,	Matson,	Steele,
Chipman,	Harmer,	McClammy,	Stephenson,
Clardy,	Hatch,	McComas,	Stewart, Vt.
Clark,	Haugen,	McCormick,	Stockdale,
Cogswell,	Hayden,	McCreary,	Stone, Ky.
Conger,	Hemphill,	McKenna,	Stone, Mo.
Cooper,	Henderson, Iowa	McKinley,	Struble,
Cothran,	Henderson, N. C.	Milliken,	Symes,
Cox,	Henderson, Ill.	Montgomery,	Taulbee,
Crouse,	Hermann,	Morrill,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Cummings,	Hitt,	Morrow,	Thomas, Ky.
Cutcheon,	Hogg,	Newton,	Thomas, Wis.
Dalzell,	Holman,	Nichols,	Tracey,
Darlington,	Holmes,	Nutting,	Townshend,
Davenport,	Hopkins, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Turner, Kans.
Davis,	Hopkins, Va.	O'Ferrall,	Vandever,
De Lano,	Hopkins, N. Y.	O'Neill, Pa.	Wade,
Dibble,	Houk,	Osborne,	Walker,
Dockery,	Hovey,	Owen,	Warner,
Dorsey,	Hudd,	Parker,	Weaver,
Dunham,	Hunter,	Patton,	Weber,
Dunn,	Hutton,	Payson,	West,
Elliott,	Jackson,	Peel,	White, Ind.
Ermentrout,	Johnston, Ind.	Perkins,	White, N. Y.
Farquhar,	Johnston, N. C.	Perry,	Whiting, Mass.
Finley,	Kean,	Plumb,	Whitthorne,
Fitch,	Kelley,	Post,	Wickham,
Flood,	Kennedy,	Pugsley,	Wilber,
Foran,	Kerr,	Randall,	Wilkinson,
French,	Ketcham,	Rayner,	Williams,
Fuller,	La Follette,	Rice,	Wise,
Funston,	Laidlaw,	Romeis,	Woodburn,
Gallinger,	Lawler,	Rowell,	Yardley,
Gay,	Lehlbach,	Rowland,	Yost.

NOT VOTING—126.

Abbott,	Crisp,	Latham,	Rogers,
Adams,	Culberson,	Lee,	Russell, Mass.
Allen, Miss.	Dargan,	Lodge,	Rusk,
Anderson, Miss.	Davidson, Ala.	Maffett,	Sawyer,
Arnold,	Davidson, Fla.	Martin,	Sayers,
Bacon,	Dingley,	McAdoo,	Scott,
Bankhead,	Dougherty,	McCullogh,	Shaw,
Barnes,	Enloe,	McKinney,	Sherman,
Barry,	Felton,	McMillin,	Simmons,
Bingham,	Fisher,	McRae,	Smith,
Bland,	Ford,	McShane,	Snyder,
Blount,	Forney,	Merriman,	Spinola,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Gaines,	Mills,	Spooner,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Gibson,	Moffitt,	Stewart, Tex.
Brower,	Glover,	Moore,	Stewart, Ga.
Browne, Ind.	Grimes,	Morgan,	Tarsney,
Bryce,	Hare,	Morse,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Burnes,	Hayes,	Nelson,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnett,	Heard,	Norwood,	Thompson, Ohio
Butler,	Herbert,	Oates,	Thompson, Cal.
Butterworth,	Hiestand,	O'Neall, Ind.	Tillman,
Campbell, Ohio	Hires,	O'Neill, Mo.	Turner, Ga.
Candler,	Hooker,	Outhwaite,	Vance,
Carlton,	Howard,	Penington,	Washington,
Catchings,	Jones,	Peters,	Wheeler,
Clements,	Kilgore,	Phelan,	Whiting, Mich.
Cobb,	Laffoon,	Phelps,	Wilkins,
Cockran,	Lagan,	Pidcock,	Wilson, Minn.
Collins,	Laird,	Reed,	Wilson, W. Va.
Compton,	Landes,	Richardson,	Yoder.
Cowles,	Lane,	Robertson,
Crain,	Lanham,	Rockwell,

So the motion was not agreed to.

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the names.

Mr. OATES. I object.

The following additional pair was announced:

Mr. SCOTT with Mr. PHELPS, until further notice.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to reconsider the vote just taken.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has decided that a motion to reconsider a vote by which the House refuses to adjourn over or refuses to adjourn is not in order.

Mr. WEAVER. I thought this was a motion to take a recess.

The SPEAKER. It was a motion to fix a day to which the House would adjourn. The Chair based that ruling on the ground that these are motions which, according to all previous decisions, can be repeated, and therefore it is not in order to move to reconsider.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. SCOTT, indefinitely.

To Mr. THOMPSON, of California, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

REPRINT OF REPORT.

The SPEAKER. The Chair submits the following request:

Mr. BELMONT, on behalf of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, asks that the report of that committee on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill be reprinted, stating there is an error in it as printed.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

Mr. KILGORE, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that the committee had examined and found duly enrolled a bill of the following title; when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (H. R. 6879) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to convey to Anson Rudd, of the State of Colorado, certain real estate in the county of Fremont, in said State.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

The question being put, the Speaker stated that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. OATES. I call for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 5, noes 74.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. LONG. To save the clerks, I ask unanimous consent that a recess of thirty minutes be taken, that being about the time we would consume in calling the roll.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Massachusetts asks unanimous consent that instead of taking the yeas and nays a recess of thirty minutes be taken.

Mr. GLOVER. I object.

Mr. OATES. We are willing to adjourn, but not to take a recess.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 5, nays 197, not voting 122; as follows:

YEAS—5.

Blanchard,	Lynch,	Neal,	Washington.
Hayes,

NAYS—197.

Abbott,	De Lano,	Hutton,	Rayner,
Allen, Mass.	Dibble,	Jackson,	Reed,
Allen, Mich.	Dorsey,	Johnston, Ind.	Rice,
Anderson, Ill.	Dunham,	Johnston, N. C.	Romeis,
Anderson, Kans.	Elliott,	Kean,	Rowell,
Atkinson,	Ermentrout,	Kelley,	Rowland,
Baker, N. Y.	Farquhar,	Kennedy,	Russell, Conn.
Baker, Ill.	Felton,	Kerr,	Rusk,
Bayne,	Finley,	Ketcham,	Ryan,
Belden,	Fitch,	Kilgore,	Scull,
Biggs,	Flood,	Laffoon,	Seney,
Bliss,	Foran,	Laidlaw,	Seymour,
Boothman,	Ford,	Laird,	Shaw,
Bound,	French,	Landes,	Sowden,
Bowen,	Fuller,	Lane,	Springer,
Brewer,	Funston,	Lawler,	Stahlnecker,
Brower,	Gallinger,	Lehlbach,	Stephenson,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Gay,	Lind,	Stockdale,
Brown, Ohio	Gear,	Long,	Stone, Ky.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Gest,	Lyman,	Stone, Mo.
Brumm,	Glass,	Macdonald,	Struble,
Bryce,	Glover,	Mahoney,	Symes,
Buchanan,	Goff,	Mansur,	Taulbee,
Buckalew,	Granger,	Mason,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Bunnell,	Greenman,	Matson,	Thomas, Ky.
Burrows,	Grimes,	McClammy,	Thomas, Wis.
Bynum,	Grosvenor,	McComas,	Tracey,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Grout,	McCormick,	Townshend,
Campbell, Ohio	Guenther,	McCreary,	Turner, Kans.
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hall,	McKinley,	Vandever,
Cannon,	Harmer,	Milliken,	Wade,
Caruth,	Hatch,	Montgomery,	Walker,
Caswell,	Hayden,	Moore,	Warner,
Catchings,	Hemphill,	Morrill,	Weber,
Cheadle,	Henderson, Iowa	Morrow,	West,
Chipman,	Henderson, N. C.	Newton,	White, Ind.
Clardy,	Henderson, Ill.	Nichols,	White, N. Y.
Clark,	Hermann,	Nutting,	Whiting, Mich.
Cogswell,	Hires,	O'Donnell,	Whitthorne,
Conger,	Hogg,	O'Ferrall,	Wickham,
Cooper,	Holman,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wilber,
Cothran,	Holmes,	O'Neill, Pa.	Wilkinson,
Cox,	Hopkins, Ill.	Osborne,	Williams,
Culberson,	Hopkins, Va.	Patton,	Wise,
Cummings,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Penington,	Woodburn,
Cutcheon,	Houk,	Perkins,	Yardley,
Dalzell,	Hovey,	Perry,	Yost.
Darlington,	Howard,	Plumb,
Davenport,	Hudd,	Post,
Davis,	Hunter,	Pugsley,

NOT VOTING—122.

Adams,	Cobb,	Hitt,	Norwood,
Allen, Miss.	Cockran,	Hooker,	Oates,
Anderson, Iowa	Collins,	Jones,	O'Neill, Mo.
Anderson, Miss.	Compton,	La Follette,	Outhwaite,
Arnold,	Cowles,	Lagan,	Owen,
Bacon,	Crain,	Lanham,	Parker,
Bankhead,	Crisp,	Latham,	Payson,
Barnes,	Crouse,	Lee,	Peel,
Barry,	Dargan,	Lodge,	Peters,
Belmont,	Davidson, Ala.	Maffett,	Phelan,
Bingham,	Davidson, Fla.	Maish,	Phelps,
Bland,	Dingley,	Martin,	Pidcock,
Blount,	Dockery,	McAdoo,	Randall,
Boutelle,	Dougherty,	McCullogh,	Richardson,
Bowden,	Dunn,	McKenna,	Robertson,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Enloe,	McKinney,	Rockwell,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Fisher,	McMillin,	Rogers,
Browne, Ind.	Forney,	McRae,	Russell, Mass.
Burnes,	Gaines,	McShane,	Sawyer,
Burnett,	Gibson,	Mefriman,	Sayers,
Butler,	Hare,	Mills,	Scott,
Butterworth,	Haugen,	Moffitt,	Sherman,
Candler,	Heard,	Morgan,	Shively,
Carlton,	Herbert,	Morse,	Simmons,
Clements,	Hiestand,	Nelson,	Smith,
Snyder,	Stewart, Vt.	Tillman,	Wilkins,
Spinola,	Tarsney,	Turner, Ga.	Wilson, Minn.
Spooner,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio	Vance,	Wilson, W. Va.
Steele,	Thomas, Ill.	Weaver,	Yoder.
Stewart, Tex.	Thompson, Ohio	Wheeler,
Stewart, Ga.	Thompson, Cal.	Whiting, Mass.

So the motion to adjourn until Monday next was not agreed to.

The following additional pair was announced:

Mr. SHIVELY with Mr. NELSON, on this vote.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER. The question is now on the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MCMILLIN] that the House adjourn.

Mr. DIBBLE. On that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 4, nays 192, not voting 128; as follows:

YEAS—4.

Landes,	McRae,	Neal,	Whitthorne.

NAYS—192.

Allen, Mass.	Darlington,	Hopkins, Va.	Perkins,
Allen, Mich.	Davis,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Perry,
Anderson, Miss.	De Lano,	Houk,	Pugsley,
Anderson, Ill.	Dibble,	Hovey,	Randall,
Anderson, Kans.	Dockery,	Howard,	Reed,
Atkinson,	Dorsey,	Hudd,	Rice,
Baker, N. Y.	Dunham,	Hunter,	Romeis,
Baker, Ill.	Dunn,	Johnston, Ind.	Rowell,
Bayne,	Elliott,	Johnston, N. C.	Rowland,
Belden,	Ermentrout,	Kean,	Russell, Conn.
Belmont,	Farquhar,	Kennedy,	Rusk,
Biggs,	Felton,	Kerr,	Ryan,
Blanchard,	Finley,	Ketcham,	Sawyer,
Boothman,	Fitch,	La Follette,	Scull,
Bound,	Flood,	Laidlaw,	Seney,
Boutelle,	Foran,	Laird,	Shaw,
Bowden,	Ford,	Latham,	Sowden,
Bowen,	French,	Lawler,	Springer.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Fuller,	Lehlbach,	Stahlnecker,
Brewer,	Funston,	Lind,	Stephenson,
Brower,	Gallinger,	Long,	Stockdale,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Gay,	Lyman,	Stone, Ky.
Brown, Ohio	Gear,	Macdonald,	Stone, Mo.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Gest,	Mahoney,	Struble,
Brumm,	Glass,	Maish,	Symes,
Bryce,	Glover,	Mason,	Taulbee,
Buchanan,	Goff,	Matson,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Buckalew,	Granger,	McClammy,	Thomas, Ky.
Bunnell,	Greenman,	McComas,	Thomas, Wis.
Burrows,	Grosvenor,	McCormick,	Tracey,
Bynum,	Grout,	McCreary,	Turner, Kans.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Guenther,	McKenna,	Vandever,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hall,	McKinley,	Wade,
Cannon,	Harmer,	Montgomery,	Walker,
Caruth,	Hatch,	Morrill,	Warner,
Caswell,	Haugen,	Morrow,	Weber,
Cheadle,	Hayden,	Nelson,	West,
Chipman,	Hemphill,	Nichols,	White, Ind.
Clark,	Henderson, Iowa	Nutting,	White, N. Y.
Cogswell,	Henderson, N. C.	O'Donnell,	Whiting, Mass.
Conger,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Ferrall,	Wickham,
Cooper,	Herbert,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wilber,
Cothran,	Hermann,	O'Neill, Pa.	Wilkinson,
Cox,	Hires,	Osborne,	Williams,
Crouse,	Hitt,	Owen,	Wise,
Cummings,	Holman,	Parker,	Woodburn,
Cutcheon,	Holmes,	Patton,	Yardley,
Dalzell,	Hopkins, Ill.	Payson,	Yost.

NOT VOTING—128.

Abbott,	Culberson,	Mansur,	Russell, Mass.
Adams,	Dargan,	Martin,	Sayers,
Allen, Miss.	Davenport,	McAdoo,	Scott,
Anderson, Iowa	Davidson, Ala.	McCullogh,	Seymour,
Arnold,	Davidson, Fla.	McKinney,	Sherman,
Bacon,	Dingley,	McMillin,	Shively,
Bankhead,	Dougherty,	McShane,	Simmons,
Barnes,	Enloe,	Merriman,	Smith,
Barry,	Fisher,	Milliken,	Snyder,
Bingham,	Forney,	Mills,	Spinola,
Bland,	Gaines,	Moffitt,	Spooner,
Bliss,	Gibson,	Moore,	Steele,
Blount,	Grimes,	Morgan,	Stewart, Tex.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Hare,	Morse,	Stewart, Ga.
Browne, Ind.	Hayes,	Newton,	Stewart, Vt.
Burnes,	Heard,	Norwood,	Tarsney,
Burnett,	Hiestand,	Oates,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Butler,	Hogg,	O'Neill, Mo.	Thomas, Ill.
Butterworth,	Hooker,	Outhwaite,	Thompson, Ohio
Campbell, Ohio	Hutton,	Peel,	Thompson, Cal.
Candler,	Jackson,	Penington,	Tillman,
Carlton,	Jones,	Peters,	Townshend,
Catchings,	Kelley,	Phelan,	Turner, Ga.
Clardy,	Kilgore,	Phelps,	Vance,
Clements,	Laffoon,	Pidcock,	Washington,
Cobb,	Lagan,	Plumb,	Weaver,
Cockran,	Lane,	Post,	Wheeler,
Collins,	Lanham,	Rayner,	Whiting, Mich.
Compton,	Lee,	Richardson,	Wilkins,
Cowles,	Lodge,	Robertson,	Wilson, Minn.
Crain,	Lynch,	Rockwell,	Wilson, W. Va.
Crisp,	Maffett,	Rogers,	Yoder.

So the motion of Mr. MCMILLIN was not agreed to.

The following additional pair was announced:

Mr. BARRY with Mr. HEARD, on this bill, until 4 o'clock p. m.

RAILROAD-CAR COUPLING AND HEATING.

Mr. HATCH. I ask unanimous consent to introduce a resolution simply for reference to the Committee on Commerce.

The SPEAKER. Without its being read?
Mr. HATCH. It is not necessary to read it.
Mr. DUNHAM. Let it be read, Mr. Speaker.
The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring therein), That the Interstate Commerce Commission be instructed to consider what can be done to prevent the loss of life and limb in coupling and uncoupling freight-cars used in interstate commerce and in handling the brakes of such cars, and in what way the growth of the system of heating cars from the locomotive or other single source can be promoted; to the end that such commission may make recommendation in the premises to the various railroads within its jurisdiction, and report its doings to Congress at an early date, with such suggestions as to legislation on such subjects as may seem to it necessary and expedient.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. HATCH]?
There was no objection; and the resolution was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, PARIS, FRANCE.

Mr. BELMONT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House non-concur in certain Senate amendments to the House joint resolution (No. 83) accepting the invitation of the French Republic to take part in an international exposition to be held in Paris in 1889.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

Mr. REED. I call for the regular order.
The SPEAKER. The regular order is demanded. The regular order is the question on the motion of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR].
Mr. OATES. I move that the House now take a recess until 5 o'clock this afternoon.
Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend by inserting 4 o'clock instead of 5.
Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I move to amend the amendment by inserting half-past 4 instead of 4.
The SPEAKER. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] to the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER].
The question was taken; and the Speaker declared that the "noes" seemed to have it.
A division was called for.
The House divided; and there were—ayes 5, noes 42.
Mr. OATES. No quorum.
The SPEAKER. The point being made that no quorum has voted, the Chair will appoint tellers.
Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I demand the yeas and nays.
The yeas and nays were ordered.
The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 7, nays 182, not voting 135; as follows:

YEAS—7.

Abbott,	Hayes,	Lynch,	Whiting, Mich.
Anderson, Iowa	Hutton,	McRae.

NAYS—182.

Allen, Mass.	Davis,	Jackson,	Reed,
Allen, Mich.	De Lano,	Johnston, Ind.	Rice,
Anderson, Kans.	Dibble,	Johnston, N. C.	Romeis,
Atkinson,	Dorsey,	Kennedy,	Rowell,
Baker, N. Y.	Elliott,	Kerr,	Rowland,
Baker, Ill.	Farquhar,	Laffoon,	Russell, Conn.
Bayne,	Finley,	La Follette,	Rusk,
Belden,	Fitch,	Lagan,	Ryan,
Belmont,	Flood,	Laidlaw,	Sawyer,
Bliss,	Foran,	Laird,	Scull,
Boothman,	Ford,	Latham,	Seney,
Bound,	French,	Lehlbach,	Seymour,
Boutelle,	Fuller,	Lind,	Shaw,
Bowden,	Funston,	Long,	Sowden,
Bowen,	Gallinger,	Lyman,	Springer,
Brewer,	Gay,	Mahoney,	Stahlnecker,
Brower,	Gear,	Mason,	Steele,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Gest,	Matson,	Stone, Ky.
Brown, Ohio.	Glass,	McClammy,	Stone, Mo.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Goff,	McComas,	Struble,
Brumm,	Greenman,	McCormick,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Bryce,	Grout,	McCreary,	Thomas, Ky.
Buchanan,	Guenther,	McKenna,	Tracey,
Buckalew,	Hall,	McKinley,	Townshend,
Bunnell,	Harmer,	Milliken,	Turner, Kans.
Burrows,	Hatch,	Montgomery,	Vandever,
Butterworth,	Haugen,	Morrill,	Wade,
Bynum,	Hayden,	Morrow,	Walker,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hemphill,	Neal,	Warner,
Campbell, Ohio	Henderson, Iowa	Nichols,	Weber,
Cannon,	Henderson, N. C.	Nutting,	West,
Caruth,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	White, Ind.
Caswell,	Hermann,	O'Ferrall,	White, N. Y.
Cheadle,	Hires,	O'Neall, Ind.	Whiting, Mass.
Chipman,	Hitt,	O'Neill, Pa.	Whitthorne,
Clark,	Hogg,	Osborne,	Wickham,
Cogswell,	Holman,	Owen,	Wilber,
Conger,	Holmes,	Parker,	Wilkinson,
Cooper,	Hopkins, Ill.	Patton,	Williams,
Cothran,	Hopkins, Va.	Payson,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cox,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Perkins,	Wise,
Crouse,	Houk,	Perry,	Woodburn.
Culberson,	Hovey,	Plumb,	Yardley,
Cummings,	Howard,	Post,	Yost.
Cutcheon,	Hudd,	Pugsley,
Darlington,	Hunter,	Randall,

NOT VOTING—135.

Adams,	Dargan,	Lee,	Rogers,
Allen, Miss.	Davenport,	Lodge,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Miss.	Davidson, Ala.	Macdonald,	Sayres,
Anderson, Ill.	Davidson, Fla.	Maffett,	Scott,
Arnold,	Dingley,	Maish,	Sherman,
Bacon,	Dockery,	Mansur,	Shively,
Bankhead,	Dougherty,	Martin,	Simmons,
Barnes,	Dunham,	McAdoo,	Smith,
Barry,	Dunn,	McCullogh,	Snyder,
Biggs,	Enloe,	McKinney,	Spinola,
Bingham,	Ermentrout,	McMillin,	Spooner,
Blanchard,	Felton,	McShane,	Stephenson,
Bland,	Fisher,	Merriman,	Stewart, Tex.
Blount,	Forney,	Mills,	Stewart, Ga.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Gaines,	Moffitt,	Stewart, Vt.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Gibson,	Moore,	Stockdale,
Browne, Ind.	Glover,	Morgan,	Symes,
Burnes,	Granger,	Morse,	Tarsney,
Burnett,	Grimes,	Nelson,	Taulbee,
Butler,	Grosvenor,	Newton,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hare,	Norwood,	Thomas, Ill.
Candler,	Heard,	Oates,	Thomas, Wis.
Carlton,	Herbert,	O'Neill, Mo.	Thompson, Ohio
Catchings,	Hiestand,	Outhwaite,	Thompson, Cal.
Clardy,	Hooker,	Peel,	Tillman,
Clements,	Jones,	Penington,	Turner, Ga.
Cobb,	Kean,	Peters,	Vance,
Cockran,	Kelley,	Phelan,	Washington,
Collins,	Ketcham,	Phelps,	Weaver,
Compton,	Kilgore,	Pidcock,	Wheeler,
Cowles,	Landes,	Rayner,	Wilkins,
Crain,	Lane,	Richardson,	Wilson, Minn.
Crisp,	Lanham,	Robertson,	Yoder.
Dalzell,	Lawler.	Rockwell,

So the amendment of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, to fix four and a half o'clock as the hour to which a recess should be taken was rejected.
The following pair was announced:
Mr. STOCKDALE with Mr. NELSON, on this bill, until 4 o'clock p. m.
The result of the vote was announced as above stated.
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCCREARY). The question is now on the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER], proposing to take a recess until 4 o'clock.
The question having been put,
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The "noes" seem to have it.
Mr. OATES. I call for a division.
The question being again taken, there were—ayes 2, noes 168.
Mr. OATES. I call for the yeas and nays.
The yeas and nays were ordered, 42 voting in favor thereof.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT.

A message, in writing, from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Mr. PRUDEN, one of his Secretaries, who also announced that the President had approved and signed joint resolution and bills of the following titles:
Joint resolution (H. Res. 77) to supply the Department of State with copies of bills and other documents;
An act (H. R. 1589) to provide for holding terms of the United States courts at Mississippi City;
An act (H. R. 3957) for the relief of Peter March, Thomas J. Wright, administrator, and others;
An act (H. R. 4487) to enable the Secretary of the Interior to pay certain creditors of the Pottawatomie Indians out of the funds of said Indians;
An act (H. R. 4556) to confirm New Madrid location survey, numbered 2889, and to provide for issue of patent therefor; and
An act (H. R. 5728) to amend the laws relating to navigation, and for other purposes.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas. Will the Chair please state the question on which the House is about to vote by yeas and nays.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES] moved that the House take a recess until 5 o'clock. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] moved an amendment substituting 4 o'clock, and the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] moved a further amendment to name four and a half o'clock as the hour. The amendment of the gentleman from Arkansas has been voted down. The question is now on the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa fixing 4 o'clock as the hour to which the House will take a recess. The yeas and nays have been ordered, and the Clerk will call the roll.
The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 3, nays 183, not voting 138; as follows:

YEAS—3.

Landes,	Lynch,	McRae.

NAYS—183.

Allen, Mass.	Belmont,	Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Bynum,
Allen, Mich.	Bliss,	Brown, Ohio	Campbell, F., N. Y.
Anderson, Ill.	Boothman,	Brown, J. R., Va.	Campbell, Ohio
Anderson, Kans.	Bound,	Brumm,	Campbell, T. J., N. Y.
Atkinson,	Boutelle,	Bryce,	Cannon,
Baker, N. Y.	Bowden,	Buchanan,	Caruth,
Baker, Ill.	Bowen,	Buckalew,	Caswell,
Bayne,	Brewer,	Bunnell,	Cheadle,
Belden,	Brower,	Burrows,	Chipman,

Clark,	Grout,	Lind,	Ryan,
Cogswell,	Guenther,	Long,	Sawyer,
Conger,	Hall,	Lyman,	Scull,
Cooper,	Harmer,	Macdonald,	Seymour,
Cothran,	Haugen,	Mahoney,	Simmons,
Cox,	Hayden,	Maish,	Sowden,
Crouse,	Hemphill,	Mason,	Springer,
Culberson,	Henderson, Iowa	McClammy,	Stahlnecker,
Cummings,	Henderson, N. C.	McCreary,	Steele,
Cutcheon,	Henderson, Ill.	McKenna,	Stephenson,
Dalzell,	Hermann,	McKinley,	Stone, Ky.
Darlington,	Hires,	Milliken,	Stone, Mo.
Davis,	Hitt,	Montgomery,	Struble,
De Lano,	Hogg,	Morrill,	Symes,
Dibble,	Holman,	Morrow,	Taulbee,
Dingley,	Holmes,	Neal,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Dorsey,	Hopkins, Ill.	Nelson,	Thomas, Ky.
Elliott,	Hopkins, Va.	Nutting,	Thomas, Wis.
Ermentrout,	Hopkins, N. Y.	O'Donnell,	Tracey,
Farquhar,	Hovey,	O'Ferrall,	Townshend,
Felton,	Hudd,	O'Neall, Ind.	Turner, Kans.
Finley,	Hunter,	O'Neill, Pa.	Vandever,
Fitch,	Hutton,	Osborne,	Wade,
Flood,	Jackson,	Owen,	Walker,
Foran,	Johnston, Ind.	Parker,	Warner,
Ford,	Johnston, N. C.	Patton,	Weber,
Fuller,	Kean,	Perkins,	West,
Funston,	Kelley,	Perry,	White, Ind.
Gallinger,	Kennedy,	Plumb,	White, N. Y.
Gay,	Kerr,	Pugsley,	Wickham,
Gear,	Ketcham,	Randall,	Wilber,
Gest,	Laffoon,	Reed,	Williams,
Glass,	La Follette,	Rice,	Wise,
Glover,	Lagan,	Romeis,	Woodburn,
Goff,	Laidlaw,	Rowell,	Yardley,
Greenman,	Latham,	Rowland,	Yost.
Grosvenor,	Lehlbach,	Russell, Conn.

NOT VOTING—138.

Abbott,	Davenport,	Matson,	Sayers,
Adams,	Davidson, Ala.	McAdoo,	Scott,
Allen, Miss.	Davidson, Fla.	McComas,	Seney,
Anderson, Iowa	Dockery,	McCormick,	Shaw,
Anderson, Miss.	Dougherty,	McCullogh,	Sherman,
Arnold,	Dunham,	McKinney,	Shively,
Bacon,	Dunn,	McMillin,	Smith,
Bankhead,	Enloe,	McShane,	Snyder,
Barnes,	Fisher,	Merriman,	Spinola,
Barry,	Forney,	Mills,	Spooner,
Biggs,	French,	Moffitt,	Stewart, Tex.
Bingham,	Gaines,	Moore,	Stewart, Ga.
Blanchard,	Gibson,	Morgan,	Stewart, Vt.
Bland,	Granger,	Morse,	Stockdale,
Blount,	Grimes,	Newton,	Tarsney,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Hare,	Nichols,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Breckinridge, Ky.	Hatch,	Norwood,	Thomas, Ill.
Browne, Ind.	Hayes,	Oates,	Thompson, Ohio
Burnes,	Heard,	O'Neill, Mo.	Thompson, Cal.
Burnett,	Herbert,	Outhwaite,	Tillman,
Butler,	Hiestand,	Payson,	Turner, Ga.
Butterworth,	Hooker,	Peel,	Vance,
Candler,	Houk,	Penington,	Washington,
Carlton,	Howard,	Peters,	Weaver,
Catchings,	Jones,	Phelan,	Wheeler,
Clardy,	Kilgore,	Phelps,	Whiting, Mich.
Clements,	Laird,	Pidcock,	Whiting, Mass.
Cobb,	Lane,	Post,	Whitthorne,
Cockran,	Lanham,	Rayner,	Wilkins,
Collins,	Lawler,	Richardson,	Wilkinson,
Compton,	Lee,	Robertson,	Wilson, Minn.
Cowles,	Lodge,	Rockwell,	Wilson, W. Va.
Crain,	Maffett,	Rogers,	Yoder.
Crisp,	Mansur,	Russell, Mass.
Dargan,	Martin,	Rusk,

So the House refused to agree to Mr. WEAVER's amendment that the House take a recess until 4 o'clock.

During the roll-call the following additional pair was announced:

Mr. GLOVER with Mr. HOUK, for the rest of the day.

The vote was then announced as above recorded.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. FELTON, by unanimous consent, was granted indefinite leave of absence on account of business.

REVOCATION OF WITHDRAWAL OF LANDS TO CERTAIN RAILROADS.

The SPEAKER, by unanimous consent, laid before the House the following message from the President; which was referred to the Committee on the Public Lands, and ordered to be printed:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, April 5, 1888.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication of the 3d instant from the Secretary of the Interior, submitting, with accompanying papers, a draught of a bill to provide for the revocation of the withdrawal of land made for the benefit of certain railroads, and for other purposes.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend by inserting "six o'clock" instead of "five o'clock," as the time to which a recess shall be taken.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I move to amend that amendment by making it half past six.

The SPEAKER. The "noes" seem to have it.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I demand a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 5, noes 65.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. No quorum has voted.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will appoint tellers.

Mr. DIBBLE. I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 1, nays 167, not voting 156; as follows:

YEA—1.

Neal.

NAYS—167.

Allen, Mass.	Davis,	Jackson,	Reed,
Allen, Mich.	Dibble,	Johnston, Ind.	Rice,
Anderson, Ill.	Dingley,	Johnston, N. C.	Romeis,
Anderson, Kans.	Dockery,	Kean,	Rowell,
Baker, N. Y.	Dorsey,	Kelley,	Rowland,
Baker, Ill.	Elliott,	Kennedy,	Russell, Conn.
Bayne,	Farquhar,	Kerr,	Rusk,
Belden,	Finley,	Ketcham,	Ryan,
Blanchard,	Flood,	Laidlaw,	Sawyer,
Boothman,	Foran,	Latham,	Scull,
Bound,	French,	Lawler,	Seney,
Boutelle,	Fuller,	Lehlbach,	Seymour,
Bowden,	Funston,	Lind,	Shaw,
Bowen,	Gallinger,	Long,	Sowden,
Brower,	Gay,	Lyman,	Springer,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Gear,	Mahoney,	Stahlnecker,
Brown, Ohio,	Gest,	Mansur,	Steele,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Glass,	Mason,	Stephenson,
Brumm,	Goff,	McClammy,	Stone, Ky.
Bryce,	Grosvenor,	McComas,	Struble,
Buchanan,	Grout,	McCormick,	Taulbee,
Buckalew,	Guenther,	McCreary,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Bunnell,	Harmer,	McKenna,	Thomas, Ky.
Burrows,	Haugen,	McKinley,	Thomas, Wis.
Bynum,	Hayden,	McRae,	Townshend,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hemphill,	Milliken,	Turner, Kans.
Campbell, Ohio	Henderson, Iowa	Montgomery,	Vance,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Henderson, N. C.	Morrow,	Vandever,
Cannon,	Henderson, Ill.	Nichols,	Wade,
Caruth,	Hermann,	Nutting,	Walker,
Caswell,	Hires,	O'Donnell,	Warner,
Cheadle,	Hitt,	O'Ferrall,	Weber,
Clark,	Hogg,	O'Neill, Pa.	West,
Cogswell,	Holman,	Osborne,	White, Ind.
Cooper,	Holmes,	Parker,	White, N. Y.
Cothran,	Hopkins, Ill.	Patton,	Whiting, Mass.
Crouse,	Hopkins, Va.	Payson,	Wickham,
Culberson,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Perkins,	Wilkinson,
Cummings,	Hovey,	Perry,	Williams,
Cutcheon,	Howard,	Plumb,	Woodburn.
Dalzell,	Hudd,	Pugsley,	Yost.
Darlington,	Hunter,	Randall.

NOT VOTING—156.

Abbott,	Crisp,	Lane,	Robertson,
Adams,	Dargan,	Lanham,	Rockwell,
Allen, Miss.	Davenport,	Lee,	Rogers,
Anderson, Iowa,	Davidson, Ala.	Lodge,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Miss.	Davidson, Fla.	Lynch,	Sayers,
Arnold,	De Lano,	Macdonald,	Scott,
Atkinson,	Dougherty,	Maffett,	Sherman,
Bacon,	Dunham,	Maish,	Shively,
Bankhead,	Dunn,	Martin,	Simmons,
Barnes,	Enloe,	Matson,	Smith,
Barry,	Ermentrout,	McAdoo,	Snyder,
Belmont,	Felton,	McCullogh,	Spinola,
Biggs,	Fisher,	McKinney,	Spooner,
Bingham,	Fitch,	McMillin,	Stewart, Tex.
Bland,	Ford,	McShane,	Stewart, Ga.
Bliss,	Forney,	Merriman,	Stewart, Vt.
Blount,	Gaines,	Mills,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Gibson,	Moffitt,	Stone, Mo.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Glover,	Moore,	Symes,
Brewer,	Granger,	Morgan,	Tarsney,
Browne, Ind.	Greenman,	Morrill,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Burnes,	Grimes,	Morse,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnett,	Hall,	Nelson,	Thompson, Ohio
Butler,	Hare,	Newton,	Thompson, Cal.
Butterworth,	Hatch,	Norwood,	Tillman,
Candler,	Hayes,	Oates,	Tracey,
Carlton,	Heard,	O'Neall, Ind.	Turner, Ga.
Catchings,	Herbert,	O'Neill, Mo.	Washington,
Chipman,	Hiestand,	Outhwaite,	Weaver,
Clardy,	Hooker,	Owen,	Wheeler,
Clements,	Houk,	Peel,	Whiting, Mich.
Cobb,	Hutton,	Penington,	Whitthorne,
Cockran,	Jones,	Peters,	Wilber,
Collins,	Kilgore,	Phelan,	Wilkins,
Compton,	Laffoon,	Phelps,	Wilson, Minn.
Conger,	La Follette,	Pidcock,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cowles,	Lagan,	Post,	Wise,
Cox,	Laird,	Rayner,	Yardley,
Crain,	Landes,	Richardson,	Yoder.

So the House refused to agree to the motion of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, to take a recess until half past 6 o'clock.

The following additional pair was announced:

Mr. BREWER with Mr. WHITING, of Michigan, on this bill for this afternoon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SPRINGER in the chair). The question recurs on Mr. WEAVER's motion, that the House take a recess until 6 o'clock.

Mr. OATES. I demand a division.

Mr. REED. Let us have the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 2, nays 164, not voting 158; as follows:

YEAS—2.

Anderson, Iowa Bryce.

NAYS—'64.

Allen, Mass.	Elliott,	Ketcham,	Romeis,
Allen, Mich.	Farquhar,	Laffoon,	Rowell,
Anderson, Kans.	Finley,	La Follette,	Rowland,
Baker, Ill.	Fitch,	Lagan,	Russell, Conn.
Bayne,	Flood,	Laidlaw,	Rusk,
Belden,	Foran,	Laird,	Ryan,
Bliss,	Fuller,	Lane,	Sawyer,
Boothman,	Funston,	Latham,	Scull.
Bound,	Gallinger,	Lawler,	Seney,
Boutelle,	Gay,	Lehlbach,	Seymour,
Bowden,	Gear,	Long,	Shaw,
Bowen,	Gest,	Lyman,	Simmons,
Browne, T.H.B., Va.	Glass,	Mahoney,	Sowden,
Brown, Ohio	Goff,	Mansur,	Springer,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Grosvenor,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Brumm,	Grout,	McClammy,	Stephenson,
Buchanan,	Guenther,	McComas,	Stone, Ky.
Buckalew,	Hall,	McCormick,	Struble,
Bunnell,	Harmer,	Milliken,	Taulbee,
Burrows,	Hatch,	Montgomery,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Butterworth,	Hayden,	Neal,	Thomas, Ky.
Bynum,	Henderson, Iowa	Nelson,	Thomas, Wis.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Henderson, N. C.	Nichols,	Townshend,
Campbell, Ohio	Henderson, Ill.	Nutting,	Turner, Kans.
Campbell, T.J., N.Y.	Hermann,	O'Donnell,	Vance,
Cannon,	Hires,	O'Ferrall,	Wade,
Caruth,	Hitt,	O'Neall, Ind.	Walker,
Caswell,	Hogg,	O'Neill, Pa.	Warner,
Cheadle,	Holman,	Osborne,	Weber,
Clark,	Holmes,	Owen,	West,
Cooper,	Hopkins, Ill.	Parker,	White, Ind.
Cothran,	Hopkins, Va.	Patton,	White, N. Y.
Cox,	Hovey,	Payson,	Whiting, Mass.
Crouse,	Hudd,	Peel,	Whitthorne,
Cummings,	Hunter,	Perkins,	Wickham,
Cutcheon,	Hutton,	Perry,	Wilkinson,
Dalzell,	Johnston, Ind.	Plumb,	Williams,
Darlington,	Johnston, N. C.	Post,	Wilson, W. Va.
De Lano,	Kean,	Pugsley,	Woodburn,
Dibble,	Kelley,	Randall,	Yardley,
Dingley,	Kerr.	Rice,	Yost.

NOT VOTING—158.

Abbott,	Crisp,	Landes,	Richardson,
Adams,	Culberson,	Lanham,	Robertson,
Allen, Miss.	Dargan,	Lee,	Rockwell,
Anderson, Miss.	Davenport,	Lind,	Rogers,
Anderson, Ill.	Davidson, Ala.	Lodge,	Russell, Mass.
Arnold,	Davidson, Fla.	Lynch,	Sayers,
Atkinson,	Davis,	Macdonald,	Scott,
Bacon,	Dockery,	Maffett,	Sherman,
Baker, N. Y.	Dorsey.	Maish,	Shively,
Bankhead,	Dougherty,	Martin,	Smith,
Barnes,	Dunham,	Matson,	Snyder,
Barry,	Dunn,	McAdoo,	Spinola,
Belmont,	Enloe,	McCreary,	Spooner,
Biggs,	Ermentrout,	McCullogh,	Steele,
Bingham,	Felton,	McKenna,	Stewart Tex.
Blanchard,	Fisher,	McKinley,	Stewart, Ga.
Bland,	Ford,	McKinney,	Stewart, Vt.
Blount,	Forney,	McMillin,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ark.	French,	McRae,	Stone, Mo.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Gaines,	McShane,	Symes,
Brewer,	Gibson,	Merriman,	Tarsney,
Brower.	Glover,	Mills,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Browne, Ind.	Granger,	Moffitt,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnes,	Greenman,	Moore,	Thompson, Ohio
Burnett,	Grimes,	Morgan,	Thompson, Cal.
Butler,	Hare,	Morrill,	Tillman,
Candler,	Haugen,	Morrow,	Tracey,
Carlton,	Hayes,	Morse,	Turner, Ga.
Catchings,	Heard,	Newton,	Vandever,
Chipman,	Hemphill,	Norwood,	Washington,
Clardy,	Herbert,	Oates,	Weaver,
Clements,	Hiestand,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wheeler,
Cobb,	Hooker,	Outhwaite,	Whiting, Mich.
Cockran,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Penington,	Wilber,
Cogswell,	Houk,	Peters,	Wilkins,
Collins,	Howard,	Phelan,	Wilson, Minn.
Compton,	Jackson,	Phelps,	Wise,
Conger,	Jones,	Pidcock,	Yoder.
Cowles,	Kennedy,	Rayner,
Crain,	Kilgore,	Reed,

So the motion to take a recess until 6 o'clock was rejected.

Mr. NELSON. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the names.

Mr. OATES. I object.

The Clerk then recapitulated the names of those voting.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. DOCKERY with Mr. FUNSTON, until 8 o'clock p. m. April 5, 1888.

Mr. GRANGER with Mr. DORSEY, on all political questions to-day.

Mr. WASHINGTON with Mr. BAKER, of New York, on this vote.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER. The question recurs upon the motion of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES], that the House take a recess until 5 o'clock.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I move that the House adjourn. I do not think it would do any good to take a recess now.

Mr. MCMILLIN. I move that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Saturday next.

Mr. OATES. Pending that motion I move that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Alabama.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 13, noes 88.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas. I ask leave of absence for the remainder of the day on account of physical indisposition.

There was no objection, and the leave was granted.

Mr. NELSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SPRINGER in the chair). The gentleman will state it.

Mr. NELSON. This being the legislative day of yesterday, the former order, that the House is to take a recess at 5 o'clock on Thursday for a special evening session could not be operative in the present condition of the House, even if it were now 5 o'clock, could it? This is the legislative day of Wednesday, is it not, and that order can not become operative at 5 o'clock to day?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair can not entertain a point of order now that might result in an appeal from the decision of the Chair, the House being in the midst of a roll-call. [Laughter.]

The Clerk will continue the call.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 2, nays 173, not voting 149; as follows:

YEAS—2.

Hayes,	Washington.

NAYS—173.

Allen, Mass.	Darlington,	Johnston, N. C.	Randall,
Allen, Mich.	De Lano,	Kean,	Reed,
Anderson, Ill.	Dibble,	Kelley,	Romeis,
Anderson, Kans.	Dingley,	Kennedy,	Rowell,
Atkinson,	Dunham,	Kerr,	Rowland,
Baker, N. Y.	Farquhar,	Laffoon,	Russell, Conn.
Baker, Ill.	Felton,	La Follette,	Russell, Mass.
Bayne,	Flood,	Lagan,	Rusk,
Belden,	Foran,	Laidlaw,	Ryan,
Blanchard,	French,	Laird,	Sawyer,
Boothman,	Fuller,	Landes,	Scull,
Bound,	Funston,	Lane,	Seney,
Boutelle,	Gallinger,	Latham,	Seymour,
Bowden,	Gay,	Lehlbach,	Shaw,
Bowen,	Gear,	Lind,	Sowden,
Browne, T.H.B., Va.	Glass,	Long,	Springer,
Brown, Ohio.	Goff,	Lyman,	Stahlnecker,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Greenman,	Macdonald,	Steele,
Brumm,	Grosvenor,	Maish,	Stephenson,
Bryce,	Grout,	Mason,	Stockdale,
Buchanan,	Guenther,	McClammy,	Stone, Ky.
Buckalew,	Harmer,	McCormick,	Stone, Mo.
Bunnell,	Hatch,	McKenna,	Struble,
Burrows,	Haugen,	McKinley,	Symes,
Butterworth,	Hayden,	Milliken,	Taulbee,
Bynum,	Hemphill,	Montgomery,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Henderson, Iowa	Morrow,	Thomas, Ky.
Campbell, Ohio.	Henderson, N. C.	Neal,	Thomas, Wis.
Campbell, T.J., N.Y.	Henderson, Ill.	Nelson,	Tracey,
Cannon,	Hermann,	Newton,	Wade,
Caruth,	Hires,	Nichols,	Walker,
Caswell,	Hitt,	Nutting,	Warner,
Cheadle,	Hogg,	O'Donnell,	Weber,
Chipman,	Holman,	O'Ferrall,	West,
Clark,	Holmes,	O'Neall, Ind.	Whitthorne,
Cogswell,	Hopkins, Ill.	O'Neill, Pa.	Wickham,
Conger,	Houk,	Osborne,	Williams,
Cooper,	Hovey,	Owen,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cothran,	Howard,	Parker,	Yardley,
Cox,	Hudd,	Patton,	Yoder,
Crouse,	Hunter,	Perkins,	Yost.
Cummings,	Hutton,	Plumb,
Cutcheon,	Jackson,	Post,
Dalzell,	Johnston, Ind.	Pugsley,

NOT VOTING—149.

Abbott,	Davenport,	Maffett,	Sayers,
Adams,	Davidson, Ala.	Mahoney,	Scott,
Allen, Miss.	Davidson, Fla.	Mansur,	Sherman,
Anderson, Iowa	Davis,	Martin,	Shively,
Anderson, Miss.	Dockery,	Matson,	Simmons,
Arnold,	Dorsey,	McAdoo,	Smith,
Bacon,	Dougherty,	McComas,	Snyder,
Bankhead,	Dunn,	McCreary,	Spinola,
Barnes,	Elliott,	McCullogh,	Spooner,
Barry,	Enloe,	McKinney,	Stewart, Tex.
Belmont,	Ermentrout,	McMillin,	Stewart, Ga.
Biggs,	Finley,	McRae,	Stewart, Vt.
Bingham,	Fisher,	McShane,	Tarsney,
Bland,	Fitch,	Merriman,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bliss,	Ford,	Mills,	Thomas, Ill.
Blount,	Forney,	Moffitt,	Thompson, Ohio
Breckinridge, Ark.	Gaines,	Moore,	Thompson, Cal.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Gest,	Morgan,	Tillman,
Brewer,	Gibson,	Morrill,	Townshend,
Brower,	Glover,	Morse.	Turner, Kans.
Browne, Ind.	Granger,	Norwood,	Turner, Ga.
Burnes,	Grimes,	Oates,	Vance,
Burnett,	Hall,	O'Neill, Mo.	Vandever.
Butler,	Hare,	Outhwaite,	Weaver,
Candler,	Heard,	Payson,	Wheeler,
Carlton,	Herbert,	Peel,	White, Ind.
Catchings,	Hiestand,	Penington,	White, N. Y.
Clardy,	Hooker,	Perry,	Whiting, Mich.
Clements,	Hopkins, Va.	Peters,	Whiting, Mass.
Cobb,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Phelan,	Wilber,
Cockran,	Jones,	Phelps,	Wilkins,
Collins,	Ketcham,	Pidcock,	Wilkinson,
Compton,	Kilgore,	Rayner,	Wilson, Minn.
Cowles,	Lanham,	Rice.	Wise,
Crain,	Lawler,	Richardson,	Woodburn.
Crisp,	Lee,	Robertson,
Culberson,	Lodge,	Rockwell,
Dargan,	Lynch,	Rogers,

So the motion to adjourn until Monday was rejected.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. BYNUM with Mr. OWEN.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri, with Mr. HOPKINS, of New York, for the balance of the day.

Mr. GLASS with Mr. HOUK, until to-morrow morning.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER. The question recurs upon the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee, that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Saturday next; and pending that, if there be no objection, the Chair will submit to the House at this time some personal requests of members.

The gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. GAY] asks leave of absence from night sessions for one week, owing to indisposition; and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. KELLEY] requests that he be excused from evening sessions for the remainder of this session of Congress.

Is there objection to these requests?

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the Chair will also lay before the House for reference two Senate bills.

There was no objection.

The following bills of the Senate were read twice, and referred as follows:

The bill (S. 2292) to provide for a celebration at the national capital in 1889 in honor of the centennial of the Constitution of the United States—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

The bill (S. 325) granting to the Billings, Clark's Fork and Cooke City Railroad Company the right of way through the Crow Indian reservation—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. MCCOOK, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed with amendments the bill (H. R. 5034) to provide for the purchase of United States bonds by the Secretary of the Treasury, and asked a conference with the House thereon; and had appointed Mr. SHERMAN, Mr. ALLISON, and Mr. BECK managers on the part of the Senate.

Also, that the Senate had passed with amendments the bill (H. R. 3839) granting a pension to Mrs. Hetty K. Painter, and asked a conference with the House thereon; and had appointed Mr. PADDOCK, Mr. DAVIS, and Mr. TURPIE as managers on the part of the Senate.

Also, that the Senate had passed without amendment bills of the following titles, namely:

A bill (H. R. 3) to remove the political disabilities of William W. Mackall, of Virginia;

A bill (H. R. 8808) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for holding terms of the United States courts at Vicksburg, Miss.;" and

A bill (H. R. 4472) for a public building at Helena, Ark.

The message further announced that the Senate had passed a bill (S. 1204) to provide for holding the circuit and district courts of the United States at Martinsburgh, in the district of West Virginia; in which the concurrence of the House was requested.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

The House divided on the motion of Mr. MCMILLIN that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Saturday; and there were—ayes 6, noes 68.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints as tellers the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES] and the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. ANDERSON].

Before the tellers had completed their count the hour of 5 o'clock arrived.

Mr. WEAVER. I rise to a point of order. The hour of 5 o'clock on Thursday having arrived, I make the point of order that the Chair shall announce that the House takes a recess until 8 o'clock this evening under the special order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has decided that the continuation of the legislative day which began yesterday at 12 o'clock defeated the execution of the special order, so far as it related to the business reported from the Committee on Commerce set for Thursday. Of course if that be correct it defeats the execution of the whole order. It could not defeat the execution of a part of the order without defeating the execution of the whole of it. One part related to the business of the Committee on Commerce. The remaining part was that at 5 o'clock the House should take a recess until 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, the evening session to be devoted exclusively to business reported by the Committee on Military Affairs. And if the continuation of the session of Wednesday defeats one part of the order it defeats the whole of it.

Mr. WEAVER. My object in raising the point was to have a definite ruling of the Chair, so that hereafter, when reports are made by the Committee on Rules fixing days for various committees, we may understand definitely what it means and what to depend upon.

Mr. TOWNSHEND. I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until 8 o'clock, and that the evening session shall be devoted to the consideration of reports from the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. REED. I object.

Mr. DUNHAM. I call for the regular order.

Mr. OATES. I withdraw the point of no quorum.

The SPEAKER. The "noes" have it, and the motion is not agreed to.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until a quarter of 12 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. TOWNSHEND. I ask unanimous consent to amend that proposition so that there shall be a recess until 8 o'clock, and that the evening session shall be devoted to the consideration of reports from the Military Committee. If that is done it will not prejudice any interest and will not terminate the legislative day.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not see how the House can have two recesses, one to 8 o'clock this evening and another to 11.45 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. TOWNSHEND. At the termination of the business of the evening session we can take a further recess until the hour named by the gentleman from Ohio.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent that the House take a recess until 8 o'clock, the evening session to be devoted exclusively to the consideration of reports from the Committee on Military Affairs, and that then a recess be taken until to-morrow at a quarter to 12.

Mr. REED. I object.

Mr. TAULBEE. I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry. If the request of the gentleman from Illinois should be granted——

The SPEAKER. It is objected to.

Mr. TAULBEE. Can I not make an inquiry?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman can make it, but the request of the gentleman from Illinois is not before the House. It has been objected to.

Mr. TAULBEE. My object in rising is to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TAULBEE. My question is this: If the request of the gentleman from Illinois should be granted, and the House should now take a recess until 8 o'clock this evening, would it not be competent for the House during the evening session to change that order and perpetuate the order now pending?

The SPEAKER. The Chair supposes it would be competent for a majority to do so.

Mr. OATES. After having conferred with as many as possible of the gentlemen on this side who are in accord with me in opposing the special order, I believe there is a concurrence of opinion that nothing could be accomplished by continuing in session during to-night. I hope, therefore, no gentleman will object to the proposition of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR]. If objection be made, it only continues the session to-night, and does not give gentlemen to-morrow for the consideration of bills at all. That question can be raised as well to-morrow as now.

Mr. TOWNSHEND. I shall object unless the evening is reserved for the use of the Military Committee.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois objects.

Mr. OATES. I move that the House take a recess until forty-five minutes past 11 to-morrow.

The SPEAKER. A motion to adjourn is pending. If that is withdrawn, then the motion of the gentleman from Alabama is in order.

Mr. REED. That can be withdrawn.

Mr. TAULBEE. If the motion to adjourn is withdrawn, I will renew it. If it is to be a question of endurance, we can fight it out now just as well as at any other time.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I hope this will not be considered a question of endurance. I desire to have everybody use good judgment about the matter; and as no object can be gained by the objection of the gentleman from Illinois, I hope he will withdraw it. I renew my request for unanimous consent that the House take a recess until to-morrow at a quarter to 12.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Ohio renews his request. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and accordingly, at 5 o'clock and 5 minutes p. m. (Thursday, April 5), the House took a recess until 11.45 a. m. (Friday, April 6).

PRIVATE BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED.

Under the rule private bills and joint resolutions of the following titles were introduced and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. BLISS: A bill (H. R. 9226) to increase the pension of Mrs. Ann Eliza Davis—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CARLTON: A bill (H. R. 9227) for the relief of Mary Newon—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9228) for the relief of Nathan Cook—to the Committee Pensions.

By Mr. CLARDY: A bill (H. R. 9229) for the relief of John L. Griffin—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DARLINGTON: A bill (H. R. 9230) granting a pension to Eli C. Baker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GIFFORD: A bill (H. R. 9231) for the relief of Frank Aldrich—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. HITT: A bill (H. R. 9232) for the relief of Mrs. John A. Davis—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MACDONALD: A bill (H. R. 9233) to pay Margaret Doyle—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9234) for the relief of William Gaffer—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. O'DONNELL: A bill (H. R. 9235) granting a pension to J. D. Hendrick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SAYERS (by request): A bill (H. R. 9236) granting a pension to William L. Henschkel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STONE, of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 9237) for the relief of M. G. Gilbert—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. E. J. TURNER: A bill (H. R. 9238) granting a pension to James H. Fox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. VOORHEES: A bill (H. R. 9239) for the relief of L. A. Davis—to the Committee on Claims.

PETITIONS, ETC.

The following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, under the rule, and referred as follows:

By Mr. ABBOTT: Petition of B. K. Cobb, by S. D. Coble, administrator, of Tarrant County, Texas, for reference of his case to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. ATKINSON: Petition of 250 citizens of Franklin County, Pennsylvania—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. BACON (by request): Petition of John H. Fulton and others, for the protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BELDEN: Petition of Paul H. Shaffer and 25 other cigar-makers, and of John Fredberg and 30 other cigar-makers, of Syracuse, N. Y., against repeal of the internal-revenue duties on cigars and cheroots—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. T. H. B. BROWNE: Petition of Willis Thompson, of Northampton County, Virginia, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, protest of citizens of Pulaski County, Virginia, against free coal and ores—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Typographical Union No. 32, of Norfolk, Va., for the passage of an international copyright law—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. BUNNELL: Petition of farmers of Vose, Wyoming County, Pennsylvania, for better protection from importation of cattle on the pretense they are for breeding purposes only, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CASWELL: Petition of S. C. Carr and 20 others, citizens of Wisconsin, for laws protecting animal industry—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the same for the repeal of the internal tax on tobacco, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CHEADLE: Petition of 30 citizens of Howard County, Indiana, that the Bureau of Animal Industry be continued under charge of the Agricultural Department—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. CLARDY: Petition for the relief of Moses Pendergrass—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. CLEMENTS: Petition of 37 members of Local Assembly of Knights of Labor, of Roswell, Ga., in favor of the tonnage bill—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. COGSWELL: Petition of Hon. W. H. Currier and 92 others, citizens of Amesbury and Salisbury, Mass., for the establishment of a postal telegraph—to the Committee on the Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

By Mr. COOPER: Petition of Benjamam Beal and 57 other voters of Butler Township, Knox County, Ohio, for increase of duty on wool and other agricultural products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. COWLEY: Petition of Mary A. Livermore and 56 others, in favor of the educational bill—to the Committee on Education.

By Mr. DARLINGTON: Petition of Eli C. Baker, Company A, Eighth Maryland Volunteer Infantry, for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ERMENTROUT: Petition of Mary J. Fry, late postmaster at Columbia, Pa., for relief—to the Committee on Appropriations.

Also, memorial of W. E. Boise, for reduction of postage on seeds, plants, etc.—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GALLINGER: Petition of George W. Randall and 22 others, citizens of Richmond, N. H., for the more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of S. H. Edes, of Newport, N. H., for quick mail transit between New York and the New England States—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GIFFORD: Petition of E. A. Rossett and 69 others, citizens of Ashton, Dak., for retention of tariff on flax and flax products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GREENMAN: Petition of 155 operatives in the Cable Flax Mills, Schaghticoke, N. Y., against the reduction of duty on flax, hemp, and jute twine, yarn, and thread—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: Petition of E. J. Hiatt and 50 others, of Chester Hill, Ohio, for additional protection to farm products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GROUT: Petition of Ira Mudgett and 104 others, citizens of Tunbridge, Vt., in behalf of increased protection to agricultural products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HARMER: Memorial of citizens of Pennsylvania, for repeal of provision of the internal-revenue laws which classes druggists as liquor-dealers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HOOKER: Petition of Eliza Potter, widow of Nelson Potter, of Hinds County, Mississippi, for reference of her claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. S. T. HOPKINS: Petition of W. H. Nichol, commander Grand Army of the Republic Post No. 483, and 108 ex-Union soldiers of the Seventeenth district of New York, and of commanders of Grand Army posts and Veteran Associations of Kings, Queens, Suffolk, and Richmond Counties, New York.

By Mr. HOUK: Fifteen petitions praying for the passage of the service-pension bill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOWARD: Petition of of John Schierling, administrator of Gallus Kerchner for relief—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. JACKSON: Petition of James Marshall, and 300 others, citizens of New Castle, Pa., protesting against the reduction of the tariff on window-glass—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Burgettstown, Pa., for making February 22 a legal holiday—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Lawrence County (Pa.) Agricultural Society, opposing the Mills tariff bill—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LANDES: Petition of Lewis W. Brown and 75 others, ex-soldiers, in favor of House bill 5662 and Senate bill 1537—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McCLAMMY: Petition of William Thigpen, of Wayne County, North Carolina, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. McKINLEY: Petition of the Big Bass Club, the Recreation Camping Club, and the Amateur Sporting Club, of Wellsville, Ohio, in favor of Senate bill No. 283—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. MILLIKEN: Petition of Joseph D. Eaton, for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MORSE (by request): Petition of Ensign Gilbert, United States Navy (retired), for promotion—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, petition of Samuel A. Waterman, late first sergeant Company D, Forty-second Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers, for relief—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. NICHOLS: Petition of Wyatt J. Holleman, of Wake County, North Carolina, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. NUTTING: Resolution of New York State Senate in regard to tax on tobacco, cigars, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. O'DONNELL: Petition of 30 citizens of Lacey, Mich., for a pension for Jacob D. Hendrick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROMEIS: Petition of 190 citizens of Lucas County, Ohio, to take the duty off of flaxseed and oil—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SAYERS: Petition of citizens of Austin, Tex., protesting against certain pending bills in reference to the tax on lard—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. STAHLNECKER: Petition of citizens and tax-payers of New Rochelle, N. Y., regarding the improvement of New Rochelle Harbor—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, resolution of the Legislature of New York, regarding imposing of tax on wholesale and retail dealers in spirituous liquors, ale, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Petition of citizens of Kirtland, Ohio, for better protection to farm products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. VOORHEES: Petition of L. A. Davis, for an appropriation of $14,844 to pay him for carrying the English mails in Washington Territory—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. WHEELER: Petition of Clayton C. Taylor, of Phillips County, Arkansas, and of Dr. William F. Sullivan, for heirs of M. H. Sullivan, of Madison County, and of Nancy Gilliam, of Jackson County, Alabama, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. J. R. WHITING: Petition of Andrew K. Burrows and 51 others, for increase of salaries in the Life-Saving Service—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. YODER: Petition of citizens of Lima, Ohio, for the protection of the National Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

The following petitions, indorsing the per diem rated service-pension bill, based on the principle of paying all soldiers, sailors, and marines of the late war a monthly pension of 1 cent a day for each day they were in the service, were severally referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

By Mr. BACON (by request): Of James R. Calkin and others, of New York.

By Mr. BELMONT: Of ex-soldiers and sailors of Hempstead, of Garden City, and of Hyde Park, N. Y.

By Mr. BURROWS: Of citizens of Port Sanilac, Mich.

By Mr. CONGER: Of veterans, soldiers and sailors, of Story County, Iowa.

By Mr. CUTCHEON: Of ex-soldiers of Freesoil, Mich.

By Mr. DARLINGTON: Of soldiers of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. ERMENTROUT: Of Grand Army posts of New York, Kings, Queens, Suffolk, Richmond, and Westchester Counties, New York.

By Mr. FULLER: Of D. W. Rudling and 68 ex-soldiers, of Fayette County, Iowa.

By Mr. LEHLBACH: Of members of E. H. Wade Post, No. 96, Grand Army of the Republic, of New Jersey.

By Mr. NELSON: Of ex-soldiers of Matley, Minn.

By Mr. NUTTING: Of B. L. Avery and 43 others, of Frank Tolman and 9 others, and of R. R. Stilwell and 74 others, ex-soldiers, of Cayuga County, New York.

Also, of Charles H. Hardy and 16 others, and of Francis S. Horry and 9 others, ex-soldiers, of Cayuga County, and of L. D. Rulenson and 135 others, citizens of Oswego County, New York.

By Mr. O'DONNELL: Of 28 ex-soldiers of Barry, Calhoun, and Eaton Counties, Michigan.

By Mr. PERKINS: Of Jay Prescott, J. D. Evans and others, citizens of Kansas.

By Mr. PUGSLEY: Of 42 members of Silas D. Prather Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Ross County, Ohio.

By Mr. STAHLNECKER: Of the Per Diem Rated Service-Pension Associations of the first five Congresssional districts of New York, and of the Association of the Fully Disabled Veterans.

Also, of the Grand Army posts of Westchester County, New York.

By Mr. STEPHENSON: Of Grand Army of the Republic posts of Kings, Queens, Suffolk, Richmond, and Westchester Counties, New York.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Of citizens and of ex-soldiers of Dorset, Ashtabula County, and of Kinsman, Ohio.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law providing temporary aid for common schools, to be disbursed on the basis of illiteracy, were severally referred to the Committee on Education:

By Mr. DAVIS: Of 138 citizens of Barnstable County, Massachusetts.

By Mr. FULLER: Of 77 citizens of Winneshiek, Iowa.

By Mr. PAYSON: Of 239 citizens of Livingston County, Illinois.

The following petition for an increase of compensation of fourth-class postmasters was referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. CLEMENTS: Of citizens of Paulding County and of Murray County, Georgia.

SENATE.

FRIDAY, April 6, 1888.

Prayer by Rev. W. F. CRAFTS, D. D., of New York City.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

REVOCATION OF WITHDRAWAL OF RAILROAD LANDS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Lands, and ordered to be printed:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, April 5, 1888.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication of the 3d instant from the Secretary of the Interior, submitting, with accompanying papers, a draught of a bill to provide for the revocation of the withdrawal of lands made for the benefit of certain railroads, and for other purposes.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

On motion of Mr. BUTLER, it was Ordered, That when the Senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition of citizens of Georgetown, D. C., adopted at a meeting held in Mount Zion African Methodist Episcopal Church, praying for the passage of the bill to refund money to depositors in the Freedman's Bank; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of 142 citizens of Prospect, Marion County, Ohio, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HISCOCK presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of the State of New York, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of 35 citizens of Trumansburgh, N. Y., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. ALLISON presented a petition of 130 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Sibley and vicinity, in the State of Iowa, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. TURPIE presented the petition of J. M. Cox and 63 other citizens of Grant County, Indiana, praying for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of 32 citizens of Macoupin County, Illinois, praying for the passage of Senate bill No. 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, praying for the passage of the bill providing for an international copyright; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. REAGAN presented a petition of citizens of Erath County, Texas, praying for certain legislation in regard to the eradication of pleuro-pneumonia and other contagious cattle diseases; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. HARRIS presented a petition of Typographical Union No. 11, of Memphis, Tenn., praying for the passage of the international copyright bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, presented a petition of 22 ex-Union soldiers, citizens of Madison township, Buchanan County, Iowa, praying for the passage of the per diem rated pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DANIEL presented a petition of H. G. Richardson and others, citizens of Smithville and vicinity, in the State of Virginia, praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of S. P. Cooper and others, and the petition of D. S. Lewis and others, all settlers on the Black Bob Indian lands, praying for the passage of House bill 6364 relating to the appraisement and sale of those lands, with an amendment; which were referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also presented the petition of W. S. Cave and other settlers on the Black Bob Indian lands, praying for the passage of House bill 6364, relating to the appraisement and sale of those lands, and that an amendment be added to it that will mete out equal justice to all parties in interest; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also presented a petition of members of the Miami tribe of Indians, praying for the passage of a bill giving them their lands in severalty with patents from the United States in fee-simple; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. MITCHELL presented a petition of citizens and voters of Marion County, Oregon, praying for additional legislation for the eradication of pleuro-pneumonia among cattle; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. CALL presented a petition of the Board of Trade of Jacksonville, Fla., praying that an appropriation be made for the improvement of the Ocklawaha River, in Florida; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. SPOONER presented the petition of C. P. Beard and others, of Dunn County, Wisconsin, praying the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FRYE presented the petition of Nathaniel Hobbs, of North Berwick, Me., praying for the passage of the bill for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. FARWELL, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom the subject was referred, reported a bill (S. 2615) to authorize the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad Company to acquire and use real estate for railway purposes in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title.

BARCELONA INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

Mr. PAYNE. I am instructed by the Committee on Foreign Relations, to whom was referred the joint resolution (H. Res. 140) appropriating $25,000 for the international exhibition in Barcelona, Spain, to report it favorably, without amendment, and I ask for the immediate consideration of the joint resolution.

By unanimous consent the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. PLUMB introduced a bill (S. 2616) granting a pension to James

E. Kabler; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2617) to grant the right of way through the Indian Territory to the McPherson, Texas and Gulf Railroad Company, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. ALLISON introduced a bill (S. 2618) to authorize the construction of a railroad bridge across the Missouri River at or near Decatur, Nebr.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. GRAY introduced a bill (S. 2619) authorizing United States district attorneys to swear witnesses and compel their attendance at certain places for the purpose of investigating the facts of a cause pending for trial; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. TELLER (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2620) for the relief of Jearum Atkins; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Patents.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2621) to protect purchasers of lands lying in the vicinity of Denver, Colo., heretofore withdrawn by the executive department of the Government as lying within the limits of certain railroad grants, and afterward held to lie without such limits; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2622) for the relief of P. B. Monell; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, introduced a bill (S. 2623) granting an increase of pension to James Patterson; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying petition, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DANIEL introduced a bill (S. 2624) to provide for the enlargement of the dimensions of the wharf at Fortress Monroe; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2625) to repeal section 1218 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. FARWELL introduced a bill (S. 2626) granting a pension to Catlena Lyman; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PLUMB introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 69) for the relief of Capt. John Jackson; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

ALIEN OWNERSHIP OF MINERAL LANDS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If there be no other concurrent or other resolutions, the order of morning business is closed.

Mr. STEWART. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Order of Business 333, being the bill (S. 1176) to authorize the sale to aliens of certain mineral lands.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The consideration of the Calendar under Rule VIII being in order, the Senator from Nevada moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill named by him.

The motion was agreed to, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 1176) to authorize the sale to aliens of certain mineral lands.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Mines and Mining with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the act entitled "An act to restrict the ownership of real estate in the Territories to American citizens, and so forth," approved March 3, 1887, be, and the same is hereby, amended by inserting after section 4 of said act the following: "Provided, however, That this act shall not relate to, or in any manner affect, the title to mineral lands or mining claims in the Territories of the United States, which may be acquired or held under the mineral land laws of the United States, nor to mills or other reduction works or property used in the production of metals from said mineral lands or claims; but, as to all such mineral lands, mining claims, mills, reduction works, and other property, the laws of the United States and of the Territories shall be and remain the same as though this act had not passed."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PLATT. I wish that the amendment might be again read. I did not hear it.

The Chief Clerk again read the amendment.

Mr. PLATT. Although the amendment was adopted, I should like to have the Senator from Nevada explain what is left in the law after this provision that it shall not apply to mineral lands in the Territories.

Mr. STEWART. The whole body of the law is left. The law was designed to prevent the monopoly of agricultural lands by aliens. The report on the subject, which was made at the last Congress, when the bill was passed, contained no reference to the mines. The bill then passed prohibited the purchase of mines by aliens by the question not having been called to the attention of Congress, I think from all the information I can get, because such a provision was not agreed to.

I do not wish to debate this question. The law as it will be when this bill shall pass is the same that it has always been. It simply restores the law that has been in existence for the last thirty years or more as applicable to mineral lands.

Mr. MITCHELL. And as it is in all the States now.

Mr. STEWART. And as it is in all the States now. The discrimination in the existing law against the Territories is unjust. It does no good. Every delegate, every representative in both Houses from the mining States and Territories is in favor of this bill, and all the people there are in favor of it. They want it because it restores the old law, which worked well and did no harm.

There is no possible danger of a monopoly of mineral lands by foreigners under our mineral land laws. They must work the mines. They buy them to work them. They spend their money in this country, and our laboring people receive the money. If there are occasional successes, they lay out a very large amount of money in the ordinary operations, and employ a great many men to get any profit whatever. Many of the mines produce no profit and some of them large profits. It is, I do not say a gambling business, but a hazardous business, more or less. No matter how the mines are managed, the laborers get the benefit in the locality where the mining is conducted; and to cut off the Territories from the same privileges enjoyed by all the States outside is unjust, and they have petitioned and implored Congress to restore the old law.

I do not wish to discuss the bill further.

Mr. FAULKNER. As a member of the Committee on Mines and Mining I was opposed to the bill in the committee, and announced that I intended to oppose it in the Senate. I have submitted an amendment which, in my judgment, would to some extent remedy the evil which would result from the passage of the bill if the Senate deem it proper to adopt it. That amendment has been pending for some time, and is in the possession of the clerks. But I received very sad information this morning of the death of a near relative of mine, which will require my absence from the Senate, and I ask the Senator who is pressing the bill that he will, if possible, let it go over until Monday, and let it retain its position, to be taken up then immediately after the morning business and during the morning hour. If that is not agreeable I will briefly state my objections to the bill at this time.

Mr. STEWART. I have not command of the morning hour on Monday. If the Senate will, by unanimous consent, agree that the bill may be taken up after the morning hour on Monday and be the order then, I shall not object; but I can not hope to have any agreement to that effect. There will then undoubtedly be other business that would antagonize the bill, and I could not get consent to take it up on Monday.

Mr. FAULKNER. I do not desire to embarrass the Senator who is pressing the bill. I will withdraw the request I made, and state very hurriedly a few objections to the bill.

Mr. SPOONER I am in favor of the bill——

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair has recognized the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER].

Mr. SPOONER. I ask the Senator from West Virginia to yield to me for a moment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator from West Virginia yield?

Mr. FAULKNER. Yes, sir.

Mr. SPOONER. I am in favor of the bill which is now before the Senate, and I appeal to the Senator from Nevada that the request made by the Senator from West Virginia ought to be acceded to. He is a member of the Committee on Mines and Mining. He desires to debate the pending bill, and he states to the Senate that under the pressure of a sudden personal affliction he feels it to be necessary that he should be absent from the Senate to-day. Under these circumstances it is certainly a request which common courtesy requires should be met with deference.

Mr. STEWART. I will ask unanimous consent that the bill may come up immediately after the morning business on Monday next.

Mr. SPOONER. Under the circumstances I hope no objection will be made to such an order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Nevada asks unanimous consent that the pending bill be taken up on Monday immediately after the completion of the formal morning business. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

BRITISH RIGHTS IN VENEZUELA.

Mr. RIDDLEBERGER. I am not sure of the order of business under which the Senate is proceeding; but I desire, if not in advance of the proper time, to offer a resolution.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The morning business is closed, but the resolution can be received by unanimous consent.

Mr. RIDDLEBERGER submitted the following resolution:

Whereas it is stated that the British Government has made claim to a large portion of the territory of the Republic of Venezuela and the control of the River Orinoco, proceeding without legal or equitable right and in defiance of the protests of the Republic of Venezuela, who exercise dominion over the same:

Be it resolved, That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, requested to send to the Senate of the United States all letters, documents, etc., in any way appertaining, if any there be, between our Government and the governments of Great Britain and Venezuela, or either of them, relating to the question of newly-acquired territory in Venezuela by Great Britain, or take such other and further action as may be compatible with the public interests.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution will be received and lie on the table, under the rule.

Mr. RIDDLEBERGER. I suppose it goes to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. SHERMAN. Is it a call for information merely? I did not observe the reading.

Mr. RIDDLEBERGER. It is simply a call for information.

Mr. SHERMAN. Let it be passed; I have no objection to it. If it is a mere call for information from the executive department there is no necessity for its reference.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution, then, will be agreed to, if there be no objection. It is so ordered.

Mr. SHERMAN subsequently said: The resolution regarding Venezuela contains a preamble which I think the Senate ought not to adopt, and therefore I think a reference to the Committee on Foreign Relations had better be made. I have no objection to the resolution itself being adopted.

Mr. RANSOM. It was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. SHERMAN. It was afterwards passed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair has announced the reference to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and that order will stand, if there be no objection.

DENVER AND RIO GRANDE RAILROAD.

Mr. TELLER. On the 29th of March the Senate passed a bill granting the right of way for a railroad across a military reservation in the State of Colorado. The other House has passed substantially the same bill, which lies on the table. The bill has the approval of the War Department, and I ask the Senate to take it from the table and pass it. The bills are practically the same, although not in the same language.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Colorado moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 1262) granting the right of way to the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad through the Fort Crawford military reservation.

Mr. EDMUNDS. Does that bill come from any committee?

Mr. TELLER. We have passed a bill for the same purpose, although in a little different language.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair is informed that the bill came from the House of Representatives and was laid upon the table, and that it has not been referred to any committee.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I should like to look at that bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Colorado to proceed to the consideration of the bill.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I suggest to my friend from Colorado that this is a perpetual grant and that there is no limitation as to the time within which this right shall be exercised. There ought to be, I think, a provision that the company shall avail itself of this grant and build its road within a reasonable time, three years or five years, I do not care how long so that the time is reasonable.

Mr. TELLER. I will state that the War Department consented to the building of this road across the reservation before the bill was passed by either House. The road has been built for some time.

Mr. EDMUNDS. How long?

Mr. TELLER. I should suppose eight months. It is completed and in operation. The arrangement made with the War Department was that if Congress did not at this session pass a bill, and if the company were required by the War Department, they would take up the road. But as this is only a temporary military reservation, which will ultimately be abandoned, and the road does not at all interfere with the use of it, there can be no reason why the right should not be granted.

Mr. EDMUNDS. That is a very good practical explanation. I should like to ask my friend from Colorado another question. Where did the Secretary of War get authority, without an act of Congress, to authorize the railroad to be laid down and run across that reservation?

Mr. TELLER. Of course he had no real authority, but here was a mining camp, and beyond it a military reservation that is only nominally such, being of no practical value, but still reserved as a military reservation. If it should be occupied as a military reservation it would be a great advantage to have the railroad go across it. Therefore the Department said, "We will keep our hands off if you will build across the reservation and apply to Congress for permission," and the company said, "If we do not get it, and if you say we shall take up the road, we will take it up." They entered into a contract of that kind.

Mr. EDMUNDS. That is to say, the Secretary of War and the commander-in-chief of the Armies of the United States thought they had a good temptation for violating the law, and we are now asked to approve it.

Mr. PLUMB. Let me say in regard to this matter that what was done in this case has not been entirely unusual. I remember a road was built through the Fort Bliss military reservation in Kansas and through another reservation in New Mexico by the tacit consent of the War Department. I presume that is what was given in this case.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FORFEITURE OF UNEARNED LANDS.

Mr. PLUMB. I gave notice yesterday that I should ask the Senate this morning to take up and consider and pass the bill (S. 1430) to forfeit certain lands heretofore granted for the purpose of aiding in the construction of railroads, and for other purposes. For some weeks this bill has been on the Calendar, and I have been designing almost every day to bring it up. I have postponed action upon it because of the fact that certain Senators were interested in an amendment which they designed to propose to the bill, and I have waited for them. They now ask me to wait until Monday. I give notice that on Monday I shall ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill without reference to the convenience of any one, except, of course, the convenience of the Senate as to its business.

CONSIDERATION OF PENSION BILLS.

Mr. CULLOM. I desire to call up the bill (S. 766) granting an increase of pension to John Moore, a bill which was passed over when I was out of the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Calendar, under Rule VIII, being in order, the Senator from Illinois moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 766) granting an increase of pension to John Moore.

Mr. COCKRELL. I was going to suggest that we go to the Calendar, and this bill will then be in order, as it has its place on the Calendar.

Mr. CULLOM. If the Senator from Missouri will just let the bill be read, I think it can be passed in less than a minute.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I wish to ask unanimous consent to say a word, and that is to ask unanimous consent that we take up the pension bills that were passed over, not losing their place. I know of some bills away down on the Calendar for the relief of people who are in real distress and to whom it is a matter of great importance whether a bill should pass this week or a month hence.

Mr. COCKRELL. I have no objection to that course.

Mr. CULLOM. Neither have I.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I ask unanimous consent that we take up the pension bills, beginning with those not losing their place, and go through with them.

Mr. BLAIR. Does the Senator design to include general pension bills?

Mr. EDMUNDS. I mean personal pension bills.

Mr. SAWYER. I hope that order will be made.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Vermont asks unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of private pension bills on the Calendar, beginning with the first pension bill passed over without prejudice.

Mr. CULLOM. I consent to that if the Senator will allow this bill to pass, since it has been called up. There is no objection to it.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the request made by the Senator from Vermont? The Chair hears none. It is so ordered. The Chief Clerk will report the first private pension bill on the Calendar.

Mr. CULLOM. I think Senate bill 766 is the first; but I am not sure whether it is or not. The bill is on the second page of the Calendar.

Mr. EDMUNDS. It is the very first pension bill on the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chief Clerk will state the first private pension bill on the Calendar under Rule VIII.

The CHIEF CLERK. Order of Business 669, House bill 5427.

Mr. CULLOM. As I understand it, the first bill on the Calendar is Order of Business 366, the bill I have been trying to get up.

Mr. COCKRELL. That bill ought to have retained its place on the Calendar under Rule VIII. I am the one who made the objection to it, and I asked that it might retain its place.

Mr. EDMUNDS. The understanding was to go back and take up those bills which had been passed over not losing their place, and that bill is one of them.

Mr. COCKRELL. The bill lost its place by an error.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It was passed over under objection and went to the Calendar under Rule IX. Is there objection to its consideration under Rule VIII? The Chair hears none.

JOHN MOORE.

The bill (S. 766) granting an increase of pension to John Moore was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of John Moore, late a private in Company A, Tenth Indiana Volunteers, at the rate of $24 a month, in lieu of the pension he is now receiving.

Mr. COCKRELL. I objected to the consideration of this bill when it was reached upon the Calendar and asked that it might retain its place. My objection was based upon the ground that the report did not disclose that application had been made to the Pension Office for an increase of pension, and that Congress ought not to be flooded with these cases for an increase of pension until remedy had been exhausted in the Pension Office.

Mr. CULLOM. I have ascertained the fact to be that remedy had been exhausted, and I so stated to the Senator from Missouri.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM H. BRIMMER.

The bill (H. R. 5247) granting a pension to William H. Brimmer was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of William H. Brimmer, of Stephentown, N. Y., late a private in Company K, Twenty-first Regiment of New York Cavalry Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ALONZO ALDEN.

The bill (H. R. 2663) for the relief of Alonzo Alden was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to increase the pension of Alonzo Alden, late colonel of the One hundred and sixty-ninth Regiment New York Volunteers and brevet brigadier-general, from $50 to $72 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY M. STRONG.

The bill (H. R. 2662) for the relief of Mary M. Strong was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mary M. Strong, widow of Thomas J. Strong, late lieutenant-colonel of the Sixteenth Regiment New York Heavy Artillery.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SQUIRE ADMIRE.

The bill (H. R. 4812) to grant a pension to Squire Admire was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Squire Admire, late a private in the Third Regiment Indiana State Legion.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JANE THOMAS.

The bill (H. R. 159) granting a pension to Jane Thomas was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mrs. Jane Thomas, of Dubuque, Iowa, an Army nurse, widow of Lewis A. Thomas, late quartermaster-sergeant of the Forty-sixth Regiment Iowa Infantry Volunteers, at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SELINA A. SIMS.

The bill (H. R. 2077) to place on the pension-roll the name of William S. Sims was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 4, after the word "pension-roll," to insert "subject to the limitations and provisions of the pension laws;" in the same line, after the words "name of," to insert "Selina A. Sims, widow of;" and in line 6, after the word "volunteers," to strike out the words "at a rating of $40 per month from the date of the approval of this act;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the limitations and provisions of the pension laws, the name of Selina A. Sims, widow of William S. Sims, late captain of Company F, Eighty-sixth Regiment Indiana Volunteers.

The amendments were agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. What is the order of business?

Mr. CULLOM. I can state to the Senator from Missouri that the fact is that the soldier died since the passage of the bill in the House, and the widow is substituted in his place.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill to place on the pension-roll the name of Selina A. Sims, widow of William S. Sims."

MARY E. WALKER, M. D.

The bill (S. 1041) granting a pension to Mary E. Walker, M. D., was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 7, after the word "of," to strike out "fifty" and to insert "twenty-five;" so as to make the bill read:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary E. Walker, M. D., late acting assistant surgeon in the United States Army, for the sum of $25 per month.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DAVID H. LUTMAN.

The bill (S. 2206) granting a pension to David H. Lutman was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of David H. Lutman, late a private in Company F, Second Maryland Regiment.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELEANOR B. GOODFELLOW.

The bill (S. 1958) granting an increase of pension to Eleanor B. Goodfellow was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Eleanor B. Goodfellow, widow of Henry Goodfellow, late major and judge-advocate-general, United States Army, at the rate of $50 per month, in lieu of that which she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. JENNIE STONE.

The bill (S. 1161) granting a pension to Mrs Jennie Stone, widow of General Charles P. Stone, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, in line 6, after the word "from," to strike out "January 24, 1887, the date of General Stone's death," and insert "and after the passage of this act;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to Mrs. Jennie Stone, widow of General Charles P. Stone, a pension of $600 per annum, to take effect from and after the passage of this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SIGMUND BAUER.

The bill (S. 1952) for the relief of Sigmund Bauer was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to direct the Secretary of the Interior to reopen the pension application of Sigmund Bauer, late a private in Company E, of the One hundred and forty-second Regiment New York Volunteers, and adjudicate the same in the same manner as if his declaration executed prior to the 1st of July, 1880, had been filed in the office of the Commissioner of Pensions before the 1st of July, 1880.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN BISBEY.

The bill (H. R. 2491) granting a pension to John Bisbey was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of John Bisbey, late a sergeant of Company B, Twenty-third Illinois Volunteers, at the rate of $36 a month, in lieu of the pension he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM H. BROKENSHAW.

The bill (H. R. 418) granting a pension to William H. Brokenshaw was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of William H. Brokenshaw, late a private in Company H, Twenty-fourth Michigan Volunteer Infantry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. DELILAH AGARD.

The bill (H. R. 4516) granting a pension to Mrs. Delilah Agard was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mrs. Delilah Agard, widow of George Agard, late a private in Company B, One hundred and fourteenth Regiment New York Infantry Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY J. FRANCIS.

The bill (H. R. 4655) granting a pension to Mary J. Francis was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mary J. Francis, widow of Eli C. Francis, late captain Company K, Fifty-fourth Regiment Ohio Infantry Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LEORA E. GEAR.

The bill (H. R. 6732) granting a pension to Leora E. Gear was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-rolls the name of Mrs. Leora E. Gear, widow of Richard Gear, late a private in Company G, Twentieth Regiment Iowa Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HARRIET V. STOCKTON.

The bill (H. R. 3711) granting a pension to Harriet V. Stockton was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place the name of Harriet V. Stockton on the pension-roll as the widow of John S. Stockton, deceased, as a soldier in Company C, First Kentucky Cavalry, in the war of 1861 to 1865.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JULIA A. DARRELL.

The bill (H. R. 122) for the relief of Julia A. Darrell was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place upon the pension-roll the name of Julia A. Darrell, the dependent mother of William Burr Darrell, late of the United States ship Albany, which sailed from New York in June, 1855, and was never heard from afterwards.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

NANCY RAINS.

The bill (H. R. 6343) to increase the pension of Nancy Rains, the oldest Revolutionary pensioner on the rolls, she being ninety-six years of age, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to increase the pension of Nancy Rains, widow of John Rains, deceased, late a Revolutionary soldier, to $30 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EMILY B. NEWELL.

The bill (H. R. 442) granting a pension to Emily B. Newell was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place the name of Emily B. Newell, widow of Nathan F. Newell, late of Company A, Tenth Illinois Cavalry, on the pension-roll, at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM M. DAVIS.

The bill (S. 1744) granting a pension to William M. Davis was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, in line 7, after the word "Volunteers," to strike out "and that he be paid a pension at the rate of $8 per month;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William M. Davis, late of Company F, Seventh Regiment Iowa Volunteers.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. FREDERICKA HAUSER.

The bill (S. 1110) granting a pension to Mrs. Fredericka Hauser was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mrs. Fredericka Hauser, widow of John F. Hauser, late of Company H, Sixth Wisconsin Infantry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BENJAMIN M. FISHER.

The bill (S. 1314) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin M. Fisher was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, in line 4, after the words "directed to," to strike out "increase the amount allowed as" and insert "place on the;" in line 5, after the word "pension," to insert "roll;" and in the same line, after the name "Fisher," to insert "Fifth Battery Ohio Artillery;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll Benjamin M. Fisher, Fifth Battery Ohio Artillery, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JULIA B. M'COMB.

The bill (S. 2087) granting a pension to Julia B. McComb was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, after the word "bugler," at the end of line 6, to insert "Company I;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Julia B. McComb, widow of Lucas McComb, late bugler Company I, Twenty-seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

RACHEL PLUMMER.

The bill (S. 2183) granting a pension to Rachel Plummer was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Rachel Plummer, mother of Charles Plummer, late a private of Company B, Seventh Regiment of Wisconsin Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MATTIE V. BOOTHE AND MARY M. BOOTHE.

The bill (S. 2088) granting a pension to Mattie V. Boothe and Mary M. Boothe was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, after the word "Volunteers," in line 8, to insert "at the rate of $6 per month each;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the names of Mattie V. Boothe and Mary M. Boothe, daughters of Charles Boothe, Company F, Twenty-sixth Regiment Missouri Volunteers, at the rate of $6 per month each.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN FARLOW.

The bill (S. 2014) granting a pension to John Farlow was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of John Farlow, late a private in Company K, Thirteenth New Jersey Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY J. GOSLEE.

The bill (S. 2447) granting a pension to Mary J. Goslee was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mary J. Goslee, mother of George H. Goslee, late a private in Company D, Third Regiment Delaware Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CATHARINE M'QUADE.

The bill (S. 2448) granting a pension to Catharine McQuade was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Catharine McQuade, widow of Thomas McQuade, late a private in Company F, Sixty-ninth New York Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES W. BOWMAN.

The bill (S. 2449) granting a pension to James W. Bowman was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of James W. Bowman, late a corporal in Company C, Seventh Regiment Tennessee Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

J. ROCK WILLIAMSON.

The bill (S. 1687) to restore J. Rock Williamson to the pension-roll was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to restore to the pension-roll the name of J. Rock Williamson, late a private in Company G, One hundred and fifth Illinois Volunteer Infantry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WASHINGTON T. OTEY.

Mr. CULLOM. In relation to the bill (S. 1307) to increase the pension of Washington T. Otey, which was just passed over or not called because there was an adverse report, there has been additional evidence in the case presented, and I ask that the bill be recommitted to the Committee on Pensions.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be recommitted if there be no objection.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. CLARK, its Clerk, announced the appointment of Mr. HENDERSON, of Illinois, as one of the managers of the conference on the part of the House on the joint resolution (H. Res. 81) to authorize the purchase of the lands necessary for the construction of locks and dams on the Cumberland River, in the place of Mr. HENDERSON, of North Carolina, the announcement of the appointment of Mr. HENDERSON, of North Carolina, having been an error.

Mr. DOLPH. I ask, if necessary, that an order be made for the correction of the Journal in that matter.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. No order is necessary.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVAL.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had this day approved and signed the act (S. 574) to increase the pension of Mrs. Apolline A. Blair.

J. W. M'MILLAN.

The bill (S. 1074) for the relief of J. W. McMillan was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment in line 7, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "forty-five;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of J. W. McMillan, late of Company G, Twenty-fourth Regiment Michigan Volunteers, at the rate of $45 per month.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SHELTON FLANINGAM.

The bill (S. 1266) granting a pension to Shelton Flannigan was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment in line 6, to change the name "Flannigan" to "Flaningam;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Shelton Flaningam, late a private in Company D, of the First Regiment of Nebraska Cavalry.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to Shelton Flaningam."

WILLIAM COLLINSWORTH.

The bill (S. 1122) granting an increase of pension to William Collinsworth, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of William Collinsworth, late a private in Company G, One hundred and eleventh Regiment Illinois Infantry Volunteers, at the rate of $24 a month, in lieu of the pension he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THEODORE RAUTHE.

The bill (S. 2460) granting arrears of pension to Theodore Rauthe, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to pay to Theodore Rauthe, late of Company K, Thirteenth New York Cavalry, arrears of pension, at the rate of $31.25 per month, from the 12th of September, 1878, to the 22d of July, 1882.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. MARY HEAP NICHOLSON.

The bill (S. 1831) granting a pension to Mrs. Mary Heap Nicholson was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mary Heap Nicholson, widow of James W. A. Nicholson, late rear-admiral (retired) of the United States Navy, at the rate of $50 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM O. DOYEL.

The bill (S. 2067) granting a pension to William O. Doyel was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, which was, in line 8, after the word "Volunteers," to strike out the words "said pension to date from January 1, 1888," and to insert "and pay him a pension of $18 per month;" so that the bill will read:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William O. Doyel, dependent son of Richard G. Doyel, late a private in Company C, Twenty-third Regiment of Kentucky Volunteers, and pay him a pension of $18 per month.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LOUISA V. DE KILPATRICK.

The bill (S. 1488) granting an increase of pension to Louisa V. de Kilpatrick, widow of Maj. Gen. Judson Kilpatrick, United States Volunteers, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 9, after the word "of," to strike out the words "two thousand dollars per annum," and insert "one hundred dollars per month;" so as to make the bill read:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Louisa V. de Kilpatrick, widow of Maj. Gen. Judson Kilpatrick, United States Volunteers, and to pay her a pension from the passage of this act, for and during her natural life, at the rate of $100 per month, in lieu of the pension she may be receiving under any prior law.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THEODORE GARDNER.

The bill (S. 1737) granting a pension to Theodore Gardner was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Theodore Gardner, late sergeant First Battery Kansas Volunteers, at the rate of $17 per month, in lieu of the pension he now receives.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM H. SHIVERS.

The bill (S. 1658) granting a pension to William H. Shivers was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of William H. Shivers, of Missouri, late a member of Company K, Sixtieth Regiment Enrolled Missouri Militia.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH M'GUCKIAN.

The bill (S. 2375) granting a pension to Joseph McGuckian was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Joseph McGuckian, late a sergeant in the general service of the United States Army.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY E. NOLL.

The bill (S. 2006) granting a pension to Mary E. Noll, widow of Philip Noll, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place upon the pension-roll the name of Mary E. Noll, widow of Philip Noll, late private Company E, Ninth Regiment Missouri State Militia.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

D. P. HOUGLAND.

The bill (S. 2230) granting a pension to D. P. Hougland was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of D. P. Hougland, late of Company C, Second Battalion Missouri State Militia.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM N. CLINE.

The bill (S. 2231) granting a pension to William N. Cline was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of William N. Cline, late of Company D, Eleventh Regiment Kansas Volunteer Cavalry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. DE MOTTE.

The bill (S. 2108) granting a pension to George W. De Motte was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of George W. De Motte, late of Company K, Fifty-third Illinois Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. ELIZA B. ANDERSON.

The bill (H. R. 754) to increase the pension of Mrs. Eliza B. Anderson was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to pay to Eliza B. Anderson, widow of the late Robert Anderson, a brigadier-general of the United States Army, a pension of $100 per month in lieu of the pension now paid to her.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MINOR CHILDREN OF WILLIAM CLARK.

The bill (H. R. 183) granting a pension to minor children of William Clark was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the minor children of William Clark, late a private in Company C, of the Fortieth Regiment of Indiana.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ISAAC DILLEY.

The bill (H. R. 7171) to restore to the pension-roll the name of Isaac Dilley was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to restore to the pension-roll the name of Isaac Dilley, late of Company H, One hundred and thirtieth Indiana Infantry Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CHARLOTTE T. CLARK.

The bill (H. R. 2078) granting a pension to Charlotte T. Clark was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-rolls the name of Charlotte T. Clark, widow of Bela T. Clark, late captain of Company D, Forty-second Regiment Illinois Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MILES S. SCRIBNER.

The bill (H. R. 822) granting a pension to Miles S. Scribner was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Miles S. Scribner, late a private in Company H of the Second Maine Regiment of Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ISAIAH G. MAYO.

The bill (H. R. 824) granting a pension to Isaiah G. Mayo was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Isaiah G. Mayo, late of the United States Sanitary Commission service, the rating to be the same as allowed for similar disability to an enlisted man in the United States military service.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MORRIS T. MANTOR.

The bill (H. R. 4633) granting a pension to Morris T. Mantor was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Morris T. Mantor, late a private in Company F, of the Eighteenth Regiment Wisconsin Infantry Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WEALTHA YOUNG.

The bill (S. 1749) granting a pension to Wealtha Young was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Wealtha Young, widow of James B. Young, Company F, One hundred and seventh New York Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ALPHONZO H. MELENDY.

The bill (S. 1159) granting a pension to Alphonzo H. Melendy was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Alphonzo H. Melendy, late a member of Company K, Thirty-sixth Massachusetts Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES WOODY.

The bill (H. R. 2806) to increase the pension of James Woody was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to increase the pension of James Woody, of Grant's Pass, Oregon, formerly of the Forty-third Regiment, regular Army, in the war of 1812, to $30 per month in lieu of what he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES HALE.

The bill (S. 734) granting a pension to James Hale was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of James Hale, Company F, First New Hampshire Heavy Artillery.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HELEN PLUNKETT.

The bill (S. 1515) granting a pension to Helen Plunkett was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Helen Plunkett, widow of Sergeant Thomas Plunkett, Company E, Twenty-first Massachusetts Volunteers, at the rate of $50 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOANNA W. TURNER.

The bill (S. 1702) granting a pension to Joanna W. Turner was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Joanna W. Turner, widow of William D. Turner, late surgeon Ninety-seventh Illinois Volunteers, at the rate of $50 per month, in lieu of the pension now received by her.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LAURA D. PIERCE.

The bill (H. R. 4107) granting a pension to Laura D. Pierce was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Laura D. Pierce, widow of Artemus Pierce, of Company E, Fifteenth Vermont Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HANNAH C. DE WITT.

The bill (H. R. 823) granting a pension to Hannah C. De Witt was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Hannah C. De Witt, mother of George E. De Witt, late a private in the Seventh Battery Maine Artillery, who died in the service November 9, 1864.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. MARTHA M. BAGLEY.

The bill (H. R. 3849) granting a pension to Mrs. Martha M. Bagley was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mrs. Martha M. Bagley, widow of Charles M. Bagley, deceased, late of Company A, Fifteenth New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELIZA J. CURRIER.

The bill (H. R. 441) granting a pension to Eliza J. Currier was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Eliza J. Currier, widow of Joseph H. Currier, late a private of Company B, Third Regiment New Hampshire Volunteers, at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY H. CASLER.

The bill (S. 1577) granting a pension to Mary H. Casler was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mary H. Casler, widow of Marcus R. Casler, late captain of Company H, One hundred and twenty-first New York Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. ADELINE COUZINS.

The bill (S. 2356) to provide a pension to Mrs. Adeline Couzins was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mrs. Adeline Couzins, at the rate of $50 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ANDREW T. M'REYNOLDS.

The bill (S. 1935) for the relief of Andrew T. McReynolds was considered as in Committee of the Whole. The preamble recites that Andrew T. McReynolds served as a captain of Company K, Third Dragoons, United States Army, in Mexico, during the war with that Republic, and while acting in squadron with Captain (the late General) Phil. Kearny, the usual escort to the general-in-chief, was, on the 20th of August, 1847, disabled by a grape-shot wound in a charge at the gates of Mexico, by reason whereof he was placed on the pension-roll at the rate of $25 per month, which pension he continued to receive until the 15th of June, 1861, when he was mustered into the volunteer service as colonel of the First New York (Lincoln) Cavalry (the first volunteer cavalry regiment organized for the late civil war), and served as such until the 22d of August, 1864, when he received an honorable discharge, during all of which time his pension was withheld from him, amounting in all to $950, no part of which sum has since been received by him.

The bill therefore directs the Commissioner of Pensions to pay to McReynolds $950, taking his receipt therefor, in full discharge of the claim.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

ELVIRA COOPER.

The bill (H. R. 459) for the relief of Elvira Cooper was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Elvira Cooper, foster-mother of Eugene H. Cooper, deceased, late of Company G, One hundred and forty-second New York Volunteers, and of Company B, One hundred and sixty-ninth New York Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

KELSEY CURTIS.

The bill (H. R. 3183) for the relief of Kelsey Curtis was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Kelsey Curtis, formerly of Company H, Fourteenth Regiment Illinois Cavalry State Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MAHALA ROBBINS.

The bill (H. R. 2177) granting a pension to Mahala Robbins was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mahala Robbins, of Keokuk, Iowa, dependent mother of Caleb Hamone, otherwise known as Caleb Hammond, deceased, late a private in Company H, Fifty-sixth Regiment of United States Colored Troops.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CATHARINE MAXWELL.

The bill (H. R. 499) granting a pension to Catharine Maxwell was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Catharine Maxwell, mother of Charles Maxwell, late of Company B, Ninety-seventh Regiment of Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELIZABETH J. HASCALL.

The bill (H. R. 5911) granting a pension to Elizabeth J. Hascall was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Elizabeth J. Hascall, widow of Bailey Hascall, late acting assistant paymaster of the United States Navy during the late war of the rebellion.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. BURKHART.

The bill (H. R. 407) granting a pension to George W. Burkhart was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of George W. Burkhart, late a sergeant of Company G, Tenth Regiment Ohio Cavalry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CLARA M. FLANDERS.

The bill (H. R. 5228) granting a pension to Clara M. Flanders was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Clara M. Flanders, widow of Francis C. Flanders, late of Company M, First Regiment Heavy Artillery, Massachusetts Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM P. WITT.

The bill (H. R. 6908) granting a pension to William P. Witt was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of William P. Witt, late of Company B, Seventeenth Regiment of Kansas Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY K. TAYLOR.

The bill (H. R. 5236) granting an increase of pension to Mary K. Taylor was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mary K. Taylor, widow of George W. Taylor, late a brigadier-general in the United States Army, at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of the amount now received by her.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES WHITE.

The bill (S. 2520) granting a pension to James White was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of James White, late a fifer in Company K, Second Regiment Iowa Volunteers, at the rate of $4 a month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FRANCIS M. YEARIAN.

The bill (S. 1126) granting a pension to Francis M. Yearian was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Francis M. Yearian, of Pocahontas, Ark.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY M. GIBSON.

The bill (S. 2129) to increase the pension of Mary A. Gibson, widow of Commander William Gibson, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, in line 6, to change the name "Mary A. Gibson" to "Mary M. Gibson;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place upon the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary M. Gibson, widow of Commander William Gibson, United States Navy, and pay her a pension of $50 per month from and after the passage of this act; and this pension shall be in lieu of that which she is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill to increase the pension of Mary M. Gibson, widow of Commander William Gibson."

MATILDA BLEUMNER.

The bill (S. 1906) granting a pension to Matilda Bleumner was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Matilda Bleumner, dependent mother of Charles McL. Bleumner, late a private of Company K, Eighth Regiment Kansas Volunteer Infantry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

OSCAR K. ROGERS.

The bill (S. 1552) for an increase of pension to Oscar K. Rogers was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Oscar K. Rogers, late of Company B, Twenty-eighth Michigan Volunteers, at the rate of $50 per month, in lieu of the amount now received by him.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BENJAMIN A. BURTRAM.

The bill (S. 1762) granting a pension to Benjamin A. Burtram was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Benjamin A. Burtram.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES E. GOTT.

The bill (S. 1539) to increase the pension of James E. Gott was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of James E. Gott, late a private in Company A, Fourteenth Maine Volunteers, at the rate of $50 per month, in lieu of his present pension.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let us hear the report in that case.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The report will be read.

The Secretary read the following report, submitted by Mr. SAWYER April 2, 1888:

The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred a bill to increase the pension of James E. Gott, have examined the same, and report:

The claimant was pensioned at the rate of $24 a month for abscess in left maxillary bone. He applied for increase, which was rejected October 21, 1887, as the Commissioner states in his letter of transmission, "because the disability resulting from the pensioned cause did not incapacitate him for the performance of any manual labor whatever."

The examining surgeon says that his disability is the result of gangrene from the effects of scurvy. Another surgeon, designated by the Pension Office, says: "He is sustained by the removal of two incisors, and draws fluid food through the aperture. It takes him a long time to eat; is poorly nourished. His condition is not the result of bad habits."

The board of examining surgeons who examined him in 1885 report that "his jaws are firmly bound together by a cicatrix; he is unable to perform any manual labor."

The claimant was a private in Company A, Fourteenth Maine Volunteers. A petition to Congress praying for increase, signed by 120 citizens of the town of Deer Isle, the home of the soldier, states on their personal knowledge that in consequence of the flesh on the inside of his mouth adhering or growing to the jaw he is unable to open his mouth or take any solid food; that he is a great sufferer, unable to labor, and requires the attendance of another person.

It is apparent to the committee, after a careful investigation of the case, that he is not only utterly incapacitated to perform any kind of labor, but that his emaciated condition, and the peculiarities of his case not only require the attendance of a person to take care of him, but make the occupation of his nurse a very unpleasant duty.

The committee does not undertake to reconcile the conclusions of the Pension Office with the very positive existence of the facts as shown by the surgeons appointed to examine him, as well as by his neighbors, who have daily opportunities to know whereof they testify.

With the evidence before us we have no doubt that this soldier is entirely disabled, and that his condition is such as to justify and demand a special act for his relief.

The bill is reported favorably, with a recommendation that it do pass.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. MARY L. RISTINE.

The bill (S. 1867) granting a pension to Mrs. Mary L. Ristine was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mrs. Mary L. Ristine, widow of Barnett E. Ristine, late a member of Company F, Third Regiment Iowa Cavalry Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY VON KUSSEROW.

The bill (S. 655) granting an increase of pension to Mary Von Kusserow was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, after the word "late," in line 5, to strike out the following words:

Bvt. Col. Charles Von Kusserow, for pension at the rate of the rank of a brevet colonel, to commence from the date of the death of said Bvt. Col. Charles Von Kusserow, 3d of February, 1879, and to continue during her widowhood, but that the sums heretofore received by her as pension shall be deducted from the back pension hereby granted, and this pension shall be subject to the provisions of the general pension law.

And in lieu thereof to insert:

Lieut. Col. Charles Von Kusserow, and pay her a pension at the rate corresponding with the rank of a lieutenant-colonel, in lieu of the pension she is now receiving.

So as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll the name of Mary Von Kusserow, widow of the late Lieut. Col. Charles Von Kusserow, and pay her a pension at the rate corresponding with the rank of a lieutenant-colonel, in lieu of the pension she is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARGARET B. TODD.

The bill (S. 645) granting a pension to Mrs. Margaret B. Todd was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mrs. Margaret B. Todd.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CYNTHIA J. LEROY.

The bill (H. R. 7891) for the relief of Cynthia J. Leroy was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place upon the pension-roll the name of Cynthia J. Leroy, the invalid daughter of Abraham Leroy, late a private of Company B, Sixth Regiment Illinois Volunteers, at $18 per month during her natural life.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS H. AULLS.

The bill (H. R. 416) granting a pension to Thomas H. Aulls was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Thomas H. Aulls, late a private in Company C, One hundred and eighty-ninth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

IDA B. LINTHICUM.

The bill (H. R. 97) granting a pension to Ida B. Linthicum was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Ida B. Linthicum, of Quincy, Ill., daughter of John D. Linthicum, deceased, late a private in the One hundred and eighteenth Regiment Illinois Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES A. HALEY.

The bill (H. R. 509) granting a pension to James A. Haley was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of James A. Haley, late of Thomas Caldwell's Company of West Virginia Scouts, in the war of 1861.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY DULL.

The bill (H. R. 3488) granting a pension to Mary Dull was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place upon the pension-roll the name of Mrs. Mary Dull, late nurse of Ninety-seventh Regiment of Illinois Volunteers, at $16 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY E. HAWN.

The bill (H. R. 6974) for the relief of Mary E. Hawn, widow of Emanuel R. Hawn, late surgeon of the Forty-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteers, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JULIA STOKES.

The bill (H. R. 893) granting a pension to Julia Stokes was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Julia Stokes, mother of Thomas J. Stokes, deceased, late of the United States ship Mohawk.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JUDITH PLUMMER.

The bill (H. R. 2456) for the relief of Judith Plummer was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides that the name of Judith Plummer, of Washington, D. C., who, during the late war, was a nurse under Dorothy Dix, shall be placed on the pension-roll of the United States at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARBLE H. BAIRD.

The bill (H. R. 782) granting a pension to Marble H. Baird was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Marble H. Baird, late of Company A, Eighth Regiment Illinois Cavalry Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HENRY B. SHAW.

The bill (H. R. 150) granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Shaw was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to increase the pension of Henry B. Shaw, late a member of Company I, Third Iowa Infantry, to $45 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN ROWE.

The bill (H. R. 2518) granting an increase of pension to John Rowe was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to increase the pension of John Rowe, late a private in Company G, Eleventh Wisconsin Volunteers, so as to include disability from kidney disease.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LEMUEL R. REA.

The bill (S. 2419) granting a pension to Lemuel R. Rea was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, after the word "cavalry," in line 7, to insert "at the rate of $72 per month;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lemuel R. Rea, late a private in Company I, Second Illinois Cavalry, at the rate of $72 a month.

Mr. BERRY. That bill was introduced by myself for the benefit of a person now residing in my State. I do not know the applicant personally; but I think he is entitled to a pension. He requested that the bill be introduced providing that he be placed on the pension-roll, and that the pension be rated according to law, and I introduced the bill in that way. The committee recommend that he be put on the roll at $72 a month. I do not know whether or not that is correct. I should prefer that the bill pass in the usual form and let the Commissioner of Pensions examine and determine what amount he is entitled to. I think that would be the better course, and I introduced the bill in that way. I request that the amendment be not adopted and the Commissioner of Pensions examine the case and fix the proper amount.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the report be read in that case.

Mr. DAVIS. I can state the substance of the report. The beneficiary of this bill, Lemuel R. Rea, is totally blind and became so in consequence of his military service. For that condition the law rates the pension for the disability at $72 a month, and the committee accordingly amended the bill to give him by the bill the amount the law provides in such cases. Of course we have no objection to the Senator from Arkansas restoring the bill to its original condition if he prefers.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the amendment proposed by the Committee on Pensions.

The amendment was rejected.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN ECKLAND.

The bill (S. 1466) granting a pension to John Eckland was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, after the word "while," at the end of line 8, to strike out "loading" and insert "unloading;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John Eckland, late a Government laborer in the quartermaster's department of the army of General Thomas, who has become totally blind from an injury received while unloading a Government vessel with supplies, said injury being due to the unsafe and slippery condition of the gangway.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

RICHARD H. VAN DORIN.

The bill (S. 2118) granting a pension to Richard H. Van Dorin was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Richard H. Van Dorin, of Fairfield, Iowa, who served with the United States forces in the war with Mexico, and actually participated in the battle of Buena Vista and one other engagement, at $8 per month, as provided in section 2 of the act approved January 29, 1887, entitled "An act granting pensions to the soldiers and sailors of the Mexican war, and for other purposes."

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HARRIET L. VAUGHAN.

The bill (S. 1877) granting a pension to Harriet L. Vaughan was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Harriet L. Vaughan, widow of Orsemus S. Vaughan, late sergeant of Company F, Fourth Regiment of Rhode Island Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. ELLEN COURTNEY.

The bill (S. 1942) granting a pension to Mrs. Ellen Courtney was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Ellen Courtney, mother of Cornelius Courtney, deceased, late a member of Company M, Fifth Regiment Ohio Cavalry Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HELEN A. BEEBE.

The bill (S. 1272) granting a pension to Helen A. Beebe was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll, at $30 per month, the name of Helen A. Beebe, formerly Helen A. Stow, late a volunteer nurse in the Medical Department, United States Army, during the war of the rebellion.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JULIA A. GRIFFEN.

The bill (H. R. 2694) granting a pension to Julia A. Griffen was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Julia A. Griffen, at $18 per month, for services as nurse in the late war of the rebellion.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CHLOE QUIGGLE.

The bill (H. R. 4550) granting a pension to Chloe Quiggle, widow of Phillip Quiggle, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Chloe Quiggle, widow of Phillip Quiggle, late a private in Company I, First Minnesota Heavy Artillery.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. HANNAH F. BROCK.

The bill (H. R. 2416) granting a pension to Mrs. Hannah F. Brock was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Mrs. Hannah F. Brock, dependent stepmother of John M. Brock, deceased, late a private in Company H, Thirteenth Regiment Massachusetts Infantry Volunteers, at $12 a month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SARAH F. JONES.

The bill (S. 886) granting a pension to Sarah F. Jones was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Sarah F. Jones, widow of Albert L. Jones, late of Company B, Sixth Maine Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. LAURA HOOPER DENBY.

The bill (S. 1760) to increase the pension of Mrs. Laura Hooper Denby was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides that the pension now granted to Mrs. Laura Hooper Denby, widow of Edwin R. Denby, late medical inspector in the United States Navy, shall be increased to $50 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EZRA A. MILLER.

The bill (S. 2138) granting an increase of pension to Ezra A. Miller was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Ezra A. Miller, late a private in Company H, Twenty-sixth Iowa Volunteer Infantry, at the rate of $50 per month, in lieu of the pension he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS J. PARKER.

The bill (H. R. 5176) granting a pension to Thomas J. Parker was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Thomas J. Parker, late of Company A, Fourth Regiment Michigan Cavalry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DAVID JOHNSON.

The bill (H. R. 5363) granting a pension to David Johnson was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of David Johnson, of Virginia, Ill., late a member of Company C, First North Carolina Regiment of Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOAB M. HALEY.

The bill (H. R. 2259) to grant a pension to Joab M. Haley was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Joab M. Haley, late a first lieutenant of Company E, Tenth Iowa Regiment of Infantry Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ALONZO HIGLEY.

The bill (H. R. 2498) granting a pension to Alonzo Higley was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Alonzo Higley, formerly of the Tenth Ohio Volunteer Cavalry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARGARET E. GRAVES.

The bill (H. R. 6984) granting a pension to Margaret E. Graves was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Margaret E. Graves, the dependent mother of Pliny A. Graves, late of Company F, Fifth New York Cavalry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ALBERT NEVIN.

The bill (H. R. 3870) granting a pension to Albert Nevin was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place the name of Albert Nevin, late a private in Company K, Ninety-second New York Volunteers, upon the pension-roll at the rate of $45 per month, in lieu of the $25 per month heretofore allowed him.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MAXWELL CARROLL.

The bill (H. R. 3603) to increase the pension of Maxwell Carroll was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to increase the pension of Maxwell Carroll, late first lieutenant of Company B, First Virginia Cavalry, from $24 per month to the amount allowed by law for the loss of a limb above the knee.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES M. BERRY.

The bill (H. R. 3490) granting a pension to James M. Berry was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place upon the pension-roll the name of James M. Berry, the father of John H. Berry, late of Company D, One hundred and twenty-sixth Regiment Illinois Infantry, and Robert L. Berry, late of Company C, One hundred and forty-third Regiment of Illinois Infantry.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH DRISKILL.

The bill (H. R. 5829) for the relief of Joseph Driskill was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to relieve Joseph Driskill, late a soldier in Company C, Fifty-fourth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, from all charges of desertion or of giving aid and comfort to the enemy during the late war of the rebellion, and to direct the Commissioner of Pensions to reopen the application of Driskill for pension, and ignore the charges of misconduct against Driskill, so that they be not used against him.

Mr. COCKRELL. I want the report read in that case.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The report will be read.

The Secretary read the following report submitted by Mr. SAWYER April 3, 1888:

The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred a bill for the relief of Joseph Driskill, have examined the same, and report:

This bill passed the House on the 9th of March. The House report is adopted, and is as follows:

"Joseph Driskill, now of Clinton County, Ohio, was a soldier during the late war, having enlisted on the 12th day of October, 1861, in Company C, Fifty-fourth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, for three years or during the war. He discharged his duties faithfully under many vicissitudes, having suffered much from sickness, but performed his duty whenever it was possible for him to do so. He was with his regiment in Sherman's campaign, which finally resulted in the capture of Atlanta, Ga.

"In the battle of July 22, 1864, in front of Atlanta, he was captured by the enemy and sent a prisoner to Andersonville, and he was kept a prisoner until April 22, 1865. The sufferings of the prisoners at that place have become a matter of history. Driskill was exposed to all the hardships the prisoners had to submit to, and besides being nearly starved he contracted a disease of the eyes. He believed that he would die there. He became desperate, and was willing to resort to anything which might promise him a chance to get back to his regiment and save his life. According to his own statement, which is no doubt truthful, he thought he saw an opportunity to get away when a Confederate recruiting officer came to the prison there to get recruits for the Confederate service. He says that he told them they might use his name, but he denies that he took any oath to support the Confederacy, or that he ever bore arms in the Confederate service. On the contrary, he says when they informed him that he must either do that or go back to prison he attempted to make his escape, and actually jumped off a railroad car while in motion, but that in a few days afterwards he was recaptured by the Confederates and sent a prisoner to Macon, Ga., where he was held in custody until released by General Wilson, who captured the place and assigned him to duty with the Fifth Ohio Cavalry, where he continued until the close of the war, which was only a short time after, and was sent by way of Savannah and Hilton Head to New York, where he was mustered out of the service. This is the story substantially told by him, and there is nothing in the evidence or in the papers on file to contradict it.

"The records show that he was captured by the Confederates July 22, 1864. The reports on the muster-rolls, as given by the adjutant-general in his letters to the Pension Office of August 15, 1876, January 19, 1878, and March 2, 1878, evidently contain errors. The first one, that of August 15, 1876, gives the company muster-rolls for July and August, which report Driskill 'absent, taken prisoner before Atlanta;' while that for March and April, 1865, report 'present on detached service.'

"Adjutant-General's letter of January 19, 1878, reports Driskill on detached service in March and April, 1865; that July was the last report of the company, and reports him 'absent on detached service.'

"The Adjutant-General's letter of March 2, 1878, reports Driskill present March and April, 1865, with a remark, 'on detached service.' August 7, 1879, the Adjutant-General makes substantially the same statement, and also that Driskill was mustered out of the service in New York City September 8, 1865, with the remark, 'prisoner of war from July 22, 1864, to April 22, 1865.'

"The Confederate records of Andersonville report J. B. Driskill, Company I, Fifty-fourth Ohio, 'transferred to Colonel O'Niell January 23, 1865.'

"Now, it will be seen that there is great confusion in these reports. Driskill is reported captured July 22, 1864, and present with his company in March and April, 1865, but on detached service, while in truth and in fact he was a prisoner at Andersonville.

"There is nothing whatever to show that Driskill committed any disloyal act. He performed his duty as a soldier faithfully, and never deserted. There is no charge of desertion against him. There is no charge that he ever failed to do his duty while with his company and regiment, or any assigned duty with another company and another regiment. He was taken prisoner in one of the desperate battles at Atlanta, and he was found a prisoner when General Wilson captured Macon. During this time there is nothing whatever to show that he was anything else but a prisoner, or regarded in any other light except what he tells himself about his scheme to escape.

"Now, who can blame him? Who, with starvation, disease, and death staring him in the face would not have made an effort to get away from it? The effort he made was entirely justifiable, and the fact that he was willing at once to go to duty corroborates his statement that his purpose when he agreed to go with Colonel O'Niell was that he might make his escape and get back to his own command.

"The Confederate records report that he was transferred to Colonel O'Niell, but for what purpose is not stated, nor would it have been known perhaps had not the soldier honestly told all about the affair.

"He has, in consequence of the loss of his eye-sight, asked for a pension, but the Pension Office has refused it because of the fact of his effort to escape from a Confederate prison. There is no other charge against him, and there will be no other, and it would seem that this is rather straining the law to reject his application. He did not desert; he did not bear arms against his country; he did not in fact give aid and comfort to the enemy; but he did, for the purpose of getting back to his own people, pretend that he would go into the enemy's service, and then at the first opportunity deserted from them. Can any one imagine a stronger case of devotion? He had good reason to believe that if he remained at Andersonville he would lose his life. He devised a scheme by which he hoped to escape. This scheme was as justifiable as was that of the prisoners who burrowed out of the walls of Libby Prison in Richmond, or those who went out through a sewer from the prison at Columbus, Ohio. Such acts are always justifiable on the part of prisoners. The enemy who hold them as prisoners might punish them for their efforts to escape if caught, but certainly it is not for their own people to call them to account because they made the effort to get back to them.

"Driskill now asks Congress to remove this difficulty from the path of the Pension Office so that he may get a pension that may solace him in his old age. The hardships he endured while in the service caused him to lose the sight of one eye entirely and the other is very near gone, so much so that he requires some one to lead him about constantly. The rule of the Pension Office, as applied in his case, has been a very harsh one. He was a faithful soldier, and his only misfortune was that he made an effort to get back to his own army. Had he remained there perhaps he might have died, but had he not died there would have been no question raised against him by the Pension Office; but the very fact that he endeavored to get away and get back is construed into a crime.

"He earnestly and respectfully requests Congress to give him the necessary relief.

"After a careful consideration of the evidence in the case, your committee are of opinion that the relief asked for should be granted."

The bill is reported favorably, with a recommendation that it do pass.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELIZABETH BUFFINGTON.

The bill (H. R. 5388) granting a pension to Elizabeth Buffington was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Elizabeth Buffington, dependent mother of George Merrill, late of Company I, Twenty-first Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, now deceased.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EMILY GOODALL.

The bill (H. R. 3682) to pension Emily Goodall was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Emily Goodall, widow of Robert S. Goodall, who was pensioned by act of Congress approved February 26, 1881.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PETER THOMPSON.

The bill (S. 1997) granting a pension to Peter Thompson was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, in line 6, before the word "Smith's," to insert "Jeremiah," and after "Smith's" to insert "company, Second;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and hereby is, directed and required to place on the pension-rolls, subject to the laws and regulations, the name of Peter Thompson, late a private of Company —, of Jeremiah Smith's company, Second Regiment Illinois Mounted Militia, in Black Hawk war.

Mr. COCKRELL. I move to strike out the words "of company," at the beginning of line 6; so as to read.

Late a private of Jeremiah Smith's company, Second Regiment Illinois Mounted Militia, in Black Hawk war.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH B. TINGLEY.

The bill (S. 1267) granting a pension to J. B. Tingley was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee on Pensions reported an amendment, in line 4, to strike out the initials "J. B." and insert "Joseph B.;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be directed to place the name of Joseph B. Tingley, late a private in Company K, One hundred and sixty-ninth Pennsylvania Volunteers, on the pension-roll, subject to all the provisions and limitations of the pension laws.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to Joseph B. Tingley."

NANCY POLOCK.

The bill (S. 2567) granting a pension to Nancy Polock was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Nancy Polock, widow of W. A. Polock, late of Company C, First Nebraska Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CATHERINE M. LEE.

The bill (S. 1320) granting a pension to Catherine M. Lee was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Catherine M. Lee, a volunteer nurse in the late war, giving her, during life, the sum of $25 a month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

NANCY O. GRAY.

The bill (H. R. 6586) granting a pension to Nancy O. Gray was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Nancy O. Gray, widow of Wilson Gray, late of Company C, Eighteenth New Hampshire Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CHARLOTTE BROAD.

The bill (H. R. 816) granting a pension to Charlotte Broad was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Charlotte Broad, of Troy, Me., foster-mother of Frederick H. Leary, late of Company I, Second Regiment of Maine Cavalry, at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LIZZIE F. REED.

The bill (H. R. 4685) granting a pension to Lizzie F. Reed was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Lizzie F. Reed, widow of Oliver H. Reed, late a private in Company A, Eighth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EMMA R. JOHNSON.

The bill (H. R. 7856) granting a pension to Emma R. Johnson was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Emma R. Johnson, minor child of William Johnson, late private in Company E, Seventh Regiment Wisconsin Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SARAH E. PRIBBLE.

The bill (H. R. 818) granting a pension to Sarah E. Pribble was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Sarah E. Pribble, widow of Charles M. Pribble, late a private of Company B, Eleventh Maine Volunteers.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES TIDMARSH.

The bill (S. 2100) granting a pension to Charles Tidmarsh was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension-roll the name of Charles Tidmarsh, late of Company C, First Kentucky Regiment Frankfort Battalion Capital Guards.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The order of the Senate in regard to pension bills is executed.

BRIDGES IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Mr. RANSOM. I move to take up Order of Business No. 668, being the bill (S. 2345) authorizing the construction of bridges across the Cape Fear River, Black River, and the Northeast River, in the State of North Carolina.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senate resumes the consideration of the unfinished business.

Mr. RANSOM. I ask that the bill which we have just taken up be concluded. It will not give rise to debate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. There being no objection, the unfinished business will be informally laid aside.

Mr. PALMER. Can that be done without displacing the unfinished business?

Mr. EDMUNDS. It can, by unanimous consent.

Mr. HARRIS. It will only take a few moments to finish the bill of the Senator from North Carolina.

Mr. PALMER. All right.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair hears no objection; and the bill is before the Senate as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments. The first amendment was in section 5, after the word "and," to strike out "regu" and insert "regulations."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 7, as follows:

SEC. 7. That this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

And to insert in lieu thereof:

SEC. 7. That this act shall be null and void if actual construction of the bridges herein authorized be not commenced within one year and completed within three years from the approval of this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I should like to ask the Senator from North Carolina how far above Wilmington the town of Fayetteville, on Cape Fear River, is?

Mr. RANSOM. About 125 miles.

Mr. EDMUNDS. And how far above Fayetteville is Cape Fear River navigable?

Mr. RANSOM. It is navigable below.

Mr. EDMUNDS. And not above?

Mr. RANSOM. Not above.

Mr. EDMUNDS. "Black River, in the county of Blayden." Whereabouts is that?

Mr. RANSOM. That is between Fayetteville and Wilmington.

Mr. EDMUNDS. Is Black River an affluent of Cape Fear River.

Mr. RANSOM. Yes, sir; and navigable.

Mr. EDMUNDS. And the same of Northeast River?

Mr. RANSOM. Yes, sir.

Mr. EDMUNDS. All right.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BUREAU OF ANIMAL INDUSTRY.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2083) to provide for the establishment of a Bureau of Animal Industry, and to facilitate the exportation of live-stock and their products, to extirpate contagious pleuro-pneumonia and other diseases among domestic animals, and for other purposes, the pending question being on the amendment reported from the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, in section 2, line 18, after the word "diseases," to insert the words "or disease-conditions."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. On this amendment the yeas and nays have been ordered.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GEORGE (after having voted in the negative). I am paired, and desire to withdraw my vote.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Mississippi withdraws his vote.

The roll-call was concluded.

Mr. PASCO. I am paired on all questions with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY], but the pair has been transferred to the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER].

Mr. CULLOM. The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. CHANDLER] is paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. VANCE].

Mr. BUTLER (after having voted in the negative). I expect I ought to withdraw my vote. The Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON] is not in his seat. I do not know how he would vote on this amendment or on this bill, but I am paired with him and withdraw my vote.

Mr. PADDOCK. I am paired generally with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. EUSTIS], and I do not know how he would vote on this bill.

Mr. HARRIS. I am paired generally with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL], but I see his colleague [Mr. EDMUNDS] voted "nay" and I voted "nay," and I shall therefore allow my vote to stand.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I think you are quite safe in doing so.

The result was announced—yeas 13, nays 26; as follows:

YEAS—13.

Allison,	Dolph,	Palmer,	Wilson of Iowa.
Blair,	Evarts,	Platt,
Cullom,	Farwell,	Sawyer,
Davis,	Frye,	Sherman,

NAYS—26.

Bate,	Edmunds,	Ingalls,	Spooner,
Berry,	Gorman,	McPherson,	Stewart,
Brown,	Gray,	Morgan,	Vest,
Call,	Hampton,	Pasco,	Voorhees,
Chace,	Harris,	Pugh,	Walthall.
Coke,	Hawley,	Ransom,
Dawes,	Hearst,	Reagan,

ABSENT—37.

Aldrich,	Daniel,	Kenna,	Saulsbury,
Beck,	Eustis,	Manderson,	Stanford,
Blackburn,	Faulkner,	Mitchell,	Stockbridge,
Blodgett,	George,	Morrill,	Teller,
Bowen,	Gibson,	Paddock,	Turpie,
Butler,	Hale,	Payne,	Vance,
Cameron,	Hiscock,	Plumb,	Wilson of Md.
Chandler,	Hoar,	Quay,
Cockrell,	Jones of Arkansas,	Riddleberger,
Colquitt,	Jones of Nevada,	Sabin,

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. MCPHERSON. I should like to inquire of the Chair if the amendments reported by the committee, in lines 8 and 9, and in line 14 of section 2, have been agreed to by the Senate?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Both of the amendments referred to have been agreed to. The Chair will state to the Senator from New Jersey, however, that they were informally agreed to. There was no actual vote taken; they were announced as agreed to by the Chair, there being no objection.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Certainly it seems to me that if there was any occasion for the amendments in lines 8 and 14, there is practically the same reason for the amendment in line 18 being agreed to, as the phrase employed at this particular place in the bill is employed further on in the bill. I should like to have the advice of the committee as to what they mean by the words "disease-conditions." I find that the Commissioner of Agriculture——

Mr. PALMER. Will the Senator from New Jersey permit me to interrupt him?

Mr. MCPHERSON. If the Senator will permit me to explain what I want an answer to, perhaps he will be able to explain it much more intelligently than he can now.

I find that in the enforcement of the existing law by the Commissioner of Agriculture, when in a locality pleuro-pneumonia is said to exist, it is declared to be an infected district, and from it no exportations of cattle can be made. In other words, cattle can not be removed from that district to a neighboring State without the consent of the Commissioner of Agriculture or such parts of that establishment as may be charged with the execution of the law.

Now, would the Senator call a disease-condition a condition in which pleuro-pneumonia or other infectious or contagious diseases were said to exist that would prevent the exportation of animals from that locality to other localities? Is this bill intended to mean that the animals, having been within the infected district and subject to the conditions of an infected, district, would be in a disease-condition? If so, there is great latitude to this bill.

Mr. PALMER. I thought I anticipated what the Senator desired, and I had prepared a definition for this rather vague but general expression, and now shall move the reconsideration of the vote by which the amendment in line 8, section 2, was adopted, inserting the words "or conditions which may convey disease."

I move that the Senate reconsider the vote by which the amendment of the committee was adopted in line 8 of section 2, inserting the words "or conditions which may convey disease."

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PUGH in the chair). That motion is in order.

The CHIEF CLERK. In section 2, line 8, after the word "diseases," the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, inserted "or conditions which may convey disease."

Mr. PALMER. I will state that the purpose of the reconsideration of this vote is that I may make an amendment whereby this phrase "disease-conditions" can be explained, and as soon as this vote is taken I will [illegible] up an amendment of an explanatory character which I think will answer the query of the Senator from New Jersey.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion to reconsider the vote adopting the amendment referred to.

The motion to reconsider was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question now is on the amendment.

Mr. PALMER. I now offer the following amendment to the amendment. After the word "them," in line 9, insert:

On conditions likely to convey contagion, which for the purposes of this act shall be designated as "disease-conditions."

Mr. EDMUNDS. The pending question is on agreeing to the amendment, in lines 8 and 9, to insert the words "or conditions which may convey disease." If I understand the reading at the desk it is proposed by the Senator from Michigan to insert in the text, after the word "them," in line 9——

Mr. PALMER. That is the purpose.

Mr. EDMUNDS. That would not be in order. You want to disagree to the pending amendment first, and then if you want to move this amendment we shall all agree to it.

Mr. PALMER. I withdraw the amendment that I moved. I ask the Senate to disagree to the amendment of the committee in line 8.

Mr. McPHERSON. As I understand the action of the committee it has already reconsidered the vote by which the amendment made by the Senate in line 8 was inserted in the bill, and that leaves it practically without any amendment as reported from the committee. Do I understand the Senator from Michigan as moving another amendment?

Mr. PALMER. I wish to move an amendment in place of that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The vote on agreeing to that amendment has been reconsidered, and the question now is, Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator from Michigan asks the Senate to vote down the committee amendment, and then he will move another in place of it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was rejected.

Mr. PALMER. Now, in section 2, line 9, after the word "them," I move to insert the words "or conditions likely to convey contagion, which for the purposes of this act shall be designated as disease-conditions;" so as to read:

It shall be the duty of the said board to investigate and report upon the condition of the domestic animals of the United States, their protection and use, and also inquire into and report the causes of contagious, infectious, and communicable diseases among them, or conditions likely to convey contagion, which for the purposes of this act shall be designated as disease-conditions, and the means for the prevention and cure of the same, etc.

Mr. McPHERSON. I could reasonably see why it would be proper to insert the first part of the amendment, "or conditions likely to convey contagion," that animals which had been subjected to disease, or exposed to disease, and perhaps owing to the acute form of the disease, would necessarily convey it; but why say "which for the purposes of this act shall be designated as disease-conditions?"

Mr. PALMER. For the purpose of convenience.

Mr. McPHERSON. But it gives more latitude to the construction of the amendment the Senator himself proposes than I think he intends.

Mr. PALMER. No, I think not. I thought it was restrictive. I thought there was a definition of what was meant by "disease-conditions." I can not conceive any other interpretation put upon the last amendment than conditions likely to transmit contagion, which for the purposes of this act shall be called disease-conditions. It seems to me to be very plain. There is a definition to start out with, and we shall avoid a great deal of trouble if we adopt a definition in the start, because that term occurs frequently in the bill.

Mr. McPHERSON. Very well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Michigan. [Putting the question.] The noes seem to have it.

Mr. PALMER. I ask for the yeas and nays.

Mr. PADDOCK. Let the question be put again. I do not think it was understood.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this question the yeas and nays are demanded.

Mr. FRYE. Will the Chair kindly put the motion again before the call for the yeas and nays is asked?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate has heard the amendment of the Senator from Michigan. Senators in favor will say "ay," those opposed "no." [Putting the question.] The Chair is unable to decide.

Mr. GEORGE. After conference with some Senators on this side of the Chamber who like myself oppose the bill, and with one or two on the other side, I believe it will promote and facilitate the early disposition of the bill if we allow the Senator from Michigan, as the representative of the majority of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, to have his way about the shape he would put the bill and approve of the amendments recommended by the majority of the committee. Therefore, as an opponent of the bill, and speaking for several around me as well as some on the other side, I should be glad, and the others would be glad, if the Senate would allow the Senator from Michigan to have the amendments he desires incorporated in this bill, and also a confirmation by the approval of the Senate formally, now that we are in Committee of the Whole, of all the amendments proposed by the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. PALMER. I think the proposition of the Senator from Mississippi is eminently proper. It will expedite matters very much if we can be allowed to perfect the bill, and then let Senators oppose it from their convictions on constitutional grounds, or from their belief that it detracts from the dignity of the Department of Agriculture, or from their belief that the bill is not required by the exigencies of the case at the present time. I hope the Senate will permit the committee to complete its amendments and then organize their forces.

Mr. GEORGE. With a view of testing the sense of the Senate as to the propriety of the proposition which I have just made, I will move, having voted in the majority, to reconsider the vote taken a few minutes ago by which the amendment in line 14 of section 2 was disagreed to, so that it may be agreed to with all the other amendments.

Mr. SPOONER. I suggest to the Senator from Mississippi that the vote upon an amendment now pending is yet undetermined, and that must be decided before his motion can be made.

Mr. GEORGE. I made that proposition with a view of testing the sense of the Senate whether they would allow the Senator from Michigan to proceed without any further objection to the amendments of the committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair understands that the amendment referred to by the Senator from Mississippi was not disagreed to.

Mr. GEORGE. Then I withdraw the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment referred to was agreed to. The Chair will again submit the question on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Michigan.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. McPHERSON. The Senator from Michigan has now inserted an amendment in line 9 which practically explains all of the following amendments where the term "disease-conditions" occurs; but in line 18 the Senate disagreed with the committee and struck it out.

Mr. GEORGE. That is the one I intended to move to reconsider. I move to reconsider the vote by which that amendment was rejected.

Mr. McPHERSON. If it is the purpose of the Senate, with the explanation made in line 9 by the new amendment offered by the Senator from Michigan, to let the bill be perfected, certainly we should agree to the amendment offered in line 18, to which the Senate gave an adverse action. As I understand the motion of the Senator from Mississippi, it is that the Senate reconsider the vote by which that amendment was rejected.

Mr. GEORGE. I move to reconsider the vote on that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi moves to reconsider the vote by which the amendment in line 18 of section 2 was disagreed to.

The motion to reconsider was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question recurs on agreeing to the amendment of the committee inserting the words "or disease-conditions" in line 18 of section 2.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. McPHERSON. As I understand it, with the modification made by the last amendment offered by the Senator from Michigan, wherever the term "disease-conditions" occurs later in the bill, it is explained and modified by the amendment already incorporated.

Mr. PALMER. That is the intention. It relates to that first definition.

Mr. McPHERSON. Now let us proceed with the amendments of the committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The next amendment of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry will be stated.

The next amendment reported by the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry was, in section 2, line 24, before the word "exist," to insert "may," and in line 25, after the word "diseases," to insert "or disease-conditions;" so as to read:

To that end the said board is hereby authorized to enter, either in person or by their duly authorized and accredited agents, any premises or places, including stock-yards, cars, and vessels, within any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, or the Territories of the United States, in or at which they have reason to believe, and do believe, there may exist any of such diseases or disease-conditions, and to make search, investigation, and inquiry in regard to the existence thereof.

Mr. GEORGE. Would there be any impropriety in taking the vote on all the amendments proposed by the committee en bloc? It would save a good deal of time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent that could be done.

Mr. PALMER. I do not think we should save any time by taking the course the Senator from Mississippi suggests.

Mr. GEORGE. Very well.

Mr. PALMER. I think we had better take the amendments as they occur and vote on them, if we may be permitted to do so, without a division.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 2, after the word "diseases," at the end of line 28, to insert "or disease-conditions;" in line 30, before the word "diseases," to strike out "or," and after the word "diseases" to insert "or disease-conditions;" and in line 36, before the word "diseases," to strike out "or," and after the word "diseases" to insert "or disease-conditions;" so as to read:

Upon the discovery of the existence of any of the said diseases, or disease-conditions the said board is hereby authorized to give notice, by publication, of the existence of such disease, diseases, or disease-conditions, and the locality thereof, in such newspapers as they may select, and to notify, in writing, the officials or agents of any railroad, steam-boat, or other transportation company, or any individual, or firm, engaged in transportation business, in or through such infected locality, of the existence of such disease, diseases, or disease-conditions.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 2, line 40, before the word "diseases," to strike out "or," and after the word "diseases" to insert "or disease-conditions;" and in line 42, after the word "diseases," to insert "or disease-conditions;" so as to read:

Said board is hereby authorized and required to establish and maintain such quarantine of animals, places, premises, or localities as they may deem necessary to prevent the spread of any such disease, diseases, or disease-conditions, and also to cause the appraisal of the animal or animals affected with, or that have been exposed to, the said diseases or disease-conditions, or either of them, in accordance with such rules and regulations as shall be established by them, as hereinafter authorized and provided, and also to cause the same to be destroyed, except as hereinafter provided, and to pay, in case of diseased animals, the owner or owners thereof three-fourths of their value, as determined upon the basis of health before infection, and the full appraised value in case of animals exposed to either of such diseases but not themselves actually diseased, out of any moneys appropriated by Congress for the purpose of this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 2, line 60, before the word "diseases," to strike out "or," and after "diseases" to insert "or disease-conditions;" so as to read:

Provided further, That in no case shall compensation be allowed for any animal destroyed under the provisions of this act which may have contracted or been exposed to such disease, diseases, or disease-conditions in a foreign country or on the high seas.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 2, line 62, before the word "agent," to strike out "by" and insert "whose," and after the word "agent" to insert "with the owner's connivance;" in line 64, before the word "diseases," to strike out "or," and after "diseases" to insert "or disease-conditions;" and in line 66, after the word "agent," to insert "as above;" so as to read:

Nor shall compensation be allowed to any owner who, in person or whose agent, with the owner's connivance, knowingly and willfully conceals the existence of any such disease, diseases, or disease-conditions, or the fact of exposure thereto in animals of which the person making such concealment, by himself or his agent, as above, is in whole or in part the owner.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 3, line 5, after the word "diseases," to insert "or disease-conditions;" in line 7, after the word "animals," to insert "or disease-conditions," and in line 9, after the words "contagious diseases," to insert "or conditions;" so as to read:

That the said board is hereby authorized and required to make, record, and publish rules and regulations providing for and regulating the agencies, methods, and manner of conducting and making the investigations aforesaid regarding the existence of said contagious diseases or disease-conditions; for ascertaining, entering, and searching places where such diseased animals or disease-conditions are supposed to exist; for ascertaining what animals are so diseased or have been exposed to such contagious diseases or conditions.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 3, line 21, after the word "diseases," to insert "or conditions;" so as to read:

Said board shall certify such rules and regulations as relate to the speedy and effectual suppression and extirpation of said diseases or conditions to the executive authority of each State and Territory, and invite said authorities to co-operate in the execution and enforcement of this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 3, line 28, after the words "communicable disease," to insert "or disease-conditions;" and in line 30, after the word "shall," to strike out "proceed in co-operation," and insert "co-operate;" so as to read:

Wherever the governor of a State or Territory, or other officer duly authorized by law thereto, shall signify the assent of said State or Territory to these rules and regulations, or their readiness to co-operate for the extinction of any contagious, infectious, or communicable disease or disease-conditions, in conformity with the provisions of this act, the said board shall co-operate with the proper authorities of said State or Territory for the extinction of such disease.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 4, line 10, after the word "upon," to insert "any of," and in line 11, after the word "premises," to strike out "and" and insert "or;" in line 12, before the word "diseases," to strike out "of said" and insert "of such," and after "diseases" to insert "or disease-conditions;" and in line 20, before the word "both," to insert "by;" so as to make the section read:

SEC. 4. That any person or persons who shall knowingly and willfully refuse permission to the members of said board, or to either of them, or to any duly authorized and accredited agent of said board, to make, or who knowingly and willfully obstructs said board or agents, or either of them, in making all necessary examinations of and as to animals supposed by said board or agents to be diseased, or to have been exposed as aforesaid, or in destroying the same, or who knowingly and willfully attempts to prevent said board or agents, or either of them, from entering upon any of the premises or other places hereinbefore specified where any of such diseases or disease-conditions are by said board or its agents supposed to exist, or any person who knowingly and willfully violates or evades, or so attempts to violate or evade, any quarantine established by said board under the authority of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, or of either of the acts in this section prohibited, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $500 or by imprisonment not exceeding one hundred days, or by both fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 5, line 3, after the word "diseases," to strike out "named" and insert "referred to;" in line 9, after the words "case of," to strike out "the said" and insert "any such;" in line 10, after the word "diseases," to insert "or disease-conditions;" in line 11, after the word "contagion," to insert "or conditions liable to communicate disease;" in line 15, after the word "agents," to strike out "their" and insert "his;" in line 16, before the word "information," to strike out "their;" in the same line, after the words "location of," to strike out "said diseased animals, or of animals exposed as aforesaid" and insert "any such animal or conditions;" and in line 22, after the word "diseases," to strike out "named" and insert "or disease-conditions referred to;" so as to make the section read:

That any person who is the owner of, or who is possessed of any interest in, any animals affected with or which have been exposed to any of the diseases referred to in section 2 of this act, or any person who, as agent, common carrier, consignee, or otherwise, is charged with any duty in regard to any animal so diseased or exposed to the contagion of such disease or diseases, or any officer or agent charged with any duties under the provisions of this act who shall knowingly conceal the existence of any case of any such diseases, or disease-conditions, or the fact of exposure to said contagion, or conditions liable to communicate disease, and the location of said case or cases, and who shall fail, within a reasonable time, to report to the said board, or to some duly authorized and empowered agent thereof, or to some one or more of such officers or agents, his knowledge or information in regard to the existence and location of any such animal or conditions, or who shall transport, cause to be transported, or sell for transportation, out of any State or Territory or the District of Columbia, any animal affected with, or which has been exposed to, or which he has reason to believe is affected with or has been exposed to, any of the diseases or disease-conditions referred to in section 2 of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable as provided in section 4 of this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 6, line 7, after the words "as to," to strike out "the animals decided, as aforesaid, to be diseased or to have been exposed to any of said diseases" and insert "them;" and in line 9, after the word "and," to strike out "of" and insert "as to;" so as to make the section read:

That when the owner of animals which shall be decided by the proper authority, under the provisions of this act, to be diseased, or to have been exposed to said contagion, refuses to accept the sum authorized to be paid under the appraisement provided for in this act, such animals shall not be killed, but it shall be the duty of the board to declare and maintain a rigid quarantine as to them and as to the premises or places where said cattle may be found, according to rules and regulations to be prescribed by said board, approved by the President, and published as provided in the third section of this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 7, line 8, before the word "affected," to strike out "cattle" and insert "animal;" in line 9, after the word "diseases," to strike out "named" and insert "referred to;" in line 10, before the word "been," to strike out "have" and insert "has;" in the same line, after the words "exposed to," to insert "any of;" in the same line, after the word "diseases," to insert "or disease-conditions;" and in line 12, after the word "such," to strike out "cattle" and insert "animal," so as to read:

That no person or persons owning or operating any railroad, nor the owner or owners or master of any steam, sailing, or other vessel within the United States, shall receive for transportation or transport from one State or Territory to another State or Territory or to any foreign country, or from any State or Territory into the District of Columbia, or from the District of Columbia into any State or Territory or to any foreign country, any animal affected with any of the diseases referred to in section 2 of this act, or that has been exposed to any of such diseases or disease-conditions, especially the disease known as contagious pleuro-pneumonia, knowing such animal to be so affected or to have been so exposed.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 7, line 16, after the word "any," to strike out "cattle" and insert "animal;" in the same line, after the word "knowing," to strike out "then" and insert "it;" in line 17, after the word "any," to strike out "of the said" and insert "such;" in the same line, after the word "diseases," to insert "or conditions;" in line 22, before the word "knowing," to strike out "cattle" and insert "animal;" and in line 24, before the word "diseases," to strike out "of said" and insert "such," and after the word "diseases," to insert "or conditions;" so as to read:

Nor shall any person or persons, company or corporation, deliver for such transportation to any railroad company, or to the master or owner of any vessel, any animal, knowing it to be affected with or to have been exposed to any such diseases or conditions; nor shall any person or persons, company or corporation, drive on foot or transport in private conveyances from one State or Territory to another, or from any State or Territory into the District of Columbia, or from said District into any State or Territory, any animal, knowing the same to be affected with, or to have been exposed to, any such diseases or conditions.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was in section 8, line 6, before the word "diseases," to strike out "or," and after "diseases," to insert or "disease-conditions;" in line 8, after the words "movement of," to strike out

"cattle" and insert "animals;" and in line 9, before the word "part," to insert "such;" so as to make the section read:

That when the President of the United States shall be satisfied that the said contagious diseases, or any of them, no longer exist in any State or Territory, or any part thereof, previously declared infected, he shall, by proclamation, declare such State or Territory, or part thereof, free from such disease, diseases, or disease-conditions, and thereby remove all restrictions placed by this bureau upon the movement of animals to, in, and from said State or Territory, or such part thereof. When the President shall be satisfied that said diseases, or any of them, have been extirpated throughout the United States, he shall proclaim such fact, and cause the same to be made known to foreign governments through the proper diplomatic or consular officers.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 12, after the word "ports," at the end of line 7, to insert "to and;" in line 8, after the word "live-stock," to strike out "are" and insert "may be;" in the same line, after the word "exported," to insert "or imported;" and in line 11, after the word "exportation," to insert "importation;" so as to make the section read:

SEC. 12. That in order to promote the exportation of live-stock from the United States the bureau shall cause to be made special investigation as to the existence of pleuro-pneumonia or any contagious, infectious, or communicable disease of live-stock along the dividing lines between the United States and foreign countries, and along the lines of transportation from all parts of the United States to ports to and from which live-stock may be exported or imported, and make report of the results of such investigation to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall from time to time establish such regulations concerning the exportation, importation, and transportation of live-stock as the results of said investigations may require.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 13, line 1, after the word "appropriated," to strike out "by" and insert "for the purposes of;" so as to make the section read:

That the moneys appropriated for the purposes of this act shall be paid over to the Commissioner of Agriculture from time to time as the same may be needed, upon requisition made by the said Commissioner, and shall be disbursed by him only upon vouchers approved by said board.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 15, line 3, before the word "punished," to strike out "by" and insert "be;" so as to make the section read:

That whoever shall knowingly and willfully violate any of the rules made by said board shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by fine not exceeding $500, in the discretion of the court.

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Those are all the amendments proposed by the committee. The bill is still as in Committee of the Whole and open to amendment.

Mr. FRYE. Mr. President——

Mr. PALMER. The committee are not through yet, I will inform the Senator from Maine. On page 2 I move to amend the bill by striking out of section 2, line 1, the words "SEC. 2. That" and by inserting, in line 4, before the word "it," the words "SEC. 2. That;" so as to read:

The salaries of the members of said board, respectively, shall be $4,000 per annum. The said board shall, under the general direction and approval of the Commissioner of Agriculture, exercise the following powers and discharge the following duties:

SEC. 2. That it shall be the duty of the said board to investigate and report, etc.

The object of this amendment is to put that general clause in section 1, so that it will apply to all the succeeding sections. It was thought by some that placed as it was originally it merely applied to section 2, and to avoid any ambiguity the amendment is proposed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PALMER. There is another amendment on page 4. That is to be offered, however, by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. WILSON].

Mr. WILSON, of Maryland. I move to amend section 2 by inserting, after the word "willfully," in line 63, the words "exposes an apparently healthy animal to a diseased animal, or to disease-conditions, or;" so as to read:

Nor shall compensation be allowed to any owner who, in person or whose agent, with the owner's connivance, knowingly and willfully exposes any apparently healthy animal to a diseased animal, or to disease-conditions, or conceals the existence of any such disease, diseases, or disease-conditions, etc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Maryland.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILSON, of Maryland. I move to amend section 3 by inserting, after the word "act," in the thirtieth line, the following:

Or shall satisfy the said board that the laws, rules, and regulations of the said State or Territory for the suppression of such diseases are such as would prove efficient in eradicating such diseases, and shall signify the assent of said State or Territory to co-operate for the extermination of such diseases.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I should like to hear the section read, beginning at line 24, and have the whole clause read consecutively, to show what the amendment means.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be so read.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to amend section 3 so as to read:

Whenever the governor of a State or Territory, or other officer duly authorized by law thereto, shall signify the assent of said State or Territory to these rules and regulations, or their readiness to co-operate for the extinction of any contagious, infectious, or communicable diseases, or disease-conditions, in conformity with the provisions of this act, or shall satisfy the said board that the laws, rules, and regulations of the said State or Territory for the suppression of such diseases are such as would prove efficient in eradicating such diseases, and shall signify the assent of said State or Territory to co-operate for the extermination of such diseases, the said board shall co-operate with the proper authorities of said State or Territory for the extinction of such disease.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Maryland.

Mr. MCPHERSON. As I understand the purport of the amendment, it practically leaves the matter where the amendment of the committee found it: that in case of a refusal or neglect of the authorities of the States or Territories to co-operate, the General Government may still proceed, under the provisions of this proposed law, to carry into effect its own policy. In other words, there is nothing left here under the power of the State or Territory to interpose any sort of obstruction to the policy of the Government, however radical it may be.

Mr. PALMER. If I understand the Senator's question aright, it is whether, in case the board can not approve the rules of any State, or its legislation, in regard to the extirpation of the disease, they may proceed without the co-operation of the State. The theory of the bill is to go with the New Testament in one hand and with a butcher-knife in the other. We propose to pay for the cattle, but propose to stamp out the disease; and I imagine the chief opposition will come from those who think that the rights of the State are invaded. The best way is to put that perfectly plain so that we can all understand it, and vote intelligently.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Let the amendment be again read. I was listening to see whether the amendment of the Senator from Maryland covered the point that the States and Territories must be consulted in this matter before any arbitrary movement can be made by the Government.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be again stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to amend section 3 by inserting after the word "act," in the thirtieth line, the words:

Or shall satisfy the said board that the laws, rules, and regulations of the said State or Territory for the suppression of such diseases are such as would prove efficient in eradicating such diseases, and shall signify the assent of said State or Territory to co-operate for the extermination of such diseases.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maryland. [Putting the question.] The "ayes" seem to have it.

Mr. COKE. I ask for the yeas and nays.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I suggest to the Senator from Texas that the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry be permitted, without objection and pro forma, to put this bill in Committee of the Whole into the condition that they think it ought to be and then let us have it all printed in the condition that they finally think it ought to be, and we shall see it all with our own eyes, and shall be ready, either in Committee of the Whole or when it comes into the Senate, to have an open discussion at large upon the whole measure and every part of it. I think it is fair to the committee to let them, in mere matters of phraseology, put the bill into the attitude that they think makes it best and most secure, and then let it be printed and we can see what it is.

Mr. COKE. I simply desired by calling for the yeas and nays to express my disapproval of the amendment. I am perfectly willing, as suggested by the Senator from Vermont, that the amendments shall be made, provided the bill is to be printed and we are to see it before any further debate or discussion arises over it.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I am sure the Senator from Michigan will be quite willing that should be done, for he has no object to gain that we have not all to gain, and that is, to do the best we have the power to do. I have allowed scores of amendments to go over that if I were not obliged instantly to vote upon I should have voted against, but I thought it was courteous to the committee to allow them to adjust the phraseology and the technicality of the bill, and put it into a shape where they thought it would be in the best condition, and then have the bill printed so that we may all see it. Everything will then be open.

Mr. COKE. I withdraw the call for the yeas and nays after the statement of the Senator from Vermont.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The call for the yeas and nays being withdrawn, the amendment is agreed to.

Mr. WILSON, of Maryland. I have one more amendment to propose, which, like all the others I have offered, has been prepared by the Live-Stock Sanitary Board of the State of Maryland as a proper amendment suggested by their experience. I believe all I have proposed, and those I shall offer, fully meet the approval of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. I move to amend section 6 by adding the following proviso.

Mr. PALMER. I think the Senator from Maryland has omitted one amendment that he has, to add to section 3.

Mr. WILSON, of Maryland. That amendment was sent to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerks have the amendment referred to, and it will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to add to section 3:

And are authorized to adopt the laws, rules, and regulations of such State or Territory.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maryland.

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The next amendment proposed by the Senator from Maryland will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to amend section 6 by adding the following proviso:

Provided, That if the laws of the State or Territory where such diseased animals or disease-conditions exist provide means for the condemnation, appraisement, and slaughter of such animals, and the proper officer of such State or Territory shall at the request of the said board or its agents condemn, appraise, and slaughter such diseased or exposed animals, the said board is authorized to pay to the treasurer of the said State or Territory the amount of such appraisement and the cost of making the same: Provided, The appraised value of the animal so slaughtered shall not exceed the maximum values respectively mentioned in the second section of this act, and shall appear reasonable to the said board.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILSON, of Maryland. I have another amendment to offer.

Mr. PALMER. Will the Senator from Maryland give way to me for a moment?

Mr. WILSON, of Maryland. Certainly.

Mr. PALMER. I move to amend line 9, of section 6, by striking out the word "cattle" and inserting the word "animals;" so as to read:

The premises or places where said animals may be found, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILSON, of Maryland. I move to amend section 17 by adding the following proviso:

Provided, That all agreements for co-operation between the Bureau of Animal Industry and any State or Territory existing at the time of the passage of this act shall continue until the rules and regulations provided for in this act shall have been promulgated and become operative, and all employés of the said bureau shall continue until relieved by the said board.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maryland.

Mr. BLAIR. It seems that a vast amount of unintelligible matter is being put into the bill. I do not know anything about it, and I do not understand from the chairman whether this is to be accepted as committee work or not. We seem to be getting a great deal of it.

Mr. PALMER. This is an amendment agreed by the committee to be accepted. The Senator from New Hampshire having just come in is not aware of the fact that the bill with all its amendments will be printed for his inspection the next time it comes up.

Mr. BLAIR. I understand these are not offered as committee amendments but are to go into the bill.

Mr. PALMER. They are accepted by the committee.

Mr. BLAIR. We may have a bill in the end that the members of the committee will hardly feel like being very much bound by.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maryland.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PALMER. I move to strike out section 11 of the bill and to insert in lieu thereof:

SEC. 11. That the said Commissioner of Agriculture shall have power, and is hereby authorized, to employ skilled veterinarians and such other agents and employés as the said board may deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this act, and to fix the compensation of the person or persons so employed, and to terminate such employment at his discretion. And he is authorized, out of any moneys appropriated for the purposes of this act, to make such expenditures as may be needed for the actual and necessary traveling expenses of the board and said employés, the payment of such employés, rent, office expenses, expenses of disinfecting premises, cars, vessels, and other places, tracing and destroying diseased and exposed animals, and paying for the same, and such other necessary expenses and expenditures as they may find to be actually necessary to properly carry into effect the intent of the provisions of this act: Provided, That in case of emergency arising outside of the District of Columbia any member of the board who is then present is hereby authorized and required, in the absence of the Commissioner of Agriculture, to temporarily employ veterinarians, agents, and employés mentioned in the beginning of this section, fix their compensation, and authorize needed expenditures as fully as is provided to be done by the Commissioner of Agriculture.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Michigan.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PALMER. I move to amend section 12, in the seventh line, by striking out the word "from" and inserting in its stead the word "between;" so as to read "transportation between all parts," etc.; and in the same line by striking out the word "to," after "United States," and inserting in its stead the word "and;" so as to read "all parts of the United States and ports."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PALMER. I think the Senator from Maryland has another amendment to offer.

Mr. WILSON, of Maryland. No, sir; I have offered all my amendments.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendments of the committee are concluded. Are there further amendments to the bill as in Committee of the Whole?

Mr. HISCOCK. Do I understand that the amendments as proposed by the committee are now completed?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendments proposed by the committee are concluded. The bill is now open to amendment as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HISCOCK Mr. President, the friends of the bill, as it is now proposed rely for its justification and the authority to pass it on that provision of the Constitution which gives Congress the right to "regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several States." It creates a commission of three members, who shall constitute a bureau in a Department recognized as such by Congress. Notwithstanding the amendment which has just been made to the bill, providing for agents and veterinary surgeons under that name, it invests that bureau with a power to appoint officers, which power under the Constitution can only be conferred upon the heads of Departments.

I say "notwithstanding that amendment," because it makes a bureau in a Department the nominating power, and upon its nomination the Commissioner of Agriculture is to act in the appointment of these agents, it does not escape the provision of the Constitution; and the objection is not obviated because the appointees are called "agents." They are as much officers as others of that great army who depend for their official positions upon an appointment by a head of Department. The duties which they have to discharge are of the highest consequence and of the greatest importance.

The bill goes further, and it gives to the commission created by it and to the agents who may be appointed the right of search upon private property, into stables, stock-yards, and I do not know but the private residences of individuals, without warrant issued by any judicial power, and without proof that anything exists there which should be subject to their inspection. It confers powers which to-day do not exist in the police regulations of any State to search for the highest criminals that are known to our laws. Without judicial examination the search is to be continued, and whoever resists it resists it at the peril of committing an offense punishable by fine, if not by imprisonment.

The bill then goes a step further: it provides that these commissioners shall have the power to make rules and regulations that shall have the binding effect and force of statutes. The law-making power is delegated to them. That, sir, we may not do. More than that, violations of these rules and orders are made crimes for which men may be punished, and the whole criminal force of this Government is put in operation for their conviction.

Congress has not the power thus practically to delegate to inferior officers or boards the power to create crimes or define what crimes or misdemeanors may be; that rests with the high law-making power of the country, and can not be conferred by it elsewhere.

Under these rules, wherever the officials believe they discover diseased conditions they are to act; and certainly those conditions as now defined, and indicated by the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture yesterday, are conditions which may appertain to drainage or cleanliness of the yards in which cattle run, to the stables and their ventilation in which they are housed, and to the sanitary conditions of the stock-yards in which they are kept. If this bureau or its agents so determine they have the power under the bill, without giving to the parties interested any hearing whatever, and without notice to them, to advertise in the public press of the country that this or that man's premises are infected by disease or have been exposed to it; and his business may be ruined, his property may be destroyed, financial calamity may follow in the train of this public announcement through the press, and the man be left without any remedy. He has no day in court and may not have a judicial tribunal to investigate nor a jury of his peers to pass upon the question. Independent of the criminal questions involved, I may well say here that the force and effect that must be given to the rules made by the commissioners is hardly within the power of Congress to provide for by law, much less to confer upon a board of officers that may be created.

More than that, Mr. President, the bill provides wherever this bureau or its agents believe that domestic animals may be diseased or have been exposed to disease, even have been exposed to disease-conditions as now defined, they may appraise their value. Then the bill provides the measure of damages in such cases—concedes that the property is valuable, and lays down an arbitrary rule which shall guide the commission or the bureau or its agents in respect to those damages. Again, the man has no day in court; he has no hearing upon this question, and as to certain property, if exposed in a foreign land, if exposed under certain conditions—for which he may not be responsible, or if he knows it has been exposed and he suppresses that information; he shall have no award of damages for the destruction of the property. The bill provides that the officials shall destroy the cattle. Yet, as we look further, we find that they shall not destroy them unless the owner consents; and then it provides that if the owner refuses to consent, the commission or its agent may draw around the home, the stock-yard, the farm, the neighborhood, or the town where the cattle are a strict quarantine. Already they will have been permitted to advertise it in the newspapers. And then this police line is drawn around the home, and the man finds himself compelled to take the sum of money which shall be awarded for the cattle and suffer their destruction, or submit to a greater calamity. It is advertised to the world, even if his cattle have been merely exposed to a diseased condition, which may be an ill-ventilated stable or an unclean yard in the opinion of the agents; the actual condition he can not have investigated by a court, and if he refuse to take the arbitrary sum allowed under the provisions of this bill, the police cordon is drawn around his home, his farm, his stock-yard, and his business is ruined.

Sir, we have a provision of the Constitution that no person shall be deprived of his property without due process of law; but this law provides that property of great value can be seized and the owner forced to accept an arbitrary and enforced compensation; the property is not destroyed as a public nuisance; it is not destroyed because it is poisonous so far as health is concerned; a nuisance is not to be abated under that general police power which gives the right to destroy in some cases because disease or death may follow if property is not destroyed, because of the stern necessities of the case; they do not propose to take property for the use of the public by the right of eminent domain, but to enforce by arbitrary law and rules a purchase for destruction. And do the gentlemen tell us that this is taking property by due process of law? When and how is there a trial provided by law to determine the condition of the animals as to whether they are diseased or not, or have even been exposed to disease? By what legal proceeding is the value of the animals determined, and what hearing upon the questions to be determined is provided the owner at which he may appear with his witnesses?

The chairman of the committee has told us that many millions are involved—a nation's wealth. A million dollars' worth may be involved in one seizure under the provisions of this bill if it becomes a law; perhaps not in the case of one particular man, but $10,000, $15,000, $20,000, or $100,000; and I know of cases in which that might be the amount involved, which may be fenced in by this police system, and the owner of the cattle be compelled to take the arbitrary sum fixed by the board or its agents; have it advertised to the country that his premises are infected by disease, and he be denied the right to have one of the cattle removed from his farm, and thus be compelled to take the arbitrary sum or appraisement, which may not be the true value of the cattle.

Whenever private property is taken by our Government it must be taken at its true value, and the values of property as between individuals and government are to be measured by judicial methods and in judicial proceedings. Here in this proposed statute, under an arbitrary rule as to value, which obviously is not the correct one, the assessment is made, and under pains and penalties the party who owns the domestic animals is compelled to accept it or be ruined in his business.

I said at the outset that the power to enact this bill into a law is supposed to be found in that provision of the Constitution of the United States giving Congress the power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and between the States.

Mr. DAWES. I should like to get a little insight into the provisions of the bill, if it will not interrupt the Senator.

Mr. HISCOCK. It will not.

Mr. DAWES. I see that the Senator from New York understands it very well, and I wish to make an inquiry of him. He has described the sad condition of things when the owner of a large herd of cattle has had his cattle surrounded by a quarantine because he would not take an arbitrary sum. I should like to inquire who is to maintain them while they are so quarantined.

Mr. HISCOCK. I suppose, as a matter of course, they are to be maintained by the owner of the property, as in all other cases of quarantined animals.

Mr. DAWES. For how long a time?

Mr. HISCOCK. I do not know that. It may be six months or a year. That adds to the seriousness of the proposition. The man's stock will be fenced in to be supported at his expense. It may be for a month, six months, or a year. All that is in the discretion of this board or its agents.

I think I have heard it said by very eminent authority in respect to this bill that the right to quarantine should exist for one year. I think I have heard an opinion expressed by some one upon the Agricultural Committee that no shorter period of time should be accepted.

But, as I was about to say, the provisions of this bill are sought to be maintained under that provision of the Constitution which gives to Congress the right to regulate commerce with foreign nations and between the States. Yet the bill is not limited in its operations to domestic animals that are the subject of barter and trade in interstate or foreign commerce. The provisions of the bill apply to a herd of cattle as to which the owner has not contemplated the disposition of them and their transfer to another State or country. They may be located hundreds of miles from the State line, and it may be absolutely foreign to the purpose of their owner to ever make them the subject of interstate commerce; and yet the right of search exists as to the man's premises, the right to quarantine exists as to the man's farm, the power exists to coerce him into taking the price that shall be fixed under the provisions of the bill by this commission or its agents, all that applies to him, and in addition to that, by proclamation printed in the public papers, it may be announced that his premises are infected.

The denial of all judicial rights and of an appeal to the courts applies to any and every individual in the country, whether engaged in interstate commerce or not. My argument is addressed to the feature that the property so far as the proprietor is concerned is not subject to interstate or foreign commercial regulations; the owner expects to hold and own or kill it, if you please, upon the farm on which he lives; it is clear to me that that provision of the Constitution is not intended as a warrant for the provisions contained in this bill I have discussed, and I am not forced to contest them as applying to interstate or foreign commerce.

Mr. President, I have gone through with the bill hastily and pointed out the prominent constitutional points involved in it. There are more, not, perhaps, as grave or as widespreading in their effects as those, but in my judgment serious and involving a construction of the provisions of our Constitution.

We have been told that there has been a popular clamor for the bill. It hardly seems to me that such can be the case when I turn to the admirable letter which has been read here, signed by the Commissioner of Agriculture, in which he declares that—

> The Legislatures of seven States have provided by legislation for co-operation between the United States and their respective live-stock commissions. These States are Michigan, Kentucky, Delaware, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, and Tennessee. Six States have passed special statutes for co-operation, making the officers of the Bureau of Animal Industry State officers, and conferring upon them the power of investigation, quarantine, and condemnation of animals in their respective States. They are Virginia, Illinois, New York, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island. In addition, special agreements of co-operation have been made with the authorities of the States of New Jersey, Maryland, and Pennsylvania.

It is unnecessary for me to refer in this connection to the present provisions of national law which reach to the very limits of the constitutional power of Congress, in my opinion, now upon our statute-book. We are advised by this letter that the great States named under the provisions of that law are now co-operating with the Commissioner of Agriculture in stamping out disease among domestic animals. A little further on in the letter of the Commissioner I read this:

> During the past year the bureau has stamped out a serious outbreak that existed in Cook County, in the State of Illinois. It has also stamped out outbreaks in the counties of Delaware and Washington, in the State of New York. It has eradicated the disease from the counties of Howard, Carroll, and Prince George's, in the State of Maryland, and has likewise suppressed small outbreaks in Elizabeth City County, Virginia, and Kent County, Maryland, which had been introduced by the importation of diseased cattle from the city of Baltimore, Md. The disease of pleuro-pneumonia has thus been confined by the bureau to three large centers, namely, Jersey City and vicinity, in the State of New Jersey; New York and vicinity, in the State of New York; and Baltimore and vicinity, in the State of Maryland.

I have not heard a suggestion that the allegation in this letter, made by the Commissioner of Agriculture, is challenged anywhere; yet with all the States co-operating where the disease exists we are asked to pass this bill, in which are involved the great constitutional questions which I have briefly outlined, giving to the agents appointed by these commissioners vast inquisitorial and police powers and the power to enforce a purchase and destruction of property, and I may add to this, on the merits of the bill, by connivance and fraud to purchase all of the stock in the stock-yards in our large cities—in New York, Baltimore, Albany, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago—under the pretext that it is diseased.

For some reason, which I do not understand, the bill gives to this bureau (not to the Commissioner of Agriculture, at the head of the department, for he is only made a consulting officer in respect to its duties) the responsibility of making officers. They are called "agents." The power of appointment is taken from the Commissioner; it is upon the nomination of this other board that they are to be appointed.

Mr. PLUMB. Will the Senator permit me to call his attention to section 476 of the Revised Statutes?

Mr. HISCOCK. Certainly.

Mr. PLUMB. It reads as follows:

> SEC. 476. There shall be in the Patent Office a Commissioner of Patents, one assistant commissioner, and three examiners-in-chief, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. All other officers, clerks, and employés authorized by law for the office shall be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior, upon the nomination of the Commissioner of Patents.

I refer to that simply to show that the proposition made in the bill has a parallel at all events in existing law, which I think has not been seriously questioned.

Mr. HISCOCK. Certainly it seems to have in that particular instance.

Mr. DAWES. I remember a similar provision was inserted in the civil-service act, and the President of the United States considered that as imperative, and sent his nominations to the Senate for approval.

Mr. HISCOCK. I have no doubt that there are many provisions of the statutes in reference to the creation of subordinate officers, placing the power of appointment where it does not rest under the Constitution, which have never been criticized. It is, however, time for criticism when a bureau is to be launched upon the country, as this is proposed to be, with its vast powers, and when such careful pains are taken to limit the authority of the Commissioner of Agriculture in reference to the appointment of its officers.

I may here allude to the fact, and I call the attention of the Senator from Kansas to it, as the bill came here from the Committee on Agriculture the power to appoint was vested in the new bureau—they to have it absolutely; and I am almost warranted in suggesting that to bring the case within some statute which has been previously passed the amendment has been reported by the committee, which has been adopted as a committee amendment to-day.

I have not attempted to more than briefly point out the constitutional objections to the bill, and I have not attempted at any great length to discuss the merits of the bill. It seems to me that before a measure of this kind is discussed upon the merits it should be examined with reference to the constitutional questions which are involved in it. They are grave and serious, as will be conceded by every Senator present. Therefore I suggest that the bill be referred to the Committee on "The Judiciary," and before we proceed to discuss the merits of the bill let it come to us, with the opinion of that committee as to the constitutionality of the provisions to which I have briefly called the attention of the Senate, that we may have their report as our guide, after their examination of these grave questions.

I know, sir, that there is a constant disposition on the part of the law-making power, so far as many questions are involved, not to inquire too critically into the constitutional powers of Congress. They are passed over lightly. But here are presented questions than which in my judgment no more serious one has come before Congress for more than two decades, and upon them the Law Committee of the Senate should give its opinion. If that committee holds that these provisions are constitutional, then it will be time enough to discuss the bill on its merits. It seems to me that that high authority should be invoked in the examination of the bill. Therefore, sir, I move that this bill be referred to the Committee on "The Judiciary" with instructions to report upon the constitutional questions involved in it.

Mr. COKE. Mr. President, I rise for the purpose of suggesting to the Senator from Michigan, who has this bill in charge, that, in view of the fact that a great many amendments to it have been adopted, in order that the Senate may vote intelligently upon the motion of the Senator from New York the bill be passed over now and printed, and called up again on Monday for further consideration.

Mr. FRYE. Before the Senator's suggestion is acted upon I desire to offer an amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair will state the motions which have been made. The Senator from New York [Mr. HISCOCK] moves to commit the bill to the Committee on the Judiciary with instructions. The Senator from Texas [Mr. COKE] moves to postpone the further consideration of the bill until Monday.

Mr. COKE. And that it be printed as amended.

Mr. FRYE. I desire to offer one or two amendments to this bill; and in order to explain the amendments, I ask the Secretary to read the part of the letter that I have marked, which I send to the desk. It is a letter from Mr. Burleigh, of the State of Maine, who is one of the most intelligent, successful, and experienced cattle-raisers in the country. Let the Secretary read where I have marked.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

The inclosed so-called "Palmer bill" I consider the best of anything that has as yet come before Congress for the better protection of our herds. But allow me to say that from my standpoint I do not consider it perfect. One of the most subtile, most insidious diseases known among our herds, one that causes the most loss, although so little known to veterinary science until within a very few years, is tuberculosis. It seems to me that this dreaded and incurable disease should have more prominence in the bill. You will recall to mind that no longer ago than April, 1886, the whole Maine State Agricultural College herd of fifty-one cattle were entirely destroyed by having this disease (tuberculosis), and every herd in the State where individual animals from this herd had been kept for any considerable length of time were found more or less affected with the disease.

Another instance was the "Hamilton herd," in Garland, Penobscot County, where thirty cattle contracted the disease from two Jersey cows brought from Massachusetts. It is estimated upon good authority that not less than fifty thousand innocent children are annually sent to their graves in American cities alone from the use of milk from tuberculosed cows, while the meat, as well as the milk of such animals, may also convey the disease to adults. It is my honest opinion, although the disease is not so contagious as pleuro-pneumonia, yet from the fact that it is so insidious in its nature, and certainty of heredity, the loss in money values alone in the herds of America are ten times as much as all other contagious diseases among the bovine race or so-called cattle, not including horses. This disease it not sectional, but national. Germs of the disease will be found where closely inbred cattle have been disseminated; more generally found among Jerseys and shorthorns, as they have been very largely inbred.

I think I have written enough to give you my idea on "tuberculosis," but think there should be included and named among the other diseases glanders in horses. It would surprise you to know the extent of this dreaded disease and loss thereby in our country. Horses afflicted with glanders are shipped from one State to another by unscrupulous men and sold to the unsuspecting, thereby spreading the disease broadcast over the land. Our State commissioners have met with a great deal of trouble from this source, entailing a loss of thousands of dollars to the State.

Mr. FRYE. The gentleman proposes three amendments to this bill, to which I desire to call the attention of the chairman of the committee. On page 2, section 1, line 11, after the word "pleuro-pneumonia," I move to insert "and tuberculosis."

Mr. PALMER. The chairman will accept that.

Mr. FRYE. On page 3, section 2, line 16, after "pleuro-pneumonia," I move to insert "tuberculosis."

Mr. PALMER. I accept that.

Mr. FRYE. And in section 2, line 17, after the word "rinderpest," I move to insert "glanders in horses."

Mr. PALMER. Accepted.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If there be no objection, these amendments will be regarded as agreed to. The Sena tor from Texas [Mr COKE] moves that the further consideration of the bill be postponed until Monday next.

Mr. PALMER. I will ask the Senator from Texas to make it the special order for Thursday next at 2 o'clock, if he will amend his motion.

Mr. COKE. I have no objection to that.

Mr. PALMER. That will give every one time to look over the bill, and possibly there will be further amendments.

Mr. COKE. I also asked that the bill as amended be printed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator from Texas accept the suggestion of the Senator from Michigan?

Mr. COKE. I do.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Texas moves that the bill be printed as amended and made the special order for Thursday next at 2 o'clock.

The motion was agreed to, two-thirds of the Senators present voting in the affirmative.

Mr. PALMER. I should like to ask if the motion to reprint was included in the motion of the Senator from Texas.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That order has been made.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. BLAIR, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2283) granting a pension to James Anderson, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. SPOONER, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 4909) for the relief of the estate of C. M. Briggs, deceased, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. CALL introduced a bill (S. 2627) granting land warrants to soldiers and sailors in the United States service in the Seminole Indian war of 1856, their widows and orphans; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2628) granting a pension to David Eells; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2629) to pension Bartola Thebant, a soldier in the Florida Seminole Indian war of 1849 and 1850; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BUTLER introduced a bill (S. 2630) granting a pension to N. H. Guyton; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2631) granting a pension to Clarence Brown; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. TOWLES, Chief Clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the President pro tempore:

A bill (H. R. 3) to remove the political disabilities of William W. Mackall, of Virginia;

A bill (H. R. 8808) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for holding terms of United States courts of Vicksburg, Miss."; and

A bill (H. R. 4472) for a public building at Helena, Ark.

ADMISSION OF DAKOTA.

Mr. PLATT. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 185, Calendar No. 114, and I desire to say, this being the Dakota bill, that if it shall be taken up I do not wish this afternoon to interfere with any formal business other Senators may have.

Mr. BUTLER. I shall be very glad to aid the Senator from Connecticut in taking up the bill with the understanding that it is not to be proceeded with now.

Mr. PLATT. I do not care to proceed with the consideration of the bill to-day, but I want to make it the unfinished business.

Mr. BUTLER. After that bill is taken up I shall ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of House bill 1805. I merely give the notice now.

Mr. CULLOM. I desire to move that House bill No. 742 be taken up either pending the motion of the Senator from Connecticut or after that motion is agreed to.

Mr. PLATT. Let my motion be put first.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair will put the question on the motion of the Senator from Connecticut that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 185) to provide for the admission of the State of Dakota into the Union and for the organization of the Territory of Lincoln.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The pending business will be informally laid aside, the Chair understands, by consent.

Mr. PLATT. I have no objection for this afternoon.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT GREENVILLE, S. C.

Mr. BUTLER. I ask that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House bill No. 1805, Order of Business 817. It will merely involve the necessity of reading the bill.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 1805) for a public building at Greenville, S. C.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN F. CADWALLADER.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House bill 742.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 742) for the relief of John F. Cadwallader. It directs the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to John F. Cadwallader $462.75, for services rendered in writing up back records of the district court of the United States for the southern district of Illinois.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT TEXARKANA.

Mr. COKE. I move that the Senate take up for consideration Order of Business 696, House bill 7262.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 7262) for the erection of a public building at Texarkana, situated on both sides of the line between the States of Arkansas and Texas.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

NEW YORK HARBOR.

Mr. EDMUNDS and Mr. EVARTS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I will yield to my friend from New York [Mr. EVARTS], who says that the bill he has in hand has been once up and was cut off by an accident. After that, I must call for the regular order, although I have a very important disability bill that I wish very much to report.

Mr. EVARTS. I ask that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of Order of Business 286, Senate bill 1241.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New York asks unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of a bill the title of which will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 1241) to prevent obstructive and injurious deposits within the harbor and adjacent waters of New York City, by dumping or otherwise, and to punish and prevent such offenses, and making other provisions in connection therewith.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair hears no objection. This bill having been previously considered by the Senate in Committee of the Whole and the amendments agreed to, are there further amendments to the bill in Committee of the Whole?

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title of the bill was amended so as to read: "A bill to prevent obstructive and injurious deposits within the harbor and adjacent waters of New York City, by dumping or otherwise, and to punish and prevent such offenses."

COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION AND LABOR.

Mr. BLAIR submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Education and Labor be authorized to employ a stenographer for the purpose of reporting the hearings before it upon Sunday-observance petitions and the proposed prohibition constitutional amendment, who shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, and to have the reports of said hearings printed for the use of the Senate.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. EDMUNDS. Now I call for the regular order.

Mr. DAWES. I should like to have the Senate, for a reason which seems to me to justify it, take up Order of Business No. 853, a House bill for the erection of a building at the armory in Springfield.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Massachusetts asks unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 5639) for erection of a fire-proof workshop at the National Armory.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I ask for the regular order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The regular order is demanded.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

RED RIVER BRIDGES.

Mr. VEST. Will the Senator from Illinois allow me to make a motion to have a bill recalled from the House of Representatives?

Mr. CULLOM. I will yield for that purpose.

Mr. VEST. I move that Senate bill No. 1498, which passed the Senate and went to the House of Representatives, be recalled. The House has passed another bill on the same subject and sent it to us.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the Senator state the title?

Mr. VEST. A bill (S. 1498) granting to the city of Grand Forks, Dak., the right to build two free bridges at said city across the Red River. I think it was passed about a week ago.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. This bill passed the Senate on the 22d of March. The Senator from Missouri moves that it be recalled from the House of Representatives.

Mr. EDMUNDS. What is the title of the bill?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The title of the bill will be stated.

Mr. VEST. It is the bill (S. 1498) granting to the city of Grand Forks, Dak., the right to build two free bridges at said city across the Red River.

Mr. EDMUNDS. There is no objection to calling back the bill.

Mr. VEST. The House have passed a bill on the same subject.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If there be no objection an order recalling the bill will be made. The Chair hears no objection.

ADMISSION OF DAKOTA.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senate resumes the consideration of the unfinished business, which is the bill (S. 185) to provide for the admission of the State of Dakota into the Union, and for the organization of the Territory of Lincoln.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. PALMER. Will the Senator from Illinois withdraw his motion for a moment till I ask an order? I move that 500 extra copies of the bill (S. 2083) to provide for the establishment of a bureau of animal industry, and to facilitate the exportation of live-stock and their products, to extirpate contagious pleuro-pneumonia, and other diseases among domestic animals, and for other purposes, with the amendments, be printed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That order will be made if there be no objection. The Senator from Illinois moves that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After eight minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 4 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until Monday, April 9, 1888, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate April 6, 1888.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE ARMY.

Major-General.

Brig. Gen. George Crook, April 6, 1888, vice Terry, retired from active service.

Brigadier-General.

Col. John R. Brooke, of the Third Infantry, April 6, 1888, vice Crook, appointed major-general.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate April 2, 1888.

COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

Whitfield Walker, of Florida, to be collector of internal revenue for the district of Florida.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

Medical Department.

Ogden Rafferty, of New Jersey, to be assistant surgeon with the rank of first lieutenant.

Capt. Joseph B. Girard, assistant surgeon, to be surgeon.

First Regiment of Cavalry.

First Lieut. Peter S. Bomus, to be captain.

Second Lieut. Frederick S. Foltz, to be first lieutenant.

Nineteenth Regiment of Infantry.

First Lieut. Charles B. Hall, to be captain.

Second Lieut. Francis H. French, to be first lieutenant.

POSTMASTERS.

John T. Williamson, to be postmaster at Columbia, in the county of Maury and State of Tennessee.

Frederick P. Carruth, to be postmaster at Orange, in the county of Franklin and State of Massachusetts.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate April 6, 1888.

RECEIVERS OF PUBLIC MONEYS.

E. Nelson Fitch, of Ludington, Mich., to be receiver of public moneys at Grayling (formerly Reed City), Mich.

Francis T. Anderson, of Del Norte, Colo., to be receiver of public moneys at Del Norte, Colo.

REGISTER OF LAND OFFICE.

Andrew D. Duff, of Phœnix, Ariz., to be register of the land office at Tucson, Ariz.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY April 4, 1888.

[CALENDAR DAY April 6, 1888.]

The recess having expired, the House (at 11 o'clock and 45 minutes a. m. Friday, April 6), resumed its session.

The SPEAKER called the House to order.

Mr. REED. Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will lay before the House certain personal requests.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. JACKSON, by unanimous consent, obtained indefinite leave of absence on account of important business.

COMMITTEE PRINTING.

By unanimous consent, the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries was given leave to have documents printed for the use of the committee upon the order of the chairman.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The question is upon the motion made by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MCMILLIN], that when the House adjourns it adjourn to meet on Saturday next.

Mr. WEAVER. I move that the House take a recess until 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The SPEAKER. The motion to adjourn, or to fix the day to which the House will adjourn, has priority over the motion for a recess.

Mr. WEAVER. Does the pending motion fix the day?

The SPEAKER. It does.

Mr. WEAVER. What day is named?

The SPEAKER. The motion is that when the House adjourns it adjourn to meet on Saturday. Upon that motion——

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, on Wednesday, when the gentleman in charge of this bill asked to have the debate limited, those who were in accord with myself in opposition to it asked for three hours for general debate on our side of the question, and we were met with a counter proposition, to the effect that if that were granted we must agree that the previous question should stand as ordered on the bill and amendments at 5 o'clock. To that we declined to assent, because it was in advance of the proper stage of the bill for such a proposition, because we did not think the point had been reached for the discussion of that question. Then the motion was made by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR] to limit debate to one hour, which time might have been controlled by the gentleman or by the other friends of the bill; and then recourse was had to obstructive tactics. Now, in order that the House may proceed in the regular way, we propose that if the gentlemen on the other side will give us two hours of general debate in opposition to the bill it can proceed in the regular course, leaving the question of negotiation, if any is to be had, as to the future stages of it to be made or entered into when we reach those stages.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, the friends of this measure only ask that at some proper time an assurance of a final vote upon it can be had. Any proposition which includes that will be accepted by us with liberality with regard to the time that shall be consumed; but any other proposition, any proposition that does not include an agreement as to a finality can not be accepted by me, or by those who feel as I feel.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, that proposition, it seems to me, is one which would commit those who oppose the bill to its final passage without regard to whether any amendments shall be adopted or not. We do not propose——

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Allow me to say right in that connection that that is not my intention nor our intention. Abundant opportunity will be given for discussion and amendment; but to say that we will proceed one step with the possibility of dilatory motions at a later stage as extensive as those which have been made here for some time is nonsense to us, and we can not accept it.

Mr. REED. Nonsense to the other side, too. Do not leave them out.

Mr. OATES. If the gentleman requires us to say now that a final vote shall be had at a particular time, when he knows that he has the power to vote down any amendment which we may offer, that is a proposition to tie the enemies of this bill so that we shall have no opportunity for compromise, and that is a buldozing proposition which we will not accede to.

Mr. REED. What compromise do you want? Is it the cotton tax? Is that what you are fighting for?

Mr. OATES. If you proceed in the regular course you will see what we are fighting for.

Mr. REED. Oh, well, everybody can see it now.

Several MEMBERS. Regular order.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the pending motion that when the House adjourns it be to Saturday, so as to make it Monday next instead of Saturday.

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker, I want the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES] distinctly to understand that this side is willing to allow any time for debate that any reasonable man can ask for on the other side, and every opportunity for amendment which the rules of this House will allow. All we ask is that after the matter has been thoroughly debated to the full satisfaction of everybody on the other side, and after every amendment has been offered which ingenuity or the good wishes of anybody can originate, that then we shall have a vote on the bill.

Mr. OATES. Why do you ask that we shall commit ourselves to that now?

Mr. REED. Because your conduct is such that it is necessary you should commit yourselves in order to give us the assurance.

Mr. OATES. You asked it before you saw any such conduct, and you ask us now to put ourselves in an attitude where you can vote down with impunity any amendment that may be offered.

Mr. REED. With impunity! Why, a majority of the House can always vote down any amendment with impunity.

Several MEMBERS. Regular order.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend the amendment of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES] by striking out Monday and inserting Tuesday.

The SPEAKER. In the opinion of the Chair no amendments are now in order, for the reason that a vote was being taken yesterday on the proposition that when the House adjourns it adjourn to meet on Saturday next, and no quorum voted. Tellers were appointed and were in their places making the count when, by unanimous consent, the House agreed to take a recess until this morning. After the count, pending at the time of taking the recess yesterday, is disposed of amendments will of course be in order. [A pause.] The recollection of the Chair is refreshed by the Journal Clerk, who states that the point of "no quorum" was withdrawn. The Chair will therefore state the result of the vote. The noes have it: and the motion is not agreed to. The question now recurs on the motion of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR] that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union.

Mr. OATES. I move that the House take a recess until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend that motion by striking out "5" and inserting "6."

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I move to amend the amendment by striking out "6" and inserting "4."

The question being taken on the amendment of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, there were, on a division—ayes 7, noes 70.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

Mr. DIBBLE. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 7, nays 185, not voting 132; as follows:

YEAS—7.

Enloe,	Landes,	Neal,	Wheeler.
Hayes,	Lynch,	Washington,

NAYS—185.

Allen, Mass.	Dorsey.	Kerr,	Russell, Conn.
Allen, Mich.	Dunham,	Ketcham,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Ill.	Ermentrout,	Laffoon,	Ryan,
Atkinson,	Farquhar,	Lagan,	Sawyer,
Baker, N. Y.	Felton,	Laidlaw,	Scull,
Baker, Ill.	Finley,	Laird,	Seney,
Bayne,	Fitch,	Lane,	Seymour,
Belden,	Flood,	Lawler,	Shaw,
Blanchard,	Foran,	Lee,	Simmons,
Boothman,	Ford,	Lehlbach,	Snyder,
Bound,	Fuller,	Lind,	Sowden,
Boutelle,	Funston,	Long,	Springer,
Bowden,	Gallinger,	Lyman,	Stahlnecker,
Bowen,	Gear,	Macdonald,	Steele,
Brewer,	Gest,	Mahoney,	Stephenson,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Glass,	Mason,	Stewart, Vt.
Browne, Ind.	Glover,	Matson,	Stone, Ky.
Brown, Ohio	Goff,	McCormick,	Stone, Mo.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Greenman,	McCreary,	Symes,
Brumm,	Grosvenor,	McKenna,	Taulbee,
Bryce,	Grout,	McKinley,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Buchanan,	Hall,	McRae,	Thomas, Ky.
Buckalew,	Harmer,	Moffitt,	Thomas, Wis.
Bunnell,	Hatch,	Montgomery,	Tracey,
Burrows,	Haugen,	Morrill,	Townshend,
Campbell, Ohio	Hayden,	Morrow,	Vance,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hemphill,	Nelson,	Vandever,
Cannon,	Henderson, Iowa	Nichols,	Wade,
Caruth,	Henderson, N. C.	Nutting,	Walker,
Caswell,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Warner,
Cheadle,	Hermann,	O'Ferrall,	Weber,
Chipman,	Hitt,	O'Neill, Pa.	West,
Clark,	Hogg,	Osborne,	White, Ind.
Cogswell,	Holman,	Parker,	White, N. Y.
Conger,	Holmes,	Patton,	Whiting, Mich.
Cooper,	Hopkins, Ill.	Payson,	Whiting, Mass.
Cothran,	Hopkins, Va.	Perkins,	Wickham,
Cox,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Perry,	Wilber,
Crouse,	Houk,	Plumb,	Williams,
Culberson,	Hovey,	Post,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cummings,	Hudd,	Pugsley,	Woodburn,
Cutcheon,	Hunter,	Randall,	Yardley,
Dalzell,	Johnston, Ind.	Rayner,	Yoder,
Darlington,	Johnston, N. C.	Rice,	Yost.
De Lano,	Kean,	Romeis,
Dibble,	Kelley,	Rowell,
Dingley,	Kennedy,	Rowland,

NOT VOTING—132.

Abbott,	Collins,	Kilgore,	Phelps,
Adams,	Compton,	La Follette,	Pidcock,
Allen, Miss.	Cowles,	Lanham,	Reed,
Anderson, Iowa	Crain,	Latham,	Richardson,
Anderson, Miss.	Crisp,	Lodge,	Robertson,
Anderson, Kans.	Dargan,	Maffett,	Rockwell,
Arnold,	Davenport,	Maish,	Rogers,
Bacon,	Davidson, Ala.	Mansur,	Rusk,
Bankhead,	Davidson, Fla.	Martin,	Sayers,
Barnes,	Davis,	McAdoo,	Scott,
Barry,	Dockery,	McClammy,	Sherman,
Belmont,	Dougherty,	McComas,	Shively,
Biggs,	Dunn,	McCullogh,	Smith,
Bingham,	Elliott,	McKinney,	Spinola,
Bland,	Fisher,	McMillin,	Spooner,
Bliss,	Forney,	McShane,	Stewart, Tex.
Blount,	French,	Merriman,	Stewart, Ga.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Gaines,	Milliken,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Gay,	Mills,	Struble,
Brower,	Gibson,	Moore,	Tarsney,
Burnes,	Granger,	Morgan,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Burnett,	Grimes,	Morse,	Thomas, Ill.
Butler,	Guenther,	Newton,	Thompson, Ohio
Butterworth,	Hare,	Norwood,	Thompson, Cal.
Bynum,	Heard,	Oates,	Tillman,
Campbell, F., N.Y.	Herbert,	O'Neall, Ind.	Turner, Kans.
Candler,	Hiestand,	O'Neill, Mo.	Turner, Ga.
Carlton,	Hires,	Outhwaite,	Weaver,
Catchings,	Hooker,	Owen,	Whitthorne,
Clardy,	Howard,	Peel,	Wilkins,
Clements,	Hutton,	Penington,	Wilkinson,
Cobb,	Jackson,	Peters,	Wilson, Minn.
Cockran,	Jones,	Phelan,	Wise.

So the amendment of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, to fix 4 o'clock as the hour to which the House would take a recess, was rejected.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. STOCKDALE with Mr. JACKSON, for this day.

Mr. HUTTON with Mr. ANDERSON of Kansas, for this day.

Mr. LATHAM with Mr. O'NEALL of Indiana, on this bill. Mr. LATHAM would vote for the bill.

Mr. COOPER. I wish to state that, while I am paired generally with my colleague [Mr. OUTHWAITE] I am voting upon these questions, because he is in favor of this bill, as I am. The pair does not apply to this bill.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

LOCKS AND DAMS ON CUMBERLAND RIVER.

The SPEAKER. Upon joint resolution (H. Res. 81) to authorize the purchase of lands necessary for the construction of locks and dams on the Cumberland River, the Chair appointed as managers on the part of the House in the conference with the Senate the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD], the gentleman from Texas [Mr. STEWART], and the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HENDERSON]. By an error the Senate was notified that the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. HENDERSON] had been appointed one of the managers. If there be no objection, the Clerk will be directed to correct the error in the message to the Senate. The Chair hears no objection; and it is so ordered.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. CUMMINGS, by unanimous consent, obtained leave of absence for one day on account of important business.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

The SPEAKER. The question now recurs upon the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] to fix 6 o'clock this afternoon as the hour to which the House will take a recess.

Mr. MCMILLIN. I move to amend that amendment by inserting "four and a half o'clock."

The question having been put on agreeing to Mr. MCMILLIN'S amendment,

Mr. OATES called for a division.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 3, nays 180, not voting 141; as follows:

YEAS—3.

Hayes,	McMillin,	Neal.

NAYS—180.

Allen, Mich.	Bunnell,	Cummings,	Gallinger,
Atkinson,	Burrows,	Cutcheon,	Gear,
Baker, N. Y.	Butterworth,	Dalzell,	Gest,
Baker, Ill.	Campbell, F., N. Y.	Darlington,	Glass,
Bayne,	Campbell, Ohio	Davenport,	Glover,
Bliss,	Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	De Lano,	Goff,
Boothman,	Cannon,	Dibble,	Grosvenor,
Bound,	Caruth,	Dockery,	Grout,
Boutelle,	Caswell,	Dunham,	Guenther,
Bowden,	Cheadle,	Elliott,	Hall,
Bowen,	Chipman,	Ermentrout,	Harmer,
Brewer,	Clardy,	Farquhar,	Hatch,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Clark,	Finley,	Haugen,
Browne, Ind.	Cogswell,	Fitch,	Hayden,
Brown, Ohio	Conger,	Flood,	Hemphill,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Cooper,	Foran,	Henderson, Iowa
Brumm,	Cothran,	Ford,	Henderson, N. C.
Bryce,	Cox,	French,	Henderson, Ill.
Buchanan,	Crouse,	Fuller,	Hermann,
Buckalew,	Culberson,	Funston,	Hitt,
Hogg,	Long,	Parker,	Stephenson,
Holman,	Lyman,	Patton,	Stewart, Vt.
Holmes,	Lynch,	Payson,	Stone, Ky.
Hopkins, Ill.	Macdonald,	Peel,	Stone, Mo.
Hopkins, Va.	Mahoney,	Perkins,	Struble,
Hopkins, N. Y.	Mansur,	Perry,	Symes,
Houk,	Mason,	Plumb,	Taulbee,
Hovey,	McAdoo,	Post,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Hudd,	McCormick,	Pugsley,	Thomas, Ky.
Hunter,	McCreary,	Rayner,	Thomas, Wis.
Johnston, Ind.	McKenna,	Reed,	Tracey,
Johnston, N. C.	McKinley,	Rice,	Townshend,
Kean,	Merriman,	Romeis,	Vandever,
Kelley,	Moffitt,	Rowell,	Wade,
Kennedy,	Montgomery,	Rowland,	Walker,
Kerr,	Morgan,	Russell, Mass.	Warner,
Ketcham,	Morrill,	Sawyer,	Weber,
Laffoon,	Morrow,	Scull,	West,
La Follette,	Newton,	Seney,	White, N. Y.
Lagan,	Nichols,	Seymour,	Whiting, Mass.
Laidlaw,	Nutting,	Snyder,	Wickham,
Lawler,	O'Donnell,	Sowden,	Wilber,
Lee,	O'Ferrall,	Springer,	Wise,
Lehlbach,	O'Neill, Pa.	Stahlnecker,	Woodburn,
Lodge,	Osborne,	Steele,	Yost.

NOT VOTING—141.

Abbott,	Crain,	Lind,	Scott,
Adams,	Crisp,	Maffett,	Shaw,
Allen, Mass.	Dargan,	Maish,	Sherman,
Allen, Miss.	Davidson, Ala.	Martin,	Shively,
Anderson, Iowa.	Davidson, Fla.	Matson,	Simmons,
Anderson, Miss.	Davis,	McClammy,	Smith,
Anderson, Ill.	Dingley,	McComas,	Spinola,
Anderson, Kans.	Dorsey,	McCullogh,	Spooner,
Arnold,	Dougherty,	McKinney,	Stewart, Tex.
Bacon,	Dunn,	McRae,	Stewart, Ga.
Bankhead,	Enloe,	McShane,	Stockdale,
Barnes,	Felton,	Milliken,	Tarsney,
Barry,	Fisher,	Mills,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Belden,	Forney,	Moore,	Thomas, Ill.
Belmont,	Gaines,	Morse,	Thompson, Ohio
Biggs,	Gay,	Nelson,	Thompson, Cal.
Bingham,	Gibson,	Norwood,	Tillman,
Blanchard,	Granger,	Oates,	Turner, Kans.
Bland,	Greenman,	O'Neall, Ind.	Turner, Ga.
Blount,	Grimes,	O'Neill, Mo.	Vance,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Hare,	Outhwaite,	Washington,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Heard,	Owen,	Weaver,
Brower,	Herbert,	Penington,	Wheeler,
Burnes,	Hiestand,	Peters,	White, Ind.
Burnett,	Hires,	Phelan,	Whiting, Mich.
Butler,	Hooker,	Phelps,	Whitthorne,
Bynum,	Howard,	Pidcock,	Wilkins,
Candler,	Hutton,	Randall,	Wilkinson,
Carlton,	Jackson,	Richardson,	Williams,
Catchings,	Jones,	Robertson,	Wilson, Minn.
Clements,	Kilgore,	Rockwell,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cobb,	Laird,	Rogers,	Yardley,
Cockran,	Landes,	Russell, Conn.	Yoder.
Collins,	Lane,	Rusk,
Compton,	Lanham,	Ryan,
Cowles,	Latham,	Sayers,

So the House refused to take a recess until 4 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m.

During the roll-call the following proceedings took place:

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. MCCOOK, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment the joint resolution (H. Res. 140) appropriating the sum of $25,000 for the international exhibition in Barcelona, Spain.

Also that the Senate had passed a joint resolution (S. R. 68) authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the Military Academy at West Point José Andrés Urtecho, of Nicaragua.

Mr. TOWNSHEND. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the joint resolution of the Senate, just received, be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCCREARY in the chair). That can not be done during the roll-call.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

Mr. SOWDEN. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the names on the last roll-call.

Mr. OATES and Mr. LANDES objected.

The Clerk recapitulated the names of those voting.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER], which is that the House now take a recess until 6 o'clock to-day.

Mr. OATES. I move to amend by making it 4 o'clock.

The SPEAKER. That has just been voted upon.

Mr. OATES. I move to make it 4 o'clock and 4 minutes.

The question was taken, and the House proceeded to divide.

Mr. REED. I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 4, nays 181, not voting 139; as follows:

YEAS—4.

Anderson, Iowa	Landes,	Neal,	Stone, Mo.

NAYS—181.

Allen, Mass.	Dibble,	Hudd,	Reed,
Allen, Mich.	Dingley,	Johnston, Ind.	Romeis,
Atkinson,	Dockery,	Johnston, N. C.	Rowell,
Baker, N. Y.	Dorsey,	Kean,	Rowland,
Baker, Ill.	Dunham,	Kelley,	Russell, Conn.
Bayne,	Elliott,	Kennedy,	Rusk,
Belden,	Ermentrout,	Kerr,	Sawyer,
Bliss,	Farquhar,	Kilgore,	Scull,
Boothman,	Felton,	Lagan,	Seney,
Bound,	Finley,	Laidlaw,	Seymour,
Boutelle,	Fitch,	Lawler,	Shaw,
Bowden,	Flood,	Lee,	Shively,
Bowen,	Foran,	Lehlbach,	Simmons,
Brewer,	Ford,	Lind,	Snyder,
Brower,	French,	Lodge,	Sowden,
Browne, T.H.B., Va.	Fuller,	Long,	Springer,
Browne, Ind.	Funston,	Lyman,	Stahlnecker,
Brown, Ohio	Gallinger,	Lynch,	Steele,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Gay,	Macdonald,	Stewart, Vt.
Bryce,	Gear,	Mahoney,	Stone, Ky.
Buchanan,	Gest,	Mansur,	Struble,
Buckalew,	Glover,	Mason,	Symes,
Bunnell,	Goff,	Matson,	Taulbee,
Burrows,	Greenman,	McClammy,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Grosvenor,	McComas,	Thomas, Ky.
Campbell, Ohio	Grout,	McCormick,	Thomas, Wis.
Campbell, T.J., N.Y.	Guenther,	McCreary,	Tracey,
Caruth,	Hall,	McKenna,	Townshend,
Caswell,	Harmer,	McKinley,	Turner, Kans.
Cheadle,	Haugen,	Moffitt,	Vance,
Chipman,	Hayden,	Montgomery,	Vandever,
Clark,	Hemphill,	Morrill,	Wade,
Cogswell,	Henderson, Iowa	Morrow,	Walker,
Conger,	Henderson, N. C.	Nichols,	Warner,
Cooper,	Henderson, Ill.	Nutting,	Weber,
Cothran,	Hermann,	O'Donnell,	West,
Cox,	Hires,	O'Ferrall,	White, N. Y.
Crouse,	Hitt,	O'Neill, Pa.	Whiting, Mass.
Culberson,	Hogg,	Osborne,	Wickham,
Cummings,	Holman,	Parker,	Wilber,
Cutcheon,	Holmes,	Patton,	Woodburn,
Dalzell,	Hopkins, Ill.	Payson,	Yardley,
Darlington,	Hopkins, Va.	Perkins,	Yoder.
Davenport,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Plumb,
Davis,	Houk,	Post,
De Lano,	Hovey,	Pugsley,

NOT VOTING—139.

Abbott,	Cowles,	Maffett,	Rockwell,
Adams,	Crain,	Maish,	Rogers,
Allen, Miss.	Crisp,	Martin,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Miss.	Dargan,	McAdoo,	Ryan,
Anderson, Ill.	Davidson, Ala.	McCullogh,	Sayers,
Anderson, Kans.	Davidson, Fla.	McKinney,	Scott,
Arnold,	Dougherty,	McMillin,	Sherman,
Bacon,	Dunn,	McRae,	Smith,
Bankhead,	Enloe,	McShane,	Spinola,
Barnes,	Fisher,	Merriman,	Spooner,
Barry,	Forney,	Milliken,	Stephenson,
Belmont,	Gaines,	Mills,	Stewart, Tex.
Biggs,	Gibson,	Moore,	Stewart, Ga.
Bingham,	Glass,	Morgan,	Stockdale,
Blanchard,	Granger,	Morse,	Tarsney,
Bland,	Grimes,	Nelson,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Blount,	Hare,	Newton,	Thomas, Ill.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Hatch,	Norwood,	Thompson, Ohio
Breckinridge, Ky.	Hayes,	Oates,	Thompson, Cal.
Brumm,	Heard,	O'Neall, Ind.	Tillman,
Burnes,	Herbert,	O'Neill, Mo.	Turner, Ga.
Burnett,	Hiestand,	Outhwaite,	Washington,
Butler,	Hooker,	Owen,	Weaver,
Butterworth,	Howard,	Peel,	Wheeler,
Bynum,	Hunter,	Penington,	White, Ind.
Candler,	Hutton,	Perry,	Whiting, Mich.
Cannon,	Jackson,	Peters,	Whitthorne,
Carlton,	Jones,	Phelan,	Wilkins,
Catchings,	Ketcham,	Phelps,	Wilkinson,
Clardy,	Laffoon,	Pidcock,	Williams,
Clements,	La Follette,	Randall,	Wilson, Minn.
Cobb,	Laird,	Rayner,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cockran,	Lane,	Rice,	Wise,
Collins,	Lanham,	Richardson,	Yost.
Compton,	Latham,	Robertson,

So the amendment of Mr. OATES was rejected.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. DARGAN with Mr. ADAMS, until further notice.

Mr. WISE with Mr. MCRAE, on this bill.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri. Would it be in order now to submit a proposition for unanimous consent?

Mr. BROWNE, of Indiana. Regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The regular order is the question on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Iowa, which is that the House take a recess until 6 o'clock.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend that by making it 4 o'clock and 5 minutes.

Mr. HOPKINS, of New York, and Mr. BROWNE, of Indiana, demanded the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Before the Clerk proceeds to call the roll the Chair desires to lay before the House certain requests for leave of absence.

The gentleman from New York, Mr. FITCH, asks leave of absence for two days, on account of important business, and the gentleman from Connecticut, Mr. VANCE, for the same length of time, on account of important business.

Without objection, these requests will be granted.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

The question was taken on the amendment of Mr. OATES; and there were--yeas 2, nays 157, not voting 165; as follows:

YEAS—2.

	Kilgore,	Neal.

NAYS—157.

Allen, Mass.	Davenport,	Johnston, N. C.	Reed,
Allen, Mich.	De Lano,	Kean,	Romeis,
Anderson, Iowa	Dibble,	Kelley,	Rowell,
Atkinson,	Dingley,	Kennedy,	Rowland,
Baker, N. Y.	Dorsey,	Kerr,	Russell, Conn.
Baker, Ill.	Dunham,	Laffoon,	Sawyer,
Bayne,	Farquhar,	Laidlaw,	Scull,
Belden,	Foran,	Lehlbach,	Seney,
Blanchard,	French,	Lodge,	Seymour,
Bliss,	Fuller,	Long,	Shaw,
Boothman,	Gallinger,	Lyman,	Shively,
Bound,	Gay,	Lynch,	Snyder,
Boutelle,	Gear,	Macdonald,	Sowden,
Bowen,	Gest,	Maish,	Stahlnecker,
Brewer,	Glass,	Mason,	Steele,
Browne, T.H.B., Va.	Glover,	Matson,	Stewart, Vt.
Browne, Ind.	Goff,	McAdoo,	Stone, Ky.
Brown, Ohio	Greenman,	McClammy,	Stone, Mo.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Grosvenor,	McComas,	Struble,
Brumm,	Grout,	McCormick,	Taulbee,
Buckalew,	Hall,	McCreary,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Bunnell,	Harmer,	McKenna,	Thomas, Ky.
Butterworth,	Haugen,	McKinley,	Tracey,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hayden,	Milliken,	Turner, Kans.
Campbell, Ohio	Hemphill,	Moffitt,	Vance,
Caruth,	Henderson, Iowa	Montgomery,	Vandever,
Caswell,	Henderson, N. C.	Morrill,	Wade,
Cheadle,	Henderson, Ill.	Morrow,	Walker,
Chipman,	Hires,	Nichols,	Warner,
Clark,	Hitt,	Nutting,	Weber,
Cogswell,	Hogg,	O'Donnell,	West,
Compton,	Holman,	O'Ferrall,	Wickham,
Conger,	Holmes,	O'Neill, Pa.	Wilkinson,
Cooper,	Hopkins, Ill.	Osborne,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cothran,	Hopkins, Va.	Parker,	Yardley,
Crouse,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Patton,	Yoder,
Cummings,	Houk,	Perkins,	Yost.
Cutcheon,	Hovey,	Perry,
Dalzell,	Hunter,	Post.
Darlington,	Johnston, Ind.	Pugsley,

NOT VOTING—165.

Abbott,	Dargan,	Lanham,	Russell, Mass.
Adams,	Davidson, Ala.	Latham,	Rusk,
Allen, Miss.	Davidson, Fla.	Lawler,	Ryan,
Anderson, Miss.	Davis,	Lee,	Sayers,
Anderson, Ill.	Dockery,	Lind,	Scott,
Anderson, Kans.	Dougherty,	Maffett,	Sherman,
Arnold,	Dunn,	Mahoney,	Simmons,
Bacon,	Elliott,	Mansur,	Smith,
Bankhead,	Enloe,	Martin,	Spinola,
Barnes,	Ermentrout,	McCullogh,	Spooner,
Barry,	Felton,	McKinney,	Springer,
Belmont,	Finley,	McMillin,	Stephenson,
Biggs,	Fisher,	McRae,	Stewart, Tex.
Bingham,	Fitch,	McShane,	Stewart, Ga.
Bland,	Flood,	Merriman,	Stockdale,
Blount,	Ford,	Mills,	Symes,
Bowden,	Forney,	Moore,	Tarsney,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Funston,	Morgan,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Breckinridge, Ky.	Gaines,	Morse,	Thomas, Ill.
Brower,	Gibson,	Nelson,	Thomas, Wis.
Bryce,	Granger,	Newton,	Thompson, Ohio
Buchanan,	Grimes,	Norwood,	Thompson, Cal.
Burnes,	Guenther,	Oates,	Tillman,
Burnett,	Hare,	O'Neall, Ind.	Townshend,
Burrows,	Hatch,	O'Neill, Mo.	Turner, Ga.
Butler,	Hayes,	Outhwaite,	Washington,
Bynum,	Heard,	Owen,	Weaver,
Campbell, T.J., N.Y.	Herbert,	Payson,	Wheeler,
Candler,	Hermann,	Peel,	White, Ind.
Cannon,	Hiestand,	Penington,	White, N. Y.
Carlton,	Hooker,	Peters,	Whiting, Mich.
Catchings,	Howard,	Phelan,	Whiting, Mass.
Clardy,	Hudd,	Phelps,	Whitthorne,
Clements,	Hutton,	Pidcock,	Wilber,
Cobb,	Jackson,	Plumb,	Wilkins,
Cockran,	Jones,	Randall,	Williams,
Collins,	Ketcham,	Rayner,	Wilson, Minn.
Cowles,	La Follette,	Rice,	Wise,
Cox,	Lagan,	Richardson,	Woodburn.
Crain,	Laird,	Robertson,
Crisp,	Landes,	Rockwell,
Culberson,	Lane,	Rogers,

Mr. HENDERSON, of North Carolina. I desire to state that my colleague, Mr. BROWER, is absent on account of sickness.

The following additional pair was announced:

Mr. WHEELER with Mr. BUCHANAN, for this day.

The SPEAKER. On this vote the yeas are 2 and the nays 157.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

Mr. CRAIN. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question being put, the Speaker stated that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. CRAIN. I call for a division.

Several members called for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 14, nays 165, not voting 145; as follows:

YEAS—14.

Abbott,	Herbert,	Neal,	Washington,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Hooker,	Russell, Mass.	Wilson, W. Va.
Hatch,	Kilgore,	Shaw,
Hayes,	Landes,	Snyder,

NAYS—165.

Allen, Mass.	Elliott,	Lagan,	Reed,
Allen, Mich.	Farquhar,	Laidlaw,	Rice,
Atkinson,	Finley,	Laird,	Romeis,
Baker, N. Y.	Fitch,	Lee,	Rowell,
Baker, Ill.	Flood,	Lehlbach,	Rowland,
Bayne,	French,	Long,	Russell, Conn.
Blanchard,	Fuller,	Lyman,	Rusk,
Bliss,	Gallinger,	Lynch,	Ryan,
Boothman,	Gay,	Macdonald,	Sawyer,
Bound,	Gear,	Mahoney,	Scull,
Bowden,	Gest,	Mason,	Seney,
Bowen,	Gibson,	Matson,	Seymour,
Brewer,	Goff,	McAdoo,	Shively,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Greenman,	McClammy,	Sowden,
Browne, Ind.	Grosvenor,	McCormick,	Stahlnecker,
Brown, Ohio	Grout,	McCreary,	Steele,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Guenther,	McKenna,	Stephenson,
Brumm,	Hall,	McKinley,	Stone, Ky.
Bryce,	Harmer,	Milliken,	Struble,
Bunnell,	Haugen,	Moffitt,	Symes,
Butterworth,	Hayden,	Montgomery,	Taulbee,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hemphill,	Morrill,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Campbell, Ohio	Henderson, Iowa	Morrow,	Thomas, Ky.
Cannon,	Henderson, N. C.	Nelson,	Thomas, Wis.
Caruth,	Henderson, Ill.	Nichols,	Tracey,
Caswell,	Hermann,	Nutting,	Townshend,
Cheadle,	Hires,	O'Donnell,	Turner, Kans.
Chipman,	Hitt,	O'Ferrall,	Vandever,
Clark,	Hogg,	O'Neill, Pa.	Wade,
Cogswell,	Holman,	Osborne,	Walker,
Compton,	Hopkins, Ill.	Owen,	Warner,
Conger,	Hopkins, Va.	Parker,	Weber,
Cooper,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Patton,	West,
Cothran,	Houk,	Payson,	White, Ind.
Cox,	Hovey,	Peel,	Whiting, Mass.
Crouse,	Hunter,	Perkins,	Wickham,
Cummings,	Johnston, Ind.	Perry,	Williams,
Darlington,	Johnston, N. C.	Plumb,	Woodburn,
Davis,	Kennedy,	Post,	Yardley.
Dibble,	Kerr,	Pugsley,
Dingley,	Laffoon,	Randall,
Dorsey,	La Follette,	Rayner,

NOT VOTING 145.

Adams,	Crain,	Kelley,	Rogers,
Allen, Miss.	Crisp,	Ketcham,	Sayers,
Anderson, Iowa	Culberson,	Lane,	Scott,
Anderson, Miss.	Cutcheon,	Lanham,	Sherman,
Anderson, Ill.	Dalzell,	Latham,	Simmons,
Anderson, Kans.	Dargan,	Lawler,	Smith,
Arnold,	Davenport,	Lind,	Spinola,
Bacon,	Davidson, Ala.	Lodge,	Spooner,
Bankhead,	Davidson, Fla.	Maffett,	Springer,
Barnes,	De Lano,	Maish,	Stewart, Tex.
Barry,	Dockery,	Mansur,	Stewart, Ga.
Belden,	Dougherty,	Martin,	Stewart, Vt.
Belmont,	Dunham,	McComas,	Stockdale,
Biggs,	Dunn,	McCullogh,	Stone, Mo.
Bingham,	Enloe,	McKinney,	Tarsney,
Bland,	Ermentrout,	McMillin,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Blount,	Felton,	McRae,	Thomas, Ill.
Boutelle,	Fisher,	McShane,	Thompson, Ohio
Breckinridge, Ky.	Foran,	Merriman,	Thompson, Cal.
Brower,	Ford,	Mills,	Tillman,
Buchanan,	Forney,	Moore,	Turner, Ga.
Buckalew,	Funston,	Morgan,	Vance,
Burnes,	Gaines,	Morse,	Weaver,
Burnett,	Glass,	Newton,	Wheeler,
Burrows,	Glover,	Norwood,	White, N. Y.
Butler,	Granger,	Oates,	Whiting, Mich.
Bynum,	Grimes,	O'Neall, Ind	Whitthorne,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hare,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilber,
Candler,	Heard,	Outhwaite,	Wilkins,
Carlton,	Hiestand,	Penington,	Wilkinson,
Catchings,	Holmes,	Peters,	Wilson, Minn.
Clardy,	Howard,	Phelan,	Wise,
Clements,	Hudd,	Phelps,	Yoder,
Cobb,	Hutton,	Pidcock,	Yost.
Cockran,	Jackson,	Richardson,
Collins,	Jones,	Robertson,
Cowles,	Kean,	Rockwell,

So the House refused to adjourn.

Mr. NELSON. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the recapitulation of the names.

Mr. WEAVER. I object.

The names of members voting were read.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

The SPEAKER. There are on the table a number of executive communications which ought to go to committees. If there be no objection, the Chair will lay them before the House.

There was no objection.

COLLECTION OF CUSTOMS REVENUE.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, asking for an additional appropriation to pay for the collection of the revenue from customs for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1888; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

INTERCHANGE OF PARLIAMENTARY PUBLICATIONS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of State, transmitting a copy of a note to that Department from the British minister, communicating a proposal from the Government of the Dominion of Canada for a direct exchange of parliamentary publications; which was referred to the Committee on the Library, and ordered to be printed.

BAR IN COLUMBIA RIVER.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting letters from the Chief of Engineers and commanding general of the Department of the Columbia, relative to a bar in the Columbia River; which was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

BINDING FOR WAR DEPARTMENT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War in relation to the binding of books, etc., for the War Department; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

HETTIE K. PAINTER.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (H. R. 3839) granting a pension to Hettie K. Painter, with Senate amendments, and a request for a conference; which was referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PURCHASE OF UNITED STATES BONDS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (H. R. 5034) to provide for the purchase of United States bonds by the Secretary of the Treasury, with Senate amendments, and a request for a conference; which was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

SENATE RESOLUTION REFERRED.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the joint resolution (S. R. 68) authorizing the Secretary to receive for instruction at the Military Academy at West Point José Andres Urtecho, of Nicaragua; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. KILGORE, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found duly enrolled bills of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (H. R. 3) to remove the political disabilities of William W. Mackall, of Virginia;

A bill (H. R. 4472) for a public building at Helena, Ark.; and

A bill (H. R. 8808) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for holding terms of United States courts at Vicksburg, Miss."

THE CENSUS.

Mr. COX, by unanimous consent, from the Committee on the Census, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 1659) to provide for taking the eleventh and subsequent censuses; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the amendments and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. BROWER, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVALS.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, informed the House that the President had approved and signed bills of the following titles:

An act (H. R. 3508) for the relief of William G. Galloway, late captain Fifteenth, United States Army;

An act (H. R. 3749) for the relief of Frank Baker;

An act (H. R. 1481) making an appropriation to construct a road and approaches from Pineville, La., to the national military cemetery near that town;

An act (H. R. 1678) to authorize the purchase of a site for a public building at Buffalo, N. Y.; and

An act (H. R. 3191) granting a pension to Mary S. Logan.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

The SPEAKER. The question recurs on the motion of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES] that the House take a recess until five minutes after 4.

Mr. CRAIN. I move to amend so that the House shall take a recess until 4.15 p. m.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not think that that amendment is in order, because a vote was taken on the amendment of the gentleman from Alabama and a quorum was not present. The vote on that amendment will now be again taken.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 0, nays 166, not voting 158; as follows:

YEAS—0.

NAYS—166.

Allen, Mass.	De Lano,	Kerr,	Romeis,
Allen, Mich.	Dibble,	Ketcham,	Rowell,
Anderson, Iowa	Dingley,	Laffoon,	Rowland,
Atkinson,	Dunham,	La Follette,	Rusk,
Baker, N. Y.	Elliott,	Laidlaw,	Ryan,
Baker, Ill.	Farquhar,	Lehlbach,	Sawyer,
Bayne,	Finley,	Lodge,	Scull,
Bliss,	Fitch,	Long,	Seney,
Boothman,	Flood,	Lyman,	Seymour,
Bound,	Foran,	Lynch,	Shaw,
Boutelle,	Fuller,	Macdonald,	Shively,
Bowden,	Gallinger,	Mahoney,	Sowden,
Bowen,	Gay,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Brewer,	Gear,	Matson,	Steele,
Browne, T.H.B., Va.	Glass,	McClammy,	Stephenson,
Browne, Ind.	Glover,	McComas,	Stone, Ky.
Brown, Ohio	Goff,	McCormick,	Stone, Mo.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Greenman,	McKenna,	Struble,
Bryce,	Grosvenor,	McKinley,	Symes,
Buckalew,	Grout,	Milliken,	Tarsney,
Bunnell,	Hall,	Moffitt,	Taulbee,
Burnes,	Harmer,	Morrill,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Burrows,	Haugen,	Morrow,	Thomas, Ky.
Butterworth,	Hayden,	Neal,	Thomas, Wis.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hemphill,	Nelson,	Tracey,
Cannon,	Henderson, Iowa	Nichols,	Turner, Kans.
Caswell,	Henderson, N. C.	Nutting,	Vandever,
Cheadle,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Wade,
Chipman,	Hermann,	O'Ferrall,	Walker,
Clark,	Hires,	O'Neill, Pa.	Warner,
Compton,	Hitt,	Osborne,	Weber,
Conger,	Holman,	Parker,	West,
Cooper,	Holmes,	Patton,	White, Ind.
Cothran,	Hopkins, Ill.	Payson,	Whiting, Mass.
Cox,	Hopkins, Va.	Perkins,	Wickham,
Culberson,	Houk,	Perry,	Wilkinson,
Cummings,	Hovey,	Post,	Woodburn,
Cutcheon,	Hunter,	Pugsley,	Yardley,
Dalzell,	Johnston, Ind.	Randall,	Yoder,
Darlington,	Johnston, N. C.	Rayner,	Yost.
Davenport,	Kean,	Reed,
Davis,	Kennedy,	Rice,

NOT VOTING—158.

Abbott,	Crisp,	Laird,	Robertson,
Adams,	Crouse,	Landes,	Rockwell,
Allen, Miss.	Dargan,	Lane,	Rogers,
Anderson, Miss.	Davidson, Ala.	Lanham,	Russell, Conn.
Anderson, Ill.	Davidson, Fla.	Latham,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Kans.	Dockery,	Lawler,	Sayers,
Arnold,	Dorsey,	Lee,	Scott,
Bacon,	Dougherty,	Lind,	Sherman,
Bankhead,	Dunn,	Maffett,	Simmons,
Barnes,	Enloe,	Maish,	Smith,
Barry,	Ermentrout,	Mansur,	Snyder,
Belden,	Felton,	Martin,	Spinola,
Belmont,	Fisher,	McAdoo,	Spooner,
Biggs,	Ford,	McCreary,	Springer,
Bingham,	Forney,	McCullogh,	Stewart, Tex.
Blanchard,	French,	McKinney,	Stewart, Ga.
Bland,	Funston,	McMillin,	Stewart, Vt.
Blount,	Gaines,	McRae,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Gest,	McShane,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Breckinridge, Ky.	Gibson,	Merriman,	Thomas, Ill.
Brower,	Granger,	Mills,	Thompson, Ohio
Brumm,	Grimes,	Montgomery,	Thompson, Cal.
Buchanan,	Guenther,	Moore,	Tillman,
Burnett,	Hare,	Morgan,	Townshend,
Butler,	Hatch,	Morse,	Turner, Ga.
Bynum,	Hayes,	Newton,	Vance,
Campbell, Ohio	Heard,	Norwood,	Washington,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Herbert,	Oates,	Weaver,
Candler,	Hiestand,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wheeler,
Carlton,	Hogg,	O'Neill, Mo.	White, N. Y.
Caruth,	Hooker,	Outhwaite,	Whiting, Mich.
Catchings,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Owen,	Whitthorne,
Clardy,	Howard,	Peel,	Wilber,
Clements,	Hudd,	Penington,	Wilkins,
Cobb,	Hutton,	Peters,	Williams,
Cockran,	Jackson,	Phelan,	Wilson, Minn.
Cogswell,	Jones,	Phelps,	Wilson, W. Va.
Collins,	Kelley,	Pidcock,	Wise.
Cowles,	Kilgore,	Plumb,
Crain,	Lagan,	Richardson,

So the amendment was not agreed to.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. MANSUR with Mr. LANHAM, on this bill.

Mr. VANCE with Mr. FITCH, until further notice.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend so as to make the time 4 o'clock and 3 minutes.

The question was taken on the amendment; and there were—ayes 4, noes 62.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

The SPEAKER. The point being made that no quorum has voted, the Chair will appoint to act as tellers the gentleman from Alabama, Mr. OATES, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. BRUMM.

The House divided; and the tellers reported—ayes 1, noes 138.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

The motion was agreed to; and a call of the House was ordered.

The Clerk proceeded to call the roll; when the following-named members failed to answer:

Adams,	Dargan,	Maffett,	Scott,
Allen, Miss.	Davidson, Ala.	Maish,	Seney,
Anderson, Kans.	Dougherty,	Mansur,	Smith,
Arnold,	Ermentrout,	McCullogh,	Spinola,
Barry,	Felton,	McKinney,	Spooner,
Belmont,	Fisher,	Mills,	Stewart, Ga.
Bland,	Foran,	Morse,	Stockdale,
Brower,	Gaines,	O'Neill, Mo.	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Buchanan,	Granger,	Outhwaite,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnett,	Hayden,	Peters,	Thompson, Ohio
Butler,	Heard,	Phelps,	Thompson, Cal.
Cockran,	Herbert,	Pidcock,	White, N. Y.
Collins,	Hiestand,	Richardson,	Wilkins.
Cox,	Jackson,	Rockwell,
Cutcheon,	Jones,	Rogers,

Mr. MCADOO and Mr. TARSNEY appeared subsequently, and under the rule were recorded as present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will now call the names of the absentees. On this call excuses may be offered.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, did the first call develop the presence of a quorum?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed that 216 members have answered to their names.

Mr. TAULBEE. I move to dispense with all further proceedings under the call.

The motion was not agreed to.

The Clerk proceeded to call the names of absentees, as follows:

Mr. ADAMS: Excused.

Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi.

Mr. MORGAN. I ask that my colleague from Mississippi [Mr. ALLEN] be excused. He is sick in bed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed by the Clerk that Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi, has been excused.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas.

Mr. MORRILL. I ask that my colleague from Kansas [Mr. ANDERSON] be excused on account of sickness.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed that he has been excused.

Mr. ARNOLD: No excuse offered.

Mr. BARRY: No excuse offered.

Mr. BELMONT: No excuse offered.

Mr. BINGHAM: No excuse offered.

Mr. BLAND: No excuse offered.

Mr. BROWER: No excuse offered.

Mr. BUCHANAN: No excuse offered.

Mr. BURNETT: No excuse offered.

Mr. BUTLER: No excuse offered.

Mr. COCKRAN: No excuse offered.

Mr. COLLINS: No excuse offered.

Mr. COX: No excuse offered.

Mr. CUTCHEON.

Mr. GROSVENOR. I ask that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CUTCHEON] be excused on account of illness. He was here a couple of hours ago, but was not able to remain.

There being no objection, Mr. CUTCHEON was excused.

Mr. DARGAN: No excuse offered.

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Alabama: No excuse offered.

Mr. DOUGHERTY: Excused.

Mr. ERMENTROUT: No excuse offered.

Mr. FELTON: No excuse offered.

Mr. FISHER: No excuse offered.

Mr. FORAN: No excuse offered.

Mr. GAINES: No excuse offered.

Mr. GRANGER: No excuse offered.

Mr. HAYDEN: No excuse offered.

Mr. HEARD: No excuse offered. [Subsequently Mr. HEARD was excused.]

Mr. HERBERT: No excuse offered.

Mr. HIESTAND: No excuse offered.

Mr. JACKSON: No excuse offered.

Mr. JONES: No excuse offered.

Mr. MAFFETT: No excuse offered.

Mr. MAISH: No excuse offered.

Mr. MANSUR: No excuse offered.

Mr. MCCULLOGH: No excuse offered.

Mr. MCKINNEY: No excuse offered.

Mr. MILLS: Excused.

Mr. MORSE: No excuse offered.

Mr. O'NEILL, of Missouri: No excuse offered.

Mr. OUTHWAITE: No excuse offered.

Mr. PETERS: No excuse offered.

Mr. PHELPS: Excused.

Mr. PIDCOCK: No excuse offered.

Mr. RICHARDSON: No excuse offered.

Mr. ROCKWELL: No excuse offered.

Mr. ROGERS: Absent on leave.

Mr. SCOTT: No excuse offered.
Mr. SENEY: No excuse offered.
Mr. SMITH: No excuse offered.
Mr. SPINOLA: No excuse offered.
Mr. SPOONER: No excuse offered.
Mr. STEWART, of Georgia: No excuse offered.
Mr. STOCKDALE: No excuse offered.
Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR: No excuse offered.
Mr. THOMAS, of Illinois: Excused.
Mr. THOMPSON, of Ohio: No excuse offered.
Mr. THOMPSON, of California: No excuse offered.

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleague, Mr. THOMPSON, be excused, as he is quite sick. He was excused the day before yesterday.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. HATCH. Is it necessary for a gentleman who has been excused during this session to be excused again?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is of opinion that if the gentleman was excused for the remainder of the day he need not be excused again, as the legislative day has not expired.

Mr. MCRAE. I suppose that applies to other gentlemen who have been excused, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair so understands.

Mr. WHITE, of New York: No excuse offered.
Mr. WILKINS: No excuse offered.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I move that the Sergeant-at-Arms be directed to bring to the bar of the House absentees on this call who have not been excused.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CRISP). The Clerk will reduce the gentleman's motion to the form of a resolution. While that is being done the Chair will submit a personal request.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. HIRES desires leave of absence for five days, on account of important business.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If there be no objection, this request will be granted.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR objected, but subsequently withdrew his objection, and leave was granted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will read the resolution of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR].

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms take into custody and bring to the bar of the House such of its members as are now absent without the leave of the House.

Mr. MOORE. I ask that the gentleman from Mississippi, Mr. BARRY, be excused for to-day, on account of important business.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I object.

The question being taken on the resolution of Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR, it was agreed to, there being—ayes 127, noes 2.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I ask that my colleague, Mr. SIMMONS, be excused. He is absent from the House upon important business at one of the Departments.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from North Carolina asks that his colleague, Mr. SIMMONS, who is out of the House on important business, be excused. Is there objection?

Mr. REED and others objected.

Mr. DOCKERY. I am advised by the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. DIBBLE] that my colleague, Mr. HEARD, is detained from the House by sickness; and on that statement I ask that he be excused.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Has any gentleman personal knowledge that Mr. HEARD is sick?

Mr. DIBBLE. Yesterday Mr. HEARD, being sick, left here upon medical advice, as he told me. That is the basis on which this request is made. I hope it will be granted.

There being no objection, Mr. HEARD was excused.

Mr. ALLEN, of Massachusetts. I ask that my colleague, Mr. HAYDEN, be excused on account of sickness.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I have no objection to his being excused upon this call. I object to granting indefinite leave.

Mr. ALLEN, of Massachusetts. Then I ask that my colleague be excused on this call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. ALLEN]. The Chair hears none, and Mr. HAYDEN is excused upon this call.

[Mr. HAYDEN subsequently appeared voluntarily, and under the rule was recorded as present.]

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I move that my colleague, Mr. SIMMONS, be excused.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON] now puts his request in the form of a motion, and moves that his colleague, Mr. SIMMONS, be excused from attendance.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. On this call.

Mr. SOWDEN. On what ground?

The question being taken, the motion of Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina, was not agreed to, there being—ayes 53, noes 69.

Several MEMBERS. No quorum.

Mr. DIBBLE. No quorum is necessary.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Upon all questions incident to proceedings under a call the vote of a quorum is unnecessary.

[Mr. SIMMONS subsequently appeared voluntarily, and under the rule was recorded as present.]

Mr. BOWDEN. I ask that my colleague, Mr. GAINES, be excused. I have a telegram from him stating that he is detained unavoidably.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BOWDEN] asks that his colleague, Mr. GAINES, being now absent from the city, as the Chair understands, be excused.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I object.

Mr. LANHAM. On last Wednesday night my colleague, Mr. MILLS, was excused from attendance upon the night session. I understand this is still Wednesday, although some people understand it to be Friday. I would like to know whether the excuse granted in the case of Mr. MILLS is still valid.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed that Mr. MILLS has leave of absence.

Mr. REED. There would be no objection to excusing Mr. MILLS, as we all know he is not well.

Mr. LANHAM. I desired to ascertain whether the request was necessary.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. There is no objection to the application in the case of Mr. MILLS.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed that the gentleman from Texas, Mr. MILLS, has leave of absence.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I will inquire of the Chair whether it is not in order now to have the doors closed?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The doors were closed at the end of the first roll-call.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. They do not seem to be closed now. Some gentlemen are passing out.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Doorkeeper informs the Chair that the outside doors are closed.

Mr. HOGG. I move that further proceedings under the call be dispensed with.

The question being taken on the motion of Mr. HOGG, there were—ayes 17, noes 95.

Mr. HOGG called for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were not ordered.

So the motion of Mr. HOGG was not agreed to.

Mr. BACON. I ask that the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. BUCHANAN], the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BYNUM], and the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. SMITH] be excused on this roll-call, as they are in the room of the Committee on Manufactures, engaged in the examination of witnesses in an investigation ordered by the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair understands that the committee named has leave to sit during the sessions of the House.

Mr. BACON. If that excuses those gentlemen, all right.

The Sergeant-at-Arms appeared at the bar, having in custody, under the order of the House, Mr. WHITE of New York, Mr. MANSUR of Missouri, and Mr. ERMENTROUT of Pennsylvania.

The SPEAKER. Mr. WHITE, you have been absent from the sitting of the House without its leave. What excuse have you to offer?

Mr. WHITE, of New York. Mr. Speaker, after a protracted fast I went out to get a lunch, and on my return I was arrested by the Sergeant-at-Arms inside of the Hall.

The SPEAKER. What action will the House take?

Mr. KEAN. I move that the gentleman from New York be excused.

The SPEAKER (after putting the question). The "noes" seem to have it. [Laughter.]

Mr. KEAN. I demand a division.

The SPEAKER (those in favor of excusing Mr. WHITE rising in the affirmative). The ayes evidently have it, and the gentleman is therefore excused. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER. Mr. MANSUR, you have been absent from the sitting of the House without its leave. What excuse have you to offer?

Mr. MANSUR. Well, sir, at half-past 2 [laughter and cries of "Louder!"] I thought the House could filibuster without as well as with me, and so I went to the Departments to look after matters in which my constituents were interested and which I did not have the opportunity to attend to previously. On my return to the House I was arrested by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Mr. HATCH. I move that my colleague be excused.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. Mr. ERMENTROUT, you have been absent from the sitting of the House without its leave. What excuse have you to offer?

Mr. ERMENTROUT. I took advantage of the dead-lock to attend to some matters at the Departments for my constituents, and on my return was taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms after I had reached the Hall.

Mr. HATCH. I make the point, Mr. Speaker, that under the amended rules the Sergeant-at-Arms had no right to arrest either one of these gentlemen, they having returned and were in the Hall or on their way to the Hall when they were taken into custody.

The SPEAKER. Under the amended rules members who voluntarily appear shall, unless otherwise directed by the House, be admitted, and shall report their names to the Clerk to be entered as present.

Mr. HATCH. These three gentlemen, my colleague, Mr. MANSUR, Mr. WHITE, and Mr. ERMENTROUT, were in the Hall or on their way to the House, and under the rules of course have the right to have their names entered; and the Sergeant-at-Arms had no right to arrest them.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not know what the facts are.

Mr. HATCH. These gentlemen were on their way to the Hall or in the House when they were arrested.

The SPEAKER. They may have been on their way, but not within the Hall when their names were called.

Mr. HATCH. But they have the right under the amended rules to have their names entered, and the Sergeant-at-Arms had no right to arrest them. I move that the gentleman from Pennsylvania be excused.

The motion was agreed to, and Mr. ERMENTROUT was excused.

The Sergeant-at-Arms appeared at the bar having in custody under its order Mr. SENEY and Mr. FORAN.

The SPEAKER. Mr. SENEY, you have been absent from the sitting of the House without its leave. What excuse have you to offer?

Mr. SENEY. The only excuse I have to offer is this [cries of "Louder!" and laughter]: Having been here during the entire day, I believe, and answered every roll-call, I thought it was about time I should go out and take something to eat.

A MEMBER. To eat? [Laughter.]

Mr. SENEY. Nor was I long away from the Capitol. That is the only excuse I have to offer for my absence.

Mr. YODER. I move that my colleague be excused.

Mr. TAULBEE. I move to amend by adding "on payment of $1.40 fine." [Laughter.] But I will not insist on the amendment.

Mr. YODER'S motion was agreed to, and Mr. SENEY was excused.

The SPEAKER. Mr. FORAN, you also have been absent from the sitting of the House without its leave. What excuse have you to offer?

Mr. FORAN. I do not think, Mr. Speaker, I have any excuse to offer.

Le bruit est pour le fat, la plainte est pour le sot;
L'honnête homme trompé s'éloigne et ne dit mot.

[Laughter].

Mr. YODER. I move that my colleague be excused.

Mr. TAULBEE demanded a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 97, noes 2.

So the motion was agreed to, and Mr. FORAN was excused.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri. I move that all further proceedings under the call be dispensed with.

The SPEAKER (after putting the question to the House). The "noes" seem to have it. [Laughter.]

Mr. STONE, of Missouri. I demand a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 10, noes not counted.

So the motion was disagreed to.

Mr. FARQUHAR. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. While the House is operating under the order that there be a call of the House no business is in order except what pertains to that call.

Mr. FARQUHAR. It is precisely in reference to that point I wish to make an inquiry. Now, while the House is acting under a call can a committee, without permission, hold a session of that committee and transact business? In other words, during a dead-lock can any committee transact business without special permission of the House?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman that under the rule a committee can not meet and transact business without the permission of the House. If, however, a committee meets during a recess and transacts business, and that business is reported to the House, the House might entertain it.

Mr. FARQUHAR. But the point I wish to make is that during a recess of the House, when the House is technically in session, no committee, without permission of the House, has the right to meet and transact business. Now, let me inquire further whether, where committees do meet without such permission of the House, can any one member object and prevent the transaction of business?

The SPEAKER. Under the rule of the House no committee can sit during the session of the House without its leave. The House, constructively at least, has been continuously in session since 12 o'clock on Wednesday.

Mr. FARQUHAR. So that any one member objecting can prevent the transaction of any business by any committee which has not received leave to sit during the sessions of the House.

Mr. CRAIN. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. CRAIN. Would it be in order, pending the call of the House, to ask unanimous consent upon any proposition?

The SPEAKER. It would not. The House can transact no business while the call is in progress.

Mr. CRAIN. Because if it were in order I had intended to ask unanimous consent for the subcommittee of the Committee on Education to sit during the session of the House and consider the Blair bill and other measures tending to deplete the Treasury; and I thought possibly it might be in order under these proceedings.

Mr. DIBBLE. Regular order.

Mr. SHAW. I move that all further proceedings under the call be suspended, and that the House now adjourn.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman that these two motions can not be made together. If the House should adjourn it would necessarily suspend all further proceedings under the call.

Mr. SHAW. Then I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken, and on a division there were—ayes 62, noes 105.

So the motion was not agreed to.

Mr. WHEELER. I voted in the affirmative, but withdraw my vote, as I am paired.

Mr. LAWLER. I make a motion to suspend all further proceedings under the call.

The motion was not agreed to.

Mr. MASON. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CRAIN in the chair). What motion does the gentleman make?

Mr. MASON. I want to know if it would be in order to ask unanimous consent to take up some other proposition.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That depends entirely upon what the proposition is. [Laughter.]

Mr. MASON. I would like to ask unanimous consent——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair reserves the right to determine the propriety of allowing any other matter to come in.

Mr. HENDERSON, of Iowa. The Blair educational bill, for instance.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will proceed if he desires to do so.

Mr. MASON. I yield the floor to the gentleman from Ohio. [Laughter.]

[The Speaker here resumed the chair.]

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, after consultation with the friends and opponents of this bill as extensively as I have been able to do, I would like to ask unanimous consent to dispense with further proceedings under the call, and that the House now take a recess until to-morrow at a quarter before 12 o'clock.

It has been suggested, however, by some of the opponents of this bill that it will be a matter of preference with them to have the recess until a quarter before 12 o'clock on Monday morning. They could then attend to Department work on Saturday. So far as I am concerned, I will yield my wishes to theirs in that regard.

Mr. OATES. I believe that the proposition to take a recess until Monday will meet the approval of a greater number of members on this side than the other.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Then I ask unanimous consent, Mr. Speaker, that we dispense with further proceedings under the call, and that the House take a recess until Monday morning at a quarter before 12 o'clock.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I wish to ask whether there will be any parliamentary difference, as far as the status of the pending proposition is concerned, if we take a recess until an hour fixed to-morrow or until the same hour on Monday?

The SPEAKER. None whatever; the present status would be maintained.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Then this legislative day continues until this bill is passed.

Mr. LANHAM. I rise to a question of order. This being Friday, when the hour of 5 o'clock arrives, under an order of the House, it is the duty of the Chair to declare the House in recess until 7.30 o'clock, for the purpose of considering pension bills on the Private Calendar. It is now 5 o'clock——

The SPEAKER. The Chair has decided that point of order heretofore, and overruled it.

The gentleman from Ohio asks unanimous consent to dispense with all further proceedings under the call, and that the House now take a recess until forty-five minutes after 11 o'clock on Monday morning next. Is there objection?

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, Monday next is the day set apart, under the rules of the House, for the District of Columbia Committee, and I would like to get the consent of the House that when we meet on Monday we will take up the business of that committee. [Laughter.]

Mr. MCMILLIN. We have no objection, I will say to the gentleman.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Unless that is agreed to, I do not see how I can agree to the proposition of the gentleman from Ohio. [Cries of "Regular order!"]

I will make, with the consent of the House, a brief word of explanation. If the House meets to-morrow we may all come together, and, after ascertaining the feelings and wishes of the members, testing each other's strength, may be able to arrive at some conclusion on the pending matter. While I dislike very much to interpose an objection, I do not think I could agree to adjourn over to-morrow unless it was understood that the Committee on the District of Columbia could have Monday.

Mr. OATES. I will give the gentleman notice that if he expects to reach the business of the District of Columbia otherwise than by an adjournment he is entirely mistaken.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I have been here a good many years, and I have heard people talk a good deal about what they would do—that they would stick until they died, and all that sort of thing; but nobody has ever yet done it. [Laughter.] And I think if we had staid here night and day we would have had an agreement upon this before now. I have not a particle of doubt about it. If the proposition is made to take a recess until to-morrow I do not object. But I object to the proposition to take a recess until Monday.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from South Carolina objects.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. It is immaterial to me whether the recess is taken until to-morrow or until Monday. Still I hope the gentleman from South Carolina will withdraw his objection. If not, I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until to-morrow at a quarter to 12 o'clock.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Ohio asks unanimous consent to dispense with further proceedings under the call and that the House take a recess until 11.45 to-morrow.

Mr. SENEY. I object.

Mr. HOPKINS, of Illinois. I ask unanimous consent to extend in the RECORD my remarks on the pending bill.

The SPEAKER. As the House is now operating under a call no business is in order.

Mr. McMILLIN. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question being put, the Speaker stated that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. McMILLIN. I call for a division.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 67, nays 166, not voting 91; as follows:

YEAS—67.

Abbott,	Dockery,	Lagan,	Sayers,
Anderson, Miss.	Enloe,	Landes,	Shaw,
Anderson, Ill.	Foran,	Lane,	Snyder,
Bankhead,	Ford,	Lanham,	Springer,
Barnes,	Forney,	Lawler,	Stewart, Tex.
Barry,	Gay,	Lynch,	Stone, Mo.
Blanchard,	Glass,	Martin,	Tillman,
Blount,	Grimes,	McMillin,	Tracey,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Hall,	McRae,	Turner, Ga.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Hare,	Moore,	Walker,
Burnes,	Hayes,	Morgan,	Washington,
Candler,	Hemphill,	Neal,	Weaver,
Carlton,	Henderson, N. C.	Newton,	Whiting, Mich.
Catchings,	Hogg,	Oates,	Whitthorne,
Clements,	Hooker,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wilson, Minn.
Crain,	Howard,	Penington,	Wilson, W. Va.
Crisp,	Johnston, N. C.	Robertson,

NAYS—166.

Allen, Mass.	Dorsey,	Laidlaw,	Rowell,
Allen, Mich.	Elliott,	Lee,	Rowland,
Anderson, Iowa	Ermentrout,	Lehlbach,	Russell, Conn.
Atkinson,	Farquhar,	Lind,	Ryan,
Baker, N. Y.	Finley,	Lodge,	Sawyer,
Baker, Ill.	Flood,	Long,	Scull,
Bayne,	French,	Lyman,	Seney,
Belden,	Fuller,	Macdonald,	Seymour,
Biggs,	Funston,	Mahoney,	Shively,
Bliss,	Gallinger,	Mansur,	Simmons,
Boothman,	Gear,	Mason,	Sowden,
Bound,	Gest,	McAdoo,	Stahlnecker,
Boutelle,	Gibson,	McClammy,	Steele,
Bowden,	Glover,	McCormick,	Stephenson,
Bowen,	Goff,	McCreary,	Stewart, Vt.
Brewer,	Greenman,	McKenna,	Stone, Ky.
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Grosvenor,	McKinley,	Struble,
Browne, Ind.	Grout,	Merriman,	Symes,
Brown, Ohio	Guenther,	Milliken,	Taulbee,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Harmer,	Moffitt,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Bryce,	Haugen,	Montgomery,	Thomas, Ky.
Buckalew,	Hayden,	Morrill,	Thomas, Wis.
Bunnell,	Henderson, Iowa	Morrow,	Townshend,
Burrows,	Henderson, Ill.	Nelson,	Turner, Kans.
Butterworth,	Hermann,	Nichols,	Vandever,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hires,	Nutting,	Wade,
Campbell, Ohio	Hitt,	O'Ferrall,	Warner,
Caruth,	Holman,	O'Neill, Pa.	Weber,
Cheadle,	Holmes,	Osborne,	West,
Chipman,	Hopkins, Ill.	Parker,	White, Ind.
Clark,	Hopkins, Va.	Patton,	White, N. Y.
Cogswell,	Houk,	Payson,	Whiting, Mass.
Conger,	Hovey,	Perkins,	Wickham,
Cooper,	Hudd,	Perry,	Wilber,
Cothran,	Hunter,	Plumb,	Williams,
Crouse,	Johnston, Ind.	Post,	Wise,
Culberson,	Kean,	Pugsley,	Woodburn,
Dalzell,	Kelley,	Randall,	Yardley,
Darlington,	Kennedy,	Rayner,	Yoder,
Davis,	Kerr,	Reed,	Yost.
De Lano,	Ketcham,	Rice,
Dibble,	La Follette,	Romeis,

NOT VOTING—91.

Adams,	Cox,	Jones,	Pidcock,
Allen, Miss.	Cummings,	Kilgore,	Richardson,
Anderson, Kans.	Cutcheon,	Laffoon,	Rockwell,
Arnold,	Dargan,	Laird,	Rogers,
Bacon,	Davenport,	Latham,	Russell, Mass.
Belmont,	Davidson, Ala.	Maffett,	Rusk,
Bingham,	Davidson, Fla.	Maish,	Scott,
Bland,	Dingley,	Matson,	Sherman,
Brower,	Dougherty,	McComas,	Smith,
Brumm,	Dunham,	McCullogh,	Spinola,
Buchanan,	Dunn,	McKinney,	Spooner,
Burnett,	Felton,	McShane,	Stewart, Ga.
Butler,	Fisher,	Mills,	Stockdale,
Bynum,	Fitch,	Morse,	Tarsney,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Gaines,	Norwood,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Cannon,	Granger,	O'Donnell,	Thomas, Ill.
Caswell,	Hatch,	O'Neill, Mo.	Thompson, Ohio
Clardy,	Heard,	Outhwaite,	Thompson, Cal.
Cobb,	Herbert,	Owen,	Vance,
Cockran,	Hiestand,	Peel,	Wheeler,
Collins,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Peters,	Wilkins,
Compton,	Hutton,	Phelan,	Wilkinson.
Cowles,	Jackson,	Phelps,

So the House refused to adjourn.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the names.

There was no objection.

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Florida. I am paired; otherwise I would vote "ay."

The following additional pair was announced:

Mr. HEARD with Mr. DUNN, on this vote.

The result of the vote was then announced as above stated.

Mr. CULBERSON. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with further proceedings under the call, and that the House take a recess until to-morrow at half past 11.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

And accordingly (at 5 o'clock and 32 minutes p. m., Friday, April 6) the House took a recess until 11.30 a. m., Saturday, April 7.

PRIVATE BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED.

Under the rule private bills and joint resolutions of the following titles were introduced and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. BRYCE: A bill (H. R. 9240) granting a pension to John Dean—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURNES: A bill (H. R. 9241) granting a pension to David Auer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CARUTH: A bill (H. R. 9242) for the relief of Leopold Fromherz—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CASWELL: A bill (H. R. 9243) granting a pension to Maria Baxter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHIPMAN: A bill (H. R. 9244) granting a pension to Titus Wilder—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. COMPTON: A bill (H. R. 9245) for the relief of the First Methodist Protestant Church of Washington, D. C.—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. DORSEY: A bill (H. R. 9246) for the relief of the Omaha tribe of Indians in Nebraska—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. GALLINGER: A bill (H. R. 9247) granting an increase of pension to Ann Atkinson—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HARMER: A bill (H. R. 9248) for the relief of Mrs. Mary Eshleman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LAWLER: A bill (H. R. 9249) for the relief of George G. Eagle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MACDONALD: A bill (H. R. 9250) granting a pension to Mrs. Christiana Frederika Zeutmeyer—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9251) granting a pension to John Connolly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9252) granting a pension to Mrs. Catherine Baberick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MATSON: A bill (H. R. 9253) granting an increase of pension to Richard Hogan—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. MILLIKEN: A bill (H. R. 9254) for the relief of Samuel L. Robbins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PUGSLEY: A bill (H. R. 9255) increasing the pension of Sarah Rains—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. STONE, of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 9256) for the relief of William Gardner—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9257) for the relief of S. H. Purdom—to the Committee on War Claims.

PETITIONS, ETC.

The following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, under the rule, and referred as follows:

By Mr. C. S. BAKER: Petition in the matter of Emily McClure, mother of Thomas J. McClure, late first lieutenant Company L, Seventh Regiment New York Artillery Volunteers, for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BAYNE: Petition of the Jolly Hunting and Fishing Club, and of citizens of Creighton, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also (by request), papers in the case of Mollie B. Waldo, for relief—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. BELDEN: Petition of P. West and 20 others, cigar-makers of Syracuse, N. Y., against the repeal of internal-revenue duties on cigars and cheroots—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. C. E. BROWN: Petition of Margaretha Spettel, and of Sophia Tirmyer, for pensions—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. T. M. BROWNE: Petition of 20 citizens of Farmland, Ind., for legislation for the preservation of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. BRUMM: Petition of C. C. Hagenbuch and others, citizens of Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, for repeal of revenue license for druggists—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the authorities of Shenandoah, Pa., asking for a general appropriation for all public buildings—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. BRYCE: Papers relating to the pension claim of John Doan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURNES: Memorial of David Auer in support of his claim for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURROWS: Petition for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition for protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. CANNON: Memorial of Robert J. Williams, of Louisiana—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. CARUTH: Petition and papers relating to the claim of Leopold Fromherz, for relief—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. DAVENPORT: Petition of the Seneca Lake Grape-Growers' Association of Penn Yan, New York, against placing raisins on the free-list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of citizens of Penn Yan, N. Y., for reduction of letter postage—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. R. H. M. DAVIDSON: Petition of citizens of Manatee and Hillsborough Counties, Florida, for the improvement of the channel from Manatee River and Savasota Bay to Cassey's Pass, Florida—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. DUNHAM: Petition of Local Assembly No. 4505, of Hyde Park, Cook County, Illinois, favoring the passage of the tonnage bill—to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of Typographical Union No. 6, of Chicago, favoring the Chace copyright bill—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. GALLINGER: Petition of H. D. Brown, of Pittsfield, N. H., for quick mail transit between New York and the New England States—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GEAR: Petition of J. A. Hamilton and 54 others, citizens of Wapello County, Iowa, asking that there be no change in the tariff on flaxseed—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill declaring the Iowa River below Wapello an navigable stream, with petition of James S. Henley and others for same—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. GIFFORD: Petition of Martin Strate and 44 others, of Martin, Dak., that parties may take as additional homesteads any unoccupied land, and make application therefor through a duly authorized agent—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of Edward Moucher and Charles E. M. Oliver, of Gettysburgh, Dak., for the payment to all soldiers of the late war who lost a leg or arm the same rate now allowed, and to commence with disability—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of David A. Briggs and 75 others, residents of Pierce County, Dakota Territory, for a law providing that the governors of Territories may annex unorganized counties therein to judicial districts, and organize such counties—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. GLASS: Petition of George B. Rust, of Gibson County, Tennessee, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GROUT: Memorial of certain manufacturing companies in Vermont, for better mail facilities between New England and the West—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. HARMER: Memorial of citizens of the Twenty-second ward of Philadelphia, for the repeal of that provision of the internal-revenue law which classes druggists as liquor dealers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. JOSEPH: Petition of citizens of New Mexico, for the establishment of the Lincoln Land in said Territory—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. LEE: Petition of Gabriel A. Robey, of Fairfax County, Virginia, for relief—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request), Petition of Mrs. E. M. Washington, of Prince William County, Virginia, for reference of her claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. McCOMAS. Petition of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Berlin, Md., for payment of their war claim—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. McKINLEY. Petition of 874 wool-growers of Ohio, asking for speedy action on the subject of protection to wool-growers and woolen manufacturing industries of the country, by enacting into law the schedule agreed upon by the wool-growers at their meeting in Washington, January 14, 1888—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MAHONEY: Concurrent resolution of the Legislature of New York, that whenever any State shall impose a tax upon wholesale and retail dealers in spirituous or malt liquors, ale or wine, in said State, to be paid into the treasury thereof for the use of the State, equal to the tax or license fee now imposed thereon by the United States Government, the said tax when so paid shall be in lieu of said United States tax or license fee, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. O'DONNELL: Petition of 62 citizens of Calhoun County, Michigan, protesting that wool be not placed on the free-list, and praying Congress not to further cripple the wool industry of the country by reducing the tariff—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. O'FERRALL: Petition of Margaret A. Manuel (formery Trussell), of Frederick County, and of Jacob Harshbarger, of Rockingham County, Virginia, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. PLUMB: Protest of B. A. Hattenhauer and 35 others, business men and glass-blowers, and of William F. Modes and 65 others, glass-blowers and manufacturers, of Streator; of Robert Kay and 24 others, of Emil Dietz and 79 others, and of John Nissen and 25 others, citizens, glass-blowers, and business men, of the Eighth district of Illinois, against the reduction of duty on green and colored glass bottles, as proposed in the Mills bill—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. REED: Petition of 38 woolen manufacturers and manufacturing companies in Maine, for protection to the worsted industries—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Hon. Nathaniel Hobbs, of North Berwick, Me., for the preservation of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. ROMEIS: Memorial of 46 citizens of Berlin, Erie County, Ohio, for further protection to Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. RYAN: Resolutions of the Topeka (Kans.) Typographical Union, in favor of an international copyright law—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. SHIVELY: Petition of D. S. Marsh and 28 others, citizens of South Bend, Ind., in favor of protection to the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. STAHLNECKER: Petition of citizens of Tarrytown, N. Y., urging immediate passage of Senate bill 283—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. STEELE: Petition of Jay Price and 60 others, for favorable action on Senate bill 283, looking to the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Petition of citizens of Pierpont, Ohio, for protection to agricultural products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WEST: Petition for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WICKHAM: Petition of soldiers of Ashland County, Ohio, for the passage of a law granting land warrants, or certificate of right to locate a homestead, to every soldier of the late war or his legal representative—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

The following petitions for an increase of compensation of fourth-class postmasters were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. BRUMM: Of J. Hartman and others, citizens of Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. CLEMENTS: Of citizens of Murray County, Georgia.

By Mr. CRISP: Of C. W. Scarborough and others, citizens of Georgia.

By Mr. R. H. M. DAVIDSON: Of W. C. Hendry and others, citizens of Concord, Fla.

The following petitions, indorsing the per diem rated service-pension bill, based on the principle of paying all soldiers, sailors, and marines of the late war a monthly pension of 1 cent a day for each day they were in the service, were severally referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

By Mr. JEHU BAKER: of William Meier, Anthony Parson, and 22 others, ex-soldiers of Illinois.

By Mr. BELDEN: Of Orson Coville.

By Mr. BOUND: Of Dr. George W. Mifflin and others, ex-soldiers of Paxinos, Pa.

By Mr. BOUTELLE: Of Isaac McGlauflin and others, of Maine.

By Mr. BRUMM: Of Davis M. Mellor and others, and of James Walsh and others, of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. DAVENPORT: Of ex-soldiers of Cohocton and of Rushville, N. Y.

Also, of soldiers and sailors of Corning, N. Y.

By Mr. GIFFORD: Of A. S. Frank and 24 others, ex-Union soldiers, of Moody County, Dakota.

By Mr. GOFF: Of Robert H. Singer and others, of John Shepherd and others, and of Edwin A. Barr and others, of Tyler County, West Virginia.

By Mr. D. B. HENDERSON: Of O. S. Fowler and 21 others, ex-Union soldiers, of Buchanan County, Iowa.

By Mr. HOVEY: Of 510 soldiers and citizens of Mount Vernon, Ind., and vicinity.

By Mr. McKINLEY: Of 168 ex-Union soldiers.

By Mr. NUTTING: Of Reuben J. Myers and 77 other Union soldiers, of Auburn, N. Y.

By Mr. STRUBLE: Of D. D. McCallum and 89 other ex-soldiers, of Osceola and other counties of Iowa.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Of citizens of Ashtabula County, Ohio.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law providing temporary aid for common schools, to be disbursed on the basis of illiteracy, were severally referred to the Committee on Education:

By Mr. G. A. ANDERSON: Of 79 citizens of Cass County, Illinois.

By Mr. BOOTHMAN: Of 123 citizens of Fulton County, Ohio.

By Mr. T. M. BROWNE: Of 261 citizens of Delaware County, Indiana.

By Mr. FITCH: Of 137 citizens of New York City.

By Mr. LAIDLAW: Of citizens of Alfred Centre, N. Y.

By Mr. VANCE: Of 56 citizens of Tolland County, Connecticut.

By Mr. YODER: Of 103 citizens of Jefferson County, Ohio.

The following petitions, asking for the passage of the bill prohibiting the manufacture, sale, and importation of all alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia, were severally referred to the Select Committee on the Alcoholic Liquor Traffic:

By Mr. BUNNELL (by request): Of 64 citizens of the Seventh district of Massachusetts.

By Mr. DAVENPORT: Of citizens of Alfred Centre, N. Y.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, April 4, 1888.

[CALENDAR DAY, April 7, 1888.]

The recess having expired, the House (at 11 o'clock and 30 minutes a. m., Saturday, April 7) resumed its session.

The SPEAKER called the House to order.

Mr. REED. Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. KILGORE, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found truly enrolled bills and joint resolutions of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same:

Joint resolution (H. Res. 140) appropriating $25,000 for the international exhibition at Barcelona, Spain;

Joint resolution (S. R. 5) in relation to the claim of John B. Read against the United States for the alleged use of projectiles for rifled ordnance claimed as the invention of the said Read and by him alleged to have been used pursuant to a contract or arrangement made between him and the War Department in 1856, for which no compensation has been made;

A bill (S. 258) for the relief of Maj. Daniel N. Bash, paymaster, of the United States Army;

A bill (S. 1371) for the relief of Alfred Hedberg; and

A bill (S. 1387) authorizing the appointment of James S. Jouett to a first lieutenancy of cavalry in the United States Army.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. BRUMM, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. DARLINGTON, for this day, on account of important business.

LOCKS AND DAMS ON THE CUMBERLAND.

Mr. BLANCHARD. Mr. Speaker, I desire to present a privileged report from a committee of conference. I present the conference report on the joint resolution (H. Res. 81) relating to the purchase of lands necessary for the construction of locks and dams in the Cumberland River, together with the accompanying statement of the House conferees.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the report.

The report was read, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the joint resolution of the House No. 81, to authorize the purchase of the lands necessary for the construction of locks and dams on the Cumberland River, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In line 7 of the Senate amendment, before the word "prosecute," insert the words "maintain and operate or," and at the end of said Senate amendment add the following:

"Provided further, That the Secretary of War is hereby authorized to accept donations of land or material required for the maintenance or prosecution of such works."

And the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 2, and agree to the same.

NEWTON C. BLANCHARD,
CHARLES STEWART,
THOMAS J. HENDERSON,
Managers on the part of the House.
JOSEPH N. DOLPH,
WILLIAM P. FRYE,
GEORGE G. VEST,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

The following is the statement, under the rule, accompanying the conference report:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, UNITED STATES,
Washington, D. C., April 6, 1888.

The undersigned, managers on the part of the House, make the following statement in respect to the conference report on H. Res. 81, "to authorize the purchase of the lands necessary for the construction of locks and dams on the Cumberland River."

The Senate struck out all of the resolution and inserted a bill enacting a general statute relating to the acquisition by purchase or condemnation of lands, right of way, or material needed for carrying on works for the improvement of rivers and harbors, for which provision has been made by law. A similar provision was embodied in the river and harbor bill which passed both Houses at the second session of the Forty-ninth Congress, but which failed to receive the Executive signature.

The House joint resolution was special, in that it had reference only to the acquisition, by purchase or condemnation, of lands or material needed in the work of improvement of the Cumberland River.

The Senate bill, offered by way of amendment, is general, in that it applies to the purchase or condemnation, wherever needed, of lands, right of way, or material wanted for purposes of river and harbor improvement.

The House receded from its disagreement to this amendment and concurred in the same with amendments, to which the Senate agreed.

The House amendments to the Senate amendment were designed to enlarge the scope of the latter, as follows: The Senate amendment reads: "For the acquirement, by condemnation, of any lands, right of way, or material needed to enable him (the Secretary of War) to prosecute works for the improvement," etc.

The first of the House amendments inserts the words "maintain, operate, or," so as to make it read: "For the acquirement, by condemnation, of any lands, right of way, or material needed to enable him (the Secretary of War) to maintain, operate, or prosecute works for the improvement," etc.

The second House amendment adds a second proviso at the end of the Senate amendment, the effect of which is to authorize the Secretary of War to accept donations of land or materials required for the maintenance or prosecution of works of river and harbor improvement.

The second amendment of the Senate relates merely to the change of title.

NEWTON C. BLANCHARD.
CHAS. STEWART.
THOS. J. HENDERSON.

Mr. BLANCHARD. Mr. Speaker, I move the adoption of the report.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to hear some explanation of this matter beyond that given in the statement of the conferees on the part of the House. If I caught the reading correctly, this joint resolution originally passed the House providing for the acquirement of certain property on the Cumberland River. During the pendency of that joint resolution the House had an opportunity to discuss the question and to understand it thoroughly, but the Senate have so amended the resolution as to provide for the purchase of property generally without regard to the matters pertaining specially to the Cumberland River, and I think that is rather an extraordinary way of getting such measures through.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I shall be glad to explain.

Mr. TAULBEE. I shall be glad to hear the explanation.

Mr. BLANCHARD. Mr. Speaker, the House adopted a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to purchase lands and material which might be needed in the work of river improvement upon the Cumberland River in Tennessee. In the last river and harbor bill an appropriation was made for the improvement of the Cumberland, but the Secretary of War has been unable to expend that money in the improvement of the river, for the reason that no provision was made either in the river and harbor bill or in the general statutes of Congress, authorizing the acquisition, either by purchase or condemnation, of lands or materials needed in river or harbor improvement. To meet that case, so far as the Cumberland River was concerned, the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MCMILLIN] introduced a joint resolution, which was passed by this House, but when it went to the Senate it was considered by the Committee on Commerce of that body, and they decided that, inasmuch as we were legislating upon this question of the acquisition, either by condemnation or purchase, of lands and material needed for river and harbor improvement, it would be better to make the law general instead of passing a special joint resolution applying only to one particular locality. Therefore the Senate struck out the joint resolution and in lieu thereof substituted a bill enacting a general provision authorizing the Secretary of War, wherever needed for river and harbor improvement, to acquire, either by purchase or condemnation, lands and material required for such work.

In the river and harbor bill which was passed in the last session of the Forty-ninth Congress, but which failed to become a law by reason of not receiving the Executive signature, a general provision relating to this matter was embodied, precisely the law which we ask in this conference report to have adopted. There can be no doubt, Mr. Speaker, that legislation upon this subject is needed. I am informed by the Chief of Engineers that he is at present unable to acquire, either by purchase, donation, or condemation, lands and material needed for river and harbor improvement, and it is to meet that want that the passage or this bill is recommended.

Mr. TAULBEE. Will the gentleman allow me a question?

Mr. BLANCHARD. Certainly.

Mr. TAULBEE. I wish to know whether or not under this bill the purchases to be made by the Secretary of War are confined to the appropriations included in the annual river and harbor bill, or is there to be an unlimited right given to purchase any property for such purposes which in the judgment of the Secretary of War is necessary? How is that?

Mr. BLANCHARD. The bill is limited to the purchase of lands or material needed in the river and harbor improvements provided for by appropriations in existing law; it is confined to that.

Mr. TAULBEE. That is satisfactory—to me, at least.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BAYNE] five or ten minutes, as he may desire.

Mr. BAYNE. Mr. Speaker, the proposition which has been reported by the conference committee, if it will have the effect intended, should become a law. There is no doubt whatever that the Government should have power to condemn lands and material for the purpose of improving the navigable water-ways of the country. The object of this measure is beyond all doubt proper, and the necessary legislation to accomplish that end should be enacted. But I am disposed to think that the bill as now presented is defective and will not reach the end in view. In my own State, and, I believe, in most of the States of the Union, under the provisions of law for the condemnation of property, it is necessary for the party seeking condemnation to give security for the loss which will be sustained, the expense which will be incurred—to indemnify in a general way the party whose property is to be taken for public use. The object of this bill, as I understand, is to carry out condemnation proceedings in the various States according to State law; but no provision whatever is made for giving security to cover the value of property that is to be condemned. The Government of the United States can not give a bond, or if it should do so, the bond would be nudum pactum, a voidable bond, because the Government of the United States, except with its own consent, is not suable.

The provision presented in this report for the consideration of the House will enable the Government to take certain steps toward the condemnation of property for public works, but the Government will be compelled to stop before reaching the end of the condemnation proceedings, because the State laws require certain things to be done which the Government of the United States is not enabled by this bill to do. In other words, I think that the bill, if enacted into a law, will be found to be a failure in most of the States of the Union—will not subserve the purposes contemplated. If the form of the bill is such as to make the measure practically efficient, I am perfectly satisfied; but I desire to put myself on record as not favoring the bill in its present form, although I shall vote for it, because it will do no harm if it will not do any good.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I yield two minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MCMILLIN].

Mr. MCMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, this bill is not in the form in which I originally introduced it. I hardly think, however, that the fears of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BAYNE] will be realized. There was an appropriation made for the improvement of the Cumberland River. The river and harbor bill as reported to this House and passed by both Houses at the last session of Congress provided for the acquisition of the plant necessary to go forward with the work; but that bill, as is known to all, failed for want of the signature of the President, having reached the executive department of the Government at a late hour in the session.

The object, and the sole object, of this bill as now agreed on in conference is to enable the Government to go forward with works hitherto provided for by appropriations or that may hereafter be provided for by Congressional action. At present the Government has no authority even to accept title where parties propose to give lands to the Government for the purpose of locating locks and dams or continuing such works. The amendment proposed by the House conferees is intended to give not only the authority which was insisted upon by the Senate for purchase, but where individuals are willing for any reason to donate either material or sites for this class of work, this measure will allow the donation to be made and the title accepted. Some provision of this kind is most important with reference to the particular work for which I introduced this bill, because for more than a year an appropriation of $70,000 has been locked up, incapable of being expended, because the site on which the work was to be built could not be acquired.

[Here the hammer fell.]

Mr. BLANCHARD. I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR].

Mr. GROSVENOR. Mr. Speaker, it may be well that the House should understand how it happens that after so many years of river and harbor improvement the Government finds itself without the power to acquire either by gifts, purchase, or condemnation real estate or material for the prosecution of public works. Hitherto it has been the practice, as far back as I can trace it, to put into the annual river and harbor bill a provision substantially the same as that now embodied in this conference report. In 1886 a provision in almost the identical words of this proposition was placed in the river and harbor bill by the House of Representatives, but for some reason, which we never understood, it was striken out by the Senate.

In the river and harbor bill of 1887 a similar provision was inserted and remained in the bill; but the whole measure failed for want of Executive approval. So that we find ourselves in this condition: The Government can not accept a donation of real estate for these purposes, nor can it condemn, nor can it purchase. No one, therefore, will deny that this is an important and proper measure. My colleague on the River and Harbor Committee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BAYNE], desired to put into this measure something more of detail than is embraced in the conference report; but while there was very much of good solid reason adduced by him in behalf of his proposition, the committee thought—certainly I for one thought—there was grave danger that, while seeking to enlarge the authority conferred by the bill, we might insert provisions which would in fact operate as a limitation rather than as an enlargement of authority. It often happens in a measure of this kind that language which you at first understand broadens the power really operates in practice as a limitation upon the power.

For one, it is my opinion that this law will have the effect, not to give to the Government of the United States the power to condemn, because the Government can not do that; it does not own the right or possess the right of eminent domain within the limits of the States of the country; but it will confer upon the Government through the Secretary of War certain powers by which the United States may become a party in the State courts upon the same terms as a citizen of the State. That is all there is of it. I do not think there will be found anywhere an important obstacle in State legislation. At any rate, in so far as I have examined the legislation of the States in this respect I do not find any, except possibly in the State of Pennsylvania; and there can be no doubt that the power in that respect is ample and complete. I think, therefore, that the objection urged by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BAYNE] will not be found of vital importance.

Mr. TAULBEE. Will the gentleman from Ohio allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. GROSVENOR. Certainly.

Mr. TAULBEE. I wish to ask the gentleman if, under this bill, there is a power conferred upon the Secretary of War which gives to him as the representative of the Government the right to condemn property where there has been no cession upon the part of the State, through its Legislature, of the river to be improved? How is that?

Mr. GROSVENOR. The Government asks no cession of the State for such purpose. If the river is a navigable stream the United States has the right to improve it without the consent of the State.

And I want to answer also the question which the gentleman from Kentucky asked the chairman of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors a few moments ago. This bill looks to the condemnation of property which is necessary for river and harbor improvements. That is the language of the bill. Now, the word "necessary" implies that it is necessary for the purpose of using or making available an appropriation of money already made by the Congress. Because if there is no appropriation, no act of Congress to improve the river or harbor, then there can arise no necessity, and the failure of jurisdiction would manifest itself at once.

So that the limitation upon the Secretary of War, which I think would not be needed in point of fact, is perfect, because it confers upon him only power to condemn property that is needed for river and harbor improvements; and no river or harbor can be improved without the consent of Congress.

Mr. TAULBEE. I will state to the gentleman from Ohio that so far as the last portion of his remarks are concerned, that has been perfectly explained by the chairman of the committee, and is altogether satisfactory to me. But the question I asked the gentleman a few moments ago I do not think has been answered, at least as I understand it. I can better illustrate my question, perhaps, by reference to a particular instance in which the question may be involved. For instance, the State of Kentucky undertook to improve the Kentucky River by erecting various locks and dams and certain other improvements upon that river. After the works had been begun the State of Kentucky gave them to the General Government by the act of its Legislature. Now, this bill provides that the improvements and the perpetuation of the works themselves which have been already begun can be had under this bill; but I want to know if under the bill where a State has undertaken to improve a river, where the improvements are altogether within the State and the State has made no cession of the works or improvements to the General Government, the Secretary of War could, under the operation of this legislation, have the right to condemn by writ of ad quod damnum or other process of law, the property necessary to carry that improvement on or begin another system?

Mr. GROSVENOR. I desire to say in justice to the honorable chairman of the committee, before answering the gentleman from Kentucky, that I made the explanation I did in response to the question of the gentleman from Kentucky, not because the answer of the chairman had not been full and explicit and entirely satisfactory, but I thought I might be able to reach the hearing of members on this side of the Hall who had not heard his response amid this confusion.

Mr. TAULBEE. That is all right.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Now the practice of the Government has been always to ask from the State, under the circumstances assumed by the gentleman, a cession of these rights in the river. As a question of law I do not doubt that the General Government may take possession of any works on any navigable river in the country regardless of the wishes of the State; but the practice has been altogether the other way, and under this bill I do not think that the Secretary of War, without the consent of the State, could condemn any real right that a State may have—for I do not think it has any in the character of a franchise. But it clearly confers upon the Secretary of War power to condemn any property for the use of the Government improvements in the river or on shore, or anything in the way of material or land necessary for such improvements as the Government has projected and is carrying on. The bill is carefully drawn and ought to become a law.

[Here the hammer fell.]

Mr. TAULBEE rose.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR] has expired.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I wish to reiterate what I said in response to the first question propounded by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE], that this bill is confined entirely to the purchase and condemnation of lands and materials needed for river and harbor improvement, for which provision has been made by law. It does not authorize the condemnation of works placed upon a river by private enterprise or by State authority. The proposition has received, with the exception of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, the unanimous approval of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors of this House and of the Committee on Commerce of the Senate, and is a measure which is needed in the prosecution of the work of river and harbor improvement, and which should have been long since enacted into law. I ask the previous question on the adoption of the report.

Mr. TAULBEE. I would like to be heard for one moment in reference to this matter.

Mr. BLANCHARD. How much time does the gentleman desire?

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask the gentleman to give me five minutes.

Mr. BLANCHARD. The gentleman from Kentucky desires five minutes, and as I have no desire to cut off debate, I yield to him that time.

Mr. TAULBEE. I think the explanation given of this bill by the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD] and the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR] is rather an indefinite one. I want to say I am in sympathy with the purposes of this bill as announced by the chairman of the committee [Mr. BLANCHARD]. I believe when provision is made for the purchase or condemnation of property and carrying on the improvement of rivers there ought to be a general law by which the Secretary of War could acquire title.

I regret, however, that this bill is not sufficient, as has been demonstrated by the suggestions of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BAYNE], to carry on the process of condemnation in all the States. I readily see the difficulty that would arise. But the gentleman from Louisiana informs us that under this bill the Government of the United States could not condemn whatever franchise or rights the States may acquire by reason of their authority of eminent domain by the improvements they may put upon rivers.

If I caught the statement of the gentleman from Ohio correctly he said that they could not condemn this franchise because the State had no such right.

If the bill is to be construed in that light, denying the right of a State to improve the rivers entirely within its boundary, I think this bill is going entirely too far. It might be urged in justification of the bill that there is no right to condemn provided for in it, except where the appropriation bill provides for the improvement. I can not see how this provision of the bill would apply to cases where the Government attempted to acquire title by donation. In that case no provision for the purchase of property is necessary in the annual river and harbor appropriation bill.

I think I shall vote for the bill, but I should be very glad to see these objectionable features taken out of it, or some provision made for the proper proceeding in the various States.

Mr. BLANCHARD. Just one word. I desire to state that what the gentleman from Kentucky and the gentleman from Pennsylvania are pleased to term objectionable features in the bill were fully presented in the committee by the gentleman from Pennsylvania; and the Committee on Rivers and Harbors took a different view of this matter from what that gentleman took. I ask the previous question on the adoption of the report.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the adoption of the report of the committee of conference.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. BLANCHARD moved to reconsider the vote by which the conference report was agreed to; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. MCSHANE, by unanimous consent, was excused from further attendance for this day, on account of important business.

Mr. JONES, by unanimous consent, was granted indefinite leave of absence, on account of sickness.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I demand the regular order.

Mr. ROGERS. I rise to a question of privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. ROGERS. On Wednesday last I was granted leave of absence on account of sickness. It appears on page 2715 of the RECORD. I find on examination that I am recorded repeatedly as absent without leave and without excuse. I hope the RECORD will be corrected in that regard and that the order excusing me will be permitted to stand until I am able to attend the sessions of the House regularly.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is unable to remember at this moment what were the terms of the order granting the gentleman from Arkansas leave of absence, whether it was indefinitely or for a certain period.

Mr. ROGERS. It appears from the statement on page 2715 of the RECORD that the leave of absence was indefinite. It was so intended, and at all events I am unable to attend the sittings of the House on account of sickness.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman ask leave of absence?

Mr. ROGERS. I do, unless it has been already granted.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Arkansas asks indefinite leave of absence on account of ill health. Is there objection?

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

Mr. ROGERS. I hope the RECORD will show the facts.

The SPEAKER. The RECORD will contain the gentleman's statement.

RAILROAD LAND-GRANT FORFEITURE.

Mr. PAYSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to present a privileged report simply to have it printed and recommitted to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. REED. If there are any others to be presented, Mr. Speaker, I must object.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state now that with the exception of conference reports, which under the rules seem to have a peculiar privilege, the Chair thinks other privileged reports can not be presented for consideration, because that would displace the special order.

Mr. PAYSON. This is not being presented for consideration, but simply to be printed and recommitted to the committee.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the title of the report.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 1305) to declare forfeited to certain lands granted to the State of Michigan to aid in the construction of a railroad from Ontonagon to the Wisconsin line, etc.

The report was ordered to be printed, and recommitted to the Committee on the Public Lands.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The question is now on the motion of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR], that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union for the consideration of the special order.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I have heard no intimation from the other side that they are willing to give us two hours for general debate and proceed in the regular order, so I move that the House now take a recess until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend by striking out 5 and inserting 4 o'clock.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the amendment by inserting 3 o'clock instead of 4.

The question was put on the amendment of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, and the Speaker declared that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I ask for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 7, noes 73.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Let us have the yeas and nays, Mr. Speaker.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Clerk began to call the roll.

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker, I hope it is distinctly understood on the other side that we are ready to give any amount of time for debate or amendment.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. We accept that, and I hope the gentleman will neither withdraw it nor modify it.

Mr. OATES. Unconditionally?

Mr. REED. On condition that you perform your part, namely, that you behave yourselves.

The SPEAKER. The House will come to order. The Clerk is calling the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 5, nays 191, not voting 128; as follows:

YEAS—5.

Hayes,	Neal,	Wheeler,	Whitthorne.
Herbert,

NAYS—191.

Allen, Mass.	Bliss,	Browne, Ind.	Campbell, F., N. Y.
Allen, Mich.	Boothman,	Brown, Ohio	Campbell, Ohio
Anderson, Iowa	Bound,	Brown, J. R., Va.	Campbell, T. J., N. Y.
Anderson, Ill.	Boutelle,	Bryce,	Cannon,
Baker, N. Y.	Bowden,	Buchanan,	Caruth,
Baker, Ill.	Bowen,	Bunnell,	Caswell,
Bayne,	Brewer,	Burrows,	Cheadle,
Biggs,	Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Butterworth,	Chipman,

Compton,	Henderson, Iowa	McCormick,	Shively,
Conger,	Henderson, N. C.	McCreary,	Simmons,
Cooper,	Henderson, Ill.	McKenna,	Sowden,
Cothran,	Hermann,	McKinley,	Spooner,
Cox,	Hitt,	McRae,	Stahlnecker,
Crouse,	Hogg,	Milliken,	Steele,
Culberson,	Holman,	Moffitt,	Stephenson,
Dalzell,	Holmes,	Montgomery,	Stewart, Vt.
Darlington,	Hopkins, Ill.	Morrill,	Stockdale,
Davis,	Hopkins, Va.	Morrow,	Stone, Ky.
De Lano,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Nelson,	Stone, Mo.
Dibble,	Houk,	Nichols,	Struble.
Dingley,	Hovey,	Nutting,	Symes,
Dockery,	Hunter,	O'Donnell,	Taulbee,
Dorsey,	Johnston, Ind.	O'Ferrall,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Elliott,	Johnston, N. C.	O'Neill, Pa.	Thomas, Ky.
Ermentrout,	Kean,	Osborne,	Thomas, Wis.
Farquhar,	Kelley,	Parker,	Tracey.
Felton,	Kennedy,	Patton,	Townshend,
Finley,	Kerr,	Payson,	Turner, Kans.
Flood,	Ketcham,	Peel,	Vandever,
Foran,	Laffoon,	Penington,	Wade,
Ford,	La Follette,	Perkins,	Walker,
French,	Laidlaw,	Peters,	Warner,
Fuller,	Laird,	Plumb,	Weber,
Funston,	Landes,	Post,	West,
Gallinger,	Lane,	Pugsley,	White, Ind.
Gear,	Lee,	Randall,	White, N. Y.
Gest,	Lehlbach,	Reed,	Whiting, Mass.
Glass,	Lind,	Rice,	Wickham,
Goff,	Long,	Romeis,	Wilber,
Greenman,	Lyman,	Rowell,	Wilkins,
Grosvenor,	Lynch,	Rowland,	Wilkinson,
Grout,	Macdonald,	Russell, Conn.	Williams,
Guenther,	Maish,	Russell, Mass.	Wilson, W. Va.
Hall,	Mansur,	Sawyer,	Wise.
Harmer,	Mason,	Scull,	Woodburn.
Haugen,	Matson,	Seney,	Yardley,
Hayden,	McAdoo,	Seymour,	Yost.
Hemphill,	McClammy,	Sherman,

NOT VOTING—128.

Abbott,	Cobb,	Howard,	Phelan,
Adams,	Cockran,	Hudd,	Phelps,
Allen, Miss.	Cogswell,	Hutton,	Pidcock,
Anderson, Miss.	Collins,	Jackson,	Rayner,
Anderson, Kans.	Cowles,	Jones,	Richardson,
Arnold,	Crain,	Kilgore,	Robertson,
Atkinson,	Crisp,	Lagan,	Rockwell,
Bacon,	Cummings,	Lanham,	Rogers,
Bankhead,	Cutcheon,	Latham,	Rusk,
Barnes,	Dargan,	Lawler,	Ryan,
Barry,	Davenport,	Lodge,	Sayers,
Belden,	Davidson, Ala.	Maffett,	Scott,
Belmont,	Davidson, Fla.	Mahoney,	Shaw,
Bingham,	Dougherty,	Martin,	Smith,
Blanchard,	Dunham,	McComas,	Snyder,
Bland,	Dunn,	McCullogh,	Spinola,
Blount,	Enloe,	McKinney,	Springer,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Fisher,	McMillin,	Stewart, Tex.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Fitch,	McShane,	Stewart, Ga.
Brower,	Forney,	Merriman,	Tarsney,
Brumm,	Gaines,	Mills,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Buckalew,	Gay,	Moore,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnes,	Gibson,	Morgan,	Thompson, Ohio
Burnett,	Glover,	Morse,	Thompson, Cal.
Butler,	Granger,	Newton,	Tillman,
Bynum,	Grimes,	Norwood,	Turner, Ga.
Candler,	Hare,	Oates,	Vance,
Carlton,	Hatch,	O'Neall, Ind.	Washington,
Catchings,	Heard,	O'Neill, Mo.	Weaver,
Clardy,	Hiestand,	Outhwaite,	Whiting, Mich.
Clark,	Hires,	Owen,	Wilson, Minn.
Clements,	Hooker,	Perry,	Yoder.

So the House refused to take a recess until 3 o'clock.

During the roll-call the following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. VANCE with Mr. FITCH, on all political questions, until further notice.

Mr. DARGAN with Mr. ADAMS, until further notice.

Mr. SCOTT with Mr. PHELPS, until further notice.

Mr. JONES with Mr. CLARK, until further notice.

Mr. MILLS with Mr. CUTCHEON, until further notice.

Mr. BLOUNT with Mr. LIND, until Monday next.

Mr. MAHONEY with Mr. BRUMM, until Tuesday next.

Mr. PERRY with Mr. DARLINGTON, for this day.

Mr. O'NEALL, of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, Mr. LATHAM and I are paired on the pending question. I have not heard the pair announced.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. This is a continuation of the legislative day of Wednesday, and the Chair supposes that the pair has been announced heretofore.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question now recurs on the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER].

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know if the proposition made by the gentleman from Maine [Mr. REED], for debate upon this bill and to proceed regularly, is made without conditions.

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker, in order that the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES] may understand, and I trust that everybody may understand, the position which is occupied by the friends of the bill, I will state it as I believe it to be. We are ready to grant any time which may be required—which the gentleman from Alabama may require—for full and complete debate. Then in Committee of the Whole any time for amendment and debate under the five-minute rule; requiring simply that at a determined hour the previous question shall be considered as ordered and a vote be taken on the bill and amendments, whatever amendments exist at that time, and the bill itself to be voted upon, and the filibustering opposition to cease.

Mr. OATES. When?

Mr. REED. At any definite time which you will agree upon. For instance, on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Mr. OATES. But you put that in as a part of your proposition now.

Mr. REED. I have stated the proposition as a whole.

Mr. OATES. Do you leave the time when the previous question shall be considered as ordered to be fixed hereafter?

Mr. REED. We do not. We finish it all up now, because this is one transaction.

Mr. OATES. Then this is substantially the same proposition which you have been making all the time?

Mr. REED. Substantially the same. I am happy to say that we have been always, from first to last, willing to do the perfectly reasonable thing, and we intend to continue so.

Mr. OATES. You are conscious of your power by force of numbers on this question to vote down any and every amendment we may offer——

Mr. REED. We are conscious that under the Constitution——

Mr. OATES. And then, when the time comes, to pass your bill, leaving us no opportunity of compromise whatever, when all legislation proceeds upon the idea that is matter of mutual concession and compromise——

Mr. REED. Oh, no.

Mr. OATES. And if we agree that the previous question shall stand ordered now, to take effect at a particular hour on the bill and pending amendments, all that you have to do, having the majority, is to sit still and vote down our amendments until that time arrives. In other words, you are asking the opposition to this bill to fix the hour at which they propose to strike their colors and surrender to you.

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker, in reply to what the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES] has so frankly said, I desire to say to him, as a matter of constitutional law so clear that I have no doubt he will receive it even from me, that under the Constitution of the United States the majority of the House of Representatives is competent, so far as the House is concerned, to decide what amendments it will adopt, what amendments it will reject, what bills it will pass, what bills it will refuse to pass, and my proposition, the proposition of gentlemen who are in favor of this bill, will simply execute that constitutional right. Under the Constitution legislation is the result of the action of a majority, not the result of a yielding of one hundred and sixty-six members of the House to sixty-two members upon a question which the House is perfectly competent to deal with. It seems to me this position is so clear that it can not be misunderstood. We are willing and eager to allow any amount of debate, to allow any number of amendments to be presented, to vote on them in accordance with the dictates of our judgment. If any of them shall be adopted, then the matter will go into conference; if none of them be adopted, then the bill will pass as it stands, and will pass by virtue of having a majority of the Representatives of the people of the United States in favor of it. [Applause].

Now, that is the Constitution of the United States as understood by everybody. There is nothing new in what I have stated, and it seems to me that the wayfaring man can comprehend it.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman from Maine, it is perfectly clear that this House, under the Constitution, has the right to make its rules of procedure and has done so. Under those rules the regular course is that when general debate on a bill has been had (which it is perfectly competent, I concede, for the majority to limit), the bill is read paragraph by paragraph, and is open to amendment and debate under the five-minute rule; and whenever debate at any stage has proceeded as far as in the judgment of the majority of the House it ought to go, it is competent for them to come out of Committee of the Whole, go into the House, and limit debate, proceeding thus until they reach the point of perfecting their bill; and then, according to the rules, they can in the House order the previous question on the bill and amendments, and thus bring the measure to the question of final passage.

Instead of proceeding thus——

Mr. REED. Wait a moment.

Mr. OATES. The gentleman would require us to agree in advance that the previous question may be ordered at a particular time now——

Mr. REED. The proceeding which the gentleman just now described is precisely the way we are trying to proceed; and it is precisely that procedure which is now being interrupted by the gentleman from Alabama and his friends. We only ask an agreement on their part in consideration of one on our part.

Mr. OATES. Our position is simply this: We refuse to accede to your demand, which is not within the rules, and propose to meet every question regularly as it arises.

Mr. REED. If you will stop and allow the thing to proceed, there is no objection.

Mr. OATES. That is exactly what we propose to do.

Mr. REED. Now, then, the question is upon going into the Committee of the Whole. Let us see whether there is any opposition to it.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois. I call for the regular order.

Mr. BURROWS. Allow me only a moment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The regular order is called for.

Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota. I would like to ask the gentleman from Maine one question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is upon the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. BURROWS. I desire to make a statement—a very brief one.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Until the call for the regular order is withdrawn nothing is in order but the question on the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota. I want to ask the gentleman from Maine one question.

Mr. REED. I would be glad to answer several.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa, proposing to fix 4 o'clock as the hour to which the House will take a recess.

Mr. CHEADLE and others called for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 5, nays 178, not voting 141; as follows:

YEAS—5.

Hayes,	Neal,	Washington,	Wheeler.
Kilgore,

NAYS—178.

Allen, Mass,	Elliott,	Lane,	Sawyer,
Allen, Mich.	Ermentrout,	Lawler,	Scull,
Anderson, Iowa	Farquhar,	Lee,	Seney,
Anderson, Ill.	Finley,	Lehlbach,	Seymour,
Baker, N. Y.	Flood,	Long,	Sherman,
Baker, Ill.	Foran,	Lyman,	Snyder,
Bayne,	Fuller,	Lynch,	Sowden,
Belden,	Gallinger,	Macdonald,	Spooner,
Biggs,	Gear,	Mansur,	Springer,
Bliss,	Gest,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Boothman,	Glass,	Matson,	Steele,
Bound,	Glover,	McAdoo,	Stephenson,
Boutelle,	Goff,	McClammy,	Stockdale,
Bowden,	Greenman,	McCormick,	Stone, Ky.
Bowen,	Grosvenor,	McCreary,	Stone, Mo.
Brewer,	Grout,	McKenna,	Symes,
Browne, T.H.B., Va.	Hall,	McKinley,	Taulbee,
Browne, Ind.	Harmer,	McRae,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Brown, Ohio	Hatch,	Milliken,	Thomas, Ky.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Haugen,	Moffitt,	Thomas, Wis.
Bryce,	Hemphill,	Morrill,	Tracey,
Buckalew,	Henderson, Iowa	Morrow,	Townshend,
Bunnell,	Henderson, N. C.	Nutting,	Turner, Kans.
Burnett,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Vandever,
Burrows,	Hermann,	O'Ferrall,	Wade,
Butterworth,	Hitt,	O'Neill, Pa.	Walker,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hogg,	Osborne,	Warner,
Campbell, Ohio	Holman,	Parker,	Weber,
Cannon,	Holmes,	Patton,	West,
Caruth,	Hopkins, Ill.	Payson,	White, Ind.
Caswell,	Hopkins, Va.	Penington,	White, N. Y.
Cheadle,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Perkins,	Whiting, Mich.
Chipman,	Houk,	Peters,	Whiting, Mass.
Cogswell,	Hovey,	Plumb,	Wickham,
Compton,	Hudd,	Post,	Wilber,
Cooper,	Hunter,	Pugsley,	Wilkins,
Cothran,	Johnston, Ind.	Randall,	Wilkinson,
Cox,	Johnston, N. C.	Reed,	Williams,
Dalzell,	Kean,	Rice,	Wise,
Davis,	Kelley,	Romeis,	Woodburn,
DeLano,	Kennedy,	Rowell,	Yardley,
Dibble,	Kerr,	Rowland,	Yoder,
Dingley,	Ketcham,	Russell, Conn.	Yost.
Dockery,	Laidlaw,	Russell, Mass.
Dorsey,	Laird,	Ryan,

NOT VOTING—141.

Abbott,	Crain,	Hutton,	Perry,
Adams,	Crisp,	Jackson,	Phelan,
Allen, Miss.	Crouse,	Jones,	Phelps,
Anderson, Miss.	Culberson,	Laffoon,	Pidcock,
Anderson, Kans.	Cummings,	La Follette,	Rayner,
Arnold,	Cutcheon.	Lagan,	Richardson,
Atkinson,	Dargan,	Landes,	Robertson,
Bacon,	Darlington,	Lanham,	Rockwell,
Bankhead,	Davenport,	Latham,	Rogers,
Barnes,	Davidson, Ala.	Lind,	Rusk,
Barry,	Davidson, Fla.	Lodge,	Sayers,
Belmont,	Dougherty,	Maffett,	Scott,
Bingham,	Dunham,	Mahoney,	Shaw,
Blanchard,	Dunn,	Maish,	Shively,
Bland,	Enloe,	Martin,	Simmons,
Blount,	Felton,	McComas,	Smith,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Fisher,	McCullogh,	Spinola,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Fitch,	McKinney,	Stewart, Tex.
Brower,	Ford,	McMillin,	Stewart, Ga.
Brumm,	Forney,	McShane,	Stewart, Vt.
Buchanan,	French,	Merriman,	Struble,
Burnes,	Funston,	Mills,	Tarsney,
Butler,	Gaines,	Montgomery,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bynum,	Gay,	Moore,	Thomas, Ill.
Campbell, T.J., N.Y.	Gibson,	Morgan,	Thompson, Ohio
Candler,	Granger,	Morse,	Thompson, Cal.
Carlton,	Grimes,	Nelson,	Tillman,
Catchings,	Guenther,	Newton,	Turner, Ga.
Clardy,	Hare,	Nichols,	Vance,
Clark,	Hayden,	Norwood,	Weaver,
Clements,	Heard,	Oates,	Whitthorne,
Cobb,	Herbert,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wilson, Minn.
Cockran,	Hiestand,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilson, W. Va.
Collins,	Hires,	Outhwaite,
Conger,	Hooker,	Owen,
Cowles,	Howard,	Peel,

So the House refused to take a recess until 4 o'clock.

During the roll-call the following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. SHIVELY with Mr. BROWER on this vote; and

Mr. HAYES with Mr. FELTON on all political questions, especially the tariff, until further notice.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate by Mr. MCCOOK, its Secretary, announced the passage with amendments, in which concurrence was requested, of a bill (H. R. 2077) to place on the pension-roll the name of William S. Sims.

It further announced the passage of bills of the following titles, namely:

A bill (H. R. 742) for the relief of John F. Cadwallader;

A bill (H. R. 1805) for a public building at Greenville, S. C.;

A bill (H. R. 7262) for the erection of a public building at Texarkana, situated on both sides of the line between the States of Arkansas and Texas;

A bill (H. R. 1262) granting the right of way to the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad through the Fort Crawford military reservation;

A bill (H. R 97) granting a pension to Ida B. Linthicum;

A bill (H. R. 122) for the relief of Julia A. Darrell;

A bill (H. R. 150) granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Shaw;

A bill (H. R. 159) granting a pension to Jane Thomas;

A bill (H. R. 183) granting a pension to the minor children of William Clark;

A bill (H. R. 407) granting a pension to George W. Burkhart;

A bill (H. R. 416) granting a pension to Thomas H. Aulls;

A bill (H. R. 418) granting a pension to William H. Brokenshaw;

A bill (H. R. 441) granting a pension to Eliza J. Currier;

A bill (H. R. 442) granting a pension to Emily B. Newell;

A bill (H. R. 459) for the relief of Elvira Cooper;

A bill (H. R. 499) granting a pension to Catharine Maxwell;

A bill (H. R. 509) granting a pension to James A. Haley;

A bill (H. R. 754) to increase the pension of Mrs. Eliza B. Anderson;

A bill (H. R. 782) granting a pension to Marble H. Baird;

A bill (H. R. 816) granting a pension to Charlotte Broad;

A bill (H. R. 818) granting a pension to Sarah E. Pribble;

A bill (H. R. 822) granting a pension to Miles S. Scribner;

A bill (H. R. 823) granting a pension to Hannah C. De Witt;

A bill (H. R. 824) granting a pension to Isaiah G. Mayo;

A bill (H. R. 893) granting a pension to Julia Stokes;

A bill (H. R. 2078) granting a pension to Charlotte T. Clark;

A bill (H. R. 2177) granting a pension to Mahala Robbins;

A bill (H. R. 2259) to grant a pension to Joab M. Haley;

A bill (H. R. 2416) granting a pension to Mrs. Hannah F. Brock;

A bill (H. R. 2456) for the relief of Judith Plummer;

A bill (H. R. 2491) granting a pension to John Bisbey;

A bill (H. R. 2498) granting a pension to Alonzo Higley;

A bill (H. R. 2518) granting an increase of pension to John Rowe;

A bill (H. R. 2662) for the relief of Mary M. Strong;

A bill (H. R. 2663) for the relief of Alonzo Alden;

A bill (H. R. 2694) granting a pension to Julia A. Griffen;

A bill (H. R. 2806) to increase the pension to James Woody;

A bill (H. R. 3183) for the relief of Kelsey Curtis;

A bill (H. R. 3488) granting a pension to Mary Dull;

A bill (H. R. 3490) granting a pension to James M. Berry;

A bill (H. R. 3603) to increase the pension of Maxwell Carroll;

A bill (H. R. 3682) to pension Emily Goodall;

A bill (H. R. 3711) granting a pension to Harriet V. Stockton;

A bill (H. R. 3849) granting a pension to Mrs. Martha M. Bagley;

A bill (H. R. 3870) granting a pension to Albert Nevin;

A bill (H. R. 4107) granting a pension to Laura D. Pierce;

A bill (H. R. 4516) granting a pension to Mrs. Delilah Agard;

A bill (H. R. 4550) granting a pension to Chloe Quiggle, widow of Phillip Quiggle;

A bill (H. R. 4633) granting a pension to Morris T. Mantor;

A bill (H. R. 4655) granting a pension to Mary J. Francis;

A bill (H. R. 4685) granting a pension to Lizzie F. Reed;

A bill (H. R. 4812) to grant a pension to Squire Admire;

A bill (H. R. 5176) granting a pension to Thomas J. Parker;

A bill (H. R. 5228) granting a pension to Clara M. Flanders;

A bill (H. R. 5236) granting an increase of pension to Mary K. Taylor;

A bill (H. R. 5247) granting a pension to William H. Brimmer;

A bill (H. R. 5363) granting a pension to David Johnson;

A bill (H. R. 5388) granting a pension to Elizabeth Buffington;

A bill (H. R. 5829) for the relief of Joseph Driskill;

A bill (H. R. 5911) granting a pension to Elizabeth J. Hascall;

A bill (H. R. 6343) to increase the pension of Nancy Rains, the oldest Revolutionary pensioner on the rolls, she being ninety-six years of age;

A bill (H. R. 6586) granting a pension to Nancy O. Gray;

A bill (H. R. 6732) granting a pension to Leora E. Gear;

A bill (H. R. 6908) granting a pension to William P. Witt;

A bill (H. R. 6974) for the relief of Mary E. Hawn, widow of Emanuel R. Hawn, late sergeant of the Forty-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteers, deceased;

A bill (H. R. 6984) granting a pension to Margaret E. Graves;
A bill (H. R. 7171) to restore to the pension-roll the name of Isaac Dilley;
A bill (H. R. 7856) granting a pension to Emma R. Johnson; and
A bill (H. R. 7891) for the relief of Cynthia J. Leroy.

It further announced the passage of bills of the following titles; in which concurrence was requested:

A bill (S. 1935) for the relief of Andrew T. McReynolds;
A bill (S. 2345) authorizing the construction of bridges across the Cape Fear River, Black River, and the Northeast River, in the State of North Carolina;
A bill (S. 1241) to prevent obstructive and injurious deposits within the harbor and adjacent waters of New York City by dumping or otherwise, and to punish and prevent such offenses;
A bill (S. 645) granting a pension to Mrs. Margaret B. Todd;
A bill (S. 655) granting an increase of pension to Mary Von Kusserow;
A bill (S. 734) granting a pension to James Hale;
A bill (S. 766) granting an increase of pension to John Moore;
A bill (S. 886) granting a pension to Sarah F. Jones;
A bill (S. 1041) granting a pension to Mary E. Walker, M. D.;
A bill (S. 1074) for the relief of J. W. McMillan;
A bill (S. 1110) granting a pension to Mrs. Fredericka Hauser;
A bill (S. 1122) granting an increase of pension to William Collinsworth;
A bill (S. 1126) granting a pension to Francis M. Yearian;
A bill (S. 1159) granting a pension to Alphonzo H. Melendy;
A bill (S. 1161) granting a pension to Mrs. Jennie Stone, widow of General Charles P. Stone;
A bill (S. 1266) granting a pension to Shelton Flaningam;
A bill (S. 1267) granting a pension to Joseph B. Tingley;
A bill (S. 1272) granting a pension to Helen A. Beebe;
A bill (S. 1314) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin M. Fisher;
A bill (S. 1320) granting a pension to Catherine M. Lee;
A bill (S. 1466) granting a pension to John Eckland;
A bill (S. 1488) granting an increase of pension to Louisa V. de Kilpatrick, widow of Maj. Gen. Judson D. Kilpatrick, United States Volunteers;
A bill (S. 1515) granting a pension to Helen Plunkett;
A bill (S. 1539) to increase the pension of James E. Gott;
A bill (S. 1552) for an increase of pension to Oscar K. Rogers;
A bill (S. 1577) granting a pension to Mary H. Casler;
A bill (S. 1658) granting a pension to William H. Shivers;
A bill (S. 1687) to restore J. Rock Williamson to the pension-rolls;
A bill (S. 1702) granting a pension to Joanna W. Turner;
A bill (S. 1737) granting a pension to Theodore Gardner;
A bill (S. 1744) granting a pension to William M. Davis;
A bill (S. 1749) granting a pension to Wealtha Young;
A bill (S. 1760) to increase the pension of Mrs. Laura Hooper Denby;
A bill (S. 1762) granting a pension to Benjamin A. Burtram;
A bill (S. 1831) granting a pension to Mrs. Mary Heap Nicholson;
A bill (S. 1867) granting a pension to Mrs. Mary Lo. Ristine;
A bill (S. 1877) granting a pension to Harriet L. Vaughan;
A bill (S. 1906) granting a pension to Matilda Bleumner;
A bill (S. 1942) granting a pension to Mrs. Ellen Courtney;
A bill (S. 1952) for the relief of Sigismund Bauer;
A bill (S. 1958) granting an increase of pension to Eleanor B. Goodfellow;
A bill (S. 1997) granting a pension to Peter Thompson;
A bill (S. 2006) granting a pension to Mary E. Noll, widow of Philip Noll;
A bill (S. 2014) granting a pension to John Farlow;
A bill (S. 2067) granting a pension to William O. Doyel;
A bill (S. 2087) granting a pension to Julia B. McComb;
A bill (S. 2088) granting a pension to Mattie V. Boothe and Mary M. Boothe;
A bill (S. 2100) granting a pension to Charles Tidmarsh;
A bill (S. 2108) granting a pension to George W. De Motte;
A bill (S. 2118) granting a pension to Richard H. Van Dorin;
A bill (S. 2129) to increase the pension of Mary M. Gibson, widow of Commander William Gibson;
A bill (S. 2138) granting an increase of pension to Ezra A. Miller;
A bill (S. 2183) granting a pension to Rachael Plummer;
A bill (S. 2206) granting a pension to David H. Lutman;
A bill (S. 2230) granting a pension to D. P. Hougland;
A bill (S. 2231) granting a pension to William N. Cline;
A bill (S. 2356) to provide a pension for Mrs. Adeline Couzins;
A bill (S. 2375) granting a pension to Joseph McGuckin;
A bill (S. 2419) granting a pension to Lemuel R. Rea;
A bill (S. 2447) granting a pension to Mary J. Goslee;
A bill (S. 2448) granting a pension to Catharine McQuade;
A bill (S. 2449) granting a pension to James W. Bowman;
A bill (S. 2520) granting a pension to James White; and
A bill (S. 2567) granting a pension to Nancy Polock.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend the proposition of the gentleman from Alabama so that the House shall take a recess until 4.20 p. m.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I ask the indulgence of the House to hear a proposition from me. As the matter stands now, the main question is upon the question to go into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the pending bill, the House having limited general debate to one hour. It has been submitted from the other side several times that that one hour be enlarged to two hours for general debate.

I now propose that the opponents of the bill may have the hour already ordered by the House lacking ten minutes; that then we proceed to debate the bill under the five-minute rule, as is usual in such cases; there being then no limitation by agreement, but the debate to go on the same as though we had proceeded without any obstruction. My proposition means just this, that of that one hour the gentlemen opposing the bill shall have fifty minutes and then we shall proceed under the five-minute rule to discuss amendments to the bill generally. I propose in this connection no limitation as to the vote, because there would be none naturally, and I only expect to accomplish in further proceedings what would result if my motion to go into Committee of the Whole was voted upon and carried, because then we would be subject to the order of the House afterwards. I have submitted this proposition in response to the proposition from the other side that there should be two hours for general debate, one hour on each side.

Mr. OATES. We asked two hours on our side. I will say in response to the proposition of the gentleman from Ohio that we will answer it a little later—an hour or so from now.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. If gentlemen on the other side prefer it, they may answer it on Monday. I ask, are they prepared at this moment by unanimous consent to have a recess until Monday?

Mr. OATES. I will let you know in a short time.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:
To Mr. PAYSON, indefinitely, on account of a death in his family.
To Mr. TRACEY, for ten days, on account of important business.
To Mr. PERRY, for one week, on account of important business.
To Mr. YARDLEY, for two days, on account of important business.

RETURN OF BILL TO THE SENATE.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a message from the Senate requesting the House of Representatives to return to the Senate the bill (S. 1498) granting to the city of Grand Forks, Dak., the right to build two free bridges at said city across the Red River.

There being no objection, the request was granted.

REFUND OF DIRECT TAX OF 1861.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the Chair will suspend the call of the roll for a moment until gentlemen decide on the proposition just submitted.

Mr. TOWNSHEND. I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess for thirty minutes.

Mr. REED. I object.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I ask unanimous consent to make a report from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. BURROWS. I object.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER], that the House take a recess until 4.20 p. m.

Mr. CHEADLE. I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri. I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri. Is a motion to indefinitely postpone in order?

The SPEAKER. It is not while a motion for a recess is pending. A motion for a recess has priority over a motion to postpone.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 4, nays 165, not voting 155; as follows:

YEAS—4.

Abbott,	Anderson, Ill.	Kilgore,	Neal.

NAYS—165.

Allen, Mass.	Bryce,	Crouse,	Glass,
Allen, Mich.	Buckalew,	Dalzell,	Goff,
Anderson, Iowa	Bunnell,	Davenport,	Greenman,
Baker, N. Y.	Burnett,	Davis,	Grosvenor,
Baker, Ill.	Burrows,	De Lano,	Grout,
Bayne,	Campbell, F., N. Y.	Dibble,	Hall,
Belden,	Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Dingley,	Harmer,
Biggs,	Caruth,	Dorsey,	Hatch,
Boothman,	Caswell,	Elliott,	Haugen,
Bound,	Cheadle,	Farquhar,	Hayden,
Bowden,	Chipman,	Finley,	Hemphill,
Bowen,	Cogswell,	Flood,	Henderson, Iowa
Brewer,	Compton,	Fuller,	Henderson, N. C.
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Conger,	Funston,	Hermann,
Browne, Ind.	Cooper,	Gallinger,	Hitt,
Brown, Ohio	Cothran,	Gear,	Holman,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Cox,	Gest,	Holmes,

Hopkins, Ill.	McClammy,	Romeis,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Hopkins, Va.	McCormick,	Rowell.	Thomas, Ky.
Hopkins, N. Y.	McKenna,	Rowland,	Thomas, Wis.
Houk,	McKinley,	Russell, Conn.	Tracey,
Hovey,	McRae,	Ryan,	Townshend,
Hudd,	Milliken,	Sawyer,	Turner, Kans.
Hunter,	Moffitt,	Scull,	Vandever,
Johnston, Ind.	Montgomery,	Seney,	Wade,
Johnston, N. C.	Morrill,	Seymour,	Walker,
Kean,	Morrow,	Sherman,	Warner,
Kelley,	Nichols,	Shively,	Weber,
Kennedy,	Nutting,	Simmons,	West,
Kerr,	O'Donnell,	Snyder,	White, N. Y.
Ketcham,	O'Ferrall,	Sowden,	Whiting, Mass.
La Follette,	O'Neill, Pa.	Spooner,	Wickham,
Laidlaw,	Osborne,	Stahlnecker,	Wilkins,
Lee,	Parker,	Steele,	Wilkinson,
Lehlbach,	Patton,	Stephenson,	Williams,
Long,	Penington,	Stewart, Vt.	Wise,
Lyman,	Peters,	Stockdale,	Woodburn,
Lynch,	Plumb,	Stone, Ky.	Yardley,
Maish,	Post,	Stone, Mo.	Yost.
Mason,	Pugsley,	Struble,
Matson,	Rayner,	Symes,
McAdoo,	Reed,	Taulbee,

NOT VOTING—155.

Adams,	Crisp,	Jackson,	Perry,
Allen, Miss.	Culberson,	Jones,	Phelan,
Anderson, Miss.	Cummings,	Laffoon,	Phelps,
Anderson, Kans.	Cutcheon,	Lagan,	Pidcock,
Arnold,	Dargan,	Laird,	Randall,
Atkinson,	Darlington,	Landes,	Rice,
Bacon,	Davidson, Ala.	Lane,	Richardson,
Bankhead,	Davidson, Fla.	Lanham,	Robertson,
Barnes,	Dockery,	Latham,	Rockwell,
Barry,	Dougherty,	Lawler,	Rogers,
Belmont,	Dunham,	Lind,	Russell, Mass.
Bingham,	Dunn,	Lodge,	Rusk,
Blanchard,	Enloe,	Macdonald,	Sayers,
Bland,	Ermentrout,	Maffett,	Scott,
Bliss,	Felton,	Mahoney,	Shaw,
Blount,	Fisher,	Mansur,	Smith,
Boutelle,	Fitch,	Martin,	Spinola,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Foran,	McComas,	Springer,
Breckinridge, K	Ford,	McCreary,	Stewart, Tex.
Brower,	Forney,	McCullogh,	Stewart, Ga.
Brumm,	French,	McKinney,	Tarsney,
Buchanan,	Gaines,	McMillin,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Burnes,	Gay,	McShane,	Thomas, Ill.
Butler,	Gibson,	Merriman,	Thompson, Ohio
Butterworth,	Glover,	Mills,	Thompson, Cal.
Bynum,	Granger,	Moore,	Tillman,
Campbell, Ohio	Grimes,	Morgan,	Turner, Ga.
Candler,	Guenther,	Morse,	Vance,
Cannon,	Hare,	Nelson,	Washington,
Carlton,	Hayes,	Newton,	Weaver,
Catchings,	Heard,	Norwood,	Wheeler,
Clardy,	Henderson, Ill.	Oates,	White, Ind.
Clark,	Herbert,	O'Neall, Ind.	Whiting, Mich.
Clements,	Hiestand,	O'Neill, Mo.	Whitthorne,
Cobb,	Hires,	Outhwaite,	Wilber,
Cockran,	Hogg,	Ower,	Wilson, Minn.
Collins,	Hooker,	Payson,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cowles,	Howard,	Peel,	Yoder.
Crain,	Hutton,	Perkins,

So the House refused to take a recess until 4 o'clock and 20 minutes.

During the roll-call,

Mr. GROSVENOR said: Mr. Speaker, I want to ask unanimous consent that at the close of each one of these roll-calls nothing be done for a period of five minutes, the time which it would take to read the names.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio can not interrupt the recapitulations of the names unless he has——

Mr. GROSVENOR. That is just what I am trying to do. If we were in a place where an ordinary man's voice could be heard the Chair would understand me. I am trying to relieve the clerks from the onerous burden of recapitulating these names after every roll-call, and as I do not wish to use up improperly any of the time which the gentlemen on the other side of this question want to destroy, my proposition is that we dispense with the reading of the names, and, at the end of each one of these roll-calls, do nothing for five minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR] asks unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the names. In the absence of objection, it will be so ordered.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. WHITTHORNE with Mr. HOUK, on all questions, until further notice.

Mr. ERMENTROUT with Mr. MCCOMAS, for this day.

Mr. HOGG with Mr. LAWLER, on this vote.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether I understood the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR].

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It was to dispense with the reading of the names upon this call.

Mr. OATES. That is the way I understood it. I have no objection to that. I do not understand that there is any agreement about the ridiculous business of sitting silent here after every roll-call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There is none. The Chair did not put any such proposition to the House.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until a quarter before 12 o'clock on Monday. I do this after consultation with several of the opponents of the bill, thinking that it may be a matter of some convenience to members, and feeling assured, from my knowledge of the feeling in the House this morning, that nothing will be accomplished by sitting here longer this afternoon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR] asks unanimous consent that the House now take a recess until 11.45 a. m. on Monday.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I have conferred on this question with as many of the gentlemen in accord with me as I could, and, this being Saturday and to-morrow Sunday, when, of course, no one desires to be in session here, I believe there is a unanimous opinion in favor of the proposition of the gentleman from Ohio.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, I do not purpose to make any captious objection. I would like to say, however, that I trust the gentlemen in charge of the opposite forces of this bill will so arrange matters between them as not to cut the Committee on the District of Columbia out of the day to which they are entitled. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair hears no objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR].

Mr. TAULBEE. I object. Let us have an understanding about this.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair did not understand the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. HEMPHILL] to object.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I did not object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair understood the gentleman as not objecting. The Chair recognized the gentleman to make a statement, which he has made. Does the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] object to the request of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR]?

Mr. TAULBEE. I do not object to taking a recess until a quarter before 12 o'clock on Monday; but I object to giving Monday to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There was nothing of that kind proposed.

Mr. TAULBEE. Well, if the Chair will indulge me, I did not catch distinctly the statement of the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. HEMPHILL], and I thought there was an effort being made to bring up the bill to promote anatomical science, to which I was going to object. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair hears no objection, and the House takes a recess until 11.45 a. m. on Monday next.

PRIVATE BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED.

Under the rule private bills of the following titles were introduced and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. W. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE: A bill (H. R. 9258) for the relief of Oldham County, Kentucky—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9259) for the relief of the heirs or legal representatives of Martha C. Ball, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. ROGERS: A bill (H. R. 9260) granting the right of way to the Fort Smith, Paris and Dardanelle Railway Company, to construct and operate a railroad, telegraph and telephone line from Fort Smith, Ark., through the Indian Territory, to or near Baxter Springs, in the State of Kansas, and authorizing said company to build a bridge across the Arkansas River, at or near the city of Fort Smith, Ark.—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9261) granting the right of way over the North and Hot Springs Mountains reservations, at Hot Springs, Ark.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. VOORHEES: A bill (H. R. 9262) to place John Gordon on the retired-list of privates and non-commissioned officers—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. T. L. THOMPSON: A bill (H. R. 9263) granting a pension to Abraham J. Buckles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. J. R. WHITING: A bill (H. R. 9264) for the relief of Mary Dockham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9265) for the relief of Nellie A. Baker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WICKHAM: A bill (H. R. 9266) granting a pension to Mrs. Charlotte Buck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOFFITT: A bill (H. R. 9267) for the relief of John B. Rodden—to the Committee on Claims.

PETITIONS, ETC.

The following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, under the rule, and referred as follows:

By Mr. C. H. ALLEN: Petition of William Walker & Co., of Lowell, Mass., for better postal facilities between New York and New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. E. P. ALLEN: Petition of Roswell Hicks and 48 others, citizens of Lenawee County, Michigan, in favor of more effectual protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. G. A. ANDERSON: Petition of S. P. Bennett, late postmaster at Pittsfield; of Armstrong Temple, at New Salem; of A. C. Hollenbeck, at Barry; of E. W. Baxter, at Griggsville; of Seth Gard, at New Canton; of J. E. Whitewack, at Jerseyville; of W. E. Pitt, at Jerseyville; of John I. White, at Jerseyville; of S. D. Chapin, at White Hall; of S. G. Gardner, at Kane; of Thomas A. Weisner, at Greenfield; of J. M. Cox, at Carrollton; of T. A. Weisner, of Greenfield, and of William Stevenson, of Little Indian, Ill., for relief—to the Committee on Claims.

Also petition of D. S. Marcey, late postmaster at Chandlerville; of H. T. Foster, at Beadstown; of J. T. Chennoworth, at Versailles; of S. R. Glenn, at Ripley; of Joseph Robinson, at Mound Station; of C. W. Pettigrew, at Cooperstown; of Edward Price, at Woodville; of R. T. Edwards, at Payson; of William Real, at Payson; of H. E. Hawkins, of Coatsburgh; of William Real, at Payson; of Eli Lloyd, of Clayton; of S. E. March, of Naples, and of Jesse D. Wood, of Clayton, Ill., for relief—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. BELDEN: Petition of Gus Maier and 26 others, cigar-makers of Syracuse, N. Y., against the repeal of the internal-revenue duties on cigars and cheroots—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BREWER: Petition of S. R. Billings, A. A. Elmore, and 300 others, citizens of Davison, Mich., for the passage of the service-pension bill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. T. M. BROWNE: Memorial of 123 farmers of Indiana, for increased duty on rye, potatoes, and other agricultural products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BUCHANAN: Petition of citizens of Princeton, N. J., in favor of preserving the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BURNETT: Petition for improved mail service in New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition against reducing tariff on clothing, and against removal of tax on flax—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CONGER: Resolutions of Typographical Union No. 118, of Des Moines, Iowa, for the passage of the Chace international copyright bill—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. CROUSE: Petition of C. A. Campbell and 42 others, of Hudson, Summit County, Ohio, for more efficient protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DAVENPORT: Petition of citizens of West Bloomfield, N. Y., for protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DE LANO: Petition of Thomas Panker and 40 citizens of Triangle, and of P. H. Loomis and 32 others, citizens of West Bainbridge, N. Y., for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DORSEY: Petition of the widow of John D. Batchelder, late postmaster at Galesburgh, Mich., for relief—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. FARQUHAR: Petition of Miss E. S. Harmon, for a pension—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. FORD: Petition of M. G. Manting and others of Holland, Mich., for protection to the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. GALLINGER: Petition of Richard P. Kent & Son, of Lancaster, and of Wilkinson & McGregor, of Keene, N. H., for quick mail transit between New York and New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GREENMAN: Petition of 15 citizens of Sandy Hill, N. Y., for the more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GROUT: Petition of S. S. Peach & Co., of Wells River, Vt., for improved mail facilities between New England and the West—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Henry M. Bemis and 36 others, citizens of Windham, Vt., in favor of increased protection to agricultural products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HERBERT: Petition of the Board of Railroad Commissioners of Alabama, for a uniform automatic train coupler and train brake—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. HOLMES: Petition of E. M. Parsons and 145 others, citizens of Carroll County, Iowa, against reduction of duty on flaxseed and linseed oil—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. S. T. HOPKINS: Petition of 18 farmers of Wallkill, N. Y., for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LANHAM: Petition of 18 citizens of Parker County and of 40 citizens of Erath County, Texas, for payment of Indian depredation claims—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. LEE: Petition of heir of Martha C. Ball, for reference of her claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LONG: Petition of Isaac Farrar, M. D., and 14 others, of Boston, Mass., for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. MASON: Petition of James F. Gyles, of Chicago, Ill., for relief—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. NEWTON: Petition of citizens of Monroe, La., against the Butterworth and Dawes lard bills—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of citizens of Bastrop, La., against the passage of any bill to tax cotton-seed oil, etc.—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. OUTHWAITE: Petition of Hon. J. B. Foraker and others, for the passage of Senate bill No. 283—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. PARKER: Petition of citizens of Jefferson, N. Y., in favor of better protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. PHELAN: Papers in the claim of Patrick G. Meatti, of Shelby County, Tennessee—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SHERMAN: Petition of Fox & Co. and 132 other citizens, and of John B. Cooper and 35 others, citizens of Oneida County, New York, praying that the tariff on glass be not reduced—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. STRUBLE: Joint resolution of the General Assembly of Iowa, praying for a law providing that when the United States land office at Des Moines, Iowa, may be discontinued, the records thereof may be permitted to remain in said city, in the custody of the secretary of state—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. VOORHEES: Petition of John Gordon, of Washington Territory, for the passage of a bill to place him on the retired-list—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. WEST: Petition of citizens of White Lake and of Long Eddy, N. Y., for more effectual protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WHITTHORNE: Petition of Stephen Jordan, administrator of Sarah T. Foster, of Maury County, and of Dr. Daniel German, heir of Elizabeth D. German, of Williamson County, Tennessee, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of John P. Kittrell, of Tennessee, for payment for loss of a horse in the Mexican war—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. WICKHAM: Petition of Charlotte Bucks, for relief—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

The following petitions for an increase of compensation of fourth-class postmasters were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. McCLAMMY: Of citizens of Lareta, Duplin County, North Carolina.

By Mr. NEWTON: Of citizens of Medwood, La.

By Mr. NICHOLS: Of B. B. Williams, M. D., and others, of Franklin County, North Carolina.

By Mr. O'FERRALL: Of citizens of Hamburgh, Shenandoah County, Virginia.

The following petitions, indorsing the per diem rated service-pension bill, based on the principle of paying all soldiers, sailors, and marines of the late war a monthly pension of 1 cent a day for each day they were in the service, were severally referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

By Mr. E. P. ALLEN: Of Isaac Biddlecomb and 61 others, ex-soldiers of Monroe and Wayne Counties, Michigan.

By Mr. BELDEN: Of John Beatty and 16 others, veteran soldiers of Homer, N. Y.

By Mr. BLISS: Of C. S. Hawkins and others, of New York.

By Mr. FORD: Of Orange C. Jubb and others, of Munica, Mich.

By Mr. HUNTER: Of ex-soldiers and sailors representing the Grand Army of the Republic posts and veteran organizations of New York, Kings, Queens, Suffolk, Richmond, and Westchester Counties, New York.

By Mr. McCORMICK: Of Allen M. Haight and 84 others, ex-soldiers of Tioga County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. MILLIKEN: Of William Hamilton and others, of Vermont.

By Mr. PATTON: Of 92 soldiers of Clarion County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. SENEY: Of Julius Bracher and 48 others, ex-Union soldiers of Crawford County, Ohio.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Of citizens of Lindenville, Ohio.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law providing temporary aid for common schools, to be disbursed on the basis of illiteracy, were severally referred to the Committee on Education:

By Mr. COX: Of Henry C. Houghton and 155 others, citizens of New York City.

By Mr. HAYES: Of J. Ellen Foster and others, of Muscatine, Iowa.

By Mr. ROWELL: Of C. H. Love and 32 others, citizens of Piatt County, Illinois.

SENATE.

MONDAY, April 9, 1888.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of Friday last was read and approved.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a letter from the Secretary of War, submitting an estimate of appropriation in the sum of $100,000 for the erection of a gymnasium for cadets at the Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the 4th instant, certain information in regard to the enforcement of the revenue laws against smuggling from Mexico and Canada; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore presented a petition of publishers and others, citizens doing business in New York City, praying for the passage of the House bill providing for the issue of fractional silver certificates in denominations of ten, fifteen, and twenty-five cents; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition signed by members of the Philadelphia Conference of Baptist Ministers, praying for the passage of a bill for the protection of girlhood in the District of Columbia; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also presented a petition of the Topeka (Kans.) Typographical Union, No. 121, praying for the passage of an international copyright law; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Kansas, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BERRY presented the petition of J. R. Harris, president of the Springdale (Ark.) Canning Company and 40 other citizens of Springdale, Ark., praying that tin-plate be placed on the free-list; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. WALTHALL presented the petition of W. L. Polk and 39 others, citizens of Warren County, Mississippi, praying for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. COCKRELL presented two petitions of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Xenia, Putnam County, Missouri, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, presented the petition of Thomas L. Hoffman, of Fairfield, Iowa, praying for the passage of a bill to reimburse him for money paid by him for the United States as rent of post-office at that place in accordance with the terms of a lease held by the United States on the premises occupied by the office; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of 8 citizens of Peoria, Iowa, praying for the passage of a bill granting to every surviving soldier of the war of 1861, or to his legal representative, 160 acres of land; which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also presented a petition of 15 citizens of Murray, Iowa, praying that salt be placed on the free-list; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of Typographical Union No. 118, of Des Moines, Iowa, praying for the passage of the Chace bill, providing for an international copyright; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. SHERMAN presented ten petitions, signed by 782 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Ohio, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions, as follows:

Two petitions of citizens of Harpersfield, Ashtabula County;
A petition of citizens of Sciota and Pike Counties;
A petition of citizens of Lindenville, Ashtabula County;
A petition of citizens of Ashtabula County;
Three petitions of citizens of Ohio;
A petition of citizens of Kinsman and Farmdale; and
A petition of citizens of Pemberville, Rochester, and other towns.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition of Typographical Union No. 3, of Cincinnati, Ohio, praying for the passage of the Chace international copyright bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PADDOCK presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Dawson County, Nebraska, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE presented the memorial of R. H. Emerson, of Jackson, Mich., remonstrating against the reduction of the duty on wood-pulp; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented the petition of T. S. Cobb and 34 others, citizens of Kalamazoo, Mich., praying for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PALMER presented the petition of A. W. Bowen and 28 other ex-Union soldiers, citizens of Barry, Calhoun, and Gaston Counties, and the petition of John G. Brown and 18 other ex-Union soldiers, citizens of Farwell, all in the State of Michigan, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of Typographical Union No. 99, of Michigan, praying for the passage of what is known as the Chace international copyright bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of A. B. George and 97 other citizens of Constantine, Mich., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. DAVIS presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, members of Maynard Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Elysian, Minn., praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of members of the Civil Engineers' Society of St. Paul, Minn., praying for the passage of Senate bill 1448, for the establishment of a bureau to be known as the bureau of harbors and water-ways, and for other purposes; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. CAMERON presented a communication from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting the memorial of Commander Joshua Bishop, United States Navy, remonstrating against the passage of Senate bill 2466, proposing to place him on the retired-list; which was referred, with the accompanying memorial, to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Coatesville, and a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Shippensville and vicinity, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Franklin County, Pennsylvania; petition of citizens of Mount Pleasant, Pa., and two petitions of citizens of Pennsylvania, praying for the repeal of that portion of the internal-revenue law which classes druggists as wholesale liquor dealers, and praying for the reduction of the tax on distilled spirits; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of Rush Grange, No. 797, Patrons of Husbandry, of Northumberland County, Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of a law for the eradication of pleuro-pneumonia among cattle, and for legislation relative to the Bureau of Animal Industry; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. TELLER presented a petition of 12 citizens of New Mexico, praying Congress to provide for the payment of Indian depradations committed on the frontier; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. MITCHELL presented a petition of citizens of Pennsylvania, praying for the repeal of that portion of the internal-revenue law which classes druggists as liquor dealers; also praying for the reduction of the tax on distilled spirits; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. PLATT presented a memorial of citizens of Maricopa County, Arizona Territory, remonstrating against the passage of the Senate bill providing for a commission to settle land-grant claims in Arizona and New Mexico; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. ALLISON presented the petition of Isaac Fowler, late a private in Company G, Twenty-sixth Regiment Kentucky Infantry Volunteers, praying to be allowed a pension of $8 a month; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of Typographical Union No. 118, of Des Moines, Iowa, praying for the passage of an international copyright law; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of 23 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Millersburgh, Iowa, and a petition of 22 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Madison Township, Buchanan County, Iowa, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented the petition of the Gilmen Canning Company and 19 other citizens of Gilmen, Iowa, praying for the passage of a bill placing tin-plate on the free-list; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a joint resolution of the General Assembly of Iowa; which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Joint resolution No. 17, contemplating the permanent retention at the capital of the State of Iowa of the records of the Government land office in Des Moines.

Whereas it has been the practice of the General Government upon the discontinuance of all Government land offices in a State to remove the records of such offices to Washington, D. C.; and

Whereas the best interests of the people of the State of Iowa require that all records pertaining to said State shall be permanently retained at our State capital: Therefore,

Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested, to procure, if possible, the passage of an act providing for the permanent retention at the capital of the State of the records of the Government land office in Des Moines, Iowa, whenever the offices of register and receiver of said office shall be discontinued by the proper authorities, in pursuance of law, said records to be turned over to the State of Iowa and placed under the care and control of the secretary of state, who shall provide for their safe-keeping and proper arrangement as public records.

Approved March 31, 1888.

I hereby certify that the foregoing joint resolution passed the senate and the house of representatives of the Twenty-second General Assembly of the State of Iowa and was approved by the governor.

[SEAL.] FRANK D. JACKSON,
Secretary of State.

Mr. HARRIS presented a petition of the faculty of Central Tennessee College, at Nashville, Tenn., and a petition of Typographical Union, No. 20, of Nashville, Tenn., praying for the passage of the international copyright bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. TURPIE presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of White County, Indiana, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PLUMB presented two petitions of citizens of Michigan, praying for the forfeiture of certain unearned land grants; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of members of Resaca Post, No. 80, Grand Army of the Republic, of Williamsburgh, Department of Kansas, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of the Solomon Gun Club and Game Protection Association of Solomon City, Kans., praying for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. SAWYER presented the petition of H. D. Fisher and 25 other citizens of Florence, Wis., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of J. W. Ewing and 128 other ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Boaz, Wis., praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of 56 citizens of the First Congressional district of Wisconsin, and a petition of 122 citizens of the Second and Ninth Congressional districts of Wisconsin, praying for prohibition in the District of Columbia; which were referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of 99 citizens of Dwight, Ill., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, officially signed, urging the adoption of amendments to the interstate-commerce act to prevent fraudulent practices on the part of dishonest shippers by misrepresentation of the true character and weight of goods offered for shipment; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Franklin County, Illinois; a petition of 39 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Cumberland County, Illinois, and a petition of 30 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Hamilton County, Illinois, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. VEST presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Putnam County, Missouri, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of the railroad commissioners of the State of Missouri, praying that the Interstate Commerce Commission be instructed to inquire into the subject of car-coupling, the heating of cars, etc., with a view to reforms therein; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. FRYE presented the petition of Robert Dobson & Co. and others, manufacturers of woolen goods in the State of Maine, praying for the passage of a joint resolution authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to classify as woolen cloth all worsted cloths, whether known under the name of woolen cloth, worsteds, diagonals, or otherwise; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented two petitions of Mrs. E. W. Clark and others, officers and members of the Philadelphia Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary Conference of Unitarian Churches; two petitions of Susan I. Lesley and others, citizens of Pennsylvania; two petitions of Fanny B. Ames and others, citizens of Pennsylvania; the petition of Mary T. Gawthrop and others, citizens of the United States; the petition of Anna Hallowell and others, citizens of the United States; the petition of John Marsellus and others, citizens of Syracuse, N. Y.; the petition of E. G. Thurber and others, citizens of New York; the petition of Mrs. S. G. Anderson and others, citizens of Syracuse, N. Y.; the petition of Mrs. Mary E. Bagg and others, citizens of Syracuse, N. Y.; the petition of Mrs. Caroline B. Martin and others, citizens of Syracuse, N. Y.; and the petition of Mrs. H. G. Merriman and others, citizens of New York, praying for the passage of a law raising the age of consent in woman to eighteen years; which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. EVARTS presented a memorial of the curled hair manufacturers of the United States, remonstrating against the placing of curled hair for beds or mattresses upon the free-list; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented the petition of W. N. Anderson and 12 other citizens of New York City; and the petition of B. D. Skinner and 19 other citizens, of Greenport, Suffolk County, New York, praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, providing proper protection and adequate Government protection for the Yellowstone National Park; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Oswego (N. Y.) Board of Trade, and a petition of the common council of Ogdensburgh, N. Y., praying for the passage of House bill 8064, for the construction of a ship-canal around Niagara Falls in the State of New York; which were referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented the memorial of Snow and Burgess, and 34 other business men and firms of New York City, remonstrating against the passage of Senate bill 1448, to create a national bureau of harbors and water-ways; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a concurrent resolution of the senate and assembly of New York; which was referred to the Committee on Finance, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATE OF NEW YORK, IN SENATE,
Albany, February 28, 1888.

Resolved (if the assembly concur), That our Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of New York be respectfully requested to secure the enactment of a law in effect as follows:

Whenever any State shall impose a tax upon the wholesale and retail dealers in spirituous or malt liquors, ale, or wine, in said State, to be paid into the treasury thereof, for the use of the State, equal to the tax or license fee now imposed thereon by the United States Government, the said tax, when so paid, shall be in lieu of the said United States tax or license fee: Provided, however, That such tax shall be in addition to any tax or license fee imposed by such State, and in force at the time of the enactment of the proposed United States law, and shall be maintained thereafter without diminution.

By order.

JOHN S. KENYON, Clerk.

IN ASSEMBLY, March 27, 1888.

Concurred in without amendment.
By order.

C. A. CHICKERING, Clerk.

Mr. EVARTS presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, representing the Grand Army posts and veteran organizations of New York, Kings, Queens, Suffolk, Richmond, and Westchester Counties, New York; a petition of the Per Diem Rated Service-Pension Association of the State of New York; a petition of 673 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Allegany County, New York; a petition of 75 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Port Byron, Cayuga County, New York; a petition of 17 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Auburn, Cayuga County, New York; a petition of 108 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Delaware County, New York; a petition of 43 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Geneva, Cayuga County, New York; a petition of 76 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Weedsport, Cayuga County, New York; and a petition of 16 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Cairo, Greene County, New York, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GORMAN presented the petition of the trustees of the First Methodist Protestant Church of the District of Columbia, praying for the remission of certain taxes; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. HALE presented the petition of John B. Redman and 83 others, citizens of Ellsworth, Me., praying for the passage of a bill granting arrears of pensions, at the rate of $8 per month, to Alden W. Treworgy, late of Company B, Sixth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented the petition of D. D. Dana, formerly provost-marshal of the Third Brigade of the Twenty-second Army Corps, praying for relief on account of services performed in the capture of the assassins of President Lincoln; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of citizens of Nebraska in favor of organizing a Territory out of Oklahoma, locating Indians on lands in the Indian Territory, and opening portions to settlement, etc., asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs; which was agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1401) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of D. Thomas Andrews, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 193) for the relief of John H. Sayers, of Michigan, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

He also, from the same committee, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (H. R. 108) for the relief of John C. Weaver;

A bill (S. 304) to correct the military record of John Hinsmann;

A bill (S. 586) for the relief of Asher W. Foster;

A bill (S. 66) giving a military record to Thomas Miller; and

A bill (S. 587) for the relief of Christian Fredericksen.

Mr. ALLISON, from the Committee on Appropriations, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6984) making appropriations for the support of the Military Academy for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, reported it with amendments.

Mr. TELLER, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2427) to establish a public park to be called and known as the Royal Arch Park, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 671) for the relief of the heirs of John S. Fillmore, deceased, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2316) restoring the right of pre-emption to Jesse A. Corn, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. GEORGE. The Committee on the Judiciary instruct me to report adversely the bill (S. 442) to extend the time for filing claims in the Court of Claims under the provisions of an act entitled "An act to provide for the ascertainment of claims of American citizens for spoliations committed by the French prior to July 31, 1801."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If there be no objection, the bill will be postponed indefinitely.

Mr. FRYE. I ask that the bill be placed on the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be placed on the Calendar, if there be no objection, with the adverse report of the committee.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION AT BRUSSELS.

Mr. PAYNE. The Committee on Foreign Relations, to which was referred a message of the President of the United States, transmitting a communication from the Secretary of State in relation to participating in the international exhibition at Brussels, instruct me to report a joint resolution appropriating $30,000 for the international exhibition at Brussels.

The joint resolution (S. R. 70) appropriating $30,000 for the international exhibition in Brussels, Belgium, was read the first time by its title.

Mr. PAYNE. In view of the very short time remaining before the opening of the exhibition, I have been instructed by the committee to ask for immediate action on the joint resolution.

By unanimous consent, the joint resolution was read the second time, and considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

VALIDITY OF PATENTS.

Mr. TELLER. I am instructed by the Committee on Patents, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 5673) to give validity to certain patents for inventions which were irregularly executed, to report it favorably without amendment. The bill is to correct what it seems may be an error in the administration of the Interior Department, and it was brought in at the request of the Department. I ask unanimous consent that it may be passed. It is a House bill.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It provides that all patents for inventions signed by David L. Hawkins, Second Assistant Secretary of the Interior, or any other Assistant Secretary of the Interior, shall have the same force, effect, and validity as though they had been signed by the Secretary of the Interior in person at the date on which they were respectively executed.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

COURTS IN MISSOURI.

Mr. VEST. I am instructed by the Committee on the Judiciary to report favorably without amendment the bill (H. R. 8044) to change the time of the sessions of the circuit and district courts of the northern division of the eastern district of Missouri. I ask for the present consideration of the bill. It is a mere local question in regard to the time of holding courts, and unless passed now the bill will be inoperative for the coming term of the courts.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SAN JUAN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO.

Mr. BUTLER. I am instructed by the Committee on Territories to report favorably with an amendment the bill (H. R. 1983) to ratify an act entitled "An act creating the county of San Juan," in the Territory of New Mexico, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. BUTLER. The committee report an amendment as a substitute for sections 2 and 3.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment of the committee will be read.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to strike out sections 2 and 3, and to add to section 1 the following:

and Aztec, the place heretofore appointed by the supreme court of the said Territory for the transaction of judicial business, be, and the same is hereby, declared to be the county seat of said county of San Juan until otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 2. That nothing in the act approved July 30, 1886, entitled "An act to prohibit the passage of local or special laws in the Territories of the United States, to limit Territorial indebtedness, and for other purposes," shall be construed to prohibit the creation by Territorial Legislatures of new counties and the location of the county seats thereof.

So as to make the bill read:

That the act of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of New Mexico, passed February 24, 1887, entitled "An act creating the county of San Juan," be, and the same is hereby, ratified and confirmed, and Aztec, the place heretofore appointed by the supreme court, etc.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. I wish to ask the Senator from South Carolina in charge of the bill whether this proposed county interferes with the boundaries of either Lincoln County or Doña Ana County?

Mr. BUTLER. Not in the slightest, as I am informed; it has nothing whatever to do with those boundaries. The Committee on Territories have had the bill to which the Senator from Missouri refers under consideration, and it relates to an entirely separate and distinct matter.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. BUTLER. I move that the Senate insist on its amendment to the bill, and ask for a conference on the disagreeing votes between the two Houses.

The amendment was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the President pro tempore was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. DAVIS, Mr. STEWART, and Mr. BUTLER were appointed.

ROBERT JOHNSTON.

Mr. PUGH. From the Committee on the Judiciary, I report favorably the bill (H. R. 4811) for the relief of Robert Johnston, of the State of New York, and ask for its present consideration.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HARRIS. Let it be read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be read for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted etc. (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That Robert Johnston, of the State of New York, is hereby relieved of all political disabilities imposed upon him by the third section of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Having been read at length, a further reading will be waived, if there be no objection.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed, two-thirds of the Senators present voting in the affirmative.

HEARING BEFORE COMMITTEE ON POST-OFFICES AND POST-ROADS.

Mr. SAWYER. I am requested by the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads to ask permission to have printed for the use of the committee the argument made before that committee this morning on House bill 4910, to amend section 14 of the act approved March 3, 1879, entitled "An act making appropriations for the service of the Post-Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, and for other purposes," and relating to second-class mail matter.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be so ordered, if there be no objection.

LETTER OF A. H. MARKLAND.

Mr. HAWLEY. Some time ago the Postmaster-General transmitted, in compliance with a Senate resolution of February 24, 1888, a letter of A. H. Markland, superintendent of railway mail service during the late war, which was laid on the table in order that I might make certain inquiries. I now ask that it be printed in the usual way.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be so ordered, if there be no objection.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. MORGAN introduced a bill (S. 2632) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868;" which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. FRYE introduced a bill (S. 2633) to regulate signal lights on sailing vessels at sea; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. ALLISON introduced a bill (S. 2634) to promote and perpetuate peace between the United States and Great Britain and France by the establishment of a permanent international court of arbitration to which all differences that may hereafter arise between these nations may be referred; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. CHANDLER introduced a bill (S. 2635) for the completion of the collection of the direct tax imposed by the act of August 5, 1861; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, introduced a bill (S. 2636) for the relief of Thomas L. Hoffman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2637) granting a pension to Mansfield Harrison; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2638) granting a pension to Mrs. Emma Dill; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 2639) granting a pension to Mrs. Louisa Ward; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. EVARTS introduced a bill (S. 2640) authorizing the Postmaster-General to adopt a device for canceling postage-stamps; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2641) for the relief of the sufferers by capture and destruction of the Hawaiian vessel Harvest by the Confederate vessel Shenandoah; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2642) extending the criminal jurisdiction of the circuit and district courts to the Great Lakes and their connecting waters; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. DOLPH introduced a bill (S. 2643) to provide for the payment of certain Indian depredation claims; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. BERRY introduced a bill (S. 2644) granting the right of way to the Fort Smith, Paris and Dardanelle Railway Company to construct and operate a railroad, telegraph, and telephone line from Fort Smith, Ark., through the Indian Territory, to or near Baxter Springs, in the State of Kansas, and authorizing said company to build a bridge across the Arkansas River at or near the city of Fort Smith, Ark.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. HALE introduced a bill (S. 2645) granting arrears of pension to Alden W. Treworgy; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2646) granting a pension to Danville A. Ricker; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 2647) regulating the practice in certain cases in the Post-Office Department; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. DAVIS (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2648) to provide for the organization of the Territory of Alaska; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Territories.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2649) granting a pension to William Doan; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GEORGE introduced a bill (S. 2650) to change the time of the meeting of the district court of the southern district of Mississippi, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. MORGAN (by request) introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 71) providing for the ascertainment and report by the Secretary of State of the claim of the legal representatives of Walter H. Stevens, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS NEEDED AT WASHINGTON.

Mr. RIDDLEBERGER submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds be directed to inquire and report what additional public buildings in the city of Washington are needed for the General Government to carry on properly its necessary business and protect the public records, the estimated cost thereof, and, in connection therewith, report the sums annually expended by the several Departments of the Government for rented buildings in the city of Washington.

LANDS IN KLAMATH COUNTY, OREGON.

Mr. MITCHELL submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, directed to transmit to the Senate copies of all reports of Special Agent Shackleford touching lands in Klamath County, Oregon, claimed by the State of Oregon under the swamp-land grant.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL MESSAGE.

Mr. MORRILL. I desire to give notice that on Wednesday, immediately after the morning business, I shall seek the floor for the purpose of making some remarks upon the President's message.

Mr. COKE. I give notice that on Thursday next I shall ask the unanimous consent of the Senate to take from the table and consider the resolution submitted by the Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN] referring the President's message to the Committee on Finance, with a view of offering some remarks upon it.

RIVER AND HARBOR IMPROVEMENT WORKS.

Mr. DOLPH submitted the following report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the joint resolution (H. Res. 81) to authorize the purchase of the lands necessary for the construction of locks and dams on the Cumberland River, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same with amendments as follows:

In line 7 of the Senate amendment, before the word "prosecute," insert the words "maintain, operate, or," and at the end of said Senate amendment add the following:

"And provided further, That the Secretary of War is hereby authorized to accept donations of lands or materials required for the maintenance or prosecution of such works."

And the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 2, and agree to the same.

J. N. DOLPH,
WILLIAM P. FRYE,
G. G. VEST,
Managers on the part of the Senate.
NEWTON C. BLANCHARD,
CHARLES STEWART,
THOMAS J. HENDERSON,
Managers on the part of the House.

The report was concurred in.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. HARRIS. If there be no further morning business, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Order of Business 699.

Mr. CALL. If in order, I desire to call up a resolution.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. I desire to ask the unanimous consent of the Senate to take up the bill (H. R. 6051) regulating the times for holding the terms of the United States courts in the northern district of Iowa.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS] has previously moved the consideration of a bill.

Mr. STEWART. By unanimous consent, the alien land bill was set for this morning immediately after the morning business. It will take but a few moments to dispose of it, I think.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. The bill I wish to call up will take but a moment.

Mr. STEWART. I hope the alien land bill will not be displaced by anything else.

Mr. HARRIS. I will say to the Senator from Nevada that if the bill I ask the Senate now to consider shall lead to discussion or to the consumption of time, I shall not insist on continuing it. My opinion is that it will not take ten minutes to dispose of it. I do not think it will take five. The bill I move to consider is Order of Business 699.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill moved by the Senator from Tennessee will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 1889) to authorize the Tennessee Midland Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Tennessee River.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President——

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair will direct the reading of an entry in the Journal of Friday last.

The Secretary read as follows:

On motion of Mr. STEWART, the Senate proceeded to consider, as in Committee of the Whole, the bill (S. 1176) to authorize the sale to aliens of certain mineral lands, and the reported amendment having been agreed to,

On motion of Mr. FAULKNER, and by unanimous consent,

Ordered, That the further consideration thereof be postponed until Monday next, and that the bill be taken up at the close of morning business.

Mr. HARRIS. In view of that entry I will withdraw my motion, and give notice that immediately upon the disposition of that bill I shall ask the Senate to consider the bill I have already indicated.

Mr. CALL. I ask as a question of order whether a resolution offered on a previous day is not to be laid before the Senate as the first business.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. There are no resolutions on the table coming over from a previous day.

Mr. CALL. There is a resolution on the table coming over from a previous day, as I understand that term. It is a resolution instructing the Committee on Public Lands to report a bill declaring all patents on the public lands of the United States issued by the Secretary of the Interior without authority of law to be absolutely void, and requiring the Attorney-General of the United States to bring suit to vacate and set aside the same.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the operation of the rules of the Senate, that resolution was passed to the Calendar, and it can only be taken up on motion.

Mr. CALL. If the Senator from Nevada has no objection I should like to take up that resolution. I do not desire to occupy at any great length the time of the Senate, but if the Senator from Nevada will consent I will make a motion to take up the resolution.

Mr. STEWART. We have had the alien land bill up so much that I think we ought to dispose of it. It will take but a few minutes—less time than it will to discuss what we shall take up. I do not like to object to the Senator's request, but let the alien land bill be disposed of, which will take but a few moments, I think, and then we can go on with the Senator's resolution.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. CLARK, its Clerk, announced that the House had concurred in the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the joint resolution (H. Res. 81) to authorize the purchase of the lands necessary for the construction of locks and dams on the Cumberland River.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills and joint resolutions; and they were thereupon signed by the President pro tempore:

A bill (S. 258) for the relief of Maj. Daniel N. Bash, paymaster, United States Army;

A bill (S. 1371) for the relief of Alfred Hedberg;

A bill (S. 1387) authorizing the appointment of James S. Jouett to a first lieutenancy of cavalry in the United States Army;

Joint resolution (H. Res. 140) appropriating $25,000 for the international exhibition at Barcelona, Spain; and

Joint resolution (S. R. 5) in relation to the claim of John B. Read against the United States for the alleged use of projectiles for rifled ordnance claimed as the invention of the said Read and by him alleged to have been used pursuant to a contract or arrangement made between him and the War Department in 1856, for which no compensation has been made.

ALIEN OWNERSHIP OF MINERAL LANDS.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 1176) to authorize the sale to aliens of certain mineral lands.

Mr. FAULKNER. Mr. President, remembering the courtesy the Senate has heretofore extended to me, I shall endeavor to show my appreciation of that courtesy by making my remarks very brief, and simply setting out my objections as a member of the Committee on Mines and Mining to the passage by the Senate of the bill now before it for consideration.

The bill does not seem on its face to be of very extensive operation; but when you take into consideration the condition of the law as it existed prior to the passage of the act of 1887, it strikes me that this bill is fraught with a great deal of danger to the country, and announces a new and revolutionary principle in reference to the holding of the title to land in the United States by aliens. As I understand it, the act of 1887 is the first that has been passed in this country by the Congress of the United States to affect the question of the holding of real estate by aliens. Prior to the passage of that act we had no law which applied to the Territories and to the District of Columbia in reference to this subject, except as to parties who were entitled to obtain patents from the Government for the public lands. Those patents were limited by the policy of the Government to citizens of the United States and those who had declared their intention to become citizens, and the act of 1887 excluded thereafter any alien from the right to acquire any of the public lands or any mining rights from the patentee or subsequent purchaser.

Therefore I say the act of 1887 was the first announcement by the legislative department of the American Government that hereafter all the real estate held in trust by that Government for the people of this Union, and more particularly for the people of the Territories in which it might be located, should be dedicated forever to the ownership of American citizens.

It was then, for the first time, that the United States announced the principle that they intended to control the alienation of real estate in the Territories, not only as to agricultural and grazing, but also as to mining rights. What was the condition of the law, as I understand it at least, prior to the passage of that act? My construction of the law prior to the passage of the act of 1887 is, not that the act of 1887 brought into our law a new principle, but that it was an affirmation of a well-settled principle of law existing prior to the adoption of that act, and the passage of this amendatory bill is now to announce a different policy from that proclaimed by this Government at the time of the enactment of that law.

I know of no country operating under the common law of England which gives to an alien the right to come in and purchase real estate, or to a foreign corporation owing its existence to a foreign government the right to come in and purchase real estate without legislative authority. The Supreme Court of the United States, in 13 Peters, laid down the rule that where a corporation created by the laws of one State was doing business or operating by the comity between the States in another State, that comity which existed between the States did not confer upon that corporation the right to hold real estate unless there was some legislative authority to do so from the State in which the land was located. That has been the recognized rule of construction by all departments of this Government, as I have always understood, up to the movement made by the Committee on Mines and Mining in the introduction of this bill.

Mr. MITCHELL. May I ask the Senator a question?

Mr. FAULKNER. Yes, sir.

Mr. MITCHELL. Does the Senator hold that in the absence of the alien land act aliens could not invest in mining property in the Territories of the United States?

Mr. FAULKNER. That is my judgment, with this limitation, that the Supreme Court of the United States, in a case decided in 101 United States Reports, admitted the principle by which the rights of parties may have been acquired, where it is said that if it is not against the declared policy of the State in which the corporation is doing business, then by reason of the peculiar comity existing in the relations between the States of this Union, the court would sustain the right of that corporation to hold land in the State where it was doing business, not being the State of its creation. That is the limitation there put upon the decision in 13 Peters. But the Senate will remember that in the discussion I have made so far, that limitation is only in reference to (and is distinctly stated and put upon that ground by the Supreme Court) the peculiar relations existing between the States of this Union under the form of government which binds them together. I know of no decision that would overrule these views; and if these views are true and the doctrine applied by the Supreme Court to corporations created by one State and operating in another could by analogy be held to extend to foreign corporations exercising their powers in some of our States to corporations organized by foreign powers, there is no necessity for this bill. The last decision to which I have referred was placed on the ground of the comity between the States of this Union on account of their relations to each other under our Constitution. That is the pith of the argument of the court in 13 Peters. Even if we draw no distinction between a corporation in one of our States and one in a foreign country doing business in another State, it strikes me that the principle is clear that unless there was a comity existing here which by some distinct act of the legislative department recognized the right of a foreign corporation to come here and purchase lands, the case would come under the original common-law doctrine that an alien or a foreign corporation can not go into another jurisdiction and hold lands without the consent of the sovereignty in which the lands are located.

Now, assuming that to be true, the question is whether there was any legislation by Congress prior to the act of 1887 that in any way affected that point. I am at a loss to find it if there has been. I find no declaration in any act of Congress under which the right of an alien or of a foreign corporation to come in and acquire land within the limits of a Territory or the District of Columbia can be claimed; and unless the Supreme Court of the United States should hold that by reason of the fact that there was no adverse legislation by Congress in this long period, therefore the comity of States would justify them in holding that it was against the declared policy of Congress to prevent aliens to hold real estate within the Territories, then I should say that under the decisions of that court they could not acquire any valid title within the Territories or the District of Columbia, and I think that that has been the general judgment, as shown by the actual results.

So far as I am able to learn from the statistics furnished by the Government, I can find no record in any Territory of any mining right owned by any foreign corporation, except in the Territory of Utah. In every other Territory such rights are guarded by local legislation, and foreigners are absolutely excluded by the very terms of the law itself. Then the act of Congress of 1887 steps in and declares that real estate shall not be held by aliens in the Territories of the United States, and shall only be owned by citizens of the United States and those who have declared their intentions to become such. That was the direct enunciation of an affirmative policy by Congress. Was that legislation unwise, ill-advised, against the interests of this Government? Was it not the calm, deliberate expression of the wisdom of the Senate and of the House of Representatives but one year ago? Has the legislative body so changed since that period, or have circumstances so developed the erroneous views held by the Senate and House of Representatives in the passage of that law as to show that they committed an error in policy which should be reversed? If so, I have been unable to ascertain that that has been demonstrated.

Now, for myself I am unwilling, because this bill comes in as an amendment to that law prohibiting aliens from holding real estate in the Territories, to consent to this change of policy. The bill is drawn with great ingenuity. It does not appear on the face of it to announce some new principle, but it says that nothing in the act of 1887 shall be construed as affecting the rights of aliens to hold mining rights, mining claims, etc. What would necessarily be the legal construction by a court of the bill if passed by Congress? Congress passed a law that excluded aliens from holding agricultural and grazing lands and mineral lands, and the attention of Congress having been called by an act framed in this way to the fact that it did embrace mineral lands, it declares to the world that the law existing prior to the passage of the act of 1887, in its judgment and according to the policy the Government had been pursuing in reference to this subject, was not applicable to the subject of mines.

I think, sir, that the bill on its face does not meet the question with that squareness and fairness with which the Legislature should meet it. It refuses to declare in the face of the decisions of the Supreme Court that such was the policy of Congress prior to 1887; and I venture to assert that any such legislation will not be sustained by the Senate. If that is so, then bring in a fair bill that meets the question squarely and declares that the policy heretofore construed by the Supreme Court to be the law of this land shall be reversed, and that hereafter aliens shall be entitled to hold these rights.

That is the view I take of this bill. If you pass it, what is the result? You not only allow the alien individually to come here and procure these mining rights; you not only allow partnerships, which to some extent aggregate capital, composed of foreigners to purchase these mining rights and mining claims, but you also allow—and that is the real purpose of the bill as I shall be able to demonstrate to the Senate—corporations formed in England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Belgium, Germany, or anywhere, to come here, clothed with life simply by a foreign power, controlled in all their functions as corporations by a foreign authority, to acquire mining rights and mineral lands in our Territories. The Supreme Court has held that although you may recognize the existence of a foreign corporation within the State in which it is doing business, yet that it is absolutely under the control and power and dominion of the authority that gave to it its creation and breathed into it the breath of life; and so far has the court gone in the case in 109 United States Reports, to which I have alluded, that although the contract with the foreign corporation was made in the city of New York, and it was payable there and it received the money under its contract there, yet under the laws of the Dominion of Canada the contract made in New York was annulled; and the Supreme Court held that Canada had a right to do it, and that every one who transacted business with a foreign corporation must be aware of the legal principle that the law which created it governed as to the rights and remedies and as to the powers of that government to control it as well as to creditors as to individual stockholders. In that case an arrangement made by the Dominion of Canada through its parliament was sustained, and the court announced the principle of absolute control by a foreign power over its corporations.

Mr. President, I am opposed to investing a foreign creature, controlled by foreign capital, managed by foreign agencies, whose sympathies are alien to the sympathies of the people of this country—I am opposed to investing that creature, which has neither body nor soul, with the power to come into this country or its Territories and to purchase any number of tracts of mining lands that it may deem proper according to its own interest, led by its cupidity, its interest, or its policy, because there is no limitation in the laws of the Union to-day that controls the number of mining rights or claims that may be acquired by any particular corporation or individual. For that reason also I am opposed to this bill.

There is another view that I take of this matter, Mr. President. As I understand the law, Congress has the supreme legislative power over the Territories. We have created Territorial Legislatures and we assume that Territorial Legislatures announce the local sentiment of those Territories. Now, what is the corporation law of almost every Territory in this country?

Mr. STEWART. I should like to inquire of the Senator from West Virginia if there is any law in his State that prevents an alien from owning an interest in a mine?

Mr. FAULKNER. None that I know of.

Mr. STEWART. Nor is there in any other State.

Mr. FAULKNER. The Senator's question would be pertinent if this was a State legislative body, legislating in the interest and for the benefit of the citizens of that State. I am not giving my views of the state of things in a State; and that is not at all in point here. Whatever my views on this subject may be, they are applicable to the Territories. If the same state of facts existed in my State and I was a legislator in that State, I would enforce these views there as well as here.

Mr. REAGAN. If the Senator from West Virginia will allow me, I will state, in response to the inquiry of the Senator from Nevada, that I do not understand that there is a difference between acquiring an interest in mining property and other lands, and that while a foreigner may purchase land in the States and a quantity in the Territories also, he holds it subject to office found and can not take by inheritance. It has been generally the policy to prevent aliens holding real estate.

Mr. FAULKNER. We are the supreme legislative power over the Territories. I recognize that to be the fact. At the same time we have vested legislative authority in the local Legislatures of the Territories. I think the Legislatures of those Territories express the local public sentiment of their constituents when they enact laws for the benefit and guidance and direction of the people of the Territories under and within the scope of the authority derived from the General Government. Why is it, if they do not want to establish a policy, that in all their laws they require the charter members of corporations to be citizens of the United States and residents of the Territory? This is an indication of popular sentiment in the Territories that the parties who shall become corporators in the Territory shall be citizens of the United States and also residents of the Territory. That has been the law in almost every Territory.

Others go further and provide that a majority of the trustees or directors of every corporation in the Territory shall be American citizens. Why? Simply in order that the interests of the corporators shall be controlled and guided and protected by those who are identified in interest not only with the Territory, but also with the Government of the United States.

Now, sir, it need not be said that the fact that these limitations are put on the local laws does not exclude foreign corporations. I should hold, speaking only for myself, that the fact that these limitations were in the laws as to corporations was a declaration of a policy by the Legislatures of the Territories that foreign corporations should not come in there and have the rights and privileges of American corporations.

But I go further. In the Territory of Washington the law is express, clear, and explicit; it leaves no room for doubt. When it comes to mining it says in distinct terms that none but corporations formed within the States of the United States or in the Territories shall mine within the limits of that Territory. There is a declaration by the legislative agents elected by the people of that Territory as to their local sentiments and local interests in reference to this matter, and that has been the law.

It was not the impulse of a moment that created that act, because years after its passage, when they found it was necessary to allow foreign corporations created elsewhere than in their own Territory or in the United States, they went on and permitted a foreign corporation by express act of the Legislature to be created for the purpose of building railroads, tramways, bridges, etc., and limited and controlled the powers of any foreign corporation within the Territory of Washington to those particular functions authorized by that particular enactment.

I have not been able to find any decisions in that Territory or the others with reference to the construction of these laws, and yet they have been enacted in the full blaze of local criticism, liable to be overruled by a superior power; but in no instance has Congress interfered with any such Territorial legislation.

Mr. President, I am satisfied from what I have seen here that there is no reason for this bill under any view that can be taken of it. I say that anybody who will examine the statistics of our precious metals year by year will be satisfied that the mining industries of this country are being sufficiently developed now; and I am surprised that the Senator from Nevada, who is pressing this bill with such earnestness, has not realized the force of the argument he addressed to the Senate not long ago on the silver question. He then urged on us that by reason of the cry of an overproduction of the precious metals, especially silver, we had succeeded in demonetizing silver here and in other countries, and thereby created such a panic by these declarations of the overproduction that many were induced to vote for the demonetization of silver.

Mr. STEWART. The Senator misapprehended my argument. I endeavored to state that the object of demonetizing silver was to cause contraction, that the parties who originated it were indifferent whether it was silver or gold that was demonetized; their object was contraction.

Mr. FAULKNER. I am not questioning the proposition the gentleman laid down as the substance of his argument. He was clearly showing that, by reason of the panic created by the allegation of the great overproduction that had resulted and was about to result in America in the production of silver, many were induced to vote for the demonetization of silver who otherwise would not have been in favor of it. By examining the statistics year by year the Senator will see that the production of the precious metals in this country is rapidly increasing by the legitimate, natural development of the mines under the law as it now exists. But it may be claimed that we are doing this with foreign capital. Of course I do not propose to speak with any great degree of familiarity and knowledge of the Western Territories; in that respect I yield, of course, to the gentlemen who represent the States around them; but I must be permitted to say that I have a right to express an opinion based upon the authentic records of the Government of this country and the statistics which it furnishes for the information of the public.

As far as I have been able to ascertain, in the year 1880, when everything was prosperous there in reference to this matter, there were 1,172 deep mines reported in active operation in those Territories and States. Of those 1,172 mines the report of the compilers of the census shows that but 17 were owned by foreigners; and when you come to find the locality of those 17 they were every one of them in States of the Union except 7 in the Territory of Utah. Gentlemen may get up and say "I know from personal information that that is not true;" but I am giving the facts shown by the record. When I speak of the deep mines, I refer to the mines that the census reports speak of as working mines and reported as being in operation. Of course there may be others. These are deep mines, and 17 out of 1,172 is but 1.45 per cent. of all the mines in operation owned by foreign capital. In reference to the placer mines the statistics show that not one of them is owned by foreign capital. I suppose one reason of that is that a great many of these mines, as I understand, are often worked before patents are issued under the present law or any law that has ever existed. But those are the statistics that I have been able to gather.

It seems to me, outside of the other views which I have presented, these figures should satisfy the Senate that this bill ought not to pass in this form, no matter what the views of Senators may be on the general subject. It is treating the question in an unfair way, and not meeting the issue raised by such a bill as they should desire to pass to secure the object they have in view.

Now, Mr. President, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. COCKRELL in the chair). The Senator from West Virginia offers an amendment, which will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. At the end of the amendment reported by the Committee on Mines and Mining, and already adopted, it is proposed to add:

Provided further, That when mining claims which have been patented are acquired by a partnership, a majority of the partners shall be citizens of the United States: And provided further, That where said claims are acquired by incorporated companies, the powers of the company shall be exercised by a board of trustees or directors who shall be stockholders in the said company, and a majority of said trustees or directors shall be citizens of the United States.

Mr. FAULKNER. I am opposed to the bill even if the amendment shall be attached to it, but I propose to test the sense of the Senate upon this proposition. The effect of the amendment, if the bill passes, would be to give the right to an individual alien to come in and acquire mining rights and interests in the Territories; it would also enable an alien to come in and join a partnership of American citizens for the purpose of acquiring mining rights and interests in the Territories, but it would require a majority of the partners to be American citizens; it would allow a corporation created by the laws of any State or Territory to be composed of foreigners and to use foreign capital simply, with a provision that a majority of the trustees or directors should be American citizens, so that American citizens should have control of the corporation. The only thing—and that is the proposition I want voted upon by the Senate—the only thing that it absolutely excludes from coming in and purchasing these mining rights is a corporation organized, formed, and owing its creation to a foreign government. If that amendment is adopted and the bill is passed it will exclude a foreign corporation created by a foreign government from coming in and acquiring mining rights to an unlimited extent.

Mr. GRAY. I understood the Senator from West Virginia to claim that the amendment excluded foreign corporations, that is, corporations created by a foreign government, from exercising any of the rights of ownership in mining claims in the Territories.

Mr. FAULKNER. I did not mean entirely that. Under the amendment I suppose a foreign government could create, if it would do so, a corporation, provided it would provide in its charter or its law that a majority of the directors or trustees of that corporation should be American citizens.

Mr. GRAY. That is just the point I wished to make.

Mr. FAULKNER. I do not fear that question, I will say to the Senator from Delaware, because you will never find a foreign government giving the control of a foreign corporation to American citizens.

Mr. GRAY. But you will nevertheless under your amendment allow foreign corporations, if they comply with the requirement of a majority of the trustees or directors being American citizens, to enter and own mining claims and do all things that a domestic corporation could do in regard to carrying on a business of that kind; and at the same time that foreign corporations would be exempt from the domestic control unless you made a condition which would subject them to the domestic control of the Territory or the State—a condition prescribed by the legislative authority that they should so subject themselves before they exercised the rights of ownership or transacted business of any kind, would you not?

Mr. FAULKNER. I fully agree with the Senator from Delaware. I think even with the amendment the bill would be so defective as to cause me to vote against it; and I only offered it to bring up the single question of excluding corporations formed entirely of foreign citizens by foreign governments from coming in and controlling the mines of our Territories.

Mr. GRAY. Could you control such a corporation, for instance, by a mandamus? Would there be the same protection as in the case of domestic corporations, that they should exercise their rights according to the policy of the Government? Could you control any such corporation by a writ of mandamus?

Mr. FAULKNER. You could control that or any other corporation by a mandamus provided you could get the corporation for the purpose of having service upon it within the jurisdiction of the court issuing the mandamus; but then that does not give the State the power to control the action of that corporation. Why? You must have the corporation before you in a mandamus before you can enforce the mandamus for a violation of the rule, and I doubt very much whether that could be done.

Mr. GRAY. You would not have the power under a quo warranto?

Mr. FAULKNER. Quo warranto would not lie, because the charter was not derived from the sovereignty in which the land was located, and no sovereignty could attach the corporation and take from it its charter rights but that country which created it and gave to it its charter rights.

Mr. GRAY. The Senator will pardon me. I do not wish to interrupt his remarks, but I was very much impressed with his argument in reference to the policy declared by this Government in regard to foreign corporations owning mining claims. He spoke of his amendment, and I called attention to it that it only provides that a foreign corporation shall have among its corporators a majority of members of American citizens, but the corporation may be created by a foreign government, subject to its control and such conditions as it may require.

Mr. FAULKNER. I think that is the construction of the amendment, and I announced that I would vote against the bill if amended.

I have spoken longer now than I intended or desired, and shall not longer detain the Senate.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, there is a total misapprehension in regard to this bill, and I will ask for the reading of the amendment offered by the committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment proposed by the committee will be read.

The Secretary read the amendment, which was to strike out all after the enacting clause of the bill and to insert:

That the act entitled "An act to restrict the ownership of real estate in the Territories to American citizens, and so forth," approved March 3, 1887, be, and the same is hereby, amended by inserting after section 4 of said act the following: "Provided, however, That this act shall not relate to, or in any manner affect, the title to mineral lands or mining claims in the Territories of the United States, which may be acquired or held, under the mineral-land laws of the United States, nor to mills or other reduction works or property used in the production of metals from said mineral lands or claims; but, as to all such mineral lands, mining claims, mills, reduction works, and other property, the laws of the United States and of the Territories shall be and remain the same as though this act had not passed."

Mr. STEWART. It will be observed that the last clause of the bill as amended leaves the law, so far as mining claims in the Territories are concerned, in the same condition that it would have been in if the act of 1887 had not passed.

Now, I undertake to say that the Senator himself has demonstrated that no evil resulted from the law as it then stood. He says very few foreigners were engaged in the business—only seventeen companies, I believe, in all the mines, over eleven hundred in number.

He has also put in a plea for local self-government, and that is the very thing that these Territories are seeking after. They want to be let alone in this respect. They had been let alone for nearly forty years in this respect, and no evil resulted. If there are any restrictions necessary they will make them. There is not a State in the Union that a foreign corporation or foreigners may not mine in. The evil aimed at under the law of 1887 was the monopoly of agricultural lands that were permanent. Mines of any kind are exhausted in time. A mine has no permanent foothold, and particularly gold and silver mines, the life of which is not over twenty years at the best. The average life of them would not be more than eight or ten years. So there is no permanent acquisition or absorption of the country. There is no danger in it. But foreigners do expend some money. They occasionally buy a mine in the Territories and develop it, as they do also in the States, and no harm has come from it. To deprive the Territories of the necessary local self-government in this respect seems to be an unwarranted interference with their rights.

The policy of the Government towards miners has been a liberal one. When the miners first went to that country, by reason of the non-action of the Government, they made their own rules and regulations, which prevented monopolies and secured the development of the country with great rapidity. Finally, after some seventeen or eighteen years had elapsed, Congress simply confirmed the local laws that the miners had made, confirmed them, and thereby encouraged the development of the country, and under that liberal policy the Territories have grown up and States have been formed. The mining law of the United States took its pattern from the local legislation of the people.

Now, there is not a State in the Union that excludes foreigners from engaging in mining or in building railroads, and why should this discrimination be made against the Territories? Their neighbors in the States are allowed to develop their resources; but Congress extended a law intended to prevent land monopoly to mining, without any recommendation in any report, without any discussion that I have been able to find, with no report favoring it and no report pointing out an evil in that direction. Now every man from that region, of all parties, whether he be a representative in either House or whether he be a private citizen, asks that the old law may be restored.

Mr. MITCHELL. Allow me to say that no discussion took place in either House of Congress when that bill was under consideration which shows that it was ever intended to apply to mines, and there is much in the discussion in both Houses which shows that it was not so intended.

Mr. STEWART. That is true.

Now the Senator from West Virginia speaks of local legislation of the Territories. They can still have their local legislation under this measure. The amendment of the committee is carefully drawn with a view of restoring the old law, leaving things as they were before the passage of the act of 1887; and it is a great hardship to interfere with the business of those developing Territories, Montana and Idaho particularly. It is a great hardship to those people. I have not produced the letters here, but there has hardly been a day this winter that I have not received letters and petitions from citizens there asking for the passage of such a bill as this. The present condition of things interferes with their business, deprives them of local self-government. This measure introduces no evil. If this had been a monopoly and an evil, the Senator would not have been able to say that foreigners did not avail themselves of the privilege formerly accorded. The fact that they did not avail themselves of it there generally shows that there can be no abuse under it. But to deprive the people of these Territories of the right of obtaining money wherever they can get it to develop their mines is interfering with local self-government, and is a great hardship.

I will not prolong the discussion, because I want a vote. We have had the bill up many times, and I want a vote of the Senate upon it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is now before the Senate as in Committee of the Whole. The amendment proposed by the Committee on Mines and Mining having been agreed to, the amendment proposed by the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER] is not now in order. It may be offered after the bill is reported to the Senate. Are there further amendments to be offered in Committee of the Whole?

Mr. EVARTS. Mr. President, I have no amendment to propose; but as to the situation now before the Senate in regard to the bill itself I have this to say, that in my judgment the whole subject of the encouragement or toleration of investments by foreigners in mining operations is a subject entirely apart and remote from the question of allowing the ownership of soil by foreigners here. Whatever may be the proper policy in regard to either of these heads, they do not fall within the same considerations or the same motives that should lead to the adoption of the one or of the other.

The bill which passed and became a law last year was intended to prevent foreigners from becoming owners of real estate in this country; and the principal interest at which this legislation was aimed was in regard to the breadth of agricultural ownership, for but little interest, I think, was ever felt in the question whether a foreigner should or should not be the owner of a house and lot or of a store and lot in one of the cities within the Territories where he was either to pursue his trade or to house his family.

With this legislation as covered by this intent and interest of excluding foreigners from becoming owners of our soil, it does not seem to me that the matter now in hand was ever purposely included within that legislation; and as the whole project now is to extricate from that unintended entanglement, I can see no reason for insisting upon it in its present place in that legislation unless by itself as a new matter of legislation we should think it was desirable and valuable to our policy and our citizens.

I think the matter of foreign capital and foreign owners of that capital being introduced into the development of mines and bringing out from the earth in its rocky beds commodity of service in trade and human use belongs really not to a question of real estate and of foreign participation in the ownership of the soil of a country, but falls within head of trade, and nothing but trade.

We all know that there is no considerable area of land involved in any of these mines—I think I am right in saying in all of them put together in these Territories or in the States themselves. They have not to do with the ownership and partition and distribution and sale of the soil of the country. It is nothing but an adventure in the nature of trade by capital and skill producing valuable results. That foreigners come here has no more to do with their becoming owners of our land than if we ourselves in the Eastern States put in capital of that kind in developing the mines in the Territories or in the Western States. Whatever it be, it is not inveighed against at all if exercised on the part of our citizens, I will agree; and it is the same operation for foreigners as it is for Eastern capitalists. They go there to aid in developing the industry and the wealth and the filling up of the population of the new Territories and of the Western States; that is what the foreigners do, and that is all that they do, and they do not enter into an exclusion of agriculture or a wide occupation of it by any of our citizens.

Neither is this ownership permanent. Being directed, as I have said, to the sole purpose of developing this industry, this investment and all share and participation by foreigners disappears when the mine is exhausted. All agree that the land, the pedis possessio for the purpose of carrying on this mere trading operation, the development of local interest, is all obliterated the moment that the mine is exhausted; nobody remains the owner of it, or cares further what is the possession or pedis possessio of the land. When your own States, holding the same position to developing their industries, filling up their population, enriching their communities, adopt, encourage, and invite from foreigners a complete and full enjoyment and so a complete and full enterprise and action within the State, am I not right in saying that in the Western Territories, where mines are to be developed and where there is much jealousy that agricultural land shall not be opened to monopoly by foreigners, we should allow them to encourage absolutely as their policy this acceptance and hospitality of foreign capital in developing their local interests? I believe I am right in saying that every State having the same relation to mining that the Territories have and that the United States has towards them in governing them well, as a State policy invites and desires a full development of these industries by capital from foreigners. Why is it, then, that the United States, under a fancied analogy, should be a meaner nursing mother of these local interests than the State governments are within their territory and dominion over the same subject? Why is it that in this period of nascent growth of the Territories this or that interest of the United States should step in and chill and check and thwart and denounce a local industry upon some mere wide and general theory of uniformity with regard to aversion to foreigners owning lands here?

Mr. FAULKNER. I would ask the Senator from New York to yield to a question.

Mr. EVARTS. Yes, sir.

Mr. FAULKNER. I ask the Senator from New York whether he does not know that the local law of one of the Territories expressly prohibits foreign corporations from coming in and having any of the rights or privileges of domestic corporations either formed in the States or in the Territories?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the Senate resumes the consideration of the unfinished business.

Mr. STEWART. I ask unanimous consent that the pending order may be laid aside temporarily to let us finish this bill, if we can, with the right to call for the unfinished business at any time when debate shall be protracted.

Mr. PLATT. I am very anxious to go on with the regular order, but I recognize the fact that the bill now under consideration has been several times before the Senate, and if I thought the vote would be reached in a short time I would have no objection to the arrangement proposed by the Senator from Nevada. I still, however, wish that it may be understood that the regular order can be called for at any time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If the unfinished business is informally and temporarily laid aside, it will be subject to a call at any time for the regular order. Is there objection to the unfinished business being temporarily laid aside to allow the discussion upon the bill recently under consideration to proceed? The Chair hears none.

Mr. EVARTS. My answer to the question of the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER] is directly that I was not aware of the law to which he refers; but its existence does not affect at all the argument that I was addressing to the general subject, which was not limited to the discussion of the rights of corporations. I am discussing the general right, the prudence, and the value of foreign capital in developing local industries in the shape of mining properties.

There seems to be no answer to this proposition, that in the interval before the Territories are introduced into the sovereignty which belongs to States, over what is allotted to them the Territories should not have their growing industries of any kind checked and thwarted for this interval, when upon their arrival at the condition of statehood by introduction by Congress into that relation they will be under the same influences and the same motives with the existing States similarly situated to cherish and develop this same purpose.

Now I will say a word on the question of corporate organization of this capital, if that needs to be separately discussed. If the general proposition be true that private ownership of mining property and its development should be allowed to foreigners as persons, and they absolute owners and administrators therefore of that interest, I can see no distinction to be drawn between that accorded right and limiting foreign corporations in owning and administering that property, upon any division of argument or reason or policy that is peculiar to the ownership of land.

Is there then any reason why foreigners are to be allowed to develop with their capital these local industries in mines that an organization of them should not be allowed to conduct, irrespective of the question whether the stockholders are or are not foreigners? A line might undoubtedly be drawn between allowing a foreign corporation or requiring that foreigners should adopt here a domestic incorporation, but this requires that there shall be no such domestic incorporation unless a certain proportion of the owners as stockholders are citizens of the United States. The principal question is one worthy of attention, but I can not think that this discrimination between private foreign ownership and organized foreign ownership should make a difference, except under some general political theory hostile to corporate organization.

Mr. President, in this discussion with regard to a matter in which perhaps I have as little interest and my constituents, as little interest as any other State or any other Senator can feel, I have thought that I found what should be treated as an unintended incorporation of regulations of trading and developing our industries by foreign capital on a matter with which it had no concern, and that is the ownership by foreigners of the soil of the land.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President, I should be very glad to give my support to the bill of the Senator from Nevada, who feels a great interest in it. The bill opens to the absolute ownership of foreigners mineral lands in the Territories. I presume that the policy as to the ownership of the soil would determine the propriety of a law of this kind. Scarcely any one, I think, would want the entire soil of any State or Territory, whether mining or agricultural, to be held by foreigners, by absent landlords, with power to deny to American citizens the privilege of occupancy. I apprehend that no one would contend that the entire soil of a State, whether it be mineral or agricultural, should be owned by foreigners resident in a foreign land, people who are not citizens of our own country and the owners of the right of eminent domain to be at their will and pleasure as to the conditions of occupation, and yet that is the proposition of this bill—that the entire dominion of the soil, the ownership of the mining lands of this country may be acquired by foreigners and held by them without limitation.

It is very well for us to examine what the state of the law on that subject is. I refer to Blackstone. It never has been the law that the unrestricted ownership of real estate, whether mineral or agricultural, should be allowed to foreigners. It is always to be conceded that while in the interest of trade restriction of alien ownership of property should be done away with, and while in almost every State of the Union the disabilities of aliens have been removed in the interest of more liberal commercial relations, yet it is a principle of public policy in all governments that it shall not be an absolute and unrestricted right, but shall be subject to conditions to be imposed by the sovereign power. Blackstone says:

> An alien born may purchase lands or other estates, but not for his own use, for the king is thereupon entitled to them. If an alien could acquire a permanent property in lands he must owe an allegiance, equally permanent with that property, to the King of England, which would probably be inconsistent with that which he owes to his own natural liege lord; besides that, thereby the nation might in time be subject to foreign influence and feel many other inconveniences. Wherefore by the civil law such contracts were also made void; but the prince had no such advantage of forfeiture thereby as with us in England. Among other reasons which might be given for our constitution it seems to be intended by way of punishment for the alien's presumption in attempting to acquire any landed property: for the vendor is not affected by it, he having resigned his right and received an equivalent in exchange. Yet an alien may acquire a property in goods, money, and other personal estate, or may hire a house for his habitation; for personal estate is of a transitory and movable nature; and, besides, this indulgence to strangers is necessary for the advancement of trade.

That was certainly the state of the law in both the civil and the common law. The civil law in the Latin countries made a contract for the purchase of real estate by an alien absolutely void. The law of England forfeited it to the king. So that by the custom of England aliens held the land bought subject alone to the exercise of the right of forfeiture by the king, which was not usually done, but was always the condition upon which he held his right. He might by application to the Crown acquire the rights of a denizen, which were simply letters patent giving him the special right upon condition of holding real estate. Let us see how that law has progressed to the present time. In the notes to Blackstone we find:

> 5. The lands which aliens take, by deed or devise, they may hold as against all persons except the sovereign.

That is the interpretation of the law as held in our country under the alien laws of the different States.

> An alien has no inheritable blood through which title may be deduced, and consequently one can not take lands by descent who must claim by representation through an alien. (Jackson vs. Green, 7 Wend., 333; Levy vs. McCartee, 6 Pet., 102.) But one brother may inherit from another, notwithstanding the father is an alien, the descent as to the brothers being immediate. (Collingwood vs. Pace, Sid., 193.)
>
> Some of the American States have abolished the disability of aliens to hold lands, which, as to those States, rest upon no sound reasons.
>
> 6. By statute 7 and 8 Vic., c. 66, an alien friend may hold every species of personal property except chattels real, and may take and hold any lands, houses, and other tenements, for the purpose of residence or occupation, or for the purpose of any business, trade, or manufacture, for any term not exceeding twenty-one years.

That is the statute of England, according to these notes, at this time. There is not to-day in England the unrestricted right of the ownership of real estate by law, but it is limited to the period of twenty-one years and to chattels real. I am not one of those who think that it is wise to put restrictions on commercial relations between the different sovereignties in the world; but I think it is wise that the laws should look to the ownership and dominion of real estate substantially by the people of the country who render service to it and who are bound by its laws and reside within its boundaries; and it seems to me that it would be very well for the Senator from Nevada to have this bill recommitted and impose some conditions upon this unrestricted right of ownership, which may accomplish his purpose.

I think we may accomplish the purpose of inviting foreign capital and giving it proper protection in the operation of the mines, without opening the entire occupation of the mineral lands of the country to foreign ownership and foreign capital; and we have some reason to know that the acquisition of real estate, whether agricultural or mineral, in this country in large bodies by aliens, subjects of foreign governments, is not an imaginary evil. We are advised of the existence of the great Maxwell grant, which takes a territory large enough to comprise a State and vests the title of it in foreigners—non-residents—with the right to impose such terms of occupancy as they see fit, as may be of financial benefit to them, holding back, if they choose, the sale of these lands for a quarter of a century or longer, until density of population has rendered their occupation necessary and has rendered them extremely valuable. I think these are evils which a sound public policy may well look into; and while I should be very glad to aid the Senator from Nevada by my vote in accomplishing his purpose, I think this bill which he has here is entirely too broad in affirming the right to the absolute and unrestricted ownership of all the mineral lands in the country by foreign capital and by aliens. It might be so amended as to vest the power in the Territorial Legislatures to prescribe the conditions upon which sale might be made to aliens, in view of the fact that the States now exercise this power. This would prevent any hurtful discrimination against the Territories.

Mr. DOLPH. Mr. President, it seems to me that the Senator from Florida has mistaken the scope of this bill. The complaint which caused the enactment of the law that was passed during the last Congress to prevent the ownership of real estate by aliens was that large tracts of agricultural lands were held by aliens. Congress in attempting to provide against that evil I think went further than it ought to have gone. I was opposed to that bill as it was sent to the Committee on Public Lands, and if it had not been brought up for passage just before the adjournment of Congress I should have endeavored to have exempted mining claims and even buildings for residence and business purposes in cities from its operation, and restricted the bill to the ownership of agricultural lands.

The pending bill does not open the mines of the country to ownership by foreigners. It simply restores the condition of affairs that existed before the passage of the act of the last Congress. If the Territory of Washington or any other Territory has a law on the subject, that law remains intact. Congress stepped in and exercised authority and took away the right from the local Territorial governments to determine who should hold real estate by the enactment of the law of the last session. This bill simply repeals the prohibition of the act of last year so far as it prohibits aliens from owning mines. It leaves the Territories free to legislate, and if, as supposed by the Senator from West Virginia, the Territory of Washington has a law which prohibits foreign corporations from owning or working mining claims within the Territory, that law remains, and the people of all the Territories are at liberty to legislate on that subject, and their law stands until Congress shall annul and disapprove it. That is all there is of this bill.

Mr. STEWART. I hope we shall have a vote now.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended.

Mr. COCKRELL. Now the Senator from West Virginia can offer his amendment.

Mr. FAULKNER. I now offer my amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be read.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to add to the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole:

> Provided further, That where mining claims which have been patented are acquired by a partnership, a majority of the partners shall be citizens of the United States: And provided further, That where said claims are acquired by incorporated companies, the powers of the companies shall be exercised by a board of trustees or directors who shall be stockholders of said company, and a majority of such trustees or directors shall be citizens of the United States.

Mr. STEWART. I hope that will not be adopted. It will destroy the whole effect of the bill. Let the Territories exercise their legislative power.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from West Virginia to the amendment of the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. FAULKNER. On that I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MITCHELL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. EDMUNDS]. If he were here, I should vote "nay" and he would vote "yea."

Mr. PADDOCK (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. EUSTIS]. Not knowing how he would vote, I refrain from voting.

Mr. WALTHALL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER]. If he were present, I would vote "yea."

The roll-call was concluded.

Mr. ALLISON. I am paired with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. SAULSBURY].

Mr. HALE. I am paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BECK].

Mr. BLACKBURN. I am paired generally with the Senator from

Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON]. If he were present, I should vote "yea."

Mr. EVARTS. I am paired with the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN]. I am told that he would vote "yea," if present. I should vote "nay."

Mr. REAGAN (after having voted in the affirmative). I voted "yea," but I am paired, and did not at the moment remember it, with the Senator from New York [Mr. HISCOCK]. I withdraw my vote.

The result was announced—yeas 20, nays 17; as follows:

YEAS—20.

Bate,	Coke,	Harris,	Stewart,
Berry,	Daniel,	Kenna,	Turpie,
Butler,	Faulkner,	Pasco,	Vest,
Call,	George,	Plumb,	Wilson of Iowa,
Cockrell,	Gray,	Pugh,	Wilson of Md.

NAYS—17.

Chace,	Dolph,	Palmer,	Sherman,
Chandler,	Frye,	Payne,	Teller.
Colquitt,	Hearst,	Platt,
Cullom,	Ingalls,	Sabin,
Davis,	Jones of Nevada,	Sawyer,

ABSENT—39.

Aldrich,	Edmunds,	Hoar,	Reagan,
Allison,	Eustis,	Jones of Arkansas,	Riddleberger,
Beck,	Evarts,	McPherson,	Saulsbury,
Blackburn,	Farwell,	Manderson,	Spooner,
Blair,	Gibson,	Mitchell,	Stanford,
Blodgett,	Gorman,	Morgan,	Stockbridge,
Bowen,	Hale,	Morrill,	Vance,
Brown,	Hampton,	Paddock,	Voorhees,
Cameron,	Hawley,	Quay,	Walthall.
Dawes,	Hiscock,	Ransom,

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum has not voted. The Secretary will call the roll.

Mr. BROWN. Can I vote now?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator's vote can not be received, the result having been announced.

The roll was called, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Allison,	Daniel,	Jones of Arkansas,	Sawyer,
Bate,	Davis,	Kenna,	Sherman,
Berry,	Dolph,	Mitchell,	Spooner,
Blackburn,	Evarts,	Paddock,	Stewart,
Brown,	Faulkner,	Palmer,	Stockbridge,
Butler,	Frye,	Pasco,	Teller,
Call,	George,	Platt,	Turpie,
Chace,	Gray,	Plumb,	Vest,
Chandler,	Hale,	Pugh,	Walthall,
Cockrell,	Harris,	Ransom,	Wilson of Iowa,
Coke,	Hearst,	Reagan,	Wilson of Md.
Cullom,	Ingalls,	Sabin,

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum is present.

ADMISSION OF DAKOTA.

Mr. PLATT. I call for the regular order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Connecticut calls for the regular order, which is Senate bill 185.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 185) to provide for the admission of the State of Dakota into the Union, and for the organization of the Territory of Lincoln.

The Secretary proceeded to read the amendment reported by the Committee on Territories; which was to strike out all after the enacting clause of the bill and in lieu thereof to insert a substitute.

Mr. PLATT. I desire to make a few amendments which will not be objected to, I think, which are merely formal in their character, and for the purpose of perfecting the text I ask that the substitute may be read subject to amendment as it is read.

Mr. BUTLER. I have no objection to that.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If there be no objection that order will be observed, and the Senate will act upon the amendments as they are proposed while the reading of the amendment reported by the committee proceeds.

The Secretary resumed and continued the reading of the amendment to section 6.

Mr. PLATT. I move to amend by inserting after "United States," in line 2 of section 6, the words "within said State," which have been left out by some accident.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PLATT. After "United States," in line 5 of section 6, I move to insert "according to law."

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The reading was resumed and continued to section 13.

Mr. PLATT. In lines 5, 6, and 7, of section 13, I move to strike out the words

Have by any means been appropriated to private or other uses, or in any way diverted from school purposes,

And insert:

Shall have been sold or otherwise disposed of by the United States according to law.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PLATT. I move to strike out in line 9, of section 13, before the word "number," the words "an equal" and insert "a;" and also in line 9, after the word "sections," to strike out "to those thus diverted" and to insert:

Equal to such mineral lands and the lands so sold or disposed of.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PLATT. In line 12 of the same section, before the word "other," I move to strike out the words "common school and" and insert after the word "other" the words "than common-school;" and in line 13, to add the letter "s" to the word "selection" so as to read "selections."

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PLATT. I move to transpose section 22 so that it will come in between sections 17 and 18, and change the numbers of the other sections accordingly.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That order will be made if there be no objection.

Mr. PLATT. I also move to transpose sections 27 and 28 so that section 27 will become 28 and section 28 will become 27.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That change will be made unless there be objection.

The amendment reported by the Committee on Territories as amended is to strike out all after the enacting clause of the bill and insert:

That the State of South Dakota is hereby declared to be a State of the United States of America, and is hereby admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever; and that the constitution which the people of South Dakota have formed for themselves be, and the same is hereby, accepted, ratified, and confirmed, subject, however, to the provisos hereinafter contained.

SEC. 2. That the following shall be the boundaries of the said State of South Dakota, to wit: Beginning at the point of intersection of the western boundary line of the State of Minnesota with the northern boundary line of the State of Iowa, and running thence northerly along the western boundary line of the State of Minnesota to its intersection with the seventh standard parallel, where in its easterly course it intersects said boundary line; thence west along the said seventh standard parallel to the easterly bank of the Missouri River at low-water mark; thence up the said Missouri River along the easterly bank thereof at low-water mark to the point of intersection with the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude; thence west along the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude to its intersection with the twenty-seventh meridian of longitude west from Washington; thence south on the twenty-seventh meridian of longitude west from Washington to its intersection with the northern boundary line of the State of Nebraska; thence easterly along the northern boundary line of the State of Nebraska to its intersection with the western boundary line of the State of Iowa; thence northerly along the western boundary line of the State of Iowa to its intersection with the northern boundary line of the State of Iowa; thence east along the northern boundary line of the State of Iowa to the place of beginning.

SEC. 3. That the said State of South Dakota shall have concurrent jurisdiction of the river Missouri and of every other river bordering on the said State of South Dakota, so far as the said rivers shall form a common boundary to the said State and any other State or States or Territory or Territories now or hereafter to be formed, said rivers to be common to both; and that the said river Missouri shall be a common highway, and forever free as well to the inhabitants of said State as all other citizens of the United States, without any tax, duty, impost, or toll imposed by said State of South Dakota therefor.

SEC. 4. That until the next census and apportionment shall be made the said State of South Dakota shall be entitled to two Representatives in the House of Representatives of the United States Congress.

SEC. 5. That to defray the expenses of the constitutional convention held by the people of said State, and of elections held therefor and thereunder, the sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, out of any funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be paid to the treasurer of said State upon the requisition of the Legislature thereof, setting forth the items and particulars of such expenses so incurred.

SEC. 6. That sections 16 and 36 in every township of the public lands of the United States within said State, and where such sections, or any part thereof, shall be mineral lands, or shall have been sold or otherwise disposed of by the United States according to law, other lands equivalent thereto, in legal subdivisions of not less than one-quarter section, are hereby granted to the said State for the support of common schools; and such sections shall not be subject to pre-emption or entry, whether surveyed or unsurveyed, but shall be reserved for school purposes only.

SEC. 7. That thirty entire sections of the unappropriated public lands within said State, to be selected and located by direction of the Legislature thereof, with the approval of the President, shall be, and are hereby, granted, in legal subdivisions of not less than one-quarter section, to the said State for the purpose of erecting public buildings at the capital of said State for legislative and judicial purposes, in such manner as the Legislature shall prescribe. The lands may be selected out of the public lands within the boundaries of said State, whether surveyed or unsurveyed.

SEC. 8. That so much of seventy-two sections of land granted by the act of February 18, 1881, to the Territory of Dakota for the use of a university as lies within the said boundaries of the State of South Dakota is hereby granted and confirmed to said State for such purpose, and, in addition thereto, a sufficient number of sections to make a total of seventy-two. If any of the lands granted by said act of February 18, 1881, and lying within the boundaries of said State, have been sold under the provisions thereof, then the proceeds thereof shall go to the State in lieu of the land sold.

SEC. 9. That ninety sections of land, to be selected and located as provided in section 8 of this act, are hereby granted to said State for the use and support of an agricultural college in said State, and none of the lands granted by this act, or the proceeds thereof, shall be used for any other purpose than that for which the grant is specifically made whatever.

SEC. 10. That so much of the lands belonging to the United States as have been acquired and set apart for the purpose mentioned in "An act appropriating money for the erection of a penitentiary in the Territory of Dakota," approved March 2, 1881, together with the buildings thereon, be, and the same is hereby, granted, together with twenty sections more of the unappropriated public lands, to be selected as herein provided, to the State of South Dakota for the purpose aforesaid.

SEC. 11. That 5 per cent. of the net proceeds of sales of all public lands made by the United States within the limits of the said State, prior or subsequent to the passage of this act, after deducting all expenses incident to the same, be, and the same is hereby, granted to the said State of South Dakota for the support of public schools.

SEC. 12. That all mineral land shall be excepted from the grants provided for in this act.

SEC. 13. That immediately after the taking effect of this act the governor and the commissioner of school and public lands of said State shall proceed to ascertain the number of sections 16 and 36 within the limits of said State which are mineral lands, or which shall have been sold or otherwise disposed of by the United States according to law; and the said officers shall then proceed to select, from any unappropriated public lands in said State, a number of sections equal to such mineral lands and the lands so sold or disposed of, and said officers shall also, in addition thereto, select a number of sections equal in number to the total number of sections granted in this act for other than common-school purposes; and when such selections shall have thus been made said officers shall certify a list of the same to the Secretary of the Interior, and if the same shall be approved by him the title to the same shall vest in the said State of South Dakota.

SEC. 14. That all lands herein granted for common-school purposes shall be sold only at public sale, and at a price not less than $5 per acre, and in parcels not exceeding one-quarter section to any one person, the proceeds to constitute a permanent school fund, the interest of which only is to be expended in the support of common schools.

SEC. 15. That the State of South Dakota shall constitute one judicial district, which shall be called the district of South Dakota, and the circuit and district courts therefor shall be held at the capital of said State for the time being. The judge of said district shall receive a yearly salary of $5,000, payable in four equal installments, on the 1st day of January, April, July, and October of each year, and shall reside in his district. There shall be appointed clerks of said courts, who shall keep their offices at the capital of said State. There shall be appointed for said district one district judge, one United States attorney, and one United States marshal. The regular terms of said courts shall be held at the place aforesaid, on the first Monday in April and the first Monday in November in each year. For judicial purposes the district of South Dakota shall be attached to the eighth judicial circuit, and only one grand jury and one petit jury shall be summoned in both of said courts.

SEC. 16. That the circuit and district courts for the district of South Dakota, and the judges thereof, respectively, shall possess the same powers and jurisdiction and perform the same duties possessed and required to be performed by the other circuit and district courts and judges of the United States, and shall be governed by the same laws and regulations.

SEC. 17. That the marshal, district attorney, and clerks of the circuit and district courts of the said district of South Dakota, and all other officers and other persons performing duty in the administration of justice therein, shall severally possess the powers and perform the duties lawfully possessed and required to be performed by similar officers in other districts of the United States, and shall, for the services they may perform, receive the fees and compensation allowed by law in the State of Nebraska to other similar officers and persons performing similar duties.

SEC. 18. That that portion of the Territory of Dakota not included within the boundaries of said State upon the admission of said State of South Dakota into the Union shall, until otherwise provided by act of Congress, continue as a Territory by the name of North Dakota; and all provisions of the acts of Congress and of the Legislative Assembly of said Territory of Dakota not locally inapplicable shall continue therein in full force and effect the same as though no portion of the Territory of Dakota had been admitted into the Union; and the governor, secretary, United States marshal, and district attorney of the present Territory of Dakota shall continue to hold and exercise their respective offices within and for said Territory of North Dakota; and the chief-justice and three of the associate justices, to be designated by the President, shall continue to hold and exercise their respective offices for and within said Territory of North Dakota; and temporarily, and until otherwise provided by the Legislative Assembly of said Territory of North Dakota, the governor, chief-justice, and secretary thereof may divide said Territory into judicial districts and assign the judges thereto, and into twenty council and fifty representative districts, and apportion the representation therein to which each district shall be entitled in the Legislative Assembly: Provided, however, That the act of Congress approved March 3, 1879, creating the fourth judicial district for the Territory of Dakota, shall not apply to the Territory of North Dakota.

SEC. 19. That all cases of appeal or writ of error heretofore prosecuted and now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States upon any record from the supreme court of the Territory of Dakota, or that may hereafter lawfully be prosecuted from said court, may be heard and determined by said Supreme Court of the United States; and the mandate of execution or of further proceedings shall be directed by the Supreme Court of the United States to the circuit or district court of the district of South Dakota, or to the supreme court of the State of South Dakota or to the supreme court of the Territory of North Dakota, as the nature of the case may require; and each of said last-mentioned courts, respectively, shall be the successor of the supreme court of the Territory of Dakota as to all such cases, with full power to proceed with the same and to award mesne or final process therein; and that from all judgment and decrees of the supreme court of the Territory of Dakota prior to the admission of said State the parties to such judgment shall have the same right to prosecute appeals and writs of error to the Supreme Court of the United States as they shall have had by law prior to the admission of said State into the Union.

SEC. 20. That in respect to all cases, proceedings, and matters pending in the supreme or district court of the Territory of Dakota at the time of the admission of said State into the Union, whereof the circuit or district courts by this act established might have had jurisdiction under the laws of the United States had such courts existed at the time of the commencement of such cases, the said circuit and district courts, respectively, shall be the successors of said supreme and district courts of said Territory; and in respect to all cases, proceedings, and matters arising within the limits of the Territory of North Dakota the courts of North Dakota Territory shall be the successors of the courts of the Territory of Dakota; and all the files, records, indictments, and proceedings relating thereto shall be transferred to said circuit, district, and Territorial courts, respectively, and the same shall be proceeded with therein in due course of law: Provided, however, That in all civil actions, causes, and proceedings in which the United States is not a party, such transfers shall not be made except upon the written request of one of the parties to such action or proceeding filed in the proper court.

SEC. 21. That the Legislature provided for in said constitution shall have the power to provide, by an act to that effect, for the transfer of all actions, cases, proceedings, and matters pending in the supreme or district courts of the Territory of Dakota at the time of the admission of the said State of South Dakota into the Union, arising within that part of the said Territory of Dakota herein prescribed as the proposed new State, and not included within the provisions of the foregoing sections, to such courts as shall be established under the constitution of said State; and no indictment, action, or proceeding shall abate by reason of any change in the courts, but shall be proceeded with in the State courts according to the laws thereof.

SEC. 22. That the following division of the public debt of the former Territory of Dakota is made: All the public indebtedness thereof which has been incurred for the purpose of public institutions within the limits of the State of South Dakota shall be assumed and paid by the said State of South Dakota. The said State of South Dakota shall make immediate provision for the settlement of said indebtedness. All the remaining funded indebtedness of the former Territory of Dakota shall be and remain a debt of the Territory which by this act is organized out of the remaining portion of said former Territory. The Legislature of said Territory shall make immediate provision for the settlement of said indebtedness. One-half of the funds remaining in the treasury of the Territory of Dakota at the passage of this act, and of all receipts from taxes imposed by former Legislatures thereof, less the expense of collecting, and after the payment of any unfunded indebtedness that may be a charge against the same, shall be paid by the treasurer of said Territory to the treasurer of the State of South Dakota. All archives and records of the former Territory of Dakota now in the custody of the secretary or governor of said Territory shall be turned over by said officers to the governor or the secretary of the said State of South Dakota: Provided, That the State of South Dakota shall furnish to the Territory of North Dakota full and accurate copies of all such archives and records at the cost of said State of South Dakota.

SEC. 23. That until otherwise provided by act of the Legislative Assembly of said Territory of North Dakota, the city of Bismarck shall be the place of holding the sessions of the Legislative Assembly therein, which place shall be the capital of said Territory until changed by such Legislative Assembly; and the governor thereof shall also have power to designate temporarily, and until otherwise provided by the laws of said Territory of North Dakota, the places in the first, second, and third judicial districts whereat the district courts shall exercise the jurisdiction of district and circuit courts of the United States.

SEC. 24. That in accordance with the stipulations contained in section 5 of article 13 of said constitution of said State of South Dakota, there is hereby apportioned to the State of South Dakota, and said State shall assume, be liable for, and pay, all the indebtedness of the Territory of Dakota incurred for public buildings of the Territory which are built and situated, or which are provided by law to be built, within the limits of said State; and the Territory of North Dakota shall assume and be liable for all the indebtedness of the Territory of Dakota incurred for public buildings of the Territory which are built and situated, or which are provided by law to be built, within the limits of said Territory of North Dakota.

SEC. 25. That there is hereby granted to the Territory of North Dakota so many sections of the unappropriated public lands lying within said Territory as will, with the other lands lying therein selected and set apart under the act of February 18, 1881, make the full amount of seventy-two sections, such additional sections to be selected and set apart under the provisions of said last-named act and for the use therein mentioned; and any other grants heretofore made by act of Congress to the Territory of Dakota, for any purpose, of lands lying within the limits of said Territory of North Dakota, are hereby confirmed to said Territory of North Dakota for the same uses and in the same manner as the same were granted to said Territory of Dakota.

SEC. 26. Provided, however, That inasmuch as by this act the name of the State which was adopted by the constitutional convention recited in the preamble hereto has been changed from that of the State of Dakota to the State of South Dakota, and the boundaries of said State have been modified in this act by the change thereof east of the Missouri River from the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude to the seventh standard parallel, before said State of South Dakota shall be admitted by her Representatives to the Congress of the United States or be entitled to the other rights and privileges of a State in the Union, there shall be submitted to a vote of the people of the proposed State of South Dakota the question of the acceptance or the rejection of said amended boundaries and name; and to that end an election is hereby ordered to be held by the qualified electors of said portion of said Territory of Dakota included within the boundaries of said proposed State on the 28th day of August, 1888, upon which day there shall be submitted to said electors the following propositions: First. Is the name of the State of South Dakota accepted? Second. Is the proposed change in boundaries east of the Missouri River to the seventh standard parallel accepted? The form of the ballots to be used shall be as follows: Change of name to South Dakota accepted. Yes. Or, change of name to South Dakota accepted. No. Change of boundaries to seventh standard parallel east of the Missouri River accepted. Yes. Or, change of boundaries to seventh standard parallel east of the Missouri River accepted. No.

SEC. 27. That at the time of the election herein provided for the people of said proposed State of South Dakota shall have submitted to them for their ratification or rejection the constitution heretofore in the preamble of this act stated as having been formed and adopted, together with each of the separate articles thereof, in conformity with the schedule of said constitution, not including the selection of the temporary seat of government.

SEC. 28. That said election shall be governed in all respects by the laws of the Territory of Dakota governing elections and the canvass and return of the votes thereof. Within twenty days after the day of said election, the respective officers and county canvassers having by the law of the Territory of Dakota such duties in charge, shall make returns of the votes so cast for and against each of said propositions to the governor of said Territory of Dakota. And within ten days thereafter, or sooner, if the returns are all received by him, the said governor, calling to his assistance the auditor and chief-justice of said Territory of Dakota, shall with them aggregate said vote, and immediately certify the result thereof to the President of the United States, who shall issue his proclamation announcing the result of said vote.

SEC. 29. That if a majority of the votes cast at said election shall be in favor of the acceptance of both the change of name and boundaries, and also for said constitution, regardless of the separate articles, then said State of South Dakota shall be deemed admitted into the Union of States on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever. And this act of admission shall then have full force and effect, and said constitution shall be deemed amended so as to conform to said changes. But if a majority of said votes so cast shall not be in favor of both of said propositions, and not in favor of the adoption of said constitution, then this act shall cease to have further force or effect.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the amendment reported by the Committee on Territories as amended.

Mr. PLATT. This, Mr. President, is one of four bills which have been reported by the Committee on Territories looking to the admission of new States into the Union. This bill provides for the admission of the southern part of Dakota as a State under a constitution already formed, which has been accepted by the people, and under which the officers necessary for a State government have been elected. The other three bills are enabling acts for the Territory of Washington, the Territory of Montana, and for the northern half of the present Territory of Dakota.

The history of the effort for the admission of the southern part of Dakota as a State is an interesting one; but to go no further back now than the holding of the convention which framed the constitution under which the southern portion of the Territory of Dakota asks for admission into the Union it is sufficient to say that a bill was passed by the Senate at the last session of Congress admitting all that portion of Dakota which lies south of the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude into the Union as a State under that constitution. The convention which framed the constitution was held in pursuance of an act of the Territorial Legislature passed March 9, 1885, the Territorial Legislature of course being a Legislature for the whole Territory.

In the council the vote passing the act for the holding of a constitutional convention to frame a constitution for South Dakota was unanimous. In the house it passed by a vote of 33 to 7. The delegates to that convention, which assembled on the 8th of September, 1885, were 111 in number. The actual participants among the delegates were 95. The convention adjourned on the 25th day of September, 1885, and the constitution was submitted to the people and adopted on the Tuesday after the first Monday of November, 1885. It was submitted to the people residing in that portion of the Territory which it was proposed to admit as a State. The total vote was 31,791. For the constitution there were 25,226 votes; against it, 6,565; a majority of 18,561.

I think no complaint whatever is made as to the character of this constitution. In the discussion in the Senate last session no objections, I think, were made that the constitution was not in proper form; that it did not contain the proper provisions. There was no complaint but that it was a suitable and ample constitution for a State of the Union, nor was it claimed that anything was necessary to be added in order that Congress should discharge its obligation to guaranty to the new State a republican form of government. The compact with the United States in that constitution is the ordinary compact which is to be found in the constitutions of other States which have been recently admitted.

The bill which passed the Senate last year also organized the northern half of the Territory into a new Territory by the name of Lincoln. That bill as it passed the Senate last year was referred to the Committee on Territories at the present session without change, but in the mean time the constitution had been submitted again to a vote of the people of the whole Territory by act of the Territorial Legislature at an election held on the 8th of November, 1887. Then the total vote was 67,618: For the constitution, 37,784, against the constitution, 32,913; the majority for the constitution being 4,871 in an election held for the whole Territory. There was no general election held at the time the constitution was thus submitted to the vote of the electors of the whole Territory.

Since the passage of the bill last year by the Senate it has transpired that the people within that portion of the Territory which it is proposed to erect into a State desire some minor changes to be made in the constitution. The first is in the boundary, and the second is as to the name of the new Territory; and the Committee on Territories in considering it thought that the request of the people was reasonable and ought to be respected. That has therefore necessitated a change of the bill as referred to the committee, and the changes which have been made I will endeavor to explain.

First, as to the change of boundary. The northern boundary of the proposed State by the former bill was on the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude; but that boundary would cut a narrow strip off from the southern tier of counties remaining in the northern portion of the Territory not included within the boundaries of the new State. The counties as organized there are bounded south on the seventh standard parallel east of the Missouri River, about 4 or 5 miles south of the forty-sixth parallel of latitude. That is the southern boundary of the counties which would remain in the northern half of the Territory, and the northern boundary of the counties which would be included within the limits of the proposed State. So the bill as reported by the committee makes the northern boundary of the proposed State east of the Missouri River to be the seventh standard parallel instead of the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude.

Second, there is a proposed change of name of the new State. The name of the State proposed to be admitted by the bill passed last year was Dakota. The name of the State as proposed by this bill is South Dakota. The Territorial name proposed by the bill of last year was Lincoln. The Territorial name proposed by this bill is North Dakota; that is, the remaining portion of the Territory not admitted as a State is to be named North Dakota.

Right here perhaps I may as well notice a suggestion which has been made very often, that the names North and South Dakota are not good names to be applied to States which shall be admitted into the Union. Some people have a fancy for Indian names and others would be glad to name the new State, or the new States, after some of our prominent and distinguished men of earlier years. While I would be very glad to respect this sentiment, for I think it is after all nothing but a sentiment, the condition is such that the name of Dakota can not be taken away from either portion of the Territory without injustice and without doing violence to the wishes and feelings of, I believe, every inhabitant of the Territory. To now give some other name than Dakota to either half of that Territory would be very much like going into a family where the parents had named a child with some name which was not exactly suited to the fancy of the authorities of the town and insist upon it that the name should be changed.

The name of North and South Dakota has become established, as much so as the name of North and South Carolina, and to change the name would be doing just as much injustice and just as much violence to the inhabitants of that country as it would to insist now that the State of North Carolina should no longer have that name or the State of South Carolina should no longer have that name and that new names should be adopted for those States.

This of course changes the constitution and necessitates the acceptance by the people of the constitution as thus changed, which is provided for in the last four sections of the bill; and that being necessary, the committee have thought proper to provide that the whole constitution should be resubmitted to the people.

Another change is in giving to the new State two Representatives instead of one. The bill of last year provided for a single Representative in Congress, but the committee found that there were residing within the limits of the new proposed State nearly or quite 400,000 people, and they felt that if that people was to be admitted into the Union it was fairly entitled to Representatives in the same ratio as the other inhabitants of the United States. The ratio is, I believe, 151,900, perhaps 151,911, so that 300,000 people would entitle them to two Representatives in Congress, and it seemed but just that this change from the bill of last session should be made.

I do not think of any other change in the bill from the one passed by the Senate in the former Congress, except the machinery which is required to carry out these changes, and to provide for their being put into effectual operation.

The resubmission of the constitution to the people to determine whether they will accept these changes and whether they will accept the constitution as thus amended is to be held, by the bill, on the 28th day of August, 1888, and if the return of the votes at that election shall be in favor of the change of name and boundaries, and in favor of the constitution as thus amended, the votes are to be certified to the President of the United States, and he is to make his proclamation showing whether the vote is in favor of the constitution or against it, and if it be in favor of it, then the State thereby becomes a State in the Union.

The holding of the election as provided in the bill on the 28th day of August of this year looks to the introduction of the State into the Union prior to the next Presidential election. While I desire to discuss, and propose to discuss this measure for the introduction of the new State into the Union entirely without reference to partisanship, and upon higher grounds than political and partisan considerations, I deem it but just to say that I think the people of the southern part of Dakota Territory have a right to participate in the next Presidential election. They ought to have been admitted long ago. As I proceed with the statement which I am making I shall show the effort which they have made to become entitled to the privileges of other citizens of the United States to participate in our national elections as well as in the privileges of self-government and statehood, and that Congress has been derelict in its duty, that it has temporized with and postponed the creation of the State until now it has become 400,000 strong, and the fact that another Presidential election is approaching is, I think, no reason why they should now be denied admission into the Union as quickly as it can be done under the recognized forms of admission. That perhaps is all that I need say upon that question.

Mr. VEST. When the Senator uses the expression that the people of Southern Dakota have a right to admission into the Union, does he mean that they have any sort of a legal or a constitutional right without any action on the part of Congress?

Mr. PLATT. No.

Mr. VEST. I understand that claim has been asserted upon this question, and I wanted to know whether the Senator indorsed such a proposition.

Mr. PLATT. I do not claim that they can set up a State government for themselves independently of the action of Congress.

Mr. VEST. That is the point.

Mr. PLATT. But I do claim that they have a right to form a constitution, and that, that constitution being formed, both by the treaty of 1803 with France and by the compact of the ordinance for the government of the Territory Northwest of the Ohio River, they have a moral right to be admitted by Congress; and that Congress has no right to deny their admission. That it is in the power of Congress to do it, that there is power which the stronger has over the weaker I admit, but it is a duty and has been a duty these four years to provide in some way for the admission of South Dakota into the Union. That is what I mean when I say that her people have a right to participate in the next Presidential election.

Mr. VEST. If it will not interrupt the Senator——

Mr. PLATT. I do not think it will.

Mr. VEST. I should like to ask him another question, which he seems to have intentionally or unintentionally omitted from his argument in rehearsing the history of this case. He has laid great stress upon the will of the people in Southern Dakota, and I take it that he is willing to apply the same principle to the people of the whole Territory, north and south. I will ask him if it is not the fact that in an election held in the whole of Dakota Territory last fall, either in November or December—I think in December, possibly in November—Northern Dakota voted by 10,000 majority against dividing the Territory, and in Southern Dakota the majority was 13,398, leaving the narrow margin of 3,398 majority in the whole Territory, counting the votes of both North and South Dakota?

Mr. PLATT. If the Senator had been paying attention to what I said——

Mr. VEST. I did try to pay attention.

Mr. PLATT. He would have found that I did state that on the 8th of November last the constitution was submitted to the people of the whole Territory. I gave the vote and the official majority, which differs a little from the figures which the Senator has given. The official majority was 4,871. I have the governor's statement of the canvass and return of votes before me.

Mr. VEST. But the question which I asked the Senator——

Mr. PLATT. I will answer the Senator's question. It is true that in the northern portion of the Territory there was a vote against the constitution. It is also true that in the southern portion of the Territory there was a large vote for it.

Mr. BUTLER. May I ask the honorable Senator from Connecticut whether the question of the constitution was submitted to the people in that election, or was it simply the question of a division that was submitted to them?

Mr. VEST. It was the question of division, as I understand it.

Mr. BUTLER. That is all. I think the Senator from Connecticut will find that the sole question submitted in that election, so far as this discussion is concerned, was the one of division.

Mr. PLATT. It is true that in speaking extemporaneously I inadvertently spoke of the constitution being submitted to the people of the whole Territory, but it was the question of division or no division.

Mr. VEST. That was it.

Mr. PLATT. The Senators are right about that; but as I proceed I shall show why the people of North Dakota were not in favor of division. I may as well say now, although I shall recur to it again, that the people of Dakota, of Southern Dakota and of Northern Dakota, have been so perplexed, so delayed, so hindered, so unjustly hindered by Congress in the matter of the erection of a State or States for that Territory that they were despairing. My advices from that Territory are that if the people of the Territory of Dakota believed that within the next twelve months there could be, as there ought to be, two States erected out of that Territory, there would hardly be votes enough in the whole Territory against division to be counted.

Then there was this other matter of which I have spoken, and that was the taking away from the northern portion of the Territory the name of Dakota. The bill so proposed, and it was supposed that in any division the northern portion of the Territory of Dakota would lose its name and be called Lincoln, and it felt as a father would feel when his child's name was to be changed against his consent; it felt as a man would feel when his own name was to be changed against his consent.

My advices from the Territory are that those two causes, the fact that North Dakota, or, as it was to be called, Lincoln, would be denied statehood, would be hindered and postponed in its claims for statehood as the southern portion had been, and the fact that the people were losing the name which they had given to one of the great staples of the world in respect of wheat—Dakota wheat—operated to cause them to vote against the division in the northern portion. I have a firm belief that with any assurance that the northern portion of Dakota Territory can receive the privileges of statehood within a reasonable time there would be no considerable sentiment against division in that portion of the Territory.

This leaves, as it seems to me, two questions only for discussion. First, should the Territory be divided? second, should South Dakota be admitted now? To each of these questions the majority of the committee render a most unhesitating answer, yes. The Territory should be divided; and while I would respect the wishes of the inhabitants of the Territory to a great extent, I am so strongly convinced that the Territory ought to be divided, that even against the wishes of a large portion of its population I should feel that it ought to be divided for the benefit of the nation and for the future security of the rights of the other States in the Union.

It is too large for one State. It is larger than anybody ever thought of making a State, with two exceptions. It is larger than anybody ever thought of making an agricultural State, with one exception, and that is the State of Texas, to which I shall allude further on.

I imagine that Senators do not realize the extent of that Territory or the size of the State which would be framed by admitting the whole as a single State. When I say that it is 430 miles long from north to south and 400 miles from east to west we do not even then get an idea of what a vast area that gives. We can get it only by comparison.

The whole Territory of Dakota is very much larger, and aside from the commercial advantages to be derived from a seacoast, which it lacks, it is as capable of sustaining a population as England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales. Those four countries comprising Great Britain have 122,157 square miles. The Territory of Dakota has by the Tenth Census 149,100 square miles, so that as one State it would embrace in round numbers 27,000 square miles more than the United Kingdom of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales. It is practically as large as New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, and Virginia. Just think for a moment of putting those States into one State! Aside from the fact that it has no seacoast, it is as capable of supporting as large a population as those States.

It seems to me that when Senators seriously realize the area which this immense State would possess they can not but come to the conclusion that even if the sentiment of the people were adverse to it and the people had a dream of empire to grow out of the admission of such a great State, yet Congress, having reference to the physical equality of all the States, if I may use that term, ought not to think of admitting one State into the Union so capable of sustaining a dense population. It is larger than all of New England, New York, and New Jersey. It is larger than Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois combined. Ohio has 44,000 square miles, Indiana has 34,000, and Illinois has 55,000, making 133,000 square miles, while this Territory has 149,000 square miles. It is larger than the combined areas of Kentucky, Tennessee, and Alabama; Kentucky having 38,000 square miles, Tennessee 45,000, and Alabama 51,000, making 134,000 square miles, it is 15,000 square miles larger than those three States combined.

Take the proposed State of South Dakota and compare it with others. The proposed State of South Dakota would have 77,000 square miles. Now, compare it with its neighbors. Nebraska has 76,000 square miles, Missouri has 65,000, Iowa has 55,000, Wisconsin 54,000, Kansas 81,000, and Minnesota 83,000, giving the round numbers. All these States which I have named are similar in character, and but two of them, Kansas and Minnesota, would exceed the proposed territory of the State of South Dakota, and those would exceed it by a small fraction only. Compare it with the Middle States. South Dakota would have 77,000 square miles. Illinois has 55,000, Indiana 34,000, Ohio 40,000, Michigan 56,000, Arkansas 52,000, Kentucky 38,000, Tennessee 45,000, Alabama 51,000, Louisiana 41,000, Mississippi 47,000, Georgia 58,000, Florida 59,000, South Carolina 34,000, North Carolina 51,000, Virginia 38,000, and West Virginia 23,000. Not one of these States I have named would have a territory as large as the proposed new State of South Dakota, and not one of them is any more capable of supporting a dense population than the new State would be. Why should the Senators who come from those States insist upon it that a State with 77,000 square miles is not sufficiently large to be admitted into the Union, provided that the character of its soil is such that it can sustain a reasonably dense population?

There are some exceptional cases where larger States have been admitted. Oregon has 95,000 square miles, Colorado has 104,000, California has 189,000, Nevada has 104,000, and Texas has 274,000. These, with the States of Kansas and Minnesota, which are a trifle larger than the proposed new State, are the only exceptional cases.

With regard to Colorado it was not supposed to be an agricultural State purely. So with California and Oregon. It was not supposed that agriculture would be the leading industry in either Colorado, California, or Oregon, and consequently it was not thought that those States would be capable of supporting a dense population.

With regard to Texas, having in round numbers 274,000 square miles, it was stipulated when she came into the Union that four additional States might be made out of the Territory of Texas. Texas was agricultural in its character. Its people believed when it came in that it was too large for one State, and Congress assented that it was large enough for five States, making about 55,000 square miles each. I think this shows what was the idea of the earlier statesmen with regard to the convenient and proper size of new States to be admitted into the Union.

Southern Dakota has practically no waste land. With the exception of the Black Hills mining country it may be said to have no waste land whatever. I read from the memorial presented by the convention which framed the constitution:

> In all this vast area there are no mountain ranges, no waste or desert lands. All are susceptible of the highest cultivation and use, save an insignificant portion in the western part, termed buttes or peaks. With the exception of the extreme western part, including, say, 6,000 square miles of hilly country, this is one vast plain traversed by several considerable streams, the great Missouri River cutting it diagonally through the center from side to side. In the extreme western part the hill lands are usually rich in soil, and, wherever denuded of timber, capable of raising as fair crops of all the cereals and vegetables of this latitude as can be raised anywhere. In short, the entire of the proposed State will sustain as many people to the square mile as any one of the richest States in the Union. With an excellent soil, well watered by numerous rivers, lakes, and springs, a great navigable river traversing its entire width, a healthful climate, its yield of the precious and useful minerals in the western portion, with plenty of coal for fuel and manufacture and pine and other timber sufficient for home use, a doubt of its capacity to support its full share of the increasing millions with which the States of the Union are to be peopled in their future history need not be indulged in by any one against Dakota, and will not be for any just purpose.

I can not conceive that there would be a greater impropriety, except in degree, in consolidating all the eight Territories of the United States and admitting them as one State. Of course the impropriety would be greater in degree. I think a rule has been established by the admission of the agricultural States whose area I have given, if there be any rule as to what makes a State of convenient and proper size, by the action of former Congresses in carving out States from our territory and admitting them to the Union.

As so much of this controversy depends upon whether we shall have one State or two, I think I may be permitted to dwell upon some of the other reasons why we should not admit a State with 150,000 square miles, every square mile of which is capable of cultivation and of being thickly populated.

The idea of proper self-government repels the notion that such a State would not be too large. It is impossible for the common people to take part in the concerns of the State in a State of that size. The expense of attending conventions of the State, the expense of travel from one portion of it to the other, from any portion of it to the capital, the expense of attending its Legislature, is so great that it practically shuts out the common and poor people from a participation in the privileges of government and from accepting the responsibilities and performing the duties of government. It has involved up to the present time the evil of proxy representation in all their political gatherings. No political convention of any party in the Territory has been generally conducted by the delegates who have been elected. A few nearest to the point where it was to be held, or having money to reach it from remote parts, or desiring to aid some particular purpose, have attended, but the great bulk of the delegation elected to such conventions has been represented by proxy. This is inevitable; and if any greater evil can be imagined in a popular government than proxy representation, made necessary by such an immense area, I can not conceive of it. I repeat that a State of that size practically ignores and denies the right of the common people to participate in the conduct of its affairs. It relegates the conduct of affairs to the rich or to the unscrupulous.

Another thing is a practical denial of the administration of justice in its courts. Poor people can not travel long distances to attend court; they must have their courts near at hand. Perhaps this evil would not be so greatly felt under the State government as it has been felt under the Territorial government. I shall allude to that further on. But a great wealthy State just as surely tends to the rule of corporations and monopolies as does a small State. If the State is too large, it is just as likely to be ruled by those great corporations which have ends to subserve as it is if it is so small that, in the popular language, it can be easily bought up.

The truth as to what size a State should be lies, like all other truths, between extremes. It should be neither great nor small; it should be of medium size, and that has been the principle on which the statesmen of this country have acted in the admission of States. Unless Minnesota, Kansas, and Nebraska are too small, the proposed State is large enough for its good, orderly, prudent, and honest government. Who will say that Minnesota, Nebraska, and Kansas are too small? And if they be not too small, a State which doubles their area and is of comparatively the same character as to soil and population will be too large. If you consider this question with reference to the national welfare, the Territory is too large for one State, and the proposed State is certainly large enough.

I wish to submit a few statistics bearing on the resources of the proposed State. Its area, as I have said, would be 77,000 square miles; its number of acres 42,280,000. Its population, by the best estimate which can be made, taking the census of 1885 as a basis and the land entries and the statistics of immigration and the vote for ascertaining the increase of population since 1885, can not be much short of 400,000. No authority puts it less than 382,000, and that was some time ago, while the population has been rapidly increasing, so that it may be said in round numbers to be 400,000. South Dakota has 2,770 schoolhouses. It has school property of the value of $2,046,000. It expended for public schools in 1887 $1,670,000. I wish to stop right there for a moment, for I think that shows somewhat the character of its population, whether there would be a good, orderly, law-abiding, moral, industrious, and honest population within the State. The Territory gets no benefit from the public lands for schools. The Territory can not tax the public land for schools, so that whatever is raised for schools while in a Territorial condition has to be raised by taxation of the people themselves, and yet by taxation they raised and appropriated for public schools during the last year the sum I have named, $1,670,000. It has 231 newspapers, and 200 banks with a banking capital of $5,700,000. The assessed value of all property in 1887, exclusive of railroads, and exclusive, of course, of the lands which have been entered upon but which have not been patented, was $85,452,000. Miles of railroad, 2,243; number of horses in 1887, 128,000; number of cattle, 734,000; number of sheep, 194,000; number of swine, 387,000; bushels of wheat raised in 1887 in Southern Dakota, 26,632,000; bushels of oats, 24,628,000; bushels of corn, 23,510,000; bushels of barley, 3,990,000; flax, 3,200,000. Value of buildings in South Dakota belonging to the Territory, $715,207; gold and silver produced in 1886, $3,125,000.

Who will say that an area of 77,000 square miles, having the population and the resources of Southern Dakota, is not large enough for a State? So far as the national welfare is concerned, we want no imperial State. I saw a dispatch from a Dakota newspaper sent from Washington to the effect that certain members of the Senate would vote to admit Dakota as a whole, and that dispatch was headed in the Dakota paper, "An imperial State," which suggested the term I have just used. We want no imperial State. We want no State so great or so strong as to glory in its comparative strength. We want equality, physical equality as well as legal equality, among the States. We do not want any State to be overshadowed by another State.

It may be said that this is an argument which is natural to a Senator coming from a small State; but what say the Senators coming from Ohio, Illinois, and Indiana? Will their rights be better maintained in the Union? Will their privileges be better maintained by the admission of a State which will double or treble their size, their population, and their wealth in the not very distant future? We do not need States so large that they feel they can go alone. Every State should be limited in size to such an area as would make her feel her dependence not upon herself alone, but upon the Union of the States.

The whole Territory of Dakota is as capable of sustaining population as Iowa. It is not exaggeration to say that, with the present prospects of settlement, with its capacity and its resources, the whole Territory of Dakota as one State would have a population in 1900 of 10,000,000 people, and there would be a great empire in the Northwest. We might be proud of her success; but the fear is that the day would come when she would feel that she was not dependent upon the Union or upon the other States, but was independent of all.

So those wise men who have heretofore carved out the States have felt that in the admission of States after the original thirteen States, whose boundaries were fixed and could not be changed, that new States should be made as nearly equal in physical characteristics and resources as it was possible to make them. Great, strong States are an element not of strength to the nation, but rather of weakness, and I may say a possible menace and danger.

Good statesmanship will avoid the creation of imperial States. I heard it said during the discussion last year that if we would divide Dakota and divide other Territories the Senate would become a mob. At most it could not have more than one hundred members if we admitted all the Territories, dividing Dakota, and, I think, splitting up Texas into five States besides; but it is better that the Senate should be so enlarged, that it should represent the popular will and feel the popular pulse, than that a State should be admitted which would have an abnormally large representation in the House of Representatives. It is to the danger, it is to the disadvantage of smaller States and medium-sized States that any State should have an abnormally large representation in the House of Representatives.

The people of Dakota Territory have never had any controversy on the subject of the division of the Territory, unless it has occurred very recently. I think I have given the explanation of it, but certainly in all its earlier stages clear down to the past twelve months the sentiment in that Territory has been almost universal for division. It commenced as early as 1871. A memorial to Congress was unanimously passed in both houses, and approved by the governor January 12, 1871, praying for the division of that Territory, and from that date until within the last twelve months there has been practically no anti-division sentiment in the Territory of Dakota. Bill after bill has been introduced looking to a division of the Territory, looking to an enabling act for the two States, and in every other possible way expressing the sentiment of the people of Dakota in favor of division.

But I will not dwell upon this point. I shall recur to it hereafter if it becomes necessay.

I wish to say, in corroboration of what I said awhile ago, that if Dakota could have assurance that two States would be made there within a reasonable time there would be practically no division of sentiment now; but they have been led to believe that in some way they can not have two States, and their intense desire and longing for statehood is such that many of the people voted at the last election, when the question of division was submitted to them, against the division of the Territory. But prominent men in the Territory who then voted against and counseled votes against division have told me that if there was a reasonable chance that within the near future South Dakota could be admitted as a State and the northern half organized into a Territorial government or admitted as a State by an enabling act, they would be in favor of division, as they had always been.

Is it difficult to understand the intensity of this desire, Mr. President? Neglected, baffled, denied, and suffering, the people have not known which way to turn. Their condition is simply intolerable, and Congress ought to know it, and Congress ought no longer to make this matter a foot-ball, kicked about between its two Houses. No other people asking to be a State were ever treated with similar indignity, unless in the case of the State of Kansas.

There are more people in South Dakota to-day than there were in any one of eight States by the census of 1885. Nevada had a population of 62,000; Rhode Island, 276,000; Vermont, 332,000; New Hampshire, 346,000; Colorado, 194,000; Delaware, 147,000; Florida, 270,000; Oregon, 174,000. Here are eight States in the Union whose people, except that they have the warrant of Congress, are no more entitled to participate in the privileges of this Government than are the people of South Dakota.

A Territorial government is a pledge of statehood, Mr. President. Chief-Justice Taney, in the Dred-Scott decision, said as much. I need hardly refer to it; it is familiar to Senators. He said Congress did not acquire territory to hold it in a colonial condition; that the organization of a Territorial government was a pledge to the people that when they had the sufficient population and resources they should be admitted to participation in the privileges of the citizens of the other States. This is what Judge Taney said of a Territory:

The power to expand the United States by the admission of new States is plainly given; and in the construction of this power by all the departments of the Government, it has been held to authorize the acquisition of territory, not fit for admission at the time, but to be admitted as soon as its population and situation entitle it to admission. It is acquired to become a State, and not to be held as a colony and governed by Congress with absolute authority; and as the propriety of admitting a new State is committed to the sound discretion of Congress, the power to acquire territory for that purpose, to be held by the United States until it is in a suitable condition to become a State upon an equal footing with the other States, must rest upon the same discretion.

The Territory of Dakota was originally a part of the territory ceded by France to the United States under the treaty of April 30, 1803. The third article of the treaty is as follows:

ART. 3. The inhabitants of the ceded territory shall be incorporated in the Union of the United States, and admitted as soon as possible, according to the principles of the Federal Constitution, to the enjoyment of all the rights, advantages, and immunities of citizens of the United States, and in the mean time they shall be maintained and protected in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property, and the religion which they profess. (8 Stat. L., page 202.)

So these people have thus guarantied to them by that treaty the right to be admitted to the Union "as soon as possible, according to the principles of the Federal Constitution."

All the privileges of the ordinance of 1787 for the government of the territory northwest of the Ohio River were extended in 1834 by a public act to the territory which now constitutes the Territory of Dakota, and in the fifth article of the ordinance of 1787 it was provided:

And whenever any of the said States shall have 60,000 free inhabitants therein such State shall be admitted, by its delegates, into the Congress of the United States, on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever, and shall be at liberty to form a permanent constitution and State government: Provided, The constitution and government so to be formed shall be republican and in conformity to the principles contained in these articles; and, so far as it can be consistent with the general interest of the confederacy, such admission shall be allowed at an earlier period and when there may be a less number of free inhabitants in the State than 60,000.

So the people of Dakota Territory, both under the treaty with France and under the Northwest ordinance, have morally a right to be admitted to the Union, and that they had long ago.

The Territorial condition, aside from this question of right, is a condition of infancy, of pupilage, I was going to say of vassalage. If too long maintained it is a position of vassalage. It is true that while the Territory is weak it needs the sustaining and protecting authority of Government; it needs the support of Government. It is like the child while under the power of the parent. Society has fixed a limit when that must end. In the case of the child society says that it must end and the child must be an independent and free man at the age of twenty-one. So a Territory in its condition of infancy needs to be protected and supported by the Government. It needs the strong arm of the Government. It needs its advice, as the child needs the advice of the father. It needs its laws as the child needs the precept of the father. But it would be no more intolerable that the father should attempt to exercise his authority after the child arrived at the age when the common consent of mankind said that it was to be free and independent and to be emancipated from the power of the father than it is the Government to undertake to maintain the Territorial condition after the Territory has reached that point where it is entitled by all the rules and the history of this Government to admission into the Union. Whenever the Government compels a Territorial condition, after that period arrives it governs the Territory as it would govern a colony; it is not self-government any longer. It is abhorrent to the principles of our Government, which are that the people shall all have a voice in saying what the government of the people shall be.

But some Senator might ask me to specify and say, After all, what are the evils of Territorial government of which you speak? Why, is it not a pretty good thing that the Government should extend its protecting arm and its sustaining care over a great area of country, filled with people who have come from other States where they learned the dignity of responsibility and the duties of freemen?

There are a good many answers to that. One I have already made. It is not self-government. It is a shutting out of a certain portion of the people of this land from the privileges of self-government in holding a Territorial condition after the time has come when the common consent of the people of the country says, as it does in this case, they should be admitted to statehood. It is denying to them that principle which we insist upon as the right of man when we say that universal suffrage is to be the rule of this nation. It is taxation without representation. It is the same thing that the colonists fought against when we achieved our independence.

Do you tell me that the people of a Territory, 400,000 strong, many of whom followed the flag in the war of the rebellion and fought to preserve this country, all the adult males of whom have exercised the rights of citizens and electors in other States, are not entitled to this suffrage? That they are not entitled to say as much as I am who shall be the President who presides over the nation? That they may not say who shall be their governor, or their judges, and many other officers? That men are to be sent to them, put over them, and they are to be excluded from all right to say who they shall be? It is a violation of the basic principle of the Government of the United States.

Just think of it, Mr. President. They have no more to do with electing their own officers in Dakota than the people of Canada in the election of the governor-general of Canada or the——

Mr. SPOONER. Or in the removal of them.

Mr. PLATT. Or in the removal of them. The governor is sent to them as Great Britain sends a governor to Canada. They are a colony, not an integral part of the Union. It adds no dignity or luster to this Government to maintain people in such a condition. It takes away from our dignity and our standing.

I will not put it too strongly, for I do not counsel or advise anything but submission on the part of the people of the Territory of Dakota. It was said in a former debate that they had undertaken to set up a State government in fact, as Michigan did in her early period, and so I counsel nothing but submission; but I do not put it too strongly when I say that the American citizen has to restrain himself and withhold all the natural tendencies of his manhood when he submits to such a condition beyond the period when the Territory ought to be admitted as a State.

The governor of Dakota, a man sent to them from without the State, appoints one hundred and twenty-five Territorial officers, who expend all the money of the Territory. They are confirmed by the council it is true, but the very system tends to work corruption. I make no charges of corruption in that Territory. I simply say that this very Territorial system, when extended beyond the period of infancy and pupilage, tends directly and inevitably to a corrupt government and not a free government.

The Territorial condition gives a veto on all legislation to a man who is usually a stranger to the interests of the Territory. It has always been the case in the history of the world that where a governor held his position purely by appointment the tendency was to fraud and corruption. Wherever on the face of the globe colonial government exists or has existed, there you will hear the cry of dishonesty raised against the governor and the governing classes.

At the danger of wearying the Senate I wish to quote what Dr. Franklin said in the constitutional convention about the proprietary government of Pennsylvania, and while I make no practical application of it to Dakota, I say that he struck there the inevitable tendency of this kind of government. In the debates in the convention which framed the Constitution of the United States, in June 1787, speaking of the veto power which should be confided to the President—

Dr. Franklin said he was sorry to differ from his colleague, for whom he had a very great respect, on any occasion, but he could not help it on this. He had had some experience of this check in the executive on the Legislature, under the proprietary government of Pennsylvania. The negative of the governor was constantly made use of to extort money. No good law whatever could be passed without a private bargain with him. An increase of his salary, or some donation, was always made a condition; till at last it became the regular practice to have orders in his favor, on the treasury, presented along with the bills to be signed, so that he might actually receive the former before he should sign the latter. When the Indians were scalping the Western people, and notice of it arrived, the concurrence of the governor in the means of self-defense could not be got till it was agreed that his estate should be exempted from taxation; so that the people were to fight for the security of his property, whilst he was to bear no share of burden. (5 Elliott's Debates, 152.)

I do not say that any such thing exists in Dakota or in any of the Territories, and yet it is within the observation of every Senator here that the people of the Territories feel that when a governor comes to them from outside he comes there to make some money outside of the governmental salary, and that he makes conditions about the signing of bills which, if not putting money in his pocket, in some way conduces to the advancement of his private interest. So legislation and appointments come to be a matter of give and take in the Territories.

There is no constitutional or legal limit to taxation or appropriation or indebtedness in the Territory. The claim or pretense of self-government is a mockery where the executive or administrative officers are not elected by the people. The judicial system of Dakota as it is to-day is a practical denial of justice. There are six judges there for 600,000 people, and that is all beyond a justice of the peace who has a jurisdiction for $100. With the exception of justices of the peace, with their hundred-dollar jurisdiction, there are six judges only for 600,000 people, scattered over a Territory 430 miles long and 400 miles broad. There is the district of Yankton, with its 150,000 people, which has only a single judge. There are counties in which there has been no court in two years, and criminals lying in the jails awaiting trial for that length of time because there can be no court there. Men have been tried for penitentiary offenses there in which the argument of their attorney in their defense was by necessity limited by the judge to ten minutes; not an unusual thing!

I need not go on to enlarge upon the disabilities of Territorial government. The United States Government does not support the Territory any longer. It pays annually $24,500, and biennially, when the Legislature meets, $38,850 more; so that in one year it pays $24,500 for the support of the Territory, and every alternate year it pays $63,350 for the support of the Territory; and yet Southern Dakota expended for its public schools last year $1,670,000, raised from its own resources; and its taxes—I have not the figures here—raised for other purposes were about $500,000. It makes interest higher, it makes taxes higher, it retards development, it makes it impossible for the poor man to get along as well as he can in a State. It is within the knowledge of every Senator here that if Dakota were to be admitted as a State, the whole or any portion of it, immigration would go there with a rush just as soon as that announcement was made to the public, because it would be felt then that there was to be a stable condition—not an unstable condition of things.

All that the Anglo-Saxon holds dear to him in government is wanting in a Territorial government, for until the Territory comes to that period when it is entitled to be admitted as a State it has no Magna Charta, no constitution, no election of executive or administrative officers. It is in vassalage, it is in a degraded condition. The wonder is that the people of this Territory have been so patient. Their very patience demonstrates their fitness for self-government.

Are these people to be taunted with too much anxiety to be admitted? Are they to be taunted with having framed a constitution before the Congress of the United States told them that they might frame a constitution? Are they to be held out of the Union because they have shown their anxiety to come in; to be clothed with all the privileges and dignity of other citizens; to stand here upright in their manhood, instead of bowing down in their vassalage, by adopting a constitution in advance of the permission of Congress?

Perhaps, Mr. President, it is hardly worth while to restate the argument that this forms no reason why they should not be admitted; and if I have demonstrated that South Dakota is large enough for a State, both considering the welfare of the State and the welfare of the nation, that its people are of that character who will conduct an orderly, stable, republican government, it is scarcely necessary for me to recur to the question as to whether they should be admitted under the constitution which they have formed. I will, however, for a few minutes allude to some of the precedents.

I make this proposition, that the admission by a constitution already formed without an enabling act passed by Congress, is, so far as the precedents are concerned, just as regular as admission by a constitution formed after the passage of an enabling act. It is too late in the history of this Government to say that there is anything irregular in the people of a Territory forming a constitution, establishing the boundaries of a new State, and asking to be admitted under such circumstances.

We have had twenty-five new States admitted. Three were formed out of old States, namely, Kentucky, Maine, and West Virginia. Kentucky had no constitution adopted when the vote was passed for her admission, and I think West Virginia had none. Vermont claiming independence was claimed by New York also, but she was admitted, and it can scarcely be said that she was admitted by being carved out of another State, because she claimed independence, and I think was fairly entitled to it; but there was no enabling act in that case.

None of the States which can be said to have been in any way embraced within the territory of the original thirteen States ever came into Congress under an enabling act passed by Congress. They came in with constitutions framed by themselves for themselves, and in some cases the act of admission was passed before even the constitution was framed, as in the case of Kentucky.

Texas was annexed as an independent republic. She was still contesting her right to independence with Mexico at the time she was annexed to the United States. She was soon after admitted, with a constitution already framed, with no enabling act by Congress. Twenty States have been organized out of the public domain, two from the territory ceded by Georgia and South Carolina, namely, Alabama and Mississippi. These each had an enabling act. One, Tennessee, out of territory ceded by North Carolina, was admitted without an enabling act; admitted with a constitution she framed for herself. One, Florida, was admitted from territory ceded by Spain, and there could be no claim in the case of Florida, as there was in the case of those States which came in under the treaty with France, that there was a guaranty which enabled her to form a constitution for herself, and yet Florida was admitted with a constitution already formed without an enabling act passed by Congress.

Two States were formed from territory ceded by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo—California and Nevada. The last, Nevada, had an enabling act, but California had none. California had a constitution and a State government in operation before she was admitted into the Union, and without any act of Congress giving her even a Territorial organization. She carved her own boundaries out of the territory which was acquired by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. She was under a military government. She had no Territorial government. She had no authority of a Territorial Legislature to call a convention and frame a constitution. She had the assent and the consent of the military governor, and thereupon she proceeded. Out of the territory acquired from Mexico she selected a certain portion and established her boundaries, and then framed her constitution, and elected her officers. She set up her State government, and the military governor turned over all his power and authority into its hands; and then she came and was admitted to the Union by act of Congress.

That is the history of California's admission. Nevada had an enabling act.

Five States have been carved out of the territory ceded by Virginia known as the Northwest Territory—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin. All of these had enabling acts but Michigan. Michigan had none. Michigan was like Dakota. She had been struggling for recognition; she asked for bread and received a stone; she had knocked at the door of Congress for admission, but Congress had turned a deaf ear to her, and thereupon she proceeded by act of the Territorial Legislature to call a constitutional convention. She thereupon framed a constitution; set up a State government; elected Senators and sent them here, and exercised the rights of State government, and then was admitted without an enabling act, under the constitution thus formed, when, if Dakota was doing the same thing it would be said it was in rebellion against the Government, setting up an independent government without authority of the General Government, and yet that is the way Michigan was admitted.

The Louisiana purchase has contributed nine States, including Oregon and Colorado, some portions of which may have been acquired otherwise. Those States are: Louisiana, Missouri, Arkansas, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, and Oregon. Of these Arkansas, Iowa, and Oregon were admitted with constitutions already framed and formed and ratified by the people, without any enabling act on the part of Congress giving them permission to make such constitutions. So three of the nine States which have been carved out of the Louisiana purchase have been admitted without an enabling act and without a question of the propriety of thus admitting them.

Kansas was unique. She was admitted under the Wyandotte constitution, for which there was an enabling act, but she had been conditionally admitted under the Lecompton constitution, for which there was no enabling act. I think I do not misstate the circumstances of the admission of Kansas.

So, then, it is seen that when twenty States have been carved out of the public domain, seven of those States have been admitted without any enabling act or without any permission of Congress first given to form a constitution. It can no longer be said, as it was in the last debate, that there is any determination in Dakota to put this State in operation until after she is admitted. The people have been patient, waiting, with their constitution formed, begging for admission as other States have been admitted into the Union.

So I say, Mr. President, in conclusion, that South Dakota brings herself within the precedents under which States have been admitted. It is true she carved out her own boundaries, but so did California, so did Oregon, so did Iowa, so did Michigan, and possibly some other States; so that, whether it be in the matter of having framed a constitution without permission of Congress, or having carved out her boundaries, occupying for the State only a portion of what was embraced within the Territorial organization, it can not be said that she has done anything irregular.

Mr. President, why should not South Dakota be admitted, and admitted now? Why should her prayer be longer denied? Why should the United States turn a deaf ear to her prayer? Why should the Senate of the United States refuse to participate in that greatest and grandest act of legislation, the admission of a new State into the Union, and the addition thereby to the grandeur, the strength, the glory, and the renown of the American Republic?

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President——

Mr. CHANDLER. Will the Senator yield to enable me to offer an amendment to the bill, to be printed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. CHANDLER. I offer an amendment to the pending bill, to be printed and lie on the table for the present.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be received and printed.

Mr. FRYE. Does the Senator from South Carolina desire to proceed to-night?

Mr. BUTLER. I am indifferent about it.

Mr. FRYE. I gave notice that I should ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of executive business at 4 o'clock to-day. I make that motion.

Mr. BUTLER. That will be agreeable to me, with the understanding that I have the floor to-morrow.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] retains the floor on the pending bill. The Chair lays before the Senate a message from the President of the United States.

FLORIDA SEMINOLE INDIANS.

The message was read, as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication of the 6th instant from the Secretary of the Interior, submitting, with accompanying papers, a draught of proposed legislation, prepared in the office of Indian Affairs, to authorize the use of certain funds therein specified in the purchase of lands in the State of Florida upon which to locate the Seminole Indians in that State.

The matter is presented for the favorable consideration of Congress.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, April 9, 1888.

The message was ordered to be printed and lie on the table.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Maine [Mr. FRYE] moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After fifty-six minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 5 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m.)

the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, April 10, 1888, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate April 9, 1888.

RECEIVERS OF PUBLIC MONEYS.

Joseph J. Rogers, of Lisbon, Dak., to be receiver of public moneys at Grand Forks, Dak., vice William J. Anderson, term expired.

John Schleyer, of Hays City, Kans., to be receiver of public moneys at Wakeeney, Kans., vice William H. Pilkenton, resigned.

INDIAN AGENT.

Daniel W. Butler, of Wasco County, Oregon, to be agent for the Indians of the Warm Springs agency in Oregon, vice William W. Dougherty, resigned.

POSTMASTER.

Jasper N. Hammond, to be postmaster at Seneca Falls, Seneca County, New York, vice Stephen Weatherlow, term expired.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate April 5, 1888.

UNITED STATES ATTORNEY.

William E. Purcell, of Dakota, to be attorney of the United States for the Territory of Dakota.

POSTMASTERS.

Dwight N. Miller, to be postmaster at Homer, Cortland County, New York.

Paul W. Grierson, at Calumet, Houghton County, Michigan.

Atlen G. Sprankle, at Millersburgh, Holmes County, Ohio.

James Tiernan, at Fort Howard, Brown County, Wisconsin.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate April 9, 1888.

POSTMASTER.

Amos Cogswell, to be postmaster at Owatonna, Steele County, Minnesota.

REGISTER OF LAND-OFFICE.

Albert L. New, of Greenfield, Ind., to be register of the land-office at Evanston, Wyo.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

John Evans, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, April 4, 1888.

[CALENDAR DAY, April 9, 1888.]

The recess having expired, the House (at 11 o'clock and 45 minutes a. m., Monday, April 9) resumed its session.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. Mr. Speaker, what is the pending proposition?

The SPEAKER. The question is upon the motion made by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR] that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union for the consideration of the special order.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. Pending that motion I move that the House take a recess for thirty minutes.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend that motion by striking out "thirty minutes" and inserting "two hours."

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

The SPEAKER. Pending motion of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] the Chair desires to lay before the House several personal requests.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. GROSVENOR, indefinitely, on account of important professional business.

To Mr. GRANGER, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

To Mr. SIMMONS, for this day, on account of sickness.

FRAUDULENT USE OF THE MAILS.

Mr. SENEY, by unanimous consent, reported from the Committee on the Judiciary, as a substitute for House bill No. 4373, a bill (H. R. 9268) to punish dealers and pretended dealers in counterfeit money and other fraudulent devices for using the United States mails; which was read a first and second time, referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

House bill No. 4373 was, by unanimous consent, laid on the table.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I ask unanimous consent to make a report from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. REED. I shall have to ask for the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The question is upon the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa to the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas. The amendment proposes that the House take a recess for two hours.

The question being put, there were—ayes 4, noes 58.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 9, nays 163, not voting 152; as follows:

YEAS—9.

Blanchard,	Hayes,	Richardson,	Wheeler.
Clardy,	Hutton,	Washington,
Crain,	Neal,

NAYS—163.

Allen, Mass.	Ermentrout,	Latham,	Russell, Mass.
Allen, Mich.	Farquhar,	Lee,	Ryan.
Anderson, Iowa	Finley,	Lehlbach,	Sawyer,
Anderson, Ill.	Flood,	Lind,	Scull,
Baker, Ill.	Foran,	Long,	Seney,
Bayne,	French,	Lyman,	Seymour,
Biggs,	Fuller,	Macdonald,	Sherman,
Bliss,	Funston,	Maish,	Shively,
Boothman,	Gallinger,	Mansur,	Snyder,
Bound,	Gear,	Mason,	Spooner,
Boutelle,	Gest,	Matson,	Springer,
Bowden,	Goff,	McClammy,	Stahlnecker,
Bowen,	Greenman,	McCormick,	Steele,
Browne, Ind.	Grout,	McCreary,	Stephenson,
Brown, Ohio	Guenther,	McKenna,	Stockdale,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Hall,	McKinley,	Stone, Mo.
Bunnell,	Harmer,	Milliken,	Struble,
Burrows,	Hatch,	Moffitt,	Symes,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Haugen,	Montgomery,	Taulbee,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hayden,	Morrill,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio,
Cannon,	Hemphill,	Morrow,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio,
Caruth,	Henderson, Iowa,	Nichols,	Thomas, Ky.
Caswell,	Henderson, N. C.	Nutting,	Thomas, Wis.
Cheadle,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Townshend,
Chipman,	Hermann,	O'Neall, Ind.	Vandever,
Conger,	Hitt,	O'Neill, Pa.	Wade,
Cooper,	Hogg,	Osborne,	Walker,
Cothran,	Holman,	Outhwaite,	Warner,
Cox,	Hopkins, Ill.	Owen,	Weber,
Crouse,	Hopkins, Va.	Parker,	West,
Culberson,	Houk,	Patton,	White, Ind.
Cummings,	Hovey,	Penington,	White, N. Y.
Dalzell,	Hudd,	Peters,	Whiting, Mass.
Darlington,	Hunter,	Pidcock,	Whitthorne,
Davis,	Johnston, Ind.	Plumb,	Wickham,
De Lano,	Johnston, N. C.	Post,	Wilber,
Dibble,	Kean,	Reed,	Williams,
Dingley,	Kennedy,	Romeis,	Wilson, W. Va.
Dockery,	Kerr,	Rowell,	Woodburn,
Dorsey,	Lagan,	Rowland,	Yost.
Elliott,	Laidlaw,	Russell, Conn.

NOT VOTING—152.

Abbott,	Cockran,	Jones,	Phelan,
Adams,	Cogswell,	Kelley,	Phelps,
Allen, Miss.	Collins,	Ketcham,	Pugsley,
Anderson, Miss.	Compton,	Kilgore,	Randall,
Anderson, Kans.	Cowles,	Laffoon,	Rayner,
Arnold,	Crisp,	La Follette,	Rice,
Atkinson,	Cutcheon,	Laird,	Robertson,
Bacon,	Dargan,	Landes,	Rockwell,
Baker, N. Y.	Davenport,	Lane,	Rogers,
Bankhead,	Davidson, Ala.	Lanham,	Rusk,
Barnes,	Davidson, Fla.	Lawler,	Sayers,
Barry,	Dougherty,	Lodge,	Scott,
Belden,	Dunham,	Lynch,	Shaw,
Belmont,	Dunn,	Maffett,	Simmons,
Bingham,	Enloe,	Mahoney,	Smith,
Bland,	Felton,	Martin,	Sowden,
Blount,	Fisher,	McAdoo,	Spinola,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Fitch,	McComas,	Stewart, Tex.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Ford,	McCullogh,	Stewart, Ga.
Brewer,	Forney,	McKinney,	Stewart, Vt.
Brower,	Gaines,	McMillin,	Stone, Ky.
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Gay,	McRae,	Tarsney,
Brumm,	Gibson,	McShane,	Thomas, Ill.
Bryce,	Glass,	Merriman,	Thompson, Ohio,
Buchanan,	Glover,	Mills,	Thompson, Cal.
Buckalew,	Granger,	Moore,	Tillman,
Burnes,	Grimes,	Morgan,	Tracey,
Burnett,	Grosvenor,	Morse,	Turner, Kans.
Butler,	Hare,	Nelson,	Turner, Ga.
Butterworth,	Heard,	Newton,	Vance,
Bynum,	Herbert,	Norwood,	Weaver,
Campbell, Ohio	Hiestand,	Oates,	Whiting, Mich.
Candler,	Hires,	O'Ferrall,	Wilkins,
Carlton,	Holmes,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilkinson,
Catchings,	Hooker,	Payson,	Wilson, Minn.
Clark,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Peel,	Wise.
Clements,	Howard,	Perkins,	Yardley,
Cobb,	Jackson,	Perry,	Yoder.

So the amendment of Mr. WEAVER, proposing a recess for two hours, was not agreed to.

Mr. BYNUM (before the result of the vote was announced). I was present during the roll-call and heard my name, but supposing then that I was paired I refrained from voting. I find now that I am not paired, and I desire to vote "no."

The SPEAKER. The statement of the gentleman does not entitle him to vote under the rule. The right to vote after the conclusion of the roll-call is only permitted where a gentleman, having been present during the roll-call and desiring to vote, has failed to hear his name called.

Mr. ENLOE. I would like to have my vote recorded.

The SPEAKER. Did the gentleman fail to hear his name called?

Mr. ENLOE. When I heard my name called I had just entered the Hall, and consequently did not understand what the question was. Therefore I did not vote.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman's statement does not bring him within the rule.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. PERRY with Mr. KETCHAM, until further notice.

Mr. CATCHINGS with Mr. GROSVENOR, on all political questions until further notice; also on this bill. If present, Mr. GROSVENOR would vote for the bill and Mr. CATCHINGS against it.

Mr. YODER with Mr. LANE, on this question.

Mr. BURNETT with Mr. BAKER, of New York, on this vote.

Mr. SIMMONS with Mr. HOPKINS, of New York, on this day.

The following-named members were announced as paired for this day:

Mr. RANDALL with Mr. BINGHAM.

Mr. WILKINS with Mr. BROWER.

Mr. LYNCH with Mr. THOMAS H. B. BROWNE.

Mr. GRANGER with Mr. YARDLEY.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires to lay before the House the personal request of a member. The gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. DORSEY] asks to be excused for to-day, on account of sickness. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. WEAVER. I desire to amend the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas by making the recess extend to 3 o'clock.

The question was taken; and on a division there were—ayes 2, noes 65.

Mr. WEAVER. No quorum.

The SPEAKER. The point of order being made that no quorum has voted, the Chair will order tellers.

Mr. WEAVER and Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR were appointed tellers.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 3, nays 172, not voting 149; as follows:

YEAS—3.

Hayes,	Kilgore,	Neal.

NAYS—172.

Allen, Mass.	Dorsey,	Kean,	Pidcock.
Allen, Mich.	Elliott,	Kelley,	Plumb,
Anderson, Iowa	Enloe,	Kennedy,	Post,
Anderson, Ill.	Ermentrout,	Kerr,	Pugsley,
Atkinson,	Farquhar,	Laffoon,	Rayner,
Baker, N. Y.	Finley,	Lagan,	Richardson,
Baker, Ill.	Flood,	Laidlaw,	Romeis,
Bayne,	Foran,	Latham,	Rowell,
Biggs,	French,	Lawler,	Rowland,
Bliss,	Fuller,	Lee,	Russell, Conn.
Boothman,	Funston,	Lehlbach,	Sawyer,
Bound,	Gallinger,	Lind,	Scull,
Boutelle,	Gear,	Lodge,	Seney,
Bowden,	Gest,	Long,	Seymour,
Bowen,	Glass,	Lyman,	Sherman,
Brewer,	Glover,	Macdonald,	Snyder,
Browne, Ind.	Goff,	Maish,	Spooner,
Brown, Ohio	Greenman,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Grout,	McAdoo,	Steele,
Bryce,	Guenther,	McClammy,	Stephenson,
Bunnell,	Hall,	McCormick,	Stone, Ky.
Burrows,	Harmer,	McCreary,	Struble,
Bynum,	Hatch,	McKenna,	Taulbee,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Haugen,	McKinley,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Campbell, Ohio	Hayden,	McMillin,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Henderson, Iowa	McRae,	Thomas, Ky.
Cannon,	Henderson, N. C.	Milliken,	Thomas, Wis.
Caruth,	Henderson, Ill.	Moffitt,	Townshend,
Caswell,	Hermann,	Montgomery,	Turner, Kans.
Cheadle,	Hitt,	Morrill,	Vandever,
Chipman,	Hogg,	Morrow,	Wade,
Compton,	Holman,	Nelson,	Walker,
Conger,	Holmes,	Nichols,	Warner,
Cooper,	Hopkins, Ill.	Nutting,	Weber,
Cothran,	Hopkins, Va.	O'Donnell,	West,
Cox,	Hopkins, N. Y.	O'Neill, Pa.	White, Ind.
Crouse,	Houk,	Osborne,	White, N. Y.
Cummings,	Hovey,	Owen,	Whiting, Mass.
Dalzell,	Hudd,	Parker,	Wickham,
Darlington,	Hunter,	Patton,	Williams,
De Lano,	Hutton,	Penington,	Wilson, W. Va.
Dibble,	Johnston, Ind.	Perkins,	Woodburn,
Dingley,	Johnston, N. C.	Peters,	Yost.

NOT VOTING—149.

Abbott,	Blount,	Clardy,	Davidson, Fla.
Adams,	Breckinridge, Ark.	Clark,	Davis,
Allen, Miss.	Breckinridge, Ky.	Clements,	Dockery,
Anderson, Kans.	Brower,	Cobb,	Dougherty,
Anderson, Miss.	Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Cockran,	Dunham,
Arnold,	Brumm,	Cogswell,	Dunn,
Bacon,	Buchanan,	Collins,	Felton,
Bankhead,	Buckalew,	Cowles,	Fisher,
Barnes,	Burnes,	Crain,	Fitch,
Barry,	Burnett,	Crisp,	Ford,
Belden,	Butler,	Culberson,	Forney,
Belmont,	Butterworth,	Cutcheon,	Gaines,
Bingham,	Candler,	Dargan,	Gay,
Blanchard,	Carlton,	Davenport,	Gibson,
Bland,	Catchings,	Davidson, Ala.	Granger,
Grimes,	Matson,	Reed,	Tarsney,
Grosvenor,	McComas,	Rice,	Thomas, Ill.
Hare,	McCullogh,	Robertson,	Thompson, Ohio
Heard,	McKinney,	Rockwell,	Thompson, Cal.
Hemphill,	McShane,	Rogers,	Tillman,
Herbert,	Merriman,	Russell, Mass.	Tracey,
Hiestand,	Mills,	Rusk,	Turner, Ga.
Hires,	Moore,	Ryan,	Vance,
Hooker,	Morgan,	Sayers,	Washington,
Howard,	Morse,	Scott,	Weaver,
Jackson,	Newton,	Shaw,	Wheeler,
Jones,	Norwood,	Shively,	Whiting, Mich.
Ketcham,	Oates,	Simmons,	Whitthorne,
La Follette,	O'Ferrall,	Smith,	Wilber,
Laird,	O'Neall, Ind.	Sowden,	Wilkins,
Landes,	O'Neill, Mo.	Spinola,	Wilkinson,
Lane,	Outhwaite,	Springer,	Wilson, Minn.
Lanham,	Payson,	Stewart, Tex.	Wise,
Lynch,	Peel,	Stewart, Ga.	Yardley,
Maffett,	Perry,	Stewart, Vt.	Yoder.
Mahoney,	Phelan,	Stockdale,
Mansur,	Phelps,	Stone, Mo.
Martin,	Randall,	Symes,

So the amendment of Mr. WEAVER was rejected.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. STOCKDALE with Mr. PAYSON, on all political questions, for to-day.

Mr. SIMMONS with Mr. DORSEY, for the rest of the day.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. BAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to present a petition of 1,430 Knights of Labor for the establishment of a Government telegraph system——

Mr. WEAVER. Regular order.

Mr. BAYNE. I hope the gentleman will not insist upon that; I only desire to ask unanimous consent to present this petition and have it referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Mr. WEAVER and others demanded the regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCMILLIN in the chair). The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas, that the House take a recess for thirty minutes.

Mr. MCKINNEY. I move to strike out "thirty minutes" and insert "3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state that the amendment would not now be in order, the House having just voted upon it.

Mr. WEAVER. The Chair is mistaken in that. The question just taken was on the motion for a recess until 3 o'clock.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is correct; the question is on the motion of the gentleman from New Hampshire to strike out "thirty minutes" and insert "3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m."

The question was taken; and on a division there were—ayes 3, noes 81.

Mr. WEAVER. No quorum.

Mr. DIBBLE. Let us have the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 3, nays 173, not voting 148; as follows:

YEAS—3.

Neal,	Richardson,	Wheeler.

NAYS—173.

Abbott,	Enloe,	Latham,	Rowell,
Allen, Mass.	Ermentrout,	Lawler,	Rowland,
Allen, Mich.	Farquhar,	Lee,	Russell, Conn.
Anderson, Iowa	Flood,	Lehlbach,	Ryan,
Anderson, Ill.	Foran,	Lodge,	Sawyer,
Atkinson,	French,	Long,	Scull,
Baker, N. Y.	Fuller,	Lyman,	Seney,
Baker, Ill.	Funston,	Macdonald,	Seymour,
Bayne,	Gaines,	Maish,	Sherman,
Biggs,	Gallinger,	Mason,	Shively,
Bliss,	Gear,	Matson,	Snyder,
Boothman,	Gest,	McAdoo,	Sowden,
Bound,	Glass,	McClammy,	Spooner,
Boutelle,	Glover,	McCormick,	Springer,
Bowden,	Goff,	McCreary,	Stahlnecker,
Bowen,	Greenman,	McKenna,	Steele,
Browne, Ind.	Grout,	McKinley,	Stephenson,
Brown, Ohio	Guenther,	McRae,	Stone, Ky.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Hall,	Milliken,	Stone, Mo.
Bryce,	Harmer,	Moffitt,	Taulbee,
Bunnell,	Hatch,	Montgomery,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Burrows,	Hayden,	Morrill,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bynum,	Hemphill,	Morrow,	Thomas, Ky.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Henderson, Iowa	Nelson,	Thomas, Wis.
Campbell, Ohio	Henderson, N. C.	Nichols,	Turner, Kans.
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Henderson, Ill.	Nutting,	Vandever,
Cannon,	Hermann,	O'Donnell,	Wade,
Caruth,	Hitt,	O'Ferrall,	Walker,
Caswell,	Hogg,	O'Neall, Ind.	Warner,
Cheadle,	Holman,	O'Neill, Pa.	Weber,
Cogswell,	Holmes,	Osborne,	West,
Cooper,	Hopkins, Ill.	Owen,	White, Ind.
Cothran,	Hopkins, Va.	Parker,	White, N. Y.
Cox,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Patton,	Whitthorne,
Crouse,	Houk,	Perkins,	Wickham,
Cummings,	Hovey,	Peters,	Wilber,
Dalzell,	Johnston, Ind.	Pidcock,	Wilkinson.
Darlington,	Johnston, N. C.	Plumb,	Williams.
Davis,	Kean,	Post,	Wilson, W. Va.
De Lano,	Kelley,	Pugsley,	Wise,
Dibble,	Kennedy,	Rayner,	Yost.
Dingley,	Kerr,	Reed,
Dockery,	Laidlaw,	Rice,
Elliott,	Laird,	Romeis,

NOT VOTING—148.

Adams,	Compton,	Hutton,	Phelps,
Allen, Miss.	Conger,	Jackson,	Randall,
Anderson, Miss.	Cowles,	Jones,	Robertson,
Anderson, Kans.	Crain,	Ketcham,	Rockwell,
Arnold,	Crisp,	Kilgore,	Rogers,
Bacon,	Culberson,	Laffoon,	Russell, Mass.
Bankhead,	Cutcheon,	La Follette,	Rusk,
Barnes,	Dargan,	Lagan,	Sayers,
Barry,	Davenport,	Landes,	Scott,
Belden,	Davidson, Ala.	Lane,	Shaw,
Belmont,	Davidson, Fla.	Lanham,	Simmons,
Bingham,	Dorsey,	Lind,	Smith,
Blanchard,	Dougherty,	Lynch,	Spinola,
Bland,	Dunham,	Maffett,	Stewart, Tex.
Blount,	Dunn,	Mahoney,	Stewart, Ga.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Felton,	Mansur,	Stewart, Vt.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Finley,	Martin,	Stockdale,
Brewer,	Fisher,	McComas,	Struble,
Brower,	Fitch,	McCullogh,	Symes,
Browne, T.H.B., Va.	Ford,	McKinney,	Tarsney,
Brumm,	Forney,	McMillin,	Thomas, Ill.
Buchanan,	Gay,	McShane,	Thompson, Ohio
Buckalew,	Gibson,	Merriman,	Thompson, Cal.
Burnes,	Granger,	Mills,	Tillman,
Burnett,	Grimes,	Moore,	Tracey,
Butler,	Grosvenor,	Morgan,	Townshend,
Butterworth,	Hare,	Morse,	Turner, Ga.
Candler,	Haugen,	Newton,	Vance,
Carlton,	Hayes,	Norwood,	Washington,
Catchings,	Heard,	Oates,	Weaver,
Chipman,	Herbert,	O'Neill, Mo.	Whiting, Mich.
Clardy,	Hiestand,	Outhwaite,	Whiting, Mass.
Clark,	Hires,	Payson,	Wilkins,
Clements,	Hooker,	Peel,	Wilson, Minn.
Cobb,	Howard,	Penington,	Woodburn,
Cockran,	Hudd,	Perry,	Yardley,
Collins,	Hunter,	Phelan,	Yoder.

So the motion was rejected.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the names.

Mr. WEAVER and Mr. LANDES objected.

The following additional pair was announced:

Mr. BURNETT with Mr. STRUBLE, on this vote.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. LANDES. I move to amend the pending motion by making it 3.35.

The question was taken; and on a division there were—ayes 10, noes 86.

Mr. LANDES. No quorum.

Mr. MACDONALD. I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 5, nays 168; not voting 151; as follows:

YEAS—5.

Abbott,	Hayes,	Kilgore,	Landes.
Anderson, Ill.

NAYS—168.

Allen, Mass.	Elliott,	Kerr,	Romeis,
Allen, Mich.	Ermentrout,	Laffoon,	Rowell,
Anderson, Iowa	Farquhar,	Lagan,	Rowland,
Atkinson,	Flood,	Laidlaw,	Russell, Conn.
Baker, N. Y.	Foran,	Latham,	Russell, Mass.
Baker, Ill.	Fuller,	Lawler,	Ryan,
Bayne,	Gaines,	Lehlbach,	Scull,
Belden,	Gallinger,	Lind,	Seney,
Blanchard,	Gay,	Lodge,	Seymour,
Bliss,	Gear,	Long,	Sherman,
Boothman,	Gest,	Lyman,	Shively,
Bound,	Glass,	Macdonald,	Sowden,
Boutelle,	Glover,	Maish,	Spooner,
Bowden,	Goff,	Mason,	Springer,
Bowen,	Greenman,	Matson,	Stahlnecker,
Brewer,	Grout,	McAdoo,	Steele,
Browne, Ind.	Guenther,	McClammy,	Stephenson,
Brown, Ohio	Hall,	McCormick,	Stone, Ky.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Harmer,	McCreary,	Stone, Mo.
Buckalew,	Haugen,	McKinley,	Struble,
Bunnell,	Hayden,	McMillin,	Taulbee,
Burnett,	Henderson, Iowa	McRae,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Burrows,	Henderson, N. C.	Milliken,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Butler,	Henderson, Ill.	Moffitt,	Thomas, Ky.
Bynum,	Hermann,	Montgomery,	Thomas, Wis.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hitt,	Morrill,	Townshend,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hogg,	Morrow,	Turner, Kans.
Caruth,	Holman,	Neal,	Vandever,
Caswell,	Holmes,	Nichols,	Walker,
Cheadle,	Hopkins, Ill.	Nutting,	Warner,
Compton,	Hopkins, Va.	O'Donnell,	Weber,
Conger,	Hopkins, N. Y.	O'Ferrall,	West,
Cooper,	Houk,	O'Neill, Pa.	White, Ind.
Cothran,	Hovey,	Osborne,	White, N. Y.
Cox,	Hudd,	Patton,	Whitthorne,
Crouse,	Hunter,	Perkins,	Wickham,
Dalzell,	Hutton,	Pidcock,	Wilber,
Darlington,	Johnston, Ind.	Plumb,	Wilkinson,
Davenport,	Johnston, N. C.	Post,	Williams,
De Lano,	Kean,	Pugsley,	Wise,
Dibble,	Kelley,	Rayner,	Woodburn,
Dingley,	Kennedy,	Rice,	Yost.

NOT VOTING—151.

Adams,	Bankhead,	Bland,	Brumm,
Allen, Miss.	Barnes,	Blount,	Bryce,
Anderson, Miss.	Barry,	Breckinridge, Ark.	Buchanan,
Anderson, Kans.	Belmont,	Breckinridge, Ky.	Burnes,
Arnold,	Biggs,	Brower,	Butterworth,
Bacon,	Bingham,	Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Campbell, Ohio
Candler,	Ford,	McKenna,	Sayers,
Cannon,	Forney,	McKinney,	Scott,
Carlton,	French,	McShane,	Shaw,
Catchings,	Funston,	Merriman,	Simmons,
Chipman,	Gibson,	Mills,	Smith,
Clardy,	Granger,	Moore,	Snyder,
Clark,	Grimes,	Morgan,	Spinola,
Clements,	Grosvenor,	Morse,	Stewart, Tex.
Cobb,	Hare,	Nelson,	Stewart, Ga.
Cockran,	Hatch,	Newton,	Stewart, Vt.
Cogswell,	Heard,	Norwood,	Stockdale,
Collins,	Hemphill,	Oates,	Symes,
Cowles,	Herbert,	O'Neall, Ind.	Tarsney,
Crain,	Hiestand,	O'Neill, Mo.	Thomas, Ill.
Crisp,	Hires,	Outhwaite,	Thompson, Ohio
Culberson,	Hooker,	Owen,	Thompson, Cal.
Cummings,	Howard,	Parker,	Tillman,
Cutcheon,	Jackson,	Payson,	Tracey,
Dargan,	Jones,	Peel,	Turner, Ga.
Davidson, Ala.	Ketcham,	Penington,	Vance,
Davidson, Fla.	La Follette,	Perry,	Wade,
Davis,	Laird,	Peters,	Washington,
Dockery,	Lane,	Phelan,	Weaver,
Dorsey,	Lanham,	Phelps,	Wheeler,
Dougherty,	Lee,	Randall,	Whiting, Mich.
Dunham,	Lynch,	Reed,	Whiting, Mass.
Dunn,	Maffett,	Richardson,	Wilkins,
Enloe,	Mahoney,	Robertson,	Wilson, Minn.
Felton,	Mansur,	Rockwell,	Wilson, W. Va.
Finley,	Martin,	Rogers,	Yardley,
Fisher,	McComas,	Rusk,	Yoder.
Fitch,	McCullogh,	Sawyer,

So the amendment was not agreed to.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend the pending motion so that the House shall take a recess until 3.40 p. m.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken, and there were—yea 1, nays 136, not voting 187; as follows:

YEA—1.

Kilgore.

NAYS—136.

Abbott,	Dibble,	Kennedy,	Robertson,
Allen, Mass.	Dingley,	Kerr,	Russell, Mass.
Allen, Mich.	Elliott,	Latham,	Ryan,
Atkinson,	Enloe,	Lawler,	Sawyer,
Baker, N. Y.	Ermentrout,	Lehlbach,	Scull,
Baker, Ill.	Farquhar,	Lind,	Seney,
Bayne,	Flood,	Lodge,	Sherman,
Biggs,	Foran,	Long,	Shively,
Bliss,	French,	Lyman,	Snyder,
Boothman,	Gaines,	Macdonald,	Sowden,
Bound,	Gallinger,	Mason,	Springer,
Bowden,	Gay,	Matson,	Stahlnecker,
Bowen,	Gest,	McClammy,	Steele,
Brown, Ohio	Greenman,	McCreary,	Stephenson,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Guenther,	McKenna,	Stone, Ky.
Bryce,	Hall,	McRae,	Stone, Mo.
Buckalew,	Harmer,	Milliken,	Struble,
Bunnell,	Haugen,	Moffitt,	Taulbee,
Burnett,	Hayes,	Montgomery,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Henderson, N. C.	Morrow,	Thomas, Ky.
Campbell, Ohio	Henderson, Ill.	Neal,	Thomas, Wis.
Cannon,	Hermann,	Newton,	Townshend,
Caruth,	Hitt,	Nichols,	Vandever,
Caswell,	Holman,	Nutting,	Walker,
Cheadle,	Holmes,	O'Donnell,	Warner,
Chipman,	Hopkins, Ill.	O'Ferrall,	Weber,
Clark,	Hopkins, Va.	O'Neill, Pa.	West,
Cogswell,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Osborne,	White, Ind.
Compton,	Houk,	Outhwaite,	Whiting, Mass.
Conger,	Hovey,	Parker,	Whitthorne,
Cooper,	Hutton,	Patton,	Wilbur,
Cothran,	Johnston, Ind.	Perkins,	Wilson, W. Va.
Darlington,	Johnston, N. C.	Peters,	Wise,
Davenport,	Kelley,	Plumb,	Woodburn.

NOT VOTING—187.

Adams,	Candler,	Forney,	Lagan,
Allen, Miss.	Carlton,	Fuller,	Laidlaw,
Anderson, Iowa	Catchings,	Funston,	Laird,
Anderson, Miss.	Clardy,	Gear,	Landes,
Anderson, Ill.	Clements,	Gibson,	Lane,
Anderson, Kans.	Cobb,	Glass,	Lanham,
Arnold,	Cockran,	Glover,	Lee,
Bacon,	Collins,	Goff,	Lynch,
Bankhead,	Cowles,	Granger,	Maffett,
Barnes,	Cox,	Grimes,	Mahoney,
Barry,	Crain,	Grosvenor,	Maish,
Belden,	Crisp,	Grout,	Mansur,
Belmont,	Crouse,	Hare,	Martin,
Bingham,	Culberson,	Hatch,	McAdoo,
Blanchard,	Cummings,	Hayden,	McComas,
Bland,	Cutcheon,	Heard,	McCormick,
Blount,	Dalzell,	Hemphill,	McCullogh,
Boutelle,	Dargan,	Henderson, Iowa	McKinley,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Davidson, Ala.	Herbert,	McKinney,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Davidson, Fla.	Hiestand,	McMillin,
Brewer,	Davis,	Hires,	McShane,
Brower,	De Lano,	Hogg,	Merriman,
Browne, T.H.B., Va	Dockery,	Hooker,	Mills,
Browne, Ind.	Dorsey,	Howard,	Moore,
Brumm,	Dougherty,	Hudd,	Morgan,
Buchanan,	Dunham,	Hunter,	Morrill,
Burnes,	Dunn,	Jackson,	Morse,
Burrows,	Felton,	Jones,	Nelson,
Butler,	Finley,	Kean,	Norwood,
Butterworth,	Fisher,	Ketcham,	Oates,
Bynum,	Fitch,	Laffoon,	O'Neall, Ind.
Campbell, T. J., N. Y	Ford,	La Follette,	O'Neill, Mo.

Owen,	Rockwell,	Stewart, Tex.	Wade,
Payson,	Rogers,	Stewart, Ga.	Washington,
Peel,	Romeis,	Stewart, Vt.	Weaver,
Penington,	Rowell,	Stockdale,	Wheeler,
Perry,	Rowland,	Symes,	White, N. Y.
Phelan,	Russell, Conn.	Tarsney,	Whiting, Mich.
Phelps,	Rusk,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio	Wickham,
Pidcock,	Sayers,	Thomas, Ill.	Wilkins,
Post,	Scott,	Thompson, Ohio	Wilkinson,
Pugsley,	Seymour,	Thompson, Cal.	Williams,
Randall,	Shaw,	Tillman,	Wilson, Minn.
Rayner,	Simmons,	Tracey,	Yardley,
Reed,	Smith,	Turner, Kans.	Yoder,
Rice,	Spinola,	Turner, Ga.	Yost.
Richardson,	Spooner,	Vance,

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I make the point that a quorum has not voted.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I move a call of the House.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Upon that question I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 80, nays 151, not voting 93; as follows:

YEAS—80.

Abbott,	Crain,	Lagan,	Rowland,
Allen, Miss.	Crisp,	Landes,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Miss.	Cummings,	Lanham,	Sayers,
Anderson, Ill.	Davidson, Fla.	Lawler,	Shively,
Bacon,	Enloe,	Maish,	Smith,
Bankhead,	Forney,	Mansur,	Snyder,
Barnes,	Gay,	Martin,	Springer,
Barry,	Glass,	McClammy,	Stockdale,
Blount,	Grimes,	McMillin,	Stone, Ky.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Hare,	McRae,	Stone, Mo.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Hatch,	McShane,	Tarsney,
Bryce,	Hayes,	Moore,	Townshend,
Buckalew,	Henderson, N. C.	Morgan,	Turner, Ga.
Burnes,	Herbert,	Neal,	Walker,
Bynum,	Hooker,	Oates,	Washington,
Candler,	Howard,	O'Neall, Ind.	Weaver,
Carlton,	Hutton,	Penington,	Wheeler,
Chipman,	Johnston, N. C.	Richardson,	Whitthorne,
Clements,	Kilgore,	Robertson,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cox,	Laffoon,	Rogers,	Wise.

NAYS—151.

Allen, Mass.	Dibble,	Kean,	Reed,
Allen, Mich.	Dingley,	Kelley,	Romeis,
Anderson, Iowa	Elliott,	Kennedy,	Rowell,
Atkinson,	Ermentrout,	Kerr,	Russell, Conn.
Baker, N. Y.	Farquhar,	Laidlaw,	Ryan,
Baker, Ill.	Finley,	Laird,	Sawyer,
Bayne,	Flood,	Latham,	Scull,
Biggs,	Fuller,	Lee,	Seney,
Bliss,	Funston,	Lehlbach,	Seymour,
Boothman,	Gaines,	Lind,	Sherman,
Bound,	Gallinger,	Long,	Sowden,
Boutelle,	Gear,	Lyman,	Spooner,
Bowden,	Gest,	Macdonald,	Stahlnecker,
Bowen,	Gibson,	Mason,	Steele,
Browne, Ind.	Glover,	Matson,	Stephenson,
Brown, Ohio	Goff,	McCormick,	Stewart, Vt.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Greenman,	McCreary,	Struble,
Bunnell,	Grout,	McKenna,	Symes,
Burrows,	Guenther,	McKinley,	Taulbee,
Butterworth,	Hall,	Milliken,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Harmer,	Moffitt,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Campbell, Ohio	Haugen,	Montgomery,	Thomas, Ky.
Cannon,	Hayden,	Morrill,	Thomas, Wis.
Caruth,	Hemphill,	Morrow,	Vandever.
Caswell,	Henderson, Iowa.	Nichols,	Wade,
Cheadle,	Henderson, Ill.	Nutting,	Warner,
Cogswell,	Hermann,	O'Donnell,	Weber,
Compton,	Hitt,	O'Ferrall,	West,
Conger,	Holman,	O'Neill, Pa.	White, Ind.
Cooper,	Holmes,	Osborne,	Whiting, Mass.
Cothran,	Hopkins, Ill.	Parker,	Wickham,
Crouse,	Hopkins, Va.	Patton,	Wilber,
Culberson,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Perkins,	Wilkinson.
Dalzell,	Houk,	Peters,	Williams,
Darlington,	Hovey,	Pidcock,	Woodburn,
Davenport,	Hudd,	Plumb,	Yardley,
Davis,	Hunter,	Pugsley,	Yost.
De Lano,	Johnston, Ind.	Rayner,

NOT VOTING—93.

Adams,	Dargan,	Lodge,	Rice,
Anderson, Kans.	Davidson, Ala.	Lynch,	Rockwell,
Arnold,	Dockery,	Maffett,	Rusk,
Belden,	Dorsey,	Mahoney,	Scott,
Belmont,	Dougherty,	McAdoo,	Shaw,
Bingham,	Dunham,	McComas,	Simmons,
Blanchard,	Dunn,	McCullogh,	Spinola,
Bland,	Felton,	McKinney,	Stewart, Tex.
Brewer,	Fisher,	Merriman,	Stewart, Ga.
Brower,	Fitch,	Mills,	Thomas, Ill.
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Foran,	Morse,	Thompson, Ohio
Brumm,	Ford,	Nelson,	Thompson, Cal.
Buchanan,	French,	Newton,	Tillman,
Burnett,	Granger,	Norwood,	Tracey,
Butler,	Grosvenor,	O'Neill, Mo.	Turner, Kans.
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Heard,	Outhwaite,	Vance,
Catchings,	Hiestand,	Owen,	White, N. Y.
Clardy,	Hires,	Payson,	Whiting, Mich.
Clark,	Hogg,	Peel,	Wilkins,
Cobb,	Jackson,	Perry,	Wilson, Minn.
Cockran,	Jones,	Phelan,	Yoder.
Collins,	Ketcham,	Phelps,
Cowles,	La Follette,	Post,
Cutcheon,	Lane,	Randall,

So the House refused to adjourn.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. BURNETT with Mr. LODGE, for this day.

Mr. MAHONEY with Mr. PAYSON, for the rest of the day.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

The SPEAKER. The question now recurs on the motion of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR], that there be a call of the House.

The question being put, the Speaker stated that the "ayes" seemed to have it.

Mr. OATES. I call for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 85, noes 27.

So a call of the House was ordered.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT.

Pending the call of the House a message, in writing, from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The Clerk proceeded to call the roll, when the following-named members failed to answer:

Adams,	Davidson, Ala.	Lynch,	Shaw,
Anderson, Kans.	Dorsey,	Maffett,	Simmons,
Arnold,	Dunham,	Mahoney,	Spinola,
Belmont,	Enloe,	McComas,	Springer,
Bingham,	Felton,	McCullogh,	Stewart, Tex.
Bland,	Fisher,	McKinney,	Stewart, Ga.
Brower,	Fitch,	Mills,	Thomas, Ill.
Browne, T. H. B. Va.	Granger,	Morse,	Thompson, Ohio.
Brumm,	Grosvenor,	O'Neill, Mo.	Thompson, Cal.
Buchanan,	Heard,	Payson,	Tracey,
Burnett,	Hiestand,	Perry,	Vance,
Butler,	Hires,	Phelps,	Wilkins,
Cobb,	Jackson,	Randall,	Yoder.
Cockran,	Jones,	Rockwell,
Collins,	Ketcham,	Russell, Mass.
Cox,	La Follette,	Scott,

The SPEAKER. The Doorkeeper will now close the doors of the Hall, and the Clerk will call the names of members who did not respond on the first call. Gentlemen who desire to offer excuses for themselves or others will please present them to the House as the names are called.

The Clerk proceeded to call the absentees, as follows:

Mr. ADAMS: Absent with leave.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas: Absent with leave.

Mr. ARNOLD: No excuse offered.

Mr. BELDEN: No excuse offered.

Mr. BELMONT: No excuse offered.

Mr. BINGHAM: No excuse offered.

Mr. BLAND: Absent with leave.

Mr. BROWER: Absent with leave.

Mr. THOMAS H. B. BROWNE: No excuse offered.

Mr. BRUMM: No excuse offered.

Mr. CANNON: No excuse offered.

Mr. BURNETT: No excuse offered.

Mr. CLARK: No excuse offered.

Mr. COCKRAN: No excuse offered.

Mr. COLLINS: Absent with leave.

Mr. COX: No excuse offered.

Mr. CUMMINGS. I ask that my colleague, Mr. COX, be excused. He was feeling unwell, and left the House under the supposition that he had been already excused.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that the gentleman from New York, Mr. COX, was excused some time ago from further attendance during this legislative day; but since that time he has appeared in his seat.

Mr. REED. Unless the gentleman from New York is sick, I object to excusing him.

Mr. CUMMINGS. He was not feeling well. I asked him why he did not answer to his name, and he said he thought he was excused.

Mr. REED. If he is sick, there is no objection to excusing him.

Mr. CUMMINGS. He is not feeling well.

Mr. KERR. I ask unanimous consent that he be excused.

The SPEAKER. That is the request of the gentleman from New York [Mr. CUMMINGS].

Mr. BROWNE, of Indiana. I want to amend that request by asking unanimous consent to excuse every member who "feels badly."

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. If any gentleman will say that he personally knows the gentleman from New York is sick, there will be no objection to excusing him.

Mr. CUMMINGS. I personally know that Mr. COX was feeling very badly while here. He so stated to me, and remarked that he did not answer to his name because he supposed, as he had been already excused, it was not necessary for him to respond.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request made by the gentleman from New York [Mr. CUMMINGS], that his colleague, Mr. COX, be excused? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CUTCHEON: Absent with leave.

Mr. DARGAN: No excuse offered.

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Alabama: No excuse offered. [As will appear by subsequent proceedings, Mr. DAVIDSON had leave of absence.]

Mr. DORSEY: Absent with leave.
Mr. DUNHAM: No excuse offered.
Mr. ENLOE: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. FELTON: Absent with leave.
Mr. FINLEY: No excuse offered.
Mr. FISHER: Absent with leave.
Mr. FITCH: Absent with leave.
Mr. GRANGER: Absent with leave.
Mr. GROSVENOR: Absent with leave.
Mr. HEARD: Absent with leave.
Mr. HIESTAND: Absent with leave.
Mr. HIRES: Absent with leave.
Mr. HOGG: No excuse offered.
Mr. KETCHAM: No excuse offered.
Mr. LA FOLLETTE: Absent with leave.
Mr. LYNCH: No excuse offered.
Mr. MAFFETT: No excuse offered.
Mr. MAHONEY.
Mr. FELIX CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that my colleague, Mr. MAHONEY, be excused for the day, as he has been called out of the city on important business.
Mr. REED. For the calendar day?
Mr. FELIX CAMPBELL. Yes.
Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I have no objection to his being excused for the calendar day.
There was no objection, and it was so ordered.
Mr. MCCOMAS: No excuse offered.
Mr. MCCULLOGH: No excuse offered.
Mr. MILLS: Absent with leave.
Mr. MORSE: No excuse offered.
Mr. O'NEILL, of Missouri: Absent with leave.
Mr. PAYSON: Absent with leave.
Mr. PERRY: Absent with leave.
Mr. PHELPS: Absent with leave.
Mr. RANDALL.
Mr. SOWDEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that my colleage, Mr. RANDALL, be excused for the remainder of the calendar day, as he is out of the city.
There was no objection, and it was so ordered.
Mr. ROCKWELL: No excuse offered.
Mr. RUSSELL, of Massachusetts: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. SCOTT: Absent with leave.
Mr. SHAW: No excuse offered.
Mr. SIMMONS: Absent with leave.
Mr. SPINOLA: Absent with leave.
Mr. SPRINGER: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. STEWART, of Texas: No excuse offered.
Mr. STEWART, of Georgia: No excuse offered.
Mr. THOMAS, of Illinois: Absent with leave.
Mr. THOMPSON, of Ohio: No excuse offered.
Mr. THOMPSON, of California: Absent with leave.
Mr. TRACEY: Absent with leave.
Mr. VANCE: Absent with leave.
Mr. WILKINS: No excuse offered.
Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that I be excused for the remainder of the legislative day.
There was no objection, and it was so ordered.
Mr. YODER: No excuse offered.
Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR offers the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms take into custody and bring to the bar of the House such of its members as are now absent without leave of the House.

The resolution was adopted.
Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR moved to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was adopted; and also moved that the motion to reconsider lie on the table.
The latter motion was agreed to.
After some time had elapsed,
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HATCH) said: The Chair will direct the Clerk to read a communication from the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. GLASS].
The Clerk read as follows:

Being physically unable to endure an all-night session, I ask to be excused from attendance on night sessions of this legislative day.
Respectfully, P. T. GLASS.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the request of the gentleman from Tennessee will be granted.
There was no objection.
Some time subsequently,
The SPEAKER pro tempore directed the Clerk to read the following:

I beg to be excused for the remainder of this calendar day, owing to the fact of an important business engagement.
LLOYD S. BRYCE.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If there be no objection, this request will be granted.
There was no objection.
Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, it being now half past 4 o'clock, and I think perfectly apparent to every one that nothing can be accomplished by our remaining in session any longer this evening, I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until half past 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.
Several MEMBERS. Say 11.45.
Mr. TAULBEE. Very well; I will so modify my proposition.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?
Mr. COMPTON, Mr. WHITING of Michigan, and Mr. FORD objected.
Mr. TAULBEE. Then I move to dispense with further proceedings under the call.
Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I hope the gentleman will not make that motion.
Mr. REED (to Mr. TAULBEE). Do not make that motion now.
Mr. TAULBEE. I withdraw the motion.
Mr. RAYNER. Mr. Speaker, what is the motion now pending with reference to a recess?
The SPEAKER pro tempore. A call of the House is proceeding.
Mr. RAYNER. I am aware of that fact, but my inquiry is with reference to the motion which was pending preceding the call.
The SPEAKER (having resumed the chair). A motion for a recess is pending, which the gentleman from Iowa moved to amend by striking out "4.30" and inserting "4.40."
Mr. RAYNER. I move to dispense with further proceedings under the call.
The motion was not agreed to, there being—ayes 46, noes 78.
Mr. MORROW. I ask that my colleague, Mr. BIGGS, be excused from further attendance during the present calendar day. He is not very well, and it would not be prudent for him to attend an evening session.
The SPEAKER. Is there objection to excusing the gentleman from California, Mr. BIGGS, for the remainder of this calendar day. The Chair hears none, and the gentleman is excused.
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MATSON in the chair). The gentleman from New York [Mr. WEST] asks to be excused from further attendance during this calendar day on account of illness. Is there objection?
There was no objection.
Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.
The question was taken; and on a division there were—ayes 67, noes 100.
So the motion to adjourn was not agreed to.
Mr. PARKER. I ask unanimous consent that we take a recess until a quarter before 12 o'clock to-morrow morning.
Several members objected.
Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to present a resolution for present consideration. [Cries of "Regular order!"]
The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that unless it relates to the call of the House, which is now progressing, or to proceedings under the call, it can not be considered. The House can transact no business pending that call.
Mr. OATES. I ask to have it read for the information of the House. [Cries of "Regular order!"]
The SPEAKER. The regular order has been demanded.
The Chair desires to lay before the House some requests for unanimous consent. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. FORAN] asks leave of absence for the remainder of this calendar day on account of illness. Is there objection?
Mr. OATES. I shall object, unless I know that the gentleman is not able to attend.
The SPEAKER. The Chair has no information upon the subject except what has been stated in the request made by the Chair.
Mr. HENDERSON, of Iowa. I know that Mr. FORAN is in poor health.
Mr. MCKINLEY. And the gentleman from Ohio has stated as the reason for his request that he is not well.
There being no objection, Mr. FORAN was excused as requested.
The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. GAY] asks to be excused for this day on account of indisposition. Is there objection?
There was no objection.
Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with further proceedings under the call, and that the House take a recess until 8 o'clock this evening.
Mr. RAYNER, Mr. MCSHANE, and others objected.
Mr. STOCKDALE. I ask leave of absence for one hour. I have broken my glasses, and I can not see throught his situation until I get another pair. [Laughter.]
A MEMBER. The gentleman certainly ought to be excused on that account.
Mr. MASON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to file in the petition-box some petitions that were sent to my colleague [Mr. DUNHAM], who is absent. He sent me word to have them filed.
Mr. COOPER. I object. [Laughter.]
Mr. MASON. I do not see why the right of petition should be hampered. I will call for a page and send them to the box. [Renewed laughter.]
Mr. MORGAN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask leave of absence for this evening on account of sickness. I will state that I have been sick for several days—have chills and fever, and am taking medicine—quinine.

There was no objection, and Mr. MORGAN was excused.

Mr. WEAVER (at 6.45 p. m. Monday, April 9). I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question being put, the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. RICHARDSON) stated that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. WEAVER. I call for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 36, noes 77.

So the House refused to adjourn.

Mr. BAKER, of New York. I ask unanimous consent that we stand in recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. O'FERRALL. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. HUTTON] asks for leave of absence on account of sickness.

Mr. MASON. I object.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. The gentleman from Missouri is at the same hotel with me and I know he is sick.

Mr. MASON. I withdraw the objection.

There being no further objection, leave of absence was granted to Mr. HUTTON.

Mr. TAULBEE. It is now 7 o'clock. It is perfectly apparent that we can do nothing, at least for a little while. [Cries of "Louder!"] I will not be surprised to hear these gentlemen responding in the same way when Gabriel blows his trumpet. [Laughter.] I want an hour to go home and get my dinner. I am hungry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kentucky asks unanimous consent to be excused for one hour from attendance on the sitting of the House.

Mr. BAKER, of New York. I object.

Mr. WILBER. I ask unanimous consent to be excused until to-morrow morning. I have been unwell all the time. I thought I would perhaps be able to stay to-night, but I can not do it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York [Mr. WILBER] asks unanimous consent to be excused from the sitting of the House until to-morrow, on account of sickness. The Chair hears no objection.

Mr. OATES. I object.

Mr. MASON. I make the point of order that the objection comes too late. The Chair had announced his decision, that the gentleman from New York had been excused.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Alabama appeared to be addressing the Chair. If he says he objected in time the Chair will accept the gentleman's statement.

Mr. PARKER. I wish to say a word, if I can get the attention of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES]. It is well known to us on this side that for two or three weeks my colleague [Mr. WILBER] has been out of health, plainly and distinctly so. I am sure the gentleman would not object if he understood the fact.

Mr. OATES. After the statement of the gentleman from New York [Mr. PARKER] and others, I withdraw the objection.

There being no further objection, Mr. WILBER was excused from attendance on the sitting of the House until to-morrow morning.

Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi. I ask consent to go home, on account of bona fide sickness.

Mr. MASON objected, but subsequently withdrew his objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there further objection?

Mr. OATES. I desire to say in reference to the gentleman from Mississippi that I know he has been sick for several days.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I ask that that proposition be amended so as to include all the ALLENS of the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. ALLEN] asks unanimous consent that he be excused on account of sickness. The Chair understands the request to be for the balance of this calendar day. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. WHEELER. I ask to have the resolution read which I send to the desk.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution will be read, after which the Chair will ask for objections.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That a committee of five members of this House be appointed to ascertain and report to the House what amount of the sum proposed to be paid out of the provisions of the bill under consideration will inure to the benefit of the people and how much is to be paid to claim agents.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Objection was made.

The Sergeant-at-Arms appeared at the bar, and stated that of the twenty-five members whom he had been directed to arrest and bring to the bar of the House twenty were out of the city, and for the remaining five, Mr. BURNETT, Mr. MOFFITT, Mr. MCCULLOGH, Mr. MCCOMAS, and Mr. MORSE, he had made diligent search and had been unable to find them.

Mr. PEEL. I move that the report of the Sergeant-at-Arms be accepted and that he be discharged from the further execution of the warrant.

Mr. STRUBLE. I ask that the names of the twenty members out of the city be reported.

Mr. LEHLBACH. I think there is a mistake as regards the gentleman from New York [Mr. MOFFITT]. Mr. MOFFITT was present when the roll was called and answered to his name.

The SPEAKER. The Chair understood the gentleman from New York [Mr. MOFFITT] was here at the roll-call and has been here all day.

Mr. STRUBLE. I ask that the names of those gentlemen who are absent from the city be read.

The SPEAKER. The name on the list of the Sergeant-at-Arms which was understood to be "MOFFITT" was perhaps intended for the name of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. MAFFETT. That gentleman had leave of absence; but, as the Chair is advised, the time mentioned in his leave had expired, and therefore perhaps his name was put on the list. The House knows the situation of that gentleman, and perhaps he will be excused.

Several MEMBERS. That is right.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. MAFFETT, will be excused.

There was no objection.

Mr. STRUBLE. I ask that the names of those gentlemen who are absent from the city be reported. If necessary, I make that motion.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the names.

The Clerk read the following names:

Mr. BELMONT, Mr. BINGHAM, Mr. T. H. B. BROWNE, Mr. BRUMM, Mr. BUTLER, Mr. CLARK, Mr. COCKRAN, Mr. DARGAN, Mr. DAVIDSON of Alabama, Mr. DUNHAM, Mr. FITCH, Mr. HIESTAND, Mr. KETCHAM, Mr. LYNCH, Mr. ROCKWELL, Mr. SHAW, Mr. STEWART of Georgia, Mr. THOMPSON of Ohio, and Mr. WILKINS.

Mr. WHEELER. I understand that my colleague from Alabama, Mr. DAVIDSON, has leave of absence.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Alabama had leave of absence, but when a member remains absent after the expiration of the time named in his leave he is of course absent without leave.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I understand that Mr. DAVIDSON'S leave of absence will not expire until the 15th instant.

Mr. WHEELER. I believe the original leave of absence was extended to that time.

Mr. TURNER, of Georgia. I understand that the leave of my colleague from Georgia, Mr. STEWART, has not expired.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will cause the Journal to be examined to ascertain which, if any, of these gentlemen are now absent beyond the time for which they have leave.

Mr. TURNER, of Georgia. Mr. STEWART is out of the city, relying, I have no doubt, on his leave.

Mr. STRUBLE. I move that the Sergeant-at-Arms be instructed to renew his search for the five members reported as in the city.

The SPEAKER. It is the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms, unless otherwise directed by the House, to continue the search for gentlemen who are in the city. [A pause.] The Chair is advised that the deputies of the Sergeant-at-Arms have gone out again to renew the search.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, it is very evident from the condition of affairs here that nothing can be accomplished this evening. I move, therefore, that further proceedings under the call be dispensed with; and I do this with the view of asking that we take a recess until to-morrow morning at 11.45.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I suggest that the gentleman put the two propositions together.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, it is very proper that gentlemen of our age should be engaged in transacting the business of the public; but here we are acting like a lot of school children. It is about time that a halt should be called on these proceedings, and that we should give the senior members of this House, with their cooler heads, an opportunity to see whether it is not possible to adopt some arrangement by which we may occupy ourselves in proper legislation for the benefit of the country.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman move to dispense with further proceedings under the call, or does he ask unanimous consent for a recess?

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. On account of the clerks, who should be relieved from any unnecessary labor, I suggest to the gentleman to ask unanimous consent in one proposition to dispense with further proceedings under the call, and to take a recess until to-morrow morning.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. Very well, I will make the proposition in that shape.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York asks unanimous consent that further proceedings under the call be dispensed with, and that the House take a recess until to-morrow morning at a quarter before 12 o'clock.

Mr. GRIMES. I object.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. I renew my motion to dispense with further proceedings under the call.

The motion was not agreed to; there being—ayes 30, noes 65.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I am informed that an examination of the Journal shows that my colleague [Mr. DAVIDSON, of Alabama] has leave of absence until the 15th of the month.

Mr. CLARDY. Mr. Speaker, I move that we dispense with all further proceedings under the call, and that the House take a recess until 11.45 to-morrow morning.

Mr. O'FERRALL. I object.

After an interval,

Mr. PENINGTON said: Mr. Speaker, I move that all further proceedings under the call of the House be dispensed with, and that the House take a recess until 11.40 to-morrow morning.

Mr. O'FERRALL. I object.

Mr. COMPTON. I move to dispense with all further proceedings under the call. The clerks, I think, are rested now, and we may as well go on with business.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Maryland [Mr. COMPTON] asks unanimous consent that all further proceedings under the call be dispensed with.

Mr. COMPTON. I made a motion, Mr. Speaker. It does not require unanimous consent.

The question was taken on the motion of Mr. COMPTON, and the Speaker pro tempore declared that the noes seemed to have it.

Mr. COMPTON. I ask for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 103, noes 7.

So the motion was agreed to.

Mr. CLARDY. No quorum.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. A quorum is not required.

Mr. SHERMAN. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All further proceedings under the call of the House are dispensed with. The Sergeant-at-Arms will open the doors and notify members.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken on the motion of Mr. STONE, of Missouri, and the Speaker pro tempore declared that the noes seemed to have it.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri. I call for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 61, noes 119.

So the motion to adjourn was not agreed to.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. I move that the House take a recess until to-morrow morning at 11.45 a. m., and on that I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I move to amend that motion by striking out 'until to-morrow morning at 11.45 a. m.," and inserting "for one hour."

Mr. OATES. I move to amend that by making it one hour and five minutes.

Mr. BURROWS. I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan will state his point of order.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. Speaker, my recollection is that the original motion made by the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] was to take a recess for thirty minutes. An amendment to that motion was offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER], to take a recess till 3.40. The gentleman from New York [Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL] now moves to amend the amendment so as to take a recess until to-morrow morning at 11.45. That can not be amended. It is the last stage of amendment, and the vote must be taken on that proposition.

Mr. OATES. The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS] simply misapprehends the motion made by the gentleman from New York [Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL]. The gentleman from New York did not move to amend the pending motion. He moved to take a recess until to-morrow morning at 11.45.

Mr. BURROWS. That motion is not in order as an original motion. He could only move it as an amendment to the pending amendment.

Several members addressed the Chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The House will be in order. The Chair has consulted the Journal and will state the several motions that are pending. The Chair is informed by the Journal that a motion was made by the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] to take a recess for thirty minutes; upon which the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] moved to amend so as to take a recess until 3.40 p. m. When the House divided upon that motion, no quorum having voted, a call of the House was ordered. All further proceedings under the call have been dispensed with, and there are two motions now pending, and the gentleman from New York [Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL] moves an amendment to the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER], by moving that the House take a recess until 11.45 o'clock a. m. to-morrow.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I rise to a point of order.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. I move that the House take a recess till 11.45 a. m. to-morrow as an amendment to the two pending motions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is upon the amendment of the gentleman from New York [Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL], that the House take a recess till 11.45 to-morrow morning.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I rise to a point of order. My point is that the gentleman from New York [Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL] made his motion not as an amendment but as an independent motion.

A MEMBER. He says he moved it as an amendment.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I do not understand the gentleman from New York [Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL] to say that he did so, but only that he wants to do it now.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. I offered it as an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion has not been acted upon by the House, and the gentleman from New York now modifies his motion. The Chair overrules the point of order. The question now is on the motion of the gentleman from New York [Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL] as an amendment to the motion of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER].

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. As an amendment to the two pending motions.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. Mr. Speaker, I move that the gentleman from New Hampshire [Mr. MCKINNEY] be excused from voting.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state the question. The question is on the motion submitted by the gentleman from New York [Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL] as modified by him, which is to amend the motion of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] so as to provide that the House shall take a recess until forty-five minutes past 11 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. And on that I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. Pending the taking of that vote, Mr. Speaker, I move that the gentleman from New Hampshire [Mr. MCKINNEY] be excused from voting on the pending proposition.

Mr. BURROWS. Against that motion I make the point of order that it is not in order for one member to move to excuse another; that to be excused from voting is a personal privilege belonging to the member, which no one but himself can ask a vote upon. Otherwise it would be possible for one member of the House to move that one after another the entire membership of this House be excused from voting, even though in each case the member in whose behalf the motion was made protested that he did not want to be excused. In other words, the right of a member to be excused from voting is a personal privilege which no one but himself can invoke.

Mr. DIBBLE was recognized.

Mr. ENLOE. I ask to be excused from voting on this question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HATCH). The gentleman from South Carolina is on the floor.

Mr. DIBBLE. I submit the further proposition that the privilege of a member to be excused is defensive in its character; and that it can not be in order unless some proceeding is instituted against the member to compel his vote, the disobedience of which would put him in contempt. That while the rule provides that every member shall vote unless he be excused by the House, or unless he is pecuniarily interested in the pending question, it seems to me that the rule only requires an excuse in cases where it is to be enforced by something which would compel the member to vote. That, the reason of the law ceasing, the law itself ceases. Ratione cessante, cessat et ipsa lex. [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. O'NEILL, of Pennsylvania. The gentleman's words ought to be taken down. [Laughter.]

Mr. GLOVER. I move that the gentleman's words be taken down. [Renewed laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair begs the House to be in order.

Mr. DIBBLE. I apologize to the House for the quotation. [Laughter.]

A MEMBER. That is all right.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from South Carolina is entitled to proceed without interruption.

Mr. DIBBLE. If the Chair will permit me to proceed——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will hear the gentleman.

Mr. DIBBLE. It would be unreasonable, Mr. Speaker, on a motion to take a recess, for a gentleman to rise and by such needless motions for excuse to prevent this House, even on an ordinary occasion, from taking a recess, or voting to take a recess; and there is really no necessity in the case of this motion for an excuse for the gentleman from New Hampshire to abstain from voting.

Mr. ENLOE. I ask to be excused from voting, and the gentleman can address himself to that point.

Mr. HOPKINS, of Illinois. If the gentleman does not want to vote he can go out.

Mr. ENLOE. I will exercise my judgment in that respect.

Mr. DIBBLE. Suppose the gentleman from New Hampshire should not vote on this call, is there any proceeding pending to bring him before the bar of the House for not voting?

According to the terms of the rule, in cases where a member is pecuniarily interested, under the very rule itself, he is not required to ask to be excused, because the rule says he must vote unless he is excused, or unless he be pecuniarily interested in the pending matter. Now, in every instance where a member does not vote on an ordinary call of the roll, the presumption is that he has, judging for himself, come to the conclusion that he has that kind of interest in the pending matter which operates to suspend the operation of the rule as to himself, that he has some personal interest in the question. Because the presumption never would be that a member would willfully without some such reason desist when present from exercising the constitutional provision vested in him of voting on every question.

I therefore make that as an additional point of order.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, the argument of the gentleman from South Carolina is utterly worthless if precedent is entitled to any consideration in this matter. In the Thirty-third Congress, where there was a measure reported, a proposition pending, and a vote was being taken in the House, numbers of the members, one after another, moved to be excused or requested to be excused from voting, and there was no process to compel them to vote. It was just the ordinary proceeding, and objection was made to it, and vote after vote was taken on excusing members, as gentlemen will find, for whole pages of the RECORD are filled with the votes. It is the duty under the rule as it exists now for every member to vote on a pending proposition unless he be excused. If a member sees proper to ask to be excused, and objection be made, what is the difference between that and a motion that he be excused made by some one else? If he is present the presumption is that he desires the motion to be made and sanctions it, and if he does not sanction it, being present when the motion was made, he can negative it by denying the authority to make the motion. If one member desires to be excused and requests it, it is competent at any time for him or any one else to make the motion. That is but reasonable.

Suppose a member of this House was lying at a hotel utterly unable to get here and was absent without being excused by the House, under such circumstances, if a vote was proceeding, would it not be competent for a member—any member—to ask that he be excused from voting, or would it be held that he must be brought to the House upon a litter in order either to cast his vote or ask to be excused?

Mr. DIBBLE. I would ask the gentleman from Alabama whether the rule does not expressly apply to those who are present; for it has no reference, I contend, to absent members at all. It is only those persons who are present who are required to vote.

And there are two alternatives. He shall vote if present unless excused, or unless he has a personal or pecuniary interest; and, in the case of a personal or pecuniary interest, in the plain meaning of the words of the rule, he is not required to render an excuse.

Mr. OATES. If I can get hold of the volume to which I have referred—the first session of the Thirty-third Congress—I can furnish any number of precedents; for this motion is substantially the same.

Mr. HOPKINS, of Illinois. Does the gentleman from Alabama suppose that the question raised by the gentleman from South Carolina was raised in the cases to which he refers?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HATCH). The Chair has no hesitation in deciding this point of order which has been passed upon so recently by the Speaker of the House. So far as the present occupant of the chair is advised, his own recollection of the rule is that as late as the Forty-seventh Congress, in which the same question was raised on a motion to adjourn, the Speaker, Mr. Keifer, held the motion was not in order because it was made on a motion to adjourn. In his ruling on that point he differed from any preceding Speaker and from the present Speaker of the House, because he included in his decision a motion to take a recess. But the Chair will cause to be read the decision of the Speaker made within the last few days on this very question. It was upon the same motion as this, to take a recess.

The Clerk read as follows:

The SPEAKER. The Chair would state, in response to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR] that the argument would of course apply not only to this case but to every case in which a member might ask to be excused from voting. Now, in the case of a motion to adjourn the Chair decided to-day that the vote on such a motion could not be reconsidered, for the reason that the motion might be repeated again and again for an indefinite number of times, provided there had been intervening business. In other words, the reason of the rule which allows in general motions to reconsider did not apply.

The motion to take a recess is one which may also be repeated; but when it is renewed a different time must be fixed. A motion to amend so as to take a recess until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, whether carried or rejected, could not be repeated, though other business may have intervened. So the motion to take a recess is not like a motion to adjourn. The House must at all times have it in its power to determine whether it will adjourn or not—whether it will adjourn from day to day or adjourn to a particular day in the future.

The exercise of this power might be defeated absolutely if during the pendency of such a motion the time of the House could be consumed by repeated motions to excuse members from voting. But the Chair does not see how that consideration can apply to a motion to take a recess any more than to any other ordinary question pending before the House. The Chair therefore overrules the point of order. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. SOWDEN] takes an appeal. The Chair will be very glad to have the judgment of the House upon the matter. The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?

The question having been put,

The SPEAKER said: The noes seem to have it.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I call for a division.

The question being again taken, there were—ayes 60, noes 65.

Mr. MCCREARY. I ask for the yeas and nays.

Mr. REED. I make the point of order that we are voting on a question of yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER. Still there is an appeal taken.

Mr. REED. The yeas and nays have been ordered on another question.

The SPEAKER. But if the gentleman from Pennsylvania has the right to take an appeal, the House must have the right to vote on it in the usual way. The question is on ordering the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Subsequently, as the House will remember, the motion was withdrawn.

Mr. REED. I suggest to the Chair that that decision is not operative in any way. It was distinctly understood that the whole subject was dropped, so that we begin it again entirely anew. It seems to me the arguments of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS] and the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. DIBBLE] are perfectly conclusive about this matter. The reasoning of the Speaker certainly covers the question of a recess.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pending the demand of the gentleman from New York [Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL] for the yeas and nays on the motion to take a recess until 11.45 a. m. to-morrow the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] rose and moved that the gentleman from New Hampshire [Mr. MCKINNEY] be excused from voting on that question. The point of order was made upon that motion. The Chair overrules the point of order, and holds that the motion made by the gentleman from Arkansas is a proper motion.

Mr. BURROWS. May I be pardoned a word?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will hear the gentleman.

Mr. BURROWS. The Chair stated the decision made by the Speaker to be this, that on a motion to adjourn or a motion to adjourn over it would not be proper to excuse a member from voting, but that upon a motion to take a recess the motion to excuse a member from voting would be in order. But my point of order goes beyond that. It is that it is not in order for one member to ask that another member present be excused. It is a personal privilege which each member alone can invoke. And I would like a decision upon that point. Otherwise, allow me to say with regard to the gentlemen who have been engaged in dilatory proceedings here for some time, those who are in favor of the pending bill might move to excuse those gentlemen one by one until the entire body of them were excused from voting; and then they could not vote, because they would be in contempt of the House if they undertook to do it after the House had excused them from voting.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair takes notice, as the Speaker of the House did when a similar motion was made, that the gentleman whom it is proposed to excuse was present at the time the gentleman from Arkansas made the motion. The Chair takes it for granted the motion is made with his knowledge and consent. The Chair overrules the point of order.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. Does the Chair decide that the gentleman from Arkansas has the right to move that the gentleman from New Hampshire be excused from voting?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will repeat that he overrules the point of order made against the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas that the gentleman from New Hampshire be excused from voting on the pending question, which is on the motion of the gentleman from New York that the House take a recess until 11.45 a. m. to-morrow.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. The pending question, then, as I understand it, is on the motion that the House take a recess until to-morrow morning at 11.45. If so, I ask that the roll be called.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I take an appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio takes an appeal from the decision of the Chair; but pending that the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] moves that the House adjourn.

Mr. WEAVER. And pending that motion, I move that when the House adjourns it be to meet on Wednesday next.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. And pending that I move that when the House adjourns it be to meet on Thursday next.

Mr. SYMES. I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SYMES. I desire to know if it has not been the ruling of the Chair continually in this House, under all the precedents, that any gentleman, notwithstanding the ruling that has been commented upon here by gentlemen, may sit in his seat and refuse at any time to vote upon any question? And is it not true that there is no rule of parliamentary law which will force him to vote or punish him for contempt if he does not vote?

Am I not correct? I believe I am. Then I ask the Chair, in the name of common sense and common reason, why it is that the time of this House can be frittered away—— [Cries of "Regular order!"] Why it is—— [Renewed cries of "Regular order!"] Gentlemen, you will have a hard time to cry me down. I ask the Speaker why it is—— [Laughter and cries of "Regular order!"]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The House will be in order.

Mr. SYMES. Mr. Speaker, I was proceeding to a parliamentary inquiry; and when my friends over there get through with their hilarity I will proceed.

Mr. OATES. I would like to know by what right the gentleman is indulging in debate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. A member rising to a parliamentary inquiry can not discuss a proposition which has been decided by the Chair. The Chair has decided the point of order.

Mr. SYMES. But I am making a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair desires to be perfectly fair toward the gentleman, but if he has a question to put he must state it without argument.

Mr. SYMES. I was proceeding to state it when I was interrupted. I proceed now with my parliamentary inquiry. I want to know why it is, Mr. Speaker, that we can fritter away the time of the House—— [Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. OATES. I submit that is no parliamentary inquiry at all.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair desires to hear the gentleman from Colorado state his point.

Mr. SYMES. In the language of the great Samuel Johnson, the gentleman does not understand the question I am asking. I inquire again why it is—if I am not interrupted before I get through my sentence—why it is that we can fritter away the time of this House—— [Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. SYMES. Why it is——[Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Colorado will please suspend his remarks. The Chair will not recognize any gentleman until order is restored.

Mr. SYMES. When interrupted, Mr. Speaker, I had reached that part of my sentence in which I asked the Speaker why it is [laughter]—I will proceed whenever it is the desire of the Chair and after order is restored——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair again appeals to the House to perserve order.

Mr. SYMES. Why is a motion in order, Mr. Speaker, to excuse a member from doing that which no rule of the House, as the Chair has repeatedly decided, will require him to do?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has already decided, and it has been held repeatedly, that a motion of the character of that made by the gentleman from Arkansas is in order.

Mr. FARQUHAR. Mr. Speaker, I wish to ask a parliamentary question.

Mr. SYMES. I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SYMES. Is it permissible to fritter away the time of this House? [Laughter.]

Mr. FARQUHAR. Mr. Speaker, as I understand the decision of the Chair, it is that, a member being present, another member—his colleague or any one else—may ask to have him excused from voting without stating that he does so at the member's request. I desire to ask how the Chair or the House can know that the request has been made at the instance of the member who is to be excused simply because the member making the motion assumes to act as a proxy. I desire to know whether there is any condition of membership that allows a proxy——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has decided that question, and it is not necessary to pursue the inquiry further. The question is on the motion submitted by the gentleman from Arkansas, that when the House adjourns to-day it adjourn to meet on Thursday next.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Is that motion debatable?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It is not.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Then let us have the regular order.

The question being put on the motion of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, there were—ayes 2, noes 117.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. No quorum.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The point of "no quorum" being made, the Chair will appoint tellers.

Mr. TAULBEE. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, in view of the constitutional provision that neither House shall adjourn for more than three days without the consent of the other, I wish to ask whether that provision refers to a calendar or legislative day.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair decides that question by declaring that the motion made by the gentleman from Arkansas is in the judgment of the Chair in order. This being Monday, the gentleman from Arkansas moves that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Thursday next; and that is within the rule.

Mr. TAULBEE. If I caught the statement of the Chair, I do not think he understood my question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks he understood the question.

Mr. TAULBEE. Will the Chair indulge me while I restate it?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will.

Mr. TAULBEE. I wish to know whether or not the provision of the rule——

Mr. WHEELER. The constitutional provision.

Mr. TAULBEE. Whether the provision limiting the period for which an adjournment may be taken relates to a calendar or a legislative day?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair holds that it relates to a calendar day.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I call for the yeas and nays on the pending question.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 3, nays 171, not voting 150; as follows:

YEAS—3.

Hayes,	Neal,	Washington.

NAYS—171.

Allen, Mass.	Dibble,	Kerr,	Romeis,
Allen, Mich.	Dockery,	Lagan,	Rowell,
Anderson, Iowa	Elliott,	Laidlaw,	Rowland,
Atkinson,	Ermentrout,	Laird,	Russell, Conn.
Baker, N. Y.	Farquhar,	Latham,	Russell, Mass.
Baker, Ill.	Finley,	Lee,	Rusk,
Bayne,	Flood,	Lehlbach,	Sawyer,
Belden,	Ford,	Lind,	Scull,
Blanchard,	Fuller,	Lodge,	Seney,
Bliss,	Funston,	Long,	Seymour,
Boothman,	Gaines,	Lyman,	Sherman,
Bound,	Gallinger,	Macdonald,	Shively,
Boutelle,	Gear,	Maish,	Snyder,
Bowden,	Gest,	Mansur,	Spooner,
Bowen,	Gibson,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Brewer,	Glover,	McClammy,	Steele,
Browne, Ind.	Goff,	McComas,	Stephenson,
Brown, Ohio	Greenman,	McCormick,	Stockdale,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Grout,	McCreary,	Stone, Ky.
Buckalew,	Guenther,	McKenna,	Stone, Mo.
Bunnell,	Hall,	McKinley,	Struble,
Burrows,	Harmer,	Merriman,	Symes,
Butterworth,	Hatch,	Moffitt,	Taulbee,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Haugen,	Montgomery,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Campbell, Ohio	Hayden,	Morrow,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hemphill,	Nelson,	Thomas, Ky.
Cannon,	Henderson, Iowa	Nichols,	Thomas, Wis.
Caruth,	Henderson, N. C.	Nutting,	Turner, Kans.
Caswell,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Vandever,
Cheadle,	Hermann,	O'Neill, Pa.	Wade,
Chipman,	Hitt,	Osborne,	Walker,
Clardy,	Holman,	Outhwaite,	Warner,
Cogswell,	Holmes,	Owen,	Weber,
Compton,	Hopkins, Ill.	Parker,	White, Ind.
Conger,	Hopkins, Va.	Patton,	White, N. Y.
Cooper,	Houk,	Penington,	Whiting, Mass.
Cothran,	Hovey,	Perkins,	Whitthorne,
Crouse,	Hudd,	Peters,	Wickham,
Cummings,	Hunter,	Post,	Wilkins,
Dalzell,	Johnston, Ind.	Pugsley,	Williams,
Darlington,	Johnston, N. C.	Rayner,	Yardley,
Davis,	Kean,	Reed,	Yost.
De Lano,	Kennedy,	Rice,

NOT VOTING—150.

Abbott,	Crisp,	Kilgore,	Richardson,
Adams,	Culberson,	Laffoon,	Robertson,
Allen, Miss.	Cutcheon,	La Follette,	Rockwell,
Anderson, Miss.	Dargan,	Landes,	Rogers,
Anderson, Ill.	Davenport,	Lane,	Ryan,
Anderson, Kans.	Davidson, Ala.	Lanham,	Sayers,
Arnold,	Davidson, Fla.	Lawler,	Scott,
Bacon,	Dingley,	Lynch,	Shaw,
Bankhead,	Dorsey,	Maffett,	Simmons,
Barnes,	Dougherty,	Mahoney,	Smith,
Barry,	Dunham,	Martin,	Sowden,
Belmont,	Dunn,	Matson,	Spinola,
Biggs,	Enloe,	McAdoo,	Springer,
Bingham,	Felton,	McCullogh,	Stewart, Tex.
Bland,	Fisher,	McKinney,	Stewart, Ga.
Blount,	Fitch,	McMillin,	Stewart, Vt.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Foran,	McRae,	Tarsney,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Forney,	McShane,	Thomas, Ill.
Brower,	French,	Milliken,	Thompson, Ohio
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Gay,	Mills,	Thompson, Cal.
Brumm,	Glass,	Moore,	Tillman,
Bryce,	Granger,	Morgan,	Tracey,
Buchanan,	Grimes,	Morrill,	Townshend,
Burnes,	Grosvenor,	Morse,	Turner, Ga.
Burnett,	Hare,	Newton,	Vance,
Butler,	Heard,	Norwood,	Weaver,
Bynum,	Herbert,	Oates,	West,
Candler,	Hiestand,	O'Ferrall,	Wheeler,
Carlton,	Hires,	O'Neall, Ind.	Whiting, Mich.
Catchings,	Hogg,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilber,
Clark,	Hooker,	Payson,	Wilkinson,
Clements,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Peel,	Wilson, Minn.
Cobb,	Howard,	Perry,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cockran,	Hutton,	Phelan,	Wise,
Collins,	Jackson,	Phelps,	Woodburn,
Cowles,	Jones,	Pidcock,	Yoder.
Cox,	Kelley,	Plumb,
Crain,	Ketcham,	Randall,

So the motion of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, was not agreed to.

Pending the roll-call the following proceedings took place:

Mr. MACDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HATCH). The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MACDONALD. My point is that under the rule members should be required to vote. They have not been excused, I believe.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair overrules the point of order. [Laughter.]

Mr. MACDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair can not recognize the gentleman during the roll-call.

Mr. MACDONALD. I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry on the roll-call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is not in order. The Clerk will proceed with the call.

The Clerk completed the call and proceeded to recapitulate the names of members voting.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the names be dispensed with.

Several members objected.

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. Speaker, I voted inadvertently. I am paired, and I withdraw my vote.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. BYNUM with Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois.

Mr. STOCKDALE with Mr. HERMANN, for the remainder of the day.

Mr. RYAN with Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi, on this vote.

Mr. BLOUNT with Mr. DINGLEY, for the remainder of the day.

Mr. WHEELER with Mr. WEST, for the remainder of the day.

Mr. WASHINGTON with Mr. BAKER, of New York, for this day.

Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota, with Mr. KELLEY, for the rest of the day.

Mr. BURNES with Mr. MORRILL, on this bill.

Mr. BIGGS with Mr. HUTTON, on this bill.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. HEMPHILL, by unanimous consent, was granted leave of absence for one week from to-day (Monday), on account of important business.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question now is on the amendment submitted by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER], that when the House adjourn to-day it be to meet on Tuesday next.

Mr. WEAVER. Wednesday.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman modifies his motion, and moves that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Wednesday next.

The question was taken; and there were—ayes 3, noes 79.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. No quorum.

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The question was taken on ordering the yeas and nays.

Pending the count,

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to withdraw the demand for the yeas and nays.

Mr. HOVEY. I demand the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOVEY] renews the demand.

Mr. TAULBEE. Let the count be on his demand.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (having completed the count). More than a sufficient number, and the yeas and nays are ordered. The Clerk will call the roll.

Mr. TAULBEE. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TAULBEE. Was it within my power to withdraw the demand for the yeas and nays?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It was; but another gentleman renewed it before the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] had taken his seat.

Mr. TAULBEE. I desire to inquire whether the count was made on the demand which I made?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. On the demand of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOVEY].

Mr. TAULBEE. Was the demand made before or after the count?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 3, nays 158, not voting 163; as follows:

YEAS—3.

Hayes,	Kilgore,	Neal.

NAYS—158.

Allen, Mass.	Compton,	Hayden,	Merriman,
Allen, Mich.	Conger,	Henderson, Iowa	Moffitt,
Atkinson,	Cooper,	Henderson, N. C.	Montgomery,
Baker, Ill.	Cothran,	Henderson, Ill.	Morrow,
Baker, N. Y.	Crouse,	Hitt,	Nichols,
Bayne,	Cummings,	Holman,	Nutting,
Belden,	Dalzell,	Holmes,	O'Donnell,
Bliss,	Darlington,	Hopkins, Ill.	O'Ferrall,
Boothman,	Davis,	Hopkins, Va.	O'Neill, Pa.
Bound,	De Lano,	Hovey,	Osborne,
Boutelle,	Dibble,	Hudd,	Outhwaite,
Bowden,	Elliott,	Hunter,	Owen,
Bowen,	Ermentrout,	Johnston, Ind.	Parker,
Brewer,	Farquhar,	Johnston, N. C.	Patton,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Finley,	Kean,	Penington,
Browne, Ind.	Flood,	Kennedy,	Perkins,
Brown, Ohio	Ford,	Kerr,	Peters,
Brown, J. R., Va.	French,	Laidlaw,	Post,
Buckalew,	Fuller,	Laird,	Pugsley,
Bunnell,	Funston,	Latham,	Rayner,
Burrows,	Gaines,	Lodge,	Reed,
Butterworth,	Gallinger,	Long,	Rice,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Gear,	Lyman,	Romeis,
Campbell, Ohio	Gest,	Macdonald,	Rowell,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Glover,	Mansur,	Rowland,
Cannon,	Goff,	Mason,	Russell, Conn.
Caruth,	Greenman,	McComas,	Russell, Mass.
Caswell,	Grout,	McCormick,	Rusk,
Cheadle,	Guenther,	McCreary,	Sawyer,
Chipman,	Hall,	McKenna,	Scull,
Clardy,	Harmer,	McKinley,	Seney,
Cogswell,	Hatch,	McKinney,	Seymour,
Sherman,	Stone, Mo.	Turner, Kans.	Whiting, Mass.
Shively,	Struble,	Vandever,	Wickham,
Snyder,	Symes,	Wade,	Wilkins,
Spooner,	Taulbee,	Walker,	Williams,
Stahlnecker,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio	Warner,	Yardley,
Steele,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio	Weber,	Yost.
Stephenson,	Thomas, Ky.	Wheeler,
Stone, Ky.	Thomas, Wis.	White, N. Y.

NOT VOTING—163.

Abbott,	Cutcheon,	Laffoon,	Randall,
Adams,	Dargan,	La Follette,	Richardson,
Allen, Miss.	Davenport,	Lagan,	Robertson,
Anderson, Iowa	Davidson, Ala.	Landes,	Rockwell,
Anderson, Miss.	Davidson, Fla.	Lane,	Rogers,
Anderson, Ill.	Dingley,	Lanham,	Ryan,
Anderson, Kans.	Dockery,	Lawler,	Sayers,
Arnold,	Dorsey,	Lee,	Scott,
Bacon,	Dougherty,	Lehlbach,	Shaw,
Bankhead,	Dunham,	Lind,	Simmons,
Barnes,	Dunn,	Lynch,	Smith,
Barry,	Enloe,	Maffett,	Sowden,
Belmont,	Felton,	Mahoney,	Spinola,
Biggs,	Fisher,	Maish,	Springer,
Bingham,	Fitch,	Martin,	Stewart, Tex.
Blanchard,	Foran,	Matson,	Stewart, Ga.
Bland,	Forney,	McAdoo,	Stewart, Vt.
Blount,	Gay,	McClammy,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Gibson,	McCullogh,	Tarsney,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Glass,	McMillin,	Thomas, Ill.
Brower,	Granger,	McRae,	Thompson, Ohio
Brumm,	Grimes,	McShane,	Thompson, Cal.
Bryce,	Grosvenor,	Milliken,	Tillman,
Buchanan,	Hare,	Mills,	Tracey,
Burnes,	Haugen,	Moore,	Townshend,
Burnett,	Heard,	Morgan,	Turner, Ga.
Butler,	Hemphill,	Morrill,	Vance,
Bynum,	Herbert,	Morse,	Washington,
Candler,	Hermann,	Nelson,	Weaver,
Carlton,	Hiestand,	Newton,	West,
Catchings,	Hires,	Norwood,	White, Ind.
Clark,	Hogg,	Oates,	Whiting, Mich.
Clements,	Hooker,	O'Neall, Ind.	Whitthorne,
Cobb,	Hopkins, N. Y.	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilber,
Cockran,	Houk,	Payson,	Wilkinson,
Collins,	Howard,	Peel,	Wilson, Minn.
Cowles,	Hutton,	Perry,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cox,	Jackson,	Phelan,	Wise,
Crain,	Jones,	Phelps,	Woodburn,
Crisp,	Kelley,	Pidcock,	Yoder.
Culberson,	Ketcham,	Plumb,

No quorum voting.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Mr. Speaker, may I ask if the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] has voted?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will recapitulate the names of those voting.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I rise to a question of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I wish to know if the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] is recorded?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is not recorded.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Then I make the point of order before this vote is declared that the gentleman is required by the rules to record his vote.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair overrules the point of order.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I desire to state my point of order before it is passed upon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has heard the point of order and overrules it. There is no power in the Speaker to compel a member to vote.

Mr. BOUTELLE. But I desire to state the point of order and have a ruling of the Chair upon it. I respectfully ask the Chair to hear me state it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BOUTELLE. The point of order I desire to make is that the rules of this House—the identical rule which has been invoked by the gentleman from Arkansas himself as warranting him to make the motion to excuse another member from voting—requires him not only to be present, but to vote on every question, unless he be excused. I quote the language of the rule in full:

> Every member shall be present within the Hall of the House during its sittings unless excused or necessarily prevented; and shall vote on each question put, unless, on motion made before division or the commencement of the roll-call, and decided without debate, he shall be excused, or unless he has a direct personal or pecuniary interest in the event of such question.

I make the point of order that the gentleman from Arkansas is required by this rule either to record his vote or to state that he has a direct personal or pecuniary interest in the pending question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair overrules the point of order. The Clerk will recapitulate the names of those voting.

The Clerk recapitulated the names.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. RYAN with Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi, for this day.

Mr. CANDLER with Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas, for the rest of the day.

Mr. COCHRAN with Mr. LA FOLLETTE, for the rest of the day.

Mr. COX with Mr. DUNHAM, for the rest of the day.

Mr. CULBERSON with Mr. BROWNE, of Indiana, for the rest of the day.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. WEAVER. No quorum.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, in the interest of good nature, as well as in the interest of good health, I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until to-morrow morning at forty-five minutes after 11 o'clock.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio? The Chair hears none.

And accordingly (at 10 o'clock and 15 minutes p. m.) the House took a recess until 11 o'clock and 45 minutes a. m. on Tuesday.

PRIVATE BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED.

Under the rule private bills of the following titles were introduced and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. G. A. ANDERSON: A bill (H. R. 9269) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Richard H. Keith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. JEHU BAKER: A bill (H. R. 9270) granting a pension to Werner Lentz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BUTTERWORTH: A bill (H. R. 9271) for the relief of James A. Stewart—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CROUSE: A bill (H. R. 9272) for the relief of George Teeple—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GEST (by request:) A bill (H. R. 9273) for the relief of Edward Leader and others—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9274) for the relief of Overten Love—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. HOWARD: A bill (H. R. 9275) for the relief of William A. Flinn—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOUK: A bill (H. R. 9276) for the relief of J. C. Cawood—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9277) to increase certain pensions named herein, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9278) granting a pension to W. A. McCaleb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9279) to restore Mrs. Martha Winningham to the pension-rolls—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9280) for the relief of William Carter—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9281) for the relief of J. H. Qualls—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9282) for the relief of Joel Lindsey—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9283) for the relief of Isaac H. Diehl—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HUNTER: A bill (H. R. 9284) granting a pension to Webster C. Webb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9285) for the relief of Thomas H. Prewitt—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. HOGG: A bill (H. R. 9286) for the relief of Mrs. J. T. Strother—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MANSUR: A bill (H. R. 9287) granting a pension to John E. Carter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MANSUR: A bill (H. R. 9288) to grant a pension to Salina Kirk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McCREARY: A bill (H. R. 9289) granting a pension to Isaac Hays—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9290) granting a pension to David Martin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9291) for the benefit of Henry P. Battam—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9292) for the benefit of John Burnside—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9293) granting an increase of pension to Mary L. Cleveland—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9294) granting a pension to Peterson Gibbs—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9295) granting arrears of pension to Mary L. Cleveland—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. MOFFITT: A bill (H. R. 9296) granting a pension to Bridget Carroll—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MORGAN: A bill (H. R. 9297) for the relief of James Sims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MORROW: A bill (H. R. 9298) releasing the estate of Asher R. Eddy, etc.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. PETERS: A bill (H. R. 9299) increasing the pension of Mathew Parrott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PIDCOCK: A bill (H. R. 9300) granting a pension to Aaron S. Slack—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9301) for the relief of George Hartram—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. POST: A bill (H. R. 9302) granting a pension to James A. Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROGERS: A bill (H. R. 9303) granting a pension to Riley C. Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. C. A. RUSSELL: A bill (H. R. 9304) granting a pension to Betsey A. Mower—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERMAN: A bill (H. R. 9305) granting a pension to Norman F. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEELE: A bill (H. R. 9306) for the relief of Gregorious Fastnacht—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9307) for the relief of Lieut. Col. Charles G. Sawtelle, deputy quartermaster-general, United States Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. STEPHENSON: A bill (H. R. 9308) granting a pension to Michael Wolf—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WHEELER: A bill (H. R. 9309) for the relief of Nancy J. Watkins—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9310) granting a pension to Capt. William J. Duley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9311) for the relief of Milton Williams—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. W. L. WILSON: A bill (H. R. 9312) granting a pension to David H. Lutman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

The following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, under the rule, and referred as follows:

By Mr. C. H. ALLEN: Memorial of Byron, Truell & Co., of Lawrence, Mass., for better postal facilities between New York and New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. J. A. ANDERSON: Petition of citizens of Davis, Kans., against reduction of tariff on wool—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ATKINSON: Petition of citizens of Franklin County, Pennsylvania, for the repeal of the internal-revenue law which classes druggists as liquor dealers, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BELDEN: Petition of Peter Rogers and 13 others, cigarmakers, of Syracuse, N. Y., against the repeal of internal-revenue duties on cigars and cheroots—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BIGGS: Petition of certain citizens of Stanislaus and Merced Counties, California, for an appropriation of $10,000 for the improvement of the San Joaquin River, in said State—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. BOUND: Petition of Grange No. 797, of Rushtown, Pa., for the passage of a law to prevent the adulteration of lard and food products—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. BOWDEN: Petition of Jesse Williams and 48 veterans, in support of Senate bill 1537 and House bill 5662—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BOWEN: Petition of J. B. F. Mills and 46 others, citizens of Wise County, Virginia, for more effectual protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BUNNELL: Petition of citizens of Pleasant Mount, Wayne County, Pennsylvania, for reduction in the internal-revenue tax—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BURROWS: Petition for the more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BUTTERWORTH: Protest of Thomas Morrison and a large number of other pork-packers of Cincinnati, Ohio, in reference to the bill to regulate adulterations of lard—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. CAINE: Memorial of the Salt Lake City Chamber of Commerce, asking an appropriation for the erection of a public building at Salt Lake City, Utah—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. CANDLER: Petition of citizens of Georgia, against reduction of duty on marble—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CATCHINGS: Petition of S. Blumenthal and others, in favor of putting salt on the free-list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Warner & Searles and many others, with regard to the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. CLEMENTS: Petition of citizens of Washington County, for an appropriation to pave New York avenue from Seventh street to Boundary—to the Committee on Appropriations.

Also, petitions of merchants, capitalists, and business men of Atlanta, Ga., for an appropriation in aid of the National Colored Exposition, with accompanying papers—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. COOPER: Petition of G. L. Ralston and 45 others, citizens of Knox County, Ohio, for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. CRISP: Petition of W. H. Griffin and others, citizens of Stewart County, Georgia, for increased appropriations to the Ocmulgee River, in Georgia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. DAVENPORT: Petition of citizens of Hornellsville, N. Y., against the repeal of the internal-revenue tax on cigars and cigarettes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. R. H. M. DAVIDSON: Petition of officials of the customs district of Pensacola, Fla., for the passage of a deficiency bill for the relief of the employés of the customs service of the United States—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. DAVIS: Petition of Isaac B. Tompkins, jr., and 93 others, citizens of New Bedford, Mass., for the protection of the National Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of Sylvanus E. Wainer and 33 others, citizens of Westport, Mass., for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition for the appointment of a board of examining surgeons in New Bedford, Mass.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DE LANO: Petition of 15 citizens of Binghamton, N. Y., for proper protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. DOCKERY: Petition of Mrs. Sarah Wright, for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition for an appropriation to pay the employés in custom-house, Missouri—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. DORSEY: Petition of the Farmers' National Alliance, for the establishment of a department of agriculture—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. DUNN: Petition of Jesse F. Thompson, heir of John W. Crenshaw, of Lee County, Arkansas, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. ERMENTROUT: Memorial of John L. Whiting & Son and others, protesting against reduction of tariff on brushes of foreign manufacture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of M. J. Bender, of Millerstown, Pa., favoring a reduction of postage on seeds, bulbs, etc.—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. FARQUHAR: Petition of farmers of Harris Hill, N. Y., for more effective protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. FLOOD: Petition of citizens of the Twenty-eighth district of New York, for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petitions of citizens of the Twenty-eighth district of New York, for increased duty on agricultural products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FORD: Petition of C. D. Pease and 200 others, of Lowell, Mich., for better protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. GALLINGER: Petition of Samuel Webber and 29 others, citizens of Charlestown, N. H., for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of E. Lincoln, of Lebanon, N. H., for quick mail transit between New York and the New England States—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GEAR: Petition of the Iowa railroad commissioners, in regard to coupling cars and heating them by steam—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. GEST: Petition of Charles S. Willis and others, employés of the Government Printing Office, for relief under the joint resolution of February 28, 1867—to the Committee on Labor.

By Mr. GIFFORD: Petition of T. E. Peirce and 120 others, of Northville; of A. L. Dishrow and 50 others, of Alcester; of E. A. Lamont and 75 others, of Clarke, and of George Coon and 90 others, of Beadle County, Dak., for retention of the present tariff on flax and flax products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GROUT: Petition of brush manufacturers of the United States against reduction of duty on brushes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Frank H. Sargent and 31 other farmers of Hartland, Vt., for restoration of tariff of 1867 on wool—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of George A. Weston, of Bellows Falls, Vt., for better mail facilities between New York and New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GUENTHER: Petition of John L. Whiting & Son and others, against reduction of duty on brushes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HALL: Petition of the Independent Refiners' Association, of Titusville, Pa., for amendments to the act of February 4, 1887, to regulate commerce—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. HARMER: Memorial of citizens of the Twenty-second ward of Philadelphia, in favor of the repeal of the internal-revenue law which classes druggists as liquor dealers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of American brush manufacturers, against reduction of duty on brushes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HAYDEN: Petition of John L. Whiting and others, relating to the tariff on brushes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HOUK: Petition of W. F. Morris, late postmaster at Pendleton, Ind., for relief—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of certain citizens of Nashville, Tenn., in favor of international copyright law—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. LANDES: Petition of Grand Army of the Republic Post No. 257, of Greenup, Ill., for the passage of the dependent pension bill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LANHAM: Petition of 18 citizens of Parker County, and of 18 citizens of Throckmorton County, Texas, for payment of Indian depredation claims on the frontier—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. LEHLBACH: Petition of 2,170 hatters of the Sixth district of New Jersey, that the duty on manufactured or partly manufactured hats be increased from 30 to 50 per cent. ad valorem—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LIND: Memorial of the Civil Engineers' Society, of St. Paul, Minn., for the passage of House bill No. 4923—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department.

By Mr. LODGE: Petition against a reduction of the tariff on brushes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LONG: Petition of William Thomas Abbot and 18 others of South Easton, Mass., for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, for the Nicaragua Ship Canal—to the Committee on Commerce.

Also, memorial of the National Union Bank of Weymouth, Mass., for better postal service between New York and New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. McCREARY: Petition of Peterson Gibbs for a pension—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, affidavit in the case of Ray Moss, of Jassamine County, Kentucky—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, papers in the cases of Stephen U. Jackson and A. B. Jackson, of Madison County, Kentucky, for relief—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Mary L. Cleveland for pension, with papers—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. McRAE: Petition of the Gardeners' and Fruit-Growers' Club, of Malvern, Ark., for reduced postage on fourth-class matter—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the Miller County, Arkansas, Alliance, relative to public lands, etc.—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. MAISH: Petition for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition for the repeal of the law classing druggists as liquor dealers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of ex-prisoners of war, for the enactment of a law for their relief—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of R. R. Mathews, to remove the charge of desertion—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MOFFITT: Petition of S. Cannon and 68 others, citizens of Clinton County, New York, that agriculture may be more effectually protected—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of citizens of Glens Falls, N. Y., for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. NELSON: Petition of the Farmers' Alliance, of White Rock, Dak., for reduction of postage on seeds, etc.—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the Civil Engineers' Society of St. Paul, Minn., for the bill creating a bureau of harbors and water-ways—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department.

By Mr. NORWOOD: Petition for the improvement of the Altamaha and Ogeechee Rivers, Georgia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. O'FERRALL: Petition of John N. Davis, of Shenandoah County, Virginia, heir of Robert M. Mooney, of Goochland County, Virginia, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. PARKER: Petition of the Board of Underwriters of New York, in favor of needed improvements in New York Harbor—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of farmers of Stockholm Depot, N. Y., in favor of more effectual protection by customs tariff—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. POST: Petition of Local Assembly No. 3451, Knights of Labor, of Canton, Ill., for the passage of the tonnage bill—to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. RAYNER: Joint resolution of the General Assembly of Maryland, for the bill to refund the license tax collected in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: Petition of vice-chancellor of the University of the South, for the removal of the duty on imported books printed in foreign tongues—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of James Lipscomb, for relief—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of Ellamintie Kannady, of Coffee County; of Jesse Sykes, by Newton McClure, administrator, of Rutherford County, and of Fidelia T. Martin, of Moore County, Tennessee, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SCULL: Memorial of druggists and physicians of Tyrone, Pa., for repeal of that part of the internal-revenue law that classes druggists as retail liquor dealers, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SHERMAN: Petition of the Central New York Farmers' Club, praying that the Bureau of Animal Industry remain in the Agricultural Department, etc.—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. SPOONER: Petition of Cornelius Bradley, of Ashaway, R. I., for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. STAHLNECKER: Petition of citizens of Mt. Kisco, Westchester County, N. Y., for the immediate passage of Senate bill 283—to the Committee on the Territories.

Also, resolutions of the Chamber of Commerce of New York City, for increased appropriations for Gowanus Bay and Buttermilk Channels, New York Harbor—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. STEPHENSON: Resolutions of 25 citizens of Florence, Wis., for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on Public Lands.

Also, petition of 10 manufacturers of brushes, protesting against a further reduction of import duties on brushes of foreign manufacture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Petition of citizens of Champion, Ohio, for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. O. B. THOMAS: Petition of the railroad commissioners of Wisconsin, for an act compelling railroads engaged in interstate commerce to use uniform automatic couplers on freight trains—to the Committee on Commerce.

Also, petition of 52 citizens of La Crosse, Wis., for the passage of Senate bill No. 283—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. E. J. TURNER: Petition of Felix T. Gandy, mayor, and 107 others, citizens of Wallace, Kans., for early action upon bill No. 8310 to provide for the Wallace town site upon the Wallace reservation—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. VANDEVER: Petition of Local Assembly No. 2405, Knights of Labor, of Los Angeles, Cal., in favor of the tonnage bill—to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. WASHINGTON: Petition of heirs of Mrs. Fereby Johnson, widow of Josiah Johnson, of Tennessee, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. WEBER: Petitions of farmers of Erie County, New York, for protection of farm products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WILLIAM WHITING: Petition of citizens of Charlton, of Hawley, and of Heath, Mass., for better protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. WILBER: Petition of W. Edmonston, and 34 others, citizens of New York, for the protection of farmers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WILLIAMS: Petition for the more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

The following petitions, indorsing the per diem rated service-pension bill, based on the principle of paying all soldiers, sailors, and marines of the late war a monthly pension of 1 cent a day for each day they were in the service, were severally referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

By Mr. J. A. ANDERSON: Of citizens of Barnes, Kans.

By Mr. JEHU BAKER: Of George James, Andrew Allen, and 23 others, ex-soldiers of Illinois.

By Mr. DARLINGTON: Of 90 soldiers of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. DOCKERY: Of 4 soldiers of Mercer County, Missouri.

By Mr. DORSEY: Of citizens of Cedar County, Nebraska.

By Mr. FORAN: Of W. A. Knowlton and 32 others, citizens of Bucksville, Ohio.

By Mr. HOUK: Of J. P. Edmondson and 107 others, ex-soldiers and sailors of Blount County, Tennessee.

By Mr. HOVEY: Of John Ferguson and 140 soldiers and citizens.

By Mr. T. D. JOHNSTON: Of E. W. Gurley and others, of R. F. Orr and others, of Henderson County, North Carolina.

By Mr. McKINLEY: Of soldiers and sailors of Stark County and of Summit County, Ohio.

By Mr. SAWYER: Of 482 soldiers of Orleans County, New York.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Of ex-soldiers and citizens of Cherry Valley and of Ashtabula County, Ohio.

By Mr. O. B. THOMAS: Of ex-soldiers of Soldiers' Home, Milwaukee, and of 150 citizens of Richland County, Wisconsin.

Also, of 200 citizens of Richland County, Wisconsin.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law providing temporary aid for common schools, to be disbursed on the basis of illiteracy, were severally referred to the Committee on Education:

By Mr. CANDLER: Of citizens of White County, Georgia.

By Mr. HOLMES: Of 137 citizens of Boone County, Iowa.

By Mr. HOPKINS: Of 130 citizens of Boone County, Illinois.

By Mr. STEELE: Of 175 citizens of Jay County, Indiana.

The following petitions for an increase of compensation of fourth-class postmasters were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. ABBOTT: Of citizens of Avalon, Ellis County, Texas.

By Mr. HUTTON: Of citizens of Spalding, Mo.

By Mr. PETERS: Of J. M. F. Andrew and others, citizens of Harper County, Kansas.

The following petitions praying for the enactment of a law to establish a system of telegraphy, to be owned and controlled by the Government of the United States, and operated in connection with the Post-Office Department, were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. FRENCH (by request): Of Charles McDoff and 702 others.

By Mr. DINGLEY: Of A. A. Allen and 1,480 others, residents of Second Congressional district of Maine.

By Mr. PERKINS: Of J. O. Leary and 2,860 others, residents of the Third Congressional district of Kansas.

By Mr. WICKHAM: Of James G. Brown and 703 others, citizens of the Fourteenth district of Ohio.

By Mr. WILKINSON: Of J. H. Lafaye and 1,084 others, residents of the State of Louisiana.

By Mr. CONGER: Of Paul Miller and 364 others, citizens of the Seventh Congressional district of Iowa.

By Mr. WILLIAMS: Of George W. Helmer and 1,325 citizens of the Third district of Ohio.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Of S. P. Saxton and 1,769 citizens of the Nineteenth Congressional district of Ohio.

By Mr. DALZELL: Of 1,431 citizens of the Twenty-second Congressional district of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. SCULL: Of L. A. Meyers and 3,250 others, residents of the Seventeenth Congressional district of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. GAY: Of Telica Bolonger and 2,314 others, residents of the Third Congressional district of Louisiana.

By Mr. BANKHEAD: Of Ernest Desfortes and 1,768 others, citizens of the Sixth district of Alabama.

By Mr. TARSNEY: Of Ed. M. Chesny and 1,950 others, of Eighth Congressional district of Michigan.

By Mr. HERBERT: Of M. E. Conway and others.

By Mr. STEELE: Of Charles H. Lawton and 1,222 others, of the Eleventh district of Indiana.

By Mr. SHIVELY: Of Richard McAuley and 1,769 others, citizens of the Thirteenth Indiana Congressional district.

By Mr. DORSEY: Of 1,768 members of order of Knights of Labor.

By Mr. RICE: Of J. P. McGaughey and 4,935 others, residents of the Fourth Congressional district of Minnesota.

By Mr. C. E. BROWN: Of Ed. Lemmon and 1,453 others, of the Second district of Ohio.

By Mr. HALL: Of Joseph A. Scott and 3,138 others, of the Twenty-sixth Congressional district of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. FUNSTON: Of 2,340 citizens of the Second district of Kansas.

By Mr. LANHAM: Of citizens of the Eleventh Congressional district of Texas.

By Mr. T. J. CAMPBELL: Of citizens of the Eighth Congressional district of New York.

By Mr. CHARLES STEWART: Of Charles J. Renne and 864 others, of Houston, Tex.

By Mr. CHEADLE: Of Oliver Gord and 676 others, voters and citizens of the Ninth Indiana district.

By Mr. WADE: Of John Wilson and 1,506 others, citizens of Thirteenth Congressional district of Missouri.

By Mr. McKENNA: Of 1,952 citizens of Third Congressional district of California.

By Mr. DUBOIS: Of William Fogarty and 832 others, residents of Idaho Territory.

By Mr. CLARDY: Of 1,715 citizens of the Tenth district of Missouri.

By Mr. HOGG: Of W. F. Wallace and 723 others, citizens of West Virginia.

By Mr. WILLIAM WHITING: Of P. L. Connor and 1,430 others, citizens of the Eleventh Congressional district of Massachusetts.

By Mr. HAUGEN: Of W. P. Noad and 1,821 others, citizens of the Eighth Congressional district of Wisconsin.

By Mr. COMPTON: Of 659 residents of the Fifth Congressional district of Maryland.

By Mr. DOCKERY: Of J. H. Brooking and 358 others, citizens of the Third Congressional district of Missouri.

By Mr. DE LANO: Of Paul Greiner and 1,300 others, residents of the Twenty-Sixth Congressional district of New York.

By Mr. WARNER: Of S. T. Smith and 998 others, citizens of the Fifth Congressional district of Missouri.

By Mr. LAGAN: Of J. W. Callahan and 1,482 residents of the Second Congressional district of Louisiana.

By Mr. LAIDLAW: Of T. H. Dowd and 1,456 other persons.

By Mr. McSHANE: Of Robert Galloway and 5,211 others, citizens of the Third Congressional district of Nebraska.

By Mr. A. J. HOPKINS: Of G. Crawford and 1,066 others, residents of the Fifth Congressional district of Illinois.

By Mr. DAVIS: Of Edward Radclyffe and 629 others, citizens of the First Congressional district of Massachusetts.

By Mr. GLASS: Of 130 citizens of the Ninth Congressional district of Tennessee.

By Mr. MORROW: Of P. J. Healey and 25 others, residents of the Fourth Congressional district of California.

By Mr. MACDONALD: Of 1,025 residents of the Third Congressional district of Minnesota.

By Mr. RUSK: Of 1,332 citizens of Third Congressional district of Maryland.

By Mr. KENNEDY: Of C. E. Thorne and 745 other citizens.

By Mr. HOLMES: Of F. J. Hale and 1,794 others, residents of the Tenth Congressional district of Iowa.

By Mr. CRAIN: Of John J. Dwatim and 1,066 others.

By Mr. GUENTHER: Of 364 citizens of Second Congressional district of Wisconsin.

By Mr. NORWOOD:

By Mr. SPOONER: Of William R. Brown and 516 others, citizens of the First Congressional district of Rhode Island.

By Mr. CANNON: Of Richard Welsh and 572 others, of the Fifteenth Congressional district of Illinois.

By Mr. FORNEY: Of George Mayfield and 2,252 others, citizens of the Seventh Congressional district of Alabama.

By Mr. WEAVER: Of A. Crosson and 2,609 others, residents of the Sixth Congressional district of Iowa.

By Mr. O. B. THOMAS: Of John C. Barnes and 520 others, citizens of the Seventh Congressional district of Wisconsin.

By Mr. GIFFORD: Of A. S. Kinyon and 1,404 others, of Dakota.

By Mr. J. W. STEWART: Of Edgar B. Moore and 2,332 others, residents of the First Congressional district of Vermont.

By Mr. GREENMAN: Of 1,852 citizens of Rensselaer and Washington Counties, New York.

By Mr. E. J. TURNER: Of J. C. Grigg and 1,768 others.

By C. H. ALLEN: Of John H. Clinton and 676 others.

By Mr. LODGE: Of John J. Sullivan and 2,262 others.

By Mr. DARLINGTON: Of 1,050 residents of Sixth Congressional district of Pennsylvania.

By JEHU BAKER: Of Fred Brockmeyer, W. G. Fisher, and 74 others, of the Twentieth Illinois Congressional district.

By Mr. MAISH: Of 236 residents of the Nineteenth Congressional district of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. ELLIOTT: Of David Whitelock and others, of Seventh South Carolina district.

By Mr. SAWYER: Of 78 citizens of Thirty-first district, New York.

By Mr. LYMAN: Of 2,860 residents of the Ninth Congressional district of Iowa.

By Mr. MOFFITT: Of John A. Hogan and 813 others, citizens of the Twenty-first Congressional district of New York.

By Mr. McKINLEY: Of Nicholas Clemens and 1,758 others, residents of the Eighteenth Ohio Congressional district.

By Mr. HOVEY: Of M. Jungling and 828 others, residents of First Congressional district of Indiana.

By Mr. GALLINGER: Of George E. Anderson and 517 others, residents of the Second Congressional district of New Hampshire.

By T. J. HENDERSON: Of J. F. McWilliams and several hundred other citizens of Bureau County, Illinois.

By Mr. SOWDEN: Of Henry M. Young and others, Knights of Labor, of Chapman's and other towns and townships in Northampton County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. HUTTON: Of 496 citizens of the Seventh Congressional district of Missouri.

By Mr. LONG: Of J. F. Cunningham and 2,194 others, residents of the Second Congressional district of Massachusetts.

By Mr. NUTTING: Of H. B. Foy and 768 others, of the Twenty-seventh Congressional district of New York.

By Mr. C. A. RUSSELL: Of H. F. Wade and 984 others, residents of the Third Congressional district of Connecticut.

By Mr. COMPTON: Of 1,508 residents of the District of Columbia.

By J. B. WHITE: Of 1,768 residents of the Twelfth district of Indiana.

By Mr. LIND: Of Hon. M. J. Severance and 1,423 others, citizens of the Second district of Minnesota.

By Mr. STAHLNECKER: Of 520 Knights of Labor, residents of the Fourteenth Congressional district of New York.

By Mr. HEMPHILL: Of W. D. Johnston and others, citizens of the Fifth Congressional district of South Carolina.

By Mr. YOST: Of D. M. Strong and 676 others, citizens of the Tenth Congressional district of Virginia.

By Mr. COX: Of Valentine Theisen and 238 others, citizens of New York City.

By Mr. FORD: Of J. W. Rosenthal and 1,500 others, residents of Michigan.

By Mr. PENINGTON: Of Alfred Hanna and 311 others of the State of Delaware.

By Mr. HITT: Of S. L. Reynolds and 364 others, citizens of East Dubuque, Ill.

By Mr. BARNES: Of H. F. Shaw and others, of Tenth district of Georgia.

By Mr. SCULL: Of Anthony Anstead and 43 others, citizens of Altoona and Gallitzin, Pa.

By Mr. HENRY SMITH: Of C. N. Brott and 59 others, of Beniotville, Wis.

By Mr. COTHRAN: Of J. E. Brown and 108 others, citizens of the Third Congressional district of South Carolina.

By Mr. PIDCOCK: Of 728 citizens of Fourth district of New Jersey.

By Mr. HOOKER.

By Mr. ROMEIS: Of W. J. Carroll and 2,517 others, citizens of the Tenth district of Ohio.

By Mr. PLUMB: Of F. W. Spencer and 1,222 others, citizens of Eighth Congressional district of Illinois.

By Mr. STONE, of Missouri: Of O. D. Austin and 2,834 others, residents of Twelfth Congressional district of Missouri.

By Mr. TOWNSHEND: Of D. E. Kookendoffer and 780 others, residents of Nineteenth Congressional district of Illinois.

By Mr. TILLMAN: Of Thomas Edwards and 208 others, residents of the Second Congressional district of South Carolina.

By Mr. DIBBLE: Of William G. Fields and others, of Charleston, S. C.

By Mr. OWEN: Of Byron Wilson and 649 others, citizens of the Tenth district of Indiana.

By Mr. COGSWELL: Of W. A. Kine and 759 others, of the Seventh Massachusetts Congressional district.

By Mr. WALKER: Of 14 citizens of Willow Springs, Mo.

By Mr. STRUBLE: Of J. F. McClelland and 1,300 others, residents of the Eleventh Congressional district of Iowa.

By Mr. PETERS: Of L. B. Goddard and 2,449 others, residents of Seventh Congressional district of Kansas.

By Mr. C. R. BRECKINRIDGE: Of 720 citizens of the Second Congressional district of Arkansas.

By Mr. FARQUHAR: Of W. F. Rohloff and 587 residents of Thirty-second Congressional district of New York.

By Mr. BOUTELLE: Of Walter Allen and 521 others, of Maine.

By Mr. S. V. WHITE: Of Patrick Monaghan and 1,248 others.

By Mr. SYMES: Of 410 citizens of Colorado.

By Mr. HARE (by request): Of 3,195 citizens of the Fifth Congressional district of Texas.

By Mr. PATTON: Of Charles E. Rapp and 5,097 others, residents of the Twentieth district of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. W. L. WILSON: Of L. H. Ellis and 1,418 others, residents of the Second Congressional district of West Virginia.

By Mr. MORRILL: Of E. A. Rhea and 1,562 others, citizens of First Congressional district of Kansas.

By Mr. WALKER: Of 138 citizens of Willow Springs, Mo.

By Mr. CATCHINGS: Of W. F. Cummings, Louis Dubroc, Charles DeKnight and other citizens of Vicksburg, Miss..

By Mr. MASON.

By Mr. C. L. ANDERSON: Of citizens of the Fifth Congressional district of Mississippi.

By Mr. CARUTH: Of 2,242 citizens of Louisville and Jefferson County, Kentucky.

By Mr. MATSON: Of 350 citizens and Knights of Labor of the Fifth Congressional district of Indiana.

By Mr. MAFFETT: Of E. H. Haen and 2,056 other residents of the Twenty-fifth district of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. WEBER: Of citizens and residents of the Thirty-third Congressional district of New York.

By Mr. FITCH: Of C. H. Wheelock and 390 citizens of New York County.

By Mr. FLOOD: Of Wilson Ruggles and 936 others, citizens of the Twenty-eighth Congressional district of New York.

By Mr. McRAE: Of P. J. Ahern and 580 others.

By Mr. BUCKALEW: Of 4,038 citizens of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. WEST: Of F. C. Lynch and 523 others, citizens of the Twentieth district of New York.

By Mr. HOWARD: Of citizens of Indiana.

By Mr. J. T. JOHNSTON: Of S. M. Young and 3,921 others, residents of the Eighth Congressional district of the State of Indiana.

By Mr. McADOO: Of Henry Leighton and 2,017 others, citizens of Hudson County, New Jersey, Elizabeth and Paterson, N. J.

By Mr. GEST: Of 1,560 voters of Eleventh Congressional district of Illinois.

By Mr. PARKER: Of H. J. Welch and 1,438 others, citizens of the Twenty-second district of New York.

By Mr. BOWDEN: Of K. R. Griffin and 192 citizens of the Second district of Virginia.
By Mr. BUNNELL: Of G. H. Smith and 1,019 others, citizens of the Fifteenth Congressional district of Pennsylvania.
By Mr. FORAN: Of John O'Donnell and 4,615 others, citizens of the Twenty-first Ohio Congressional district.
By Mr. POST: Of Marcus R. Boash and 789 others, residents of the Tenth Congressional district of Illinois.
By Mr. W. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE: Of 2,570 citizens of the Seventh Congressional district of Kentucky.
By Mr. WALKER: Of 17 citizens of Missouri.
By Mr. HOUK: Of T. F. Gleason and 728 others, citizens of the Second Congressional district of Tennessee.
By Mr. MILLIKEN: Of Charles H. Haynes and 1,051 others.
By Mr. SHERMAN: Of J. E. Jones and 1,200 citizens of the Twenty-third Congressional district of New York.
By Mr. STONE, of Kentucky: Of J. A. Law and 546 others, residents of the First Congressional district of Kentucky.
By Mr. SPRINGER.
By Mr. LEHLBACH: Of N. Mitchell and 416 others.
By Mr. COOPER: Of B. F. Carter and 1,084 others, citizens of the Ninth Ohio Congressional district.
By Mr. DAVENPORT: Of George E. Thomas and 442 others.
By Mr. C. S. BAKER: Of Whitaker and 362 others, citizens of Monroe County, New York.
By Mr. BUTTERWORTH: Of Ed. Meyer and 1,653 others.
By Mr. WISE: Of Thomas Harries and 826 others.
By Mr. YARDLEY: Of B. F. Fries and 832 others, residents of the Seventh Congressional district of Pennsylvania.
By Mr. BOOTHMAN: Of D. H. Folan and 1,181 others, citizens and residents of the Sixth Congressional district of Ohio.
By Mr. THOMAS WILSON: Of 2,181 residents of the First Congressional district of Minnesota.
By Mr. O'DONNELL: Of 1,794 citizens of the Third Congressional district of Michigan.
By Mr. HAYDEN: Of E. F. Bradey and others.
By Mr. FULLER: Of J. H. Schrieker and 1,300 citizens of the Fourth Congressional district of Iowa.
By Mr. BURNES: Of B. F. Hardcastle and 1,092 others, citizens of the Fourth Congressional district of Missouri.
By Mr. G. A. ANDERSON: Of 3,000 citizens of the Twelfth district of Illinois.
By Mr. CHIPMAN: Of John D. Vierex and 1,768 others.
By Mr. KERR: Of 1,898 citizens of the Fifth district of Iowa.
By Mr. RYAN: Of Nelse Peterson and 2,340 others, citizens of the Fourth Congressional district of Kansas.
By Mr. GEAR: Of H. S. Stedge and 706 others, citizens of the First Congressional district of Iowa.
By Mr. ABBOTT: Of citizens of the Sixth Congressional district of the State of Texas.
By Mr. WOODBURN: Of 500 citizens of the State of Nevada.
By Mr. BYNUM: Of J. R. Buel and 806 others, of the Seventh district of Indiana.
By Mr. BIGGS: Of S. W. White and 168 others, citizens of the Second Congressional district of California.
By Mr. D. B. HENDERSON: Of C. W. Engle and 1,742 others, citizens of the Third Congressional district of Iowa.
By Mr. NEAL: Of J. B. Hawkins and 520 others, citizens of the Third Congressional district of Tennessee.
By Mr. J. H. O'NEALL: Of John Flinn and 130 others, citizens of the Second Congressional district of Indiana.
By Mr. SEYMOUR: Of E. P. Lott and 988 others, citizens of the Eleventh Congressional district of Michigan.
By Mr. BOUND: Of over 3,000 citizens of the Fourteenth Congressional district of Pennsylvania.
By Mr. BACON (by request): Of residents of the Fifteenth district of New York.
By Mr. HAYES: Of 629 citizens of the Second Congressional district of Iowa.
By Mr. CAINE: Of James P. Driscoll and 728 others, residents of Utah.
By Mr. HUDD: Of Charles Fraizer and 1,041 others, residents of the Fifth Congressional district of Wisconsin.
By Mr. CULBERSON: Of R. S. McFarlin, of Texarkana, Tex., and 305 others.
By Mr. CROUSE: Of Andrew Heffler and 1,348 others.
By Mr. JOSEPH: Of citizens of the Territory of New Mexico.
By Mr. WALKER: Of 52 citizens of Millenville, Mo.
By Mr. GOFF: Of John Gough and 883 others, residents of First West Virginia district.
By Mr. LANDES: Of E. D. Biddle and 156 others, citizens of Wabash County, Illinois.
By Mr. S. I. HOPKINS: Of James Johnson and 930 others, Knights of Labor, of the Sixth district of Virginia.
By Mr. T. M. BROWNE: Of 592 citizens of the Sixth Congressional district of Indiana.
By Mr. ROGERS: Of Knights of Labor and others.
By Mr. LAFFOON: Of 272 citizens of the Second Congressional district of Kentucky.
By Mr. MANSUR: Of James Mathews and 2,210 citizens of the Second Congressional district of Missouri.
By Mr. HUNTER: Of W. F. Gallaway and 104 others, residents of the Third district of Kentucky.
By Mr. KILGORE: Of J. W. Smithers and 1,378 others.
By Mr. BREWER: Of William Stepenson and 936 others, citizens of the Sixth Congressional district of Michigan.
By Mr. VANDEVER: Of Walter Bishop and 825 others.
By Mr. LAIRD: Of B. S. Beck and 2,340 others, residents of the Second Congressional district of Nebraska.
By Mr. C. H. ALLEN: Of J. J. Wood and 1,190 others.
By Mr. SENEY: Of N. M. Taylor and 749 others, citizens of Fifth Congressional district of Ohio.
By Mr. J. D. TAYLOR: Of William Skinner, of Bellaire, Ohio, and 906 others, citizens of the Seventeenth Congressional district of Ohio.
By Mr. KEAN: Of Harry G. Hall and 1,482 others, citizens of the Third Congressional district of New Jersey.
By Mr. FINLEY: Of S. V. D. Stout and 546 others of the Eleventh Congressional district of Kentucky.
By Mr. HENRY SMITH: Of Michael Smith and 1,378 others of the Fourth district of Wisconsin.
By Mr. J. A. ANDERSON: Of J. A. Nelson and 1,976 others.
By Mr. S. T. HOPKINS: Of P. Van Dewark and 1,108 other citizens of the Seventeenth Congressional district of New York.
By Mr. McKINLEY.
By Mr. A. C. THOMPSON.
By Mr. BINGHAM.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, April 10, 1888.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.
The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I present the petition of Caleb Harrington and 30 or 40 other citizens of the State of Vermont, praying Congress to pass a bill now under consideration for the further and better protection of the forests in and in the neighborhood of the Yellowstone National Park. I do not know the state of the bill.
Mr. VEST. The bill has passed the Senate.
Mr. EDMUNDS. Then I move that the petition lie on the table.
The motion was agreed to.
Mr. CAMERON presented a petition of citizens of Hartleton, Pa., praying for the repeal of that portion of the internal-revenue law which classes druggists as liquor dealers, and also for a reduction of the tax on alcohol; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.
Mr. CULLOM presented resolutions adopted by the Independent Refiners' Association, of Titusville, Pa., urging the passage of amendments to the interstate-commerce act, providing that the transportation of oil by pipe lines shall be subject to the provisions of the act; that one-half the penalties provided for by the act shall be paid to the informer, and that provision be made for the immediate transportation of freight pending litigation as to rates; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.
He also presented resolutions adopted by Typographical Union No. 107, located at Rock Island and Moline, Ill., urging the passage of the Chace bill for an international copyright; which were ordered to lie on the table.
Mr. BLAIR presented the petition of Rev. Dr. S. H. Willey, of Benicia, Cal., and other citizens of the Third Congressional district of that State, praying for the passage of the bill prohibiting the manufacture, sale, and importation of all alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.
He also presented a petition of District Assembly No. 124, Knights of Labor, of Manchester, N. H., praying for the passage of a bill establishing a Government postal telegraph system; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.
He also presented the petition of Alex. Whilldin, president, Rev. T. A. Fernley, corresponding secretary, George A. Stuart, and others, members, of the Philadelphia (Pa.) Sabbath Association, praying for the passage of legislation prohibiting the running of mail trains and interstate trains and the drilling of United States troops on Sunday and other violations of the Sabbath; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.
Mr. REAGAN presented a petition of 18 citizens of Throckmorton County, Texas, praying for the passage of a bill providing for the payment of Indian depredation claims; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.
Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, presented a petition of 25 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Glenwood, Iowa, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition of 90 citizens of the Eighth, Ninth, and Fifteenth Congressional districts of Ohio, praying for prohibition in the District of Columbia; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. HOAR presented a petition of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, signed by W. H. Pearson, secretary, praying for the opening of a Nicaragua ship-canal; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of the city of Rochester, N. Y., signed by H. Painball, vice-president, and J. Y. McClintock, secretary, praying for a reduction of letter postage from 2 cents to 1 cent per ounce; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. MANDERSON presented two petitions of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of White Rabbit, Dawson County, Nebraska, and citizens of Knox County, Nebraska, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. QUAY presented a petition of 229 citizens and 135 voters of Pennsylvania, and a petition of 623 citizens and 119 voters of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of a law prohibiting the running of interstate Sunday trains and mail trains and the drilling of United States troops on the Sabbath; which were referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

He also presented a petition of the Pennsylvania State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, twelve petitions of Granges of Patrons of Husbandry, of Pennsylvania, and a petition of citizens of Northampton County, Pennsylvania, praying that the Bureau of Animal Industry may be continued under the control of the Commissioner of Agriculture, etc.; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Pennsylvania; a petition of Pomona Grange No. 6, Patrons of Husbandry, of Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania; nine petitions of Granges of Patrons of Husbandry, of Pennsylvania, and a petition of Grange No. 84, Patrons of Husbandry, of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of a law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of adulterated food products; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a petition of the Trades Assembly of Western Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of House joint resolution No. 24, in reference to the employment of Army and Navy bands; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

He also presented a petition of Grange No. 83, Patrons of Husbandry, of Pennsylvania, praying that the Commissioner of Agriculture be made a Cabinet officer, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented two petitions of 235 citizens of the Sixth, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Sixteenth, Twenty-first, Twenty-fourth, and Twenty-sixth Congressional districts of Pennsylvania, praying for prohibition in the District of Columbia; which were referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also presented a petition of Pressmen's Union No. 4, of Philadelphia, Pa., and a petition of Typographical Union No. 2, of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of the international copyright law; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Philadelphia; a petition of 8 druggists of Mahanoy City; and a petition of 4 druggists and 9 physicians of Tyrone, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the repeal of the law which classes druggists as wholesale liquor dealers, etc.; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented the petition of Edmund Shaw and 30 other male citizens of Altoona; the petition of W. M. Calkins and 17 other male citizens of New Castle; and a petition of 29 male citizens of Lawrence County, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for better legal protection for women and girls within the territorial, admiralty, and maritime jurisdiction of the United States; which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a memorial of Elk Lake Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Elk Lake City, Pa., remonstrating against the proposed repeal of the oleomargarine law; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a petition of London Grove Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Chester County; a petition of Osterburgh Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Bedford County; a petition of citizens of Crawford County; and a petition of West Deer Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Allegheny County, all in the State of Pennsylvania; and a petition of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture, praying for the reissue of fractional currency, etc.; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of Progress Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Centre County; a petition of Osterburgh Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Bedford County; a petition of Valley Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Columbia County; and a petition of Spring Creek Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Warren County, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the reduction of postage upon seeds, etc.; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Homer City Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Homer City, Pa., praying that February 22 may be made a national legal holiday; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented two petitions, numerously signed by ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Pennsylvania, and a petition of sons of soldiers of the late war, citizens of Crawford County, Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a memorial of the West Philadelphia Republican Club, remonstrating against the reduction of customs duties; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of the Reformed Presbyterian Synod of the United States, praying that the evils of the liquor traffic be suppressed; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

He also presented a memorial of 23 lodges of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers of the United States, remonstrating against any legislation that would tend to the crippling of American industries; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Beaver, Pa., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the J. Aitken Meigs Medical Association of Pennsylvania, praying that all the duties be removed from all medicines and medical and surgical appliances; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Clarion County, Pennsylvania, praying for additional protection to the wool-growing and wool-manufacturing industries of the United Stafes; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of Elk Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Pennsylvania, and a petition of Greenwood Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Pennsylvania, praying for the abolition of postal-notes, etc.; which were referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. PLATT presented a petition of citizens of Guilford, Conn., praying for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. EVARTS presented a petition of the Rochester (N. Y.) Chamber of Commerce, praying for the reduction of letter postage to 1 cent an ounce; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. BROWN presented a petition of the Agricultural Society of the State of Georgia, adopted at the annual convention assembled at Waycross, Ga., praying for the improvement of the Altamaha, the Ocmulgee, and Oconee Rivers, in that State; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. COCKRELL presented additional papers to accompany the bill (S. 1152) granting a pension to Myra Freeman; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

THE YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK.

Mr. PLUMB. I have heretofore presented some petitions headed "The protection of the Yellowstone National Park." They have been evidently gotten up by some central authority and circulated for signatures. I have now a letter from a gentleman living in Kansas, written at the foot of one of these petitions, which I will take the liberty of reading, in order that the matter may be understood:

CHANUTE, KANS., April 7, 1888.

Hon. P. B. PLUMB:

Above received from some unknown source. I do not know the provisions of Senate bill 283 referred to, but by a sojourn in the park last summer a different state of affairs presented itself than represented above as to the unprotected condition of the park and the dangers to its forests, game, and natural wonders. The strict rules of the Interior Department for the protection of the park and game appear to be rigidly adhered to, a conspicuous portion of the United States Army being suggestive of the advisability of doing so, if nothing else. As to danger to visitors from "lawless criminal acts," such a fear would scarcely occur to the most timid.

Yours, truly,

L. L. BAILEY.

The gentleman is entirely respectable and highly intelligent. I have no doubt that this movement for elaborate laws to regulate the Yellowstone National Park has had its foundation in some personal purpose. I ask that the petition which I present be referred.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill having been passed, the petition will lie on the table.

Mr. VEST. I wish to say a word in answer to the Senator from Kansas. He is mistaken. I was in the Yellowstone National Park, as were other Senators, last summer, and the bill which has passed the Senate simply meets a great necessity. It simply meets a condition of affairs which is anomalous and found nowhere else in this country.

Mr. CHACE. We can not hear the Senator from Missouri on this side. I am very desirous of hearing what he says.

Mr. VEST. I say that the bill which passed the Senate was simply intended to meet a great necessity, a necessity growing out of an anomalous condition of affairs in the Yellowstone National Park at this time.

There is one company of troops stationed in the park, sent there by the Secretary of War upon the request of the Secretary of the Interior. I was myself opposed to any military government in the park, and resisted it to the full extent of my influence and power; but Congress deemed it proper not to adopt my view of the case, and the result has been the sending of a company of soldiers there to preserve peace and order.

I am happy to say here in the most public manner, as I have stated to the authorities before by written communication, that I was most agreeably disappointed to find that the park was in admirable condition so far as police regulation was concerned, growing in a large degree out of the fact that the present officer in command, Captain Harris, is singularly adapted to the duties of his position, and is a gentleman of intelligence and justice and high character.

But whilst the military are there for the purpose of preserving order, there is no civil law whatever administered in the park. It is not under the jurisdiction of Wyoming. There are no laws of the United States which protect property or life there. Murders have been committed in the park, criminals arrested and placed in the jails of Wyoming and Montana, but under habeas corpus they were turned loose by the courts because there could be no punishment for such crimes.

The bill which has passed the Senate simply provides for the appointment of a commissioner, whose duty it shall be, when information of crime having been committed is lodged with him, to act as an examining officer, whilst at the same time he has a small jurisdiction over misdemeanors, violations of the rules of the Secretary, and offenses of that class. Where a felony is committed, his only duty is to examine, and if he finds probable cause, as in the case of other examinations of that character, he sends the criminal on for trial to the courts of Wyoming Territory.

I do not know where the petition came from to which the Senator from Kansas refers; I do not know from what source it emanates, but I want distinctly to affirm, of my personal knowledge, that the bill which passed the Senate, and which I drew myself, but which was reported from the Committee on Territories, of which I am not a member, had no personal object, and could not possibly have had any.

Mr. PLUMB. It was not necessary for the Senator from Missouri to disclaim any personal purpose in drawing the bill, although I did not know at the moment that he was the author of it. I heard the authorship ascribed to the late Chief-Justice of the United States.

Mr. VEST. Oh, no; he had nothing to do with it. I wrote every line of it.

Mr. PLUMB. I do not know that the Chief-Justice himself, if he were alive, would care to make any pretension upon that subject; but what I referred to was the fact that printed petitions were sent all over the country, printed by somebody and presumably by somebody who had sufficient personal interest in it to warrant the expenditure of money, and I wanted to put opposite to and in contradistinction to those petitions, which I myself have presented when they have been sent to me, the statement of a thoroughly reliable and intelligent man in regard to the condition of things existing in the park.

I myself was not in favor of the legislation passed by the Senate, but I did not care to oppose it, because the disposition to get on to every subject about which we can legislate is too overwhelming; and to have a little principality up there which can only get its laws from the Federal Government, and whose every official must be appointed by the President of the United States, possesses undoubtedly very attractive features. They are not attractive to me, but I am speaking of the average legislator. We are seeking all the while, as I think, to get hold of objects of legislation of that kind, and I look upon this as substantially one of them.

I, of course, impute motives to nobody, but I have brought this matter to the attention of the Senate simply to say that there was somewhere in this country an interest sufficiently powerful to induce people to spend money and to print petitions and send them all over the country about a matter which I supposed was, and which ought to be, a public matter.

Mr. VEST. The Senator will permit me to make one observation and I am done as to a discussion of the matter of legislation. At any time in which that could occur, I have always been ready to discuss it with the Senator from Kansas or any one else, here or anywhere, but I want to say in regard to these petitions that I have no doubt they come from the most disinterested motives, from gun clubs and other sources of that sort throughout the country. I have received letters from persons whom I do not know at all, in which they express great interest in the park, and I think that any gentleman who has ever visited it will not be surprised that that interest exists.

Mr. DAWES. I should like to ask if the Senator from Kansas prefers or proposes to surrender that park to the public domain. If he does, that is a fair question and an issue which has been already decided and disposed of. If not, does he propose to keep it up and preserve it; and if he proposes to preserve it, does he propose to adopt such measures as will bring about that result? Two or three such questions as that answered will settle this matter.

So far as these petitions are concerned, I have a number of them in my committee-room from the towns of Massachusetts, and I am glad to know that all over this country there is an interest being awakened and preserved that will keep its eye upon this national park. For one, I am in favor of its preservation, and being in favor of its preservation, I am in favor of all such proper means and measures as will secure its preservation.

Mr. PLUMB. I did not know that my opinion was of any very great importance, but the Senator from Massachusetts seems to think the existence and maintenance of that park may depend upon my opinion on the subject. Therefore I am perfectly willing to say in this most solemn manner, befitting the solemn character of the interrogatories which have been propounded to me, that I am in favor of maintaining the park. This statement ought to settle that point at all events.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The petition will lie on the table.

JOHN RUTLEDGE.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I report, under instructions of the Committee on the Judiciary, an original bill to remove the political disabilities of John Rutledge, of South Carolina. He has filed a proper petition; it appears he is not indebted to the United States; and according to the custom I ask for the present consideration of the bill.

By unanimous consent the bill (S. 2651) to remove the political disabilities of John Rutledge, of South Carolina, was read three times and passed—two-thirds of the Senators present voting in the affirmative.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. SAWYER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon, which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 1966) granting an increase of pension to Conrad Schmidt; and

A bill (S. 1746) granting an increase of pension to John Wilson.

Mr. SAWYER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (H. R. 6759) granting a pension to Mary Robinson;

A bill (H. R. 5118) granting a pension to Theodore Gardner;

A bill (H. R. 6812) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Thurston;

A bill (S. 2233) granting a pension to William P. Madden;

A bill (S. 2008) granting a pension to Cyrus Tuttle;

A bill (S. 2106) granting a pension to William Kelsey;

A bill (S. 2089) for the relief of Elizabeth White;

A bill (S. 2137) for the relief of Rosaloo Sage;

A bill (S. 888) granting a pension to Mercy A. Cutts;

A bill (S. 2105) granting increase of pension to Joseph Verbisky; and

A bill (S. 1922) for the relief of Thaddeus S. Stewart.

Mr. SAWYER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1912) granting an increase of pension to William Irving, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1933) granting a pension to Zenas T. Haines, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. BLODGETT, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (H. R. 5233) granting a pension to William F. Randolph;

A bill (S. 2091) granting a pension to Frances H. Plummer;

A bill (S. 1575) granting an increase of pension to William Wallace Young;

A bill (S. 2194) granting a pension to Annie Leonard; and

A bill (H. R. 4672) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. Emily M. Wyman.

Mr. BLODGETT, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2012) granting increase of pension to Marcus D. Raymond, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2018) granting an increase of pension to Henry Sprague, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 1595) to increase the pension of Mrs. Rebecca A. Craw;

A bill (H. R. 1071) granting a pension to John Hancock; and

A bill (S. 2195) granting arrears of pension to Mrs. Mary R. Archer.

Mr. DAVIS, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2589) for the relief of David Reynolds, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs; which was agreed to.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the petition of Mary Brown, widow of George W. Brown, late of Company B, Twelfth Ohio Cavalry, praying for arrears of pension, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the committee were discharged from the further consideration of the petition.

He also, from the same committee, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 1915) for the relief of P. J. Reuss;

A bill (S. 2247) for the relief of Ann Buckley; and

A bill (S. 2214) granting a pension to Calvin W. Smith.

Mr. DAVIS, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 2240) for the relief of George S. Thwing;

A bill (S. 2144) granting a pension to Rosalie Alex;

A bill (H. R. 4110) granting a pension to Mehitable Wheelock;

A bill (H. R. 807) for the relief of Horatio R. Maryman;

A bill (S. 2454) granting an increase of pension to Alfred Pearson;

A bill (H. R. 4106) granting a pension to Olive Wallace;

A bill (H. R. 4534) for the relief of Emily G. Mills; and

A bill (S. 2117) granting a pension to Ellen Miller.

Mr. DAVIS, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of Gustave E. Peters, praying to be allowed a pension, submitted a report thereon, accompanied by a bill (S. 2652) granting a pension to Gustave E. Peters; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. TURPIE, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 2069) granting a pension to Penrose Frank;

A bill (S. 2260) restoring the name of Wilhemina Hosband to the pension-roll; and

A bill (S. 1885) granting a pension to Margaret Tonkin.

Mr. TURPIE, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 2245) to increase the pension of John F. Spence;

A bill (S. 2295) granting a pension to Emanuel Brownmiller; and

A bill (S. 2070) to increase the pension of Peter Elser.

Mr. TURPIE, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1819) granting arrears of pension to Col. D. M. Fox, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the petition of Robert B. Wheatley, praying to be allowed a pension, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to, and the committee were discharged from the further consideration of the petition.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the petition of Mariah Nash, praying to be allowed a pension, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to, and the committee were discharged from the further consideration of the petition.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the petition of Mary Curtin, praying to be allowed a pension, submitted a report thereon, accompanied by a bill (S. 2653) granting a pension to Mary Curtin; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. PALMER, from the Committee on Education and Labor, submitted a report to accompany the bill (S. 1156) to encourage the holding of a national industrial exposition of the arts, mechanics, and products of the colored race throughout the United States of America, to be held in the years 1888 and 1889; which was ordered to be printed.

Mr. DANIEL, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1612) to provide for the closing of parts of two alleys in square 132, in the city of Washington, D. C., and for the relief of Charles Early and Corbin Warwick, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

FREEDMAN'S SAVINGS AND TRUST COMPANY.

Mr. SHERMAN. I am directed by the Committee on Finance to ask that the bill (S. 1138) to reimburse the depositors of the Freedman's Savings and Trust Company for losses incurred by the failure of said company be recommitted to the Committee on Finance.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That order will be made, if there be no objection.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced a bill (S. 2654) referring the claims of John E. Williamson, administrator of the estate of John B. Thompson, deceased, and other citizens of Paducah, Ky., to the Court of Claims; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2655) granting a pension to Lydia Hawkins; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2656) granting a pension to the widow and minor children of Patrick Frawley; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. EDMUNDS introduced a bill (S. 2657) granting an increase of pension to Emily J. Stannard; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FAULKNER introduced a bill (S. 2658) to validate acknowledgments taken before the commissioners of the circuit courts of the United States, or the commissioners of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, of deeds to be recorded in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. DAVIS introduced a bill (S. 2659) granting a pension to Antony Schomacker; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PLUMB introduced a bill (S. 2660) granting a pension to Spencer West; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee an Pensions.

Mr. MANDERSON (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2661) to amend the act approved March 1, 1887, concerning the pay of hospital stewards, United States Army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 2662) for the erection of a public building at Salt Lake, Utah; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. EDMUNDS introduced a joint resolution (S. Res. 72) for the relief of Prof. Peter Collier; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

PAPERS WITHDRAWN AND REFERRED.

On motion of Mr. CALL, it was Ordered, That the papers in the case of Bartolo Thebaut, applicant for pension for disability incurred in the Seminole Indian war, be taken from the files and referred to the Committee on Pensions, subject to the rules.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

Mr. STEWART. Is the morning business over?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The morning business is not yet concluded. Resolutions, concurrent or other, are in order.

Mr. STEWART. As soon as that order is concluded I shall move to resume the consideration of the alien land bill.

Mr. CHACE. I move that the bill (S. 554) to amend Title LX, chapter 3, of the Revised Statutes of the United States, commonly known as the international copyright bill, be assigned for Thursday next at 3 o'clock, to follow the pleuro-pneumonia bill so called.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Rhode Island moves that the bill (S. 554) to amend Title LX, chapter 3, of the Revised Statutes of the United States be made the special order for Thursday next at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. BECK. I understand there are other orders standing ahead. Would this displace them?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It would not. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Rhode Island. [Putting the question.] The motion is agreed to; two-thirds of the Senators present having voted in the affirmative.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. CALL. If the Calendar of resolutions is in order now, I desire to move the consideration of a resolution.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The order of resolutions has not been concluded. Are there further resolutions, concurrent or other?

Mr. CALL. I move to proceed to the consideration of the resolution which I submitted some days ago——

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Nevada [Mr. STEWART] had previously risen to move the consideration of a bill. The resolution to which the Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL] refers is on the Calendar of General Orders, and can only be reached by a motion agreed to by a majority of the Senate.

Mr. STEWART. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 1176) to authorize the sale to aliens of certain mineral lands.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. I desire to ask the Senator from Nevada to give way to me for a few minutes that I may ask the Senate to take up the bill (H. R. 6051) regulating the times for holding the terms of the United States courts in the northern district of Iowa. It will take but a moment to pass it.

Mr. STEWART. Let my bill be taken up and I will then give way.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. I have no objection to that course.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The consideration of the Calendar under Rule VIII being in order, the Senator from Nevada moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 1176) to authorize the sale to aliens of certain mineral lands.

The motion was agreed to.

COURTS IN IOWA.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. I ask that the alien land bill may be laid aside temporarily for the purpose of calling up House bill 6051.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Pending the consideration of the mineral-land bill, the Senator from Iowa asks unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 6051) regulating the times for holding the terms of the United States courts in the northern district of Iowa.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was reported from the Committee on the Judiciary with an amendment, to add a new section, as follows:

SEC. 2. That all writs, processes, pleas, recognizances, and bonds made or returnable to the terms of said courts as now provided by law shall be considered as taken and returnable to the terms established by this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

ALIEN OWNERSHIP OF MINERAL LANDS.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 1176) to authorize the sale to aliens of certain mineral lands.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill was yesterday reported from the Committee of the Whole to the Senate, and the yeas and nays ordered upon the pending amendment, proposed by the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER]. Is the Senate ready for the question on agreeing to the amendment?

Mr. STEWART. If I am in order I offer as a substitute for the amendment of the Senator from West Virginia what I send to the desk.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be read for information.

The CHIEF CLERK. In lieu of the proposed amendment it is proposed to insert the following additional proviso:

Provided further, That nothing in this act shall alter or repeal any existing law passed by the Legislature of any Territory, and that the Legislatures of the several Territories shall have power to prohibit the acquisition of title to mines or mineral lands in the Territories of the United States by aliens or foreign corporations, or put any limitations on the acquisition of such titles as they may deem proper.

Mr. FAULKNER. I desire to ask the Chair for information whether this substitute to my amendment is now in order, the yeas and nays having been ordered on the amendment offered by myself.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The parliamentary motion is to strike out and insert, and the motion is in order.

Mr. FAULKNER. I suggest whether the motion to strike out and insert would be in order until after the vote on my amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair understands that the amendment reported from the Committee of the Whole to the Senate has been concurred in.

Mr. FAULKNER. The amendment offered by myself was not agreed to, as there was not a quorum voting.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair holds that a motion to strike out and insert would be in order.

Mr. FAULKNER. Then do I understand the Chair to hold that the amendment offered by myself has been adopted?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It has not been adopted.

Mr. FAULKNER. Then, pending a vote upon the question, I submit that the substitute offered by the Senator from Nevada is not in order.

Mr. COCKRELL. I do not understand that the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole has been agreed to in the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair so understands. The amendment adopted as in Committee of the Whole was reported to the Senate.

Mr. COCKRELL. It was reported to the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question then was whether the Senate would concur in the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole, pending which the Senator from West Virginia moved an amendment to the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole, which was in order. The Senator from Nevada now moves to strike out and insert.

Mr. COCKRELL. Precisely——

Mr. STEWART. My amendment——

Mr. COCKRELL. I believe I have the floor for one moment. The Chair stated the question exactly right, and stated that the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole had not been concurred in in the Senate, because if it had been, then the amendment of the Senator from West Virginia would not have been in order. Now, the question pending is on concurring in the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole, to which the Senator from West Virginia has proposed an amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The confusion arises from the fact that the present occupant of the chair was absent when the action referred to was taken. The Chair will have the Journal entries examined so that the attitude of the question may be stated.

Mr. HARRIS. I should like to be informed as to the character of the amendment of the Senator from Nevada; that is, as to whether it is in the nature of an amendment to the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. STEWART. It was intended as a substitute.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The proposed amendment will be read at the desk.

The CHIEF CLERK. In lieu of the amendment proposed by the Senator from West Virginia insert the following additional proviso:

Provided further, That nothing in this act shall alter or repeal any existing law passed by the Legislature of any Territory, and that the Legislatures of the several Territories shall have power to prohibit the acquisition of title to mines or mineral lands in the Territories of the United States by aliens or foreign corporations, or put any limitations on the acquisition of such titles as they may deem proper.

Mr. REAGAN. Has the attention of the Chair been called to the fact that the yeas and nays had been ordered on the amendment of the Senator from West Virginia?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That does not interfere, however, with the parliamentary state of the bill.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President——

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the Senator pause one moment while the Chair ascertains the parliamentary state of the bill?

Mr. STEWART. I think I can relieve the embarrassment if the Chair will hear me one moment. I will withdraw my amendment for the present, in order to save time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The yeas and nays having been ordered on the amendment proposed by the Senator from West Virginia, the roll will be called.

Mr. STEWART. I hope that will be voted down.

Mr. BECK. Let it be read.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Yes, let the amendment be read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment proposed by the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER] will be read at the desk.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to add to the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole the following additional proviso:

Provided further, That where mining claims which have been patented are acquired by a partnership, a majority of the partners shall be citizens of the United States: And provided further, That where said claims are acquired by incorporated companies, the powers of the companies shall be exercised by a board of trustees or directors who shall be stockholders of said company, and a majority of such trustees or directors shall be citizens of the United States.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REAGAN (when Mr. COKE'S name was called). I am paired with the Senator from New York [Mr. HISCOCK], but I have transferred the pair to my colleague [Mr. COKE], who is absent.

Mr. WALTHALL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER].

The roll-call was concluded.

Mr. HARRIS (after having voted in the affirmative). I wish to know if the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] is recorded as voting?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. He is not.

Mr. HARRIS. Then I withdraw my vote. I do not know how the Senator from Vermont would vote on this amendment if present, and I have a general pair with him. I withdraw my vote.

Mr. KENNA (after having voted in the affirmative). Unless some Senator is aware of a Senator on the other side who is absent unpaired, I withdraw my vote, as I am paired with the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. SABIN], with the understanding that in his absence or the absence of any Senator on this side not paired I may transfer the pair. I withdraw my vote, and announce my pair with the Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. SAULSBURY (after having voted in the affirmative). I have a general pair with the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON], and withdraw my vote.

Mr. PADDOCK. I was paired with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. EUSTIS], but I understand that pair has been transferred to the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER], who is absent. I therefore vote "nay."

Mr. PUGH (after having voted in the affirmative). I announce my pair with the Senator from California [Mr. STANFORD], and withdraw my vote.

Mr. WALTHALL. The Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] has come in and voted. I vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 21, nays 31; as follows:

YEAS—21.

Bate,	Cockrell,	McPherson,	Vest,
Beck,	Edmunds,	Morgan,	Walthall,
Berry,	Faulkner,	Pasco,	Wilson of Md.
Blackburn,	George,	Plumb,
Blodgett,	Gorman,	Reagan,
Butler,	Gray,	Turpie,

NAYS—31.

Allison,	Davis,	Jones of Arkansas,	Quay,
Blair,	Dolph,	Jones of Nevada,	Ransom,
Brown,	Evarts,	Manderson,	Sawyer,
Cameron,	Farwell,	Mitchell,	Sherman,
Chace,	Frye,	Paddock,	Spooner,
Chandler,	Hale,	Palmer,	Stewart,
Colquitt,	Hawley,	Payne,	Wilson of Iowa.
Cullom,	Hearst,	Platt,

ABSENT—24.

Aldrich,	Eustis,	Ingalls,	Saulsbury,
Bowen,	Gibson,	Kenna,	Stanford,
Call,	Hampton,	Morrill,	Stockbridge,
Coke,	Harris,	Pugh,	Teller,
Daniel,	Hiscock,	Riddleberger,	Vance,
Dawes,	Hoar,	Sabin,	Voorhees,

So the amendment to the amendment was rejected.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question recurs on agreeing to the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. GRAY. Mr. President, the vice of the bill as it came to us from the committee who had it in charge is not only that it makes a declaration, as argued by the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER] yesterday, that the policy of the laws of the United States as well as the laws of the Territories in regard to alien ownership of lands and mining claims shall be the reverse of what it has been, but that there is room for construction that in the Territories the Territorial Legislatures will be shorn of the power they have heretofore possessed of declaring what the policy ought to be in regard to the transaction of business among them by foreigners and by foreign corporations.

It certainly would not seem to be expedient that a community represented by a Territorial Legislature should be prevented by any construction which may be put on the amendment coming from the committee from saying what their policy in regard to foreign corporations ought to be; and therefore I propose, if this is the parliamentary stage in which to offer an amendment, to amend the amendment of the committee, which will insure that the power heretofore existing in Territorial Legislatures to prescribe the conditions upon which foreign corporations shall come among them and carry on business and exercise their powers shall be within the control of the Territorial Legislatures. I therefore, if it be now in order, offer the following amendment to the amendment as it comes from the committee. Strike out all after the word "claims," of line 13 of the committee's amendment, as follows:

But as to all such mineral lands, mining claims, mills, reduction works, and other property, the laws of the United States and of the Territories shall be and remain the same as though this act had not passed.

And insert in lieu thereof:

But the Legislatures of the Territories may prescribe the conditions upon which mining claims, works, or property used in the production of metals from said mineral lands or claims may be owned, operated, or worked by corporations created in foreign countries or in any of the States of the United States.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. President, I think the Senator from Delaware misapprehends the effect of the proposed legislation. The Senator seems to think that if this bill as reported from the Committee on Mines and Mining should become a law, the effect of it would be to deprive the Territories of some right that they now possess in reference to the exclusion of foreign capital from the mines in those Territories. It has no such effect. Prior to the passage of the alien land act which this bill proposes to amend, it must be conceded by the Senator from Delaware, and by every other Senator, that the Territorial Legislature of each Territory had the right and the full power to control this matter for itself. The effect of the passage of the alien land act was to deprive the Territorial Legislatures of that power.

Mr. MCPHERSON. The Senator is speaking of the act of 1887?

Mr. MITCHELL. The act of 1887. The effect of that was to deprive the Legislatures of the Territories of the power which they had prior to that act of excluding foreign capital at their option.

Now, the purpose of the proposed bill as reported by the Senator from Nevada [Mr. STEWART] from the Committee on Mines and Mining is simply to repeal, abrogate, set aside that portion of the alien land act of 1887 that took away from the Territories, respectively, their right to control this matter. That is all there is in the legislation proposed. It takes away no right whatever that the Territories possessed prior to the passage of the alien land act.

Mr. JONES, of Arkansas. I should like to suggest to the Senator from Oregon in that connection that it not only does that, but the bill as it came from the committee does in direct and express terms say that the law shall remain just as it was before the passage of the act of 1887. The last clause is:

But as to all such mineral lands, mining claims, mills, reduction works, and other property the laws of the United States and of the Territories shall be and remain the same as though this act had not passed.

Mr. MITCHELL. That is just what I said, that the legislation shall be and remain, if this bill becomes a law, as though the alien land act of 1887 had never been passed. I am not certain that the amendment proposed by the Senator from Delaware will not very materially affect this bill, but I should like to have it reported again to see just what it is.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment will be again read.

The Secretary read the amendment of Mr. GRAY.

Mr. MITCHELL. I think the effect of the amendment will be certainly to make the law uncertain, because if the bill should become a law as reported from the committee, without any amendment, then the Territorial Legislatures would have that power.

Mr. DOLPH. It seems to me, Mr. President, that the amendment offered by the Senator from Delaware is not only unnecessary, but is mischievous. Prior to the passage of the act of 1887, prohibiting aliens from holding real estate in the Territories, there was no act of Congress either authorizing or prohibiting such ownership. If aliens or foreign corporations could hold real estate or mining claims in the Territories lawfully, it was because there was some Territorial act that authorized it. Of course Congress can annul an act of a Territory, and by the act of Congress of 1887, so far as the laws of a Territory authorized the ownership of real estate by aliens, they were superseded and annulled. It is now proposed to amend the act of 1887 so that there shall be no law of Congress prohibiting the ownership in Territories of mines by aliens or foreign corporations, and by the same bill to restore the laws of the Territories as they existed before the passage of the act of 1887.

The Territories may legislate upon this subject or upon any subject unless there is an act of Congress, either the organic act of the Territory or some subsequent law, that prohibits legislation by the Territories upon a particular subject. Therefore the moment that the law of 1887 is amended so as not to apply to mining claims and prohibit the ownership of mining claims by foreign corporations or by aliens, that moment the right of the Territories to legislate on the subject is restored, and they may legislate on the subject and authorize the ownership of mining claims by aliens or by foreign corporations or prohibit it entirely, and the law of the Territory will stand until Congress takes action and annuls the Territorial legislation.

I can not myself see the necessity of providing that the Territories may legislate on the subject when every lawyer must know, if he considers for a moment, that when there is no prohibition on the part of Congress of such legislation by the Territories they may legislate.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. President, I agree, as I said before, that the effect of this amendment in my judgment is simply declaratory of the law. Now, I should like to ask my colleague if, in his judgment, it has any other effect? If it has any additional effect I should not like to vote for it.

Mr. DOLPH. Will my colleague state his question again?

Mr. MITCHELL. It is whether, in the judgment of my colleague, the effect of this amendment goes any further than simply to declare what the law should be.

Mr. DOLPH. I would like to know whether my colleague means the amendment reported by the committee.

Mr. MITCHELL. No; I mean the amendment of the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY].

Mr. DOLPH. I fear it does. It is not in print, and I have not had an opportunity to examine it critically; but it is suggested now by the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] that the amendment reported by the Committee on Mines and Mining Claims goes further than was intended—a suggestion which had not occurred to me—inasmuch as it provides that the laws of the Territories "shall be and remain" the same as though the act of 1887 had not been passed. That certainly was not the intention of the committee. If any one supposes that the amendment reported by the committee is a continuing prohibition against the Legislatures of the Territories changing existing laws, that is easily amended without the proviso or amendment offered by the Senator from Delaware.

I understand that the amendment was offered for fear the act of 1887 had repealed the Territorial laws by the action of Congress, and to restore the legislation of the Territories as it existed when they were annulled by the act of Congress. That certainly is all the committee intended to do.

I call the attention of the Senator from Nevada to a suggestion made by the Senator from Wisconsin that the language of the amendment reported from the committee which provides that the laws of the Territories when this act was passed shall be and remain the same as though this act had not been passed will, in effect, though not so intended, prohibit the Territories from hereafter changing the laws as they existed at the time the act of 1887 was passed. If there is any danger of that construction, I suggest to the Senator from Nevada that the bill be amended so as to carry out the intention of the committee and not be any limitation on the powers of the Territories to legislate.

Mr. HAWLEY. A simple repeal of the old law is all that is wanted.

Mr. GRAY. I merely want to say to the Senator from Oregon that the object of my amendment was to accomplish just the removal of the cause of the criticism the Senator is now making. Undoubtedly the word "remain" there would have the construction of leaving the laws of the United States and of the Territories in the condition in which they now are, without the power on the part of the Territorial Legislatures to modify or change them. My amendment strikes out that clause and affirmatively gives the Territorial Legislatures power to change the law.

Mr. STEWART. I think the amendment of the Senator from Delaware is right and accomplishes the purpose we are all aiming at.

Mr. DOLPH. Why not strike out the word "remain" from the committee's amendment, and not encumber the proposition with this additional phrase?

Mr. STEWART. I think the provision will make a very good law with the amendment of the Senator from Delaware.

Mr. MITCHELL. The amendment of the Senator from Delaware strikes out that portion of the committee amendment.

Mr. KENNA. I understand the amendment of the Senator from Delaware to strike out that whole clause.

Mr. HARRIS and others. Let the pending amendment be read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment of the Senator from Delaware will be read.

Mr. STEWART. I think it is all right, but I should like to have it read.

The Secretary read the amendment of Mr. GRAY.

Mr. DOLPH. That will not do at all, and I will show in a moment why it will not. The act of 1887 repealed the existing legislation in the Territories. If this amendment is carried, and the portion of the committee's amendment stricken out as proposed, then that legislation is not restored, and you simply have no law of Congress on the subject, and no law of the Territories on the subject, but you substitute for that the power of the Territories to legislate on the subject hereafter, which they would have if this portion were stricken out and no new words added, and until you get some act of the Territories you have no law on the subject. Instead of restoring the old law you simply substitute for that a provision that the Territories may enact a new law. That is all.

Mr. STEWART. There is no necessity for any act of the Territories with regard to aliens holding land. They have passed no law on that subject. It is governed by the act of Congress, and the Territories have not legislated on the question. This bill will involve no new legislation. It repeals no Territorial laws because none exist, and the old law repeals no Territorial laws. It simply was a prohibition against the acquisition of mines and lands by aliens.

Mr. DOLPH. I ask the Senator from Nevada if he does not want to restore the status as it was before the act of 1887 passed?

Mr. STEWART. I do.

Mr. DOLPH. This amendment of the Senator from Delaware does not do it. It leaves the full effect of the act of 1887, with the legislation of the Territories, to stand.

Mr. STEWART. But there was no act of the Territorial Legislatures in conflict with the law of 1887. They did not legislate on the subject.

Mr. DOLPH. There were acts of the Territorial Legislatures that provided for the exercise of this power by foreign corporations. I did not take issue with the Senator from West Virginia, but I think the law is different from what it was stated to be by him in regard to the Territory of Washington.

Mr. JONES, of Arkansas. If the Senator from Oregon will permit a suggestion, I desire to say that the act of 1887 does not affect any right in existence prior to the passage of that law, and this bill can not touch anything that has been done since the 3d of March, 1887. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Delaware certainly reserves to the Legislatures of the Territories the right to regulate this matter. They had that right before the act of 1887 was passed. It simply restores the condition of things exactly as it was before, with a declaration on the part of Congress that the Territorial Legislatures can regulate the ownership of mining property in the Territories by foreigners. That is all, it seems to me.

Mr. DOLPH. I am not talking about the vested rights acquired by aliens prior to the act of 1887. I am talking about the legislation of the Territories which was annulled by the act of 1887. The Senator from Nevada undertakes to provide that that legislation shall be revived and the legislation of the Territories be as it was before the passage of the act of Congress of 1887. I think that is right.

Now, I suggest that instead of striking out what the Senator from Delaware proposes to strike out, he simply add to the amendment coming from the Committee on Mines and Mining:

But nothing herein shall prevent the Territories from legislating as to the ownership of mining property within the Territories.

That will cover the point.

Mr. FAULKNER. May I ask the Senator a question?

Mr. DOLPH. With pleasure.

Mr. FAULKNER. I should like to ask the Senator from Oregon what law of any Legislature of any Territory was repealed by the act of Congress of 1887? If there has been any such law, I have not been able to find it in any Territory. There is nothing in the act of 1887 that effaces or repeals any law of a Territory. It simply overrules or overrides any law of a Territory which is in conflict with the act of 1887, and as far as I have been able to ascertain by examining the laws of the Territories I know of none that are in conflict with that act of Congress.

Mr. DOLPH. I will state to the Senator from West Virginia that it is a long time since I examined the statutes of Washington Territory; but my recollection is that any three persons—not any three citizens of Washington Territory—may form a corporation there and become incorporated for the purpose of carrying on mining business, and I am satisfied that the laws of that Territory permit aliens to hold real estate within the Territory. They allow foreign corporations to make loans and to purchase property which has been mortgaged for the satisfaction of their debts. They allow foreign corporations to transact business within the Territory by complying with certain regulations, as filing copies of their articles of incorporation, etc., in the Territory. Such is my recollection.

Now, so far as those laws relate to the ownership of real property in agricultural lands, or real property used for commercial purposes or mines, the act of 1887 would repeal that existing legislation. I think it would be a dangerous experiment upon the statement of any one who has examined the laws of the respective Territories casually for the purposes of this discussion, to enact a law which would leave no law on the subject either in the Territories or in the United States.

Mr. JONES, of Arkansas. Will the Senator from Oregon have the kindness to point out the repealing clause in the act of 1887 repealing any Territorial act?

Mr. DOLPH. If I said "repealed" I should have said "annulled," as I did at another time during this discussion. The law of Congress on the same subject overrules or overrides the law of the Territory.

Mr. MITCHELL. I would suggest to my colleague that the only thing that may have been overruled or abrogated or set aside by the act of Congress of 1887 was some law of some Territory permitting foreign capital. Now it is well settled that the repeal of the repealing law revives the original law.

Mr. DOLPH. I have some doubt about that. If I so believed that would be all I should desire, and it would be secured by the provisions of this bill. I believe my colleague is a member of the committee that reported the bill, and it reported an affirmative provision that the acts of the Territories should be continued in force. If I were satisfied of the proposition that that was the law affecting the status of such a case as this, that where a Territorial law had been annulled, a repeal of the act of Congress annulling it would restore the Territorial law I should be satisfied; but it must be remembered that this is not the same case as where a law of Congress is repealed by a subsequent act and then the repealing act is repealed. The same doctrine does not apply. Here is a law of a Territory which is annulled by an act of Congress, and it is sought to be put in force again by the repeal of the act of Congress which annulled it.

Mr. MITCHELL. One word. It seems to me that to strike out all that is proposed to be stricken out in the amendment of the committee by the amendment of the Senator from Delaware would be simply to repeal the act of 1887 so far as relates to mines in the Territories. The effect of repealing that repealing act, under a well-settled rule of legislation and of construction, would be to restore the act repealed. Now, by striking out the portion proposed to be stricken out and by inserting what the Senator from Delaware proposes to insert, it appears to me that the law as then passed would be precisely in effect and substance what it ought to be if this portion were stricken out and the amendment not adopted.

Mr. HAWLEY. I wish to make a suggestion in regard to this proposition of the committee. I submit, humbly and respectfully, that it is in bad form anyhow. It says:

That the act entitled "An act to restrict the ownership of real estate in the Territories to American citizens, etc.," approved March 3, 1887, be, and the same is hereby, amended by inserting after section 4 of said act the following.

Now, suppose we read the act of 1887 with this amendment. It then reads: That foreigners shall not hold, etc., any share whatever in the agricultural lands or the mining lands or claims in the Territories: Provided, however, That this shall not affect anybody's claims to mining lands. It makes the act very ridiculous. It goes on to describe in the original section that people shall not do such a thing and then the concluding proviso of the same act says they shall. Why not say now what the law shall be, and not attempt to tack a new provision onto an old law? For example, I suggest roughly this:

That the act entitled "An act to restrict the ownership of real estate of the Territories to American citizens, etc.," approved March 3, 1887, shall not relate to or in any manner affect title to mineral lands or mining claims in the Territories which may be acquired or held under the mineral-land laws of the United States, or to mills or other reduction works used in the production of metals from said mineral lands or claims, but, as to all such mineral lands, mining claims, mills, reduction works, etc., the laws of the United States and of the Territories are declared to be as they were before the passage of said act.

Mr. STEWART. Please state the amendment again.

Mr. HAWLEY. Strike out the words "be and the same is hereby amended by inserting after section 4 of said act the following," and declare just what you want. Say that the act of 1887 shall not relate to or affect the title to mineral lands or mining claims, etc., but the law as to such mining claims, etc., shall be the laws of the United States and the Territories as they were before the passage of the act.

Mr. McPHERSON. It seems to me that the proper course would be to recommit the bill to the committee, in order that some amendment may be suggested or that the bill may itself come here in proper form. Certainly it is impossible to see what effect this legislation is to have on the subsequent sections of the act of 1887 without examining that act carefully.

Mr. GRAY. Will the Senator from New Jersey allow me to interrupt him a moment in order to make a modification of my amendment?

Mr. McPHERSON. I do not yield the floor except for that purpose.

Mr. GRAY. The object aimed at by my amendment was to insure after the passage of this law the control of the Territorial Legislatures over the existence and operation of foreign corporations in the communities that they represent. It was written at the desk during the debate this morning, and I think that all that is intended to be accomplished may be accomplished in fewer words, by substituting for the amendment proposed by me the following, which I will offer as a modification: That after the word "be," in line 16, the rest of the amendment of the committee be stricken out and there be inserted in lieu thereof the words "until changed by act of Congress or an act of the Territorial Legislature."

Mr. STEWART. That is satisfactory.

Mr. DOLPH. Then strike out the word "remain."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment as modified will be read from the desk.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out of the amendment adopted as in Committee of the Whole the words "and remain" and insert "until changed by act of Congress or an act of the Territorial Legislature;" so as to read:

But as to all such mineral lands, mining claims, mills, reduction works, and other property, the laws of the United States and of the Territories shall be, until changed by act of Congress or an act of the Territorial Legislature, the same as though this act had not passed.

Mr. GRAY. If I have the right to modify the amendment offered by me, I offer that modification.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question now recurs on the proposed amendment of the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY] as last read, his previous amendment being withdrawn.

Mr. MCPHERSON. It is nowhere claimed, as I understand, that the act of Congress of 1887 did violence to anybody's interests. Aliens who held mining properties in the Territories were protected by that act in their property. Therefore the act of 1887 is not in its effect in any sense retroactive.

But, as I understand, the object of the friends of this measure is to simply change the act of 1887, to eliminate from it mining claims and mineral lands as distinguished from agricultural lands. In other words, it is to permit the mining interests of the country to be under the control of the Territorial Legislatures, making such rules as they please, and permitting all the other land laws in regard to alien ownership to be under the control of Congress. In short, there are to be two rules governing in this case, one to be a rule of Congress touching one kind of landed property and the other is to be a rule of the Territorial Legislatures touching another kind of landed property.

I can not consent to such a proposition. The Territories of the United States, numerous as they are, may and probably will each have a different set of laws governing the ownership of land in the Territory, and you will have as many different kinds of laws as you have Territories. In short, if to-day an alien holder of lands acquired even prior to the passage of the act of 1887 were to desire to sell his property, it would require him first to go to the Territorial Legislature and see what additional legislation they had made touching his interests and his rights. Instead of having one rule and one system of laws touching the disposition of all the land and property of the United States, where it is easy to go to the statutes of the United States and determine the status of every owner, you must go to the different Territorial governments to determine.

I can see no special reason why a system of laws which should govern the agricultural lands of this country should not also be a system of laws that would be fair for the mineral lands of the country. I know, however, that it has been claimed that it is necessary to secure foreign capital for the development of mineral properties in this country, and everybody knows that mining in this country, as it is in almost every other country, is practically a species of gambling, that it is an uncertain thing for a man to invest in mining property or to undertake to search for metals in the bowels of the earth. I do not know but that there is some complaint on the part of the mining industries of the West that they are too much restricted by the operation of the law with respect to procuring capital in foreign countries for the development of the mines. If that be so, and if that is a sufficient reason why the land laws should be changed in regard to the mineral class of lands, let it be understood that that is the reason. But is there any other good reason existing why all the lands of the United States should not be governed by a rule applying alike to all and that a rule of Congress? As I said before, there seems to be no complaint as to alien ownership in mining claims. It has been preserved by that act. I ask the Senator from Oregon what the object is?

Mr. MITCHELL. The act of 1887 by construction was made to apply to a subject which in my judgment was never intended by Congress when it passed the act. The only thing discussed when that act of 1887 was before Congress was the great evil which was supposed to have resulted to this country from foreigners coming in and gobbling up immense tracts of agricultural and grazing lands. That was the evil aimed at by that bill, and that was the only evil aimed at, and that was the question discussed by Congress; but the act, as finally passed, was so broad as to include mining claims which never were thought of and never discussed, and which Congress never intended to cover by the legislation. Now, the object of this bill is simply, as I understand, to repeal that act in so far as it included in its provisions restrictions and limitations on the mining property of the country.

I will state to the Senator from New Jersey that there is just as much opposition, so far as I am advised, among the Territories and the people of the Territories to foreign capital and foreigners coming in and controlling large extents of grazing country and of agricultural country as there is in the States among the people of the States; but they do not object to foreign capital coming to develop mines, because the money is expended there. If it turns out a good mine, there is that much wealth added to the country; if it turns out to be a bad mine, all the foreigner has is a hole in the ground and our people have the benefit of the money he expends.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Let me suggest to the friends of the measure that the bill be recommitted and that the committee report to the Senate some well-digested, well-constructed amendment that will meet the case, and not in this confused and not-understood manner adopt amendments. It can be done much more rapidly and much more satisfactorily in that way. I move, therefore, that the bill be recommitted to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Mr. STEWART. I hope not.

Mr. EVARTS. Mr. President, I can not see why the amendment of the Senator from Delaware, as he has now put it in its final shape, should not be satisfactory to every member of the Senate. There was some criticism to be made as to the propriety of the mere substitution for the clause stricken out of the more explicit clause originally proposed by the Senator from Delaware; but it has now resolved itself into this, which I think we all understand, that the object of the bill, as we propose to pass it, is to restore the power over these questions to the Territories as it stood before the act of 1887 was passed; and I can not see but that the amendment of the Senator from Delaware fully accomplishes that and nothing more, and yet in a manner that all understand, and confines the act to that explicit purpose and result. I therefore hope that that amendment may be accepted as disposing of all the discussion and leading to the accomplishment of the purpose of the bill as reported by the committee.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the Senator from New Jersey to recommit the bill to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

The motion was not agreed to.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question recurs on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Delaware to the amendment of the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. MITCHELL. Let it be read.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out of line 16 of the amendment adopted by the committee the words "and remain" and insert "until changed by act of Congress or an act of a Territorial Legislature."

Mr. HAWLEY. I propose to offer an amendment after that, which, if it should be adopted, would require "this act" to be "said act." I give notice that I shall offer an amendment if this be adopted, and I hope it will be, to strike out, beginning in line 5, after "1887," the words "be, and the same is hereby, amended by inserting after section 4 of said act the following: 'Provided, however, That this act;'" so that we shall say that the act of 1887 "shall not relate to, or in any manner affect," etc., instead of merely putting a proviso into that act.

Mr. STEWART. I hope that amendment will be adopted. It will improve the bill.

Mr. HAWLEY. If that be done this should read "said act;" or it can be done by unanimous consent afterwards.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY] to the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HAWLEY. Now I offer my amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment will be read.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed, in line 5 of the amendment adopted as in Committee of the Whole, after the date "1887," to strike out the words "be, and the same is hereby, amended, by inserting after section 4 of said act the following: 'Provided, however, That this act;'" so as to read:

That the act entitled "An act to restrict the ownership of real estate in the Territories to American citizens," etc., approved March 3, 1887, shall not relate to or in any manner affect the title to mineral lands or mining claims in the Territories of the United States, etc.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. HAWLEY] to the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question recurs on agreeing to the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole as amended in the Senate.

The amendment as amended was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. HAWLEY. I neglected to ask unanimous consent that the word "this" be changed to "said," before "act," in the amendment inserted on the motion of the Senator from Delaware.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In line 16, before the word "act," it is proposed to strike out "this" and insert "said;" so as to read:

The laws of the United States and of the Territories shall be, until changed by act of Congress or an act of a Territorial Legislature, the same as though said act had not passed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. This will be agreed to if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

The bill was read the third time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Shall the bill pass?

Mr. FAULKNER. On the question of the passage of the bill I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL].

Mr. HAWLEY (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL], who has been called out on business. If he were here, I should vote "yea."

Mr. KENNA (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. SABIN]. I would suggest to the Senator from Connecticut that he and I transfer our pairs to the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL] and the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. SABIN], and he and I can vote.

Mr. HAWLEY. That is satisfactory. I vote "yea."

Mr. KENNA. And I vote "nay."

Mr. MITCHELL (when his name was called). I am paired on this subject with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. EDMUNDS]. I should vote "yea" if he were present, and he would vote "nay" if he were here.

Mr. PUGH (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from California [Mr. STANFORD].

Mr. REAGAN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from New York [Mr. HISCOCK]. If he were here, I should vote "nay."

The roll-call was concluded.

Mr. BLACKBURN (after having voted in the negative). I am paired with the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON]. If he were present, I should vote "nay." I do not see him in the Chamber.

Mr. BOWEN. My colleague [Mr. TELLER] is paired with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. EUSTIS].

The result was announced—yeas 31, nays 13; as follows:

YEAS—31.

Allison,	Chandler,	Hearst,	Platt,
Bate,	Cullom,	Hoar,	Quay,
Blair,	Daniel,	Ingalls,	Sawyer,
Bowen,	Davis,	Jones of Arkansas,	Spooner,
Brown,	Dolph,	Jones of Nevada,	Stewart,
Butler,	Evarts,	Paddock,	Vest,
Cameron,	Frye,	Palmer,	Wilson of Iowa.
Chace,	Hawley,	Payne,

NAYS—13.

Berry,	George,	Morgan,	Wilson of Md.
Blodgett,	Gray,	Pasco,
Coke,	Kenna,	Vance,
Faulkner,	McPherson,	Walthall

ABSENT—32.

Aldrich,	Eustis,	Manderson,	Sabin,
Beck,	Farwell,	Mitchell,	Saulsbury,
Blackburn,	Gibson,	Morrill,	Sherman,
Call,	Gorman,	Plumb,	Stanford,
Cockrell,	Hale,	Pugh,	Stockbridge,
Colquitt,	Hampton,	Ransom,	Teller,
Dawes,	Harris,	Reagan,	Turpie,
Edmunds,	Hiscock,	Riddleberger,	Voorhees.

So the bill was passed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. CLARK, its Clerk, announced that the House had concurred in the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 2927) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at Memphis, Tenn.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. GEORGE submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (H. R. 2952) for the allowance of certain claims for stores and supplies taken and used by the United States Army, as reported by the Court of Claims under the provisions of the act of March 3, 1883, known as the Bowman act; which was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVAL.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had yesterday approved and signed the act (S. 660) for the relief of Charles Murphy.

ADMISSION OF DAKOTA.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, before proceeding to the discussion of the question before the Senate, I ask that the bill presented by the minority of the Committee on Territories as an amendment to the pending bill be read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from South Carolina moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the unfinished business.

Mr. ALLISON. Before that is done I wish to submit a request to the Senate.

Mr. BUTLER. I have declined two or three applications already. The morning hour is about out. I should like to oblige my friend, but I think we had better proceed with the regular order.

Mr. ALLISON. It will take but a moment to do what I wish to ask.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from South Carolina moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the unfinished business of yesterday.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 185) to provide for the admission of the State of Dakota into the Union, and for the organization of the Territory of Lincoln, the pending question being on the amendment reported by the Committee on Territories as amended as a substitute for the original bill.

Mr. BUTLER. Before proceeding with the discussion of the subject before the Senate, I ask that the amendment submitted by the minority of the Committee on Territories be read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The proposed amendment will be read.

The Secretary proceeded to read the amendment submitted by Mr. BUTLER from the minority of the Committee on Territories.

Mr. BUTLER. I move to strike out the word "June," in line 21, section 2, and insert the word "August."

Mr. PLATT. I did not understand that the Senator had moved an amendment.

Mr. BUTLER. Yes, sir.

Mr. PLATT. And now the Senator desires to modify the amendment which he has moved?

Mr. BUTLER. Yes, sir.

Mr. PLATT. All right.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DOLPH in the chair). If there be no objection, the modification will be made.

Mr. BUTLER. I move to strike out, in line 4, section 4, all after the word "elected" down to and including the word "elected," in line 6, in these words:

In voting for such delegates each qualified voter may vote for not exceeding two persons, and the candidates highest in votes shall be declared elected.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has a right to modify his amendment. The change will be made.

Mr. BUTLER. Strike out the word "July," in line 3, section 6, and insert "September."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be so modified.

Mr. BUTLER. In line 15, I move to strike out all after the word "irrevocable" down to and including the word "States," in line 16, in these words: "without the consent of the United States and the people of said State."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That modification will be made.

Mr. BUTLER. I move to strike out, in line 48, section 6, from the word "State" to and including "execution," in line 53.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina modifies his amendment as follows.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out all of section 6, from the word "State," in line 48, as follows:

Fourthly, that provision shall be made for the establishment and maintenance of a system of public schools, which shall be open to all the children of the State, and free from sectarian control; and, fifthly, that provision shall be made for the reasonable exemption of homesteads from sale under execution.

Mr. BUTLER. My reason for striking out that provision is this: I have no doubt the State will provide for a system of common schools, but I do not believe that the Congress of the United States has anything to do with that question or with the question of the exemption of homesteads. I therefore do not desire to impose on this Territory a condition-precedent which has not been imposed on others, and hence I strike out these words.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The reading of the amendment will continue.

The Secretary resumed and concluded the reading of the amendment proposed by Mr. BUTLER on behalf of a minority of the Committee on Territories as modified, which is to strike out all after the first word, "That," in the amendment of the committee and insert:

The inhabitants of all that part of the area of the United States now constituting the Territory of Dakota, as at present described, may become the State of Dakota, as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. That all persons who shall have resided within the limits of said proposed State for sixty days, and are otherwise qualified by the laws of said Territory to vote for representatives to the Legislative Assembly thereof, are hereby authorized to vote for and choose delegates to form a convention in said Territory; and the qualifications for delegates to such conventions shall be such as by the laws of said Territory respectively persons are required to possess to be eligible to the Legislative Assembly thereof; and the aforesaid delegates to form said convention shall be apportioned among the several counties within the limits of the proposed State, in such districts as are hereinafter provided, in proportion to the population in each of said counties and districts, as near as may be, to be ascertained at the time of making said apportionment, by the persons hereinafter authorized to make the same, from the best information obtainable; that said apportionment shall be made by the governor, the secretary, and the United States attorney of said Territory; and the governor of said Territory shall, by proclamation, order an election of the delegates aforesaid to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in August, 1888, which proclamation shall be issued at least thirty days prior to the time of said election; and such election shall be conducted, the returns made, the result ascertained, and the certificates to persons elected to such convention issued in the same manner as is prescribed by the laws of the said Territory regulating elections therein for Delegate to Congress. The number of delegates to said convention shall be 150; and all persons resident in said proposed State who are qualified voters of said Territory, as herein provided, shall be entitled to vote upon the election of delegates, and upon the ratification or rejection of the constitution, under such rules and regulations as said convention may prescribe, not in conflict with this act.

SEC. 3. That the said State of Dakota shall have concurrent jurisdiction of the river Missouri and of every other river bordering on the said State of Dakota, so far as the said rivers shall form a common boundary to the said State and any other State or States or Territory or Territories now or hereafter to be formed, said rivers to be common to both; and that the said river Missouri shall be a common highway, and forever free as well to the inhabitants of said State as all other citizens of the United States, without any tax, duty, impost, or toll imposed by said State of Dakota therefor.

SEC. 4. That the persons hereinbefore authorized shall divide said proposed State into fifty election districts, in each of which districts three delegates to the said constitutional convention shall be elected.

SEC. 5. That the districts in which delegates to the constitutional convention are to be elected shall be formed of contiguous and compact territory, bounded by county lines, as far as possible, and contain as nearly as practicable an equal number of inhabitants, according to the census of 1885, or the latest enumeration of the inhabitants thereof; but no district shall contain less than four-fifths of the ratio required for three delegates. Counties containing not less than the ratio and three-fourths may be divided into separate districts, and into as many districts as the population may require.

SEC. 6. That the delegates to the convention thus elected shall meet at the seat of government of said Territory on the third Tuesday of September, 1888, and, after organization, shall declare, on behalf of the people of said proposed State, that they adopt the Constitution of the United States; whereupon the said convention shall be, and are hereby, authorized to form a constitution and State government for said proposed State: Provided, That the constitution shall be republican in form, and make no distinction in civil or political rights on account of race or color, except as to Indians not taxed, and not be repugnant to the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence: And provided further, That said convention shall provide, by ordinances irrevocable, first, that perfect toleration of religious sentiment shall be secured, and that no inhabitant of said State shall ever be molested in person or property on account of his or her mode of religious worship; secondly, that the people inhabiting said proposed State do agree and declare that they forever disclaim all right and title to the unappropriated public lands lying within the boundaries thereof, and to all lands lying within said limits owned or held by any Indian or Indian tribes; and that until the title thereto shall have been extinguished by the United States the same shall be and remain subject to the disposition of the United States, and said Indian lands shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of the Congress of the United States; that the lands belonging to the citizens of the United States residing without the said State shall never be taxed at a higher rate than the lands belonging to residents thereof; that no taxes shall be imposed by the State on lands or property therein belonging to or which may hereafter be purchased by the United States or reserved for its use: Provided, however, That nothing herein, or in the ordinances herein provided for, shall preclude the said State from taxing as other lands are taxed any lands owned or held by any Indian who has severed his tribal relations, and has obtained from the United States or from any person a title thereto by patent or other grant, save and except such lands as have been or may be granted to any Indian or Indians under any act of Congress containing a provision exempting the lands thus granted from taxation; but said ordinance shall provide that all such lands shall be exempt from taxation by said State so long and to such extent as such act of Congress may prescribe; thirdly that the bonded debt of said Territory incurred for the erection of the public buildings of the Territory shall be assumed and paid by said State.

SEC. 7. That in case a constitution and State government shall be formed in compliance with the provisions of this act, said convention forming the same shall provide by ordinance for submitting said constitution to the people of said proposed State for their ratification or rejection, at an election to be held in said Territory on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November, 1888, at which election the qualified voters of said proposed State shall vote directly for or against the proposed constitution and for or against any provisions separately submitted. The returns of said election shall be made to the secretary of said Territory, who, with the governor and chief-justice thereof, or any two of them, shall canvass the same; and if a majority of the legal votes cast shall be for the constitution, the governor shall certify the result to the President of the United States, together with a statement of the votes cast upon separate propositions, and a copy of said declaration, constitution, and ordinances.

SEC. 8. That until the next general census, or until otherwise provided by law, said proposed State shall be entitled to two Representatives in the House of Representatives of the United States, which Representatives, together with the governor and other officers provided for in said constitution, shall be elected on the same day of the election for the adoption of the constitution; and until said State officers are elected and qualified under the provisions of such constitution, and the State is admitted into the Union, the Territorial officers shall continue to discharge the duties of their respective offices in said Territory.

SEC. 9. That the counties of Grant, Roberts, Day, Brown, Walworth, Edmunds, Boreman, Hettinger, Bowman, and all that part of the proposed State of Dakota north thereof, shall constitute the First Congressional district, and that portion of the proposed State of Dakota lying south of said counties shall constitute the Second Congressional district of said State; and in each of said districts one Representative in Congress shall be elected until otherwise provided by law after the next decennial census of the United States, and at the time prescribed by general law for such elections in other States.

SEC. 10. That sections numbered 16 and 36 in every township of said proposed State of Dakota, and where such sections, or any subdivision thereof, have been sold or otherwise disposed of, by or under the authority of any act of Congress, other lands equivalent thereto, in legal subdivisions of not less than one quarter-section, and as contiguous as may be to the section in lieu of which the same is taken, are hereby granted to said proposed State for the support of common schools.

SEC. 11. That when the proposed State shall be admitted into the Union in accordance with the provisions of this act, two hundred and fifty entire sections of the unappropriated public lands within said State, to be selected and located by the direction of the Legislature thereof, and with the approval of the President, on or before the 1st day of January, 1890, shall be, and are hereby, granted, in legal subdivisions of not less than one quarter-section, to said State for the purpose of erecting public buildings at the capital of said State for legislative, executive, and judicial purposes, in such manner as the Legislature may prescribe.

SEC. 12. That so much of the lands belonging to the United States as has been acquired and set apart for the purpose mentioned in "An act appropriating money for the erection of a penitentiary in the Territory of Dakota," approved March 2, 1881, together with the buildings thereon, be, and the same is hereby, granted, together with any unexpended balances of the moneys appropriated therefor by said act, to said State for the purposes therein designated.

SEC. 13. That ninety sections of land, to be selected and located as provided in section 8 of this act, are hereby granted to said State for the use and support of an agricultural college in said State; and none of the lands granted by this act, or the proceeds thereof, shall be used for any other purpose than that for which the grant is specifically made whatever.

SEC. 14. That all salt springs within said State, not exceeding twelve in number, with six sections of land adjoining or as contiguous as may be to each, shall be granted to said State for its use, the said land to be selected by the governor of said State within two years after the admission of the State, and when so selected to be used and disposed of on such terms, conditions, and regulations as the Legislature shall direct; and the proceeds thereof shall be devoted exclusively to the support of the common schools of the said State: Provided, That no salt spring or lands the right whereof is now vested in any individual or individuals, or which hereafter shall be confirmed or adjudged to any individual or individuals, shall by this act be granted to said State.

SEC. 15. That 5 per cent. of the proceeds of the sales of public lands lying within said State which shall be sold by the United States subsequent to the admission of said State into the Union, after deducting all the expenses incident to the same, shall be paid to the said State, to be used as a permanent fund for the support of the common schools within said State.

SEC. 16. That all lands herein granted for educational purposes shall be disposed of only at public sale, and at a price not less than $10 per acre, the proceeds to constitute a permanent school-fund, the interest of which only is to be expended in the support of said schools. But said lands may, under such regulations as the Legislature shall prescribe, be leased for periods of not more than twenty-five years, in quantities not exceeding one section to any one person or company.

SEC. 17. That the lands granted to the Territory of Dakota by the act of February 18, 1881, entitled "An act to grant lands to Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming for university purposes," so far as the same have been selected and located in said Territory of Dakota, shall, under the provisions and limitations of said act, be vested in the proposed State of Dakota: Provided, That none of said lands shall be sold for less than $10 per acre. And such portions of said lands as have been selected and located within the bounds of the Territory of Dakota shall be vested in said State of Dakota, subject also to the limitations of said act of February 18, 1881. And there is hereby granted to said State of Dakota so much of the public lands in said State selected under said act of February 18, 1881, as will give the full amount of seventy-two entire sections, all of which shall be held and used in accordance with the provisions of the act aforesaid. The section of land granted by the act of June 16, 1880, to the Territory of Dakota, for an asylum for the insane, shall, upon the admission of said State of Dakota into the Union, become the property of said State.

SEC. 18. That all mineral lands shall be exempted from the operation and grants of this act: Provided, That if sections 16 and 36 or any subdivision thereof, in any township, shall be found to be mineral lands, or to have been reserved, sold, or otherwise disposed of by the United States, the Legislature of said State is hereby authorized and empowered to select, with the approval of the President, any other unappropriated lands in said State in lieu thereof, for the use and benefit of the common schools of said State.

SEC. 19. That all cases of appeal or writ of error heretofore prosecuted and now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States upon any record from the supreme court of the Territory of Dakota, or that hereafter may be lawfully prosecuted from said court, may be heard and determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; and the mandate of execution or of further proceedings shall be directed by the Supreme Court of the United States to the circuit or district courts of the district of Dakota, which may hereafter be established, or to the supreme courts of said State, as the nature of the case may require; and each of said last-mentioned courts shall, as the case may require, be treated as the successor of the supreme court of the Territory of Dakota, as to all such cases, with full power to proceed with the same and to award mesne or final process therein; and that from all judgments and decrees of the supreme court of the said Territory, prior to their admission as a State, the parties to such judgments shall have the same right to prosecute appeals and writs of error to the Supreme Court of the United States as they had by law prior to the admission of said State into the Union.

SEC. 20. That the convention herein provided for shall have the power to provide, by ordinance, for the transfer of actions, cases, proceedings, and matters pending in the supreme or district courts of the Territory of Dakota, at the time of the admission of the said State into the Union, arising within said Territory, to such courts as shall be established under the constitution to be thus formed; and no indictment, action, or proceeding shall abate by reason of any change in the courts, but shall be proceeded with in the State courts according to the laws thereof.

SEC. 21. That the sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to said Territory for defraying the expenses of the said convention, and for the payment of the members thereof, under the same rules and regulations, and at the same rates as are now provided by law for the payment of the Territorial Legislature: Provided, That any money hereby appropriated not necessary for such purpose shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States.

SEC. 22. That the State of Dakota shall constitute two judicial districts, which shall be called the northern and southern districts of Dakota, and the circuit courts therefor shall be held at the capital of said State for the time being. The judge of said district courts shall receive a yearly salary of $5,000, payable in four equal installments, on the first days of January, April, July, and October of each year. There shall be appointed clerks of said courts, who shall keep their offices at the places herein named where said courts are to be held. There shall be appointed for said districts one district judge, two United States attorneys, and two United States marshals. That the southern district shall consist of that part of the State of Dakota herein named as the Second Congressional district, and the district court shall be held in the city of Mitchell, Davidson County. The northern district shall consist of that part of the State of Dakota herein described as the First Congressional district, and the district court shall be held in the city of Fargo, Cass County. The regular terms of said courts shall be held at the places aforesaid for the southern district on the first Monday in April and December in each year, and for the northern district on the first Monday in May and October in each year. For judicial purposes the two districts of Dakota shall be attached to the eighth judicial circuit, and only one grand jury and one petit jury shall be summoned in both of said courts.

SEC. 23. That the circuit and district courts for the districts of Dakota, and the judge thereof, respectively, shall possess the same powers and jurisdiction and perform the same duties possessed and required to be performed by the other circuit and district courts and judges of the United States, and shall be governed by the same laws and regulations.

SEC. 24. That the marshal, district attorney, and clerks of the circuit and district courts of the said district of Dakota, and all other officers and other persons performing duty in the administration of justice therein, shall severally possess the powers and perform the duties lawfully possessed and required to be performed by similar officers in other districts of the United States, and shall for the services they may perform receive the fees and compensation allowed by law in the State of Nebraska to other similar officers and persons performing similar duties.

SEC. 25. That in respect to all cases, proceedings, and matters pending in the supreme or district court of the Territory of Dakota at the time of the admission of the said State into the Union whereof the circuit or district courts by this act established might have had jurisdiction under the laws of the United States had such courts existed at the time of the commencement of such cases the said circuit and district courts, respectively, shall be the successors of said supreme and district courts of said Territory: Provided, however, That in all civil actions, causes, and proceedings in which the United States is not a party such transfers shall not be made except upon the written request of one of the parties to such action or proceeding filed in the proper court.

SEC. 26. That the constitutional convention may, by ordinance, provide for the election of a full State Government, including members of the Legislatures and Representatives in Congress; but said State government shall remain in abeyance until the constitution framed by said convention shall have been approved by Congress. In case the constitution of said proposed State shall be ratified by the people, but not otherwise, the Legislature thereof may assemble, organize, and elect two Senators of the United States; and the governor and secretary of state of said proposed State shall certify the election to Congress; and when the constitution so framed is approved by Congress and such State admitted into the Union by special act of Congress therefor the Senators and Representatives shall be admitted to seats in Congress, and to all the rights and privileges of Senators and Representatives of other States in the Congress of the United States; and the State government formed in pursuance of said constitution, as provided by the constitutional convention, shall proceed to exercise all the functions of State officers; and all laws in force made by said Territories at the time of their admission into the Union shall be in force in said State.

SEC. 27. That all acts or parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act, whether passed by the Legislature of said Territory or by Congress, are hereby repealed.

Mr. PADDOCK. If the Senator will yield to me a moment, I desire to make a correction of a statement made by the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT] yesterday in his very able speech upon this bill in respect to the population of the State of Nebraska. He placed the population at 352,000, which was undoubtedly a clerical error in making up his statistics. The population of Nebraska, by the census of 1880, was 452,542. By the State census of 1885, a census taken under authority given by the act of Congress approved March 3, 1879, to provide for taking the tenth and subsequent censuses, the population was 740,645, and the best estimate of the population now is 1,100,000.

Mr. PLATT. I feel that I owe to the Senator from Nebraska, and through him to his State, an apology for the error into which I was inadvertently led by some statistics which were prepared for me. I had noticed it, and already corrected it in the permanent RECORD.

Mr. PADDOCK. I am very much obliged to the Senator.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, it seems to me that this discussion has narrowed itself down to one single point, and that is whether the present Territory of Dakota shall be divided and dismembered. If that should be decided in the negative, as I think it ought to be and trust it will be, the way to the speedy admission of that Territory as a State into the American Union is open. I do not differ with the honorable Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT] in much that he said yesterday in regard to that Territory. I do not take issue with him when he states that it has a population sufficient for statehood, that it has soil of sufficient productive capacity and resources to maintain a dense population. I do not take issue with him when he says that the condition of statehood is preferable to a Territorial condition. But, sir, when he goes a step further and claims, in effect at least, that the people of that Territory have an inherent right to be admitted into this Union as a a State because of this condition of things, I can not agree with him.

As I understand the rule on that subject, it is entirely and solely within the discretion of Congrass whether any Territorial community, any geographical area of this country, shall be admitted into the sisterhood of States. If any other doctrine should prevail I will ask the honorable Senator and those who agree with him why should not the Territory of Utah be admitted into this Union? Utah has a population sufficient; she has 200,000 population; they have a soil productive enough and resources sufficient to maintain a dense population; and if they present themselves in such form as not to be repugnant to the Constitution and laws of the United States, why should they not be entitled to admission, if the proposition of the Senator from Connecticut is the correct one?

If his proposition is correct, what would prevent two hundred thousand socialists, anarchists, nihilists, communists, taking refuge in some corner of Washington Territory, or of Arizona, or of Montana, and proceeding to form a constitution, marking out the lines of their proposed State, presenting themselves to Congress, and demanding the right to come into the Union, having conformed, upon the face of things at least, to all the requirements of the Constitution and laws of the United States? Why, sir, they would have just as much right, so far as right is concerned, to be admitted into the Union as the people of Dakota, or Washington, or Montana, or New Mexico.

I submit, Mr. President, that the Senator from Connecticut goes a step too far when he states that the people of Dakota Territory have a right to admission, and especially does he go too far when that right is asserted and a demand made, not by the people of the Territory or a majority of them, as I think I shall show before I have concluded, but the demand is made by a faction of politicians in that Territory who have contributed more than all else beside to prevent Dakota from being admitted into the Union.

I stated that to my mind there was but one single issue before the Senate, and that was whether the Territory of Dakota shall be divided and the south half admitted as a State. I assume that Congress will be governed, in a large measure at least, by the wishes of the people of that locality, although the Senator from Connecticut stated yesterday in his speech that so important and so urgent would he be for a division of the Territory, that in defiance and in despite of the wishes of a majority of its people he would advocate and urge and pass a bill dismembering and dividing it. I am not prepared to go to that extent. I repeat that I assume that the Senate will at least pay a respectful deference to the wishes of the people of that Territory.

And, Mr. President, what has been the last authoritative expression we have had on that subject, upon the subject of a division of the Territory? I suppose the Senator and those who agree with him will insist that the vote which was cast when the question of division was submitted in November last would be the last affirmative expression, but we have something later. On the 15th of December, 1887, a convention was held in the city of Aberdeen, in the Territory of Dakota, composed, as far as I have been able to learn, of leading citizens from all parts of that vast and immense domain. It was non-partisan in its constituency. It was called by fifteen thousand of the citizens of that Territory. The convention met in the city of Aberdeen on the 15th of December, 1887; and in order to put the Senate in possession of the history of that convention I will ask it to bear with me whilst I make copious extracts from a statement made by Mr. L. G. Johnson, of the southern part of the Territory of Dakota, who was a Union soldier, and I take it he will be allowed to speak for that element in Dakota. He is evidently a man of intelligence, I might say a man of ability, and he appears to be disinterested. He assured the committee that he was not an aspirant for any office, held no office, and expected none. This is his statement in regard to that convention at Aberdeen in December, 1887, which was made before the Committee on Territories:

With all the efforts which have been made to detract from the force of that convention, and notwithstanding that it has been charged that it was not a representative body, it was the outgrowth of this idea that enough foolishness had been indulged in by the warring factions of Dakota, and that it was time that a sensible course—a course that comported with the dignity of six hundred thousand people—should be adopted, and that those people, acting in their sovereign capacity, might, without the intervention of any representative element, petition as people, as inhabitants of a great Territory that was seeking to become a member of the Federal Union, to build a State; that as men they might ask in a decent and orderly manner the Congress of the United States to do something, recognizing the fact that never before in the history of Dakota Territory had a thing of that sort been done.

Then, in reply to a question by myself, when I asked him—

Has not a great deal of this confusion and foolishness (which I agree with you, entirely, has occurred) been the result of enmity—or I do not know that it rises to that—between northern and southern Dakota in regard to the location of the capital? Has not that been a very large element in these various propositions?

He said:

Mr. JOHNSON. It would take a book, Senator, to give all the facts and ideas presented, and the different notions, some sensible and some utterly foolish, that have emanated from different people in that Territory. This proposition is true; and, referring to the question of Senator PLATT, the chairman, when I stated that never before in the history of Dakota Territory had she come and asked for admission, I did not wish to be understood as saying that no portion or no faction had ever petitioned or that a few persons had not done so. There have been memorials passed by the Legislature for division, but never one for admission. A Legislature that was elected to make laws for the Territory with no idea, when elected, that the question of the division of the Territory or the admission of a portion of the Territory would come before that body for action, in the furtherance of some particular little scheme or some particular little movement of their own for the benefit of their locality or their places, have memorialized Congress for a division of the Territory.

Further on he says this in reply to a question from the Senator from Nevada:

Senator STEWART. I know it has not been asked to be done, but you said you had not had a chance to express yourselves. How does such a proposition as that strike you?

Mr. JOHNSON. It is true we never have. That would give us a show, but it would put off the time of admission for an indefinite period. And I want to say this further: that when this movement was agreed upon, a number of men from different parts of the Territory gathered together and thought, as the proper thing to do, that they would send out petitions into different parts of the Territory, into all parts of the Territory, so that if the people desired the admission of the Territory as a State they might meet and express that desire in a regularly delegated convention.

The meeting arranged, petitions were sent out, and over fifteen thousand signatures, from every county in Dakota Territory, were attached to this call—a call of the people for a delegate convention.

The call was then issued under the authority of the people, and in each county they were asked to send delegates to this convention, one delegate to each 500 inhabitants as ascertained by the last census.

The convention with an accredited delegation of nine hundred and some odd—968 accredited delegates, I think it was—met on the 15th of December last. Out of eighty-five organized counties seventy-six counties were represented. Of course I do not wish to be understood as saying that full delegations attended from each of those counties.

Then he states that of the—nine hundred and sixty-eight accredited delegates there were 368 delegates present, and we had in the convention 670 votes. There was only one vote taken, and that was upon the method in which delegates should be selected to present the memorial to Congress.

The convention was "non-partisan entirely." I will refer to that in a moment.

It was composed of 362 men from all parts of the Territory, who came at their own expense to ask this Congress to give us an enabling act, that we might form a State government and eventually take our place as one of the States.

He further states:

The convention at Aberdeen was largely Republican. A large majority of the convention were men who have always been Republicans. Some of the men who stand highest in the councils of the Republican party were in attendance as delegates to this convention, and I believe that it is justice to accord to those men an entire honesty of purpose. In fact I know, from a personal acquaintance with many of them, that their interest is in good government for Dakota and in statehood; and while, possibly, for political reasons they might prefer a division, for the material interests of Dakota and for the future interests of Dakota they prefer to bury those ideas or those desires, and ask at your hands the admission of Dakota as one State.

So much for the movements that led up to the convention at Aberdeen. Now, I propose to read, first, a letter addressed to myself from the temporary chairman of that convention, dated Mitchell, Dak., January 30, 1888. It is as follows:

MITCHELL, DAK., January 30, 1888.

MY DEAR SIR: I venture the liberty of addressing you upon the question of the admission of Dakota. Until within the past six months I have been in favor of the division of the Territory and immediate admission of the southern half; but upon mature reflection, taking into consideration the political aspect of Congress, I have come to the belief that the subject of division and admission is not of sufficient importance to quarrel over, and by so doing keep the people of Dakota from becoming a State indefinitely.

At the "One State" convention at Aberdeen, in December last, upon being called to preside as temporary chairman, I expressed my views, and I have seen no good reason to change them. In fact, I am more convinced, if possible, that the best interests of our people require that we should accept such consistent measures as Congress may see fit to extend us, if it will only secure speedy admission.

At the recent meeting held by the old "constitutional convention," held by the divisionists at Huron, it seems that about the only thing done was to resolve, "that we are in favor of staying out of the Union indefinitely, rather than accept admission as a whole." Permit me to say that this is the issue now that these divisionists are attempting to force upon the people. I believe the masses of our people are not in favor of any such thing. I am candid in the belief that if the people of Dakota, north and south, have an opportunity to express themselves by their votes, they would ratify no such proposition, accepting immediate statehood as one State in preference to remaining a Territory. Our business interests are seriously suffering.

I am as ardent a Republican as any one favoring division, but I can not see the necessity of this quarrel over mere boundary lines, and thus defeat our chances for speedy statehood.

The vote last fall, in reference to division and admission, means nothing. There was no real, live issue before our people; hence many gave it no attention whatever. Others voted as a mere expression of choice. But now to have these divisionists thrust at our people the statement that the vote so taken was the absolute will of the people, and thereby that our people have said that they prefer to remain out of the Union indefinitely than to accept a proposition of immediate statehood, as one State, is preposterous.

If the bill of Mr. SPRINGER, or a like one, or your proposed amendment to the Senate bill, shall pass Congress, so that our people can speedily vote upon the adoption of the one State constitution, it will carry by an overwhelming majority, and no such argument as staying out indefinitely will avail with the masses of our people.

I venture the opinion that the serious objection to division is not so much a sentiment of the "dear people" as it is of the politicians. If division can be reasonably assured, you will understand that there will be double the chances for office, while admission as a whole means to many that the old politicians, who came here with Federal commissions, have so thoroughly antagonized the people of Central and North Dakota that their political aspirations will forever be blasted.

Our people are suffering for admission, and although the rank divisionists have seen fit to say that it is preferable to remain a Territory than to accept one State, that this will not so far abuse your good judgment as to giving us an opportunity of settling that question by a vote of our people upon the ratification of a constitution preparatory to going into the Union as one State.

I give you my views candidly, as a young man who came to this Territory seven years ago to become one of her citizens, with no political ambition.

I am, very respectfully,

H. C. PRESTON.

Hon. M. C. BUTLER,
United States Senator, Washington, D. C.

I do not know the author of that letter, but he is evidently a man of intelligence. He is a Republican; he holds no office, and says he expects none. He states what I have no doubt every intelligent man in this country knows, that this division question is thrust upon the Senate, upon Congress, and upon the country by politicians who have either been elected to office under their so-called constitution or who expect to be.

What did that convention do? It met, as I have stated, on the 15th of December, 1887, and it met in pursuance of the call. I will read extracts from these proceedings at the risk of wearying the Senate, because I desire that the record shall be made up, and made up completely. This is the call:

To the voters of the Territory of Dakota:

Believing that the time has arrived when the claims of Dakota to statehood should be presented to Congress in a dignified, proper, and respectful manner, you are earnestly requested to assemble in county convention, at an early day, and select delegates to a convention of the people of Dakota, irrespective of political parties or affiliations, to be held in the city of Aberdeen, on the 15th day of December, 1887, at noon of that day.

All persons who favor the admission of Dakota as a whole, and without further unnecessary delay, are invited to take part in this convention. We believe that if Dakota's claims are fairly presented to the Congress of the United States about to assemble, that an enabling act will be passed, authorizing the holding of a constitutional convention for the whole Territory, and that as soon as the labors of that convention shall be ratified by the people of the Territory we will be admitted as a State.

As far as I can speak for those who agree with me, I undertake to say that the prediction expressed in that call will be verified if Congress is given an opportunity, and I will vote to-day for the admission of that Territory in accordance with the expressed wishes of a majority of her people, and permit her to take her position in the sisterhood of States of this Union. But, sir, I will never consent, and I will protest to the last against the insolent demands of a few self-seeking politicians who have brandished their insolence in the face of Congress and maligned and misrepresented every man in either House of Congress who has dared to take issue with them.

In pursuance of that call the convention met. It was called to order in the usual course of such proceedings, and Mr. Preston was chosen as temporary chairman. I ask leave to read freely from his address upon that occasion, because it throws a flood of light upon the condition of things in that Territory. He said:

I understand that we are here this day for no special purpose of personal aggrandizement. We come here as the representatives of 100,000 homes of this Territory, representing 600,000 people, to prepare a memorial to present, in proper and becoming manner, our wishes to the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled, with a view of taking our place in the grand sisterhood of States.

What we shall do here to-day I am sure will be looked upon with much interest, not only by our own people, but from the people of this great Northwest, by those who have control of our national affairs at Washington, and from our old friends and neighbors in the East, whom some time ago we bid good-bye to come here to build up for ourselves our homes and future prosperity in this Western land.

We want to say to Congress—not in a dictative manner, not in any manner of command—but we want to simply petition Congress and show them, by a truthful, candid, and convincing argument, that we have all the requisites for immediate statehood, and therefore feel the moral right to ask at its hands to consider our merits, that we may become one of the States of the Union.

We are not here, I am sure, with any vindictive feelings. I believe that this convention will be able to accomplish its purpose with a much better and more friendly and harmonious feeling if, by our acts to-day, we show to Congress a convention marked by merit and proper action; that the people of this convention are not vindictive and insulting, but that they are in earnest.

We want to say to Congress we have all the requisites for statehood; we can show to her our 4,000 miles of railroads traversing this vast domain from east to west and north to south; tell Congress that we have here 4,000 public schools, the best evidence of our prosperity and future greatness, employing over 5,000 school-teachers in the instruction of our children; tell Congress that we have by direct taxation alone invested $3,000,000 in permanent school property, that last year alone we raised $2,000,000 more to support these schools; tell Congress that from these prairies we have garnered over 60,000,000 bushels of wheat of the crop of 1887, sufficient to fill the granaries of the world with a quality superior to that raised by our fathers, that spread the fame of Genesee, and not even equalled by the Odessa of the Old World.

Tell them that Dakota has produced over twenty-five millions of dollars of gold, sufficient to embellish the commercial industries of the world, with its mineral resources as yet undeveloped.

Say to her that over 350 newspapers are daily and weekly representing our interests, speaking our sentiments, and defending our rights.

Go tell Congress that all this and much more we thrust into the urn of justice, and humbly ask that she shall consider our merits.

Gentlemen of the convention, I hope and trust that what is done here to-day may be done, as I have already stated, moderately and with wisdom such as will be characteristic of the importance of this occasion. We are not here in the interests of any party considerations, neither Democratic or Republican, but upon a broader plain; we come here as "Dakotians."

I come here as a representative from the south part of the Territory. I will state that heretofore I have been in favor of the division of this Territory, and, without raising any issue, because it is entirely out of place, I may say that I always have been, and now am, a Republican, and if I had it exclusively in my power, for political reasons, I should divide this Territory, and see that North and South Dakota were at once admitted into the Union. But Dakota's interests, which are already suffering, are of more significance by far than mere partisan consideration.

Further on he says:

So far as the recent vote upon the question of division is concerned, in my judgment it amounts to nothing. I tell my people that if North Dakota was in favor of division, and had so expressed herself by a majority of her people, then indeed this would be a strong argument for division; but I am at a loss to see how it can be truly said that because South Dakota, having as she has a large majority of the population of the Territory, can say by her vote alone that we have no use for your people of the North. We outvote you; hence we will dismember you, and we will become a State and leave you to remain a Territory without name or notice. This I can not believe to be right.

I want to say that I believe ten years, nay less, after Congress shall have admitted this Territory into the Union as one grand glorious State, that no one will raise any objections because we are too large.

I am credibly informed that in the early history of Minnesota it was the desire of many that it might be divided, or that its boundaries might be differently arranged. I am sure there is not a citizen of that grand State to-day that would ask to have one jot or tittle taken from its boundaries. I understand that this was equally true of the early history of Wisconsin.

Then a committee of credentials appears to have been appointed and in the afternoon session they reported, and from the list of names and of the counties it would appear to have been not only a very large convention, but one of eminent respectability and character and talent.

I wish to read an extract from a letter of Hon. Granville G. Bennett, who I am informed was once judge of the supreme court of that Territory. He is a Republican in politics, a man of the highest character, representing what is known as the Black Hills section in Lawrence County. This letter is dated "Deadwood, Dak., December 12, 1887," and is addressed to the president of the Statehood Convention, Aberdeen, Dak. He says:

As one of the delegates named, I deeply regret that I can not be present to participate in the important deliberations of that body, which I trust may be harmonious, and which must be far-reaching in their results for good. This being an inclement season of the year and the journey a long one and somewhat tedious, it may be that our county will not be represented, but we are reconciled to our personal disappointment by the feeling of assurance that the work of the convention will be wisely and well done without our presence. But we are not willing to be thought careless or indifferent as to this most important and opportune movement. The resolutions which I have the honor to herewith transmit express the feeling and sentiment of the people of this county and of the entire Black Hills; and whatever measures your convention may prudently devise and wisely inaugurate, looking to the passage by Congress of an enabling act for the whole Territory, preliminary to admissionin to the Union, will receive our cordial, active, and sincere support.

All efforts for admission heretofore made have originated in and included only a portion of the Territory, and have rested on the question of division, have been fruitful of discord and dissension, and ended in miserable disappointment and failure, until the people are satisfied that, through that gate, they can never enter statehood, and are now convinced that it is best they should not. Now, for the first time, Dakota, not divided, but united in all her grand proportions and grander possibilities, stands at the door and knocks, and not with insolent arrogance demanding, but with lofty and dignified patriotism, and strong in the consciousness of her right, asks that it open to her. She presents her population of 600,000, her broad acres of cultivated land, her mines of precious metals yielding annually $4,000,000, her commerce, her banks, her railroads, her cities and villages, her thousands of peaceful and happy homes, her common schools, her colleges and universities, her asylums and penal institutions, her churches, general intelligence, obedience to law, and unswerving loyalty to the flag and Constitution of our common country, in all of which she stands far in advance of any former candidate for the honors of statehood. And so standing, with all the elements of true greatness and permanent prosperity, will she be turned away? Most assuredly not. Then, forgetting the past, with all its local, sectional, and personal embitterments, let us stand shoulder to shoulder, suffering nothing to swerve us from the one absorbing object and purpose, until Dakota shall take her place in the sisterhood, the peerless Empire State of the Northwest.

So united and so laboring we shall very soon see the desired result accomplished.

Then follows the address of the permanent president, Mr. George Rice, of Moody County, which I will ask to have printed without wearying the Senate with reading it.

The address referred to is as follows:

ADDRESS.

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THIS CONVENTION: I thank you for the high honor you have conferred upon me in selecting me to act as your permanent chairman.

I regard this convention in many respects as the most important gathering that was ever held in the Territory of Dakota, it being the first time in the history of the Territory, now with something over 600,000 population, that the people have asked for self-government, when that question has been the most prominent of all other questions. Those who are in any way familiar with the history of the settlement of Dakota know that the first settlements were made in the extreme north and extreme south. Ten years ago the most sanguine of the friends of Dakota never expected to live to see this vast region of Central Dakota, almost the garden spot of the world, settled as it now is, with railroads running in every direction. This, gentlemen, is the reason of the movements towards the admission of Dakota. They, however, have always asked for division first.

Almost from the time that the Territory of Dakota first organized, political conventions, legislative assemblies, and memorials to Congress for the division of the Territory have been made. The first real effort, however, that was made to secure the division of the Territory was made in January, 1882. A mass convention was held at Sioux Falls, largely attended by representative men. A committee of over one hundred men was selected to go to Washington to aid the Delegate in Congress in securing the division of Dakota and the admission of the south half. At that time the politicians of the Territory of Dakota—the admission party of the Territory—were in harmony with the Administration and with both Houses of Congress. This committee went to Washington, and they labored with the Delegate all winter; they were the very friends of the Territory of Dakota. They were able to accomplish nothing, however. This was upon the very eve of the Presidential election. This fact alone is sufficient to convince my mind that if the division of Dakota could have been accomplished it would have been accomplished at that time. In 1883 some of the ablest men in the Territory, men for whom I have the most profound respect, both as for their ability as lawyers and for their patriotism, said the people of Dakota have the right to self-government; the people within themselves have the right to form a State. A convention was accordingly called. They met at Huron, and an organization was effected and an election was called to elect delegates to a constitutional convention to assemble at the city of Sioux Falls.

This convention assembled, framed a constitution, submitted it to a vote of the people, and it was adopted by the people. A committee proceeded to Washington, asked Congress to pass an act authorizing the people to adopt this constitution and make it the constitution of South Dakota; but nothing came of this. Afterwards the same men said the people had the right to form a State government because an act of the Legislature of the Territory calling a constitutional convention authorizing this to be held, it will be held under the authority of the law. Let us adopt a constitution, elect members of Congress and State officers; in fact, let us form a State, leave nothing to be done but for the Congress of the United States to touch the spring and set the machinery of state in motion. When this is done Congress can not deny us admission. Accordingly an act of the Legislature was passed, an election was held, and a member of the constitutional convention elected to this convention assembled. They framed an entire constitution, and it was submitted and adopted by the people. Two members of the United States Senate and one member of the House of Representatives were elected. A governor and a State Legislature was elected, State judges and other judges were elected; in fact, everything done but for Congress to breathe into this move the breath of life.

But, gentlemen, what has become of the assertions of those gentlemen, the statesmen who say that Congress must act, and who maintained that we have a right to form a State? We have members of Congress, but they have no vote; we have a governor and a Legislature, and have had a Legislature assembled and a message, but, gentlemen, we have no laws and no vetoes; we have judges, but we have no courts. In spite of the assertions of these gentlemen, I say that Dakota is not a State, and yet the Government at Washington still lives. Gentlemen, it will not be denied that the American people have the right of self-government, but it is a right which they have no power to enforce. But, gentlemen, they have no right to fix the boundaries of our State. The people of other States have an equal right with the people of Dakota to say what the boundaries of Dakota shall be. If Dakota has the right by herself to divide and make two States—and two States are better than one—then Dakota has the right within and of herself to divide and form four States, and four States are better than two.

Gentlemen, allow me one word in regard to the election that has just been held. The friends of division claim that this question of division has been forever settled by a vote that has just been taken, and I might say that the friends of admission as one State believe the question has been settled also. Was this vote taken? Was it submitted to the friends of admission as one State? Was this election held to convince the people of Dakota that two States would be better than one? Not by any means. The vote purported, and the intention of the vote was, to show to Congress of the United States that all the people of Dakota wanted division. No campaign was made; no speeches made against division. The vote shows that out of eighty-six organized counties in Dakota, fifty gave a majority against division. If you take the vote by voting precincts you will find still a greater proportion against division.

The fact is, gentlemen, the majority for division came almost entirely from the counties which have been receiving the greatest benefit from the taxes paid into the Territorial treasury, from the counties that have been receiving $100 for every dollar of revenue they have paid, while all that region of Central Dakota that pays one-third of the taxes of the Territory and has never received one dollar back, gave a most unanimous vote against the proposition to divide Dakota. Taking the vote outside of the towns, taking the vote of the farmers, the men who are the real wealth producers and real tax-payers, the men who have made and who will make Dakota whatever she is, the men who have in all times and in all countries been the conservative and safe element of our Government, gave, in the last election, a large majority against division. I tell you, gentlemen, the men who had no selfish motives other than that of good government and low taxation gave their votes against division of Dakota.

Gentlemen, what is your further pleasure?

Mr. BUTLER. A committee was appointed to present a memorial to Congress, and the memorial is in these words:

To the Congress of the United States:

The people of Dakota Territory, assembled in a delegate convention, respectfully represent that they are desirous of the admission of the Territory of Dakota as a State into the Federal Union. We are possessed of the requisite population to entitle Dakota to representation in the House of Representatives in case of admission. We therefore earnestly petition for the passage by Congress of an enabling act authorizing the election of delegates to a convention for the purpose of preparing a constitution, republican in form, to the end that the constitution so framed may be submitted to a vote of the people of said Territory at the next general election for ratification, and, if ratified, that Dakota Territory be admitted into the Union as the "State of Dakota."

Submitted herewith is the proceedings of the convention of the people of Dakota, held at the city of Aberdeen, Dak., December 15, 1887; to all of which we earnestly invite your attention and pray for a favorable consideration.

The amendment which I had read this morning and took the liberty of amending is the bill prayed for in the memorial of that convention. It proposes to authorize the people of the entire Territory of Dakota to meet in convention and prepare a constitution and organize a State government, submit it to Congress, and upon its approval by Congress to be admitted as one of the States in the Union.

What is the proposition on the other side? It is expressed in the bill to which the Senator from Connecticut addressed himself yesterday, and can be judged of by the first section:

That the State of South Dakota is hereby declared to be a State of the United States of America, and is hereby admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever; and that the constitution which the people of South Dakota have formed for themselves be, and the same is hereby, accepted, ratified, and confirmed, subject, however, to the provisos hereinafter contained.

In other words, the bill of the majority of the Committee on Territories proposes to ratify and confirm a so-called constitution adopted in South Dakota two years and a half ago. What would be the effect of that? The immediate effect, so far as the Senate is concerned, would be to seat upon this floor two gentlemen who claim to have been elected to the United States Senate under that so-called State organization.

Suppose we examine a little that so-called constitution. I will read again from the statement made by Mr. Johnson, in order to put the Senate in possession of the facts, so that the Senate and country may understand upon what ground this division and this admission of the south half of Dakota is asked of Congress:

At the election which elected delegates to this constitutional convention that framed this constitution under the Manderson bill, less than 12,000 votes were cast out of a voting population of 77,000 at that time in Southern Dakota, in that portion of the Territory south of the forty-sixth parallel of latitude. Twelve thousand votes were cast at the election that elected the delegates to this constitutional convention. It was regarded at that time, gentlemen, as a farcical proceeding by the business interests of the Territory, and from that time down to this, gentlemen, I state but the truth when I tell you that it has been growing less in the respect and confidence of the people.

Now, at that election, when they succeeded in getting 12,000 votes cast for members to this constitutional convention, in some of the most populous counties in South Dakota elections were not held for representatives in that convention.

Then he goes on to say:

But I take issue and I do find fault with the idea under which that organization was started and brought into existence as it was. And that was this proposition: They assumed that we, the people of South Dakota, were a State; that we had the absolute right to form a State constitution, to form a State government, to set that State government in motion, and demand of the Congress of the United States the admission of our Senators, the admission of our Representatives, and the recognition of that State government.

I say that was the cardinal idea upon which this scheme for the State of South Dakota was started and founded. And I say, in justice to the people who did not take part in it, that they did not take any stock in that sort of a proposition. In a great many of the counties they did not hold elections. The people did not recognize that sort of an idea.

Time went on. They held their constitutional convention; the interest in it throughout South Dakota had become less and less every day and was growing less. When they submitted that constitution to the vote of the people for ratification, it was stated in their debates, it was stated in open convention, that unless something was done to attract the attention of the people and get up an interest among the people in that convention and the election, that it would practically go by default.

What was the result of the vote upon that constitution? Says Mr. Johnson:

They submitted also the proposition of prohibition, and a minority representation, in hopes of catching the Democrats. With all the clap-trap that they resorted to (and I am stating the sound facts of history), and taking into consideration also the fact that they had a full set of State officers, from governor down to the least member of their State government and their Legislature, and that they expected to elect two United States Senators and two Congressmen, yet there were but 31,000 votes cast at that election out of a voting population of over 77,000.

That was two and a half years ago, and with all the sounding of gongs, as Mr. Johnson says, with all the clap-trap about prohibition and local option, and minority representation, they got but 31,000 votes for that so-called constitution out of 77,000 voters in South Dakota.

So much for that vote in South Dakota. That vote was cast south of the forty-sixth parallel of latitude. The population of the south half of Dakota at that time was 263,000, of North Dakota about 150,000, making in all about 400,000 in the whole Territory.

The Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] asks me if the 150,000 were heard from at all. I tell him no, not in that vote. North Dakota did not vote upon that proposition, but since the adoption of that constitution the population of South Dakota has increased to 400,000, or thereabouts, making about 150,000 people who have had no voice whatever in its adoption or rejection, and at least 50,000 of the population have been added to North Dakota who have had no voice whatever either in the constitution or the question of division.

Yet it is solemnly proposed by the majority of the Committee on Territories of this body that with that state of facts the Senate is to vote for a bill ratifying and confirming a constitution adopted in that form, the delegates to the convention which framed it receiving but 12,000 out of 77,000 votes, and the vote by which it is claimed that it was adopted being but 31,000 out of 77,000, with an addition since of at least 30,000 or 40,000 voters to the south half of Dakota.

If that is a reasonable respect, to say nothing of an entire respect, if it is a decent respect for the wishes of the people of that Territory, if it is a partial recognition of the doctrine of popular sovereignty, I say, Mr. President, we ought to ask Congress to spare any future Territory from the exercise of that discretion.

The majority of the committee have proposed, as I stated, that the Senate shall adopt the bill presented by them, the effect of which, in the language of Mr. Johnson, would be to put in motion, to breathe life into this thing called a State government in South Dakota organized as it has been, and to seat upon this floor two United States Senators.

I wish to acquit the honorable Senator from Connecticut and his political friends on that committee of any disposition to be governed in this matter by purely partisan principles and considerations, and it gives me pleasure to do so, because the conduct of the discussion of the question has been in such striking contrast with a similar discussion which took place in that committee in the last Congress. But, sir, the effect of it will be, in the face of the facts I have just stated, to seat upon this floor two Republican Senators, and settle, perhaps, for some time to come, the question of political supremacy in this body.

Can the Senate give its consent upon the state of facts I have presented, in the face of the overwhelming sentiment of that Territory against it, to seat upon this floor as full-fledged Senators, the equals of those of us who claim to represent sovereign States, two men who simply represent 12,000 votes out of 105,000 at the last vote of that Territory in its election of delegates to the lower house? That is the proposition, sir.

But the Senator from Connecticut is not himself satisfied that this division question, as it is called, meets the approbation of a majority of the people of that Territory, even of the south half of it, because he argues—he does not state facts, but he argues—in the majority report, page 4, as follows:

> If the result of the vote in the whole Territory seems to indicate a less unanimous sentiment in favor of division than has been supposed to exist, the reasons for it are quite obvious.

And then he proceeds to give them. Among them is that—

> The name Dakota is as dear to the people of North as of South Dakota. The residents of the northern section justly claim to have given that name to one of the principal productions of the Territory, and to have made "Dakota wheat" famous throughout the world. There is merit in the claim that they are as much entitled to the name "Dakota" as the residents in the southern half of the Territory.

Then the report goes on to say:

> The bill passed by the Senate at its last session gave the name Dakota to that portion of the Territory proposed to be admitted as a State, and organized the remainder of the Territory under the name of Lincoln. Division, therefore, seemed to North Dakota to imply the loss of the cherished name, and on this account many were induced to vote against division.

Has it come to this, in a Territory claimed to be filled by loyal citizens, Union soldiers, that the name of Lincoln is distasteful to them? I must think that that was, I will not say a pretext, but a notion, adopted by the Senator from Connecticut, who framed this report, to bolster up a bad cause, in saying that the name of Lincoln would be distasteful to these 200,000 American citizens, Union soldiers, and that that was one of the reasons why they voted against division. That name ought not to have and I believe it would not have that effect in any section of this great country. If I thought so, I should blush for shame. If I believed that it was an argument or a reason for voting against division, that it was to be named Lincoln and Dakota was dearer, I should feel ashamed of American citizenship.

Mr. SPOONER. Will the Senator allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. BUTLER. Certainly.

Mr. SPOONER. If the proposition were made to change the name of South Carolina to the State of Calhoun, and the people of that State should object to it, would the Senator say that that would afford evidence of want of reverence for the name of Calhoun?

Mr. BUTLER. In the first place, I believe if that proposition should be seriously made, it would not be objected to by the people of that State. I answer the Senator in that way; but the question has no pertinence whatever to what I was saying. South Carolina is a State in the Union, and North Dakota, in the language of the Senator from Connecticut, is in a state of vassalage; it is under the pupilage of the Government of the United States; it has no sovereign power. Therefore the question of the Senator from Wisconsin has no application whatever. But if——

Mr. SPOONER. I understand——

Mr. BUTLER. I will answer the Senator a little further. But if that proposition should be seriously made, and any good reason should be assigned for it, I should feel very sorry indeed, and I should blush for my own State, if I believed any reasonable number of people in that State should object to it, because the name of Calhoun is cherished and loved and honored by the people of that State as I supposed the name of Lincoln was by the people of Dakota.

The Senator from Connecticut and the majority of the committee admit that the sentiment for division is not unanimous, but he admits that it is very strong against it in both South and North Dakota by the very fact that he states.

Then the report makes another remarkable statement. Says the report, on page 3:

> To admit North Dakota and South Dakota as States would not add to their distinctive character. To admit them as one State would be an attempt to unite two peoples, heterogenous in interests, in associations, in characteristics, and in aspirations. If the welfare, the harmony, and the good of the people of the Territory are to be consulted, the argument in favor of two States instead of a single State seems overwhelming and conclusive. And they are to be consulted, unless interests of national concern require that they be treated as of secondary importance.

Then the Senator says, on page 4 of the report:

> It seems safe to assert that in no State or Territory can there be found so large a proportion of the people who fought the battles of the Union. Intelligent, enterprising, patriotic, why should 400,000 people be denied statehood under such circumstances?

Is there any good reason why the Union soldiers who fought the battles of the Union should be heterogeneous, should have conflicting aspirations and ambitions? There seems to be a contradiction in the terms. It is said that the Territory is largely settled up by ex-Union soldiers and yet they are heterogeneous. We had supposed that the population of that magnificent domain was homogeneous in character.

Something was said in a former debate in regard to the direction of the railroads of that Territory, that they ran east and west; that there was no communication north and south, and that therefore the Territory ought to be divided on the forty-sixth parallel of latitude. Mr. Johnson in this statement proves conclusively that since that time the railroads now permeate all sections of the Teritory, north and south and east and west, and that communication is as easy from the north to the south of the Territory as it was from the east to the west; so that that difficulty is obviated.

Another argument used against the admission of the whole Territory is that it is abnormally large. The Senator from Connecticut stated in his remarks yesterday, as he has done in his report, that the practice of admitting large States was a menace to the peace of the Republic and to the perpetuity of constitutional government; that he wanted no "imperial States;" that the delegations in the lower House of Congress being abnormally large threatened the smaller States, and, as he said, menaced the peace of the Republic. By way of illustrating his view upon that subject he said:

> The Territory of Dakota is larger in extent than the States of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, and Virginia together. It is 430 miles from its northern to its southern boundary, and 400 miles from its eastern to its western boundary. Its area, as given by the Tenth Census, is 149,100 square miles.

That may be true, Mr. President. So Florida, with its 59,000 square miles, is as large as Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Maine, and Delaware—six States; is larger than Maryland, Delaware, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Vermont—eight States. California is larger than New York, Pennsylvania, Georgia, and South Carolina; as large as Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, and Maryland. Kansas and Minnesota are as large as Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Vermont, and Connecticut; and Colorado is as large as all of New England and New York. Dakota, the Senator says, is as large in extent as New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, and Virginia. What would have been thought of that as an argument against the admission of California or of Minnesota or of Kansas or of Florida or of Colorado? What would have been thought of the proposition that the admissions of those States with large geographical areas menaced the peace and quiet and order of this country? Why, Mr. President, does the delegation in the lower House of Congress of the great State of New York imperil any interests of this country? Does the large delegation from the great State so well represented by my honorable friend before me [Mr. CULLOM] menace any interests in this country—the State of Illinois? Does the large delegation of that aggressive, progressive, intelligent, pushing population of Ohio threaten any interests in this country? Does the delegation from the Empire State of the Southwest, represented by my friend on my left [Mr. COKE], menace or imperil or threaten any interests of this great country? Why, sir, the little State of Connecticut, so ably represented by my friend [Mr. PLATT], the chairman of the Committee on Territories, nestles under one corner, in absolute security, of that great Empire State of New York, overshadowing her in resources and territory and population as a great peak of Mount Mitchell in Western North Carolina overshadows the foot-hills at the base of it; and yet in the arrangement and architecture of the universe the foot-hills are as secure as the loftiest pyramid that overshadows them; and Connecticut is as safe and Rhode Island is as safe in the great structure of the American Union as the strongest and most powerful State. When we enter this door, Mr. President, the Senator from Connecticut and his colleague are the equals and peers not only in intellect and ability but in power in this Government of the Senators from the great State of New York or Illinois or Ohio or Texas; and it is that feature in the structure of the American Union, of the fabric of Government, which is the very security of its perpetuity.

If I were called upon to express an opinion as to the effect of those abnormally large delegations in the lower House of Congress, I would say that they are preferable to smaller delegations, for party interests and party considerations in those respective States preserve the equilibrium in which is to be found the safety of the Republic. Then, sir, the State of New Jersey, glorious in her development, her wealth, her intelligence, lies alongside of the great State of Pennsylvania with absolute safety and impunity. Then the little State of Rhode Island, which has been termed the gem of New England, scarcely a handful of earth in comparison with her powerful neighbors, has not been swallowed up by the great States within reach of her. And so, Mr. President, it will be, I submit, in the case of this great "imperial State" of Dakota, when it shall become one, and the term "imperial State" has no terrors for me. Build your States, build their foundations deep and strong and powerful—imperial, if you please, in domain and wealth and influence—and the national structure will rest securely upon them as foundations.

There is but one form of imperialism in this country, and that is the imperialism of the sovereign people, moving forward in the fulfillment of a great destiny, in the enforcement of liberty regulated by law, and in the preservation of constitutional government and republican institutions, and to that imperialism I bow my obedience. Disjointed imperialism, if I may use the expression, of the States never imperiled the liberties of any people. It is the imperialism of a concentrated, consolidated national power, if it should ever come—and God forbid—which will threaten and destroy the liberties of this people. I say in advance for the people of this imperial domain of Dakota, when she does come into the Union, it will be with but one thought and one aspiration and one purpose, and that will be to maintain the dignity and the honor and the character of this great Government.

So, sir, I do not take much stock—if I may be pardoned the expression—in the apprehensions expressed by my honorable friend from Connecticut, when he says that it is against public policy to admit large States. I would say it would be against public policy to multiply States and multiply the representation in this body, to destroy its conservative characteristics; but it is too late for that argument. It has never obtained in the past, and it can never prevail in the future. Such a thing as the physical equality of the States, as suggested by the Senator from Connecticut, is absolutely out of the question. But behind and beyond and above all that, I believe enough in the doctrine of popular sovereignty, of squatter sovereignty, if you please, to carry out the behests and the wishes and the interests of the majority of the people of every section of this country applying for admission into the Union, and I believe that the best interest of this Territory is to be subserved and that the majority of her people so desire, and I can not get the approbation of my judgment to support the bill of the majority of the committee.

And now, sir, with a view of exemplifying somewhat the pith of this so-called South Dakota State movement, let me read brief extracts from a memorial signed by the so-called South Dakota statehood movement, by G. C. Moody, one of the Senators-elect, S. M. Booth, J. H. More, S. G. Updyke, George R. Laybourn, the memorial committee, John Cain, secretary constitutional convention, and A. J. Edgerton, president constitutional convention. We find behind this South Dakota movement wherever it appears the names of the two Senators-elect who are knocking for admission into this Chamber. What do they say?

Mr. PLATT. The Senator will permit me. I did not understand what he was proposing to read from.

Mr. BUTLER. A memorial sent to Congress by the constitutional convention people.

Mr. PLATT. At the last session?

Mr. BUTLER. November, 1887. In that they use this language:

> Without intending the shadow of disrespect, with the utmost loyalty, but with the manliness of a people seeking to become wholly free and no longer semi-vassals, we do declare that not during this generation of men and women will Dakota accept boundaries and area so distasteful as are involved in the admission of all of Dakota Territory as one State.

Not during this generation of men and women will we consent; if the remainder of the people of the country, speaking through their accredited representatives, say otherwise in Congress, we will not consent to submit to the consensus of public opinion, but we will defy you and keep up that state of vassalage and oppression which the Senator from Connecticut gave such a harrowing account of yesterday! That is the attitude of these gentlemen seeking admission into the Union, under the absolute control of Congress subject to its discretion, and yet brandishing in the face of Congress a threat!

But, sir, it is of a piece with the entire history of this movement, as was so well said by Mr. Preston, and Governor Pennington, and Mr. Johnson, and that array of disinterested and distinguished citizens of that Territory, to come forward and flaunt their defiance in the face of Congress and say "unless you come to our terms as to boundaries we will keep this Territory in that state which the Senator from Connecticut says is not fit for freemen to live under." Well, sir, that may be potential in some quarters, but it is not with me, and I do not believe it will be with the American people.

But I ask now whose will shall prevail in this controversy; the will of the few who expect to get offices by keeping up this agitation, or the will of the American people?

Now, sir, one word further on a subject that I intended to touch upon whilst I was dwelling upon it, but it escaped me, in regard to the alleged preponderance of opinion in favor of division. I have before me the very able report of the committee in another branch of Congress upon this question of division or not of the Territory, and I will read from it:

> In November, 1887, there was submitted to the people of the Territory, in pursuance of an act of the Legislature approved March, 1887, the question of division of the Territory. In that election there were cast upon the proposition of division 37,784 votes for division and 32,913 votes against division, making a majority in the whole Territory of 4,781 in favor of division. The official returns of that election by counties, as furnished by the governor of the Territory, are as follows:

Counties.	Whole number of votes cast—
	Upon question of division.	For division.	Against division.
Aurora	.....	727	199
Barnes	1,238	274	944
Beadle	2,399	2,334	65
Benson	149	56	93
Billings	40	9	31
Bon Homme	1,219	856	363
Bottineau	304	129	175
Brookings	1,520	918	602
Brown	2,902	456	2,446
Brulé	999	722	277
Buffalo	95	69	26
Burleigh	64	42	22
Butte	97	37	60
Campbell	.....	57	152
Cass	3,954	1,327	2,627
Cavalier	642	29	613
Charles Mix	706	665	41
Clark	779	643	136
Clay	818	409	409
Coddington	1,342	977	361
Custer	389	158	231
Davison	1,192	1,013	179
Day	1,007	467	542
Deuel	622	269	353
Dickey	959	79	880
Douglas	755	645	110
Eddy	285	67	218
Edmunds	763	133	630
Emmons	257	7	250
Fall River	250	191	59
Faulk	968	836	74
Foster	252	99	153
Grand Forks	2,528	1,587	941
Grant	1,048	539	510
Griggs	553	100	453
Hamlin	505	228	277
Hand	1,069	809	260
Hanson	.....	504	205
Hughes	685	668	17
Hutchinson	785	703	82
Hyde	455	423	32
Jerauld	542	453	89
Kidder	326	63	263
Kingsbury	1,120	826	147
Lake	1,023	614	409
La Moure	514	155	359
Lawrence	1,695	1,054	641
Lincoln	1,181	689	491
Logan	43	4	39
Marshall	704	144	560
McCook	916	669	247
McHenry	95	45	50
McIntosh	.....	5	213
McLean	222	93	120
McPherson	130	15	115
Mercer	.....	12	56
Miner	840	640	180
Minnehaha	2,905	1,926	979
Moody	723	336	387
Morton	382	78	304
Nelson	.....	330	361
Oliver	42	6	36
Pembina	1,689	437	1,252
Pennington	846	373	473
Potter	.....	391	143
Ramsey	777	562	215
Ransom	839	282	553
Richland	1,782	96	1,686
Roberts	232	69	163
Rolette	122	40	82
Sanborn	856	744	95
Sargent	835	72	763
Spink	1,883	1,307	576
Stark	301	74	227
Steele	335	123	212
Stutsman	1,161	384	777
Sully	426	370	56
Towner	120	39	81
Traill	1,542	437	1,105
Turner	1,148	989	159
Union	877	587	290
Walsh	2,339	786	1,553
Walworth*	.....	.....	.....
Ward	532	365	167
Wells	119	43	76
Yankton	863	795	67
Total	67,618	37,784	32,913

*No election held.

There was submitted to the people at the same time a proposition in reference to local option, which was intended to have the effect of bringing out a large vote. But, notwithstanding the advocates of division of Dakota have asserted that there was great unanimity in Dakota in favor of division, it appears that only 37,784 voters in the whole Territory appeared at the polls in November last to record themselves in favor of that proposition.

There were undoubtedly more voters in the Territory in November, 1887, than there were in November, 1886, at the time of the election of a Delegate to Congress. At the election of 1886 on the choice of a Delegate there was an aggregate of 104,811 votes polled in the whole Territory. If we deduct from the whole number of votes in the Territory at that time the number voting for division in 1887 we find that 67,027 voters were either opposed to division or were indifferent as to the result—so indifferent as not to turn out and vote on the proposition. This would indicate that nearly 30,000 majority of the voters of Dakota were either opposed to division of the Territory or were indifferent upon this subject. If we are therefore to be guided in our course by the wishes of the people of that Territory, as expressed in the popular election in 1887 upon that question, we have a right to assume that a large majority of the people of that Territory do not desire division.

* * * * * * *

By an examination of the table herewith submitted of the vote cast at the election of 1877 upon the question of division, it will be seen that the counties to compose the proposed State of South Dakota cast a majority of 15,259 votes for division, while the counties to compose the proposed Territory of North Dakota cast a majority of 10,388 against division. In North Dakota every county, with two exceptions, gave a majority against division. Of the 83 counties in the Territory only 37 gave majorities in favor of division, and 46 counties gave majorities against division.

Now one other fact from this report bearing on the apprehensions which the Senator from Connecticut seems to have in regard to the abnormally large area of the Territory:

Another reason for opposing a division of Dakota, as provided in the pending bill, is found in the fact that there are in that Territory at this time nine Indian reservations, the jurisdiction over which is reserved to the United States, and excluded from the Territory and from the proposed State so long as the Indian titles exist. The State can not tax the lands in these reservations, or derive any advantages from them. These reservations comprise over 26,847,105 acres, or 41,984 square miles.

Mr. PLATT. Will the Senator permit me to interrupt him there to say that at this session the Senate has passed a bill diminishing one of those reservations, and giving to the public domain in South Dakota an area twice as large as the State of Massachusetts, if I am not mistaken.

Mr. BUTLER. That of course will be deducted from this statement, but I do not understand that that bill has become a law.

Mr. PLATT. It is in the hands of a conference committee, and will become a law very soon.

Mr. BUTLER. Let me finish this statement, and then I shall be glad to receive any correction.

The Great Sioux reservation itself contains over 21,000,000 acres of land. Nearly all of this reservation and several entire small reservations are comprised within the limits of South Dakota. At least 37,000 square miles of South Dakota are covered by Indian reservations. If you deduct this area from the 77,000 square miles comprised within South Dakota, it will leave an area upon which the government of South Dakota will operate of only 40,000 square miles.

I have a map here which shows that almost the entire vote cast for division was in one corner of South Dakota, south of the forty-sixth parallel of latiiude, but two counties north of that parallel voting for it.

Mr. PLATT. If the Senator is now through with his statement as to those two reservations——

Mr. BUTLER. Yes, sir.

Mr. PLATT. I think I do not say anything that I ought not to say when I mention that a bill will soon have passed Congress opening to settlement 11,000,000 acres of land. And it is not too much to suppose that in a year or two years from this time that land will have been taken up by actual settlers, thus increasing very largely the population in Southern Dakota.

Mr. BUTLER. Of course, when that happens the statement of the Senator will have some force; but I am now dealing with facts as they exist to-day, and I think they will not be denied, because they are taken from the record.

Mr. President, when this bill was under discussion in the Forty-ninth Congress it became my duty to address the Senate at some length upon it. At that time the Senate, by courtesy, permitted two gentlemen who were claiming seats to the privileges of the floor of the Senate. In referring to them, I used this language:

It has been my good fortune to serve on this floor with one of the gentlemen [Mr. Edgerton] now applying for a seat in this Chamber as a Senator from the so-called State of Dakota, and it gives me pleasure to bear willing testimony in this public manner to his high character. In his present attitude I regret I can not extend to him the assistance of my vote, as there is no man outside of my party friends I would more cordially welcome into this high forum. The other gentleman I do not know personally, but have been pleased to hear from his friends high encomiums upon his character.

By way of return for that act of courtesy on my part I beg to read an extract from a speech of Mr. Edgerton, delivered in November or December last at a convention in the city of Huron, Dak. After proceeding and making a rather complimentary reference to myself he said:

The speaker then went on to show that the Northwest, including Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Dakota, were settled by men who had imbibed the notions of New England and New York, while the States of Mississippi, Arkansas, and Texas were peopled by men from South Carolina and Georgia, and represented different ideas of government, the one class believing in small farms and local government, the other in baronial estates and imperial governments.

The speaker then charged that this Texas idea was sought to be forced upon an unwilling people.

The typical Texan was a man armed with two revolvers and a bowie-knife, and the typical Dakotian was a descendant of Uncle Sam, armed with a spelling-book and a Bible.

Then he went on to say:

Such men have learned nothing and forgotten nothing, and seem to adhere to the notion that no free State should be admitted except with a slave State to preserve the just equilibrium between right and wrong.

* * * * * * *

I am constrained reluctantly to believe that in a great degree our friends in Congress, and those who are mustered out are the friends of those who mustered out from this side, and the enemies of division and admission are those or the friends of those who were paroled at Appomattox. And it may be a reflection worthy of attention whether the same spirit which actuated them in 1861 does not control their votes in Congress in many matters, and whether their motives and many of their acts are not as treasonable now as then, only characterized by less courage.

That is the language of a man to whom I extended the courtesy of expressing a kindly feeling when he was attempting to get a seat upon this floor. He is entitled to all the credit and to all the honor and to all the éclat and prestige which that character of language gives to him; but I may be permitted to say that if I had to select either as companion or citizen of a great country the stalking bandit or the reckless highwayman with the pistol and the bowie-knife in his hand, or the sneaking hypocrite and snarling pharisee who fires from the rear and takes cover under the shadow of his own meanness and malignity, I would select the former. He at least runs the hazard of an outraged, violated law, which he openly defies, whilst the other administers the poison of his venom and takes refuge behind his Bible and spelling-book, prostituting these two sacred instruments of peace and good-will and truth and intelligence as instruments for the gratification of disappointment and spleen.

If his spelling-book and his Bible inculcate such doctrines as these, such malignity, such unfairness, such injustice, such falsehood, may a merciful God spare us their further distribution and use anywhere in this country. Better have them made a bonfire of than to have them teach such language as that which I have just read, especially after the courtesy and kindness that had been shown to the author of that language. And I want to say now and repeat, that any intimation or suggestion that I am opposed in the remotest degree to the people of Dakota, to their admission into this Union as a State, is untrue, is unfounded, and can not be justified by any record that I have made upon that subject.

I repeat again and again, as I did upon a former occasion, that when she comes, after a fair expression of her progressive, enlightened people, knocking at the door in the form that I believe to be constitutional and regular, not only will I not oppose her, but I will exert my feeble efforts to see that she consummates her highest ambition in that respect and may be ranked among the States of the Union. And I want to say further that that having been accomplished, if her people deliberately, regularly, fairly, honestly present themselves for division into two States, whether as Lincoln and South Dakota, or as North and South Dakota, if I should occupy a seat upon this floor they shall have my cordial assistance and support to effect that division. But as long as I believe sincerely and honestly that the promoters of this division do not represent a majority of the people of that Territory or even of South Dakota, and as long as I believe that they are more influenced by self-seeking aggrandizement than the good of their country, I shall never vote for that division.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. President, I desire to speak in favor of this bill, and to reply as far as I am able to the Senator from South Carolina, and take the floor for that purpose.

Mr. FRYE. Will the Senator yield to me for a motion that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business?

Mr. DAVIS. Yes, sir.

Mr. FRYE. I make that motion.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Maine moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After one hour and fifty-five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 6 o'clock p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Wednesday, April 11, 1888, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate April 10, 1888.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL.

Henry B. Lovering, of Massachusetts, to be marshal of the United States for the district of Massachusetts, vice Nathaniel P. Banks, whose term has expired.

INDIAN AGENTS.

Claude M. Johnson, of Lexington, Ky., to be agent for the Indians of the Pima agency, in Arizona, vice Elmer A. Howard, resigned.

John Blair, of Netawaka, Kans., to be agent for the Indians of the Pottawatomie and Great Nemaha agency, in Kansas, vice Charles H. Grover, removed.

Elmer A. Howard, of Iowa, to be agent for the Indians of the Kiowa, Comanche, and Wichita agency, in the Indian Territory, vice Jesse Lee Hall, suspended by an Indian inspector.

Thomas P. Smith, of Arizona, to be agent for the Indians of the Osage agency, in the Indian Territory, vice James I. David, resigned.

PROMOTION IN THE ARMY.

Corps of Engineers.

Lieut. Col. Cyrus B. Comstock, to be colonel, April 7, 1888, vice Gillmore, deceased.

Maj. Jared A. Smith, to be lieutenant-colonel, April 7, 1888, vice Comstock, promoted.

Member of the Mississippi River Commission.

Maj. Oswald H. Ernst, Corps of Engineers, United States Army, to be a member of the Mississippi River Commission, vice Gillmore, deceased.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate April 6, 1888.

POSTMASTERS.

Nicholas Morper, to be postmaster at South Evanston, Cook County, Illinois.

William A. Sterling, to be postmaster at Shamokin, Northumberland County, Pennsylvania.

Jacob W. Shrite, to be postmaster at Mount Joy, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, April 4, 1888.

[CALENDAR DAY, April 11, 1888.]

The recess having expired, the House (at 11 o'clock and 45 minutes a. m. Tuesday, April 10) was called to order by Mr. HATCH, Speaker pro tempore.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. REED. Regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is requested to lay before the House certain requests of members of a personal nature. The gentleman from Ohio, Mr. YODER, requests leave of absence for four days, on account of important business; and the gentleman from Ohio, Mr. WILLIAMS, also requests leave of absence for ten days, dating from April 11, on account of important business.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, I wish to ask for leave of absence for my colleague.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will first dispose of the pending requests. Without objection these requests will be granted.

There was no objection.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, I am requested to ask unanimous consent that leave of absence be granted to my colleague, Mr. BOURKE COCKRAN, until Thursday. He is engaged in an important case in the city of New York, and it will be impossible for him to be here before the day named.

There being no objection, Mr. COCKRAN was excused.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I am requested to ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from West Virginia, Mr. HOGG, be granted ten days' leave of absence on account of important business.

There was no objection.

Mr. O'FERRALL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that two days' leave of absence be granted to Mr. RAYNER, of Maryland, who is called home upon a matter of business imperatively demanding his attention.

There was no objection.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was also granted Mr. HAYDEN indefinitely, on account of important business.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that leave of absence be granted to my colleague, Mr. DE LANO, on account of important business.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state that the request of the gentleman from New York was sent to the Chair in writing last evening, just before the recess was taken, and was to have been submitted then but for the action of the House.

If there be no objection, the request will be granted.

There was no objection.

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to report from the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads the Post-Office appropriation bill, with an accompanying report, and ask that it be printed and referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. REED. I think we had better proceed with the regular order. I ask the regular order.

BRIDGE AT MEMPHIS, TENN.

Mr. PHELAN. I desire to submit a privileged report from a committe of conference.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The report will be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 2927) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at Memphis, Tenn., having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Page 1, line 11, after the word "and" and before the word "for" insert the words "at the option of the corporation by which it may be built;" and the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14, and agree to the same.

CHARLES F. CRISP,
JAMES PHELAN,
M. D. LAGAN,
Managers on the part of the House.
PHILETUS SAWYER,
GEORGE G. VEST,
ISHAM G. HARRIS,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

The managers on the part of the House submit the following statement to accompany the conference report:

The conferees on the part of the House on the disagreeing vote of the two Houses on H. R. 2927 to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at Memphis, Tenn., submit the following explanation of their report:

The amendments made by the Senate to H. R. 2927 were made in the interest of the navigation of the Mississippi River. The width of the two middle or channel spans in the House bill was fixed at a minimum of 600 feet, and the other spans at a minimum of 450 feet each. As 600 feet formed the minimum, it was supposed that the War Department, under the provisions of the bill, would feel at liberty to require such a width of span as the necessities of river commerce might demand. Since then a ruling of the War Department has been quoted which holds that the fixing of a minimum width of span or height by an act of Congress established a limitation not materially departed from by the War Department. The Senate amendment to section 3 was therefore adopted to meet the requirements of this Department.

By this the main channel span is to be established by a board of three engineers; but in addition to this, a minimum width of 700 feet has been fixed in the bill for the main channel span and 600 for the other spans. The minimum height of 65 feet was raised to 75 feet, in the interest of the very tall steam-boats. It is believed that these amendments meet all the demands of the river interests. A clause was also inserted repealing the outstanding charter for a bridge across the Mississippi River at Memphis. By some inadvertence no limitation of time for the commencement or completion of the bridge under that bill was established. After having had more than reasonable time to begin the construction of the bridge, and after having made sundry attempts to raise the capital necessary to begin the holders of the outstanding charter have signally failed to accomplish anything. The Mississippi River Commission recommend the building of but one bridge at this point, and the House conferees have thought it proper to agree to the amendment repealing the old charter. In the House bill the building of a wagon-way was left optional with the incorporators. This has been made imperative, as the time may come when a wagon and foot way may become necessary to the commerce of the adjoining country. The building of the foot-way is left optional, as the wagon-way can be used for this purpose and as the incorporators have expressed their willingness to construct the same. The other Senate amendments are of a legal and technical nature, and are chiefly designed to render more effective the remedies of those who may be inconvenienced or damaged by the building of this bridge. It is especially directed that the work upon the bridge shall not be begun until the plans have been approved by the Secretary of War.

CHARLES F. CRISP.
JAMES PHELAN.
M. D. LAGAN.

Mr. PHELAN. If no disposition exists to debate the report I shall ask the previous question on its adoption.

Mr. BAYNE. I do not wish to discuss this proposition, for I think it is just such as is desired by the navigation interests of that river; but I wish to ask a question: Whether the 700-foot span is the minimum fixed?

Mr. WARNER. That is the minimum.

Mr. BAYNE. The bill is all right. If the interests of navigation require it, can there be, under this bill, action on the part of the Secretary of War, if in his opinion it is necessary, to require a wider span?

Mr. PHELAN. Unquestionably. That has been fixed in the bill at the suggestion of the Chief Engineer.

Mr. BAYNE. This is a modification of the principle heretofore prevailing in the construction put upon it by the Secretary of War.

Mr. PHELAN. Not exactly a modification of the ruling of the War Department; but a change was made in the bill as first introduced for the purpose of meeting the requirements of the War Department regulations. The War Department holds that when the phrase "not less than 600 feet" is used it means practically 600 feet. The bill has been amended in accordance with the recommendations of the War Department so as to leave them the discretion as to the height and width which it was supposed were given in the original bill. The Chief of Engineers assured a distinguished Senator from Missouri that the bill as it now stands leaves it entirely optional to fix the width of channel span at as much more than 700 feet as the Department may deem advisable, although the minimum width can not be less that 700 feet. If no other gentleman desires to be heard I call the previous question.

The previous question was ordered, and under the operation thereof the report of the committee of conference was adopted.

Mr. PHELAN moved to reconsider the vote by which the report was adopted; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. BLOUNT addressed the Chair.

Mr. REED. I demand the regular order.

Mr. BLOUNT. I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BLOUNT. I am directed by the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads to report the Post-Office appropriation bill, and I wish the opinion of the Chair whether or not I can report it at any time.

Mr. REED. I call for the regular order.

Mr. BLOUNT. I have asked the opinion of the Chair on the point I have submitted, and I trust the Chair will respond.

Mr. REED. This can not be a question of privilege while the House is taking a vote.

Mr. BLOUNT. I will take the opinion of the Chair if I can get it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will cause the rule to be read.

The Clerk read clause 50 of Rule XI, as follows:

The following-named committees shall have leave to report at any time on the matters herein stated, namely: The Committee on Elections on the right of a member to a seat; the Committee on Ways and Means, on bills raising revenue; the committees having jurisdiction of appropriations, the general appropriation bills.

Mr. REED addressed the Chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is prepared to rule on the question of order. There is no question but the report which the gentleman from Georgia desires to make is a matter of privilege, and would have precedence over any other motion except a motion pending. There is a motion pending, and the Chair can not interpose to take that out of its regular order except by unanimous consent. The pending question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] that the House take a recess until 3.40 p. m.

Mr. WEAVER. I make the point of order that that motion has expired by lapse of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The point of order is sustained.

Mr. TAULBEE. In connection with the point of order which the Chair has just decided, I wish to ask whether or not the motions made of the kind on which the Chair has ruled relate to a legislative or to a calendar day? I make that inquiry of the Chair in view of the point of order raised by the gentleman from Iowa. We seem to be getting these things of days a little mixed; and I wish to know what these motions relate to, whether to a calendar or a legislative day. I wish to know what we are to understand by the word "day" as used in these deliberations.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Kentucky that subsequently to the time when the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] made his motion for a recess until 3.40 p. m. the House by unanimous consent took a recess until 11.45 to-day. That of course supersedes the motion made by the gentleman from Iowa on yesterday that the House take a recess until some time in the afternoon of that day. The recess was taken at 10.15 p. m. on yesterday to 11.45 to-day, which is the calendar day of Tuesday.

Mr. TAULBEE. One other question if the Chair will indulge me. If that be the question, had not the pending motion, that offered by the gentleman from Iowa, expired by reason of limitation before the House took a recess?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair does not care to decide that question now, because a decision of it is not necessary to the proper order of business.

Mr. TAULBEE. If the Chair will permit me, I think a decision of that question is important, because like questions may arise during this calendar day.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. When such questions arise, if the present occupant of the chair shall then be in the chair, he will be prepared to decide them.

Mr. OATES. I move that the House take a recess for ten minutes.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I believe there are three motions of that kind pending now.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has stated that the motions pending prior to the recess of last evening have been superseded by the recess until 11.45 a. m. to-day.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. In what position is my motion, made in the early hours of this legislative day and not yet acted upon, that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is the pending motion when it is reached, and the Chair will then put it to the House.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I wish it to be understood that that motion is still pending.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend the motion of the gentleman from Alabama by striking out "ten minutes" and inserting "fifteen minutes."

Mr. ROGERS. I move to amend the amendment by striking out "fifteen minutes" and inserting "twenty minutes."

Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois. I move, as a substitute for the motion and the amendments thereto, that we take a recess for twenty-five minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman offer that as an amendment or as a substitute?

Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois. As a substitute for the pending motion and amendments.

Mr. DIBBLE. I rise to make a point of order against the substitute, that it can not be entertained until the original motion is perfected.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. ROGERS] to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER].

Mr. OATES. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. REED. All these motions show a great deal of divergent opinion on the other side.

Mr. WEAVER. Pending the motion to adjourn, I move that when the House adjourns it be to meet on Thursday next.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois. I move to amend that so that when the House adjourns it be to meet on Friday next.

Mr. TARSNEY. I move to amend so that when the House adjourns it be to meet on Saturday next.

Mr. PERKINS. We have not heard yet from the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE].

Mr. DIBBLE. I make the point of order against the last proposed amendment that the time named in it is more than the constitutional three days beyond which the House can not adjourn without the consent of the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The point of order is well taken.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I submit that on last Wednesday the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] moved that the House adjourn until the succeeding Monday, and upon that motion, which was identical in substance with the last motion now submitted, the Speaker ruled that it was in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. To-day is Tuesday; Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday are three days.

Mr. KELLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. KELLEY. I desire that the rule prohibiting smoking on this floor be enforced. The practice seems to be indulged in largely this morning, and I wish to remain on the floor of the House; so I ask the enforcement of the rule.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will have the rule read by the Clerk, and the present occupant of the Chair assures the gentleman from Pennsylvania that he will do everything in his power to see that the rule is enforced. The Chair takes this occasion to admonish the Sergeant-at-Arms and the Doorkeeper that the enforcement of this rule is made imperative upon the officers of the House, and the Chair will try to see that they perform their duty.

The Clerk read a portion of paragraph 7 of Rule XIV, as follows:

During the session of the House no member shall wear his hat, or remain by the Clerk's desk during the call of the roll, or smoke upon the floor of the House.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, the question which I have raised is one which involves a principle, and ought to be correctly settled. On last Wednesday the point of order was made against the motion which was made to adjourn over until the following Monday, that the time was more than three days.

Mr. DIBBLE. Mr. Speaker, I raise the point of order that the question on which the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] is speaking has been decided by the Chair.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I ask the Chair to hear me for a moment on this point.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will indulge the gentleman from Tennessee. The Chair will cause the RECORD to be examined for the ruling which the gentleman states was made by the Speaker on this point.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I ask the Chair to have the RECORD examined, and the Chair will find that I am correct. The Speaker held that a motion made on last Wednesday to adjourn until the Monday following was in order, although four days intervened, counting Sunday. He held that Sunday, not being a legislative day, could not be counted, and that the Constitution would permit an adjournment over three days—that is, until the fourth day. Therefore I think the last motion made is in order.

Mr. WEAVER. And for this reason, that the House was in session when the motion was made and would be in session on the fourth day—only three days intervening.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The Chair will find the ruling of the Speaker in the RECORD of last Wednesday.

Mr. TAULBEE. It is on page 2709 of the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will have the proceeding read by the Clerk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. WEAVER. I move that when the House adjourns to-day it adjourn to meet on Monday next.

Mr. TAULBEE. Is not that too long?

Mr. WEAVER. No, it is not. It is only three legislative days.

Mr. TAULBEE. I make the point of order against that.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TAULBEE. It is more than three days.

The SPEAKER. It is exactly three legislative days—Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Mr. CANNON. But this is Wednesday, and you can not include the one and exclude the other.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will cause the clause of the Constitution to be read.

Mr. TAULBEE. My point of order is this: That if the House adjourns now to meet on Monday, this being Wednesday, that it is more than the three legislative days provided in the Constitution. It is necessarily four days if you count either to-day or Monday.

The SPEAKER. But the question is whether or not you can count either day.

Mr. TAULBEE. Well, that is simply a matter of taste. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the clause of the Constitution regulating this subject.

The Clerk read as follows:

"Section 5, clause 4: Neither House, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting."

The SPEAKER. The language is for more than three days.

Mr. TAULBEE. My point, however, Mr. Speaker, is this, that if the House adjourns now to meet again to-morrow, that is an adjournment for one day. If we adjourn to meet on Friday, that is two days; and if to meet on Saturday, that is three days. That is as far as an adjournment can extend without the concurrence of the Senate under the clause of the Constitution which has been read.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thinks the motion is not in order at this time for a different reason than that suggested by the gentleman from Kentucky.

The last vote preceding the one just taken was on a motion to adjourn over until Friday; and it has been decided, and has been the constant practice of the House since that decision, that although the motion to adjourn over may be repeated, some intervening business must have taken place before the motion can be again in order; and it has been held that the motion to adjourn is not such intervening business as makes a repetition of the motion to adjourn over in order. The only vote taken by the House since the motion to adjourn over was rejected was on the motion to adjourn which has just been taken. The Chair thinks the point of order——

Mr. TAULBEE. The Chair sustains my point of order, as I understand it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not think that it is necessary to decide upon the point urged by the gentleman, as there is another ground upon which the motion can not be entertained.

Mr. TAULBEE. That was my first point of order.

Mr. WEAVER. I move that the House now take a recess until 8 o'clock.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The House will see from what has been read by the Clerk that the point made by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] was not decided by the Speaker; but, upon reflection and a count of the days, excluding to-day, the Chair thinks the point of order of the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. DIBBLE] is not well taken, and that an adjournment from Tuesday until Saturday is in order, taking the three legislative days Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday as the recess, and meeting again on the succeeding day, which is Saturday. The Chair therefore overrules the point of order.

Mr. BAKER, of New York. I rise to ask a question for information. We have now five or six or seven motions pending, and what I desire to know is whether, after the Chair shall have stated them in succession they may not be bunched and voted upon all at once, and whether hereafter we may not proceed in the same manner and have one roll-call cover half a dozen motions. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair knows of no rule or practice that would justify such a proceeding. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TARSNEY], that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Saturday next.

The question was taken on the motion of Mr. TARSNEY, and the Chair declared that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Several MEMBERS. "Division!"

The House divided; and there were—ayes 3, noes 75.

Mr. ROGERS. No quorum.

Mr. DIBBLE and Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Yeas and nays, Mr. Speaker.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. COTHRAN, by unanimous consent, obtained leave of absence for ten days, on account of important business.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TARSNEY], naming Saturday next as the day to which the House will adjourn.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 4, nays 173, not voting 147; as follows:

YEAS—4.

Abbott,	Hayes,	Kilgore,	Richardson.

NAYS—173.

Allen, Mass.	Cogswell,	Hitt,	McCreary,
Allen, Mich.	Conger,	Holman,	McKinley,
Anderson, Iowa	Cooper,	Holmes,	McKinney,
Anderson, Ill.	Crouse,	Hopkins, Ill.	Milliken,
Arnold,	Cummings,	Hopkins, Va.	Moffitt,
Atkinson.	Dalzell,	Houk,	Montgomery,
Baker, N. Y.	Darlington,	Hovey,	Morrill,
Baker, Ill.	Davis,	Hudd,	Morrow,
Bayne,	Dibble,	Johnston, Ind.	Neal,
Belden,	Elliott,	Johnston, N. C.	Nelson,
Blanchard,	Ermentrout,	Kean,	Newton,
Boothman,	Farquhar,	Kelley,	Nichols,
Bound,	Finley,	Kennedy,	Norwood,
Bowden,	Fitch,	Kerr,	Nutting,
Bowen,	Flood,	Laffoon,	O'Donnell,
Brewer,	Foran,	Laidlaw,	O'Ferrall,
Browne, T.H.B., Va.	French,	Lane,	O'Neall, Ind.
Browne, Ind.	Fuller,	Latham,	O'Neill, Pa.
Brown, Ohio	Gaines,	Lawler,	Osborne,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Gallinger,	Lee,	Outhwaite,
Brumm,	Gear,	Lehlbach,	Owen,
Bryce,	Gest,	Lind,	Parker,
Buchanan,	Glover,	Long,	Patton,
Bunnell,	Goff,	Lyman,	Perkins,
Burnett,	Greenman,	Mahoney,	Peters,
Burrows,	Grout,	Maish,	Plumb,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hall,	Mansur,	Post,
Campbell, Ohio	Harmer,	Mason,	Pugsley,
Campbell, T.J., N.Y.	Hatch,	Matson,	Randall,
Caruth,	Haugen,	McAdoo,	Rice,
Caswell,	Henderson, Iowa	McClammy,	Romeis,
Cheadle,	Henderson, N. C.	McComas,	Rowell,
Chipman,	Henderson, Ill.	McCormick,	Rowland,
Russell, Conn.	Spooner,	Thomas, Wis.	Wickham,
Russell, Mass.	Springer,	Townshend,	Wilber,
Ryan,	Stahlnecker,	Turner, Kans.	Wilkinson,
Sawyer,	Steele,	Vance,	Williams.
Scull,	Stephenson,	Vandever,	Wilson, W. Va.
Seney,	Stone, Ky.	Wade,	Woodburn,
Seymour,	Struble,	Walker,	Yardley,
Shaw,	Taulbee,	Warner,	Yost.
Sherman,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio	Weber,
Shively,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio	West,
Snyder,	Thomas, Ky.	Whitthorne,

NOT VOTING—147.

Adams,	Crain,	Hooker,	Rayner,
Allen, Miss.	Crisp,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Reed,
Anderson, Miss.	Culberson,	Howard,	Robertson,
Anderson, Kans.	Cutcheon,	Hunter,	Rockwell,
Bacon,	Dargan,	Hutton,	Rogers,
Bankhead,	Davenport,	Jackson,	Rusk,
Barnes,	Davidson, Ala.	Jones,	Sayers,
Barry,	Davidson, Fla.	Ketcham,	Scott,
Belmont,	De Lano,	La Follette,	Simmons,
Biggs,	Dingley,	Lagan,	Smith,
Bingham,	Dockery,	Laird,	Sowden,
Bland,	Dorsey,	Landes,	Spinola,
Bliss,	Dougherty,	Lanham,	Stewart, Tex.
Blount,	Dunham,	Lodge,	Stewart, Ga.
Boutelle,	Dunn,	Lynch,	Stewart, Vt.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Enloe,	Macdonald,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Felton,	Maffett,	Stone, Mo.
Brower,	Fisher,	Martin,	Symes,
Buckalew,	Ford,	McCullogh,	Tarsney,
Burnes,	Forney,	McKenna,	Thomas, Ill.
Butler,	Funston,	McMillin,	Thompson, Ohio
Butterworth,	Gay,	McRae,	Thompson, Cal.
Bynum,	Gibson,	McShane,	Tillman,
Candler,	Glass,	Merriman,	Tracey,
Cannon,	Granger,	Mills,	Turner, Ga.
Carlton,	Grimes,	Moore,	Washington,
Catchings,	Grosvenor,	Morgan,	Weaver,
Clardy,	Guenther,	Morse,	Wheeler,
Clark,	Hare,	Oates,	White, Ind.
Clements,	Hayden,	O'Neill, Mo.	White, N. Y.
Cobb,	Heard,	Payson,	Whiting, Mich.
Cockran,	Hemphill,	Peel,	Whiting, Mass.
Collins,	Herbert,	Penington,	Wilkins.
Compton,	Hermann,	Perry,	Wilson, Minn.
Cothran,	Hiestand,	Phelan,	Wise,
Cowles,	Hires,	Phelps,	Yoder,
Cox,	Hogg,	Pidcock,

So the amendment of Mr. TARSNEY, naming Saturday next as the day to which the House will adjourn, was rejected.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will announce the additional pairs.

The following-named members were announced as paired on all political questions until further notice:

Mr. SIMMONS with Mr. BROWER.

Mr. YODER with Mr. DUNHAM.

Mr. HOGG with Mr. DE LANO.

Mr. LYNCH with Mr. BINGHAM.

Mr. RAYNER with Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas.

Mr. HEMPHILL with Mr. PAYSON.

Mr. COTHRAN with Mr. LA FOLLETTE.

The following-named members were announced as paired for the day:

Mr. WISE with Mr. DINGLEY.

Mr. DUNN with Mr. STEWART, of Vermont.

Mr. BELMONT with Mr. HOPKINS, of New York.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri, was announced as paired on this vote with Mr. MCKENNA.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. SIMMONS, for one week, on account of sickness.

To Mr. FORNEY, for ten days, on account of important business.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question recurs on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON] naming Friday next as the day to which the House will adjourn.

The question being taken, there were—ayes 4, noes 59.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 3, nays 154, not voting 167; as follows:

YEAS—3.

Hayes,	Kilgore,	Neal.

NAYS—154.

Allen, Mass.	Bowden,	Campbell, Ohio	Davis,
Allen, Mich.	Brewer,	Campbell, T.J., N.Y.	Dibble,
Anderson, Iowa	Browne, T.H.B., Va.	Caswell,	Elliott,
Anderson, Ill.	Browne, Ind.	Cheadle,	Ermentrout,
Arnold.	Brown, Ohio	Chipman,	Farquhar,
Baker, Ill.	Brown, J. R., Va.	Cogswell,	Finley,
Bayne,	Bryce,	Conger,	Fitch,
Belden,	Buchanan,	Cooper,	Flood,
Bingham,	Bunnell,	Crouse,	Fuller,
Boothman,	Burrows,	Cummings,	Gaines,
Bound,	Butterworth,	Dalzell,	Gallinger,
Boutelle,	Campbell, F., N. Y.	Darlington,	Gear,

Gest,	Latham,	Osborne,	Steele,
Goff,	Lawler,	Owen,	Stephenson,
Greenman,	Lehlbach,	Parker,	Stone, Ky.
Grout,	Lind,	Patton,	Struble,
Guenther,	Long,	Perkins,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Hall,	Lyman,	Peters,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Harmer,	Macdonald,	Plumb,	Thomas, Ky.
Hatch,	Mahoney,	Post,	Thomas, Wis.
Haugen,	Maish,	Pugsley,	Turner, Kans.
Henderson, Iowa	Matson,	Randall,	Vandever,
Henderson, N. C.	McAdoo,	Reed,	Wade,
Henderson, Ill.	McClammy,	Romeis,	Walker,
Hitt,	McCormick,	Rowell,	Warner,
Holman,	McCreary,	Rowland,	Weber,
Holmes,	McKinley,	Russell, Conn.	West,
Hopkins, Ill.	Milliken,	Russell, Mass.	Whitthorne,
Hopkins, Va.	Moffitt,	Ryan,	Wickham,
Houk,	Montgomery,	Sawyer,	Wilber,
Hovey,	Morrill,	Scull,	Wilkins,
Hudd,	Morrow,	Seney,	Wilkinson,
Johnston, Ind.	Nelson,	Seymour,	Williams.
Johnston, N. C.	Nichols,	Shaw,	Wilson, W. Va.
Kelley,	Nutting,	Sherman,	Woodburn,
Kennedy,	O'Donnell,	Shively,	Yardley,
Laffoon,	O'Ferrall,	Sowden,	Yost.
Lagan,	O'Neall, Ind.	Spooner,
Laidlaw,	O'Neill, Pa.	Stahlnecker.

NOT VOTING—167.

Abbott,	Crain,	Hunter,	Pidcock,
Adams,	Crisp,	Hutton,	Rayner,
Allen, Miss.	Culberson,	Jackson,	Rice,
Anderson, Miss.	Cutcheon,	Jones,	Richardson,
Anderson, Kans.	Dargan,	Kean,	Robertson,
Atkinson,	Davenport,	Kerr,	Rockwell,
Bacon,	Davidson, Ala.	Ketcham,	Rogers,
Baker, N. Y.	Davidson, Fla.	La Follette,	Rusk,
Bankhead,	De Lano,	Laird,	Sayers,
Barnes,	Dingley,	Landes,	Scott,
Barry,	Dockery,	Lane,	Simmons,
Belmont,	Dorsey,	Lanham,	Smith,
Biggs,	Dougherty,	Lee,	Snyder,
Blanchard,	Dunham,	Lodge,	Spinola,
Bland,	Dunn,	Lynch,	Springer,
Bliss,	Enloe,	Maffett,	Stewart, Tex.
Blount,	Felton,	Mansur,	Stewart, Ga.
Bowen,	Fisher,	Martin,	Stewart, Vt.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Foran,	Mason,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Ford,	McComas,	Stone, Mo.
Brower,	Forney,	McCullogh,	Symes,
Brumm,	French,	McKenna,	Tarsney,
Buckalew,	Funston,	McKinney,	Taulbee,
Burnes,	Gay,	McMillin,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnett,	Gibson,	McRae,	Thompson, Ohio
Butler,	Glass,	McShane,	Thompson, Cal.
Bynum,	Glover,	Merriman,	Tillman,
Candler,	Granger,	Mills,	Tracey,
Cannon,	Grimes,	Moore,	Townshend,
Carlton,	Grosvenor,	Morgan,	Turner, Ga.
Caruth,	Hare,	Morse,	Vance,
Catchings,	Hayden,	Newton,	Washington,
Clardy,	Heard,	Norwood,	Weaver,
Clark,	Hemphill,	Oates,	Wheeler,
Clements,	Herbert,	O'Neill, Mo.	White, Ind.
Cobb,	Hermann,	Outhwaite,	White, N. Y.
Cockran,	Hiestand,	Payson,	Whiting, Mich.
Collins,	Hires,	Peel,	Whiting, Mass.
Compton,	Hogg,	Penington,	Wilson, Minn.
Cothran,	Hooker,	Perry,	Wise,
Cowles,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Phelan,	Yoder.
Cox,	Howard,	Phelps,

The SPEAKER pro tempore. On this question the yeas are 3, the noes 154.

Mr. OATES. No quorum.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Alabama makes the point that no quorum has voted.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I move a call of the House.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, is it in order to move a call of the House without reducing the proposition to writing?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. This is not a resolution which requires to be reduced to writing; it is a motion which can be made at any time after the fact is shown that no quorum has voted. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR] does not offer a resolution to send for members, but simply moves a call of the House.

Mr. TAULBEE. Well, I desire to make the point that the motion for a call of the House should be reduced to writing.

Mr. DIBBLE. I think the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] ought to put his point in writing.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair overrules the point of order. The motion of the gentleman from Ohio is in order.

The question being taken on the motion for a call of the House, it was agreed to; there being—ayes 84, noes 7.

The Clerk proceeded to call the roll, when the following members failed to answer to their names:

Adams,	Cowles,	Felton,	Hooker,
Anderson, Miss.	Cox,	Finley,	Hopkins, N. Y.
Anderson, Kans.	Cutcheon,	Fisher,	Hunter,
Belmont,	Dargan,	Forney,	Hutton,
Biggs,	Davenport,	Funston,	Jackson,
Bland,	Davidson, Ala.	Granger,	Jones,
Brower,	De Lano,	Grosvenor,	Kean,
Buchanan,	Dingley,	Hayden,	Ketcham,
Clark,	Dorsey,	Heard,	La Follette,
Cobb,	Dougherty,	Hemphill,	Lane,
Cockran,	Dunham,	Heistand,	Lind,
Collins,	Dunn,	Hires,	Lynch,
Maffett,	Perry,	Simmons,	Tracey,
McComas,	Phelps,	Spinola,	White, N. Y.
McCullogh,	Pidcock,	Stewart, Ga.	Wilson, Minn.
Mills,	Rayner,	Thomas, Ill.	Wise,
O'Neill, Mo.	Rusk,	Thompson, Ohio	Yoder.
Payson,	Scott,	Thompson, Cal.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will now proceed to call the names of gentlemen who did not respond on the first call, upon which call excuses are in order. The Doorkeeper will close the doors and notify members.

The names of the absentees were called, as follows:

Mr. ADAMS: No excuse offered.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Mississippi: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas: Absent with leave.

Mr. BELMONT: No excuse offered.

Mr. BIGGS.

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from California [Mr. BIGGS] requested me to ask that he be excused from attendance to-day on account of sickness.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. BLAND: Absent with leave.

Mr. BROWER: Absent with leave.

Mr. BUCHANAN reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. CLARK: No excuse offered.

Mr. COBB: No excuse offered.

Mr. COCKRAN: Absent with leave.

Mr. COLLINS: Absent with leave.

Mr. COWLES.

Mr. HENDERSON, of North Carolina. My colleague, Mr. COWLES, is not well to-day, and I ask that he be excused.

There was no objection.

Mr. COX: Absent with leave.

Mr. CUTCHEON: Absent with leave.

Mr. DARGAN: No excuse offered.

Mr. DAVENPORT reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Alabama: Absent with leave.

Mr. DE LANO: Absent with leave.

Mr. DINGLEY: No excuse offered.

Mr. DORSEY: Absent with leave.

Mr. DOUGHERTY: Absent with leave.

Mr. DUNHAM: No excuse offered.

Mr. DUNN reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. FELTON: Absent with leave.

Mr. FINLEY.

Mr. THOMAS, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I ask that Mr. FINLEY be excused from attendance to-day.

There was no objection.

Mr. FISHER: Absent with leave.

Mr. FORNEY: Absent with leave.

Mr. FUNSTON reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. GRANGER: Absent with leave.

Mr. GROSVENOR: Absent with leave.

Mr. HAYDEN: Absent with leave.

Mr. HEARD.

Mr. BREWER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to request leave of absence for Mr. HEARD, of Missouri, for this day. He requested me yesterday afternoon when he left the House to get leave for him for the evening. I know myself that he has been out of health for the past week. I have a letter from him this morning saying that he is unable to get here at all to-day.

Mr. TAULBEE. I object. I would like first to know how long this leave is to be granted. I apprehend that we may find ourselves without a quorum if we permit this to continue much longer. I have no objection to an excuse for a reasonable length of time. How long does the gentleman ask?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan says that Mr. HEARD on yesterday evening stated to him that he was unwell; and further, that he had a note from him this morning stating that he was unable to get to the House to-day.

Mr. REED. I suggest that he be excused during the continuance of this call. We should confine our excuses to that.

Mr. TAULBEE. I do not object to excusing him for the calendar day.

Mr. BREWER. That is all I ask.

There was no objection, and Mr. HEARD was excused.

Mr. HEMPHILL: Absent with leave.

Mr. HIESTAND: No excuse offered.

Mr. HIRES: Absent with leave.

Mr. HOOKER: Absent with leave.

Mr. HOPKINS, of New York.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleague, Mr. HOPKINS, be excused for this day, as he has been called out of town by the dangerous illness of a near relative.

There was no objection.

Mr. HUNTER: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. HUTTON: Absent with leave.
Mr. JACKSON: Absent with leave.
Mr. JONES: Absent with leave.
Mr. KEAN: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. KETCHAM: No excuse offered.
Mr. LA FOLLETTE: Absent with leave.
Mr. LANE: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. LIND: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. LYNCH: No excuse offered.
Mr. MAFFETT: Absent sick.
Mr. MCCOMAS: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. MCCULLOGH: No excuse offered.
Mr. MILLS: Absent with leave.
Mr. O'NEILL, of Missouri: Absent with leave.
Mr. PAYSON: Absent with leave.
Mr. PERRY: Absent with leave.
Mr. PHELPS: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. PIDCOCK: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. RAYNER: Absent with leave.
Mr. RUSK: No excuse offered.
Mr. SCOTT: Absent with leave.
Mr. SIMMONS: Absent with leave.
Mr. SPINOLA: Absent with leave.
Mr. STEWART, of Georgia: No excuse offered.
Mr. THOMAS, of Illinois: Absent with leave.
Mr. THOMPSON, of Ohio: No excuse offered.
Mr. THOMPSON, of California: Absent with leave.
Mr. TRACEY: Absent with leave.
Mr. WHITE, of New York: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota: Absent with leave.
Mr. WISE: Absent with leave.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I think my colleague, Mr. WISE, was excused on yesterday for two days.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If the gentleman is excused the record will show the fact.

Mr. YODER: Absent with leave.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I offer the resolution I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms take into custody and bring to the bar of the House such of its members as are now absent without the leave of the House.

Mr. TAULBEE. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TAULBEE. Does the call of the House show that a quorum is present?

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. It has been held by the Speaker that even though the call of the House develops the fact that a quorum is present it is still in order to continue the call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The roll-call shows the fact that two hundred and fifty-three members have answered to their names.

The question being put on Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR'S motion, there were—ayes 97, noes 41.

Mr. TAULBEE. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, 39 members voting therefor.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 139, nays 38, not voting 147; as follows:

YEAS—139.

Allen, Mich.	Elliott,	Long,	Romeis,
Anderson, Iowa	Farquhar,	Lynch,	Rowell,
Arnold,	Fitch,	Mahoney,	Russell, Conn.
Atkinson,	Flood,	Maish,	Russell, Mass.
Baker, Ill.	Fuller,	Mansur,	Sawyer,
Bayne,	Gaines,	Mason,	Scull,
Belden,	Gallinger,	Matson,	Seney,
Bingham,	Gear,	McClammy,	Sherman,
Boothman,	Gest,	McComas,	Sowden,
Bound,	Goff,	McCormick,	Spooner,
Boutelle,	Greenman,	McCreary,	Springer,
Bowden,	Grout,	McKenna,	Stahlnecker,
Bowen,	Guenther,	McKinley,	Steele,
Brewer,	Hall,	Merriman,	Stephenson,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Harmer,	Milliken,	Stewart, Vt.
Browne, Ind.	Haugen,	Moffitt,	Struble,
Brown, Ohio	Hermann,	Montgomery,	Symes,
Brown, J. K., Va.	Hitt,	Morrow,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Brumm,	Holman,	Nelson,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bunnell,	Holmes,	Nichols,	Thomas, Ky.
Burrows,	Hopkins, Ill.	Nutting,	Thomas, Wis.
Butler,	Hopkins, Va.	O'Donnell,	Turner, Kans.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hovey,	O'Ferrall,	Warner,
Campbell, Ohio	Johnston, Ind.	O'Neill, Pa.	Weber,
Caruth,	Kelley,	Osborne,	Wheeler,
Caswell,	Kennedy,	Outhwaite,	White, Ind.
Cogswell,	Kerr,	Patton,	White, N. Y.
Compton,	Ketcham,	Perkins,	Whiting, Mass.
Conger,	Kilgore,	Peters,	Wickham,
Cooper,	Laidlaw,	Pidcock,	Wilber,
Crouse,	Latham,	Plumb,	Williams,
Dalzell,	Lee,	Post,	Woodburn,
Darlington,	Lehlbach,	Pugsley,	Yardley,
Davis,	Lind,	Randall,	Yost.
Dibble,	Lodge,	Reed,

NAYS—38.

Abbott,	Henderson, N. C.	Moore,	Snyder,
Anderson, Miss.	Hooker,	Morgan,	Stone, Mo.
Buckalew,	Johnston, N. C.	Neal,	Tarsney,
Chipman,	Laffoon,	Owen,	Taulbee,
Crain,	Lane,	Penington,	Tillman,
Cummings,	Lanham,	Rogers,	Townshend,
Dockery,	McKinney,	Rowland,	Walker,
Enloe,	McMillin,	Seymour,	Whiting, Mich.
Ermentrout,	McRae,	Shaw,
Hayes,	McShane,	Shively,

NOT VOTING—147.

Adams,	Cothran,	Henderson, Ill.	Phelan,
Allen, Mass.	Cowles,	Herbert,	Phelps,
Allen, Miss.	Cox,	Hiestand,	Rayner,
Anderson, Ill.	Crisp,	Hires,	Rice,
Anderson, Kans.	Culberson,	Hogg,	Richardson,
Bacon,	Cutcheon,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Robertson,
Baker, N. Y.	Dargan,	Houk,	Rockwell,
Bankhead,	Davenport,	Howard,	Rusk,
Barnes,	Davidson, Ala.	Hudd,	Ryan,
Barry,	Davidson, Fla.	Hunter,	Sayers,
Belmont,	De Lano,	Hutton,	Scott,
Biggs,	Dingley,	Jackson,	Simmons,
Blanchard,	Dorsey,	Jones,	Smith,
Bland,	Dougherty,	Kean,	Spinola,
Bliss,	Dunham,	La Follette,	Stewart, Tex.
Blount,	Dunn,	Lagan,	Stewart, Ga.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Felton,	Laird,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Finley,	Landes,	Stone, Ky.
Brower,	Fisher,	Lawler,	Thomas, Ill.
Bryce,	Foran,	Lynch,	Thompson, Ohio
Buchanan,	Ford,	Macdonald,	Thompson, Cal.
Burnes,	Forney,	Maffett,	Tracey,
Burnett,	French,	Martin,	Turner, Ga.
Butterworth,	Funston,	McAdoo,	Vance,
Bynum,	Gay,	McCullogh,	Vandever,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Gibson,	Mills,	Wade,
Candler,	Glass,	Morrill,	Washington,
Cannon,	Glover,	Morse,	Weaver,
Carlton,	Granger,	Newton,	West,
Catchings,	Grimes,	Norwood,	Whitthorne,
Cheadle,	Grosvenor,	Oates,	Wilkins.
Clardy,	Hare,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wilkinson,
Clark,	Hatch,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilson, Minn.
Clements,	Hayden,	Parker,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cobb,	Heard,	Payson,	Wise,
Cockran,	Hemphill,	Peel,	Yoder.
Collins,	Henderson, Iowa	Perry,

So the motion was agreed to.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the names.

Mr. TAULBEE. I object.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. WHITTHORNE with Mr. HOUK, from half past 1 to half past 3 to-day.

Mr. FINLEY with Mr. LAFFOON, for this day.

Mr. STONE, of Kentucky, with Mr. FUNSTON, on this bill until 4 p. m.

Mr. FORNEY with Mr. JACKSON, until further notice.

The result of the vote was then announced as above stated.

Mr. CASWELL. On yesterday leave of absence was granted to my colleague, Mr. LA FOLLETTE, on account of sickness. I do not find any record of it. I ask that he be excused for the remainder of the week.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

Mr. TAULBEE. Does the gentleman know that his colleague is sick?

Mr. CASWELL. I do. He is under the doctor's care and in bed.

There being no objection, Mr. LA FOLLETTE was excused for the remainder of the week.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will furnish the Sergeant-at-Arms with a list of the absentees. The Chair lays before the House the request of Mr. WISE for leave of absence for this day, on account of important business.

Mr. TAULBEE. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair lays before the House the request of Mr. BURNETT for leave of absence for the remainder of the day, on account of sickness.

Mr. TAULBEE. Unless some one is prepared to say that he knows the gentleman is sick, I will object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. BURNETT] stated to the present occupant of the chair that he was under the care of a dentist, and for five hours yesterday was in the dentist's chair.

Mr. TAULBEE. I withdraw my objection. I will also withdraw my objection as regards the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WISE] if the excuse be merely for the remainder of this calendar day.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It is for the remainder of the calendar day.

Mr. TAULBEE. Let that be inserted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The objection being withdrawn, the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. BURNETT] is excused. The Chair is informed that the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WISE] was called from the Hall on important business. Is there objection to his being excused for the remainder of the calendar day?

There was no objection.

Mr. BAYNE. I ask unanimous consent for an indefinite leave of absence for my colleague, Mr. MAFFETT. Mr. MAFFETT is very sick, so sick that he has been almost wholly unable to attend during this session of Congress.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed that the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. MAFFETT] is very ill. His colleague asks that he be excused indefinitely.

There was no objection.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair asks the unanimous consent of the House, pending the execution of the order to the Sergeant-at-Arms, to receive a message from the President.

Mr. TAULBEE. Does that disturb the status?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It does not. The Chair hears no objection.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, informed the House that the President had approved bills and a joint resolution of the following titles:

An act (H. R. 3470) to authorize the construction of bridges over the rivers St. Mary's, Satilla, Little Satilla, and Crooked, in the States of Georgia and Florida;

An act (H. R. 7217) for the erection of a public building at Lowell, Mass.;

An act (H. R. 2093) for the relief of John K. Le Baron;

An act (H. R. 2595) for the relief of the widow of John A. S. Tutt, deceased;

An act (H. R. 2112) for the relief of Capt. John Burkhart;

An act (H. R. 439) for the relief of Grovenor A. Curtice;

An act (H. R. 3) to remove the political disabilities of William W. Mackall, of Virginia; and Joint resolution (H. Res. 68) in favor of J. Q. Barton.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, is it in order to demand the reading of the message?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks not. The message simply announces the approval of certain bills, and it will be entered upon the Journal.

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask unanimous consent that the message be read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] that it is a message announcing the approval of certain bills. Such messages are never read, but are entered upon the Journal by the Journal Clerk.

Mr. TAULBEE. But is it in order to ask unanimous consent that it be read?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks not.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Mr. Speaker, I have just been informed that my colleague, Mr. DINGLEY, is quite ill and confined to the house. I therefore ask that he be excused for the remainder of this day.

Mr. TAULBEE. Does any one know that the gentleman from Maine [Mr. DINGLEY] is sick?

Mr. BOUTELLE. The report has just come from the hotel to the office of the Sergeant-at-Arms. My colleague sent word here this morning that he desired to be paired, as he would be unable to attend on account of illness, and I know that he would not send such word unless the illness was of a nature to prevent his attendance.

There being no objection, Mr. DINGLEY was excused for the remainder of the day.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that Mr. COBB, of Alabama, be excused for the remainder of this day. I know that he is quite sick and unable to be here.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, does that mean the calendar day or the legislative day?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It means the remainder of this calendar day.

There was no objection, and Mr. COBB was excused for the remainder of the day.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. DARGAN, by unanimous consent, obtained leave of absence for ten days, on account of important business.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will lay before the House a communication just received from Mr. COBB, of Alabama, who has been excused from attendance for the remainder of this day.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. SPEAKER: I am actually unable, with justice to myself, to go to the House. I ask indefinite leave of absence, promising to be in my seat when it is prudent for me to be there.

J. E. COBB.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If there be no objection, the leave of absence already granted to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. COBB] will be extended in accordance with his request.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

The Sergeant-at-Arms submitted the following report:

OFFICE SERGEANT-AT-ARMS,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES UNITED STATES,
Washington, D. C., April 10, 1888.

Mr. SPEAKER: In obedience to the order of the House this day issued and directed to me, I have made diligent search for Messrs. ADAMS, BELMONT, CLARK, DARGAN, DUNHAM, HIESTAND, KETCHAM, LYNCH, MCCULLOGH, RUSK, STEWART, of Georgia, and THOMPSON, of Ohio, and report from the best information obtainable that they are out of the city. The other members named in the order having reported or been excused by the House, I hereby return this writ.

J. P. LEEDOM,
Sergeant-at-Arms, House Representatives United States.

The following list accompanied the report of the Sergeant-at-Arms:

Mr. ADAMS: Out of the city.
Mr. BELMONT: Out of the city.
Mr. CLARK: Out of the city.
Mr. COBB: Excused.
Mr. DARGAN: Out of the city.
Mr. DAVENPORT: Reported.
Mr. DINGLEY: Excused.
Mr. DUNHAM: Out of the city.
Mr. DUNN: Reported.
Mr. HIESTAND: Out of the city.
Mr. HUNTER: Reported.
Mr. KETCHAM: Out of the city.
Mr. LIND: Reported.
Mr. LYNCH: Out of the city.
Mr. MCCULLOGH: Out of the city.
Mr. RUSK: In Baltimore.
Mr. STEWART, of Georgia: Out of the city.
Mr. THOMPSON, of Ohio: Out of the city.

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, my colleague, Mr. STEWART, left the city over a week ago, and my impression is that he is absent by leave of the House.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with further proceedings under the call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE]?

Mr. MCRAE. I object.

Mr. TAULBEE. Then, Mr. Speaker, I move that all further proceedings under the call of the House be dispensed with.

The question being taken on the motion of Mr. TAULBEE, the Speaker declared that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 17, noes 67.

So the motion was not agreed to.

Mr. TARSNEY. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. COOPER (to Mr. TARSNEY). Withdraw that motion.

Mr. WEAVER. Yeas and nays, Mr. Speaker.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 80, nays 146, not voting 98; as follows:

YEAS—80.

Abbott,	Davidson, Fla.	Lanham,	Rowland,
Allen, Miss.	Dockery,	Lawler,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Miss.	Dunn,	Maish,	Sayers,
Anderson, Ill.	Enloe,	Martin,	Shaw,
Bankhead,	Foran,	McClammy,	Shively,
Barnes,	Ford,	McKinney,	Snyder,
Barry,	Gay.	McMillin,	Springer,
Blount,	Glass,	McRae,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Grimes,	McShane,	Stone, Ky.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Hare,	Moore,	Stone, Mo.
Buckalew,	Hatch,	Morgan,	Tarsney,
Burnes,	Hayes,	Neal,	Tillman,
Bynum,	Henderson, N. C.	Oates,	Townshend,
Candler,	Herbert,	O'Neall, Ind.	Turner, Ga.
Carlton,	Hooker,	Peel,	Vance,
Clardy,	Howard,	Penington,	Walker,
Clements,	Johnston, N. C.	Phelan,	Washington,
Crain,	Kilgore,	Richardson,	Weaver,
Crisp,	Lagan,	Robertson,	Wheeler,
Cummings,	Landes,	Rogers,	Whiting, Mich.

NAYS—146.

Allen, Mass.	Dalzell,	Lehlbach,	Rowell,
Allen, Mich.	Darlington,	Lind,	Russell, Conn.
Anderson, Iowa	Davenport,	Lodge,	Ryan,
Arnold,	Davis,	Long,	Scull,
Atkinson,	Dibble,	Lyman,	Seney,
Baker, N. Y.	Farquhar,	Macdonald,	Seymour,
Baker, Ill.	Fitch,	Mahoney,	Sherman,
Bayne,	Flood,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Belden,	Fuller,	McAdoo,	Steele,
Bingham,	Funston,	McComas,	Stephenson,
Boothman,	Gaines,	McCormick,	Stewart, Vt.
Bound,	Gear,	McKenna,	Struble,
Bowden,	Gest,	McKinley,	Symes,
Bowen,	Glover,	Milliken,	Taulbee,
Brewer,	Goff,	Moffitt,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Greenman,	Morrow,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Browne, Ind.	Grout,	Nichols,	Thomas, Ky.
Brown, Ohio	Guenther,	Nutting,	Thomas, Wis.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Hall,	O'Donnell,	Turner, Kans.
Brumm,	Harmer,	O'Ferrall,	Vandever,
Bryce,	Haugen,	O'Neill, Pa.	Wade,
Buchanan,	Henderson, Iowa	Osborne,	Warner,
Bunnell,	Henderson, Ill.	Outhwaite,	Weber,
Burrows,	Hermann,	Owen,	West,
Butler,	Hitt,	Parker,	White, Ind.
Butterworth,	Holman,	Patton,	White, N. Y.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Holmes,	Perkins,	Whiting, Mass.
Campbell, Ohio	Hopkins, Ill.	Peters,	Wickham,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hopkins, Va.	Phelps,	Wilber,
Cannon,	Houk,	Plumb,	Wilkins,
Caruth,	Hovey,	Post,	Wilkinson,
Caswell,	Johnston, Ind.	Pugsley,	Williams,
Cheadle,	Kean,	Randall,	Woodburn,
Cogswell,	Kennedy,	Reed,	Yardley,
Conger,	Kerr,	Rice.	Yost.
Cooper,	Laidlaw,	Rockwell,
Crouse,	Latham,	Romeis,

NOT VOTING—98.

Adams,	De Lano,	Hutton,	Payson,
Anderson, Kans.	Dingley,	Jackson,	Perry,
Bacon,	Dorsey,	Jones,	Pidcock,
Belmont,	Dougherty,	Kelley,	Rayner,
Biggs,	Dunham,	Ketcham,	Rusk,
Blanchard,	Elliott,	Laffoon,	Sawyer,
Bland,	Ermentrout,	La Follette,	Scott,
Bliss,	Felton,	Laird,	Simmons,
Boutelle,	Finley,	Lane,	Smith,
Brower,	Fisher,	Lee,	Sowden,
Burnett,	Forney,	Lynch,	Spinola,
Catchings,	French,	Maffett,	Spooner,
Chipman,	Gallinger,	Mansur,	Stewart, Tex.
Clark,	Gibson,	Matson,	Stewart, Ga.
Cobb,	Granger,	McCreary,	Thomas, Ill.
Cockran,	Grosvenor,	McCullogh,	Thompson, Ohio
Collins,	Hayden,	Merriman,	Thompson, Cal.
Compton,	Heard,	Mills,	Tracey,
Cothran,	Hemphill,	Montgomery,	Whitthorne,
Cowles,	Hiestand,	Morrill,	Wilson, Minn.
Cox,	Hires,	Morse,	Wilson, W. Va.
Culberson,	Hogg,	Nelson,	Wise,
Cutcheon,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Newton,	Yoder.
Dargan,	Hudd,	Norwood,
Davidson, Ala.	Hunter,	O'Neill, Mo.

So the House refused to adjourn.

The following additional pair was announced:

Mr. O'NEILL, of Missouri, with Mr. HAYDEN, on all political questions, until further notice.

GOVERNMENT TELEGRAPH.

Mr. BRUMM. I ask unanimous consent at this time to have read and inserted in the RECORD the heading of a petition, which is very short, signed by 7,125 citizens of the county of Schuylkill, Pennsylvania, asking for the establishment of a governmental telegraph system.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CRISP). The Chair will state to the gentleman from Pennsylvania that in the present condition of the House nothing is in order except a motion which has reference to the call of the House.

Mr. BRUMM. I supposed my request could be entertained by unanimous consent, and for that reason I submitted it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The present occupant of the Chair thinks that even by unanimous consent no business can be done now while the House is operating under the call.

Mr. BRUMM. Then I suppose I can put the petition in the petition-box.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York, Mr. WEST, asks leave of absence for to-night, on account of sickness. Is there objection?

Mr. TAULBEE. Not if he is sick.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman so states.

There being no objection, leave was granted.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. MCCREARY (at 5 o'clock p. m.). I move to dispense with further proceedings under the call, and pending that motion I move that we take a recess until 11.45 to-morrow morning.

Mr. MCRAE. I make the point of order that the gentleman's motion is not in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Kentucky that there are pending motions for a recess.

Mr. MCCREARY. If there is objection to the latter part of my motion, I move simply to dispense with further proceedings under the call.

The motion was agreed to, there being—ayes 126, noes 24.

Mr. MCCREARY. I now move that we take a recess until to-morrow morning at 11.45.

Mr. WEAVER. I make the point of order that there are three motions now pending with reference to a recess and one or two in relation to adjourning.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There is pending a motion of the gentleman from Alabama that the House take a recess for ten minutes; to that the gentleman from Iowa moved an amendment to take a recess for fifteen minutes; and to that the gentleman from Arkansas proposed an amendment to take a recess for twenty minutes.

Mr. MCCREARY. I make the point of order that that time has expired. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question immediately pending is upon a motion of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON] that when the House adjourns it will adjourn to meet on Friday next. On that question no quorum voted; and the vote upon that question is the first business in order.

Mr. MCCREARY. It is now 5 o'clock, the usual time for adjourning, and I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until to-morrow morning at 11.45.

Mr. MCRAE and Mr. WEAVER objected.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the Chair will at this time submit a report from the Committee on Enrolled Bills.

There was no objection.

Mr. ENLOE, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found duly enrolled bills of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same, namely:

A bill (H. R. 3603) to increase the pension of Maxwell Carroll;

A bill (H. R. 3849) granting a pension to Martha M. Bagley;

A bill (H. R. 3490) granting a pension to James M. Berry;

A bill (H. R. 2177) granting a pension to Mahala Robbins;

A bill (H. R. 2078) granting a pension to Charlotte T. Clark;

A bill (H. R. 893) granting a pension to Julia Stokes;

A bill (H. R. 824) granting a pension to Isaiah G. Mayo;

A bill (H. R. 7856) granting a pension to Emma R. Johnson;

A bill (H. R. 7171) to restore to the pension-roll the name of Isaac Dilley;

A bill (H. R. 6984) granting a pension to Margaret E. Graves;

A bill (H. R. 6974) for the relief of Mary E. Hawn, widow of Emanuel R. Hawn, late surgeon of the Forty-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteers, deceased;

A bill (H. R. 6908) granting a pension to William P. Witt;

A bill (H. R. 6586) granting a pension to Nancy O. Gray;

A bill (H. R. 818) granting a pension to Sarah E. Pribble;

A bill (H. R. 816) granting a pension to Charlotte Broad;

A bill (H. R. 822) granting a pension to Miles S. Scribner;

A bill (H. R. 823) granting a pension to Hannah C. De Witt;

A bill (H. R. 5911) granting a pension to Elizabeth J. Hascall;

A bill (H. R. 4107) granting a pension to Laura D. Pierce;

A bill (H. R. 3711) granting a pension to Harriet V. Stockton;

A bill (H. R. 5228) granting a pension to Clara M. Flanders;

A bill (H. R. 5236) granting an increase of pension to Mary K. Taylor;

A bill (H. R. 5247) granting a pension to William M. Brimmer;

A bill (H. R. 3682) to pension Emily Goodall;

A bill (H. R. 1262) granting the right of way to the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad through the Fort Crawford military reservation;

A bill (H. R. 7891) for the relief of Cynthia J. Le Roy;

A bill (H. R. 4516) granting a pension to Mrs. Delilah Agard;

A bill (H. R. 2806) to increase the pension of James Woody;

A bill (H. R. 3183) for the relief of Kelsey Curtis;

A bill (H. R. 3488) granting a pension to Mary Dull;

A bill (H. R. 4685) granting a pension to Lizzie F. Reed;

A bill (H. R. 3870) granting a pension to Albert Nevin;

A bill (H. R. 5176) granting a pension to Thomas J. Parker;

A bill (H. R. 6343) to increase the pension of Namy Roins, the oldest Revolutionary pensioner on the rolls, she being nearly ninety-six years of age;

A bill (H. R. 5829) for the relief of Joseph Driskill;

A bill (H. R. 5388) granting a pension to Elizabeth Buffington;

A bill (H. R. 5363) granting a pension to David Johnson;

A bill (H. R. 97) granting a pension to Ida B. Linthicum;

A bill (H. R. 2518) granting an increase of pension to John Rowe;

A bill (H. R. 2662) for the relief of Mary M. Strong;

A bill (H. R. 2663) for the relief of Alonzo Alden;

A bill (H. R. 2694) granting a pension to Julia A. Griffen;

A bill (H. R. 4633) granting a pension to Morris T. Mantor;

A bill (H. R. 442) granting a pension to Emily B. Newell;

A bill (H. R. 459) for the relief of Elvira Cooper;

A bill (H. R. 499) granting a pension to Catharine Maxwell;

A bill (H. R. 122) for the relief of Julia A. Darrell;

A bill (H. R. 150) granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Shaw;

A bill (H. R. 159) granting a pension to Jane Thomas;

A bill (H. R. 7262) for the erection of a public building at Texarkana, situated on both sides of the line between the States of Arkansas and Texas;

A bill (H. R. 418) granting a pension to William H. Brokenshaw;

A bill (H. R. 416) granting a pension to Thomas H. Aulls;

A bill (H. R. 407) granting a pension to C. W. Burkhart;

A bill (H. R. 183) granting a pension to minor children of William Clark;

A bill (H. R. 441) granting a pension to Eliza J. Currier;

A bill (H. R. 2416) granting a pension to Mrs. Hannah F. Brock;

A bill (H. R. 2259) to grant a pension to Joab M. Haley;

A bill (H. R. 2491) granting a pension to John Bisbey;

A bill (H. R. 2456) for the relief of Judith Plummer;

A bill (H. R. 742) for the relief of John F. Cadwallader;

A bill (H. R. 509) granting a pension to James A. Haley;

A bill (H. R. 2498) granting a pension to Alonzo Higley;

A bill (H. R. 782) granting a pension to Marble H. Baird;

A bill (H. R. 754) to increase the pension to Eliza B. Anderson;

A bill (H. R. 4550) granting a pension to Chloe Quiggle, widow of Philip Quiggle;

A bill (H. R. 4655) granting a pension to Mary J. Francis; and

A bill (H. R. 4812) to grant a pension to Squire Admire.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON], that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Friday next, upon which the yeas and nays were taken and no quorum voted.

The Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 8, nays 163, not voting 153; as follows:

YEAS—8.

Blanchard,	Hayes,	McKinney,	Walker,
Blount,	Maish,	Neal,	Whiting, Mich.

NAYS—163.

Allen, Mass.	Dalzell,	Laird,	Rowland,
Allen, Mich.	Darlington,	Lee,	Russell, Conn.
Anderson, Iowa	Davenport,	Lehlbach,	Russell, Mass.
Arnold,	Davis,	Lind,	Ryan,
Atkinson,	Elliott,	Lodge,	Sawyer,
Baker, N. Y.	Ermentrout,	Long,	Scull,
Baker, Ill.	Farquhar,	Lyman,	Seney,
Bayne,	Fitch,	Macdonald,	Seymour,
Belden,	Ford,	Mahoney,	Sherman,
Bingham,	Fuller,	Mason,	Shively,
Boothman,	Funston,	Matson,	Snyder,
Bound,	Gaines,	McClammy,	Sowden,
Boutelle,	Gallinger,	McCormick,	Spooner,
Bowden,	Gear,	McCreary,	Springer,
Bowen,	Gest,	McKenna,	Steele,
Brewer,	Glover,	McKinley,	Stephenson,
Browne, T.H.B., Va.	Goff,	Merriman,	Stewart, Vt.
Brown, Ohio	Greenman,	Moffitt,	Stockdale,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Guenther,	Montgomery,	Struble,
Brumm,	Hall,	Morrill,	Symes,
Bryce,	Harmer,	Morrow,	Taulbee,
Buchanan,	Haugen,	Nichols,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Buckalew,	Henderson, Iowa	Nutting,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bunnell,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Thomas, Ky.
Burrows,	Hermann,	O'Ferrall,	Townshend,
Butler,	Hitt,	O'Neall, Ind.	Turner, Kans.
Butterworth,	Holman,	O'Neill, Pa.	Vandever,
Campbell, Ohio	Holmes,	Osborne,	Wade,
Campbell, T.J., N.Y.	Hopkins, Ill.	Outhwaite,	Warner,
Cannon,	Hopkins, Va.	Owen,	Weber,
Caruth,	Houk,	Parker,	White, Ind.
Caswell,	Hovey,	Patton,	White, N. Y.
Cheadle,	Hudd,	Perkins,	Whiting, Mass.
Chipman,	Hunter,	Peters,	Wickham,
Clardy,	Johnston, Ind.	Plumb,	Wilber,
Cogswell,	Johnston, N. C.	Post,	Wilkins,
Compton,	Kean,	Pugsley,	Wilkinson,
Conger,	Kennedy,	Reed,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cooper,	Kerr,	Rice,	Woodburn,
Crouse,	Laffoon,	Romeis,	Yardley.
Cummings,	Laidlaw,	Rowell,

NOT VOTING—153.

Abbott,	Davidson, Fla.	Jones,	Rayner,
Adams,	De Lano,	Kelley,	Richardson,
Allen, Miss.	Dibble,	Ketcham,	Robertson,
Anderson, Miss.	Dingley,	Kilgore,	Rockwell,
Anderson, Ill.	Dockery,	La Follette,	Rogers,
Anderson, Kans.	Dorsey,	Lagan,	Rusk,
Bacon,	Dougherty,	Landes,	Sayers,
Bankhead,	Dunham,	Lane,	Scott,
Barnes,	Dunn,	Lanham,	Shaw,
Barry,	Enloe,	Latham,	Simmons,
Belmont,	Felton,	Lawler,	Smith,
Biggs,	Finley,	Lynch,	Spinola,
Bland,	Fisher,	Maffett,	Stahlnecker,
Bliss,	Flood,	Mansur,	Stewart, Tex.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Foran,	Martin,	Stewart, Ga.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Forney,	McAdoo,	Stone, Ky.
Brower,	French,	McComas,	Stone, Mo.
Browne, Ind.	Gay,	McCullogh,	Tarsney,
Burnes,	Gibson,	McMillin,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnett,	Glass,	McRae,	Thomas, Wis.
Bynum,	Granger,	McShane,	Thompson, Ohio
Campbell, F., N.Y.	Grimes,	Milliken,	Thompson, Cal.
Candler,	Grosvenor,	Mills,	Tillman,
Carlton,	Grout,	Moore,	Tracey,
Catchings,	Hare,	Morgan,	Turner, Ga.
Clark,	Hatch,	Morse,	Vance,
Clements,	Hayden,	Nelson,	Washington,
Cobb,	Heard,	Newton,	Weaver,
Cockran,	Hemphill,	Norwood,	West,
Collins,	Henderson, N. C.	Oates,	Wheeler,
Cothran,	Herbert,	O'Neill, Mo.	Whitthorne,
Cowles,	Hiestand,	Payson,	Williams,
Cox,	Hires,	Peel,	Wilson, Minn.
Crain,	Hogg,	Penington,	Wise,
Crisp,	Hooker,	Perry,	Yoder,
Culberson,	Hopkins, N.Y.	Phelan,	Yost.
Cutcheon,	Howard,	Phelps,
Dargan,	Hutton,	Pidcock,
Davidson, Ala.	Jackson,	Randall,

So the motion was rejected.

During the call of the roll the following proceedings took place:

Mr. O'FERRALL. I desire to know whether a quorum has voted, as I am paired for one hour from 5 o'clock with the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. BANKHEAD], reserving, however, the right to vote to make a quorum or upon questions relating to a quorum.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SPRINGER in the chair). The Clerk is tabulating the vote now; but the Chair is informed by the Clerk that a quorum has not voted.

The Clerk proceeded to recapitulate the names of those voting.

Mr. SOWDEN. I ask unanimous consent that the further reading of the names be dispensed with in the interest of the clerks.

Mr. OATES. I object.

The Clerk concluded reading the list of those voting.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. LYNCH with Mr. MCCOMAS, for the rest of this day.

Mr. STEWART, of Georgia, with Mr. KELLEY, for the rest of the day.

Mr. CLARDY with Mr. BANKHEAD, on this bill until 7 o'clock.

Mr. MANSUR with Mr. STEWART, of Texas, on this bill, until 7 p. m.

Mr. CULBERSON with Mr. LANHAM, on this bill, until 8 o'clock p. m.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri, with Mr. WILLIAMS, until 8 o'clock p. m.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed by the Clerk that a quorum has not voted; there being 8 in the affirmative and 153 in the negative.

Mr. WEAVER. No quorum.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pending that the Chair desires to lay before the House some personal requests of members.

Mr. BROWNE, of Indiana, asks leave of absence for ten days from to-morrow, on account of important business.

There was no objection.

Mr. PENINGTON asks leave of absence until Thursday next, on account of important business.

There was no objection.

Mr. MCCOMAS asks leave of absence for this day, on account of indisposition.

Mr. TAULBEE. Is that for the calendar or legislative day?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks it will be for the remainder of the calendar day.

Mr. TAULBEE. I object if it relates to the legislative day; otherwise I have no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If the leave is granted, it will extend until noon to-morrow, in the opinion of the Chair.

Mr. TAULBEE. I have no objection to that.

Mr. WILBER. I ask leave of absence until to-morrow morning, on account of poor health.

There was no objection.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I move a call of the House.

The question was taken; and on a division there were—ayes 110, noes 4.

So a call of the House was ordered.

The Clerk proceeded to call the roll, when the following-named members failed to answer:

Adams,	Dockery,	Kelley,	Rusk,
Allen, Miss.	Dorsey,	Ketcham,	Ryan,
Anderson, Kans.	Dougherty,	La Follette,	Scott,
Bankhead,	Dunham,	Lanham,	Shaw,
Belmont,	Felton,	Latham,	Simmons,
Biggs,	Finley,	Lawler,	Smith,
Bland,	Fisher,	Long,	Spinola,
Brower,	Flood,	Lynch,	Stewart, Tex.
Browne, Ind.	Forney,	Maffett,	Stewart, Ga.
Brumm,	Funston,	Mansur,	Stewart, Vt.
Burnett,	Gay,	Martin,	Stockdale,
Campbell, Ohio	Glass,	McAdoo,	Stone, Mo.
Caruth,	Granger,	McComas,	Struble,
Clark,	Grosvenor,	McCullogh,	Symes,
Clements,	Hare,	Mills,	Thomas, Ill.
Cobb,	Hatch,	Morrow,	Thompson, Ohio
Cockran,	Hayden,	Morse,	Thompson, Cal.
Collins,	Heard,	Nelson,	Tillman,
Cothran,	Hemphill,	O'Neill, Mo.	Tracey,
Cox,	Henderson, N. C.	Owen,	West,
Culberson,	Hiestand,	Payson,	Whiting, Mich.
Cutcheon,	Hires,	Penington,	Whitthorne,
Dargan,	Hogg,	Perry,	Williams,
Davidson, Ala.	Hopkins, N. Y.	Phelps,	Wilson, Minn.
Davidson, Fla.	Hutton,	Pidcock,	Wise,
De Lano,	Jackson,	Rayner,	Yoder,
Dingley,	Jones,	Rockwell,	Yost.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SPRINGER). The Doorkeeper will now close the doors of the Hall, and the Clerk will call the names of members who did not respond on the first call.

The Clerk proceeded to call the absentees, as follows:

Mr. ADAMS: No excuse offered.

Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi: No excuse offered.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas: Absent on leave.

Mr. BANKHEAD: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. BELMONT: No excuse offered.

Mr. BIGGS: Absent on leave.

Mr. BLAND: Absent on leave.

Mr. BROWER: Absent on leave.

Mr. BROWNE, of Indiana: Absent on leave.

Mr. BRUMM: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. BURNETT: Absent on leave.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. CARUTH: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. CLARK: No excuse offered.

Mr. CLEMENTS: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. COBB: Absent on leave.

Mr. COCKRAN: Absent on leave.

Mr. COLLINS: Absent on leave.

Mr. COTHRAN: Absent on leave.

Mr. COX: Absent on leave.

Mr. CULBERSON: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

Mr. CUTCHEON: No excuse offered.
Mr. DARGAN: Absent on leave.
Mr. DAVIDSON, of Alabama: Absent on leave.
Mr. DAVIDSON, of Florida: No excuse offered.
Mr. DE LANO: Absent on leave.
Mr. DINGLEY: Absent on leave.
Mr. DOCKERY: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. DORSEY: Absent on leave.
Mr. DOUGHERTY: Absent on leave.
Mr. DUNHAM: No excuse offered.
Mr. FELTON: Absent on leave.
Mr. FINLEY: No excuse offered.
Mr. FISHER: Absent on leave.
Mr. FLOOD: No excuse offered.
Mr. FORNEY: No excuse offered.
Mr. FUNSTON: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. GAY: No excuse offered.
Mr. GLASS: Absent on leave.
Mr. GRANGER: Absent on leave.
Mr. GROSVENOR: Absent on leave.
Mr. HARE: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. HATCH: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. HAYDEN: Absent on leave.
Mr. HEARD: Absent on leave.
Mr. HEMPHILL: Absent on leave.
Mr. HENDERSON, of North Carolina: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. HIESTAND: No excuse offered.
Mr. HIRES: Absent on leave.
Mr. HOGG: Absent on leave.
Mr. HOPKINS, of New York: No excuse offered.
Mr. HUTTON: Absent on leave.
Mr. JACKSON: Absent on leave.
Mr. JONES: Absent on leave.
Mr. KELLEY: Absent on leave.
Mr. KETCHAM: No excuse offered.
Mr. LA FOLLETTE: Absent on leave.
Mr. LANHAM: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. LATHAM: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. LAWLER: No excuse offered.
Mr. LONG: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. LYNCH: No excuse offered.
Mr. MAFFETT: Absent on leave.
Mr. MANSUR: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. MARTIN: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. MCADOO: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. MCCOMAS: Absent on leave.
Mr. MCCULLOGH: No excuse offered.
Mr. MILLS: Absent on leave.
Mr. MORROW: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. MORSE: No excuse offered.
Mr. NELSON: No excuse offered.
Mr. O'NEILL, of Missouri: Absent on leave.
Mr. OWEN: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. PAYSON: Absent on leave.
Mr. PENINGTON: Absent on leave.
Mr. PERRY: Absent on leave.
Mr. PHELPS: No excuse offered.
Mr. PIDCOCK: No excuse offered.
Mr. RAYNER: Absent on leave.
Mr. ROCKWELL: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. RUSK: No excuse offered.
Mr. RYAN: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. SCOTT: Absent on leave.
Mr. SHAW: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. SIMMONS: Absent on leave.
Mr. SMITH: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. SPINOLA: Absent on leave.
Mr. STEWART, of Texas: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. STEWART, of Georgia: No excuse offered.
Mr. STEWART, of Vermont: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. STOCKDALE: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. STONE, of Missouri: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. STRUBLE: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. SYMES: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. THOMAS, of Illinois: Absent on leave.
Mr. THOMPSON, of Ohio: No excuse offered.
Mr. THOMPSON, of California: Absent on leave.
Mr. TILLMAN: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. TRACEY: No excuse offered.
Mr. WEST: Absent on leave.
Mr. WHITING, of Michigan: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. WHITTHORNE: No excuse offered.
Mr. WILLIAMS: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.
Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota: No excuse offered.
Mr. WISE: Absent on leave.
Mr. YODER: Absent on leave.
Mr. YOST: Reported to the Clerk, under the rule, after the roll-call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON] asks leave of absence until to-morrow, on account of important business. Is there objection?

Mr. REED. I object.

Mr. OUTHWAITE offered the following resolution; which was adopted:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms take into custody and bring to the bar of the House such of its members as are now absent without the leave of the House.

Mr. MORGAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleague, Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi, be excused on account of illness. He is quite unwell, to my knowledge.

There was no objection, and Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi, was excused.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I am compelled to ask to be excused. In the first place I have not been very well for two or three weeks, and my physician is opposed to my staying here even during the day sessions; and in the second place I am expected to perform a somewhat conspicuous part in a grand pageant that we are to have to-morrow, the opening of the bridge at Georgetown, and not being a born orator I shall be compelled to make some little preparation. I therefore ask the House to excuse me until to-morrow afternoon.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair desires to announce to the House that on the last vote an error was made by the Clerk, and that on a recount it appears that the yeas were 8 and the nays 163 instead of 153, as announced. The Chair on making the announcement stated that no quorum had voted, but it now appears that a quorum did vote.

Mr. WHEELER. But there has been a call of the House since then.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. This error does not interfere with that at all. The Chair simply desires to have the count correct.

Mr. REED. What was the former announcement?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The announcement was 153 in the negative. It should have been 163.

Mr. REED. When was this error discovered?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Just this moment. When discovered it was immediately announced. The official reporter discovered the error and brought it to the attention of the Chair. If the gentleman desires to examine the record——

Mr. REED. Oh, I do not desire to examine the record; but I hope nothing will follow from the mistake.

Mr. HOLMAN. It does not affect the result.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It does not affect the substantive proceedings. It was in order to move a call of the House, even though a quorum had voted.

Mr. MACDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I ask to be excused for the remainder of this evening on the ground of indisposition. I am troubled with rheumatism. I am paired for this day, so my absence will not make any difference.

There was no objection, and Mr. MACDONALD was excused.

Mr. GLOVER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House take a recess until 8 o'clock.

Mr. MCRAE. I object.

Mr. OATES. I object.

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask unanimous consent that my colleague, Mr. LAFFOON, be excused for the remainder of this evening. He is sick, and says he is unable to be here in justice to himself.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The legislative evening or the calendar evening? [Laughter.]

Mr. TAULBEE. The calendar evening.

There was no objection, and Mr. LAFFOON was excused.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry. When a few railroad men "go out," and thus throw large numbers out of employment and stop the wheels of business, Congress sends a committee out to inquire into the strike. What I wish to know is, whether it would not be well enough for the railroad men and the other business men of the country to appoint a committee to investigate the Congressional strike? [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is not a parliamentary inquiry. The Chair desires to lay before the House a personal request. The gentleman from New York [Mr. NUTTING] asks leave of absence until Monday next, on account of important business. [Laughter.] Is there objection?

Mr. RANDALL. I object.

Mr. PARKER. Before the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. RANDALL] objects I trust that the gentleman from New York [Mr. NUTTING] will be given an opportunity to explain.

Mr. NUTTING. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will listen a moment I do not think he will object to my request.

Mr. RANDALL subsequently withdrew the objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. RANDALL] withdraws his objection. Is there further objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

Mr. COMPTON. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Maryland object?

Mr. COMPTON. I wish to be heard for one moment. When my colleague, Mr. GIBSON, asked to be excused on account of important business, the gentleman from Maine [Mr. REED] objected. Now, if that objection is withdrawn I will not object in this case.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Maryland object?

Mr. REED. I shall have to object, Mr. Speaker. Since the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. COMPTON] insists upon it, I object.

Mr. SOWDEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all further proceedings under the call be dispensed with, and that the House take a recess until 11.45 a. m. to-morrow.

The SPEAKER (having resumed the chair) put Mr. SOWDEN'S request to the House, when

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas, Mr. WEAVER, Mr. MCRAE, Mr. BAKER of New York, and several other members objected.

The Sergeant-at-Arms appeared at the bar of the House having in custody Mr. LAWLER.

The SPEAKER. Mr. LAWLER, you have been absent from the sessions of the House without its leave; what excuse have you to offer?

Mr. LAWLER. The only excuse that I have to offer, Mr. Speaker, is that I spend my nights at home answering correspondence, my letters having become so numerous as to require me to do so. I patiently waited here all day, as I do at every session of the House, and supposing the same state of affairs was going to continue here to-night, I went home to do my work. I can always be found at home by your messenger when he comes for me.

Mr. LANDES and Mr. SAYERS moved that Mr. LAWLER be excused.

Mr. BURROWS. It has been utterly impossible for us to hear what excuse the gentleman has rendered.

The SPEAKER. If members will resume their seats and preserve order the statements made to the House can be heard.

Mr. BURROWS. I would like to know what excuse the member has to render for this very grave offense. It is about time that we should stop fooling with this matter.

The SPEAKER. It is moved that the gentleman from Illinois be excused.

Mr. BURROWS. For what reason?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has stated the reason.

Mr. O'NEILL, of Pennsylvania. And a very good reason.

Mr. BURROWS. As I have said, it was impossible to hear the reason the gentleman gave.

Mr. LAWLER. I stated, Mr. Speaker, that I have a great deal of work to do answering correspondence; that I do this work every night at my room; that I am in attendance here at every session of the House, and believing that this same condition of affairs would continue to-night, I went to my home, had my dinner, and had got down to work. I stated further that I can always be found there at night. [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. STAHLNECKER. I am informed the gentleman's address is not in the Congressional Directory. [Laughter.]

Mr. LAWLER. For all that your messenger had no trouble in finding me.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I offer the resolution which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Hon. Mr. LAWLER, a member of the House of Representatives, be excused for absence at the call of the House on payment of $10; and the Sergeant-at-Arms is hereby directed to deduct that sum from said member's monthly salary.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I have considered this matter of absenteeism with some considerable care; and I feel that the time has arrived when the House should assert its power to have its members here when they are needed, unless we are going to abandon our sessions altogether. I regret that the gentleman from Illinois is the member now before the bar of the House, because I do not think his offense is greater than that of others; but it does seem to me that a man who is elected a member of this honorable body has his business here in the House when the House is in session, and has no business of any kind anywhere else, unless previously excused by the House. I do protest against this idea, which seems to be prevalent on all hands, that the matter of being present while the House is in session is one of simple convenience, not of duty.

In this connection I protest most seriously against the manner in which the House has continually treated this offense of absenteeism by making light of it and being frivolous over the matter, as though it were an offense of no great magnitude.

I offer this resolution in the most perfect good faith. I do not wish to injure the feelings of any one; but I believe that a beginning should be made now toward punishing absenteeism; and if it continues to prevail the penalty should continually increase until absolute expulsion may become the final remedy.

Mr. LAWLER. I would like to ask the gentleman from Ohio before he sits down——

Mr. CARLTON. I move to amend the resolution by striking out "$10" and inserting "one barrel of apples."

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. That is another one of those propositions which have made this House ridiculous in the eyes of the country, and which ought not to be indulged in. There should be no more of that sort of thing.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. LAWLER] asks unanimous consent to put a question to the gentleman from Ohio. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. LAWLER. Being a little short of funds—— [Laughter].

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, to remedy that difficulty I will furnish the gentleman this evening the $10; I will do so very gladly.

Mr. LAWLER. I accept the donation. [Laughter].

Mr. STRUBLE. Mr. Speaker, I wish to remind members that the distinguished gentleman from Illinois has admitted in the presence of the House that he absented himself from it expecting that it would remain in session, and that the very condition of things which existed when he left would continue to prevail through the night. It seems to me that he has admittedly placed himself where he ought to be at least censured for his conduct.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois. I would like to ask the gentleman whether the conduct of the gentleman from Illinois is not more honorable than to play sick?

Mr. STRUBLE. I think it is far more honorable than to "play sick." If the gentleman means to intimate that any one within my knowledge has "played sick," he commits an error.

Mr. WHEELER. I move to amend the resolution of the gentleman from Ohio by striking out that part of it which provides for imposing a fine.

The amendment of Mr. WHEELER was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the resolution as now amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Hon. Mr. LAWLER, a member of the House of Representatives, be excused for absence at the call of the House.

The resolution as amended was adopted.

Mr. TAULBEE (at 9 o'clock and 17 minutes p. m.). I ask unanimous consent to dispense with further proceedings under the call.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I object.

Mr. TAULBEE. Very well; I will not press the matter, but withdraw the request.

The Sergeant-at-Arms appeared at the bar of the House, having in custody, in obedience to its orders, Mr. MORSE.

The SPEAKER. Mr. MORSE, you have been absent from the sitting of the House without leave. What excuse have you to offer?

Mr. MORSE. I had supposed, Mr. Speaker, when I left the House late this evening that the motion then pending to adjourn would prevail, and that the House was ready to adjourn. [Laughter.]

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I offer the resolution I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Hon. LEOPOLD MORSE be excused for being absent from the call of the House on payment of $10; and the Sergeant-at-Arms is hereby directed to deduct said sum from said member's monthly salary.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I have nothing to say in addition to what I said on the other occasion a few moments ago. But I still desire that this matter should be seriously considered by the House. It is a duty we owe to ourselves and the country to see to it that gentlemen who are members of this House attend its sessions, and are present for the transaction of the public business in the House. The time has come when some action should be taken to break up this practice of members absenting themselves without leave, and when the House should not regard these proceedings in the light of a mere matter of joke and permit a member who has been absent to make his excuse, frivolous or otherwise, an excuse of any kind, and receive it as a matter of course. I understand, however—but I shall not refer to what I had intended saying.

The excuse of the gentleman is not sufficient, in my judgment, and while I have no idea or wish to hurt anybody's feelings, yet in behalf of the dignity of this body, in behalf of the dignity of the country, the time has come now when this matter should end and every man should understand that his business is here when the House is in session unless he is excused by the action of the House.

Mr. CRISP. Will the gentleman permit me to ask him a question?

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Most assuredly.

Mr. CRISP. Does the gentleman believe that it is competent, by a mere resolution of this House, to change existing law as to the compensation of members, or the payment of their salaries? Does the gentleman believe it competent for the House by a mere resolution to retain any part of the salary due to a member of the House under the law?

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. On the contrary, such has been the action of past Congresses in respect to this matter; and the Speakers have regarded this as no violation of any rule or any existing law. It is not a change of the law fixing the salary, but it is merely as to the manner of collecting a fine.

Mr. CRISP. As I understand it, the law prescribes—the law passed by both Houses and approved by the President—that a member of this House shall receive a stated salary, which shall be paid to him each month.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. This does not affect his salary.

Mr. CRISP. This is a proposition to direct an officer of the House, who is merely the agent of the member, not of the House, but of the member, to receive his salary from the Treasury, to retain a portion of it. He can not get a dollar of that salary without the receipt of the member, and it is to instruct him to retain a part of the salary due to the member.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. The Sergeant-at-Arms is an officer of the House, and is directed and required to collect a fine that has been levied by the House. This is a direction as to the manner of collecting that fine. There is no change of the law. It is the ordinary course.

Mr. CRISP. Whatever the course may be, it is entirely without warrant, and the gentleman has not suggested any reason for it.

Suppose, for the sake of argument, that the gentleman from Massachusetts, when the Sergeant-at-Arms comes to him with a receipt or certificate to sign to enable him to draw the coming month's salary, declines to sign it, how will the Sergeant-at-Arms get the money from the Treasury?

Mr. REED. Let us wait until we get to that point.

Mr. CRISP. That shows the absurdity of the proposition the gentleman from Ohio seriously insists upon; and that is the only object I had in calling attention to the matter.

Mr. REED. I do not think the gentleman from Massachusetts will act in that way.

Mr. WHEELER. I move to strike out all after the first line in the resolution—all that part relating to a fine.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, there is a law in respect to deductions from the pay of members which is cited in the Digest on page 269:

Deduction from compensation for, and further deduction from compensation for, without leave. Revised Statutes, sections 40 and 41.

That is a law of Congress.

Mr. CRISP. If the gentleman will permit me, that is not when temporarily absent from the House.

Mr. WEAVER. It is not a fine.

Mr. CRISP. It is where he is not in attendance as a Representative at all; absenting himself and not returning during the session.

Mr. STRUBLE. Let me ask the gentleman from Georgia whether he thinks there is any danger of a fine being assessed in the present case?

Mr. CRISP. I should think, Mr. Speaker, that in this case there was hardly any danger of a fine being assessed. I think, in answer to my friend from Iowa, that the gentleman from Massachusetts had the right to suppose that after five or six days of continuous session——

Mr. STOCKDALE. Frittering away the time. [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. CRISP. I think he had a right to suppose that the time had come when the majority ought to recognize the impropriety of proceeding further in this course, obstructing public business, and adjourn the House.

Mr. REED. Nevertheless the gentleman knows that the gentleman from Massachusetts did not suppose so.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Alabama [Mr. WHEELER] moves to amend the resolution by striking out so much as proposes to impose a fine.

Mr. CUMMINGS. I move to amend the amendment of the gentleman from Alabama by striking out all of the resolution after that part which directs that the gentleman from Massachusetts be fined $10. I offer the amendment for this reason: It seems to me that there is an imputation cast upon the gentleman from Massachusetts to the effect that he is not able to pay $10 unless it is taken out of his salary by the Sergeant-at-Arms; and knowing as I do that Mr. MORSE entertains magnificently, not only intellectually but otherwise [laughter], I hope the gentleman from Alabama will accept my amendment, and will leave the resolution so that it shall direct that the gentleman from Massachusetts be fined $10.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York [Mr. CUMMINGS] moves to amend the amendment, so as to strike out only that part which directs the Sergeant-at-Arms to deduct the fine from the salary of the gentleman from Massachusetts.

The amendment to the amendment was not agreed to.

Mr. ENLOE. I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry. I would like to know if the defendant is not entitled to have counsel assigned him if he is not able himself to employ them to defend him?

Mr. FARQUHAR. I desire to ask a question. Is it competent for the House to fine the gentleman from Massachusetts?

The SPEAKER. The Chair supposes so.

Mr. FARQUHAR. The second clause of Rule XV is as follows:

In the absence of a quorum, fifteen members, including the Speaker, if there is one, shall be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, and in all calls of the House the names of the members shall be called by the Clerk and the absentees noted; the doors shall then be closed, and those for whom no sufficient excuse is made may, by order of a majority of those present, be sent for and arrested, wherever they may be found, by officers to be appointed by the Sergeant-at-Arms for that purpose, and their attendance secured; and the House shall determine upon what condition they shall be discharged.

Mr. MCMILLIN. That settles it. There can be no question about it.

The SPEAKER. The motion is to discharge the gentleman from Massachusetts on the "condition" that he pays a fine.

Mr. FARQUHAR. The question was raised, as I understood, by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. CRISP] whether it was competent to assess a fine.

The SPEAKER. The Chair understood the point made by the gentleman from Georgia to be whether it was competent to deduct the fine from the gentleman's salary or not. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. WHEELER].

The question being put, the amendment of Mr. WHEELER was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question recurs on agreeing to the resolution as amended.

Several MEMBERS. Let the resolution as amended be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Hon. LEOPOLD MORSE be excused for being absent on a call of the House.

Mr. BURROWS. I wish to inquire as a matter of fact if this is not the second offense of the member.

A MEMBER. It is, the same day.

Mr. WHEELER. I call for the regular order.

The question being put, the Speaker stated that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Several members called for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 75, noes 17.

So the resolution as amended was agreed to.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. MCMILLIN, and Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky, called for the yeas and nays on the motion to adjourn.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 68, nays 140, not voting 116; as follows:

YEAS—68.

Abbott,	Dockery,	McKinney,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Miss.	Dunn,	McMillin,	Sayers,
Anderson, Ill.	Enloe,	McRae,	Shaw,
Bacon,	Ford,	McShane,	Shively,
Bankhead,	Grimes,	Moore,	Smith,
Barnes,	Henderson, N. C.	Morgan,	Springer,
Barry,	Herbert,	Morse,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Howard,	Neal,	Stone, Ky.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Johnston, N. C.	Norwood,	Tarsney,
Buckalew,	Kilgore,	Oates,	Tillman,
Bynum,	Landes,	O'Neall, Ind.	Turner, Ga.
Candler,	Lane,	Peel,	Vance,
Carlton,	Lanham,	Phelan,	Walker,
Clements,	Lawler,	Richardson,	Washington,
Cowles,	Maish,	Robertson,	Weaver,
Crisp,	Martin,	Rogers,	Wheeler,
Cummings,	McClammy,	Rowland,	Whiting, Mich.

NAYS—140.

Allen, Mass.	Buchanan,	Dibble,	Holman,
Allen, Mich.	Bunnell,	Ermentrout,	Holmes,
Anderson, Iowa	Burrows,	Farquhar,	Hopkins, Ill.
Arnold,	Butler,	Fitch,	Hopkins, Va.
Atkinson,	Butterworth,	Fuller,	Hovey,
Baker, N. Y.	Campbell, F., N. Y.	Funston,	Hudd,
Baker, Ill.	Campbell, Ohio	Gaines,	Hunter,
Bayne,	Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Gallinger,	Kennedy,
Belden,	Cannon,	Gear,	Kerr,
Bingham,	Caruth,	Gest,	Laidlaw,
Bliss,	Caswell,	Glover,	Laird,
Boothman,	Cheadle,	Goff,	Latham,
Bound,	Chipman,	Grout,	Lehlbach,
Boutelle,	Cogswell,	Guenther,	Lind,
Bowden,	Compton,	Hall,	Lodge,
Bowen,	Conger,	Harmer,	Long,
Brewer,	Cooper,	Haugen,	Lyman,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Crouse,	Henderson, Iowa	Mahoney,
Brown, Ohio	Dalzell,	Henderson, Ill.	Mansur,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Darlington,	Hermann,	Mason,
Brumm,	Davis,	Hitt,	Matson,

McCormick,	Patton,	Seney,	Thomas, Ky.
McCreary,	Perkins,	Seymour,	Thomas, Wis.
McKenna,	Peters,	Sherman,	Townshend,
McKinley,	Post,	Sowden,	Turner, Kans.
Merriman,	Pugsley,	Spooner,	Wade,
Moffitt,	Randall,	Stahlnecker,	Warner,
Montgomery,	Reed,	Steele,	Weber,
Morrow,	Rice,	Stephenson,	White, Ind.
Nichols,	Rockwell,	Stewart, Vt.	Wickham,
O'Ferrall,	Romeis,	Struble,	Wilkins,
O'Neill, Pa.	Rowell,	Symes,	Williams,
Osborne,	Russell, Conn.	Taulbee,	Woodburn,
Owen,	Sawyer,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio	Yardley,
Parker,	Scull,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio	Yost.

NOT VOTING—116.

Adams,	Dingley,	Houk,	Perry,
Allen, Miss.	Dorsey,	Hutton,	Phelps,
Anderson, Kans.	Dougherty,	Jackson,	Pidcock,
Belmont,	Dunham,	Johnston, Ind.	Plumb,
Biggs,	Elliott,	Jones,	Rayner,
Blanchard,	Felton,	Kean,	Rusk,
Bland,	Finley,	Kelley,	Ryan,
Blount,	Fisher,	Ketcham,	Scott,
Brower,	Flood,	Laffoon,	Simmons,
Browne, Ind.	Foran,	La Follette,	Snyder,
Bryce,	Forney,	Lagan,	Spinola,
Burnes,	French,	Lee,	Stewart, Tex.
Burnett,	Gay,	Lynch,	Stewart, Ga.
Catchings,	Gibson,	Macdonald,	Stone, Mo.
Clardy,	Glass,	Maffett,	Thomas, Ill.
Clark,	Granger,	McAdoo,	Thompson, Ohio
Cobb,	Greenman,	McComas,	Thompson, Cal.
Cockran,	Grosvenor,	McCullogh,	Tracey,
Collins,	Hare,	Milliken,	Vandever,
Cothran,	Hatch,	Mills,	West,
Cox,	Hayden,	Morrill,	White, N. Y.
Crain,	Hayes,	Nelson,	Whiting, Mass.
Culberson,	Heard,	Newton,	Whitthorne,
Cutcheon,	Hemphill,	Nutting,	Wilber,
Dargan,	Hiestand,	O'Donnell,	Wilkinson,
Davenport,	Hires,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilson, Minn.
Davidson, Ala.	Hogg,	Outhwaite,	Wilson, W. Va.
Davidson, Fla.	Hooker,	Payson,	Wise,
De Lano,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Penington,	Yoder.

So the motion to adjourn was not agreed to.

Mr. COWLES. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. COWLES. On the 20th of March I was paired with the gentleman from Ohio, Mr. THOMPSON. The pair is in the usual form. It states that Mr. COWLES, and Mr. THOMPSON, of Ohio, are paired on all political questions, reserving the right to vote to make a quorum.

Now, sir, I wish to inquire whether, according to the custom of the House in such matters, the pair restricts me from voting on this bill.

The SPEAKER. That is not a parliamentary question which the Chair can answer. Each gentleman must determine for himself the question of his right to vote.

Mr. COWLES. I supposed there was some custom in the House in regard to such matters.

The SPEAKER. It is not a question for the Chair to decide.

Mr. STRUBLE. Does not the gentleman know that a good many of his Democratic friends are in favor of this bill?

Mr. COWLES. Yes, a good many are in favor of it and a good many are opposed to it.

Mr. STRUBLE. Then it can not be a political question.

Mr. COWLES. I have no desire to vote unless I have a right to do so. I desire to do only what is honorable and fair in the matter.

The Clerk proceeded to recapitulate the names of members voting.

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the names be dispensed with.

Mr. BOUTELLE objected, but subsequently withdrew his objection.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Maine withdraws his objection. Is there further objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE]?

Mr. WASHINGTON. I object.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. HATCH with Mr. DAVENPORT, on this bill, until noon to-morrow.

Mr. DOUGHERTY with Mr. MACDONALD, on this bill, for the rest of the day.

Mr. BROWNE, of Indiana, with Mr. HARE, for this day.

Mr. BLOUNT with Mr. WHITE, of New York, until 12 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. RYAN with Mr. BURNES, for this day.

Mr. MORRILL with Mr. STONE, of Missouri, for this calendar day.

Mr. OUTHWAITE with Mr. FORAN, on this bill, for the rest of the day.

Mr. PENINGTON with Mr. WHITING, of Massachusetts, on this bill, until to-morrow.

Mr. HAYES with Mr. LEE, on this bill, until to-morrow afternoon.

Mr. OWEN. Mr. Speaker, I believe I am marked as not present. I am here and have been voting.

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman was not present at the roll-call, under the order for the call of the House he will appear among the absentees unless he afterwards came in and reported to the Clerk.

Mr. OWEN. That is just what I am seeking to do now, but I did not know the necessity of doing it until a few moments ago.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri. I desire to present a request for unanimous consent.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I object. There is no business in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DOCKERY). Objection is made.

Mr. GLOVER. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with further proceedings under the call and to take a recess until 11.45 to-morrow.

Mr. McRAE, Mr. OATES and, others objected.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. In the interest of peace and harmony and good-will to all, I ask unanimous consent that this House take a recess until to-morrow at 9.50 a. m.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, and others objected.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, I renew my request, making the time 11.45 instead of 9.50. I hope gentlemen will not object.

Mr. McRAE and Mr. OATES objected.

Mr. McMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, my colleague, General WHITTHORNE, has sent me word that he is too unwell to attend the session to-night, and has requested me to ask leave of absence for him during this calendar day.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. He is paired, I believe?

Mr. McMILLIN. Yes.

There was no objection, and Mr. WHITTHORNE was excused for this calendar day.

Mr. LAWLER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say a word in the cause of humanity. Though it may be amusement to members to continue here in session, it is very hard to keep the employés of the House here. I believe that the House will accomplish nothing by remaining in session to-night. No doubt this thing is to be carried on; but in the interest of these employés, who came here early this morning, who have been here up to this hour of the night, and who must be here early to-morrow morning, I think we ought to agree to the motion I now make that we take a recess until 11 o'clock and 50 minutes to-morrow morning.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. RICHARDSON). The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. LAWLER] asks unanimous consent that further proceedings under the call be dispensed with, and——

A MEMBER. It was a motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman can not now make a motion for a recess; it can only be put in the form of a request for unanimous consent. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent that the House dispense will all further proceedings under the call and take a recess until to-morrow morning at 11.45.

Mr. FORD and others objected.

Mr. REED. I hope our harmony of action will not be interrupted by any more of these requests.

Mr. LAWLER. My request was for a recess until 11.50. The Speaker stated the hour as 11.45.

Several members objected.

Mr. PERKINS. I ask unanimous consent that the clerks and other employés of the House be excused from duty until 11.45 to-morrow morning. Members can remain here if they wish.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kansas asks unanimous consent that the clerks and other employés of the House be excused from further attendance until 11.45 to-morrow morning.

Mr. REED. I object.

Some time subsequently,

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan, said: I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess for twelve hours.

Mr. McRAE and others objected.

Mr. McCLAMMY. I ask unanimous consent that the Sergeant-at-Arms and his deputies be excused for the remainder of this day.

Objection was made.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, the conductors on the elevators of the House go on duty about 9 o'clock in the morning, and work hard all day.

A MEMBER. So do we.

Mr. TAULBEE. They are still on duty. I ask unanimous consent that they be excused until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Another friend of the laboring man! [Laughter.]

Mr. REED. I object.

Mr. TAULBEE. I hope the good-natured gentleman from Maine will not object.

Mr. REED. The "good-natured gentleman from Maine" is not here.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is made.

Mr. FARQUHAR. I ask unanimous consent that the Sergeant-at-Arms be instructed to relieve the employés on the elevator until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. I think that under the rules this is the proper way in which to relieve those employés.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. McMILLIN). Pending a call of the House, no business can be transacted except that designated by the rule as connected with the call.

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask unanimous consent that the conductors of the public elevator on the west side of the Capitol be relieved until 9 o'clock in the morning.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair stated a moment ago that no business of any kind is now in order.

Mr. TAULBEE. I thought the gentleman from New York [Mr. FARQUHAR] made a motion. My request was for unanimous consent.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. No business is in order except the matters designated by the rule as permissible pending a call of the House.

Mr. SOWDEN. I understand that my colleague [Mr. MAISH] is seriously indisposed; and I therefore ask that he be excused from further attendance on the session of the House during this calendar day.

There was no objection, and Mr. MAISH was excused.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. MONTGOMERY] asks unanimous consent to be excused from further attendance until 9 o'clock to-morrow (Wednesday) morning, on account of important business.

Several members objected.

Mr. LAWLER. I am earnestly requested to ask to have excused from further attendance to-night all married men who may be here now, the object being that they may retire to their families and homes.

Several members objected.

Mr. MCCREARY (at 12 o'clock and 20 minutes a. m. Wednesday). I move to dispense with further proceedings under the call.

The motion was not agreed to.

Mr. COMPTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. COMPTON. What are we here for? [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore [Mr. MCMILLIN]. For the purpose of securing a quorum to transact the public business.

Mr. COMPTON. We do not seem to be making much progress in that direction.

Mr. SHIVELY. Mr. Speaker, if we are here to transact business, I ask unanimous consent to call up House bill 2197——

Mr. REED. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state that such a request is not in order now, and the gentleman from Maine [Mr. REED] objects.

Mr. WILKINS. I move that all further proceedings under the call be dispensed with, with a view to taking a recess until to-morrow morning at 11.45 o'clock.

The question was taken; and on a division there were—ayes 35, noes 67.

Mr. WILKINS. I demand tellers.

The SPEAKER pro tempore proceeded to submit the question on the demand for tellers.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Pending that I move that the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES], the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE], the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE], and the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] be excused from voting on this question. [Cries of "Regular order!"]

A MEMBER. I object.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I make the motion.

Mr. CRISP. I demand a division of the question.

Mr. OATES. Whenever I want the gentleman from Maine to do anything for me I will request it.

Mr. WILKINS. I raise the point of order that the motion of the gentleman is not in order. The House is dividing, and nothing is in order but that division.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I submit, Mr. Speaker, that the only time to make this motion is before the vote is taken. This is the proper time to make it, and no member can be excused under the rule unless he be excused in advance of the vote.

Mr. WILKINS. This is not a yea-and-nay vote.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I understand that.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The fact that the vote is not by yea and nay would not affect the question, for the same rule would govern, the only difference being that a record is made in one case and not in the other.

Mr. WEAVER. The gentleman from Maine had no authority, so far as I am concerned, to make such a request.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Mr. Speaker——

[Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. TAULBEE. I make the point of order that the motion of the gentleman from Maine is not debatable, and demand the regular order.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I submit that my motion is in order and pending; and I desire to say that, under the rulings of the presiding officers of this House, I do not understand that it is at all necessary that I should be requested by the gentleman from Iowa or any other of the gentlemen named to make the motion I have made in order that it should come within the rule. It is, under the rulings to which I have referred, entirely proper for any member to make the motion, whether he be requested or not.

Mr. TAULBEE. I insist upon the regular order. This question is not debatable.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair sustains the point of order.

Mr. BOUTELLE. But I had the floor, Mr. Speaker, I believe, on my motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. But the gentleman from Kentucky makes the point of order that the motion is not debatable, and the Chair sustains the point.

Mr. CANNON. I submit that the gentleman from Maine can not be taken off the floor in that way. He had the floor and had commenced to occupy the hour to which he is entitled under the rule, and the point of order comes too late.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I submit that I was engaged in addressing the Chair, and the Chair was entertaining my remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. But when a point of order is made that the motion to which the gentleman is addressing himself is not a debatable motion the Chair is bound to take cognizance of the point of order.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I would like the Chair to state how my motion is not in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair does not so state, but holds that the motion is not debatable.

Mr. BOUTELLE. But it is in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks it is in order to move to excuse a member upon a pending vote.

Mr. WILKINS. I again raise the point of order that the House was dividing, and the Speaker had called upon those in favor of taking the vote by tellers to rise. The Speaker was taking the vote, and that vote can not be interrupted.

Mr. BOUTELLE. And I repeat, as I said before, that the only possible time for me to interpose and protect the gentlemen I have named from the necessity of voting is before the vote is taken. I am but following in the footsteps of the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] when he exercised the same humane care over the voting privilege of the gentleman from New Hampshire quite recently. [Laughter.]

Mr. TAULBEE. There is nothing before the House debatable, and the gentleman from Maine is out of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair understood the gentleman from Maine to rise to debate the point of order of the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. TAULBEE. Do I understand the Chair to state that the gentleman from Ohio had stated a point of order to which the gentleman was addressing himself?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair so states.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Is not the point of order debatable?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state that the Chair was entertaining the remarks of the gentleman from Maine on the ground the Chair has discretion to hear members on a point of order.

Mr. BOUTELLE. So I understood; and to that I desire to address my remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. But the merits of the question presented are not debatable.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Exactly, and I was about to address myself to the point of order.

The point I desired to enforce was that under the late rulings of the presiding officers of the House it is not necessary for the gentleman from Iowa or either of the other gentlemen named to ask me to request this relief for them, but it is entirely competent for me to make the request of my own volition, and the inference from the rulings to which I have alluded is that it would be out of order for them, or either of them, to interpose any objection to this request of mine. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair knows of no ruling of the Chair which goes to the extent of holding that a member can, against the will of a fellow-member, move to have him excused from voting.

Mr. WEAVER. Mr. Speaker——

Mr. BOUTELLE. I would like to have a vote of the House upon that motion.

Mr. WEAVER. I move to amend, so as to excuse the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] and the other members from the State of Maine. [Laughter.]

Mr. BOUTELLE. Is that an amendment?

Mr. WEAVER. That is an amendment.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Speaker, this motion having been made in good faith to elucidate the rule, I wish to pursue it a little further, and upon this preliminary motion I move that the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] be excused from voting. [Laughter.]

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There is a motion now pending before the House, and the motion of the gentleman from New York [Mr. PARKER] is not in order.

Mr. TAULBEE. I rise to a parliamentary question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TAULBEE. I want to know whether or not, if this motion prevail, it will then be in order for the member so excused to vote without putting himself in contempt.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is a hypothetical question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is not a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask that question with a view to be enabled to vote intelligently upon the motion made by the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE.]

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is an impossibility. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Gentlemen must decide for themselves upon the propriety of voting upon any question. The Chair can not undertake to say when it will or will not be proper for a member to vote after any action that shall be taken by the House. That is a matter for the member himself.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I wish the Chair would kindly state the condition of the question as it now stands.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] moved to excuse the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES], the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER], the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE], and the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE], from voting. The gentleman from Georgia [Mr. CRISP] demanded a division of the question. Pending that the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] moved, as an amendment, to excuse the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] himself from voting, and the question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER].

The question was taken by a viva voce vote, and the Speaker pro tempore declared that the "ayes" had it, and the amendment was adopted. [Laughter.]

Mr. WILKINS. Regular order!

Mr. BOUTELLE. We would like to know now which gentleman is excused.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The name of the gentleman who now has the floor [Mr. BOUTELLE] has been added to his motion to excuse others.

Mr. BOUTELLE. What becomes of my motion?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question recurs upon the motion as amended, and the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. CRISP] has demanded a division of the question.

Mr. CANNON. I rise to a privileged motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. CANNON. I desire to move that upon this motion I be excused from voting.

Mr. WEAVER. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CANNON] moves as an amendment to the motion of the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] which has just been amended——

Mr. CANNON. No, no.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Then the Chair will be obliged to the gentleman from Illinois if he will state his motion.

Mr. CANNON. My motion is that I be excused from voting upon the motion to excuse the gentleman from Kentucky from voting.

Mr. TAULBEE. There is no such motion pending. I have been lying in wait for such a motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state that there is no motion pending to excuse the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] from voting.

Mr. BOUTELLE. It is to excuse the other gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE].

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Maine——

Mr. CANNON. I rise to another privileged motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. CANNON. I move that I be excused from voting upon the motion to excuse whoever is proposed to be excused. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair fears the gentleman's motion is too indefinite to be understood by anybody except himself.

Mr. CANNON. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. CANNON. What is the motion before the House?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion before the House is the motion of the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] to excuse the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE], the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER], the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE], and the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES] from voting; which motion has been amended by adding the gentleman from Maine, himself [Mr. BOUTELLE].

Mr. CANNON. Now, then——

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TAULBEE. If I caught the statement of the Chair correctly it was that the motion pending was to excuse "the gentleman from Kentucky," without designating particularly any of the members from Kentucky, all of whom I believe are present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has already indicated that the Chair did not understand that there was any motion pending to excuse from voting the gentleman from Kentucky who is directly in front of the Chair [Mr. TAULBEE].

Mr. CANNON. Then I rise to a privileged motion. That is, that the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] be excused from voting upon the pending motion; and pending that I desire to give notice to the Chair that when that motion shall be stated——

The SPEAKER pro tempore (interposing). The Chair will take notice of events as they arise

Mr. CANNON. Well, I hope the Chair will.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is upon the motion of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CANNON] that the gentleman from Maine be excused from voting——

Mr. BAYNE. I rise to a privileged motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will not recognize any gentleman until the pending motion is stated to the House.

Mr. BAYNE. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman can not be recognized for any purpose until the question is stated to the House. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CANNON] that the gentleman from Maine be excused from voting.

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker——

Mr. BAYNE. Mr. Speaker——

Mr. ROWELL. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Speaker, pending these motions, as there seems to be a disposition to do nothing but trifle with the rules, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. MONTGOMERY] moves that the House do now adjourn.

As many as are in favor of the motion will say ay; those opposed no.

The question was taken by a viva voce vote.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The "noes" seem to have it, and the House refuses to adjourn.

While the question was being put, Mr. ROWELL and several others on the Republican side addressed the Chair and demanded the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Gentlemen will take their seats and the House will be in order; then the Chair will recognize gentlemen in order.

Mr. TAULBEE. I rise to a question of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The House will be in order. Gentlemen will please resume their seats.

Mr. REED. I call for the yeas and nays on the motion to adjourn.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will recognize no one till order is restored.

Mr. REED. I hold the floor for the purpose of calling for the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The House will be in order.

The Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms proceeded through the Hall, carrying the mace.

Mr. CANNON. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. REED. On the motion to adjourn I call for the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair announced that on the motion to adjourn the "noes" seemed to have it, and upon that the gentleman from Maine demanded the yeas and nays. The question is on ordering the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will call the roll.

Mr. BURROWS. I rise to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BURROWS. The gentleman from Maine made a motion to be excused or for some one to be excused.

Mr. BOUTELLE. It was not for myself.

Mr. BURROWS. And I understood the gentleman from Illinois to move an amendment. Would not that be in order as an amendment to the previous motion?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state the question is upon the motion of the gentleman from Kentucky that the House adjourn, and upon that the yeas and nays have been ordered. The Clerk will call the roll.

Mr. BURROWS. I alluded to the previous motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will decide as to that when it is before the House. It is not before the House pending the roll-call on the motion to adjourn.

Mr. BOUTELLE addressed the Chair.

[Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. BOUTELLE. This is the regular order. I understand the motion to adjourn having been interposed cuts off action upon the other motions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion to adjourn is the pending motion, on which the yeas and nays have been ordered. The Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 65, nays 122, not voting 137; as follows:

YEAS—65.

Abbott,	Caruth,	Kilgore,	Montgomery,
Anderson, Miss.	Clements,	Lagan,	Moore,
Anderson, Ill.	Cowles,	Landes,	Morgan,
Bacon,	Crain,	Lane,	Morse,
Bankhead,	Crisp,	Lanham,	Neal,
Barnes,	Cummings,	Lawler,	Norwood,
Barry,	Enloe,	Martin,	Oates,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Ford,	McClammy,	O'Neall, Ind.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Grimes,	McCreary,	Peel,
Buckalew,	Henderson, N. C.	McKinney,	Phelan,
Bynum,	Hooker,	McMillin,	Richardson,
Candler,	Howard,	McRae,	Robertson,
Carlton,	Johnston, N. C.	McShane,	Rogers,

Rowland,	Shively,	Tarsney,	Whiting, Mich.
Russell, Mass.	Stewart, Tex.	Tillman,
Sayers,	Stockdale,	Walker,
Shaw,	Stone, Ky.	Weaver,

NAYS—122.

Allen, Mass.	Davis,	Laidlaw,	Sawyer,
Allen, Mich.	Dibble,	Latham,	Scull,
Anderson, Iowa.	Elliott,	Lehlbach,	Seney,
Arnold,	Farquhar,	Lind,	Seymour,
Baker, N. Y.	Fitch,	Lodge,	Sherman,
Baker, Ill.	Fuller,	Long,	Sowden,
Bayne,	Funston,	Lyman,	Spooner,
Belden,	Gaines,	Mansur,	Stahlnecker,
Bingham,	Gallinger,	Mason,	Steele,
Boothman,	Gear,	McAdoo,	Stephenson,
Bound,	Gest,	McCormick,	Stewart, Vt.
Boutelle,	Goff,	McKenna,	Struble,
Bowden,	Grout,	McKinley,	Symes,
Bowen,	Guenther,	Moffitt,	Taulbee,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Hall,	Morrow,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Harmer,	Nichols,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio.
Bryce,	Haugen,	O'Ferrall,	Thomas, Ky.
Buchanan,	Henderson, Iowa.	O'Neill, Penn.	Thomas, Wis.
Bunnell,	Henderson, Ill.	Osborne,	Turner, Kans.
Burrows,	Hermann,	Parker,	Wade,
Butterworth,	Hitt,	Perkins,	Warner,
Cannon,	Holmes,	Peters,	Weber,
Caswell,	Hopkins, Ill.	Post,	White, Ind.
Cheadle,	Hopkins, Va.	Pugsley,	Wickham,
Chipman,	Houk,	Randall,	Wilkins,
Cogswell,	Hovey,	Reed,	Williams,
Conger,	Hunter,	Rice,	Woodburn,
Cooper,	Johnston, Ind.	Rockwell.	Yardley,
Crouse,	Kean,	Romeis,	Yost.
Dalzell,	Kennedy,	Rowell,
Darlington,	Kerr,	Russell, Conn.

NOT VOTING—137.

Adams,	Davidson, Fla.	Hudd,	Plumb,
Allen, Miss.	De Lano,	Hutton,	Rayner,
Anderson, Kans.	Dingley,	Jackson,	Rusk,
Atkinson,	Dockery,	Jones,	Ryan,
Belmont,	Dorsey,	Kelley,	Scott,
Biggs,	Dougherty,	Ketcham,	Simmons,
Blanchard,	Dunham,	Laffoon,	Smith,
Bland,	Dunn,	La Follette,	Snyder,
Bliss,	Ermentrout,	Laird,	Spinola,
Blount,	Felton,	Lee,	Springer,
Brewer,	Finley,	Lynch,	Stewart, Ga.
Brower,	Fisher,	Macdonald,	Stone, Mo.
Browne, Ind.	Flood,	Maffett,	Thomas, Ill.
Brown, Ohio.	Foran,	Mahoney,	Thompson, Ohio.
Brumm,	Forney,	Maish,	Thompson, Cal.
Burnes,	French,	Matson,	Tracey,
Burnett,	Gay,	McComas,	Townshend,
Butler,	Gibson,	McCullogh,	Turner, Ga.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Glass,	Merriman,	Vance,
Campbell, Ohio.	Glover,	Milliken,	Vandever,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Granger,	Mills,	Washington,
Catchings,	Greenman,	Morrill,	West,
Clardy,	Grosvenor,	Nelson,	Wheeler,
Clark,	Hare,	Newton,	White, N. Y.
Cobb,	Hatch,	Nutting,	Whiting, Mass.
Cockran,	Hayden,	O'Donnell,	Whitthorne,
Collins,	Hayes,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilber,
Compton,	Heard,	Outhwaite,	Wilkinson,
Cothran,	Hemphill,	Owen,	Wilson, Minn.
Cox,	Herbert,	Patton,	Wilson, W. Va.
Culberson,	Hiestand,	Payson,	Wise,
Cutcheon,	Hires,	Penington,	Yoder.
Dargan,	Hogg,	Perry,
Davenport,	Holman,	Phelps,
Davidson, Ala.	Hopkins, N. Y.	Pidcock,

So the House refused to adjourn.

Mr. SOWDEN. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the names be dispensed with.

There was no objection.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. DOCKERY with Mr. PATTON, until further notice.

Mr. WHITTHORNE with Mr. BUTLER, for the rest of the day.

Mr. TOWNSHEND with Mr. BROWN, of Ohio, for the rest of the day.

Mr. FISHER with Mr. BREWER, for the rest of the day.

Mr. CLARDY with Mr. LAIRD, for the rest of the day.

The result of the vote was then announced as above stated.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I ask unanimous consent that my colleague, Mr. BREWER, be excused until to-morrow at 9 o'clock. He has been obliged to go home, sick.

There was no objection.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair desires the gentleman from Ohio to suspend for a moment. When the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. MONTGOMERY] made the motion to adjourn, a motion was pending to excuse four gentlemen named from voting. That had been amended by including the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE]. Thereupon the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CANNON] had risen and moved that another member, the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE], be excused from voting on that question of excusing the four gentlemen named, and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS] has made a parliamentary inquiry as to whether the motion of the gentleman from Illinois is in order.

The Chair thinks that the motion that the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] be excused from voting on a motion to excuse another member from voting would not be in order, and will have read from the Clerk's desk a ruling on the subject in the Thirty-seventh Congress, when the same question came up, and it was decided by the then presiding officer, Mr. Grow, that it was not in order to excuse a member from voting on the question of excusing another member from voting.

The Clerk read as follows from the proceedings of the House of Representatives January 28, 1863:

Mr. COX. I ask to be excused from voting on this question. I believe this is part of a plot to drive the slave States out of the Union. [Cries of "Order!"]

The SPEAKER. Debate is not in order.

Mr. MALLORY. I demand the yeas and nays on excusing the gentleman from Ohio.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. VALLANDIGHAM. I ask to be excused from voting on the question of excusing my colleague.

The SPEAKER. The Chair can not receive that motion.

Mr. VALLANDIGHAM. Why not?

The SPEAKER. It has been decided heretofore that such a motion is not in order.

Mr. COX. I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Mr. HOLMAN. I call for the yeas and nays on the appeal.

Mr. MAYNARD. I move to lay the appeal on the table.

Mr. CRAVENS. On that I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. COX] asked to be excused from voting on the proposition before the House, and on that the yeas and nays were demanded and ordered. The gentleman from Ohio on the right [Mr. Vallandigham] asks to be excused from voting on the request of his colleague.

The Chair decides that that motion can not be received, as the rules only contemplate that gentlemen shall be excused from voting on business before the House. The Chair recollects that in the Congress of which Mr. Orr was Speaker this question came up, and the Speaker, after he had once allowed such motions to be made and they had accumulated, finally decided that he would not entertain more than one motion to excuse a member from voting at a time. The Chair, in conformity with that precedent, decides the motion of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Vallandigham] to be out of order.

* * * * * * *

The question was then taken on Mr. Maynard's motion to lay upon the table the appeal from the decision of the Chair, and it was decided in the affirmative—yeas 121, nays 3; as follows:

* * * * * * *

So the appeal was laid upon the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has no hesitancy in deciding the motion of the gentleman from Illinois out of order.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire what the pending proposition is?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The pending question is on the motion of the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] to excuse the gentleman from Ohio, the gentleman from Kentucky, the gentleman from Arkansas, and the gentleman from Alabama from voting.

Mr. OATES. The gentleman from Maine had no authority and no right to ask that I be excused from voting; and there is no ruling of this House which authorizes a member to make a motion to excuse another member in spite of his objection.

Mr. CANNON. Mr. Speaker, a single parliamentary inquiry. Was there a point of order made upon the motion I submitted?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair so understood.

Mr. CANNON. I think not.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There was confusion in the Hall at the time, and the Chair may have misunderstood the point which was made. There were a number of points of order made; the Chair understood one of those points applied to the motion of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CANNON].

Mr. CANNON. The Chair may have been correct.

Mr. TAULBEE. If I correctly understood the Chair, he stated the pending question was to excuse from voting a number of gentlemen, among whom was named "the gentleman from Kentucky." Inasmuch as it is well known that there are more gentlemen than one from Kentucky, I desire to know which gentleman is referred to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk informed the Chair that the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] was indicated.

Mr. BOUTELLE. As I understand the statement of the Chair, the pending question is on my motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Yes, sir.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That motion is in order?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair so rules.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I presume the object of my motion was obvious; and the motion having been declared in order by the Chair, and the Chair being about to put the question, I now, at the suggestion of my friend from Ohio, and having accomplished the object for which I made the motion, withdraw it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Maine withdraws his motion.

Mr. TAULBEE. Is it competent for the gentleman to withdraw the motion? It has been amended. Is it not in the possession of the House and under consideration?

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I hope my friend from Kentucky will allow no question to arise on that matter. I trust that by consent the motion will be allowed to be withdrawn.

Mr. TAULBEE. I desire to state for the benefit of the gentleman from Ohio that I have no power to prevent such motions from arising when they naturally do arise. The question is already before the House; and I simply ask whether it is competent for the gentleman from Maine to withdraw from the consideration of the House a question upon the consideration of which the House has already entered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If objection is made the Chair must rule that the question is with the House, and the motion can not be withdrawn after amendment without the consent of the House. Is there objection?

Mr. TAULBEE. Yes, sir; I object.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I rose to inquire whether there had been any amendment. There was an amendment offered, but the Chair ruled it out.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendment which was offered was to add the name of the gentleman from Maine to his own proposition. The Chair would be compelled to hold that in order.

Mr. BUCKALEW. Mr. Speaker, I do not understand that the Speaker of this House on a former occasion ruled on any such question, or made any such decision, as has been stated on the floor, and I protest against the present occupant of the chair accepting a statement made upon the floor of the House as a decision of the regular Speaker of the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. What was the point made by the gentleman from Pennsylvania? The Chair was otherwise engaged for the moment, and will be thankful for another statement.

Mr. BUCKALEW. I was addressing myself to the question of order raised here. I understand the decision of the Speaker to have been this: That the Chair would presume that a gentleman who made a motion to excuse another member was authorized to do so by the member to be excused, unless the contrary was openly stated upon the floor by the member for whom the request was made.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Pennsylvania that the Chair did not indicate that the Chair would have any presumption about it. The gentleman is in error about that. But as a matter of fact, if the Chair was called upon to rule on the question at all, he would, in the absence of any recollection of a ruling to the contrary upon the question, be inclined to hold that one member would not have a right to have any member's privilege of voting upon any question submitted to the determination of the House against his consent.

Mr. OATES. If the Chair will permit me, the gentleman from Pennsylvania had reference, I think, to the ruling of the Speaker a few evenings since—not to the present ruling, but some evenings ago—where it was stated that the Chair entertained the motion because when it was made, and in the presence of the member to be excused, the presumption was that it was by his assent, which was the reason the Chair entertained it; evidently implying, as I understand my friend from Pennsylvania——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The present occupant of the Chair simply stated, and desired to rule no further, the question not having been raised, that he would not entertain a motion to excuse a member from voting who rose and stated that he did not seek to be excused.

Mr. BUCKALEW. I raise the question of order that the pending motion, as presented, is entirely out of order. It is manifest that it is absurd for one member of this House to be permitted to make a motion to excuse another member from voting upon a question without his consent; and whenever the point is made upon the floor, when a motion of that character is presented, the Speaker should rule it out of order.

I make a motion, for instance, to excuse the gentleman from Alabama from voting, and the House acts upon that motion, sustaining it. Does that prevent him from voting? Does that cut him off from the exercise of his constitutional right? Has he not the privilege of voting notwithstanding such action? If it binds him, which I assume will not be held, then of course the House by a majority vote could prevent any member from exercising his constitutional prerogative. It is an absurdity.

As I stated the other day, as the usual and accepted practice of all deliberative bodies of which I have any personal knowledge, a member will rise and make some explanation of his position and follow it by a request substantially that he was not present when the matter was debated, and asks to be excused from voting. That is the usual manner when such questions are presented for the action of deliberative bodies. Then another member makes a formal motion that the member so requesting be excused from voting on the pending proposition. That has become so much a matter of course, that the Speaker even submits the motion on the request of a member without waiting for a formal motion; but in all cases the request must proceed from the member himself, because it is his personal privilege, and he has to state the reason for making the request. The House then proceeds to act upon the personal request of the member, relieving him from the position in which he may be placed, by absolving him from the necessity of voting upon the question.

Mr. REED. I think that is sound doctrine.

Mr. BUCKALEW. I protest against any member making a motion to excuse any other member without his express consent. It is his right to make the request himself, a right which belongs to him as a question of personal privilege, and does not rest in anybody else.

Mr. TAULBEE. With reference to the point of order made by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, I will simply suggest that, if it be well taken had it been made in time, it is now too late, because the House has proceeded to the consideration of the question. But to avoid further trouble I withdraw the objection to the request of the gentleman from Maine that he be allowed to withdraw his motion to excuse the members named.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair hears no further objection to the withdrawal of the request.

Mr. WILKINS. I now demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The regular order is the demand for tellers on the motion to suspend further proceedings under the call of the House.

Mr. FARQUHAR. On that I ask the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 48, nays 121, not voting 154; as follows:

YEAS—48.

Abbott,	Crain,	Lane,	Rowland,
Anderson, Ill.	Crisp,	Lanham,	Sayers,
Bankhead,	Culberson,	Latham,	Shaw,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Cummings,	Lawler,	Shively,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Ford,	Martin,	Springer,
Buckalew,	Hall,	McClammy,	Stewart, Tex.
Bynum,	Henderson, N. C.	McCreary,	Stone, Ky.
Candler,	Hooker,	McKinney,	Tarsney,
Caruth,	Howard,	Morse,	Tillman,
Chipman,	Johnston, N. C.	Neal,	Walker,
Clements,	Kilgore,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wheeler,
Cowles,	Lagan,	Peel,	Whiting, Mich.

NAYS—121.

Allen, Mass.	Dibble,	Lind,	Sawyer,
Allen, Mich.	Enloe,	Lodge,	Scull,
Anderson, Iowa	Farquhar,	Long,	Seney,
Arnold,	Fitch,	Lyman,	Seymour,
Baker, N. Y.	Fuller,	Mansur,	Sherman,
Baker, Ill.	Funston,	Mason,	Sowden,
Barnes,	Gaines,	McAdoo,	Spooner,
Bayne,	Gallinger,	McCormick,	Stahlnecker,
Belden,	Gear,	McKinley,	Steele,
Bingham,	Gest,	McRae,	Stephenson,
Boothman,	Goff,	Moffitt,	Stewart, Vt.
Bound,	Grimes,	Montgomery,	Struble,
Boutelle,	Grout,	Nichols,	Symes,
Bowden,	Guenther,	O'Ferrall,	Taulbee,
Bowen,	Harmer,	O'Neill, Pa.	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Haugen,	Osborne,	Thomas, Ky.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Henderson, Iowa	Parker,	Thomas, Wis.
Buchanan,	Hermann,	Perkins,	Turner, Kans.
Bunnell,	Hitt,	Peters,	Wade,
Burrows,	Holmes,	Phelan,	Warner,
Butterworth,	Hopkins, Ill.	Post,	Weber,
Cannon,	Hopkins, Va.	Pugsley,	White, Ind.
Caswell,	Houk,	Randall,	Wickham,
Cheadle,	Hovey,	Reed,	Wilkins,
Cogswell,	Hunter,	Rice,	Williams,
Conger,	Johnston, Ind.	Richardson,	Woodburn,
Cooper,	Kean,	Rogers,	Yardley,
Crouse,	Kennedy,	Romeis,	Yost.
Dalzell,	Kerr,	Rowell,
Darlington,	Laidlaw,	Russell, Conn.
Davis,	Lehlbach,	Russell, Mass.

NOT VOTING—155.

Adams,	Davidson, Fla.	Jackson,	Perry,
Allen, Miss.	De Lano,	Jones,	Phelps,
Anderson, Miss.	Dingley,	Kelley,	Pidcock,
Anderson, Kans.	Dockery,	Ketcham,	Plumb,
Atkinson,	Dorsey,	Laffoon,	Rayner,
Bacon,	Dougherty,	La Follette,	Robertson,
Barry,	Dunham,	Laird,	Rockwell,
Belmont,	Dunn,	Landes,	Rusk,
Biggs,	Elliott,	Lee,	Ryan,
Blanchard,	Ermentrout,	Lynch,	Scott,
Bland,	Felton,	Macdonald,	Simmons,
Bliss,	Finley,	Maffett,	Smith,
Blount,	Fisher,	Mahoney,	Snyder,
Brewer,	Flood,	Maish,	Spinola,
Brower,	Foran,	Matson,	Stewart, Ga.
Browne, Ind.	Forney,	McComas,	Stockdale,
Brown, Ohio	French,	McCullogh,	Stone, Mo.
Brumm,	Gay,	McKenna,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bryce,	Gibson,	McMillin,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnes,	Glass,	McShane,	Thompson, Ohio
Burnett,	Glover,	Merriman,	Thompson, Cal.
Butler,	Granger,	Milliken,	Tracey,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Greenman,	Mills,	Townshend,
Campbell, Ohio.	Grosvenor,	Moore,	Turner, Ga.
Campbell, T J., N. Y.	Hare,	Morgan,	Vance,
Carlton,	Hatch,	Morrill,	Vandever,
Catchings,	Hayden,	Morrow,	Washington,
Clardy,	Hayes,	Nelson,	Weaver,
Clark,	Heard,	Newton,	West,
Cobb,	Hemphill,	Norwood,	White, N. Y.
Cockran,	Henderson, Ill.	Nutting,	Whiting, Mass.
Collins,	Herbert,	Oates,	Whitthorne,
Compton,	Hiestand,	O'Donnell,	Wilber,
Cothran,	Hires,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilkinson,
Cox,	Hogg,	Outhwaite,	Wilson, Minn.
Cutcheon,	Holman,	Owen,	Wilson, W. Va.
Dargan,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Patton,	Wise,
Davenport,	Hudd,	Payson,	Yoder.
Davidson, Ala.	Hutton,	Penington,

So the motion to dispense with further proceedings under the call was not agreed to.

Mr. WILKINS. I ask for unanimous consent to dispense with the recapitulation of the names.

There was no objection.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

Mr. MANSUR. I find myself within the last hour or two feeling very unwell, and I think in duty to myself I must ask to be excused.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Missouri, Mr. MANSUR, asks unanimous consent to be excused from further attendance on this calendar day, on account of illness.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I dislike very much to object to my friend from Missouri being excused if sick; but at this time of the night we all feel like being excused, and if we excuse so handsome and healthy looking a gentleman as the gentleman from Missouri the granting of excuses should be made more general. I have no objection to the gentleman taking possession of a lounge somewhere.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Kentucky object?

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky (at 2 o'clock a. m. Wednesday, April 11). That there may be no reason for supposing that I am ungracious about it I move that the House adjourn, so that we may all be excused.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kentucky moves that the House adjourn.

Mr. REED. Upon that motion I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 53, nays 119, not voting 152; as follows:

YEAS—53.

Anderson, Ill.	Ford,	McMillin,	Sayers,
Bacon,	Grimes,	Montgomery,	Shively,
Bankhead,	Henderson, N. C.	Moore,	Springer,
Barnes,	Hooker,	Morgan,	Stewart, Tex.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Howard,	Morse,	Stone, Ky.,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Johnston, N. C.	Neal,	Tarsney,
Buckalew,	Kilgore,	Oates,	Tillman,
Bynum,	Lane,	Peel,	Walker,
Candler,	Lanham,	Phelan,	Weaver,
Caruth,	Lawler,	Richardson,	Wheeler,
Cowles,	Martin,	Robertson,	Whiting, Mich.
Crain,	McClammy,	Rogers,
Crisp,	McCreary,	Rowland,
Enloe,	McKinney,	Russell, Mass.

NAYS—119.

Abbott,	Darlington,	Laidlaw,	Russell, Conn.
Allen, Mass.	Davis,	Latham,	Sawyer,
Allen, Mich.	Dibble,	Lehlbach,	Scull,
Anderson, Iowa.	Farquhar,	Lind,	Seney,
Arnold,	Fitch,	Lodge,	Seymour,
Baker, N. Y.	Fuller,	Long,	Sherman,
Baker, Ill.	Funston,	Lyman,	Sowden,
Bayne,	Gaines,	Mansur,	Spooner,
Belden,	Gallinger,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Boothman,	Gear,	McAdoo,	Steele,
Bound,	Gest,	McCormick,	Stephenson,
Boutelle,	Goff,	McKenna,	Stewart, Vt.
Bowden,	Grout,	McKinley,	Struble,
Bowen,	Guenther,	Moffitt,	Symes,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Harmer,	Morrow,	Taulbee,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Haugen,	Nichols,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Bryce,	Henderson, Iowa	O'Ferrall,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Buchanan,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Neill, Pa.	Thomas, Ky.
Bunnell,	Hermann,	Osborne,	Thomas, Wis.
Burrows,	Hitt,	Parker,	Turner, Kans.
Butterworth,	Holmes,	Perkins,	Wade,
Cannon,	Hopkins, Ill.	Peters,	Warner,
Caswell,	Hopkins, Va.	Post,	Weber,
Cheadle,	Houk,	Pugsley,	White, Ind.
Chipman,	Hovey,	Randall,	Wickham,
Cogswell,	Hunter,	Reed,	Wilkinson,
Conger,	Johnston, Ind.	Rice,	Williams,
Cooper,	Kean,	Rockwell,	Yardley,
Crouse,	Kennedy,	Romeis,	Yost.
Dalzell,	Kerr,	Rowell.

NOT VOTING—152.

Adams,	Dargan,	Holman,	Payson,
Allen, Miss.	Davenport,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Penington,
Anderson, Miss.	Davidson, Ala.	Hudd,	Perry,
Anderson, Kans.	Davidson, Fla.	Hutton,	Phelps,
Atkinson,	De Lano,	Jackson,	Pidcock,
Barry,	Dingley,	Jones,	Plumb,
Belmont,	Dockery,	Kelley,	Rayner,
Biggs,	Dorsey,	Ketcham,	Rusk,
Bingham,	Dougherty,	Laffoon,	Ryan,
Blanchard,	Dunham,	La Follette,	Scott,
Bland,	Dunn,	Lagan,	Shaw,
Bliss,	Elliott,	Laird,	Simmons,
Blount,	Ermentrout,	Landes,	Smith,
Brewer,	Felton,	Lee,	Snyder,
Brower,	Finley,	Lynch,	Spinola,
Browne, Ind.	Fisher,	Macdonald,	Stewart, Ga.
Brown, Ohio	Flood,	Maffett,	Stockdale,
Brumm,	Foran,	Mahoney,	Stone, Mo.
Burnes,	Forney,	Maish,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnett,	French,	Matson,	Thompson, Ohio.
Butler,	Gay,	McComas,	Thompson, Cal.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Gibson,	McCullogh,	Tracey,
Campbell, Ohio.	Glass,	McRae,	Townshend,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Glover,	McShane,	Turner, Ga.
Carlton,	Granger,	Merriman,	Vance,
Catchings,	Greenman,	Milliken,	Vandever,
Clardy,	Grosvenor,	Mills,	Washington,
Clark,	Hall,	Morrill,	West,
Clements,	Hare,	Nelson,	White, N. Y.
Cobb,	Hatch,	Newton,	Whiting, Mass.
Cockran,	Hayden,	Norwood,	Whitthorne,
Collins,	Hayes,	Nutting,	Wilber,
Compton,	Heard,	O'Donnell,	Wilkins,
Cothran,	Hemphill,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wilson, Minn.
Cox,	Herbert,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilson, W. Va.
Culberson,	Hiestand,	Outhwaite,	Wise,
Cummings,	Hires,	Owen,	Woodburn,
Cutcheon,	Hogg,	Patton,	Yoder.

So the House refused to adjourn.

Mr. SOWDEN. I hope the rule against smoking will be rigidly enforced.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will read the rule.

The Clerk read clause 7 of Rule XIV, as follows:

While the Speaker is putting a question or addressing the House no member shall walk out or across the Hall, nor, when a member is speaking, pass between him and the Chair; and during the session of the House no member shall wear his hat, or remain by the Clerk's desk during the call of the roll or the counting of ballots, or smoke upon the floor of the House; and the Sergeant-at-Arms and Doorkeeper are charged with the strict enforcement of this clause.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Doorkeeper will enforce the rule.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the names.

There was no objection.

The result of the vote was then announced as above stated.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I am requested to ask leave of absence for Mr. HARE, of Texas, until Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. He had to go home, sick. I told him I would call the attention of the House to that fact.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan asks unanimous consent to excuse the gentleman from Texas [Mr. HARE] from attendance until 11 o'clock on Wednesday, on account of sickness.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I object.

Mr. MANSUR. I desire to appeal from Cæsar to Rome. I move that I be excused until to-morrow, as I am not well enough to be here to-night.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to excusing the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. MANSUR]? The Chair hears none.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Was my request to excuse the gentleman from Texas [Mr. HARE] refused?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection was made.

Mr. FARQUHAR. I renew the request that Mr. HARE be excused until 11 o'clock to-morrow.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York asks unanimous consent that the gentleman from Texas be excused until 11 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I object.

Mr. FARQUHAR. The gentleman went out of the Hall sick a few moments ago.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I do not propose to send for him. I do not want the hare hunted down, but I object to any more excuses.

Mr. STRUBLE. Mr. Speaker, my colleague, Mr. CONGER, is too hoarse to make the request himself, but he suggests that I ask unanimous consent that the House now take a recess until 11.45 a. m. this morning.

Several members objected.

Mr. STRUBLE. I expected that.

Mr. HERMANN. Mr. Speaker, I have observed the great magnanimity of this House in granting requests for unanimous consent; and I now ask unanimous consent to take up for consideration a little bill that I have in charge to provide for the construction of a public building in Salem, Oregon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state to the gentleman that that is not in order at this time.

Mr. BYNUM (at 2.45 a. m.). Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. BAKER, of Illinois, and Mr. BAKER, of New York, called for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. KERR. Mr. Speaker, was not the last motion before the House a motion to adjourn? I believe there has been no business transacted since, and I make the point of order against the motion of the gentleman from Indiana.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Business has since intervened. The Chair thinks the motion of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BYNUM] is in order.

Mr. KERR. Will the Chair state what other business has intervened?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Excuses of members.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. HERMANN] has asked to have his bill considered since the last motion to adjourn.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The yeas and nays are ordered, and the Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 56, nays 119, not voting 149; as follows:

YEAS—56.

Anderson, Ill.	Grimes,	McRae,	Russell, Mass.
Bankhead,	Henderson, N. C.	McShane,	Sayers,
Barnes,	Herbert,	Montgomery,	Shively,
Barry,	Hooker,	Morgan,	Smith,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Howard,	Morse,	Springer,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Kilgore,	Neal,	Stewart, Tex.
Buckalew,	Lagan,	Newton,	Stockdale,
Bynum,	Landes,	O'Neall, Ind.	Stone, Ky.
Candler,	Lane,	Peel,	Tarsney,
Carlton,	Lawler,	Phelan,	Tillman,
Cowles,	Martin,	Richardson,	Vance,
Crisp,	McClammy,	Robertson,	Walker,
Enloe,	McKinney,	Rogers,	Weaver,
Ford,	McMillin,	Rowland,	Whiting, Mich.

NAYS—119.

Abbott,	Crouse,	Johnston, Ind.	Rowell,
Allen, Mass.	Cummings,	Kean,	Russell, Conn.
Allen, Mich.	Dalzell,	Kerr,	Sawyer,
Anderson, Iowa	Darlington,	Laidlaw,	Scull,
Arnold,	Davis,	Latham,	Seney,
Baker, N. Y.	Dibble,	Lehlbach,	Seymour,
Baker, Ill.	Elliott,	Lind,	Sherman,
Bayne,	Farquhar,	Lodge,	Sowden,
Belden,	Fitch,	Long,	Spooner,
Bingham,	Fuller,	Lyman,	Stahlnecker,
Boothman,	Funston,	Mason,	Stephenson,
Bound,	Gaines,	McAdoo,	Stewart, Vt.
Boutelle,	Gallinger,	McCormick,	Struble,
Bowen,	Gear,	McKinley,	Symes,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Gest,	Moffitt,	Taulbee,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Goff,	Morrow,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Brumm,	Grout,	Nichols,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bryce,	Guenther,	O'Ferrall,	Thomas, Ky.
Buchanan,	Harmer,	O'Neill, Pa.	Thomas, Wis.
Bunnell,	Haugen,	Osborne,	Turner, Kans.
Burrows,	Henderson, Iowa	Parker,	Wade,
Butterworth,	Henderson, Ill.	Perkins,	Warner,
Cannon,	Hermann,	Peters,	Weber,
Caswell,	Hitt,	Post,	White, Ind.
Cheadle,	Holmes,	Pugsley,	Wickham,
Chipman,	Hopkins, Ill.	Randall,	Williams,
Cogswell,	Hopkins, Va.	Reed,	Woodburn,
Compton,	Houk,	Rice,	Yardley,
Conger,	Hovey,	Rockwell,	Yost.
Cooper,	Hunter,	Romeis,

NOT VOTING—149.

Adams,	Davidson, Ala.	Jackson,	Perry,
Allen, Miss.	Davidson, Fla.	Johnston, N. C.	Phelps,
Anderson, Miss.	De Lano,	Jones,	Pidcock,
Anderson, Kans.	Dingley,	Kelley,	Plumb,
Atkinson,	Dockery,	Kennedy,	Rayner,
Bacon,	Dorsey,	Ketcham,	Rusk,
Belmont,	Dougherty,	Laffoon,	Ryan,
Biggs,	Dunham,	La Follette,	Scott,
Blanchard,	Dunn,	Laird,	Shaw,
Bland,	Ermentrout,	Lanham,	Simmons,
Bliss,	Felton,	Lee,	Snyder,
Blount,	Finley,	Lynch,	Spinola,
Bowden,	Fisher,	Macdonald,	Steele,
Brewer,	Flood,	Maffett,	Stewart, Ga.
Brower,	Foran,	Mahoney,	Stone, Mo.
Browne, Ind.	Forney,	Maish,	Thomas, Ill.
Brown, Ohio.	French,	Mansur,	Thompson, Ohio
Burnes,	Gay,	Matson,	Thompson, Cal.
Burnett,	Gibson,	McComas,	Tracey,
Butler,	Glass,	McCreary,	Townshend,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Glover,	McCullogh,	Turner, Ga.
Campbell, Ohio	Granger,	McKenna,	Vandever,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Greenman,	Merriman,	Washington,
Caruth,	Grosvenor,	Milliken,	West,
Catchings,	Hall,	Mills,	Wheeler,
Clardy,	Hare.	Moore,	White, N. Y.
Clark,	Hatch,	Morrill,	Whiting, Mass.
Clements,	Hayden,	Nelson,	Whitthorne,
Cobb,	Hayes,	Norwood,	Wilber,
Cockran,	Heard,	Nutting,	Wilkins,
Collins,	Hemphill,	Oates,	Wilkinson,
Cothran,	Heistand,	O'Donnell,	Wilson, Minn.
Cox,	Hires,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilson, W. Va.
Crain,	Hogg,	Outhwaite,	Wise,
Culberson,	Holman,	Owen,	Yoder.
Cutcheon,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Patton,
Dargan,	Hudd,	Payson,
Davenport,	Hutton,	Penington,

So the House refused to adjourn.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until 11.45 a. m. to-day.

Several members objected.

Mr. LAWLER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make an inquiry on behalf of Mr. MORSE and myself. Now that we are here, we would like to know what we were brought here for. [Laughter.]

Mr. BRUMM. We have been wondering all the time what you were here for. [Laughter.]

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I move that all further proceedings under the call of the House be dispensed with.

The question was taken; and there were—ayes 36, noes 75.

So the motion of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky, was not agreed to.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I move that the Sergeant-at-Arms be directed to actually close the doors to prevent gentlemen who are present from going out, and to arrest those gentlemen who were present when the call of the House was made and who since then have left the Hall without excuse.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The officers of the House will see that the rule which prohibits members from leaving the Hall is enforced. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] that the Chair remembers one instance in which the object which he desires to accomplish was attained, but it was through a second roll-call; after which, if the Chair remembers correctly (not having referred to the matter since), members who had departed from the Hall after the call of the House before the second roll-call were ordered to be brought before the House.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Then, Mr. Speaker, I move that the roll be now called, and that those members who were present at the roll-call on the call of the House and are now absent without leave be arrested and brought to the bar of the House.

Mr. LAIDLAW. I second that motion.

The question was taken; and there were—ayes 45, noes 67.

Mr. FARQUHAR. I make the point of order that we are now proceeding under a call of the House, and that the motion of the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] is not in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The House is actually voting upon the question, and the Chair thinks the gentleman's point comes too late. Besides, the Chair holds that the motion is in order.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I demand the yeas and nays.

Mr. BAKER, of New York. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry. I desire to know whether this is the first or the second morning hour.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is not a parliamentary inquiry, in the opinion of the Chair.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. The cocks have not crowed yet, so it is "the first hour." [Laughter.]

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. SOWDEN. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SOWDEN. I understand that it requires unanimous consent to suspend the operation of a call of the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion of the gentleman from Kentucky, however, was not to dispense with the call of the House, but to bring before the House those members who had departed since the last roll-call. The Chair knows of no other means by which that result could be accomplished, and is clearly of opinion that it is competent to accomplish it in this way.

Mr. HOPKINS, of Illinois. The Chair has no knowledge that any member has left.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The object of the motion of the gentleman from Kentucky, as the Chair understands, is to ascertain this fact.

Mr. SOWDEN. How is that fact to be ascertained?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It can only be ascertained by a call of the roll of the members of the House.

Mr. RANDALL. Is there not a call of the House now pending?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. A call of the House is pending.

Mr. RANDALL. What interrupts that call? Another motion?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state that the gentleman from Kentucky has made a motion which the Chair has entertained for a call of the roll, to see whether any who answered on the call of the House have gone without leave since. The Chair remembers, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania, on reflection, will probably remember such an instance. The question was made—the present occupant of the chair does not remember in what Congress—that there had been a departure of members of the House after the first call, which fact was developed upon a second call, and members who had departed were sent for, as is now proposed.

Mr. RANDALL. There is a call of the House now in progress. That call has to be executed. No motion is in order until it is executed or proceedings under the call have been dispensed with by a motion to that effect or by an adjournment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Pennsylvania that this is a proceeding to bring before the House its absentees, and the Chair decides that it is in order to make the call proposed by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE].

Mr. RANDALL. It proposes to bring men here who are on record as being here.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Kentucky, on which the yeas and nays have been ordered. As many as are in favor of the motion will, when their names are called, say ay; contrary opinion no. The Clerk will call the roll.

The Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

When several names had been called,

Mr. KEAN said: Mr. Speaker, I wish to inquire what is the proper response on this call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Gentlemen must respond ay or no, according to their own judgment.

Mr. KEAN. What is the motion?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion is for a call of the roll of the members of the House.

Mr. KEAN. There is already a call pending.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will call the roll.

The Clerk resumed the call of the roll.

Mr. PERKINS (interrupting the roll-call). I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain the gentleman's inquiry after the conclusion of the roll-call.

Mr. PERKINS. My parliamentary inquiry is this: What would be the effect of a negative vote on this motion?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. To defeat the motion of the gentleman from Kentucky for a call of the roll.

Mr. PERKINS. Then would the call of the House already ordered be suspended by a negative vote on this motion?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will call the roll.

Mr. PERKINS. I appeal from the decision of the Chair. [Cries of "Too late!"]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state that nothing can interrupt the roll-call except by unanimous consent.

Mr. BRUMM. I do not rise for the purpose of making a motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will call the roll.

Mr. BRUMM. I want to know how I am to vote; and I think I have a right to know.

Mr. PERKINS. I think the House has the right to know the effect of its vote on this question, according to the interpretation of the Chair.

This is not an impertinent question. The question is asked in good faith. This House desires to know the effect of the vote on this question.

The Clerk proceeded with the roll-call.

Mr. BRUMM (interrupting the roll-call). Mr. Speaker, I insist that before I vote I have the right to know the effect of my vote.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will call the roll.

The Clerk resumed the roll-call.

Mr. BRUMM. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will call the roll.

Mr. BRUMM. A question of order, Mr. Speaker. [Cries of "Regular order!"]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will suspend the roll-call until gentlemen resume their seats and the House is in order.

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, is it not fair to members of the House that we should know the effect of the votes we cast on this motion?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. No proposition will be entertained and no gentleman recognized until the House is in order.

Mr. PERKINS. I am not making a motion, Mr. Speaker; but I am asking for information, that I may know how to vote upon the pending motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will suspend until order is restored.

Mr. REED. I would suggest——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will recognize no one until order is restored. [A pause.]

Mr. REED. I would suggest to the Chair that there is a misapprehension about this matter, and as soon as the House understands it there will be no difficulty. Perhaps it would be well to accommodate gentlemen by an informal statement from the Chair. Some gentlemen have the apprehension that a negative vote upon this motion will dispense with the regular call of the House, to which this is subsidiary. The Chair, I have no doubt, will explain that matter informally.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, the motion I made is a very simple one——

Mr. BRUMM. No doubt, very simple.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. It was simple enough even for the comprefiension of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, and human language can be no stronger than that.

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Gentlemen will suspend a moment. The Chair will make a statement, with the indulgence of the House. The Chair, in justice to himself, was anxious to place before the House the status of the motion and its effect; and for this purpose he did what is very unusual—allowed the roll-call to be interrupted in response to inquiries in that direction.

The Chair will state again that the question is on the motion of the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE], that there be a call of the roll of the members of the House for the purpose of ascertaining the members present, with a view, as the Chair understands the gentleman from Kentucky, of bringing before the House any of its members who may have departed since the call of the House. The object is not to dispense with proceedings under the former call, nor would that be the effect of the vote whether it be ay or no.

Mr. PERKINS. That is all the House desired to know.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will proceed with the call of the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 60, nays 116, not voting 148; as follows:

YEAS—60.

Abbott,	Cummings,	Lawler,	Rowland,
Anderson, Iowa	Enloe,	Martin,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Miss.	Ford,	McClammy,	Sayers,
Bacon,	French,	McKinney,	Shively,
Bankhead,	Gibson,	McMillin,	Springer,
Barnes,	Grimes,	McRae,	Stewart, Tex.
Barry,	Henderson, N. C.	McShane,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Herbert,	Morgan,	Stone, Ky.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Hooker,	Morse,	Tarsney,
Bynum,	Hopkins, Va.	Neal,	Tillman,
Candler,	Kerr,	Peel,	Vance,
Chipman,	Lagan,	Phelan,	Walker,
Clements,	Landes,	Richardson,	Weaver,
Cowles,	Lane,	Robertson,	Wheeler,
Culberson,	Latham,	Rogers,	Whiting, Mich.

NAYS—116.

Allen, Mich.	Bowen,	Caswell,	Elliott,
Arnold,	Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Cheadle,	Farquhar,
Baker, N. Y.	Brown, J. R., Va.	Clardy,	Fuller,
Baker, Ill.	Brumm,	Cogswell,	Funston,
Bayne,	Bryce,	Conger,	Gaines,
Belden,	Buchanan,	Cooper,	Gallinger,
Bingham,	Buckalew,	Crouse,	Gear,
Boothman,	Bunnell,	Dalzell,	Gest,
Bound,	Burrows,	Darlington,	Goff,
Boutelle,	Butterworth,	Davis,	Guenther,
Bowden,	Cannon,	Dibble,	Hall,
Harmer,	Lodge,	Pugsley,	Stewart, Vt.
Haugen,	Long,	Randall,	Struble,
Henderson, Iowa	Lyman,	Reed,	Symes,
Hermann,	Mason,	Rice,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Hitt,	McAdoo,	Rockwell,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Holmes,	McCormick,	Romeis,	Thomas, Ky.
Hopkins, Ill.	McKenna,	Rowell,	Thomas, Wis.
Houk,	McKinley,	Russell, Conn.	Turner, Kans.
Hovey,	Moffitt,	Sawyer,	Wade,
Hunter,	Morrow,	Scull,	Warner,
Johnston, Ind.	Nichols,	Sency,	Weber,
Johnston, N. C.	O'Ferrall,	Seymour,	White, Ind.
Kean,	O'Neill, Pa.	Sherman,	Wickham,
Kennedy,	Osborne,	Sowden,	Wilkinson,
Kilgore,	Parker,	Spooner,	Williams,
Laidlaw,	Perkins,	Stahlnecker,	Woodburn,
Lehlbach,	Peters,	Steele,	Yardley,
Lind,	Post,	Stephenson,	Yost.

NOT VOTING—148.

Adams,	Davidson, Ala.	Hudd,	Patton,
Allen, Mass.	Davidson, Fla.	Hutton,	Payson,
Allen, Miss.	De Lano,	Jackson,	Penington,
Anderson, Ill.	Dingley,	Jones,	Perry,
Anderson, Kans.	Dockery,	Kelley,	Phelps,
Atkinson,	Dorsey,	Ketcham,	Pidcock,
Belmont,	Dougherty,	Laffoon,	Plumb,
Biggs,	Dunham,	La Follette,	Rayner,
Blanchard,	Dunn,	Laird,	Rusk,
Bland,	Ermentrout,	Lanham,	Ryan,
Bliss.	Felton,	Lee,	Scott,
Blount,	Finley,	Lynch,	Shaw,
Brewer,	Fisher,	Macdonald,	Simmons,
Brower,	Fitch,	Maffett,	Smith,
Browne, Ind.	Flood,	Mahoney,	Snyder,
Brown, Ohio	Foran,	Maish,	Spinola,
Burnes,	Forney,	Mansur,	Stewart, Ga.
Burnett,	Gay,	Matson,	Stone, Mo.
Butler,	Glass,	McComas,	Taulbee,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Glover,	McCreary,	Thomas, Ill.
Campbell, Ohio	Granger,	McCullogh,	Thompson, Ohio
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Greenman,	Merriman,	Thompson, Cal.
Carlton,	Grosvenor,	Milliken,	Tracey,
Caruth,	Grout,	Mills,	Townshend,
Catchings,	Hare.	Montgomery,	Turner, Ga.
Clark,	Hatch,	Moore,	Vandever,
Cobb,	Hayden,	Morrill,	Washington,
Cockran,	Hayes,	Nelson,	West,
Collins,	Heard,	Newton,	White, N. Y.
Compton,	Hemphill,	Norwood,	Whiting, Mass.
Cothran,	Henderson, Ill.	Nutting,	Whitthorne,
Cox,	Hiestand,	Oates,	Wilber,
Crain,	Hires,	O'Donnell,	Wilkins.
Crisp,	Hogg,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wilson, Minn.
Cutcheon,	Holman,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilson, W. Va.
Dargan,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Outhwaite,	Wise,
Davenport,	Howard,	Owen.	Yoder.

So the motion was rejected.

Before the result was announced the following proceedings took place:

Mr. GUENTHER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to ask how my vote is recorded?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed that the gentlemen is recorded as voting in the negative.

Mr. GUENTHER. I want to change my vote from "no" to "here."

Mr. O'NEILL, of Pennsylvania. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the names.

Mr. WEAVER, Mr. RICHARDSON, and others objected.

The Clerk then recapitulated the names of those voting.

Mr. GUENTHER. Mr. Speaker, on the recapitulation of the vote I did not hear my name recorded as I voted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlemen is recorded in the negative.

Mr. GUENTHER. I did not vote that way. I voted "here." I wish to be recorded as I voted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman can only be recorded upon a question which is pending before the House.

Mr. GUENTHER. I understand that our former proceedings disclosed the fact that no quorum was present; and I find on page 455 of our Digest that where less than a quorum is present a motion to take a recess is not in order, and no motion is in order except for a call of the House or to adjourn. Now, I do not understand the motion to adjourn was voted down, and therefore I can only come to the conclusion that it was a call of the House, and answered to my name "here," when called, and I wish to be so recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is recorded as voting in the negative; but his statement will go into the RECORD and stand there.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair asks the indulgence of the House to have read the action taken heretofore in the Forty-eighth Congress on a motion similar to the one upon which the Chair ruled tonight, as there was doubt expressed about the question then. There was a call of the House ordered, after which it was stated that certain members had absented themselves from the Hall, and a call of the roll was moved in order to ascertain whether they had done so or not. It will be observed that the second roll-call disclosed the absence of members who had answered previously, and thereupon, on motion, they were sent for. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

[Journal, first session Forty-eighth Congress, February, 1884.]

Mr. Hardeman moved a call of the House; which said motion was agreed to.

The Clerk thereupon proceeded to call the roll, when the following-named members failed to answer to their names:

* * * * * * *

Mr. Hardeman submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, namely:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms take into custody and bring before the bar of the House such of its members as are now absent without leave of the House.

The doors were thereupon closed.

The Sergeant-at-Arms appeared with Mr. Neece, Mr. Pryor, and Mr. Henley, who were severally excused for non-attendance. * * *

Mr. Cobb, as a privileged question, moved that the roll be called for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not members who responded to their names on the first call of the roll had since absented themselves without the leave of the House; which said motion was agreed to.

The roll was thereupon called, when the following-named members failed to answer to their names:

* * * * * * *

By unanimous consent, Mr. BINGHAM and Mr. Eaton were excused for non-attendance.

Mr. Buchanan moved that Mr. SAMUEL S. COX be excused for non-attendance; which motion was disagreed to.

The Speaker stated that an examination of the roll-call disclosed the fact that Mr. SAMUEL S. COX and Mr. Buckner had absented themselves from the House without its leave since the roll was previously called.

Whereupon

Mr. Cobb submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, namely:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms take into custody and bring to the bar of the House the following-named members who have absented themselves without the leave of the House since the roll was called, namely: SAMUEL S. COX and Aylett H. Buckner. * * *

The Sergeant-at-Arms also appeared with Mr. BRUMM, who was absent from the House without its leave.

Mr. BAYNE moved that Mr. BRUMM be excused for non-attendance; which motion was disagreed to.

Mr. Lamb moved that Mr. BRUMM be fined $5 for non-attendence.

After debate thereon,

Mr. Lamb withdrew the said motion.

Mr. HISCOCK moved to reconsider the vote by which the House refused to excuse Mr. BRUMM; which motion was agreed to.

The question recurring on the motion to excuse Mr. BRUMM, and being put, the same was agreed to.

So the motion that Mr. BRUMM be excused was agreed to.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not understand from what authority the Clerk has been reading.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. From the Journal of the first session of the Forty-eighth Congress, pages 617 to 620, inclusive.

Mr. WHEELER. I wish to offer a resolution.

Mr. SOWDEN. I object.

Mr. WHEELER. I ask to have it read, subject to objection.

Mr. SOWDEN and other members objected. [Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. WHEELER. Then I ask consent to have it printed in the RECORD.

Mr. O'NEILL, of Pennsylvania. I object.

Mr. KEAN. Regular order; nothing is in order now but the direct-tax bill.

Mr. SOWDEN. I wish to make a parliamentary inquiry. What was the result of the last vote taken?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair announced the result of the vote. The motion of the gentleman from Kentucky was not agreed to

Mr. O'NEILL, of Pennsylvania. I withdraw my objection to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. WHEELER] having his resolution read, and I ask unanimous consent that he may have it printed in the Washington Post.

Mr. REED. I object. I take the Post. [Laughter.]

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I move that the Clerk of the House be directed to deliver to the Sergeant-at-Arms a list of such members as were shown to be absent by failing to vote on the call of the roll just made and have not been excused from attendance upon the session of the House, and that the Sergeant-at-Arms take into custody and bring to the bar of the House said members.

Mr. REED. In order to have the sanction of the Chair, I make the point of order against that resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is of opinion that it would not be in order to adopt the order proposed by the gentleman from Kentucky, for the reason, if for no other, that the House declined to have the roll called for the purpose of ascertaining who was absent, and members might have failed to vote on the question that was pending and still not be in contempt of the House.

Mr. REED. I made the point of order, but of course I regret the decision of the Chair, because otherwise we might have had the aid of the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] on some future occasion.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I understand that the gentleman from Maine [Mr. REED] made the point of order.

Mr. REED. In order to get a ruling different from that which unfortunately I did get.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. And the Chair sustains the point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair sustains the point of order.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. So that by the action of the gentleman from Maine it has been decided that it is in order for us to abstain from voting.

Mr. REED. By no means. Now, do not do injustice to a compatriot.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I am very glad always to count the gentleman from Maine [Mr. REED] as a compatriot, especially when I see that he does not intend that we shall do any business on the legislative day of Wednesday and will not let us adjourn to a new day, and also——

Mr. BOUTELLE. Regular order!

Mr. REED. I am very glad that I was providentially rescued from the remainder of that. [Laughter.]

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. Speaker, since I asked permission to print in the RECORD the resolution which I have in my hand several gentleman on the Republican side have asked me to read it.

Mr. SOWDEN. Regular order!

Mr. LAWLER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have read a paper which I hold in my hand.

Mr. SOWDEN. I object.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, as the House has shown by the last roll-call that it does not intend to proceed to execute the call of the House, I move to dispense with further proceedings under the call.

Mr. SOWDEN. I move as an amendment that the House take a recess until——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion is not amendable. Without a quorum a recess can not be taken.

The question was taken on the motion to dispense with further proceedings under the call, and the Speaker pro tempore declared that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. A division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 34, noes 74.

So the motion was rejected.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, as the House will neither execute the order for the call of the House nor dispense with further proceedings under the call, I move that the House do now adjourn.

Several members called for the yeas and nays; which were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 50, nays 116, not voting 158; as follows:

YEAS—50.

Anderson, Miss.	Culberson,	Lanham,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Ill.	Cummings,	Lawler,	Sayers,
Bankhead,	Enloe,	McKinney,	Shaw,
Barnes,	Ford,	McMillin,	Shively,
Barry,	Grimes,	McRae,	Stewart, Tex.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Henderson, N. C.	McShane,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Herbert,	Morgan,	Tarsney,
Buckalew,	Hooker,	Morse,	Vance,
Bynum,	Howard,	Neal,	Walker,
Candler,	Johnston, N. C.	Peel,	Weaver,
Carlton,	Lagan,	Richardson,	Wheeler.
Clements,	Landes,	Rogers,
Cowles,	Lane,	Rowland,

NAYS—116.

Allen, Mich.	Davis,	Kennedy,	Sawyer,
Arnold,	Dibble,	Kerr,	Scull,
Baker, N. Y.	Elliott,	Laidlaw,	Seney,
Baker, Ill.	Farquhar,	Lehlbach,	Seymour,
Bayne,	Fitch,	Lind,	Sherman,
Belden,	Fuller,	Lodge,	Sowden,
Bingham,	Funston,	Long,	Spooner,
Boothman,	Gaines,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Bound,	Gallinger,	McCormick,	Steele,
Boutelle,	Gear,	McKenna,	Stephenson,
Bowden,	Gest,	McKinley,	Stewart, Vt.
Bowen,	Goff,	Moffitt,	Struble,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Grout,	Morrow,	Symes,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Guenther,	Nichols,	Taulbee,
Brumm,	Hall,	O'Ferrall,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Buchanan,	Harmer,	O'Neill, Pa.	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bunnell,	Haugen,	Osborne,	Thomas, Ky.
Burrows,	Henderson, Iowa	Parker,	Thomas, Wis.
Butterworth,	Henderson, Ill.	Perkins,	Turner, Kans.
Cannon,	Hermann,	Peters,	Wade,
Caswell,	Hitt,	Post,	Warner,
Cheadle,	Holmes,	Pugsley,	Weber,
Chipman,	Hopkins, Ill.	Randall,	White, Ind.
Cogswell,	Hopkins, Va.	Reed,	Wickham,
Conger,	Houk,	Rice,	Wilkinson,
Cooper,	Hovey,	Rockwell,	Williams,
Crouse,	Hunter,	Romeis,	Woodburn,
Dalzell,	Johnston, Ind.	Rowell,	Yardley,
Darlington,	Kean,	Russell, Conn.	Yost.

NOT VOTING—158.

Abbott,	Brewer,	Clark,	De Lano,
Adams,	Brower,	Cobb,	Dingley,
Allen, Mass.	Browne, Ind.	Cockran,	Dockery,
Allen, Miss.	Brown, Ohio.	Collins,	Dorsey,
Anderson, Iowa	Bryce,	Compton,	Dougherty,
Anderson, Kans.	Burnes,	Cothran,	Dunham,
Atkinson,	Burnett,	Cox,	Dunn,
Bacon,	Butler,	Crain,	Ermentrout,
Belmont,	Campbell, F., N. Y.	Crisp,	Felton,
Biggs,	Campbell, Ohio	Cutcheon,	Finley,
Blanchard,	Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Dargan,	Fisher,
Bland,	Caruth,	Davenport,	Flood,
Bliss,	Catchings,	Davidson, Ala.	Foran,
Blount,	Clardy,	Davidson, Fla.	Forney,

French,	Laffoon,	Newton,	Springer,
Gay,	La Follette,	Norwood,	Stewart, Ga.
Gibson,	Laird,	Nutting,	Stone, Ky.
Glass,	Latham,	Oates,	Stone, Mo.
Glover,	Lee,	O'Donnell,	Thomas, Ill.
Granger,	Lyman,	O'Neall, Ind.	Thompson, Ohio
Greenman,	Lynch,	O'Neill, Mo.	Thompson, Cal.
Grosvenor,	Macdonald,	Outhwaite,	Tillman,
Hare,	Maffett,	Owen,	Townshend,
Hatch,	Mahoney,	Patton,	Tracey,
Hayden,	Maish,	Payson,	Turner, Ga.
Hayes,	Mansur,	Penington,	Vandever,
Heard,	Martin,	Perry,	Washington,
Hemphill,	Matson,	Phelan,	West,
Hiestand,	McAdoo,	Phelps,	White, N. Y.
Hires,	McClammy,	Pidcock,	Whiting, Mich.
Hogg,	McComas,	Plumb,	Whiting, Mass.
Holman,	McCreary,	Rayner,	Whitthorne,
Hopkins, N. Y.	McCullogh,	Robertson,	Wilber,
Hudd,	Merriman,	Rusk,	Wilkins,
Hutton,	Milliken,	Ryan,	Wilson, Minn.
Jackson,	Mills,	Scott,	Wilson, W. Va.
Jones,	Montgomery,	Simmons,	Wise,
Kelley,	Moore,	Smith,	Yoder.
Ketcham,	Morrill,	Snyder,
Kilgore,	Nelson,	Spinola,

So the motion to adjourn was not agreed to.

Mr. BAKER, of New York. In behalf of the gentleman from Maine [Mr. REED], the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MASON], my friend from Georgia [Mr. BARNES], and myself, I ask unanimous consent for a brief recess—say till 11 o'clock and 45 minutes this morning, so as to allow us to go home, get our breakfasts, and come back here.

Mr. FORD. I object.

Mr. TAULBEE (after an interval of some time). Mr. Speaker, it is now three minutes past 5 o'clock in the morning. We have been in session all night; nothing has been done; and there is no prospect or probability of our doing anything to-day. I ask unanimous consent that we take a recess for one hour in order to give the messengers an opportunity to sweep the floor of the Hall. It is not proper that we should go through the business of another day with the floor in the condition in which it is now, with these papers scattered all over it.

A MEMBER (to Mr. TAULBEE). Make it 11.45.

Mr. TAULBEE. I would request a recess until 11.45, but I know we can not get it. I have asked for what I hoped would not be objected to.

Several members objected.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. RICHARDSON). Objection is made.

Mr. TAULBEE. At the suggestion of several gentlemen, I ask consent for a recess until 9 o'clock this morning.

Several MEMBERS. Make it 11.45.

Mr. TAULBEE. Very well; I make that request.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky for unanimous consent that the House take a recess until 11.45?

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is made.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution that the leaves of absence heretofore granted members of this House for the present legislative day be and they are hereby revoked, and the Sergeant-at-Arms is hereby instructed to notify them of this action of the House and to request their immediate attendance.

Mr. PERKINS. I make a point of order on that resolution.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I have offered this resolution in the same terms as one offered during a call of the House at the first session of the Forty-eighth Congress. I read from the Journal:

Mr. REED made the point of order that a quorum was required on the adoption of the said resolution.

The SPEAKER overruled the said point of order on the ground that it was a proceeding to secure attendance of absent members, on which a quorum was not required.

That was the ruling of Mr. Speaker CARLISLE in the Forty-eighth Congress.

Mr. KERR. I make the point of order that all the votes recently taken show that we have a quorum here.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROGERS). The gentleman from Kansas [Mr. PERKINS] did not state his point of order.

Mr. PERKINS. My point of order is that the rules are very specific, and no such motion as this is in order. We must either proceed with the call or we must adjourn, unless we act by unanimous consent.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. As decided by the Speaker in the Forty-eighth Congress, this is a proceeding connected with the call of the House, its purpose being to obtain the presence of absent members. It proposes the exercise of the power of the House to revoke leaves of absence which have been granted. It proposes to obtain the presence of members whose absence is by leave of the House, and who therefore can not be arrested by warrant issued to the Sergeant-at-Arms. It will be found that the resolution was decided to be in order upon this ground and no appeal was taken.

Mr. REED. If this proceeding be adopted, I hope the Sergeant-at-Arms will be gifted with a little more power than he seems to have exhibited to-night.

Mr. PERKINS. If the Sergeant-at-Arms is executing the order of the House, this motion is certainly not necessary; and if not necessary, I make the point that it is not in order.

Mr. BOUTELLE. It is difficult to see how the Sergeant-at-Arms is any more likely to be able to find gentlemen who have been granted leave of absence than to find the large number of other gentlemen who are disclosed by the call as absent and who have not been granted leave.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Gentlemen who are absent on leave are properly absent, and they are protected by the leave of the House. Their presence therefore can not be demanded until the House shall revoke its leave of absence. This resolution in its first clause is a revocation of the leave of absence, and in the second a direction to the Sergeant-at-Arms to notify these gentlemen of this revocation and request their presence—not to arrest them, but to request their attendance upon the session of the House.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Let me ask the gentleman the object of having these members brought here?

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. The object is to execute the call of the House.

Mr. BOUTELLE. For what purpose?

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. To obtain a quorum.

Mr. BOUTELLE. We have had a quorum on every vote recently taken. The House is not without a quorum.

Mr. REED. The trouble is not lack of a quorum; it is lack of behavior.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I never contradict a gentleman who speaks of his own conduct; therefore I have no controversy with the gentleman upon his statement. [Laughter.]

Mr. REED. Oh, oh! And from Kentucky! [Laughter.]

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. The Sergeant-at-Arms is now constructively engaged in hunting up absentees———

Mr. REED. Just as the gentleman from Kentucky is constructively present.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I think I am actively present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. What is the gentleman's motion?

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I submit the resolution I send to the desk.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROGERS in the chair). The Chair thinks the resolution is in order. The Chair will have a similar resolution, to which reference has been made, read in support of the ruling.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the leaves of absence heretofore granted to members of this House for the present legislative day be, and they are hereby, revoked; and the Sergeant-at-Arms is hereby instructed to notify them of this action of the House, and to request their immediate attendance.

Mr. SOWDEN. What members have leave of absence for the legislative day?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair does not know. The records of the House will show.

Mr. SOWDEN. I make the point of order———

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There are two points of order pending. The Chair thinks, however, the points of order are not well taken, and overrules them.

Mr. TAULBEE. Is the resolution debatable?

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. It is not debatable; it is a proceeding under a call of the House.

Mr. SOWDEN. This is not a call of the House.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. But we are proceeding under a call of the House.

Mr. WHEELER. I make the point of order that it is not debatable.

Mr. TAULBEE. I trust the Chair will hear me on the point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is of opinion that it is not debatable; we are proceeding under a call of the House, and proceedings under a call are not subject to debate.

Mr. TAULBEE. As I understand it, the Chair holds that a resolution to reconsider the action of the House in matters of this kind is not debatable. Now, I understand this is a resolution offered regularly for present consideration. It relates to the business of the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair does not think that debate is in order, or anything else except that which may aid the House in enforcing the existing order, which is to secure the presence of its absent members.

Mr. PETERS. I make the further point of order that there are no members absent from the House who were excused for the legislative day.

Mr. SOWDEN. And I make the further point of order that nothing is in order but a motion to adjourn or to suspend further proceedings under the call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has already overruled that point of order.

Mr. SOWDEN. Then I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Mr. TAULBEE. I hope the gentleman will not do that until the resolution is considered. I am sorry it is not debatable; but of course I defer to the ruling of the Chair. It ought to be understood that this is a most important matter and one that requires careful consideration.

Mr. SOWDEN. Did I understand the Chair correctly when the Chair announced that he had overruled the point of order that I made; that is, that nothing was in order now but a motion to adjourn or a motion to suspend the operation of the call?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair ruled that the resolution was in order. The effect of that would be to overrule the point of order made by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, and on the ground mainly that it is in aid of the enforcement of the order.

Mr. PETERS. But I have made an additional point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It is in order. The Chair will state if the gentleman from Pennsylvania desires to appeal from the decision of the Chair to do so now, and the Chair recognizes the gentleman for that purpose.

Mr. PETERS. The appeal was taken too late. I had made a point of order in the mean time.

Mr. TAULBEE. I make another point of order which I think has precedence. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will hear the gentleman's point of order.

Mr. TAULBEE. It is that the parliamentary construction of the rule upon which the Chair and the gentleman from Pennsylvania seem to differ, and upon which the gentleman from Pennsylvania has indicated his intention of appealing, does not relate to the business now pending before the House, and is therefore wholly out of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is unable to apprehend the point of the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. TAULBEE. If the Chair will indulge me I will try to make myself understood.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will hear the gentleman.

Mr. TAULBEE. If I understand the point of order of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, it is that the House is at that stage of the proceedings where nothing is in order in connection with the call of the House but a motion to suspend the operation of the call or else a motion to adjourn. In that I take it that the gentleman is correct. But the Chair had theretofore decided that the resolution now under consideration was a part of the proceedings under the call of the House, and therefore could not be affected by the parliamentary inquiry made by the gentleman from Pennsylvania; and hence there is nothing for him to appeal from.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Therefore——

Mr. TAULBEE. These tears. [Laughter.]

Mr. PETERS. I make another point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks the gentleman from Kentucky has a first point of order pending.

Mr. PETERS. But I made the point of order that there were no members of the House excused for the legislative day, and I insist it is the duty of the Chair to ascertain whether that is the fact or not.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Journal Clerk advises the Chair that members are absent who have been excused for the legislative day.

Mr. PETERS. Some were excused but for the calendar day only, and not for the legislative day.

Mr. SOWDEN. What has become of my point of order?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has already stated that the point of order of the gentleman from Kentucky would not take the gentleman from Pennsylvania off the floor, and he would have the right to appeal. Does the gentleman insist upon taking an appeal?

Mr. SOWDEN. I do not.

Mr. TAULBEE. I move to amend the pending resolution, then, by inserting after the word "legislative" the words "and calendar."

Mr. ENLOE. I make the point of order upon that.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. ENLOE. That there has been no one excused for this calendar day. It is now Wednesday morning.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I am willing to accept the amendment of the gentleman from Kentucky not only to revoke leaves of absence for the calendar day, but all leaves of absence heretofore granted.

Mr. TAULBEE. I accept the amendment. [Laughter.]

With reference to the point of order of the gentleman from Tennessee, I have to say that I think he misapprehends what the House means by a calendar day. We reckon it, as I understand, for the purpose of the proceedings of this House, from 12 o'clock at noon on one day until 12 o'clock noon on the next day.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Pennsylvania has withdrawn his appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Mr. TAULBEE. I speak of the point of order made by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. ENLOE].

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If the House will pardon the Chair for one moment, the Journal Clerk informs the Chair that there are members excused for both the calendar and the legislative days. Now the Chair will hear the point of the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. ENLOE. Mr. Speaker, this being Wednesday, no member has been excused for the calendar day. There were a number of gentlemen excused yesterday for that calendar day. I do not know what kind of a calendar they have down in Kentucky, from which my friend [Mr. TAULBEE] comes to the conclusion that the calendar day begins at 12 o'clock on one day and ends at noon the next day.

Mr. TAULBEE. On that I desire to be heard, if the Chair will indulge me. [Laughter.]

Mr. WHEELER. I trust the gentleman will explain to us how they count the calendars in Kentucky.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state that there are members who have been excused for the present legislative day.

Mr. ENLOE. My point is as to the calendar day.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There are some who are excused for this calendar day also.

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, in connection with this point of order I wish to make an inquiry. If I understand the statement of the Chair it is that members of the House have been excused, and it seems to me that the effect of the motion made by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] is to make the House reconsider its action in that particular. I desire to make the inquiry, in connection with the point of order, whether it is in order to make that motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks it is, under the ruling made by Mr. Speaker CARLISLE in the Forty-eighth Congress, which has been read from the Clerk's desk.

Mr. PARKER. I rise to a point of order. Members of the House having asked to be excused, having been excused by the House, and having acted upon that authority and left, I wish to submit the question whether the transaction is not in the nature of a contract.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair does not think that is a parliamentary question.

The Chair will state that the gentlemen in question were excused, and that then, of course, they could not be arrested until notified to return, but they were notified under the order for a call of the House.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry. I wish to inquire whether the Journal of the proceedings does not disclose the fact that this violation of the tacit pledge of the House to the absent members is not necessary in order to accomplish the object for which absent members are sent for by authority of the House, namely, to secure a quorum; there having been on the last roll-call 165 members present and voting——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair does not think that is a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. TAULBEE. I make the point of order that this resolution is not debatable.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Then I throw this in as a stump speech.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The point of order is well taken, and has been so ruled by the Chair.

Mr. BUCHANAN. I make the further point of order on this motion that it is an omnibus motion, revoking a number of different acts of the House taken at different times, and that the only way in which leaves of absence can be revoked is by reconsidering the action in each case.

Mr. MASON. And naming each member in the resolution?

Mr. BUCHANAN. The point is that these leaves of absence must be acted upon separately, and can not be acted upon in any other way.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will cause the ruling to be read again, as there seems to be some misapprehension about it.

Mr. GEAR. I make the point of order, Mr. Speaker, that that resolution is not in writing, as is required by the rules.

Mr. O'NEILL, of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, let me suggest that most of the gentlemen who have taken advantage of the leaves of absence have done it for the night sessions only, and will probably be here at 12 o'clock to-day.

Mr. GEAR. Mr. Speaker, the rules require all resolutions to be in writing. Now, my point is that you can not read from the Journal of a former Congress and offer that as a resolution.

Mr. O'NEILL, of Pennsylvania. In connection with what I have just said, I refer to the case of my colleague [Mr. KELLEY], who has leave of absence. He only takes that leave for the evening sessions, and he will be here to-day.

Mr. BUCHANAN. Mr. Speaker, I make my point of order in good faith.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. With reference to the point of order made by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GEAR], the Chair thinks that point is a substantial compliance with the rule; but if it is insisted upon, the Chair will have a technical compliance with the rule.

Mr. TAULBEE. Is not that point too late? Had not the House proceeded to the consideration of the resolution?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has directed the Clerk to read the ruling.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. REED made the point of order that a quorum was required on the adoption of the said resolution.

The Speaker overruled the said point of order on the ground that it was a proceeding to secure the attendance of absent members, on which a quorum was not required.

Mr. Calkins moved to dispense with further proceedings under the call, which motion was disagreed to.

Mr. BUCHANAN. But it will be observed that the authority cited does not reach at all the point I make. My point is that this is an "omnibus" resolution, seeking to undo a number of different actions of the House taken at different times, and that these separate actions can only be revoked separately and by a motion to reconsider in each case.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks the gentleman from New Jersey is in error. If this were a motion to reconsider, then the point made by the gentleman would be good; but it is not a motion to reconsider; it is simply a motion directing the Sergeant-at-Arms to notify these members that their attendance is desired.

Mr. BUCHANAN. I beg pardon of the Chair. The resolution says these leaves of absence shall be revoked——

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Yes.

Mr. BOUTELLE. And that the members shall be arrested.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. No, not that they shall be arrested; that the Sergeant-at-Arms be instructed to notify them of the action of the House and request their presence.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks the point of order is not well taken.

Mr. MASON. I would like to be heard on that question for a moment. The point to which I wish to call the attention of the Chair is this: The House has acted upon the cases of various members who have asked for leave of absence. Now, if those leaves of absence are to be revoked, I have a right to have the question divided. I may be in favor of recalling some of these gentlemen; others I may know to be sick or not to be on the right side of this question [laughter]; and these gentlemen I may want to excuse. But it is proposed by a single resolution to put me in such a position that I may be compelled to bring in my opponents to put them in possession of the ground. I submit that the point raised by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. BUCHANAN] is sound, that we are entitled to a division of the question; and in revoking leaves of absence we have a right to demand that every action of the House shall be voted on separately, just as was done originally in granting the requests for leave of absence.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has considered that point and has overruled it.

Mr. BOUTELLE. In support of the statement of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MASON] I wish to suggest that it has been ruled by a former Speaker of this House that a proposition to excuse a number of members at the same time was not in order; and that ruling of the Chair was based upon the same grounds stated by the gentleman from Illinois—that different members might present various excuses, might show various degrees of delinquency, so that the House might be in favor of excusing some and refusing to excuse others. It strikes me the spirit of that ruling would cover the resolution now under consideration, both propositions being proceedings under a call of the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has given his best judgment to this question in view of the authority read at the desk, and no authority adverse to it is cited.

Mr. BOUTELLE. The authority to which I have alluded is directly adverse.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair does not know of any such authority.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I can not refer the Chair to the page, but I cite the ruling made by Mr. Speaker Blaine in the second session of the Forty-third Congress. I think that the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. RANDALL] may be able possibly to give the exact reference. In that case it was decided by the Chair that a proposition to excuse a number of members by one resolution or motion was not in order, for the reason that the House must take cognizance of the cases individually.

Mr. BUCHANAN. That is common sense.

Mr. BOUTELLE. It strikes me that the same principle applies here.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair can only repeat the statement that in ruling upon this question he has used his best judgment, and he adheres to that ruling.

The question having been put on the resolution of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky,

The SPEAKER pro tempore. On this question the ayes are 79, the noes 9.

Mr. MASON. No quorum.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. No quorum is required. The "ayes" have it.

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, I wish to inquire what has become of my amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There has been no disposition made of it so far as the Chair is aware. The Chair was not aware that the amendment was pending.

Mr. TAULBEE. The amendment was offered; and to it there was an amendment suggested by my colleague [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE], who indicated that with his amendment he would be willing to accept my amendment. I accepted his amendment to my amendment; and I understood him to accept my amendment as thus modified.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair did not understand that the amendment was accepted or offered. According to the recollection of the Chair, the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] was not recognized to offer it.

Mr. STRUBLE. What was the effect of those several acceptances and amendments?

Mr. TAULBEE. The effect of the amendment I offered—— [Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. TAULBEE. This is the regular order. I hope the Chair will indulge me while I answer the question of the gentleman, which relates to the proceedings of the House, and will tend to a proper understanding of the amendment which, as I understood, the Chair signified it was in order for me to offer.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. To what question does the gentleman rise?

Mr. TAULBEE. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry, apropos to the inquiry I made of the Chair as to what disposition had been made of my amendment to the resolution on which we have just voted. I understood the Chair to state that it was in order for me to offer the amendment. My inquiry is as to whether or not it is competent to amend a resolution which has been already passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will state, as his best recollection, that the Chair was examining the question of parliamentary law submitted or sent up by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE], when a colloquy took place between the two gentlemen from Kentucky, during which time the gentleman who has just addressed the Chair suggested an amendment, but the Chair did not recognize him to offer the amendment at all.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until 9 o'clock.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I object.

Mr. GUENTHER. What is the regular order?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The enforcement of the order of the House by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Mr. BUCKALEW. It is absolutely necessary that the officers of the House should have an opportunity to have the Hall cleaned and aired. I am therefore in favor of a reasonable recess for that purpose, and I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until 11 o'clock, to which I hope no gentleman will object. It is only a reasonable time.

Mr. HOLMES and others objected.

Mr. PARKER. I raise the point of order that no gentleman rose in his place and made objection. I hope all objections will be withdrawn.

Mr. HOLMES. I renew the objection if it is withdrawn.

Mr. TAULBEE. Regular order!

Mr. LONG. I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess until 11 o'clock.

Mr. TAULBEE, Mr. FORD, and others objected.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I think, Mr. Speaker, that the objection to a recess arises more because of the hour named than any other cause.

Mr. TAULBEE. I think the gentleman is badly mistaken there.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I will ask unanimous consent, especially in behalf of the older gentlemen on both sides of the House, that a short recess be taken. There are many gentlemen here who are past sixty years of age, and if this is simply a question of physical endurance, we can probably kill them off. I therefore, in the interest of these gentlemen and in the interest of the clerks and others who have been at work here all night, to say nothing about ourselves, ask unanimous consent that we take a recess until 11 o'clock and 30 minutes this morning.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky, and Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, objected.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kentucky and the gentleman from Arkansas object.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Allow me to explain my request. The gentleman from Kentucky has been sleeping all night, and my request was in the interest of the older men. [Cries of "Regular order!"]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection has been made to the request of the gentleman.

Mr. PERKINS. With a view that the House may be put in order for the day's business, and to enable members to have an opportunity of getting breakfast, I ask unanimous consent that the House take a recess for two hours.

Mr. TAULBEE, Mr. KERR, and others objected.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. As there seems to be considerable objection on all sides to taking a recess, and as I do not want to kill off any of the "older members," that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. ALLEN] speaks of, I move in their interest that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. REED, Mr. BAKER of Illinois, Mr. GOFF, and others demanded the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 52, nays 116, not voting 156; as follows:

YEAS—52.

Abbott,	Cowles,	McKinney,	Rogers,
Anderson, Miss.	Enloe,	McMillin,	Rowland,
Anderson, Ill.	Ford,	McRae,	Sayers,
Bankhead,	Grimes,	McShane,	Shively,
Barnes,	Herbert,	Montgomery,	Smith,
Barry,	Hooker,	Morgan,	Springer,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Howard,	Neal,	Stewart, Tex.
Breckinridge, Ky	Johnston, N. C.	Newton,	Stockdale,
Buckalew,	Kilgore,	Oates,	Tillman,
Bynum,	Lane,	Peel,	Vance,
Candler,	Lanham,	Phelan,	Walker,
Carlton,	Martin,	Richardson,	Weaver,
Clements,	McClammy,	Robertson,	Whiting, Mich.

NAYS—116.

Allen, Mich.	Davis,	Kennedy,	Sawyer,
Anderson, Iowa,	Dibble,	Kerr,	Scull,
Arnold,	Elliott,	Laidlaw,	Seney,
Baker, N. Y.	Farquhar,	Lehlback,	Seymour,
Baker, Ill.	Fitch,	Lind,	Sherman,
Bayne,	Fuller,	Long,	Sowden,
Belden,	Funston,	Lyman,	Spooner,
Bingham,	Gaines,	Mason,	Stahlnecker,
Bliss,	Gallinger	McAdoo,	Steele,
Boothman,	Gear,	McCormick,	Stephenson,
Bound,	Gest,	McKenna,	Stewart, Vt.
Boutelle,	Goff,	McKinley,	Struble,
Bowden,	Grout,	Moffitt,	Symes,
Bowen,	Guenther,	Morrow,	Taulbee,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Hall,	Nichols,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Brown, J. R., Va.	Harmer,	O'Ferrall,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Brumm,	Haugen,	O'Neill, Pa.	Thomas, Ky.
Bryce,	Henderson, Iowa,	Osborne,	Thomas, Wis.
Buchanan,	Henderson, Ill.	Parker,	Turner, Kans.
Bunnell,	Hermann,	Perkins,	Warner,
Burrows,	Hitt,	Peters,	Weber,
Butterworth,	Holmes,	Post,	White, Ind.
Cannon,	Hopkins, Ill.	Pugsley,	Wickham,
Caswell,	Hopkins, Va.	Randall,	Wilkinson,
Cheadle,	Houk,	Reed,	Williams,
Conger,	Hovey,	Rice,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cooper,	Hunter,	Romeis,	Woodburn.
Crouse,	Johnston, Ind.	Rowell,	Yardley,
Darlington,	Kean,	Russell, Conn.	Yost.

NOT VOTING—156.

Adams,	Dargan,	Hutton,	Payson,
Allen, Mass.	Davenport,	Jackson,	Penington,
Allen, Miss.	Davidson, Ala.	Jones,	Perry,
Anderson, Kans.	Davidson, Fla.	Kelley,	Phelps,
Atkinson,	De Lano,	Ketcham,	Pidcock,
Bacon,	Dingley,	Laffoon,	Plumb,
Belmont,	Dockery,	La Follette,	Rayner,
Biggs,	Dorsey,	Lagan,	Rockwell,
Blanchard,	Dougherty,	Laird,	Russell, Mass.
Bland,	Dunham,	Landes,	Rusk,
Blount,	Dunn,	Latham,	Ryan,
Brewer,	Ermentrout,	Lawler,	Scott,
Brower,	Felton,	Lee,	Shaw,
Browne, Ind.	Finley,	Lodge,	Simmons,
Brown, Ohio,	Fisher,	Lynch,	Snyder,
Burnes,	Flood,	Macdonald,	Spinola,
Burnett,	Foran,	Maffett,	Stewart, Ga.
Butler,	Forney,	Mahoney,	Stone, Ky.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	French,	Maish,	Stone, Mo.
Campbell, Ohio,	Gay,	Mansur,	Tarsney,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Gibson,	Matson,	Thomas, Ill.
Caruth,	Glass,	McComas,	Thompson, Ohio.
Catchings,	Glover,	McCreary,	Thompson, Cal.
Chipman,	Granger,	McCullogh,	Tracey,
Clardy,	Greenman,	Merriman,	Townshend,
Clark,	Grosvenor,	Milliken,	Turner, Ga.
Cobb,	Hare,	Mills,	Vandever,
Cockran,	Hatch,	Moore,	Wade,
Cogswell,	Hayden,	Morrill,	Washington,
Collins,	Hayes,	Morse,	West,
Compton.	Heard,	Nelson,	Wheeler,
Cothran,	Hemphill	Norwood,	White, N. Y.
Cox,	Henderson, N. C.	Nutting,	Whiting, Mass.
Crain,	Hiestand,	O'Donnell,	Whitthorne,
Crisp,	Hires,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wilber,
Culberson,	Hogg,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wilkins,
Cummings,	Holman,	Outhwaite,	Wilson, Minn.
Cutcheon,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Owen,	Wise,
Dalzell,	Hudd,	Patton,	Yoder.

So the motion to adjourn was not agreed to.

On motion of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky, the reading of the names of members voting was dispensed with.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. RUSSELL, of Massachusetts, with Mr. COGSWELL, until 5 o'clock p. m.

Mr. LAWLER with Mr. LODGE, until 12 o'clock to-day.

Mr. WADE with Mr. WHEELER, from 6 a. m. until 9 a. m. to-day.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Mr. Speaker, the point of order in regard to revoking the leaves of absence has been ruled upon, and, so far as the question is concerned, it is res adjudicata. I desire to say, however——

Mr. TAULBEE. Well, Mr. Speaker, I object. Let us have the regular order.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I know the gentleman from Kentucky will not object.

Mr. TAULBEE. I know he will.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I ask the gentleman from Kentucky to withdraw his objection so as to let me give simply a reference to a citation.

Mr. TAULBEE. I have no objection at all to the gentleman having the privilege given him to print, but I am tired of so much talk. [Laughter.]

Mr. BOUTELLE. I simply desire to state the page and volume of a citation which I made.

Mr. TAULBEE. The gentleman can have it inserted in the RECORD, but I object to his stating it here. Let us have the regular order.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I now ask unanimous consent to state the page and volume of an authority which I have cited.

Mr. TAULBEE. I object. I insist that the gentleman is out of order, and I ask to have the regular order preserved and that the House proceed in order.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I rise to a question of privilege.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BOUTELLE. My point is that some time ago, in the discussion of a point of order, I undertook to cite certain rulings——

Mr. TAULBEE. I insist that the gentleman shall state his point of order, and I insist upon the regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is stating his point of order. The gentleman from Maine rises to a question of privilege, and he has a right to state it. Otherwise the Chair will be unable to determine whether it is a question of privilege or not.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I desire to correct an error which appears in the RECORD, where I endeavored to make a citation and failed to give it correctly. I now desire to give it accurately. It is pages 1737–1738, volume 11, second session Forty-third Congress.

Mr. TAULBEE. I object, and I rise to a point of order. I make the point that the gentleman is out of order, and I ask to have his statement excluded from the RECORD, and the reporters directed not to put it in. My point is that the gentleman arose to ask unanimous consent to make certain statements that were out of order, which was objected to, and thereupon the gentleman attempted, under a pretext and a quibble, to accomplish that which he had no right to do under the rules of this House. [Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. HENDERSON, of Iowa. I rise to a point of order.

Mr. TAULBEE. I now insist that the remarks of the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] shall be withheld from the RECORD.

Mr. HENDERSON, of Iowa. My point of order is that it is impossible to hear the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE]. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair does not sustain the point of order. [Laughter.]

Mr. WEAVER. I should like to have the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] state what it was that the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] desired to have expunged from the RECORD. [Laughter.]

Mr. TAULBEE. Mr. Speaker, I object. I raise a point of order, and I insist that the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. WEAVER] is out of order. If we can proceed with the regular business in an orderly and decorous way I desire to have it done.

Mr. HENDERSON, of Iowa. We are frittering away the time of the House. [Laughter.]

Mr. SPRINGER. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SPRINGER. I desire to ask what is the motion made by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE].

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] first objected to the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE] stating a citation, and then made the point of order that the statement which the gentleman from Maine did make did not constitute a question of privilege.

Mr. WEAVER. I would like to know what it was that the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] desired to have expunged from the RECORD.

Mr. TAULBEE. I rise to a question of information [laughter], which I think is in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman rises to a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. TAULBEE. I wish to inquire what has become of the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE]. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is not a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. TAULBEE. I said that I rose to a question of information.

Several MEMBERS. Regular order.

After an interval of some time,

Mr. TAULBEE said: Mr. Speaker, it is now after 7 o'clock, and we have had no intermission of the session of the House since we assembled yesterday at quarter before 12. We have had no time to eat or sleep except as we did so in violation of the rules. I therefore ask unanimous consent that we now take a recess until 9 o'clock this morning, which is less than two hours.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SPRINGER). The gentleman from Kentucky asks unanimous consent that further proceedings under the call be dispensed with and that the House take a recess until 9 o'clock this morning.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, and Mr. SOWDEN objected.

After some time had elapsed,

Mr. SOWDEN said: I ask that one-half of the persons on the clerical force of the House be excused for an hour, in order to enable them to go home and get their breakfasts.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks that the Clerk of the House will arrange matters of that kind.

Mr. SOWDEN. It is not a question what the Clerk will do. I have made a motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Such a motion is not in order pending a call of the House.

Mr. SOWDEN. I ask unanimous consent.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman asks unanimous consent that all proceedings under the call be dispensed with——

A MEMBER. That was not the proposition.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There can be no business transacted pending the call of the House, except such as is incident to obtaining the presence of members. If the House desires to do any other business, it can only be done by dispensing with proceedings under the call. Is there objection?

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I object.

Mr. SOWDEN. Mr. Speaker, I move that we proceed to a second call of the House, in order to ascertain how many gentlemen have absented themselves without leave since the last call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That motion is not in order. The gentleman may move to dispense with further proceedings under the call, and a yea-and-nay vote on that will disclose who are present.

Mr. SOWDEN. Does the Chair hold that this motion is out of order?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair so holds.

Mr. SOWDEN. It was held by the gentleman who a short time ago vacated the chair that such a motion was in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair holds that the only motion now in order is one relating to the attendance of members or to dispense with further proceedings under the call or to adjourn.

Mr. BUCHANAN. Does the Chair hold that a motion to call the roll to ascertain who have absented themselves since the last roll-call is out of order?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is of opinion that that motion can not be entertained now.

Mr. BUCHANAN. That was my view at the time it was ruled otherwise.

Mr. SOWDEN. The gentleman who vacated the chair a short time ago decided just the reverse.

Mr. WEAVER. I move that the House adjourn.

Mr. BAKER, of Illinois. On that motion I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 23, nays 76, not voting 225; as follows:

YEAS—23.

Breckinridge, Ark.	Enloe,	Martin,	Shively,
Bynum,	Grimes,	Norwood,	Springer,
Candler,	Johnston, N. C.	Oates,	Tillman,
Clements,	Kilgore,	Richardson,	Weaver,
Crisp,	Landes,	Robertson,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cummings,	Lane,	Rogers,

NAYS—76.

Anderson, Iowa	Cooper,	Hopkins, Va.	Rice,
Arnold,	Crouse,	Hovey,	Romeis,
Baker, N. Y.	Dalzell,	Kean,	Scull,
Baker, Ill.	Darlington,	Kennedy,	Seymour,
Bayne,	Farquhar,	Kerr,	Sherman,
Belden,	Fuller,	Laidlaw,	Sowden,
Boothman,	Funston,	Latham,	Stahlnecker,
Bound,	Gaines,	Lyman,	Stephenson,
Bowen,	Gallinger,	Mason,	Struble,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Gear,	McAdoo,	Symes,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Goff,	McCormick,	Taulbee,
Brumm,	Guenther,	McKinley,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Buchanan,	Hall,	Moffitt,	Thomas, Wis.
Bunnell,	Haugen,	O'Neill, Pa.	Warner,
Butterworth,	Henderson, Iowa	Osborne,	Weber,
Cannon,	Hermann,	Parker,	Wickham,
Caswell,	Hitt,	Post,	Wilkinson,
Cheadle,	Holmes,	Pugsley,	Woodburn,
Conger,	Hopkins, Ill.	Randall,	Yardley.

NOT VOTING—225.

Abbott,	Boutelle,	Clardy,	Dingley,
Adams,	Bowden,	Clark,	Dockery,
Allen, Mass.	Breckinridge, Ky.	Cobb,	Dorsey,
Allen, Mich.	Brewer,	Cockran,	Dougherty,
Allen, Miss.	Brower,	Cogswell,	Dunham,
Anderson, Miss.	Browne, Ind.	Collins,	Dunn,
Anderson, Ill.	Brown, Ohio	Compton,	Elliott,
Anderson, Kans.	Bryce,	Cothran,	Ermentrout,
Atkinson,	Buckalew,	Cowles,	Felton,
Bacon,	Burnes,	Cox,	Finley,
Bankhead,	Burnett,	Crain,	Fisher,
Barnes,	Burrows,	Culberson,	Fitch,
Barry,	Butler,	Cutcheon,	Flood,
Belmont,	Campbell, F., N. Y.	Dargan,	Foran,
Biggs,	Campbell, Ohio	Davenport,	Ford,
Bingham,	Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Davidson, Ala.	Forney,
Blanchard,	Carlton,	Davidson, Fla.	French,
Bland,	Caruth,	Davis,	Gay,
Bliss,	Catchings,	De Lano,	Gest,
Blount,	Chipman,	Dibble,	Gibson,
Glass,	Lawler,	O'Ferrall,	Stewart, Ga.
Glover,	Lee,	O'Neall, Ind.	Stewart, Vt.
Granger,	Lehlbach,	O'Neill, Mo.	Stockdale,
Greenman,	Lind,	Outhwaite,	Stone, Ky.
Grosvenor,	Lodge,	Owen,	Stone, Mo.
Grout,	Long,	Patton,	Tarsney,
Hare,	Lynch,	Payson,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Harmer,	Macdonald,	Peel,	Thomas, Ky.
Hatch,	Maffett,	Penington,	Thomas, Ill.
Hayden,	Mahoney,	Perkins,	Thompson, Ohio
Hayes,	Maish,	Perry,	Thompson, Cal.
Heard,	Mansur,	Peters,	Tracey,
Hemphill,	Matson,	Phelan,	Townshend,
Henderson, N. C.	McClammy,	Phelps,	Turner, Kans.
Henderson, Ill.	McComas,	Pidcock,	Turner, Ga.
Herbert,	McCreary,	Plumb,	Vance,
Hiestand,	McCullogh,	Rayner,	Vandever,
Hires,	McKenna,	Reed,	Wade,
Hogg,	McKinney,	Rockwell,	Walker,
Holman,	McMillin,	Rowell,	Washington,
Hooker,	McRae,	Rowland,	West,
Hopkins, N. Y.	McShane,	Russell, Conn.	Wheeler,
Houk,	Merriman,	Russell, Mass.	White, Ind.
Howard,	Milliken,	Rusk.	White, N. Y.
Hudd,	Mills,	Ryan,	Whiting, Mich.
Hunter,	Montgomery,	Sawyer.	Whiting, Mass.
Hutton,	Moore,	Sayers,	Whitthorne,
Jackson,	Morgan,	Scott,	Wilber,
Johnston, Ind.	Morrow,	Seney,	Wilkins,
Jones,	Morrill,	Shaw,	Williams,
Kelley,	Morse,	Simmons,	Wilson, Minn.
Ketcham,	Neal,	Smith,	Wise,
Laffoon,	Nelson,	Snyder,	Yoder,
La Follette,	Newton,	Spinola,	Yost.
Lagan,	Nichols,	Spooner,
Laird,	Nutting,	Steele,
Lanham,	O'Donnell,	Stewart, Tex.

So the House refused to adjourn.

On motion of Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, by unanimous consent, the reading of the names was dispensed with.

The following pairs were announced for this day:

Mr. BARNES with Mr. SPOONER, until 9 o'clock a. m.

Mr. WHITING, of Michigan, with Mr. RUSSELL, of Connecticut, until 12 o'clock to-day.

Mr. FORD with Mr. BURROWS, from 7 to 9 o'clock to-day.

Mr. MCSHANE with Mr. MORROW, until 10 o'clock a. m.

Mr. STEWART, of Texas, with Mr. STEWART, of Vermont, until 11.30 to-day.

Mr. STOCKDALE with Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR, until 10 o'clock a. m.

Mr. LANHAM with Mr. BOWDEN, until 8.30 a. m. to-day.

Mr. HOOKER with Mr. HENDERSON, of Illinois, until 10 o'clock a. m.

Mr. BUCKALEW with Mr. HARMER, until 9.30 a. m.

Mr. MCCLAMMY with Mr. NICHOLS, until 11 o'clock a. m.

Mr. HOWARD with Mr. WHITE, of Indiana, until 11 o'clock a. m.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois, with Mr. ROWELL, until 8.30 a. m.

Mr. ABBOTT with Mr. BOUTELLE, until 9 o'clock a. m.

Mr. MCKINNEY with Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan, until 8.30 a. m.

Mr. ROWLAND with Mr. YOST, until 9 o'clock a. m.

Mr. VANCE with Mr. SENEY, until 12 o'clock to-day.

Mr. STONE, of Kentucky, with Mr. THOMAS, of Kentucky, until 9 o'clock a. m.

Mr. MCRAE with Mr. MCKENNA, until 10 o'clock a. m.

Mr. BANKHEAD with Mr. DIBBLE, on this vote.

Mr. NEAL with Mr. HOUK, until 8.30 a. m.

Mr. COWLES with Mr. GIBSON, until 9.10 a. m.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Mississippi, with Mr. PETERS, until 10 o'clock a. m.

Mr. SHIVELY with Mr. WILLIAMS, until 8 o'clock a. m.

Mr. PEEL with Mr. PERKINS, until 11 o'clock a. m. If present, Mr. PEEL would vote to adjourn; Mr. PERKINS against it.

Mr. SAYERS. I desire to announce that I am paired with the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. LONG] until 9 o'clock this morning.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SPRINGER). The Chair desires to state that when the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE] moved a few minutes ago to call the roll, in order to ascertain the names of those gentlemen then absent who had responded at the time the call of the House took place, the Chair announced that the motion was not then in order. The Chair has had his attention called to a decision upon a former occasion covering the point, and is of opinion that such motion, having in view the compelling of the attendance of members who have absented themselves since the former call of the House, is in order, and will entertain it.

Mr. LANHAM. I ask unanimous consent that my colleague, Mr. CULBERSON, be excused until 11 o'clock. He was here the whole night, and is not very well.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I hope there will be no objection to that request.

Mr. LANHAM. He went home to get his breakfast, and I know he needs some rest.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I must object, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LANHAM. I hope the gentleman will not do that.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Whence comes the objection?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Arkansas objects.

Mr. LANHAM. I appeal to the gentleman to withdraw his objection. I know that it is necessary that Mr. CULBERSON should be excused in consequence of his health.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I withdraw the objection on the statement made by the gentleman.

There being no further objection, Mr. CULBERSON was excused as requested.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair desires to state that the Sergeant-at-Arms is ready to report as to the action taken by him in response to the order of the House suspending the leaves of absence granted for this legislative day.

The Sergeant-at-Arms, having appeared at the bar of the House, announced that he had notified personally and in writing such members of the House as are absent for this legislative day by its leave, and had been informed by each of them that he would report immediately to the House in response to its request.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the names of the gentlemen who have thus been notified.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas;
Mr. COX;
Mr. DORSEY;
Mr. DOUGHERTY; and
Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. This only relates to those gentlemen who have been excused for the legislative day.

Mr. TAULBEE. I move that the Clerk be directed to call the roll, that we may see what members are absent, in view of the high probability that some members may have absented themselves during the call of the House.

Mr. DOCKERY. If that requires unanimous consent, I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. RICHARDSON). The gentleman from Kentucky will please reduce his motion to writing.

Mr. DOCKERY. I ask unanimous consent that the Doorkeeper be directed to open the center door, that we may have some ventilation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The doors have been directed to be closed by order of the House. There is no rule by which they can be opened until the proceedings under the call are dispensed with.

The deputy sergeant-at-arms appeared before the bar, having in his custody Mr. BELMONT.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCMILLIN). Mr. BELMONT, you are charged with being absent from the House without its leave. What excuse have you to offer?

Mr. BELMONT. I was paired yesterday. I was compelled to be absent in New York on important business, and returned this morning.

Mr. FITCH and Mr. CRISP moved that Mr. BELMONT be excused.

Mr. WILLIAMS. We did not hear the excuse given by the gentleman from New York.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York states that he was compelled to be absent from the city, and returned this morning.

The question being taken on the motion to excuse Mr. BELMONT, the Speaker pro tempore stated that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. FITCH. I call for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 61, noes 3.

So the motion was agreed to; and Mr. BELMONT was excused.

Mr. DARLINGTON. I ask leave of absence for two hours, on account of important business.

There was no objection.

Mr. BURROWS. For the last eight hours or more this Hall has been closed. If there be no objection, I ask unanimous consent that so much of the order relating to the call as compels the closing of the doors be dispensed with. There seems to be no propriety in keeping ourselves closed in in this way.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

Mr. HOPKINS, of Illinois. I object to the opening of the door in the center of the Hall. I do not object to the opening of the others.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears no objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan as modified by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HOPKINS]. If the doorkeepers will see to the doors above being opened some relief would be given.

Mr. COWLES (at 10 o'clock and 55 minutes a. m. Wednesday, April 11). I move that the House do now adjourn, and upon that motion I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered—40 members voting therefor.

Mr. MASON. I rise to a question of order. I think that was the last motion we voted upon.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will ascertain whether that is so or not.

Mr. COWLES. I withdraw the motion to adjourn.

The SPEAKER. The Chair ascertains that there has been no intervening business since the last motion was entertained.

Mr. WEAVER (at 11 o'clock and 40 minutes a. m. Wednesday, April 11). I move to dispense with further proceedings under the call.

The question being put,

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. STONE, of Kentucky) stated that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. WEAVER. I call for a division.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 74, nays 138, not voting 112; as follows:

YEAS—74.

Anderson, Miss.	Culberson,	Latham,	Sayers,
Anderson, Ill.	Cummings,	Martin,	Shaw,
Bacon,	Davidson, Fla.	Matson,	Shively,
Barnes,	Dockery,	McClammy,	Springer,
Barry,	Dougherty,	McCreary,	Stockdale,
Belmont,	Dunn,	McKinney,	Stone, Ky.
Blount,	Enloe,	McMillin,	Stone, Mo.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Hatch,	McRae,	Taulbee,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Henderson, N. C.	McShane,	Tillman,
Buckalew,	Hooker,	Morgan,	Turner, Ga.
Burnes,	Howard,	Neal,	Walker,
Bynum,	Hudd,	Newton,	Washington,
Candler,	Hutton,	O'Neall, Ind.	Weaver,
Clardy,	Johnston, N. C.	Peel,	Whiting, Mich.
Clements,	Kilgore,	Phelan,	Wilson, Minn.
Compton,	Laffoon,	Richardson,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cox,	Lagan,	Robertson,	Wise.
Crain,	Landes,	Rogers,
Crisp,	Lane,	Rowland,

NAYS—138.

Adams,	Dibble,	Kean,	Pugsley,
Allen, Mass.	Dorsey,	Kelley,	Randall,
Allen, Mich.	Elliott,	Kennedy,	Rice,
Anderson, Iowa	Ermentrout,	Kerr,	Rockwell,
Anderson, Kans.	Farquhar,	Laidlaw,	Romeis,
Arnold,	Finley,	Laird,	Rowell,
Atkinson,	Fitch,	Lehlbach,	Russell, Conn.
Baker, N. Y.	Flood,	Lodge,	Rusk,
Baker, Ill.	French,	Long,	Ryan,
Bayne,	Fuller,	Lyman,	Sawyer,
Belden,	Funston,	Macdonald,	Scull,
Bingham,	Gaines,	Mahoney,	Seymour,
Bound,	Gallinger,	Mansur,	Sherman,
Boutelle,	Gear,	Mason,	Sowden,
Bowen,	Gest,	McAdoo,	Spooner,
Brewer,	Glass,	McCormick,	Stahlnecker,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Goff,	McKenna,	Stephenson,
Brown, Ohio	Greenman,	McKinley,	Struble,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Guenther,	Merriman,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Brumm,	Hall,	Moffitt,	Thomas, Ky.
Bryce,	Harmer,	Montgomery,	Thomas, Wis.
Buchanan,	Haugen,	Morrow,	Wade,
Bunnell,	Henderson, Iowa	Nelson,	Warner,
Burrows,	Henderson, Ill.	Nichols,	Weber,
Butler,	Hermann,	O'Donnell,	West,
Butterworth,	Hitt,	O'Ferrall,	White, N. Y.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Holman,	O'Neill, Pa.	Whiting, Mass.
Cannon,	Holmes,	Osborne,	Wickham,
Caswell,	Hopkins, Ill.	Outhwaite,	Wilber,
Cheadle,	Hopkins, Va.	Patton,	Wilkins,
Chipman,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Perkins,	Williams,
Conger,	Houk,	Peters.	Yardley,
Cooper,	Hovey,	Pidcock,	Yost.
Crouse,	Hunter,	Plumb,
Davenport,	Johnston, Ind.	Post,

NOT VOTING—112.

Abbott,	Davidson, Ala.	Ketcham,	Russell, Mass.
Allen, Miss.	Davis,	La Follette,	Scott,
Bankhead,	De Lano,	Lanham,	Seney,
Biggs,	Dingley,	Lawler,	Simmons,
Blanchard,	Dunham,	Lee,	Smith,
Bland,	Felton,	Lind,	Snyder,
Bliss,	Fisher,	Lynch,	Spinola,
Boothman,	Foran,	Maffett,	Steele,
Bowden,	Ford,	Maish,	Stewart, Tex.
Brower,	Forney,	McComas,	Stewart, Ga.
Browne, Ind.	Gay,	McCullogh,	Stewart, Vt.
Burnett,	Gibson,	Milliken,	Symes,
Campbell, Ohio	Glover.	Mills,	Tarsney,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Granger,	Moore,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Carlton,	Grimes,	Morrill,	Thomas, Ill.
Caruth,	Grosvenor,	Morse,	Thompson, Ohio
Catchings,	Grout,	Norwood,	Thompson, Cal.
Clark,	Hare,	Nutting,	Tracey,
Cobb,	Hayden,	Oates,	Townshend,
Cockran,	Hayes,	O'Neill, Mo.	Turner, Kans.
Cogswell,	Heard,	Owen,	Vance,
Collins,	Hemphill,	Parker,	Vandever,
Cothran,	Herbert,	Payson,	Wheeler,
Cowles,	Hiestand,	Penington,	White, Ind.
Cutcheon,	Hires,	Perry,	Whitthorne.
Dalzell,	Hogg,	Phelps,	Wilkinson,
Dargan,	Jackson,	Rayner,	Woodburn,
Darlington,	Jones,	Reed,	Yoder.

So the motion to dispense with further proceedings under the call of the House was not agreed to.

The Clerk proceeded to recapitulate the names of members voting.

Mr. WHITE, of New York, and Mr. SOWDEN asked unanimous consent that the reading of the names be dispensed with.

Mr. SYMES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to have my vote recorded. I was in the Hall when the last name was called.

Mr. WEAVER. Was the gentleman in when his own name was called?

Mr. SYMES. I was not. I was inside the door when the last name was called.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Was the gentleman in the Hall when his name was called?

Mr. SYMES. Certainly not, or I would not be asking to have my vote recorded now.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is of opinion that the gentleman does not come within the rule.

Mr. SYMES. If I had been present, I should have voted "no."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request for unanimous consent that the reading of the names of members voting be dispensed with?

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will announce the pairs.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I object to dispensing with the reading of the names.

Mr. SOWDEN. The objection is too late. The decision of the Chair has already been announced.

Mr. HOPKINS, of New York. Of course it is too late.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks the objection is too late.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. DARGAN with Mr. ROCKWELL, on all political questions, for this day.

Mr. MOORE with Mr. DARLINGTON, on this vote.

Mr. LANHAM with Mr. BOWDEN, on this bill, until 1 o'clock to-day.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, with Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR, on this vote.

Mr. SNYDER with Mr. NUTTING, for this day.

Mr. STEWART, of Georgia, with Mr. DINGLEY, for this day.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I have been paired with Mr. TARSNEY from half past 6 this morning until now.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, some members of the Committee on the District of Columbia have accepted invitations to take part in the Georgetown bridge celebration to-day. I am not one of them, but on their behalf I ask that such of them as desire to attend the celebration be excused until 5 o'clock p. m.

Mr. SOWDEN. I object.

Mr. COWLES. I move to amend so as to include such other members of the House as desire to attend the celebration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore put the request formally to the House, when

Mr. REED, Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR, and Mr. SOWDEN objected.

EX-SENATOR CONKLING.

Mr. WHITE, of New York. I have here a special dispatch in relation to the health of ex-Senator Conkling, which is so encouraging that I would like to have it read from the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If there is no objection, the dispatch will be read.

There was no objection.

The dispatch was read, as follows:

Official bulletin, 9 a. m., from Dr. Barker.

A marked change for the better has taken place in Mr. Conkling's condition during the night, and he is much better this morning. In fact, he is much better this morning than he has been for at least ten days, and enjoyed more refreshing sleep than he has any night for over ten days. Mr. Conkling is beginning to recover.

[Loud applause on both sides of the Hall.]

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. TAULBEE. I hope the gentleman from Ohio will, for the time being at least, withdraw his request for the yeas and nays until the sense of the House can be taken by a division, which I think will be found so apparent in opposition to the motion to adjourn that the yeas and nays need not be taken.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. If my friend wishes it I will do so.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Ohio withdraw the demand for the yeas and nays?

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. For the time being.

Mr. REED. I ask for a division.

The House divided, and there were—ayes 56, noes 116.

So the motion to adjourn was rejected.

Mr. TAULBEE (at 2 o'clock and 45 minutes p. m.). Mr. Speaker, I desire to submit a request which I trust the House will hear patiently. In submitting this request I wish to disclaim any purpose whatever of taking any advantage of whatever courtesy the House may extend in allowing me to state briefly the reasons why I make it.

We find ourselves now at the end of the sixth day without an adjournment of this House, during the whole of which time there has been nothing whatever accomplished in the way of business. We have been in continuous session here for the past twenty-six hours, during which time I, as well as other members, have been in constant attendance upon the session of the House. We have been since about 6 o'clock yesterday evening operating under a call of the House, during which time nothing has been in order save the call of the House and motions to adjourn. In view of these facts and the utter impossibility of anything being accomplished, either by the friends of the bill to refund the direct tax or by its opponents, by continuing the House in session, and in view of the further fact that I think all will grant that there are important bills now on the Calendar and awaiting consideration—in view of these facts, I ask unanimous consent that the House now take a recess until 11 o'clock and 45 minutes before noon to-morrow, suspending the operation of the call for that purpose. After consulting with many members who have manifested a considerable interest both in favor of and in opposition to the bill——

Mr. LAIDLAW. I object now. [Laughter.]

Mr. TAULBEE. Well, I hope the gentleman from New York will allow me to finish my statement and request; and then, of course, it is his prerogative and privilege to take whatever course he may see proper.

As I was proceeding to say, after having consulted with many members on both sides of this controversy, I have, by their expressions of opinion with reference to the situation, and the probable effect both upon the pending legislation as well as upon the health and convenience of the members of the House, been led to hope that the request will not meet with any opposition. Of course we all know that one man can stop this matter, and perpetuate indefinitely the useless session of the House which we have had for the last twenty-six hours; but in the interest of good conscience, in the interest of the health and comfort of the members of this House, I earnestly request that this consent be granted now.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kentucky asks unanimous consent to dispense with further proceedings under the call, and that the House take a recess until 11 o'clock and 45 minutes a. m. to-morrow.

Mr. O'FERRALL. I object.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is requested to submit a request on behalf of the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. DORSEY] for leave of absence during this calendar day on account of sickness, and also on behalf of the gentleman from Kentucky, Mr. THOMAS, for leave of absence until to-morrow, on account of sickness.

Without objection, the requests will be granted.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is also requested to state that the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. HENDERSON, is under treatment for his eyes, and was compelled to leave the House about an hour ago.

If there be no objection, the gentleman will be excused for the present.

There was no objection.

Mr. OATES (at 3 o'clock and 25 minutes p. m. Wednesday). I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. MASON. On that I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 76, nays 133, not voting 115; as follows:

YEAS—76.

Abbott,	Dunn,	Lanham,	Rogers,
Anderson, Miss.	Enloe,	Maish,	Rowland,
Bacon,	Foran,	Mansur,	Sayers,
Bankhead,	Ford,	Martin,	Shaw,
Blanchard,	Gay,	McClammy,	Smith,
Blount,	Glass,	McMillin,	Springer,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Grimes,	McRae,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Hare,	McShane,	Stone, Ky.
Buckalew,	Hatch,	Montgomery,	Tarsney,
Burnes,	Herbert,	Moore,	Tillman,
Carlton,	Hooker,	Morgan,	Townshend,
Clements,	Hopkins, Va.	Neal,	Turner, Ga.
Cowles,	Howard,	Norwood,	Walker,
Cox,	Hutton,	Oates,	Washington,
Crisp,	Johnston, N. C.	O'Neall, Ind.	Weaver,
Culberson,	Kilgore,	Peel,	Wheeler,
Cummings,	Lagan,	Phelan,	Whiting, Mich.
Davidson, Fla.	Landes,	Richardson,	Wilson, Minn.
Dockery,	Lane,	Robertson,	Wilson, W. Va.

NAYS—133.

Adams,	Davenport,	Kerr,	Reed,
Allen, Mich.	Davis,	Laidlaw,	Rice,
Anderson, Iowa	Dibble,	Laird,	Romeis,
Anderson, Kans.	Dorsey,	Lind,	Rowell,
Arnold,	Elliott,	Lodge,	Rusk,
Baker, N. Y.	Ermentrout,	Long,	Ryan,
Baker, Ill.	Farquhar,	Lyman,	Sawyer,
Belden,	Fitch,	Macdonald,	Scull,
Bliss,	Fuller,	Mahoney,	Seney,
Boothman,	Funston,	Mason,	Seymour,
Bound,	Gaines,	McAdoo,	Sowden,
Bowden,	Gallinger,	McCormick,	Stahlnecker,
Bowen,	Gear,	McCreary,	Steele,
Brewer,	Goff,	McKenna,	Stephenson,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Grout,	McKinley,	Struble,
Brown, Ohio,	Guenther,	Merriman,	Symes,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Hall,	Moffitt,	Taulbee,
Brumm,	Harmer,	Morrow,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Bryce,	Haugen,	Nelson,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Buchanan,	Henderson, Iowa	Nichols,	Vandever,
Bunnell,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Wade,
Burrows,	Hermann,	O'Ferrall,	Warner,
Butler,	Hires,	O'Neill, Pa.	Weber,
Butterworth,	Hitt,	Osborne,	West,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Holman,	Outhwaite,	White, N. Y.
Campbell, Ohio	Holmes,	Owen,	Whiting, Mass.
Caruth,	Hopkins, Ill.	Parker,	Wickham,
Caswell,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Patton,	Wilber,
Cheadle,	Hovey,	Perkins,	Wilkinson,
Conger,	Hudd,	Peters,	Williams,
Cooper,	Hunter,	Phelps,	Yardley.
Crouse,	Kean,	Plumb,
Dalzell,	Kelley,	Post,
Darlington,	Kennedy,	Randall,

NOT VOTING—115.

Allen, Mass.	Crain,	Johnston, Ind.	Russell, Conn.
Allen, Miss.	Cutcheon,	Jones,	Russell, Mass.
Anderson, Ill.	Dargan,	Ketcham,	Scott,
Atkinson,	Davidson, Ala.	Laffoon,	Sherman,
Barnes,	De Lano,	La Follette,	Shively,
Barry,	Dingley,	Latham,	Simmons,
Bayne,	Dougherty,	Lawler,	Snyder,
Belmont,	Dunham,	Lee,	Spinola,
Biggs,	Felton,	Lehlbach,	Spooner,
Bingham,	Finley,	Lynch,	Stewart, Tex.
Bland,	Fisher,	Maffett,	Stewart, Ga.
Boutelle,	Flood,	Matson,	Stewart, Vt.
Brower,	Forney,	McComas,	Stone, Mo.
Browne, Ind.	French,	McCullogh,	Thomas, Ky.
Burnett,	Gest,	McKinney,	Thomas, Ill.
Bynum,	Gibson,	Milliken,	Thomas, Wis.
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Glover,	Mills,	Thompson, Ohio
Candler,	Granger,	Morrill,	Thompson, Cal.
Cannon,	Greenman,	Morse,	Tracey,
Catchings,	Grosvenor,	Newton,	Turner, Kans.
Chipman,	Hayden,	Nutting,	Vance,
Clardy,	Hayes,	O'Neill, Mo.	White, Ind.
Clark,	Heard,	Payson,	Whitthorne,
Cobb,	Hemphill,	Penington,	Wilkins,
Cockran,	Henderson, N. C.	Perry,	Wise,
Cogswell,	Hiestand,	Pidcock,	Woodburn,
Collins,	Hogg,	Pugsley,	Yoder,
Compton,	Houk,	Rayner,	Yost.
Cothran,	Jackson,	Rockwell,

So the House refused to adjourn.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. FISHER with Mr. MCCULLOGH, until further notice.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan, with Mr. PEEL, for one hour from 2.40 p. m.

Mr. LAFFOON with Mr. THOMAS, of Kentucky, on this bill, until to-morrow.

Mr. MCKINNEY with Mr. ALLEN, of Massachusetts, on this bill, for the rest of the day.

Mr. STONE, of Missouri, with Mr. MORRILL, on this bill, for the rest of this day.

Mr. WHITTHORNE with Mr. HOUK, for this day.

Mr. CANDLER with Mr. FINLEY, on this bill, until to-morrow.

Mr. BELMONT with Mr. SPOONER, until Thursday, April 12, at 11 a. m.

Mr. DOUGHERTY with Mr. WOODBURN, on this bill, until to-morrow.

Mr. BARNES with Mr. BOUTELLE, from half past 1 until 6 o'clock of this calendar day, Wednesday.

Mr. LAWLER with Mr. GEST, on any vote to adjourn, until 7 o'clock p. m.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Illinois, with Mr. YOST, on this bill, until 7 o'clock p. m.

Mr. BARRY with Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin, this day, until 8 o'clock p. m.

Mr. WALKER with Mr. WADE, on this bill, until 9 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi, with Mr. JOHNSTON, of Indiana, on this bill, until 7 p. m.

Mr. HENDERSON, of North Carolina, with Mr. FLOOD, on this bill, for this calendar day.

Mr. MORSE with Mr. BINGHAM, on this bill, for one hour.

Mr. RUSSELL, of Massachusetts, with Mr. COGSWELL, on this bill, until 5 o'clock p. m.

Mr. CLARDY with Mr. BAYNE, on this bill, for this calendar day. If present, Mr. BAYNE would vote for the bill; Mr. CLARDY would vote against it.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

Mr. WADE. I ask that my colleague, Mr. WALKER, and myself be excused until to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I object.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has received a communication from the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. HEARD], stating that he is sick and is strictly advised by his physicians not to attend the meetings of the House, and asking that his leave of absence be extended.

Mr. DOCKERY. I ask that my colleague, Mr. HEARD, be excused for the remainder of this calendar day.

Mr. BREWER. There is no doubt of his being sick.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the leave of the gentleman from Missouri will be extended. The Chair hears none.

Mr. OATES. Expressing the sentiment of a number of gentlemen around me, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with all further proceedings under the call, and that the House take a recess until 11.45 to-morrow.

Mr. REED. I am requested by a gentleman who is unavoidably absent to object. I do so.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCMILLIN). Does the gentleman from Maine object?

Mr. REED. I do.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Maine objects to the request of the gentleman from Alabama.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I rise to a question of privilege.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. On yesterday the New York Herald gave a table of the sums to be paid to different agents for collecting or bringing about the passage of the bill known as the direct-tax bill, and, among other States, mentioned the State of Michigan.

Mr. OATES. I demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. This is the regular order. The gentleman from Michigan rises to a question of privilege.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. And I am stating what it is, if gentlemen will listen.

The State of Michigan was mentioned as bound to pay about 40 per cent. of the amount that comes to her. I send to the Clerk's desk and ask to have read a telegram from the governor of Michigan.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I make the point of order that that presents no question of privilege.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. What the gentleman from Michigan has stated does not, in the opinion of the Chair, constitute a question of privilege.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I make the point of order that a question of privilege is not presented as to any telegram, unless the charge has been made against the character of the gentleman from Michigan that he is in some way connected with some agency, and that he does not pretend.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I am a younger man than the gentleman from Kentucky, but as he would do by his own State so I always have defended the honor of my State and always shall. I propose here and now to say——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. But the point of order having been made, the Chair has already said that what the gentleman has stated does not in the opinion of the Chair constitute a question of privilege. A defense of a State is not a matter that can be entered on upon the floor under the plea of privilege. The Chair sustains the point of order.

Mr. REED. Why should the gentleman make the point to prevent the reading of the telegram?

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I make the point of order because when a resolution was offered to appoint a committee to investigate such charges it was objected to on the other side.

Mr. REED. No such resolution was offered.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan, addressed the Chair.

[Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I rise to a question of personal privilege. The reflection in the article to which I have referred was on the honor and integrity of members of this House, and especially of the State of Michigan, who are virtually charged as undertaking to pass a bill through the House to pay money into the pockets of lobbyists. I wish the truth to go on record as stated in the telegram from the governor of the State of Michigan.

The SPEAKER resumed the chair, and said: Unless there is some reflection on the member in his legislative capacity this is not a question of privilege under the rules of the House. The former occupant of the chair has sustained the point of order The regular order is demanded, and there is nothing before the House.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I have risen to a question of privilege. Can I not be allowed to proceed without interruption?

The SPEAKER. The previous occupant of the chair has sustained the point of order. This is the end of the matter, unless the gentleman appeals from the decision of the Chair and that decision is overruled by the House.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I will not take an appeal under any circumstances; but I desire that this telegram may be made a part of my question of privilege—a telegram from the governor of Michigan.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, and Mr. DORSEY objected.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. As a part of my question of privilege which I desire to present——

The SPEAKER. But the Chair has decided that the gentleman does not present a question of privilege under the rules of the House. There must be an end at some time to these proceedings; and unless the gentleman appeals from the decision of the Chair, that period has been reached.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Then I simply wish to say that the statement in the paper, as far as Michigan is concerned, is absolutely false.

Mr. MCCREARY. Mr. Speaker, we have been acting under a call of the House for nearly twenty-four hours; and with the view of making a motion to take a recess——

Mr. REED. I call for the regular order. I have already given my reasons.

Mr. MCCREARY. I have not made a motion for a recess. I had remarked, Mr. Speaker, that we had been acting under a call of the House for nearly twenty-four hours; and therefore I move that we dispense with further proceedings under the call.

The Speaker was about to put the question, when

Mr. MCCREARY called for a division.

Mr. MOFFITT. On this question I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and it was decided in the negative—yeas 73, nays 120, not voting 131; as follows:

YEAS—73.

Abbott,	Cummings,	McComas,	Rowland,
Anderson, Miss.	Davidson, Fla.	McCreary,	Sayers,
Bacon,	De Lano,	McMillin,	Shaw,
Bankhead,	Dockery,	McRae,	Smith,
Blanchard,	Dunn,	McShane,	Springer,
Blount,	Enloe,	Montgomery,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Ermentrout,	Moore,	Stone, Ky.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Ford,	Morgan,	Tarsney,
Bryce,	Gay,	Neal,	Taulbee,
Buckalew,	Gibson,	Newton,	Tillman,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Glass,	Norwood,	Washington.
Campbell, Ohio	Grimes,	Oates,	Weaver,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hatch,	O'Neall, Ind.	Wheeler,
Carlton,	Johnston, N. C.	Owen,	Whiting, Mich.
Caruth,	Kilgore,	Peel,	Wilkinson,
Cowles,	Lagan,	Phelan,	Wise.
Cox,	Landes,	Richardson,
Crisp,	Martin,	Robertson,
Culberson,	McClammy,	Rogers,

NAYS—120.

Allen, Mich.	Farquhar,	Long,	Rowell,
Anderson, Iowa	Fitch,	Lynch,	Russell, Conn.
Anderson, Kans.	Fuller,	Macdonald,	Rusk,
Arnold,	Gaines,	Mansur,	Ryan,
Baker, N. Y.	Gallinger,	Mason,	Sawyer,
Baker, Ill.	Gear,	McAdoo,	Scull,
Belden,	Goff,	McCormick,	Seney,
Boothman,	Greenman,	McKenna,	Seymour,
Bound,	Guenther,	Milliken,	Sherman,
Bowden,	Hall,	Moffitt,	Sowden,
Bowen,	Harmer,	Morrow,	Stahlnecker,
Brewer,	Haugen,	Nelson,	Steele,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Henderson, Iowa	Nichols,	Stephenson,
Brown, Ohio	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Struble,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Hermann,	O'Ferrall,	Symes,
Brumm,	Hires,	O'Neill, Pa.	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Buchanan,	Hitt,	Osborne,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bunnell,	Holman,	Outhwaite,	Townshend,
Butler,	Holmes,	Parker,	Vandever,
Butterworth,	Hopkins, Ill.	Patton,	Warner,
Caswell,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Perkins,	Weber,
Cheadle,	Hovey,	Peters,	West,
Conger,	Howard,	Phelps,	White, Ind.
Cooper,	Hunter,	Plumb,	White, N. Y.
Crouse,	Kean,	Post,	Whiting, Mass.
Dalzell,	Kennedy,	Pugsley,	Wickham,
Darlington,	Kerr,	Randall,	Wilber,
Davenport,	Laird,	Reed,	Wilkins,
Dibble,	Lind,	Rice,	Williams,
Elliott,	Lodge,	Romeis,	Yardley.

NOT VOTING—131.

Adams,	Crain,	Houk,	Perry,
Allen, Mass.	Cutcheon,	Hudd,	Pidcock,
Allen, Miss.	Dargan,	Hutton,	Rayner,
Anderson, Ill.	Davidson, Ala.	Jackson,	Rockwell,
Atkinson,	Davis,	Johnston, Ind.	Russell, Mass.
Barnes,	Dingley,	Jones,	Scott,
Barry,	Dorsey,	Kelley,	Shively,
Bayne,	Dougherty,	Ketcham,	Simmons,
Belmont,	Dunham,	Laffoon,	Snyder,
Biggs,	Felton,	La Follette,	Spinola,
Bingham,	Finley,	Laidlaw,	Spooner,
Bland,	Fisher,	Lane,	Stewart, Tex.
Bliss,	Flood,	Lanham,	Stewart, Ga.
Boutelle,	Foran,	Latham,	Stewart, Vt.
Brower,	Forney,	Lawler,	Stone, Mo.
Browne, Ind.	French,	Lee,	Thomas, Ky.
Burnes,	Funston,	Lehlbach,	Thomas, Ill.
Burnett,	Gest,	Lyman,	Thomas, Wis.
Burrows,	Glover,	Maffett,	Thompson, Ohio
Bynum,	Granger,	Mahoney,	Thompson, Cal.
Candler,	Grosvenor,	Maish,	Tracey,
Cannon,	Grout,	Matson,	Turner, Kans.
Catchings,	Hare,	McCullogh,	Turner, Ga.
Chipman,	Hayden,	McKinley,	Vance,
Clardy,	Hayes,	McKinney,	Wade,
Clark,	Heard,	Merriman,	Walker,
Clements,	Hemphill,	Mills,	Whitthorne,
Cobb,	Henderson, N. C.	Morrill,	Wilson, Minn.
Cockran,	Herbert,	Morse,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cogswell,	Hiestand,	Nutting,	Woodburn,
Collins,	Hogg,	O'Neill, Mo.	Yoder,
Compton,	Hooker,	Payson,	Yost.
Cothran,	Hopkins, Va.	Penington,

So the House refused to dispense with further proceedings under the call.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. BURNES with Mr. MCCOMAS, for the rest of the day.

Mr. HUTTON with Mr. DORSEY, for the rest of the day.

Mr. FORAN with Mr. DAVIS, on this bill, until to-morrow.

Mr. LANHAM with Mr. MCKINLEY, on this vote.

Mr. MORSE with Mr. BINGHAM, on this vote.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

Mr. HATCH. I left on the Speaker's desk a request on behalf of my colleague, Mr. CLARDY, for leave of absence.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will lay the request before the House. The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. CLARDY requests leave of absence for ten days, on account of serious sickness in his family.

The SPEAKER. Leave of absence in this form can not be asked while a call of the House is pending. The Chair will submit the request at another time. The House, when acting under a call, can excuse a member from attendance at the session of the day, but it can not transact business by granting leave of absence for a future time.

Mr. HATCH. I ask unanimous consent that this leave of absence be granted.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thinks the House can not, even by unanimous consent, transact business now.

Mr. HATCH. Then I ask that my colleague may be excused from attendance this day, on account of serious illness in his family.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the gentleman will be excused.

There was no objection.

Mr. COX. I respectfully ask unanimous consent to be excused from attending night sessions during this legislative day. I shall be here during the day sessions, but can not be here at night.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the gentleman from New York will be excused from attendance at night sessions during this legislative day. The Chair hears no objection.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL. I ask unanimous consent that my colleague, Mr. WEST, be excused. He is really unwell.

Mr. MCKINNEY. I object.

Mr. STEELE. I ask unanimous consent that my colleague, Mr. HOVEY, be excused for this day. He has gone home, sick.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. I object.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. It has been stated in the newspapers——

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman, however, that unless the question of privilege pertains to some proceeding under the call of the House it is not now in order.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I think it does, sir; at least it has connection with the origin of this matter.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. It is simply a denial of the statement—an absolute assertion from the governor of Ohio——.

Mr. MCMILLIN (interrupting). Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the gentleman does not present a question of privilege.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR (continuing)—that the statement that any promise exists to pay any agent any commission, or any portion of the amount due the State under this bill, is an absolute lie.

Mr. MCMILLIN. That is not a question of privilege. I make the point of order that the gentleman is entirely out of order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair sustains the point of order.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. That is all, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. REED. It is in the RECORD, though.

Mr. LANHAM. I ask consent that I may be excused until 9 o'clock this evening.

Mr. REED. I shall be obliged to object. There is not the slightest necessity for it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DOCKERY in the chair). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. REED and Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, objected.

Mr. LAGAN. I ask unanimous consent to be excused until to-morrow at 11.30 a. m.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I object.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, at the request of a number of gentlemen, having had the courtesy of the House extended to me personally, I would ask unanimous consent that the House now take a recess until to-morrow at 11.45 a. m. I am sure we will all be better for it.

Mr. SOWDEN. I object.

Mr. COX. Would it be in order to move to suspend all further proceedings under the call and that the House take a recess?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is in doubt.

Mr. REED. That motion could not be made.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is inclined to believe that the motion to suspend further proceedings under the call must be first disposed of.

Mr. COX. Then I make that motion preliminary to the other.

Mr. BUCHANAN. That has just been voted upon. I make the point of order that it is not now in order to renew it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks it is in order.

The question was taken; and on a division there were—ayes 45, noes not counted.

Mr. REED. I call for the yeas and nays. I see gentlemen voting who I know are paired.

Mr. COX. I withdraw the motion if it be in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It is in order.

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. Speaker, I send to the Clerk's desk a resolution which I would like to have read.

Mr. REED. General, do not disturb the harmony of the occasion; you have done that too much already. [Laughter.]

Mr. WHEELER. I respectfully ask that it be read, subject to objection

Mr. REED. We will object to it first.

Mr. WHEELER. My reason is that several gentlemen on that side of the House have asked to have it read.

Mr. REED. Just give it to them privately.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. As everybody would like to go, I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. MOFFITT. Upon that I ask the yeas and nays.

The question was taken on ordering the yeas and nays, and

The SPEAKER pro tempore announced that 37 members had risen in support of the demand—a sufficient number.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. How many members are recorded on the last vote?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed that the vote was 74 to 119.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Has a sufficient number voted to call the yeas and nays?

Mr. DIBBLE. I demand a count of the other side.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky. Have they a right to call the other side? I make the point of order that it does not lie in their power to call the other side.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is not advised as to anything in the rule which would prohibit any gentleman from demanding a count of the other side.

The Chair will state, however, that a sufficient number has declared in favor of the vote by yeas and nays; and the Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 13, nays 73, not voting 238; as follows:

YEAS—13.

Abbott,	Grimes,	Tarsney,	Whiting, Mich.
Breckinridge, Ark.	Martin,	Turner, Ga.
Caruth,	O'Neall, Ind.	Vance,
Dunn,	Stone, Ky.	Wheeler,

NAYS—73.

Adams,	Dibble,	Macdonald,	Scull,
Allen, Mich.	Farquhar,	Mason,	Seney,
Anderson, Iowa	Finley,	McAdoo,	Seymour,
Atkinson,	Fuller,	McComas,	Sherman,
Baker, Ill.	Gear,	Merriman,	Sowden,
Bliss,	Goff,	Moffitt,	Stahlnecker,
Boothman,	Guenther,	O'Donnell,	Stephenson,
Bound,	Henderson, Iowa	O'Ferrall,	Struble,
Bowden,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Neill, Pa.	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Bowen,	Hermann,	Parker,	Turner, Kans.
Brewer,	Hires,	Perkins,	Vandever,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Hitt,	Peters,	Warner,
Brown, Ohio	Holman,	Phelps,	White, Ind.
Brown, J. R., Va.	Hopkins, Va.	Post,	Whiting, Mass.
Bryce,	Hudd,	Reed,	Wickham,
Butler,	Hunter,	Rice,	Yardley.
Cheadle,	Kean,	Romeis,
Cogswell,	Latham,	Rowell,
Cooper,	Lind,	Sawyer,

NOT VOTING—238.

Allen, Mass.	Crisp,	Hogg,	Morrill,
Allen, Miss.	Crouse,	Holmes,	Morrow,
Anderson, Miss.	Culberson,	Hooker,	Morse,
Anderson, Ill.	Cummings,	Hopkins, Ill.	Neal,
Anderson, Kans.	Cutcheon,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Nelson,
Arnold,	Dalzell,	Houk,	Newton,
Bacon,	Dargan,	Hovey,	Nichols,
Baker, N. Y.	Darlington,	Howard,	Norwood,
Bankhead,	Davenport,	Hutton,	Nutting,
Barnes,	Davidson, Ala.	Jackson,	Oates,
Barry,	Davidson, Fla.	Johnston, Ind.	O'Neill, Mo.
Bayne,	Davis,	Johnston, N. C.	Osborne,
Belden,	De Lano,	Jones,	Outhwaite,
Belmont,	Dingley,	Kelley,	Owen,
Biggs,	Dockery,	Kennedy,	Patton,
Bingham,	Dorsey,	Kerr,	Payson,
Blanchard,	Dougherty,	Ketcham,	Peel,
Bland,	Dunham,	Kilgore,	Penington,
Blount,	Elliott,	Laffoon,	Perry,
Boutelle,	Enloe,	La Follette,	Phelan,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Ermentrout,	Lagan,	Pidcock,
Brower,	Felton,	Laidlaw,	Plumb,
Browne, Ind.	Fisher,	Laird,	Pugsley,
Brumm,	Fitch,	Landes,	Randall,
Buchanan,	Flood,	Lane,	Rayner,
Buckalew,	Foran,	Lanham,	Richardson,
Bunnell,	Ford,	Lawler,	Robertson,
Burnes,	Forney,	Lee,	Rockwell,
Burnett,	French,	Lehlbach,	Rogers,
Burrows,	Funston,	Lodge,	Rowland,
Butterworth,	Gaines,	Long,	Russell, Conn.
Bynum,	Gallinger,	Lyman,	Russell, Mass.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Gay,	Lynch,	Rusk,
Campbell, Ohio	Gest,	Maffett,	Ryan,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Gibson,	Mahoney,	Sayers,
Candler,	Glass,	Maish,	Scott,
Cannon,	Glover,	Mansur,	Shaw,
Carlton,	Granger,	Matson,	Shively,
Caswell,	Greenman,	McClammy,	Simmons,
Catchings,	Grosvenor,	McCormick,	Smith,
Chipman,	Grout,	McCreary,	Snyder,
Clardy,	Hall,	McCullogh,	Spinola,
Clark,	Hare,	McKenna,	Spooner,
Clements,	Harmer,	McKinley,	Springer,
Cobb,	Hatch,	McKinney,	Steele,
Cockran,	Haugen,	McMillin,	Stewart, Tex.
Collins,	Hayden,	McRae,	Stewart, Ga.
Compton,	Hayes,	McShane,	Stewart, Vt.
Conger,	Heard,	Milliken,	Stockdale,
Cothran,	Hemphill,	Mills,	Stone, Mo.
Cowles,	Henderson, N. C.	Montgomery,	Symes,
Cox,	Herbert,	Moore,	Taulbee,
Crain,	Hiestand,	Morgan,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio.
Thomas, Ky.	Townshend,	White, N. Y.	Wilson, W. Va.
Thomas, Ill.	Wade,	Whitthorne,	Wise,
Thomas, Wis.	Walker,	Wilber,	Woodburn,
Thompson, Ohio	Washington,	Wilkins,	Yoder,
Thompson, Cal.	Weaver,	Wilkinson,	Yost.
Tillman,	Weber,	Williams,
Tracey,	West,	Wilson, Minn.

So the House refused to adjourn.

The following additional pairs were announced on the direct-tax bill:

Mr. WHITING, of Michigan, with Mr. CONGER, until 7 p. m. to-day.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina, with Mr. LYMAN, until 7 p. m. to-day.

Mr. MONTGOMERY with Mr. PLUMB, until 7 p. m. to-day.

Mr. RICHARDSON with Mr. DE LANO, until 7 p. m. to-day.

Mr. BUCKALEW with Mr. HARMER, until 7 p. m. to-day.

Mr. CUMMINGS with Mr. BUCHANAN, until 7 p. m. to-day.

Mr. ELLIOTT with Mr. ROBERTSON, until 7 p. m. to-day.

Mr. NEWTON with Mr. MCCORMICK, until 7 p. m. to-day.

Mr. PEEL with Mr. RYAN, until 7 p. m. to-day.

Mr. WISE with Mr. KERR, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. ROWLAND with Mr. BELDEN, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. NEAL with Mr. KENNEDY, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. MAISH with Mr. FITCH, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. SAYERS with Mr. WEBER, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. HATCH with Mr. PUGSLEY, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. LONG with Mr. SPRINGER, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. MANSUR with Mr. STOCKDALE, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. MCCLAMMY with Mr. NICHOLS, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. ERMENTROUT with Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. BACON with Mr. BAKER, of New York, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. WILKINS with Mr. HOWARD, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. LANHAM with Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. HERBERT with Mr. STEELE, until 10 a. m. to-morrow.

Mr. CARLTON with Mr. RUSSELL, of Connecticut, until 10 p. m. to-day.

Mr. MORGAN with Mr. MILLIKEN, until 11 a. m. to-morrow.

Mr. RUSSELL, of Massachusetts, with Mr. LODGE, until 11 p. m. to-day.

Mr. MCKENNA with Mr. MCRAE, until to-morrow.

Mr. CULBERSON with Mr. DAVENPORT, until to-morrow.

Mr. HOOKER with Mr. MORROW, until to-morrow.

Mr. TOWNSHEND with Mr. HOPKINS, of New York, until to-morrow.

Mr. LAGAN with Mr. WILBER, until to-morrow.

Mr. MORSE with Mr. BINGHAM, until to-morrow.

Mr. DAVIDSON with Mr. ANDERSON, of Iowa, until to-morrow.

Mr. BLOUNT with Mr. WHITE, of New York, until to-morrow.

Mr. SYMES with Mr. WILSON, of West Virginia, until 9 p. m. to-day.

Mr. DOCKERY with Mr. PATTON, until 8 p. m. to-day.

Mr. LANDES with Mr. WILLIAMS, for one hour.

Mr. CANNON with Mr. CLEMENTS, for to-day.

Mr. LANE with Mr. HOPKINS, of Illinois, for to-day.

Mr. MCSHANE with Mr. OUTHWAITE, for two hours.

Mr. CROUSE. Mr. Speaker, when the roll was called I had forgotten for the moment that I was paired on this bill until after dinner to-day. I therefore withdraw my vote.

Mr. TAULBEE. I desire to have a pair between Mr. PHELAN and myself announced. If voting, he would vote ay. I should vote no on this question.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman's statement will go into the RECORD.

Mr. MACDONALD. I ask unanimous consent that my colleague, Mr. RICE, be excused from attendance this evening, on account of his age. He is paired, and could not vote even if present.

There was no objection.

Mr. WILBER. I want to ask unanimous consent for leave of absence until to-morrow at a quarter before 11 o'clock, on account of poor health.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thinks that a leave of absence for this evening is as far as the House can go under present circumstances.

Mr. WILBER. Then I ask to be excused for this evening.

There was no objection.

Mr. TARSNEY. Mr. Speaker, it is evident that there is no quorum present, and I understand we are operating under a call of the House ordered some twenty-four hours ago. Since that time there has been ordered a supplemental call, if I may use that expression, to carry out the object of the first call. I now move a further call of the House for the purpose of bringing in the absentees of the House.

The SPEAKER. There is no such thing as a further call or supplemental call of the House, as the Chair understands it. But it has been decided, when it is alleged or becomes apparent that members who had responded on the call of the House had absented themselves, that a call of the roll might be had to determine that fact, and if, on such call, it is ascertained to be true, then such absent members may be sent for and required to appear at the bar of the House.

The gentleman from Michigan now moves that the roll be called for the purpose of ascertaining what members, if any, are absent who were heretofore present on the call of the House.

The motion was rejected.

Mr. ENLOE. When the roll was last called I inadvertently neglected to state that I had paired with the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. GAINES]. I therefore make the statement now.

Mr. MASON. I have just received from the gallery the communication which I hold in my hand. I would like to have it read for the information of the House.

Mr. WEAVER. I object.

Mr. REED. I understand it is only a denial of some charges that the papers have been making about the lobbyists.

Mr. WEAVER. If any denial is made I want to have an opportunity of telling the whole truth about it.

Mr. MASON. I withdraw the objection made by the gentleman from Iowa. [Laughter.]

Mr. WEAVER. I renew it.

Mr. MASON. I would like to have this communication printed in the RECORD as a part of my remarks.

Mr. WEAVER. I make the same objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SENEY). The Chair submits the following request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. MAISH]:

I am advised by my physician that it would not be advisable for me to remain here to-night. I therefore ask unanimous consent of the House to be excused for the night.

Mr. WEAVER. I object.

Some time subsequently,

Mr. TAULBEE said: I ask that the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania be again read by the Clerk, and I renew the request that the gentleman from Pennsylvania have leave of absence.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to granting the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. TAULBEE. I renew my request for unanimous consent that further proceedings under the call be dispensed with, and that the House take a recess until 11.45 a. m. to-morrow.

Mr. SOWDEN and other members objected.

Mr. ENLOE. I desire that what I send to the desk shall be read.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. I object to the reading of anything unless I know what it is.

Mr. ENLOE. It is a request for leave of absence.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The request will be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

I have not had an opportunity to consult my physician for the last thirty-six hours, but I am satisfied if I could see him he would prescribe a change of air. I therefore ask to be excused from attendance on the session of the House to-night.

Mr. REED. I object. I think a judicious physician would prescribe a change of conduct.

Mr. TAULBEE. I renew my request for unanimous consent that the House take a recess to 11.45 to-morrow.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Kentucky asks unanimous consent that further proceedings under the call be dispensed with, and that the House take a recess until 11.45 to-morrow. Is there objection?

Mr. PHELAN objected, but subsequently withdrew his objection.

There being no other objection, further proceedings under the call were dispensed with, and at 6 o'clock and 55 minutes p. m. (Wednesday, April 11) the House took a recess until 11.45 a. m. Thursday, April 12.

PRIVATE BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED.

Under the rule private bills of the following titles were introduced and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. BINGHAM: A bill (H. R. 9313) granting a pension to Mary Percy Linton and Anna Creig Linton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CARUTH: A bill (H. R. 9314) granting a pension to Mrs. Judith Deig—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CLARDY: A bill (H. R. 9315) for the relief of Mrs. E. A. McKinney—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. COMPTON: A bill (H. R. 9316) to incorporate the Washington and Sandy Spring Narrow Gauge Railroad and Street Railway Company—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. DUBOIS: A bill (H. R. 9317) granting a pension to James Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GALLINGER: A bill (H. R. 9318) granting a pension to Charles Jewett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GLOVER: A bill (H. R. 9319) for the relief of C. E. Soest—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOLMAN: A bill (H. R. 9320) for the relief of Levi S. Narth—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9321) granting a pension to Ruth Ann Porter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9322) granting a pension to Jacob Siebenthaler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9323) granting a pension to Matilda Weed—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9324) for the relief of Elisha Lunsford—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOWARD: A bill (H. R. 9325) granting a pension to James R. Burcham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KENNEDY: A bill (H. R. 9326) to amend the military record of Martin Barringer—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MAISH: A bill (H. R. 9327) for the relief of Rebecca Nickle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROMEIS: A bill (H. R. 9328) granting a pension to Capt. Holly Skinner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STONE, of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 9329) for the relief of S. F. Crider—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9330) for the relief of R. W. Blanks—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CHIPMAN: A bill (H. R. 9331) for the relief of John Anthony Orleman and Mary Albina Coleman, children of William Coleman, deceased—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HARE: A bill (H. R. 9332) for the relief of Rachel Gilbert—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. LAFFOON: A bill (H. R. 9333) for the relief of J. S. Stull—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MANSUR: A bill (H. R. 9334) to grant a pension to August Renne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McCOMAS: A bill (H. R. 9335) granting a pension to Mrs. Elizabeth Burress—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9336) to remove charge of desertion from Ellery C. Folger—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MORROW: A bill (H. R. 9337) authorizing the President to appoint and retire John C. Fremont as a major-general in the United States Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. STONE, of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 9338) for the relief of the legal representatives of B. J. Grubbs, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Change in the reference of a bill improperly referred was made in the following case, namely:

A bill (H. R. 7799) for the relief of the Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal Company—from the Committee on Claims to the Committee on War Claims.

A bill (H. R. 3017) granting a pension to Sarah E. Huntley—from the Committee on Invalid Pensions to the Committee on Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

The following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, under the rule, and referred as follows:

By Mr. ADAMS: Petition for the international copyright bill—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. C. H. ALLEN: Memorial of W. Stuart & Co., for better mail facilities between New York and New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. C. L. ANDERSON: Petition of Polk Watkins, heir of E. S. Champion, of Mississippi, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of 18 citizens of Kaufman County, Texas, for the payment of Indian depredations on the frontier—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. G. A. ANDERSON: Petition of the representatives of James N. Allen, of Mount Sterling; of J. W. Evans, of Chandlerville; of A. J. Cine, of Arenzville; of Joseph Cockell, of Perry; of A. Campbell, of Virginia; of Samuel E. McBond, of Summer Hill; and of James Holmes, of Barry, Ill., for relief—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. BACON: Memorial relating to Buttermilk and Gowanus Bay Channels, New York Harbor—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. C. S. BAKER: Memorial of the Rochester (N. Y.) Chamber of Commerce, in favor of the bill to reduce letter postage—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. BELDEN: Petition of Harvey L. Rounds and 22 others, citizens of South Onondaga, N. Y., for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BOUTELLE: Petition of John Emery and others, citizens of Hollis, Me., for more adequate protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BOWDEN: Petition of J. L. Jones, administrator of Isaac Jones, of Elizabeth City County, Virginia, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, papers in the case of S. P. Bayly, for relief—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. C. R. BRECKINRIDGE: Petition of Blanche Dent, guardian heirs of Edwin Bancroft, and of Sallie B. Pursell, heir of Allen Woody, of Woodruff County, Arkansas, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BREWER: Petition of William F. Potter and 56 others, citizens and soldiers of Laingsburgh, Mich., for the passage of the service-pension bill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. J. R. BROWN: Protest of James Thompson & Co., of Valley Falls, N. Y., against passage of the Mills tariff bill—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, resolutions of the Memphis Merchants' Exchange, for the passage of the bill to incorporate the Maritime Canal Company, of Nicaragua—to the Committee on Commerce.

Also, petition of B. F. Sharpe and others, of Ivanhoe Furnace, Wythe County, Virginia, for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. T. H. B. BROWNE: Resolutions of the Memphis Merchants' Exchange, for an act to incorporate the Maritime Canal Company, of Nicaragua—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. BUCHANAN: Petition of 18 citizens of New Jersey, for payment of Indian depredations on the frontier—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. BUNNELL: Petition of S. W. Alvord, late postmaster at Towanda, Pa., for relief—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. BURNETT: Two petitions for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition against the reduction of duty on brushes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CASWELL: Petition of S. D. Littlefield and 56 others, for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. CATCHINGS: Papers in the claim of R. T. Rutledge, of Tishimingo County, Mississippi—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CLEMENTS: Petition of William J. Love, of Walker County, and of Elizabeth Long, widow of William R. Long, late of Whitfield County, Georgia, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of James M. Hughey, of Gordon County, Georgia, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. COOPER: Petition of W. Z. Davis and 32 others, citizens of Marion County, Ohio, for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. COWLES: Petition of the mayor and board of health of San Francisco, for an act to establish a system of quarantine, etc.—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. DAVENPORT: Petition of citizens of New York, for correction of the classification of worsteds—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, citizens of Cohocton, N. Y., for protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of people of Geneva, N. Y., relating to appropriations for public buildings—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. DORSEY: Petition of citizens of Wayne County, of Burt County, of Cedar County, of Dakota County, and of Dixon County, Nebraska, protesting against a change in duty on flaxseed and linseed-oil—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DUBOIS: Petition of Local Assembly No. 3810, Knights of Labor, of Idaho, for the passage of the tonnage bill—to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of 18 citizens of Idaho, for the payment of Indian depredations on the frontier—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. GAINES: Petition of J. C. Schoolfield and 45 others, and of E. Hargrave and 32 others, citizens of Petersburgh, Va., in reference to cotton-seed oil—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of Davis & Co., and 69 others, citizens of Petersburgh, Va., against the passage of the Butterworth and Dawes lard bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, letter from the Richmond, Va., Whig, relating to the Mills tariff bill—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a petition of Thomas S. Smith, administrator of Thomas Smith, and of Thomas S. Smith, administrator of Samuel T. Smith, of Prince George County, and of George J. Clark, of Amelia County, Virginia, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GALLINGER: Petition of Haywood & Co., of Claremont, N. H., for quick mail transit for the New England States—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Samuel B. Page and 21 others, citizens of New Hampshire, for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of John F. W. Ham, of Dover, N. H., for quick mail transit between New York and New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GEAR: Joint resolution of the Legislature of Iowa in regard to the records of the Government land office in that State—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. GIFFORD: Petition of Henry A. Cadd and 114 others, of Peter Fortin and 17 others, of D. J. Riggs and 20 others, of J. H. Brown and 107 others, of W. F. Smith and 108 others, and of Richard Phillips and 30 others, citizens of Dakota, for the retention of the present duty on flax and flax products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GROUT: Petition of Dr. J. H. Guild and others, of Rupert, Vt., in behalf of Senate bill No. 283—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, proof in the claim of Moses L. Chase for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HARE: Petition of 40 citizens of Denton County, Texas, for payment of Indian depredations on the frontier—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. HAUGEN: Petition of the Galesville Gun Club and others, of the Eighth district of Wisconsin, for protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. HAYES: Petition of Camp No. 17, Sons of Veterans, for loan of condemned cannon to Army posts—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. D. B. HENDERSON: Resolution of the Legislature of Iowa, urging the passage of a law permitting the records of the land office in Iowa to remain in that State—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. HITT: Petition of Walter M. Braselton and 78 others, citizens of Parker County; and of J. H. Merick and 18 others, citizens of Parker County, Texas, for pay for Indian depredations—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

Also, petition of Ira Kinman and 23 others, citizens of Yellow Creek, Ill., for protection to farm products and repeal of the sugar duty—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HOGG: Petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Wheeling, W. Va., in favor of the James bill—to the Committee on Commerce.

Also, petition of the same, relative to railroad fares for commercial agents—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. HOLMAN: Petition of Matilda Weed, for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Levi S. North, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HUDD: Petition of John Nagle and 52 others, sportsmen of Manitowoc, Wis., for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. JONES: Petition of Caswell Garrett, for relief—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of citizens of Mobile, Ala., protesting against the passage of the Dawes lard bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. JOSEPH: Petition of 12 citizens of New Mexico, for the payment of Indian depredations on the frontier—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. LEE (by request): Petition of L. B. Buckner, heir of Louisa H. Turner, of Fauquier County, Virginia, for reference of her claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LONG: Petition of E. L. Sherman and 11 others, citizens of Attleborough, Mass., for the preservation of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of C. H. Pratt and 75 others, citizens of Mansfield, Mass., for protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. McCOMAS: Petition of William W. Moore, and of William Cook, for relief—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of William T. Need, and of F. O. Merley, of Frederick County, Maryland, for relief—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. McCREARY: Petition in behalf of David Martin, for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers in the claim of John Burnside—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, papers in the case of Lewis E. Lloyd, for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McKINLEY: Petition of W. H. Adams and 37 citizens of Stark County, Ohio, for increased duties on farm products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of A. H. Allen and 24 others, of Mahoning County, Ohio, for full protection to farm products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McSHANE: Petition of citizens of Nebraska, for the organization of the Territory of Oklahoma—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. MOFFITT: Petition of John Houghran and 20 others, citizens of Ellenborough Centre, Clinton County, New York—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MORROW: Memorial of the mayor, Board of Health, Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade, and collector of the port of San Francisco, Cal., for the establishment of a national quarantine station at San Francisco—to the Committee on Commerce.

Also, resolutions of the San Francisco Typographical Union, No. 21, favoring legislation restoring the wages of employés in the Government Printing Office to what they were prior to March 3, 1877—to the Committee on Printing.

By Mr. NEAL: Petition of A. B. Billingsley, of Bledsoe County; of W. R. Henson, administrator of John Henson, of Sequatchie County, and of Peter Beddow, of Marion County, Tennessee, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. NELSON: Petition for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. CHARLES O'NEILL: Papers relating to bill 6084, for the relief of Charles D. Freeman—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. PATTON: Two petitions of physicians and druggists of the Twentieth district of Pennsylvania, for the repeal of the druggists' license—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. PEEL: Petition of 41 citizens of Springdale, Ark., to put tin-plate on the free-list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. PERKINS: Petition of 93 citizens of Labette County, Kansas, for payment of Indian depredations on the frontier—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. PETERS: Petition of 120 citizens of Sumner County, Kansas, for payment for Indian depredations on the frontier—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

Also, petition of W. H. Graham, of Chelsea, Iowa; of William M. Tate, of Bloomington, Ind., and of John H. Smith, of Middleburgh, Va., for relief—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of J. F. Andrew and others, citizens of Harper County, Kansas, for reduction of postage on seeds, bulbs, etc.—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. PLUMB: Resolutions of the Methodist, Congregational, Wesleyan, and Baptist Churches of Wheaton, Ill., against the admission of Utah as a State—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. PUGSLEY: Petition of citizens of Highland County, Ohio, for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. RANDALL: Petition of L. W. Goodman and others, of John G. Maier and others, of Albert Mueller and others, and of Charles Krock and others, against the placing of books and pamphlets printed in other languages than English on the free-list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. REED: Petition of Grange No. 135, of Goodwin's Mills, Me., for further protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: Petition of Mary Hicks, and of heir of Nancy N. B. Bridges, of Rutherford County, Tennessee, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. ROCKWELL: Petition of citizens of Blackinton and of West Stockbridge, Mass., for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. C. A. RUSSELL: Petition of J. S. Root and others, of Hartford, Conn., for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. SAWYER: Petition of 154 citizens of Carlton, Orleans County, New York, for increased duties on agricultural products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SAYERS: Petition of 18 citizens of San Sola, and of 24 citizens of Mason County, Texas, for the payment of Indian depredations on the frontier—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

Also, petition of green and colored glass blowers relative to the tariff on glass bottles—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SCULL: Memorial of citizens of Johnstown, Pa., in favor of the passage of Senate bill 283—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. SENEY: Petition of the Merchant Tailor's Exchange of Cincinnati, respecting tariff duties on clothing—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of J. L. Whiting & Son, against reducing tariff on brushes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Produce Exchange of Toledo, Ohio, against the adulteration of food—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. HENRY SMITH: Petition of Julius Bleyer and 26 others, citizens of Milwaukee, for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. STAHLNECKER: Petition of citizens of North Salem, N. Y., urging immediate passage of Senate bill No. 283—to the Committee on the Territories.

Also, letter from the Jessup & Moore Paper Company, of New York City, protesting against placing wood-pulp on the free-list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. STOCKDALE: Petition of James M. Watson, for relief—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. STRUBLE: Petition of George O. Leonard and 75 others, citizens of Northwest Iowa, against any change in the duty on flax-seed and linseed-oil—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Fred. P. Whiting and 61 others, citizens of Plymouth County, Iowa, for the better protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. SYMES: Petition of W. D. Marlow, for relief—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. TAULBEE (by request): Petition of Robert Coates and others, for an allowance of pay—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Petition of Norman B. Jenkins and others, citizens of Streetsborough, Ohio, for further protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of citizens of the Nineteenth district of Ohio, for greater protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. J. D. TAYLOR: Petition of A. W. Cole and 46 others, for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of G. W. Farley and 81 others, citizens of Noble County, Ohio, for the schedule of duty on wool adopted by the wool-growers and manufacturers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of the Worsted Operatives' Protective Association, for a fair and just protection of worsted yarns and worsted goods—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. TOOLE: Petition of the Montana Wool-Growers' Association, protesting against putting wool on the free-list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Montana Wool-Growers' Association, for liberal appropriations for the improvement of the Missouri River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. VANDEVER: Petition for reduction of postage on seeds and small packages of merchandise—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. WEST: Petition of citizens of the Twentieth district of New York, for better protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the Knights of Labor of St. Johnsville, N. Y., for the passage of the tonnage bill—to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. WHEELER: Petition of Elizabeth C. Bibb, of Leroy P. Campbell, and of Margaret M. Ogden, administratrix of James Gaston, of Madison County; of Eliza Tenge, administratrix of Charles A. Tenge; of James T. Morgan, administrator of Sidney C. Posey; of S. J. Matthews, of Lauderdale County, and of Allen B. Launders, of Lawrence County, Alabama, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of Henry C. Rice, of Morgan County; of James M. Thomason, of Colbert County; and of M. Jane Haden, widow of John T. Haden, of Madison County, Alabama, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. J. R. WHITING: Petition of Davis Leslie and 47 others, citizens of Sanilac County, Michigan, for the continuation of the present system of eradicating pleuro-pneumonia—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of Davis Leslie and 48 others, against the reduction of duty on wool—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WILLIAM WHITING: Petition of Brown Bros., for better mail facilities in New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. WICKHAM: Petition of citizens of Huron County, Ohio, for better protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Charles W. Millen and 70 others, citizens of Huron County, Ohio, for the passage of Senate bill 283—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. WILBER: Petition of 39 citizens of Cooperstown, and of 24 citizens of Little Falls, N. Y., for protection of timber in the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. WILKINS: Petition of Philip Wickham and 100 others, citizens of Licking County, Ohio, for more effectual protection of agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. YOST: Petition of John L. Whiting & Co. and others, against a reduction of duty on brushes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law to establish a system of telegraphy, to be owned and controlled by the Government of the United States, and operated in connection with the Post-Office Department, were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. J. M. ALLEN: Of citizens of Mississippi.

By Mr. ARNOLD: Of citizens of Rhode Island.

By Mr. BARRY: Of citizens of Mississippi.

By Mr. BRUMM: Of 7,125 citizens of Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. BURNETT: Of citizens of Massachusetts.

By Mr. J. E. CAMPBELL: Of 80 citizens of New Richmond, of 1,050 citizens of Hamilton, of 80 citizens of Middletown, and of 45 citizens of Xenia, Ohio.

By Mr. CANDLER: Of citizens of the Ninth district of Georgia.

By Mr. CASWELL: Of 313 citizens of Wisconsin.

By Mr. CLEMENTS: Of 740 citizens of the Seventh district of Georgia.

By Mr. COWLES: Of 963 citizens of the Eighth district of North Carolina.

By Mr. CUMMINGS: Of citizens of New York.

By Mr. DUNHAM: Of citizens of Illinois.

By Mr. DUNN: Of citizens of Arkansas.

By Mr. ERMENTROUT: Of D. F. Kelchner and others, citizens of Fleetwood, Berks County; of E. D. Weitzel and others, of George H. Reiff and others, of Jesse Simmon and others, of Joseph W. Keflen and others, and of Ed. P. Morris and others, of Reading, Pa.

By Mr. FELTON: Of citizens of California.
By Mr. HATCH: Of citizens of Missouri.
By Mr. HERMANN: Of citizens of Oregon.
By Mr. HOLMAN: Of F. W. White and 468 others, citizens of the Fourth district of Indiana.
By Mr. JACKSON: Of 2,112 citizens of the Twenty-fourth district of Pennsylvania.
By Mr. T. D. JOHNSTON: Of citizens of the Ninth district of North Carolina.
By Mr. LANE: Of 494 citizens of Illinois.
By Mr. LATHAM: Of citizens of the First district of North Carolina.
By Mr. LAWLER: Of citizens of the Second district of Illinois.
By Mr. LEE (by request): Of 101 citizens of the Eighth district of Virginia.
By Mr. McCREARY: Of 616 citizens of Kentucky.
By Mr. McCLAMMY: Of D. W. Riggs and 1,420 others, of North Carolina.
By Mr. McCOMAS: Of 3,000 citizens of the Sixth district of Maryland.
By Mr. MAHONEY (by request): Of citizens of New York.
By Mr. MONTGOMERY: Of 676 citizens of the Fourth district of Kentucky.
By Mr. MORSE: Of citizens of Massachusetts.
By Mr. NELSON: Of citizens of the Fifth district of Minnesota.
By Mr. NEWTON: Of citizens of the Fifth district of Louisiana.
By Mr. O'FERRALL: Of 37 citizens of Albemarle County, of 223 citizens of Frederick County, and of 126 citizens of Rockingham County, Virginia.
By Mr. OUTHWAITE: Of 3,082 citizens of the Thirteenth district of Ohio.
By Mr. PHELPS: Of 1,275 citizens of the Fifth district of New Jersey.
By Mr. RANDALL: Of D. Brown and 200 others, of Philadelphia, Pa.
By Mr. RAYNER: Of citizens of Maryland.
By Mr. ROBERTSON: Of 551 citizens of Louisiana.
By Mr. ROWLAND (by request): Of citizens of Charlotte, N. C.
By Mr. J. E. RUSSELL: Of 599 citizens of Massachusetts.
By Mr. SHAW: Of 1,145 citizens of the Second district of Maryland.
By Mr. SNYDER: Of citizens of the Third district of West Virginia.
By Mr. SPINOLA: Of citizens of New York.
By Mr. STOCKDALE: Of 2,683 citizens of the Sixth district of Mississippi.
By Mr. TOOLE: Of 1,145 citizens of Montana.
By Mr. VANCE: Of 729 citizens of the First district of Connecticut.
By Mr. VOORHEES: Of 4,707 citizens of Washington Territory.
By Mr. WASHINGTON: Of citizens of Tennessee.
By Mr. J. R. WHITING: Of 885 citizens of the Seventh district o Michigan.
By Mr. WILBER: Of citizens of New York.
By Mr. WOODBURN: Of citizens of Nevada.
By Mr. YODER: Of 721 citizens of the Fourth district of Ohio.

The following petitions, indorsing the per diem rated service-pension bill, based on the principle of paying all soldiers, sailors, and marines of the late war a monthly pension of 1 cent a day for each day they were in the service, were severally referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

By Mr. JEHU BAKER: Of Irving Carter and 19 others, ex-soldiers.
By Mr. BELDEN: Of Fernando C. Wiley and 22 others, citizens of Syracuse, N. Y.
Also, of George W. Manning and 42 others, and of Nelson Gilbert and 11 others, ex-soldiers and sailors, of Syracuse, N. Y.
By Mr. BUNNELL: Of soldiers of Wyalusing, Bradford County, Pennsylvania.
By Mr. BUTTERWORTH: Of Warren Hobart and 75 others, ex-soldiers of Ohio.
By Mr. CHIPMAN: Of A. F. Smith and others, ex-soldiers.
By Mr. DORSEY: Of ex-soldiers of Dawson County, Nebraska.
By Mr. FULLER: Of J. P. Baker and 28 others, of H. B. Shaw and 42 others, of J. S. Trigg and 28 others, of E. S. Bacon and 60 others, of William Hebard and 21 others, and of J. M. Becker and 28 others, ex-soldiers of Floyd County, and of C. D. Merriam and 61 others, ex-soldiers of Charles City, Iowa.
By Mr. GIFFORD: Of L. C. Day and 22 others, and of P. S. Douglass and 8 others, ex-soldiers of Dakota.
By Mr. LEHLBACH: Of 62 daughters of veterans.
By Mr. LYMAN: Of F. B. Morris and 22 others, and of S. H. Wireman and 23 others, ex-Union soldiers of Mills County, Iowa.
By Mr. McSHANE: Of ex-soldiers of the First Congressional district of Nebraska.
By Mr. NUTTING: Of William Anderson and 29 others, of Auburn, N. Y.
By Mr. OWEN: Of 371 ex-Union soldiers, of White County, Indiana.
By Mr. SHIVELY: Of Charles H. Davis and others.
By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Of citizens of Williamsfield, Ohio.
By Mr. J. D. TAYLOR: Of T. A. Welsh and 242 others, citizens of Belmont County, Ohio.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law providing temporary aid for common schools, to be disbursed on the basis of illiteracy, were severally referred to the Committee on Education:

By Mr. CARUTH: Of 154 citizens of Louisville, Ky.
By Mr. DORSEY: Of 51 citizens of Colfax County, Nebraska.
By Mr. GEST: Of 93 citizens of Rock Island County, Illinois.
By Mr. O'FERRALL: Of 30 citizens of Page County, Virginia.
Also, of 143 citizens of Shenandoah County, Virginia.
By Mr. POST: Of 24 citizens of Fulton County, Illinois.
By Mr. STRUBLE: Of Wallar Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Milford, Iowa.
By Mr. SYMES: Of 335 citizens of Larimer County, Colorado.

The following petitions for an increase of compensation of fourth-class postmasters were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. J. R. BROWN: Of A. W. Matthews and others, of Sanson, Carroll County, Virginia.
By Mr. DOCKERY: Of citizens of Nettleton, Mo.
By Mr. TILLMAN: Of citizens of Merrill's Bridge, S. C.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, April 11, 1888.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.
The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore presented a petition of citizens of Kansas, praying for the passage of a bill providing for the payment of Indian depredation claims filed in the Indian Bureau; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. MANDERSON presented petitions of members of the bar of Sherman, Dawson, Keith, Cheyenne, and Buffalo Counties, in the State of Nebraska, praying for the passage of the bill dividing that State into two judicial districts, and fixing additional places for holding the Federal courts; which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. COKE presented a petition of 27 citizens of Palo Pinto County, Texas, and a petition of 19 citizens of Kaufman County, Texas, praying for the passage of a bill providing for the payment of Indian depredation claims filed in the Indian Bureau of the Department of the Interior; which were referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. BLAIR presented a petition adopted at a meeting of the State board of health of New Hampshire, held at Concord, N. H., praying for the establishment of a national board of health; which was referred to the Committee on Epidemic Diseases.

He also presented the petition of Mrs. E. H. Pearson and others, being the temperance committee of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Epping, N. H., praying for legislation restricting the liquor traffic; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. DAWES. I present the petition of H. Wilson Munson and quite a number of other citizens of Huntington, Mass., praying for the passage of a more efficient measure for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park. As the bill has been passed by the Senate, I move that the petition lie on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of La Salle County Grange, of La Salle County, Illinois, officially signed, praying that the work of the eradication of pleuro-pneumonia be continued under the present Bureau of Animal Industry; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE presented the petition of William Patten and 55 others, citizens of Laingsburgh, Mich., praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a memorial of the Detroit (Mich.) Board of Trade, remonstrating against the passage of the proposed bill to cut off railroad connections with Canadian railroads; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of Typographical Union No. 99, of Philadelphia, and a petition of Typographical Union, No. 81 of Bay City, Mich., praying for the passage of the Chace international copyright bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. SPOONER presented two petitions of ex-Union soldiers, citizens of Richland County, Wisconsin, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of members of the Galesville Gun Club and others, of Galesville, Wis., praying for the passage of Senate bill

283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition of 82 citizens of Bucyrus, Ohio, praying for the passage of Senate bill No. 283, providing for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of Typographical Union No. 199, of Zanesville, Ohio, praying for the passage of the international copyright bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. FRYE. I present the petition of S. W. Dana and other ministers of the Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia, and the petition of L. Leonard Goodrich and nearly all the female teachers of the city of Syracuse, N. Y., praying for the passage of the bill for the legal protection of girlhood in all places subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, and raising the age of consent to eighteen years. I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. PALMER presented a petition of J. C. Shone, William F. Potter, and 55 other ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Laingsburgh, Mich., and vicinity, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. COCKRELL. I present two petitions, praying for the passage of the international copyright law, signed by Dr. Benjamin St. James Fry, Logan D. Dameron, and other leading editors, publishers, and firms in St. Louis. I move that the petitions lie on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. McPHERSON, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2049) to equalize the grades of officers of the Marine Corps, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. FAULKNER, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 4908) for the relief of the heirs of A. Gates Lee and heirs of B. P. Lee, deceased, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HOAR, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 518) for the relief of T. J. Edwards, administrator of David Edwards, deceased, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. SPOONER, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1368) for the relief of the widow of Lieut. John F. Stewart, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs; which was agreed to.

He also, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 497) for the relief of the legal representatives of Egbert Thompson, deceased, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs; which was agreed to.

Mr. SPOONER. I am also instructed by the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 917) for the relief of Enoch Jacobs, to ask to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, that committee having reported upon the bill at the last session of Congress.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. SHERMAN, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, to whom was referred a message from the President of the United States, transmitting reports relative to the prevalence of disease among animals in Europe, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Finance; which was agreed to.

Mr. BROWN. I am instructed by the Committee on Foreign Relations, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 59) authorizing Brig. Gen. Absalom Baird, United States Army, to accept from the President of the French Republic a diploma conferring the decoration of Commander of the National Order of the Legion of Honor, to report it without recommendation, as there was a tie in the committee. I ask that the joint resolution be placed on the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The joint resolution will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. BROWN. I am also instructed by the Committee on Foreign Relations, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 639) to authorize Commander John W. Philip, United States Navy, to accept a silver pitcher from the Government of the United States of Colombia, to report it favorably, with a request on the part of the Senator from Vermont [Mr. EDMUNDS] to have it noted that he is opposed to the passage of the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I ask the consent of the Senate to withdraw the written report that I filed from the Committee on Naval Affairs on the 4th instant in relation to the bill (S. 1914) for the relief of Mary E. Hopkins. I do not desire to withdraw the bill nor to disturb its position on the Calendar, but simply to withdraw for correction the written report that accompanied the bill with a view of resubmitting it.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That order will be made, if there be no objection.

BRITISH RIGHTS IN VENEZUELA.

Mr. SHERMAN. I am directed by the Committee on Foreign Relations to report back the resolution submitted by the Senator from Virginia [Mr. RIDDLEBERGER] calling for information from the President in regard to Venezuela, with an amendment. I ask to have the resolution as proposed to be amended adopted, if there be no objection.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The original resolution will first be read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution submitted by Mr. RIDDLEBERGER April 6, 1888, as follows:

Whereas it is stated that the British Government has made claim to a large portion of the territory of the Republic of Venezuela and the control of the River Orinoco, proceeding without legal or equitable right and in defiance of the protests of the Republic of Venezuela, who exercise dominion over the same:

Be it resolved, That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, requested to send to the Senate of the United States all letters, documents, etc., in any way appertaining, if any there be, between our Government and the Governments of Great Britain and Venezuela or either of them, relating to the question of newly-acquired territory in Venezuela by Great Britain, or take such other and further action as may be compatible with the public interests.

The Committee on Foreign Relations propose to amend the resolution so as to make it read:

Resolved, That the President be requested to communicate to the Senate, if in his opinion not incompatible with public interests, any information in his possession relating to a dispute understood to exist between the Government of Venezuela and the Government of Great Britain concerning the boundaries between British Guiana and Venezuela.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 2663) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. Mary M. Ord; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 2664) granting pensions to Annie D. and Annie Howard Rundlett; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying petition and papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BLAIR introduced a bill (S. 2665) granting a pension to Charles J. Esty; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MANDERSON introduced a bill (S. 2666) granting a pension to L. B. Skinner; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2667) to protect purchasers of land withdrawn by the executive department as lying within the limits of land grants to aid in the construction of railroads or patented to such railroads as indemnity lands; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, introduced a bill (S. 2668) granting arrears of pension to Charles Long; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. VEST (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2669) for the relief of Joseph E. Montgomery; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 2670) granting a pension to Holly Skinner; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 2671) to create and organize the county of Latah; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

RETIRED OFFICERS.

Mr. REAGAN submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of the Treasury, respectively, be directed to furnish the following information, namely:

That the Secretary of War be directed to transmit to the Senate a full and complete list of the officers of the Army who have been put on the retired-list, with the date of the retirement of each, and if any have died, the date of such deaths, the rank of each and the rank from which he was promoted on being retired, the amount of his annual pay and allowances, if allowances are made, and any increase of pay since his being retired by reason of his longevity, and the reasons and cause for the retirement of each, the aggregate of their annual pay, and the aggregate of all the money which has been so paid.

That the Secretary of the Navy be directed to transmit to the Senate a full and complete list of the officers of the Navy and of the marine service who have been put on the retired-list, with the date of the retirement of each, and if any have died, the date of such deaths, the rank of each and the rank from which he was promoted on being retired, the amount of his annual pay and allowances, if any allowances are made, and any increase of pay since being retired by reason of his longevity, and the reasons and cause for the retirement of each, the aggregate of their annual pay, and the aggregate of all money which has been so paid.

And that the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to transmit to the Senate a full and complete list of all judicial officers who have been retired on pay, with the date of retirement of each, and if any have died, the date of such deaths, the office held by each, the amount of his annual pay, the aggregate of the annual pay of those so retired, and the aggregate of all money which has been so paid.

INDIAN DEPREDATION CLAIMS.

Mr. MITCHELL. I submit a resolution and ask that it be read, ordered to be printed, and laid on the table for the present; and I give notice that I shall call it up at an early day for consideration.

The resolution was read and ordered to lie on the table, as follows:

Resolved, That a select committee of seven Senators be appointed, to be designated by the President pro tempore of the Senate, for the purpose of taking jurisdiction of and inquiring into and reporting upon claims of individuals presented to the Senate for compensation and damages sustained on account of Indian depredations.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. FRYE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. CALL. I ask the Senator from Maine to withhold that motion so that I may call up——

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The motion is not debatable. The Senator from Maine moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After eleven minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. CLARK, its Clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the President pro tempore:

A bill (H. R. 742) for the relief of John F. Cadwallader;

A bill (H. R. 7262) for the erection of a public building at Texarkana, situated on both sides of the line between the States of Arkansas and Texas;

A bill (H. R. 1262) granting the right of way to the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad through the Fort Crawford military reservation;

A bill (H. R. 97) granting a pension to Ida B. Linthicum;

A bill (H. R. 122) for the relief of Julia A. Darrell;

A bill (H. R. 150) granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Shaw;

A bill (H. R. 159) granting a pension to Jane Thomas;

A bill (H. R. 183) granting a pension to minor children of William Clark;

A bill (H. R. 407) granting a pension to G. W. Burkhart;

A bill (H. R. 416) granting a pension to Thomas H. Aulls;

A bill (H. R. 418) granting a pension to William H. Brokenshaw;

A bill (H. R. 441) granting a pension to Eliza J. Currier;

A bill (H. R. 442) granting a pension to Emily B. Newell;

A bill (H. R. 459) for the relief of Elvira Cooper;

A bill (H. R. 499) granting a pension to Catharine Maxwell;

A bill (H. R. 509) granting a pension to James A. Haley;

A bill (H. R. 754) to increase the pension of Mrs. Eliza B. Anderson;

A bill (H. R. 782) granting a pension to Marble H. Baird;

A bill (H. R. 816) granting a pension to Charlotte Broad;

A bill (H. R. 818) granting a pension to Sarah E. Pribble;

A bill (H. R. 822) granting a pension to Miles S. Scribner;

A bill (H. R. 823) granting a pension to Hannah C. De Witt;

A bill (H. R. 824) granting a pension to Isiaah G. Mayo;

A bill (H. R. 893) granting a pension to Julia Stokes;

A bill (H. R. 2078) granting a pension to Charlotte T. Clark;

A bill (H. R. 2177) granting a pension to Mahala Robbins;

A bill (H. R. 2259) to grant a pension to Joab M. Haley;

A bill (H. R. 2416) granting a pension to Mrs. Hannah F. Brock;

A bill (H. R. 2456) for the relief of Judith Plummer;

A bill (H. R. 2491) granting a pension to John Bisbey;

A bill (H. R. 2498) granting a pension to Alonzo Higley;

A bill (H. R. 2518) granting an increase of pension to John Rowe;

A bill (H. R. 2662) for the relief of Mary M. Strong;

A bill (H. R. 2663) for the relief of Alonzo Alden;

A bill (H. R. 2694) granting a pension to Julia A. Griffen;

A bill (H. R. 2806) to increase the pension to James Woody;

A bill (H. R. 3183) for the relief of Kelsey Curtis;

A bill (H. R. 3488) granting a pension to Mary Dull;

A bill (H. R. 3490) granting a pension to James M. Berry;

A bill (H. R. 3603) to increase the pension of Maxwell Carroll;

A bill (H. R. 3682) to pension Emily Goodall;

A bill (H. R. 3611) granting a pension to Harriet V. Stockton;

A bill (H. R. 3849) granting a pension to Mrs. Martha M. Bagley;

A bill (H. R. 3870) granting a pension to Albert Nevin;

A bill (H. R. 4107) granting a pension to Laura D. Pierce;

A bill (H. R. 4516) granting a pension to Mrs. Delilah Agard;

A bill (H. R. 4550) granting a pension to Chloe Quiggle, widow of Phillip Quiggle;

A bill (H. R. 4633) granting a pension to Morris T. Mantor;

A bill (H. R. 4655) granting a pension to Mary J. Francis;

A bill (H. R. 4685) granting a pension to Lizzie F. Reed;

A bill (H. R. 4812) to grant a pension to Squire Admire;

A bill (H. R. 5176) granting a pension to Thomas J. Parker;

A bill (H. R. 5228) granting a pension to Clara M. Flanders;

A bill (H. R. 5236) granting an increase of pension to Mary K. Taylor;

A bill (H. R. 5247) granting a pension to William M. Brimmer;

A bill (H. R. 5363) granting a pension to David Johnson;

A bill (H. R. 5388) granting a pension to Elizabeth Buffington;

A bill (H. R. 5829) for the relief of Joseph Driskill;

A bill (H. R. 5911) granting a pension to Elizabeth J. Hascall;

A bill (H. R. 6343) to increase the pension of Nancy Rains, the oldest Revolutionary pensioner on the rolls, she being nearly ninety-six years of age;

A bill (H. R. 6586) granting a pension to Nancy O. Gray;

A bill (H. R. 6908) granting a pension to William P. Witt;

A bill (H. R. 6974) for the relief of Mary E. Hawn, widow of Emanuel R. Hawn, late sergeant of the Forty-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteers, deceased;

A bill (H. R. 6984) granting a pension to Margaret E. Graves;

A bill (H. R. 7171) to restore to the pension-roll the name of Isaac Dilley;

A bill (H. R. 7856) granting a pension to Emma R. Johnson; and

A bill (H. R. 7891) for the relief of Cynthia J. Leroy.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. HARRIS. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 1889) to authorize the Tennessee Midland Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Tennessee River.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair suggests to the Senator from Tennessee that the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] had given notice of his intention to address the Senate this morning.

Mr. HARRIS. I was not aware of that, and if it is not agreeable to the Senator from Vermont I will withdraw the motion.

Mr. MORRILL. I should like to go on now.

Mr. HARRIS. I withdraw the motion. I had forgotten the notice given by the Senator from Vermont.

Mr. PUGH. I ask the Senate to indulge me for a few minutes that I may call up the bill (H. R. 5062) for the erection of a public building at Birmingham, Ala.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair has recognized the Senator from Vermont, who gave notice of his intention to make some observations upon the resolution to refer the President's message.

Mr. PUGH. I only want about five minutes for the purpose I have indicated. I do not desire to interfere with the Senator from Vermont if it is not agreeable to him.

Mr. MORRILL. I hope the Senator from Alabama will not ask me to yield, because other Senators have asked me and I have declined to do so.

Mr. PUGH. Very well; I do not wish to press the request.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL MESSAGE.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution submitted by the Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN] will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution submitted by Mr. SHERMAN December 19, 1887, as follows:

Resolved, That the President's annual message be referred to the Committee on Finance.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

Mr. MORRILL. Mr. President, seldom, if ever, until the example of our present Chief Magistrate, has the annual message of the President of the United States been exclusively laden and stiffened with recommendations as to details of tariff duties, and no previous message has indulged in elaborate official special pleadings to induce the adoption by Congress of any measure by which duties on a particular article should be imposed or released; but all former Chief Magistrates appear to have been content with giving information as to the adequacy or inadequacy of the public revenue, and with assurances that whatever measures should be devised by the wisdom of Congress would receive their hearty cooperation and executive enforcement.

In the last annual message of Washington he said that—

Congress has repeatedly, and not without success, directed attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.

The contrast in the tone and temper of this message of Washington, as to the encouragement of manufactures, with that of the extraordinarily unfriendly and denunciatory message recently transmitted to Congress by President Cleveland, I regret to say, is painfully revealed. To avoid all injustice let me quote from the latter these words:

But our present tariff laws, the vicious, inequitable, and illogical source of unnecessary taxation, ought to be at once revised and amended.

Subsequently to these bitter epithets applied to laws, the main features of which have for many years secured both great revenue and great prosperity to our country, much argumentation, based apparently on novel or newly-invented statistics, is presented to show that the "present tariff on wool is illusory." The statistics and the conclusions thereon are, however, likely to be unanimously rejected even by the farmers with "small flocks numbering from twenty-five to fifty;" but passing the manifest lack of sympathy for farmers with "small flocks" for the present, let me bring to notice another paragraph of the recent message, as follows:

Our scheme of taxation, by means of which this needless surplus is taken from the people and put into the public Treasury, consists of a tariff or duty levied upon importations from abroad and internal-revenue taxes upon the consumption of tobacco and spirituous and malt liquors. It must be conceded that none of the things subjected to internal-revenue taxation are, strictly speaking, necessaries; there appears to be no just complaint of this taxation by the consumers of these articles, and there appears to be nothing so well able to bear the burden without hardship to any portion of the people.

It is thus that the "emphasis" of the recent message points to the plan of reducing the revenue on the tariff only. Now let me refer to the significant contrast of the second inaugural address of President Jefferson, March 4, 1805—a Democratic authority which will hardly be held as inferior to that of any of his successors. Jefferson appears to have exulted in the abandonment of all internal-revenue taxes, as follows:

The remaining revenue on the consumption of foreign articles is paid cheerfully by those who can afford to add foreign luxuries to domestic comforts. Being collected on our seaboard and frontiers only, and incorporated with the transactions of our mercantile citizens, it may be the pleasure and the pride of an American to ask what farmer, what mechanic, what laborer ever sees a tax-gatherer in the United States.

In his last message, of December, 1808, referring to manufactures, he said:

Little doubt remains that the establishments formed and forming will—under the auspices of cheaper materials and subsistence, the freedom of labor from taxation with us, and of protecting duties and prohibitions—become permanent.

In a letter to his friend, Colonel Humphreys, dated January 20, 1809, he says:

My idea is that we should encourage home manufactures to the extent of our own consumption of everything of which we raise the raw material.

Most certainly the statesmanship of Jefferson was pitched on a different key from that now current in some quarters; but do I hear any Democratic Senator say:

Rome, thou hast lost the breed of noble bloods.

Evidently the President, in his late message, would have preferred to make free trade smell sweeter by some other name, but his words and his arguments carry no other odor to the keen olfactories of the London Times or the London Punch. "The little dogs and all" of the British press, "Tray, Blanch, and Sweetheart," find the free-trade footsteps and trail of Adam Smith, Richard Cobden, and Robert Peel have been followed with signal fidelity.

It is calculated—

The Times says—

that, to give effect to Mr. Cleveland's policy, duties to the amount of some £16,000,000 a year, about two-fifths of the entire customs revenue, must be surrendered. This operation may not establish free trade in the strict sense of the term, but it will to a great extent make trade free.

It is noticeable that the expectancy of a much larger trade in British exports to the United States is universally founded on the message of the President.

But let us inquire whether or not there is an ultra free-trader in the United States who has not full confidence in the free-trade principles of the present Administration.

The Reverend Professor Perry, of Williams College, more anxious, perhaps, to be known as the free-trade leader of the Democratic party than for his college connection with the "dismal science of political economy," says:

Secretary Manning has done for free trade in the United States the past year more effective work than any other man in the country. Postmaster-General Vilas is an outspoken and an undoubted friend of a free commerce. President Cleveland will go as fast and far towards that goal as the people and Congress will permit him.

Henry George, just now conspicuous as a free-trade propagandist, is reported to have made this kind of comment on the new Democratic tariff bill, that it possesses, in common with Mr. Cleveland's message, this all-compensating virtue that, "while professing veneration for protection," it really aims a deadly blow "at the ugly fetich."

Mr. George is a supporter of the President only on the ground that he is striking a deadly blow at "protection," while "professing veneration" for it. A tariff for revenue only, the banner imposed by Kentucky upon the Democratic party, is a synonym for free trade, and when practically enforced produces like negative results by withdrawing all protection or encouragement for the creation or maintenance of any industry whatsoever.

In the face of the doctrines promulgated in the message of the President, what encouragement for the future have those farmers guilty of having made investments in sheep-husbandry and of having labored for years to acquire the knowledge and skill of good shepherds in the management of their flocks?

What encouragement does the message offer to any new or even old enterprises? Is there any growing city or town, any nook or corner in all of our broad country, which can have any hope of advancing prosperity upon the radical changes of the tariff as urged by the message of the President? What new fields of labor will be opened, or what old ones will show increased activity? Rather, which one among them all will not be slaughtered? With their occupations gone, where are the many thousands of discharged laborers to go?

The President appears to deprecate the discussion of protection and free trade, and with wonderful simplicity forthwith proposes to recommend absolute free trade in wool. He would by his measure cut the jugular of every sheep in the country, and proceeds to argue with the owners that they would be better off without them, or that they lose more than they gain by protection. He would have them to believe the dose he offers is nothing more than a bread pill that will not operate. But let me push the question as to how the admission of all classes of wool, including also, as the administration bill proposes, shoddy, woolen rags, and mungo, free of duty, would operate even in States where the cost of production is the lowest. Texas, from its rich soil and nearly winterless climate, is not limited to "small flocks of from twenty-five to fifty," and by the enterprise of its ambitious people has become the second wool-growing State of the Union, and has found it advantageous, with the duty of 10 cents per pound on unwashed clothing-wool, to dispose of the same, after transporting it to New York or Boston, for 14 to 16 cents per pound. No State can raise wool more cheaply. The President says the tariff laws "raise the price to consumers of all articles imported and subject to duty by precisely the sum paid for such duties." Now, deduct the protective duty imposed for the benefit of American wool of 10 cents per pound and the value of Texas wool in New York and Boston markets, even the President must admit, would suddenly drop to 4 or 6 cents per pound. Neither Texas nor any other State would continue to raise wool at that price, and wool-growing even in the Lone Star State, with an area greater than that of Germany, France, Spain, or Italy, would only be known as one of the lost arts. The prodigious loss to landed estates from an abandonment of sheep husbandry is a problem of difficult solution.

In our country the merchant who obtains credit by false pretenses becomes liable to criminal prosecution. The Democratic party sought public credit by fair promises, and included in its National Convention platform of 1884 the following declaration, that—

The system of direct taxation, known as the "internal revenue," is a war tax.

And that—

Sufficient revenue to pay all the expenses of the Federal Government economically administered, including pensions, interest, and principal of the public debt, can be got under our present system of taxation from custom-house taxes on fewer imported articles, heaviest on articles of luxury, and bearing lightest on articles of necessity.

Was this not an attempt to win popular support by declaring that the system of direct taxation was a war tax, and consequently to be abandoned in time of peace, and that custom-house taxes were sufficient for all Government expenses?

The Democratic party out of power solidly proclaims its policy; but having thereby got into power it prevaricates, and unblushingly and practically reverses its platform from end to end. It would now perpetuate war taxes and make custom-house revenues insufficient. Have not Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, as well as New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, and many other States, a valid cause of complaint against the Democratic party for false pretenses? We shall see. The day-star of hope appears to have been rising in the "New South," lighting all her borders with flaming furnaces and decorating her war-wasted places with manufacturing towns and cities; but these bright evidences of better days, if the anti-tariff raid should be successful, would immediately sink out of sight and the fondest hopes of the "New South" would disappear forever.

That a Republican rather than a Democratic administration would be more likely to revise the revenue laws and reduce revenues to the requirements necessary for the support of the Government is demonstrated by the chronic failure of the House of Representatives, during the control of a Democratic majority of ten long years, to pass any bill reducing revenue. Judging by the past also, a Republican administration could be more surely trusted to practice greater economy in expenditures for the support of the Government than the party now in power. The net ordinary Republican expenditures for the four years ending in 1885 were $791,540,783, which contrasted with the Democratic net ordinary expenditures of $873,730,229 for the years 1886 and 1887, including their own estimate of their requirements for what remains of 1888 and for the year 1889, show an excess of $82,189,546 against a Democratic reform administration. I will not borrow the language of the President even to inquire whether or not this is "a culpable betrayal of American fairness," but surely it appears to be a betrayal of Democratic promises of reform.

Any change of our revenue laws will not relieve us of the burden of supporting the Government, and the ordinary expenditures for the year ending June 30, 1889, are estimated at $326,530,793.26. During the war of the rebellion extraordinary internal-revenue taxes were imposed to meet its extraordinary cost. The war is over, and now no more of these taxes should be perpetuated than are absolutely required to meet the increased burden imposed upon the country by the rebellion. It would seem, therefore, sound policy and in accordance with the past traditions of our people that Congress should first inquire what part and how much of this unusual war revenue can be properly relinquished.

I am earnestly in favor of any reasonable reduction of the public revenues and of retaining only such an amount that we may not be compelled to abandon all expenditures for the general welfare, nor be restricted wholly to the payment of salaries. The attempt to excite a panic in our financial affairs because of an expected annual surplus of $55,000,000, even if some natural distrust of the present custodians were to be admitted, is by no means so serious as would be an expected deficiency of a similar amount. If it be a calamity, there is no other nation that would not gladly accept of the infliction, and, like poor Oliver Twist, cry for "some more."

When, however, we remember that the nation still owes a public debt of $1,200,000,000, any part of which the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized by law to purchase and pay at any time, the artificial alarm about idly holding money from the channels of trade, or about financial convulsions, is a parade of the drapery of mourning where there are no tears visible. No overstrained or congested condition of the Treasury can occur, unless brought about by the willful refusal to diminish the public debt by the disbursement of the surplus, in payment of the public debt as now provided for by law. If, however, the opportunity of reduction comes to us, it will be gladly hailed, and there will be no opposition on this side of the Senate to any reduction of revenue that will not prostrate or ruin great industrial interests, and will not compel laboring men to submit to a curtailment of wages.

A diminution of our surplus revenue is the professed object sought by all parties. But that a simple reduction of the duties along the whole or any line of imported merchandise, closely competing with American products, would reduce the revenue is preposterous, as all must know that when millions of the same foreign merchandise have been imported under a higher rate of duties, many more millions will be sure to come in under a new and lower rate of duties. Innumerable examples may be cited to show that this has been our invariable experience. Take for instance the tariff reductions made in 1883, which were estimated at $45,000,000, but the reduction brought in such an excess of foreign importations that the revenue from customs in 1885 was only less by $33,000,000. To show that the estimate was based upon actual reductions let me give some examples.

The duty on copper ores was reduced one-half of 1 cent per pound in 1883, and the imports increased from 1,473,109 pounds in 1882, to 4,473,412 pounds in 1887, and the revenue was more than doubled, or increased from $44,193.27 to $103,735.32. The effect was similar upon coffee substitutes, where the duty was reduced 1 cent per pound, and the imports rose from 3,741 pounds to 110,746 pounds, increasing the revenue to ten times as much as it was prior to the tariff of 1883. Rice was very slightly reduced, ¼ cent per pound, or from 2½ cents to 2¼ cents per pound, and yet the importations were enlarged by over 22,000,000 pounds. Hemp-seed and rape-seed oil was reduced from 23 cents to 10 cents per gallon, and the imports increased from 25,692 gallons in 1882 to 141,762 gallons in 1887. The duty on spun silk was only changed 5 per cent., and the imports and revenue have risen to eight times the previous amounts. Ten per cent. was removed from the duty on silk handkerchiefs, and the imports increased from $70,777 in 1882 to $615,877, and the revenue from $42,466 to $307,938 in 1887. The reduction upon silk velvets of 10 per cent. was followed by an increased revenue of over $2,000,000. There was supposed to have been not less than 30 per cent. reduction of the duties on sugar, but the increased importations in 1887 yielded nearly ten millions of additional revenue. Clothing-wool and combing-wool were reduced from 10 cents per pound and 11 per cent. ad valorem to 10 cents per pound, and the result was a considerable increase of both importations and duties, although the actual tariff reduction amounted to no more than 1 cent and 9 mills per pound. On all carpets the duties were heavily reduced and the result has been an increase of all the importations, and has doubled those of Saxony, Wilton, and Tournay carpets. There was a reduction on woolens of every description, and yet there was an increase both of importations and of revenue amounting in 1887 to over $4,000,000.

These are stubborn facts, standing out in our latest revision of the tariff, which received the unmeasured criticism of those now demanding further tariff reduction, for not going far enough, for not cutting deep enough, and they conclusively refute the theory that indiscriminate reductions of duty will necessarily be followed by a reduction of revenue. It is evident such reductions must often transfer the employment of some considerable share of labor from America to foreign countries. Whereas an increase in 1883, by 5 per cent. only, of the duty on cotton laces, insertings, and lace window curtains, decreased the importations, and gave a better opportunity for additional work to Americans. It would seem, therefore, that earnest seekers after a diminution of government revenues should not confine their attention exclusively to the tariff.

There is another interest liable to be affected, of vital importance to us as a great commercial nation, and that is the maintenance of our bimetallic system of coinage and the preservation of a currency of both gold and silver. Were the rates of duties to be placed by any mistake merely a trifle in favor of foreign importations, an excess of imports over exports would soon appear, and turn the balance of trade against us. This could not continue long before gold would command a premium, and find its best market as a commodity to be shipped abroad. Our standard dollar, then unsupported by gold, would be practically based on silver alone, and represent only the commercial value of the metal. Obviously the derangement of business transactions would be serious. Our customs revenue would all be received in silver or silver certificates, and a practical reduction of tariff duties and of the wages of laboring men would instantly follow to the extent of the difference between the nominal and the intrinsic value of our silver coinage. Anything tending, therefore, in any way to depreciate the value of silver or the medium received for tariff duties, or for wages, should be earnestly avoided.

It is very remarkable that general disaster to all the business interests of the country has so inflexibly followed any sharp or excessive reduction of the duties upon imported foreign merchandise, and not less remarkable how notable seasons of industrial and commercial prosperity have responded to even moderate protective advancement of such duties. The changed conditions have been too swift and too frequent to deny the potential causes of the effects.

The Calhoun and Clay tariff of 1816 was intended to be protective, but, after the peace of Europe, it was soon found insufficient to resist the flood of foreign importations, which were ninefold greater in 1816 than in 1814–'15, and our infant manufactures, largely started during the war, were almost annihilated by British manufacturers enjoying the highest grade of British protective tariff and determined to crush American manufactures at whatever cost. But the increased tariff of 1824 and that of 1828 were more pronounced, and greatly stimulated the courage and enterprise of the American people. The epoch of nullification, however, was approaching, and yet the message of President Jackson of December 4, 1832, contained this remarkable admission:

> Our country presents on every side marks of prosperity and happiness, unequaled perhaps in any other portion of the world.

Notwithstanding this testimony, so creditable to the practical merits of protection, a year later, while General Jackson wanted to hang some of the nullifiers, being himself conspicuously on record in favor of protective tariffs, he yet wanted a "judicious" olive-branch of some concession to South Carolina, then in the throes of incipient hostility to the Union, and whose nullifying State ordinance, though passed, was suspended for a brief time at the solicitation of the State of Virginia. The tariff in some latitudes was denounced by epithets and with as many unfriendly adjectives as those now scattered broadcast by the present Administration, and the majority of the House of Representatives in 1833 were supporters of General Jackson, and eager to pass the force bill asked for. The position of his partisans was at that time poetically described as follows:

> I hate the tariff with all my heart,
> And in its support will take no part;
> But when Old Hickory calls for the Army and Navy,
> He shall have what he wants, or I'll go to Old Davy.

Under these circumstances the compromise tariff of 1833 was enacted, to which Henry Clay gave the sanction of his great name, with the distinct announcement that if the law proved insufficient Congress could at any time amend it. This compromise, for the moment, preserved existing protection, but retreated on an annual reduction of 10 per cent. of any excess of duties above the rate of 20 per cent. until 1842. The reductions proved calamitous; and seldom has the whole country suffered more severely than from 1837 until it righted itself by the political revolution of 1840.

Both the Senate and the House of Representatives in 1842 were ready to amend the compromise act and to return to a distinctively protective policy. The tariff of 1842, introduced in the House of Representatives by Millard Fillmore and supported in the Senate by Silas Wright, at once started an era of prosperity and new enterprises were almost numberless, but Silas Wright remained through life the foremost Democrat of New York, and no attempt was ever made to excommunicate the Senator from the Democratic party because he voted for a highly protective tariff.

The practical and prosperous results of the tariff of 1842 appear to have been unconsciously but truthfully acknowledged even by President Polk in his message of December 8, 1846, when he said:

> Labor in all its branches is receiving an ample reward, while education, science, and the arts are rapidly enlarging the means of social happiness.

The election of 1844 was notoriously carried under the banner of "Polk and Dallas and the tariff of 1842," and by the national greed for an extension of our boundary to the Rio Grande; but it was fatal to the tariff of 1842, and a Democratic tariff, supposed to have been wonderfully made by the help of a clerk of the New York customhouse (and history has lately been struggling to repeat itself), was enacted June 30, 1846. As an example of the work to be expected from the journeymen who claim to be the lineal descendants of the artificers of the tariff of 1846, it may be interesting to examine a few of the chief features of the so-called Walker tariff.

This was a scheme of ad valorem rates of duties in classes, running from 5 to 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50, and 100 per cent. Raisins, figs, and currants were held worthy to be rated as luxuries at 40 per cent., while gold and silver watches, as necessaries of life, were subject only to 10 per cent. The duty on hemp was fixed at 30 per cent., and on cordage at only 25 per cent. On wool of all kinds the duty was placed at 30 per cent., with a duty on wool hats and blankets of 20 per cent., on flannels and on wool and worsted yarns of 25 per cent., and on velvet and Wilton carpets and all other woolen manufactures 30 per cent. On flax the duty was 15 per cent., and on linens, no matter how fine, only 20 per cent.

Plain cotton cloth was subjected to a duty of 25 per cent.; but on finer goods, like hosiery, shirts, drawers, mits, caps, and gloves, only 20 per cent. was levied. On common plain stoneware the rate was 30 per cent., and on decorated porcelain and chinaware the rate was no higher.

The rate on jute, unmanufactured, was 25 per cent., and on manufactures of jute 25 per cent. The duty on raw silk was 15 per cent., and on silk manufactures 25 per cent. The duty on pig and scrap iron was placed at 30 per cent., and no more on the most advanced shape of all manufactures of iron. Wood, unmanufactured, was rated at 30 per cent., timber at 20 per cent., and boards and plank also at 20 per cent. Coal was subject to a duty of 30 per cent. and copper to 5 per cent.

It is very apparent that free raw materials in 1846 were not so much in front with Democratic statesmen as in 1888. There is no one now who rises to do reverence to the tariff of 1846. The progress of our industries has consigned it to an unhonored oblivion. It left manufactures without encouragement or hope. The wages of labor were reduced and much capital was suddenly destroyed. The revenue was at first diminished, but as soon as foreigners became familiar with the elasticity of ad valorem duties large importations followed, and at length a small surplus was the result. The tariff was immensely unsatisfactory and arrayed the business men of the country stoutly against the administration, as was demonstrated by the popular victory in the election of General Taylor in 1848.

The war "by the act of Mexico" had then terminated, Texas had been "reannexed," and "the country, however bounded," was apparently contented. But the fugitive-slave law, the repeal of the Missouri compromise, the Dred Scott decision, and the Kansas and Nebraska bill submerged all other questions, and the tariff of 1846 was left untouched until 1857, when, in consequence of a temporary surplus of revenue, it underwent some further reductions, resulting in an insufficiency for the annual support of the Government. The condition of the country was graphically described by President Buchanan in his message of December 8, 1857, as follows:

> In the midst of unsurpassed plenty in all the productions and in all the elements of national wealth we find our manufactures suspended, our public works retarded, our private enterprises of different kinds abandoned, and thousands of useful laborers thrown out of employment and reduced to want.

It will also be remembered that, for the lack of a protective tariff, nearly the whole of the six hundred and forty millions of gold produced in California from 1849 to 1860 had to be at once exported to foreign lands, where it wonderfully developed and fertilized foreign industries instead of our own.

The financial revulsions of 1837, 1847, and 1857, and the general wreck of business affairs, fairly attributable to unwise reductions and botchery of the tariff by the party at the time in power, are as ineffaceably recorded in history as the political revolutions which followed in the overthrow and rout of the Democratic party; but their leaders seem never to heed the scriptural admonition that—

> He, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy.

The tariff of 1861, largely specific in its methods, and approved by a Democratic President—unless it is assumed that the prosperity of the country, contrary to all human experience, was chiefly maintained and promoted by the havoc of a great internecine war—will vindicate the principles of tariff protection. That even those who were vanquished by superior force of arms are to-day in better condition, more remuneratively employed than ever before, illustrates the expediency of the national application and the wisdom of the protective legislation of 1861, a measure which then left, of all those willing to work for an adequate reward, the smallest number of the American people idle.

Prior to the adoption of our present Constitution the industries of the country had only the feeble protection of State laws, which were limited, often undefined, to State boundaries; but after its adoption, tariff protection was surrendered by the States, to be maintained by the General Government, and no United States Constitution could have found any favor if the power of protection or its exercise had been denied. Madison was the master-spirit and one of the leading champions of the Constitution, and to the last period of his illustrious life he was the defender of protective tariffs, even against the assaults upon that of 1828. The very first work of the First Congress appears to have been to establish by law, approved by Washington, "the protection and encouragement of manufactures," to which there was no opposition; and therefore we find the doctrine of protection was coeval with the Constitution. The mother country then had no other doctrine, and vigorously protected herself by prohibitory duties against all foreign importations, even against those of her own colonies, except such as she found indispensable to her own prosperity, as was the case when she extended a bounty of 6 pence per pound to indigo produced here by her American colonies.

But our protective tariff was originated, as it should now be maintained, by the far-sighted farmers and planters for their own special benefit, to create a constant and sure home market of consumers, to bring the manufacturer and the agriculturist together, and to enable the country to maintain two citizens where only one could otherwise find support.

It is sometimes said that Henry Clay only sought protection for "infant industries." At that time 15 per cent. would have been, perhaps, sufficient protection against the difference between wages here and wages abroad—we had not wholly escaped from the conditions engendered by colonial bondage—but wages here are to-day more than 100 per cent. higher than when the Kentucky statesman was the great leader of the tariff question, and the cost of transportation has been not only reduced to a mere fraction of former rates, but the time for ordering and receiving foreign merchandise has been so epitomized as to bring our country into direct rivalry with the markets and lowest scale of wages of the remotest parts of the world.

In the earlier days our manufacturing industries were limited to a very small number of staple products, and they were then all infant industries. In the aggregate they are now multitudinous, but many are of recent birth; some in the "New South" have not yet reached their "teens," or have by no means reached robust maturity nor passed beyond the time of solicitude and protection. New enterprises to give employment to larger numbers of increasing population, though subject to frequent martyrdom of capital, are being daily started. New inventions and important improvements, with changes of fashion, come forth abroad as well as here, rendering old methods and old machinery obsolete, and to keep in line with the best work of the age, Americans are forced to be alert with fresh capital and fresh skill. All manufactures must revolve in this repeated and never-ending face-to-face rivalry of human genius. It is the law of good work, and the law of good work at the lowest cost.

The marvelous increase of the wealth of our country within a score of years is an unfailing source of public felicitation, but I refer to it merely to say that even free-trade authorities concede that—

> In proportion to the increase of capital the relative share of the total product falling to the capitalist is diminished, while, on the contrary, the laborer's share is relatively increased.—Bastiat.

An additional fact may be stated that the deposits in savings-banks of no other country approach the aggregate deposits of the savings-banks of the United States, where they are chiefly made in monthly driblets by laboring men and women, and here, under a protective tariff, the amount in 1872, $669,329,917, had in 1886 increased to $1,235,736,069. While this was being accumulated $947,325,816 of the principal of the public debt was paid by our country up to March 1, 1888, besides a large sum of interest. Thus it appears that these laboring men and women have on deposit in these savings banks a sufficient amount to have paid on March 1, 1888, the whole of our national debt of $1,202,454,714 and still have thirty-three millions surplus.

This illustrates the great fact that while, under the operations of a protective tariff, domestic productions are largely increased, yet in the distribution the laborer's share, compared with that of the capitalist, is always relatively most increased.

The reckless assertion has sometimes been made that the cheaper cost of living in Great Britain fully compensates for the lower rate of free-trade wages. In the thirty-five years ending in 1887, 4,222,000 immigrants from the British Kingdom came into the United States, and their action brands the assertion as a colossal inveracity. The meaning of this is further accentuated by the fact that the total number of foreign-born residents in the United Kingdom at the last census was less than the half of 1 per cent. of the population. The British low-grade wages and living breed discontent at home, and attract no Americans, but expelled last year 281,487 of their own subjects, of whom 72 per cent. came to the United States, and all are swift witnesses against free-trade fabrications.

The wages of laboring men, beyond all dispute, are far greater in the United States than in any other country in the world, and the cost of subsistence here is only increased by its higher grade and more generous amount. Undoubtedly it is more difficult for our sixty-two million of people to find profitable employment in 1888 than it was for thirty-five or thirty-six million in 1861, and the difficulty would be greatly augmented should free trade or the policy of non-protection ever become dominant in tariff legislation.

The attacks on a protective tariff, however masked or disguised, are aimed at the wages of laboring men, and are not removed by the vain-glorious assumption of free-trade orators, destitute of all sympathy for manual labor, that Americans can do more work per day than the people of any other country. If it were true, then this extra wear and tear of human life should not go unrewarded; but it is not wholly true. Foreign workingmen not only work for less pay but more hours for a day's work than are required here. The output of a great part of manufactures is, moreover, inexorably regulated by machinery with fixed speed or revolutions for perfect work. The best machinery is eagerly sought after and quickly distributed throughout the world. It is the lower and unequal wages of foreign workmen alone with which Americans have to contend. We should not, however, for any consideration impair the superior physique of American workmen by compelling them to perform greater tasks than are allotted to any other people.

It can not be doubted that a protective tariff has vastly increased and diversified American manufactures and made their economical and multiform production a wide and profound study among the people of every State in the Union. It has excited the brain power of not merely the men of science, but the inborn inventive faculties of a great multitude of practical workingmen, and has promoted their happiness and thrift. There is hardly a State now without the name of some prominent inventor deserving public gratitude and honorable remembrance.

The new inventions relating to manufactures and to agricultural machinery, in all their major and minor aspects, are identified with our industrial life; they are discoveries of genius not only for the benefit of the present, but also of future ages, and destined to give perennial fame to America as the most prolific land of their birth. They have diminished the hours of labor of workingmen and increased their wages. They have been and deserve to be encouraged by a proper protective tariff, as their encouragement is impossible where such protection finds no favor. The busy race of American inventors should not perish for lack of friendly care or by contemptuous neglect. To deduct the intellectual force of the authors of these many useful and wonderful labor-saving inventions from our history would leave the position and civilization of our people on the poor level of many inferior nations. They are not the least of the great levers of our prosperity, necessary in time of peace, but indispensable to our dignity and defense in time of war.

Saxton's metallic cartridge, Ericsson's Monitor, Colt's revolver, and Dr. Gatling's gun, or machine, rank high as American contributions to the destructive enginery of war; but there is no catalogue of the many examples in the arts of peace. These might fill an encyclopedia. They are, however, widely known, and we are all proud of them. Many American industries trace their origin to American inventors.

Nickel-plating is only a recent invention, but its great advantages having been at once comprehended by the manufacturers of stoves, it has grown so rapidly in favor, according to Carroll D. Wright, that 30,000 additional workers have found employment in the business without disturbing any others.

Files, prior to the tariff of 1861, were nearly all imported, and those of the ordinary size were sold at from six to seven dollars per dozen. Mr. Nicholson, of Rhode Island, invented a machine for their manufacture which proved a success, and to-day we have one hundred and fifty file-works established entirely due to a protective tariff, and find that files of equal merit are now sold at from $2 to $2.30 per dozen. Of files only to the amount of $40 were imported in 1887, but some thousands of American workmen now find employment in their manufacture.

The Simonds rolling machine, said to be "the grandest mechanical invention of the age," by Mr. Simonds, of Fitchburg, is described as a machine in which two flat surfaces, acting vertically or horizontally, and moving in opposite directions, with adjustable dies fixed upon them, roll in one motion a piece of metal of regular or irregular shape, and in almost any pattern desired. The work is quick and accurate, and by one movement a conical shot, or chair-screw, bolt, axle, or spindle is produced, and the machine is likely to supersede the lathe, the trip-hammer, and other methods of forging as to an immense number of useful articles.

The history of the Waltham Watch Company is typical of many American manufacturing enterprises. It started in 1857, when the duty on foreign watches was 8 per cent. only, and failed. The imports of watches from 1825 to 1858 amounted to $45,800,000. The duty was raised in 1861 to 15 per cent., soon afterwards to 25 per cent., and the company started again in 1862, with machinery of their own invention and construction, and now turn out daily 1,300 watch movements, 300 gold cases, and 600 silver cases, and employ 3,100 hands, with at least half as many more who furnish supplies. Including families and dependents, from ten to twelve thousand persons derive their support from the work of the company. The average daily wages paid to women is $1.40, and to men $2.60 to $2.90. In the United States there are now eighteen companies making watch movements and forty making watch-cases, one of which is in Covington, Ky. The estimated annual value of the product is $16,000,000, and the number of hands many thousands. In 1860 a good English silver lever-watch cost from $40 to $60. An equally good running watch can now be had at from $11 to $15, and excellent watches may be had at from $8 to $10 each. Many curious and expensive watches are still imported, but last year the watches exported to England alone amounted to $181,015. The Elgin (Ill.) Watch Company paid no dividends for many years, but is now prosperous. I have risked wearying the Senate with these details because many other manufactures have a similar history, by which the American people have been largely benefited.

These are representative specimens of a few of the minor enterprises which are rapidly decorating all parts of our country, and do not embrace the larger branches of manufactures to which so many cities and towns owe their prosperity and the bulk of their population.

In this diversity of employments, resulting from tariff protection, American women have been elevated and made much more independent. Largely participating in the world's useful work, they were never more charming than to-day. There is much fine and light work, often that connected with the manipulation of machinery, where their tact and aptitude has been found superior to that of men, and the wages of women for a week now often exceeds what was formerly paid for a month. Far more than men would the fortunes of women be adversely affected by any steps toward the British goal of free trade.

It appears that what really constitutes the tariff doctrine of the present Democratic Administration radically changes from year to year. The latest bill, which is said to have the approval of those in authority, not only reduces the nominal rate of duties but proposes to change the method of ascertaining the amount by an abandonment of the system of specific duties now so largely in force, and substituting therefor the old system of ad valorems, rejected everywhere, as far as practicable, by all enlightened nations. Obviously specific duties are uniform at all ports, require less numerous custom-house forces, and they are the only complete remedy against undervaluation. This was the opinion of Mr. Manning, the late Secretary of the Treasury, whose ability, once everywhere recognized, Democratic officials appear no longer to reverence. In his report on the revision of the tariff, February 16, 1886, he suggested and urged—

> A plan for the prudent enlargement of specific rates which will greatly promote the welfare of the Government and of the country, and as a matter of administration not work injustice to any class in the community.

The advantage is, he said, that under it—> duties are levied by a positive test—

And—

> and according to a standard which is altogether national and domestic.

How could the Secretary have denounced the ad valorem system with more vigor than is shown in the following paragraph?

> Whatever successful contrivances are in operation to-day to evade the revenue by false invoices or by undervaluations, or by any other means, under an ad valorem system, will not cease even if the ad valorem rates shall have been largely reduced. They are incontestably, they are even notoriously inherent in that system.

It is evident that the authors of the administration tariff bill either were not profoundly read in the literature of the Treasury Department, or felt that the perpetrators of fraud, false invoices, and undervaluations, when mainly limited to the specific system, were too circumscribed, and that they should have the wide field of the ad valorem system, where false invoices and undervaluations, according to Mr. Manning, "are notoriously inherent." As a lesson in political economy, the change to ad valorems proposed is much more than an age too late, and by no means creditable to the intelligence of American statesmanship.

An examination of the new tariff bill—which is supposed to have been prepared by a Democratic syndicate in secret, all solemnly saying to one another will show that, were it to become a law, there is hardly any American manufacture named in it that would not be more or less crippled, and many that would be cut up, root and branch, or would force the wages of employés to be cut down much nearer to foreign standards. The rates of reductions proposed on manufactures of iron, wool, silk, and cotton would, by largely increasing importations of foreign merchandise, be likely to produce an increase of revenue rather than a reduction, as the authors of the bill must know, and the real purpose of the bill is, therefore, indicated to be hostility to the protection of manufactures and not hostility to surplus revenue.

> Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth—

While any free-trade blow at manufactures, in its rebound will prove not less detrimental to agriculture, as both never fail to flourish or languish together, yet this Democratic tariff bill directly, as well as indirectly, makes loud and radical demands upon farmers and calls upon them to place more numerous and costly sacrifices on the altar of free trade than any tariff reformer has ever before ventured to suggest. From the long list of articles upon which it is proposed by the administration now in power that all tariff duties shall be surrendered, I will select and call attention to some portion of the compulsory contribution to be made by American farmers; and the list will be found perhaps sufficiently extensive to console and reconcile our neighbors of the Canadian Dominion for their recent loss of a reciprocity treaty.

EXTRACTS FROM THE FREE-LIST OF THE DEMOCRATIC TARIFF BILL.

> Wool of all kinds; wool on the skin; woolen rags, shoddy, mungo, and waste; flax; flax-straw; flax hackled or dress-line; jute, jute-butts, sunn, sisal-grass, and other vegetable fibers; hemp; linseed or flaxseed; broom-corn; tallow; bristles; beans; pease; split pease; vegetables in their natural state or in salt or brine; grease; garden seeds; milk; beeswax; fruits; meats, game, and poultry; seeds; hemp and rape seed, and other oil seeds of like character.

Here is profuse magnanimity—the free surrender of all our border markets to those who will not permit our people to fish or cut bait within 3 miles of their shores.

In addition to the free-list the cultivators of the soil will also find the tariff is to be reduced on many other articles which seriously touch their interests. For instance, the rates on leaf-tobacco for wrappers, on rice and paddy, on sugar, and on corn, rice, and potato starch are all to be reduced. If farmers, however, should feel despondent in looking over this bill, the only relief offered appears to be, "Opium, crude, containing 9 per cent. and over of morphia," which, as well as wool, is to be free of duty.

The leading industrial interests of many States, South as well as North, on the Pacific coast as well as on the Atlantic, are threatened with ruin under pretense of reform, and a reform that is to confer benefits only upon the homes of foreigners and not our own.

If this so-called reform tariff bill shall ever reach the Senate, as it is very desirable that some revenue bill should reach us, I trust we may be able to amend and make it so much better that even its own god-fathers will be glad that it fell into our hands, and glad, also, that after our revision, though it may take all summer, the tariff will be likely to be American and not British.

Very few of our people comprehend the large area of cultivated land which has been brought into recent competition with that of farmers throughout the world. Even in our own country the prodigious crops of the broad prairies of new States and Territories, grazed by immense herds or flocks, or cultivated upon a grand scale, with modern reapers, mowers, and steam-plows, have severely affected the balance-sheets of farmers in the older States, and the fruitful surplus of the great West, which ought to be, and soon will be, more largely consumed nearer at home, has too often been forced to seek and accept the terms of distant and foreign markets. Nearly all of our Western States, with their abundant coal-fields and with continued proper tariff protection, ought soon to have a more ample and satisfactory home demand for their beef, pork, wool, and agricultural products, and thus perpetuate their early triumphant progress. There is certainly little vantage ground elsewhere visible.

Australasia and the Argentine Republic, each almost as large as the United States, indicate a vast future by their present immense crops of wheat or corn, and especially by their sheep husbandry. Australia exported 455,470,000 pounds of wool in 1885–1886, and the number of sheep in the Argentine Republic was stated by a traveler in 1885 at 100,000,000 (see Harper's Magazine of November, 1886), producing nearly an equal quantity of wool, and both together perhaps as much as was produced in the whole world twenty-five years ago. In Buenos Ayres, one firm, in 1886, sold twelve hundred American reapers. The wheat-fields of India are expanding with great rapidity, and through the Suez Canal their wheat successfully competes in the markets of Great Britain. In Mexico, under the rule of a more stable government, large tracts of land are being sold to capitalists to be devoted, under the broadest systems of culture, to agricultural products and stock-raising. The Canadian Dominions, on our northern frontier, are also disposing of unlimited acres to bounty-paid immigrants, which are annually increasing such stock and farm products as they are striving to find a better market for in the United States. Even foreign-grown imported potatoes have been conspicuous during the past season in American markets. Already we appear to offer a steady market to the British Provinces for many farm products. For seven months, ending January 31, 1888, our total imports of potatoes were 2,922,677 bushels, part of which came from Scotland. Last year wheat from India, with the duty added, could have been delivered at New York for 95 cents per bushel. With improved transportation and increasing crops it is likely to become a formidable competitor, even in our home markets.

No industry has recently had to sustain, or will be called upon to sustain hereafter, more aggressive rivalry from new and unlooked-for fields of production than that of the farmer and husbandman. And shall the only protection hitherto possible be now begrudged and withdrawn? Foreign peoples are everywhere beginning to furnish themselves with bread and meat from their own resources, and the youngest nations in other hemispheres, blessed with virgin soils, are bringing forth abounding products for which they are struggling to find even a far-away market. Are we, while thus surrounded, to cripple or destroy the home market of American farmers, and the only market which they possess any inherent power to permanently retain?

In the ethics of nations all adhere to the principle that it is right and sound statecraft for each one to take care of itself, and no one supports any economic policy which is not claimed to be the best for its own people. Cotton is not raised to clothe or to aggrandize a foreign people, but for the profit of the producers. Wheat is not raised to make it cheap in foreign markets, but because it is found to be remunerative at home. Cuba does not bring her sugar here from cosmopolitan affection, but because sugar here obtains the best price. No other people seek our markets to confer favors upon Americans, but altogether for their own pecuniary benefit. These markets, in their wide extent and in the superior ability of the consumers, dwarf and surpass all other markets on the globe, and should be guarded by the utmost vigilance of the nation. In the world's history our diplomatic arrangements have not always contributed to the maintenance of these markets, and it would be an infinitely greater mistake, a more far-reaching mischief, if Congress should voluntarily, and as a free gift, surrender these golden home markets to those who do not care for us, or to that empire which, after their unconditional surrender, might well afford no longer to regret the loss of any American colonies.

Our people are united by fraternal blood, confident of their independence now and forever, fearless of any hostile aggression, and proud of their country that stretches from ocean to ocean, with more and better harbors than are found in all Europe, and more miles of railroad than in all the world besides. Producing more coal, iron, copper, wheat, corn, cattle, horses, hogs, and gold and silver than any other nation, shall we confess our incompetence to handle and protect these vast resources created by American labor and leave them to be captured as the lawful booty of the older and more adroit European statesmen? Having resolutely refused to copy foreign constitutional theories, shall we at last accept of an economical theory imported by the Cobden Club and dismiss all the traditions of an American policy of growth and development regardless of the fortunes of over sixty millions of our own citizens by the abandonment of all hope of reaching that "manifest destiny" of standing foremost among nations once so dear to the hearts of our forefathers?

> Breathes there the man, with soul so dead,
> Who never to himself hath said,
> This is my own, my native land?

TENNESSEE RIVER BRIDGE.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumes the consideration of the unfinished business, which is the bill (S. 185) to provide for the admission of the State of Dakota into the Union, and for the organization of the Territory of Lincoln.

Mr. HARRIS. I ask the consent of the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT], and the unanimous consent of the Senate, to informally lay aside the unfinished business in order that the Senate may consider Senate bill 1889. If it leads to debate or the consumption of time I shall not insist upon going on with it; but I do not think it will take any time.

Mr. PLATT. Does the Senator expect any opposition to it whatever?

Mr. HARRIS. I have no idea that there will be any, and if it should lead to debate I shall not ask the indulgence of the Senate.

Mr. DAVIS. I have no objection.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS] being entitled to the floor on the unfinished business, yields to the Senator from Tennessee to ask unanimous consent to proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 1889) to authorize the Tennessee Midland Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Tennessee River.

Mr. HOAR. I should like to inquire of the Senator from Tennessee if this is the bill in which the Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN] took an interest.

Mr. HARRIS. Oh, no; that bill was passed and is now a law—at least it has gone to the President.

Mr. HOAR. This bill does not involve those questions?

Mr. HARRIS. This bill is for a bridge across the Tennessee River.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

The first amendment was, in section 1, line 9, after the word "company," to insert "may;" so as to read:

That the Tennessee Midland Railway Company, a corporation created and organized under the laws of the State of Tennessee, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct and maintain, for the purpose of running railway trains, a bridge and approaches thereto, over the Tennessee River, at any point on the line between the counties of Decatur and Perry, in the State of Tennessee, which said company may deem most acceptable.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 3, line 3, before the word "navigable," to insert "the best;" in line 7, after the words "to the," to strike out "bottom" and insert "lowest part of the superstructure;" in line 9, after the word "parallel," to strike out "with" and insert "to, and the bridge itself at right angles to;" in line 10, after the word "river," to insert "at the average stage of water;" and in line 11, at the end of the section, to insert the following proviso:

Provided, also, That in said bridge there shall be one span of not less than 300 feet in length in the clear.

So as to make the section read:

That the bridge built under this act shall be constructed as a pivot draw-bridge, with a draw over the main channel of the river at an accessible and the best navigable point, and with spans of not less than 160 feet in length in the clear on each side of the central or pivot pier of the draw, and said span shall be not less than 10 feet above extreme high-water mark, measuring to the lowest part of the superstructure of the bridge, and the piers of said bridge shall be parallel to, and the bridge itself at right angles to, the current of the river at the average stage of water where said bridge may be erected: Provided, also, That in said bridge there shall be one span of not less than 300 feet in length in the clear.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 4, line 1, after the word "said," to strike out "bridge" and insert "draw;" in line 3, after the word "boats," to insert "or vessels; and said corporation shall maintain, at its own expense, from sunset to sunrise, such lights or other signals as the Light-House Board shall prescribe;" and in line 19, after the word "in," to strike out "which" and insert "whose jurisdiction;" so as to make the section read:

That said draw shall be opened promptly by said company upon reasonable signal for the passage of boats or vessels; and said corporation shall maintain, at its own expense, from sunset to sunrise, such lights or other signals as the Light-House Board shall prescribe, and no bridge shall be erected or maintained under the authority of this act which shall at any time substantially or materially obstruct the free navigation of the river, and if any bridge erected under such authority shall, in the opinion of the Secretary of War, obstruct such navigation, he is hereby authorized to cause such change or alteration of said bridge to be made as will effectually obviate such obstruction; and all such alterations shall be made and all such obstructions be removed at the expense of the owner or owners of said bridge. And in case of any litigation arising from any obstruction or alleged obstruction to the free navigation of said river, caused or alleged to be caused by said bridge, the case shall be brought in the district court of the United States of the State of Tennessee in whose jurisdiction any portion of said obstruction or bridge may be located.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 6, line 2, after the word "reserved," to insert "without any liability of the United States on account of the alteration, amendment, or repeal of this act;" so as to make the section read:

That the right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved without any liability of the United States on account of the alteration, amendment, or repeal of this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, to insert as a new section the following:

SEC. 7. That this act shall be null and void if actual construction of the bridge herein authorized be not commenced within one year and completed within three years from the date of approval of this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill to authorize the Tennessee Midland Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Tennessee River at any point on the line between the counties of Decatur and Perry, in the State of Tennessee, it may deem acceptable."

ADMISSION OF DAKOTA.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 185) to provide for the admission of the State of Dakota into the Union, and for the organization of the Territory of Lincoln, the pending question being on the amendment proposed by Mr. BUTLER to the amendment reported by the Committee on Territories.

Mr. PLATT. Before the Senator from Minnesota commences he yields to me to say a word, and that is that I should like to dispose of this matter to-morrow if it be possible, and I hope that whatever discussion there may be upon it will be with a view to that point, that we may be able to dispose of the bill to-morrow.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. President, of the important public questions which are demanding and which will demand the consideration of this body, I am clearly of the persuasion that the one under present consideration exceeds them all. It involves the creation of a new State, not by annexation, not by conquest, but by a process unknown to the functions of any other government on earth, calling it into existence from a state of dependence and pupilage to one of complete and, it is to be hoped, perpetual sovereignty.

I had hoped, Mr. President, that this debate upon so weighty a subject would be governed, at least in some degree, by the precedents which similar occasions have created. I deemed the subject so important, demanding strict statement of history and precedent, that in the remarks which I had anticipated making I had prepared myself with that view. I shall submit those remarks, but something more will be necessary. It will be my duty to review, as far as I am able, the remarks of the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER], who was truly eloquent upon the immaterial points of this discussion; and if he was not conclusive upon all that was material it was not the fault of himself, but was by reason of the infirmity of his subject, as I shall endeavor to show. I shall therefore proceed, before making any reply to what he submitted to the Senate, to demonstrate upon grounds of precedent, historical and legal, the right of South Dakota to admission into the Union, and the injustice of the repeated denial of that right.

Mr. President, Dakota became a Territory on the 2d day of March, 1861, when States which have hitherto opposed her admission were seceding from the Union. Those States resumed their interrupted relations with little delay, but for years this great northern commonwealth, for purely party purposes, has been denied an equivalent justice. Her people reappear demanding rights which reason can not gainsay or pretext evade with decent plausibility; rights to which they are entitled by treaty stipulations between this nation and a foreign power, by compact between the original States, entered into before the Constitution was adopted, and which by many statutes has been since confirmed, applied, and extended as a guaranty of statehood over regions of the West, of the Southwest, and on the Pacific coast. From these domains States have come into being, and have been admitted in recognition and performance of both the treaty and the compact.

This commonwealth makes claim upon equities more imperative even than these legal rights, which will be indicated in the course of my remarks.

In the year 1803 Napoleon Bonaparte was First Consul of France and Thomas Jefferson was President of the United States. Each of these men was the child of democracy, and they were the most prescient statesmen of that time. Each had foreseen the world-grasping policy of England, and had foretold its persistent processes, which have ever since been and are now in course of fulfillment. The hollow truce which followed the treaty of Amiens was about to be broken by wars which eventually crushed France and applied the torch to the public buildings and archives of the capital of the United States.

In contemplation oft his struggle these chief magistrates of the only republics then existing negotiated a treaty by which the United States acquired from France more territory than the people of the colonies had wrested from Great Britain by the war of the Revolution. This domain is now Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, all of Minnesota west of the Mississippi River, Kansas, Nebraska, the Indian Territory, part of Wyoming, and Dakota. To-day more than fourteen millions of people inhabit this area. Of these, nearly 600,000 are in Dakota, and not less than 350,000 constitute the population of the part of that Territory which now seeks admission as a State.

The treaty was more than a mere cession of territory to be ruled by the grantee as it should see fit or to be disposed of as it pleased. It undertook to shape the political destiny of that region for all time to come. It prescribed that the ceded province should become, as a State or States, part of that indissoluble federation, the United States. It was a perpetual compact between the powers for the benefit not only of the people who should inhabit and subdue that wilderness, but also of all the people of the Union.

The third article of the treaty is as follows:

The inhabitants of the ceded territory shall be incorporated into the Union of the United States and admitted as soon as possible, according to the principles of the Federal Constitution, to the enjoyment of all the rights, advantages, and immunities of citizens of the United States, and in the mean time they shall be maintained and protected in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property, and the religion which they profess.

This stipulation in the treaty accorded with a policy which this Government had previously adopted concerning its unoccupied and unorganized territory by an equally important charter. Some years before, and prior to the adoption of the Federal Constitution, certain of the States had ceded and relinquished to the United States all of their several claims to a vast region which lay northwest of the river Ohio. In order to govern this territory, and also to inevitably destine to admission into the Union the commonwealths which it was clearly seen would arise within it, the ordinance of 1787 was enacted. This revered instrument, like the Constitution which immediately followed it, was framed by statesmen who looked "into the seeds of time to see which grain would grow and which would not." It also provided in most explicit language of law and of inviolable compact that the communities thereafter to come into being in that territory should, under certain conditions, be entitled to enter the Union as it then was, without the formality of special precedent license.

The ordinance of 1887 provides as follows:

SEC. 13. And for extending the fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty, which form the basis whereon these republics, their laws and constitutions, are erected; to fix and establish those principles as the basis of all laws, constitutions, and governments which forever hereafter shall be formed in the said territory; to provide also for the establishment of States, and permanent governments therein, and for their admission to a share in the Federal councils, on an equal footing with the original States, at as early periods as may be consistent with the general interests:

SEC. 14. It is hereby ordained and declared by the authority aforesaid that the following articles shall be considered as articles of compact between the original States and the people and the States in said Territory, and forever remain unalterable, except by common consent, to wit:

* * * * * * *

Whenever any of said States shall have 60,000 inhabitants therein, such State shall be admitted by its delegates into the Congress of the United States, on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever, and shall be at liberty to form a permanent constitution and State government.

While it is doubtless true that it was held by the Supreme Court of the United States in the cases of Pollard, Permoli, and Strader (3 How., 212; Ib., 589; 10 How., 82) that this ordinance, as to matters of private right and domestic institutions, was superseded by the Federal Constitution adopted so soon afterwards, it was always more than questionable whether that instrument annihilated the political guaranties secured by its provisions.

But even this question is immaterial here, because the ordinance itself was by statutes over and over again extended, after the adoption of the Federal Constitution, to territory of which the region now comprised in the Territory of Dakota once formed a part, and to many other Territories which otherwise could have claimed none of its benefits.

By the act of March 26, 1804, the Louisiana purchase was divided into two Territories. That portion north of the thirty-third parallel of latitude was constituted the Territory of Orleans.

By the act of March 2, 1805, a Territorial government was instituted for this Territory, and it was ordained that the inhabitants thereof "shall be entitled to enjoy all the rights, privileges, and advantages secured by such ordinance" (1787) "and now enjoyed by the inhabitants of the Mississippi Territory."

This act further provided that—

The inhabitants of the Territory shall be authorized to form for themselves a constitution and State government, and be admitted into the Union upon the footing of the original States in all respects, conformably to the third article of the treaty of Paris. * * Provided, That the constitution shall be republican in form and not inconsistent with the ordinance of 1787, so far as the same is made applicable to the Territory of Orleans: Provided, That Congress shall be at liberty at any time prior to the admission of the inhabitants of the said Territory to the rights of a separate State, to alter the boundaries thereof as they shall judge proper, except only that no alteration shall be made which shall procrastinate the period for the admission of the inhabitants thereof to the rights of a State government according to the provisions of this act.

It will have been observed that the provisions of the ordinance of 1787 were extended to the Territory of Louisiana to the same extent that they were enjoyed by the inhabitants of the Territory of Mississippi.

The application of this ordinance to that Territory was by the act of April 7, 1798, and it provided that the people of the Territory of Mississippi—shall be entitled to enjoy all and singular the rights, privileges, and advantages granted to the people of the territory of the United States northwest of the river Ohio—

By the ordinance of 1787—

in as full and ample a manner as the same are possessed and enjoyed by the people of the last-mentioned Territory.

The Territory of Missouri was established by the act of June 4, 1812. By implication these rights were continued to the people of that Territory, the act repealing only the repugnant portions of the acts in reference to the Territory of Louisiana.

The present Territory of Dakota has been, in part, successively a part of the Territories of Missouri, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Minnesota, and in part of the Louisiana purchase. By the act of June 28, 1834, all that region north of Missouri and east of the Missouri River and west of the Mississippi River and south of the northern boundary of the United States, was attached to the Territory of Michigan by an act which provided that—

The inhabitants therein shall be entitled to the same privileges and immunities, and be subject to the same laws, rules, and regulations, in all respects, as the other citizens of Michigan Territory.

By act of April 20, 1836, this region last described was transferred to the Territory of Wisconsin, and it was provided—

That the inhabitants of the said Territory shall be entitled to and enjoy all and singular the rights, privileges, and advantages granted and secured to the people of the territory of the United States northwest of the Ohio River, by the articles of the compact contained in the ordinance for the government of the said Territory, passed on the 13th day of July, 1787.

Iowa became a Territory by the act of June 12, 1838, and comprised all the Territory of Wisconsin west of the Mississippi River and west of a line drawn due north from its headwaters to the international boundary. This act provided that—

The inhabitants of the said Territory shall be entitled to all the rights, privileges, and immunities heretofore granted and secured to the Territory of Wisconsin and to its inhabitants.

All of the region in question had previously been part of the Territory of Michigan, under the statute enacted in 1834, which so extended the western boundary of that Territory as to comprise all of the territory between the northern line of Missouri and the northern international boundary lying east of the rivers Missouri and White Earth.

Michigan had been a Territory ever since 1805, by an act which declared that—

The inhabitants thereof shall be entitled to all and singular the rights, privileges, and advantages granted and secured to the people of the territory of the United States northwest of the Ohio River by the said ordinance—

Of 1787.

In 1849 the above portion of Dakota became part of the Territory of Minnesota, under an act for the Territorial government, which ordained that the inhabitants of the Territory—

shall be entitled to all the rights, privileges, and immunities granted and secured to the Territory of Wisconsin and its inhabitants—

Among which, as has been shown, were those conferred by the ordinance of 1787, both by the ordinance itself and by subsequent re-enactment of its terms.

It thus appears that Dakota stands upon the equities of both the ordinance and treaty. If other Territories have presented themselves with either of these as their muniments of admission, time after time, down to the date when Kansas and Nebraska came into the Union—have thus presented themselves without enabling acts; have often prescribed their own boundaries; have sometimes been admitted without any pretext having been advanced against their right to proceed as they did—if such pretexts, when advanced, have been refuted and disregarded by Congress, surely this commonwealth, upon both of these rights, is entitled to insist upon them until the moral sense of the people is convinced that duty has been evaded, rights denied, treaties violated, compacts set at naught, and equities overthrown.

What is the history of other Territories in these respects?

By the act of May 26, 1790, the ordinance of 1787 was extended to all of the territory south of the Ohio River. It constituted all of that region one district for the purposes of temporary government—

The inhabitants of which shall enjoy all the privileges, benefits, and advantages set forth in the ordinance of the late Congress for the government of the territory of the United States northwest of the river Ohio.

By the act of August 14, 1848, Oregon and its inhabitants were invested with "rights, privileges, and advantages" of the ordinance of 1787.

The preamble to the constitution of Arkansas, adopted in 1836, asserted—

the right of admission into the Union by virtue of the treaty of cession by France to the United States of the province of Louisiana.

In the case of Kansas, the preamble of the Topeka constitution asserted—

the right of admission into the Union by virtue of the treaty of cession by France to the United States of the province of Louisiana.

The same assertion of right under the treaty is found under the Lecompton constitution. It was also put forth in the Minneola or Leavenworth constitution.

Turning to another passage of our diplomatic history which records the acquisition of territory by treaty, it is found that the treaty with Spain, concluded in 1819, by which the United States acquired the Floridas, contains this article:

ART. 6. The inhabitants of the territories which his Catholic Majesty cedes to the United States by this treaty shall be incorporated in the Union of the United States as soon as may be consistent with the principles of the Federal Constitution, and admitted to the enjoyment of all privileges, rights, and immunities of the citizens of the United States.

Accordingly, in 1839, Florida adopted a constitution, the preamble of which declares that—

We, the people of the Territory of Florida, having and claiming the right of admission into the Union as one of the United States of America, consistent with the principles of the Federal Constitution, and by virtue of the treaty of amity, settlement, and limits between the United States of America and the King of Spain.

The treaties with France and Spain became, by constitutional mandate, the supreme laws of the land, and so remain to this day.

It is submitted that the objections to the admission of Dakota are mere pretexts, and that the history of the admission of new States fully warrants the action that these people have taken.

It has been seen that the ordinance of 1787 was extended on May 26, 1790, to the territory of the United States south of the Ohio River.

The case of Tennessee is of the first importance because it refutes conclusively by the earliest historical precedent on this subject many of the arguments used by the Senator from South Carolina. The case of Tennessee is of first importance. A convention, elected for preparing a State constitution, met at Knoxville, January 11, 1796, and the next day a committee of two from each county was appointed to prepare a constitution. A bill of rights was reported on the 15th, and a frame of government on the 27th, by Daniel Smith, chairman of this committee. Their labors being completed, on the 6th of February an engrossed copy was read and passed; on the 19th an engrossed copy was forwarded to the President, with a notification that on the 28th day of March, at which time the Legislature would meet to act on the constitution, the temporary government established by Congress would cease.

It seems that nearly one hundred years ago the people of the great State which is honored by your representation [Mr. HARRIS in the chair] took ground far in advance of the patient submission of the people of Dakota to-day, for in transmitting their constitution to Congress they distinctly notified the United States of the position they took. This notification, with accompanying documents, was received by the President February 28, and laid by him before Congress on the 8th of April. The claims of the new State for admission were not recognized by all, but after an energetic discussion the bill became a law on the 1st of June, 1796. The principal grounds of opposition were that the proceedings had not been authorized by an enabling act of Congress; that the census, being taken by those most interested in showing a large return, might be liable to error; and that it belonged to Congress to decide whether one or more States should be formed in the ceded Territory, and to establish the time and manner of organization.

President Washington laid this constitution before Congress by a message which I shall presently read.

The action of the people of Tennessee was revolutionary if the way of the people of Dakota deserves the diatribes of the Senator from South Carolina. Tennessee notified the United States that after a certain date the authority of the temporary government established by the United States should cease. The message of Washington was in the following most instructive language:

GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE AND OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES: By an act of Congress passed on the 26th of May, 1790, it was declared that the inhabitants of the territory of the United States south of the river Ohio should enjoy all the privileges, benefits, and advantages set forth in the ordinance of Congress for the government of the territory of the United States northwest of the river Ohio; and that the government of said territory south of the Ohio should be similar to that which was then exercised in the territory northwest of the Ohio, except so far as was otherwise provided in the conditions expressed in an act of Congress passed the 2d of April, 1790, entitled "An act to accept a cession of the claims of the State of North Carolina to a certain district of western territory."

Among the privileges, benefits, and advantages thus secured to the inhabitants of the territory south of the river Ohio appear to be the right of forming a permanent constitution and State government, and of admission as a State, by its Delegates, into the Congress of the United States on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever when it should have therein 60,000 free inhabitants: Provided, The constitution and government so to be formed should be republican, and in conformity to the principles contained in the articles of the said ordinance.

As proofs of the several requisites to entitle the territory south of the river Ohio to be admitted as a State into the Union, Governor Blount has transmitted a return of the enumeration of its inhabitants, and a printed copy of the constitution and form of government on which they have agreed, which, with his letters accompanying the same, are herewith laid before Congress.

G. WASHINGTON.

UNITED STATES, April 8, 1796.

The debate which arose upon the objections which were then made to the regularity of procedure by which the people of the State of Tennessee approached and knocked at the door of the Union for admission is most instructive. It was participated in by men, notably Mr. Madison, who assisted in laying the foundations of this Government, and what they said distinctly repudiates every argument that has been advanced here and elsewhere against every step taken by the people of South Dakota in respect to admission.

The House, acting upon this message, passed a resolution declaring Tennessee to be one of the sixteen States of the Union. In the course of the proceedings the following opinions were expressed by members, some of whom were so eminent in rearing the structure of this Republic that their names are emblazoned upon the fabric itself:

Mr. RUTHERFORD. They have erected a State government and wish to come into the Union, and to resist their claims would be out of character.

Mr. DEARBORN. As to passing a previous law recognizing the Territory as a State before it was admitted into the Union, he did not believe it to be necessary.

Mr. LYMAN. In his opinion, according to the ordinance they had a clear right to be admitted as a State into the Union, for it was then said that when they had 60,000 inhabitants they should be admitted.

Mr. SEDGWICK quotes Mr. Madison as saying that they, "the inhabitants, were in a degraded condition because controlled by laws which were made independent of them."

Mr. MACON. The question before the committee was on admitting the Territory to be a State of the Union. There appeared to him to be only two things necessary to be inquired into: First, was the new government republican? It appeared to him to be so. And secondly, were there 60,000 inhabitants in the Territory? It appeared to him there were; and if so, their admission as a State should not be considered as a gift, but as a right. To admit this Territory as a member of the Union appeared to him as a matter of course. It also seemed as if the Executive were of that opinion. The President having been duly informed from time to time of the proceedings of that Territory toward being admitted into the Union, if he had thought they had been doing wrong, he would have set them right.

I come now, Mr. President, to the opinions of one whose words upon everything connected with the Federal Constitution are of more than judicial authority, Mr. Madison. He said:

The gentleman from South Carolina seemed to think that the ordinance by which this State should be admitted into the Union required that the Territory should first be acknowledged as a State, and then have the inhabitants of it as such numbered under the authority of Congress. He thought this would be spinning a finer thread than was necessary, and would give the people reason to suppose that the General Government was disposed to keep them in their present condition as long as possible. If the Legislature of the United States should be convinced that the Territory contained a sufficient number of inhabitants to entitle them to admission into the Union, it was matter of form only how the census had been taken, or whether the Territory had been previously acknowledged as a State by Congress or not. The fact of population was the only necessary one, and would no evidence satisfy the gentleman but such as they themselves should direct? * * *

The inhabitants in that district of country were in a degraded situation at present; they were deprived of a right essential to freemen—the right of being represented in Congress. Laws were made without their consent, or by their consent in part only. An exterior power had authority over their laws; an exterior authority appointed their executive, which was not analogous to the other parts of the United States and not justified by anything but an obvious and imperious necessity. * * * He thought when there was doubt Congress ought to lean towards a decision which should give legal rights to every part of the American people.

Mr. Gallatin was of the opinion that the people of the Southwestern Territory became ipso facto a State the moment they amounted to 60,000 free inhabitants, and that it became the duty of Congress, as a part of the original compact, to recognize them as such and to admit them into the Union whenever they had satisfactory proof of the fact.

Mr. Colt said it is declared by the ordinance for the government of the Territory that when there should be 60,000 inhabitants in any one of the States there, they should be admitted into the Union. If, then, it is not in contemplation to divide the Territory into two States, he considered the right to be admitted was complete as soon as there was the requisite number within the whole Territory.

Mr. Kitchell proposed a resolution in the place of the one agreed to in the convention of the whole, as he thought some law should be passed by Congress recognizing the Territory as a State before they were admitted into the Union. It was negatived, and the original resolution was agreed to by a vote of 43 to 30.

Among the nays were James Madison, Albert Gallatin, William R. Giles, Wade Hampton, Robert Goodloe Harper, Nathaniel Macon.

The committee of the Senate reported against admission, because—

1. The Territory had not been laid out by Congress into a State or States, as provided by the ordinance of 1787.
2. The census had not been taken under authority of the United States.

And recommended a bill laying out the Territory into a State, and providing for an enumeration of its inhabitants. Such a bill passed the Senate and went to the House. The result finally was a report from Mr. Giles upon the bill as it came from the Senate, "which went to change the principle of the bill from the Senate."

The House contended that the proceedings of these people had been so far regular as to authorize the admission of them as a State into the Union; but by the bill sent from the Senate it was proposed to lay out this Territory into a State and order a census taken before it could be admitted. This report of the committee confirmed the bill to the opinion heretofore expressed in the House.

The bill thus conformed was adopted by a vote of 48 to 30. The House bill was disagreed to by the Senate; a committee of conference was appointed; the Senate finally receded from its plan and passed the House bill or resolution.

The same question arose when Michigan applied for admission in 1835.

The facts are stated in the following extract from the report of the Senate committee of the first session of the Forty-ninth Congress upon the question of the admission of Dakota:

The history of the formation of a State government in Michigan is very familiar. In the year 1833, and again in 1834, memorials were presented to Congress asking for the admission of the State. No action having been taken by Congress, the Territorial Legislature, January 26, 1835, passed an act authorizing the holding of a convention to form a State constitution. The convention assembled at Detroit on the second Monday of May following, and proceeded to frame a constitution, which was submitted to a popular vote in October of the same year, and ratified, and at the same time State officers were elected. The schedule attached to the constitution provided that a certified copy thereof, together with an abstract of a census which had been taken, and a copy of the act of the Legislature referred to, should be transmitted to the President. No memorial praying for the admission of the State was provided for or sent, nor was there, so far as we have seen, anything in the constitution staying the going into effect of the State government for any action of Congress thereon.

The communication to the President, which accompanied the copy of the constitution sent, was as follows:

"WASHINGTON, December 9, 1835.

"SIR: The undersigned, elected Senators and Representatives to Congress from the State of Michigan, have the honor to transmit to you, herewith, an additional authentic copy of the constitution adopted by the convention of Michigan on the 24th day of June, 1835, and ratified by the people of the same on the first Monday and the succeeding day in October, 1835.

"We have the honor to be, with the highest respect, your most obedient servants,

"JOHN NORVELL.
"LUCIUS LYON.
"ISAAC E. CRARY.

"The PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES."

Andrew Jackson, then President of the United States, transmitted the documents to Congress, accompanied by the following message:

"WASHINGTON, December 9, 1835.

"To the Senate and House of Representatives:

"GENTLEMEN: By the act of the 11th of January, 1805, all that part of the Indiana Territory lying north of a line drawn due 'east from the southerly bend or extreme of Lake Michigan until it shall intersect Lake Erie, and east of a line drawn from the said southerly bend, through the middle of said lake, to its northern extremity, and thence due north to the northern boundary of the United States,' was erected into a separate Territory by the name of Michigan.

"The territory comprised within these limits, being part of the district of country described in the ordinance of the 13th of July, 1787, which provides that whenever any of the States into which the same should be divided should have 60,000 free inhabitants, each State should be admitted by its delegates 'into the Congress of the United States on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever, and shall be at liberty to form a permanent constitution and State government, provided the constitution and government so to be formed shall be republican and in conformity to the principles contained in these articles,' etc., the inhabitants thereof have, during the present year, in pursuance of the right secured by the ordinance, formed a constitution and State government. That instrument, together with various other documents connected therewith, has been transmitted to me for the purpose of being laid before Congress, to whom the power and duty of admitting new States into the Union exclusively appertains; and the whole are herewith communicated for your early decision.

"ANDREW JACKSON."

A dispute between Michigan on the one side and the States south of her on the other as to the boundary line complicated and delayed her admission as a State; but meantime the new State government was exercising the functions of government.

In the debates in Congress Michigan found many able defenders of her cause. Others denied her claim to be a State without some act of Congress authorizing or ratifying her proceedings. The result was the act of June 15, 1836, by which Congress ratified what Michigan had done and admitted the State into the Union upon the condition that her convention should consent to a change in the southern boundary.

In the proceedings of the Senate, on December 10, 1835, the following appears:

"Mr. Benton presented the credentials of Hon. Lucius Lyon and Hon. John Norvell, elected by the Legislature of Michigan Senators from that State; which were read. Mr. Benton then moved that seats be assigned to Mr. Lyon and Mr. Norvell on the floor of the Senate until the decision of the question of their admission as Senators This [Mr. B. said] had been done by courtesy in similar cases."

The remarks of Mr. Benton upon this subject, a few days afterwards, are of present interest, as they refer to his own experience when he first appeared as a Senator from Missouri. He said:

"When a gentleman brought a letter to him from a respectable source he at least asked him to take a seat until he read it; and here (said he) these gentlemen have brought a letter from a State, de facto, signed by a high official functionary, and we are to hesitate before we extend to them an act of common courtesy? * * * But it has been said that the adoption of the resolution would prejudge the case of the admission of Michigan into the Union; that the mere courtesy of asking the gentlemen to sit down was to commit the Senate as to their admission as Senators. Are we of such treacherous memories as not to recollect what took place with regard to the admission of Missouri into the Union? Were the Senators from Missouri not sent back after having had seats assigned them? Was there one single Senator influenced in the vote he gave on that occasion by the fact that seats had been assigned to the Missouri Senators pending the question of their admission? He [Mr. B.] was here as one of those Senators, and was told by that accomplished gentleman and amiable man who then filled the chair [Mr. Gaillard] to take his seat; and he [Mr. B.] had all the incidental privileges of a Senator extended to him. He had the right to frank documents to wher ever he pleased, and he had the privilege of using the stationery of the Senate, notwithstanding the question of right was decided against him and he was sent home. As to the question of the admission of Michigan he, for one, remained not only uncommitted but undecided as to the course he should take."

Afterwards Mr. Benton withdrew his resolution and offered another, which, on motion of Mr. Hendricks, of Indiana, was modified so as to extend to these gentlemen the same privileges on the floor of the Senate that were extended to members of the House, and in that form the resolution was adopted.

In the course of the debates in the Senate Mr. Buchanan said:

"I think their course is clearly justifiable, but if there is anything wrong or unusual in it, it is to be attributed to the neglect of Congress.

"For three years they have been rapping at your door and asking for the consent of Congress to form a constitution and for admission into the Union; but their petitions have not been heeded and have been treated with neglect. Not being able to be admitted in the way they have sought, they have been forced to take their own course and stand upon their rights—rights secured to them by the Constitution and a solemn irrepealable ordinance (of 1787).

"They have taken a census of the Territory; they have formed a constitution, elected their officers, and the whole machinery of a State government is ready to be put in operation; they are only awaiting your action. Having assumed this attitude they now demand admission as a matter of right; they demand it as an act of justice at your hands.

"Are they now to be repelled or to be told that they must retrace their steps and come into the Union in the way they first sought to do, but could not obtain the sanction of Congress?

"In fear of the consequences of such a decision, I tremble at an act of such injustice."

In the case of Arkansas there was no enabling act. Congress had refused to pass one. In 1836 the people adopted a constitution, the preamble of which asserted the right to admission by virtue of the articles of the treaty with France. The State was admitted June 15, 1836, by an act which recites the adopting of a constitution by a convention, and that the convention had on behalf of the people asked Congress to admit the Territory into the Union as a State. From the fact that the act of admission prescribed the boundaries, there seems to have been some question upon that point. A supplementary act of June 23, 1836, submitted to the General Assembly "of the State of Arkansas" certain other conditions, as to schools, salt springs, 5 per cent. from sales of Government lands, five sections for public buildings, two townships for a seminary of learning, and on October 18, 1836, that Legislature accepted the required conditions.

Mr. Morris, of Ohio, justified the right of the people of a Territory, when amounting to 60,000, to meet and form their own constitution. He said:

I hold that any portion of American citizens, who may reside on a portion of the territory of the United States, whenever their numbers shall amount to that which would entitle them to a representation in the House of Representatives in Congress, have the right to provide for themselves a constitution and State government, and to be admitted into the Union whenever they shall so apply; and they are not bound to wait the action of Congress in the first instance, except there is some compact or agreement requiring them to do so. I place this right upon the broad, and, I consider, indisputable ground, that all persons living within the jurisdiction of the United States are entitled to equal privileges; and it ought to be a matter of high gratification to us here that, in every portion, even the most remote, of our country our people are anxious to obtain this high privilege at as early a day as possible. It furnishes clear proof that the Union is highly esteemed and has its foundation deep in the hearts of our fellow-citizens.

By the Constitution of the United States power is given to Congress to admit new States into the Union. It is in the character of a State that any portion of our citizens, inhabiting any part of the territory of the United States, must apply to be admitted into the Union; a State government and constitution must first be formed. It is not necessary for the power of Congress, and I doubt if Congress has such power, to prescribe the mode by which the people shall form a State constitution; and for this plain reason, that Congress would be entirely incompetent to the exercise of any coercive power to carry into effect the mode they might prescribe. I can not, therefore, vote against the admission of Arkansas into the Union on the ground that there was no previous act of Congress to authorize the holding of her convention. As a member of Congress, I will not look beyond the constitution that has been presented. I have no right to presume it was formed by incompetent persons, or that it does not fully express the opinions and wishes of the people of that country. It is true that the United States shall guaranty to every State in the Union a republican form of government, meaning, in my judgment, that Congress shall not permit any power to establish, in any State, a government without the assent of the people of such State; and it will not be amiss that we remember here, also, that that guaranty is to the State and not as to the formation of the government by the people of the State; but should it be admitted that Congress can look into the constitution of a State in order to ascertain its character, before such State is admitted into the Union, yet I contend that Congress can not object to it for the want of a republican form, if it contains the great principle that all power is inherent in the people and that the government draws all its just powers from the governed.

The people of the Territory of Arkansas having formed for themselves a State government, having presented their constitution for admission into the Union, and that constitution being republican in its form, and believing that the people who prepared and sent this constitution here are sufficiently numerous to entitle them to a Representative in Congress, and believing also that Congress has no right or power to regulate the system of police these people have established for themselves, and the ordinance of 1787 not operating on them, I can not, as a member of this body, refuse my vote to admit this State into the Union.

In the course of the debate in the House, John Quincy Adams yielded his profound convictions on the subject of slavery to his sense of other obligations, saying:

I can not, consistently with my sense of my obligations as a citizen of the United States, and bound by oath to support their Constitution—I can not object to the admission of Arkansas into the Union as a slave State; I can not propose or agree to make it a condition of her admission that a convention of her people shall expunge this article from her constitution. She is entitled to admission as a slave State, as Louisiana and Mississippi and Alabama and Missouri have been admitted, by virtue of that article in the treaty for the acquisition of Louisiana which secures to the inhabitants of the ceded Territories all the rights, privileges, and immunities of the original citizens of the United States; and stipulates for their admission, conformably to that principle, into the Union.

It has been shown that Florida adopted a constitution in 1839, and stood upon the right to be admitted under the terms of the treaty with Spain.

Iowa, assuming the right to take the action she did, adopted a constitution in 1844. There was no enabling act as to either of these Territories. The people of each had memorialized Congress repeatedly, but in vain, for admission, until March 3, 1845, when both were admitted by act of that date, with the following preamble:

Whereas the people of the Territory of Iowa did, on the 7th day of October, 1844, by a convention of delegates called and assembled for that purpose, form for themselves a constitution and State government; and whereas the people of the Territory of Florida did, in like manner, by their delegates, on the 11th day of January, 1839, form for themselves a constitution and State government, both of which said constitutions are republican; and said conventions having asked the admission of their respective Territories into the Union as States on an equal footing with the original States.

The act of Congress changed the boundaries of the State of Iowa, as defined in her constitution, and required the consent of the people to this change. This proposition was defeated at a popular election. A second convention, called by the Territorial Legislature, met and formed a new constitution in May, 1846, which was adopted by the people, and on December 28, 1846, an act of Congress admitting the State was passed.

In the case of Oregon the claim was made in behalf of the people of the right to originate a State government without authority of Congress under the ordinance of 1787, which had been extended to that Territory.

In December, 1856, the Territorial Legislature passed an act providing for a constitutional convention. The delegates were duly elected and the convention held. It met at Salem in August, 1857, and framed a constitution, which was ratified at a popular election. The boundaries, as provided for in that constitution, are the present boundaries of the State of Oregon, except that the territory lying north of the forty-sixth parallel of latitude and included between the Columbia and Snake Rivers, was, by the act of Congress admitting the State, taken from the State of Oregon and attached to the Territory of Washington. There was no enabling act, the movement for admission having originated wholly with the people. The State was admitted to the Union on the 14th day of February, 1859.

There was a debate in the House of Representatives upon the bill. The debate turned chiefly upon the question of population. In the English bill it had been provided in substance that if Kansas did not come in under the Lecompton constitution she should not be admitted until her population equaled the existing unit of representation in the House of Representatives, which was then 93,492. The Republicans insisted that if this principle was correct, as many of them admitted, it should also be applied to Oregon, and that it was an unjust discrimination against Kansas to hold her off until her population should reach 93,492 and admit Oregon, whose population was claimed to be very much short of that limit. In the House Mr. Stephens, of Georgia, reported a bill for the admission of Oregon, and after quoting the provisions of the ordinance of 1787, he said:

If there were any question as to whether there were 90,000 people there, if there were any question as to whether Oregon comes up to the ratio of representation, yet, sir, I hold that there is a solemn guaranty and a contract made with those people which we ought not to disregard. That there are more than 60,000 people there it seems to me no gentleman upon this floor can doubt.

Mr. Clark, of Missouri, also said, upon the same subject:

I claim that Oregon has a right to come in under the ordinance of 1787, and that it is the duty of Congress to admit her on the same principle and according to the same rule established in that ordinance for the Northwest Territory.

California applied for admission in a manner much more self-assertive than was that adopted by the other States.

The treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, properly construed, gave little warrant for the proceedings that were instituted.

Two fruitless efforts were made in 1848 in Congress to establish a Territorial government in California, and a bill which was introduced for her admission as a State came to naught.

In 1849 the military governor of that conquest called a constitutional convention by proclamation. This body adopted a constitution and elected State officers. The governor was inaugurated December 20, 1849. The military governor proclaimed the constitution to have been adopted, and delivered the government to the State thus organized.

President Taylor transmitted this constitution to Congress in a message which took no exception to the manner in which it had been formed.

Mr. Douglas presented to the Senate the memorial of the Senators and Representatives elect, praying the admission of California as a State.

The report of the conference committee of thirteen, made by Henry Clay, contains this passage:

There are various instances prior to the case of California of the admission of new States into the Union without any previous authorization by Congress. The sole condition required by the Constitution of the United States in respect to the admission of a new State is that its constitution shall be republican in form.

It was under these circumstances that California came into the Union by the act of September 9, 1850.

The territory which is now the State of Vermont was claimed by Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and New York. The people of Vermont adopted a constitution in 1777, and adopted another in 1781. Massachusetts assented to the independence of Vermont.

The claim of New Hampshire was relinquished in 1782 and that of New York in 1790. Vermont was admitted into the Union February 18, 1791, and in the long history of this effort of her people to become a State no pretense was ever made that she could not approach Congress as a claimant to the right of admission without the credentials of an enabling act.

So in the case of Maine. Massachusetts, by act passed June 19, 1819, submitted the question of separation to the people of Maine, who thereupon voted (17,091 to 7,132) in favor of forming a separate State. In 1820 a constitution was adopted by a convention and ratified by the people of Maine.

Massachusetts, by statute of February 25, 1820, enacted that Maine be formed into an independent State, "whenever the Congress of the United States shall give its consent thereto;" and provided that "if it shall not be known by the first Monday of April next that the Congress of the United States has given its consent, as aforesaid, the people of the said district of Maine shall elect provisionally a governor, senators and representatives, or other officers necessary to the organization thereof as a separate and independent State, according to the provisions of the constitution of government agreed to by the people of the said district."

Maine was admitted into the Union March 3, 1820, by an act which recites that the people of Maine, by consent of the Legislature of Massachusetts, have formed themselves into an independent State and established a constitution, agreeably to the provisions of the said act (of Massachusetts).

Enough, and more than enough, has been thus adduced on these questions, and it stands established:

1. That the ordinance of 1787, extended as it was after the adoption of the Federal Constitution over regions not originally affected by its provisions, and also re-enacted as to the territory first affected by it, has been regarded as conferring upon the people of a Territory the right to adopt a constitution and to apply for admission into the Union.

2. That the stipulations of the treaty with France have been regarded in several instances as conferring the same right, and that the treaty with Spain was so regarded in the case of Florida.

3. That many States have formed their constitutions and have been admitted without enabling acts, and that the objection that they thus proceeded was not perceived by Washington, was directly contrary to the opinion of Jackson, and was distinctly refuted by Madison, Macon, Benton, Clay, Buchanan, John Quincy Adams, and by many other statesmen scarcely less eminent.

4. That the people of some of these States have thus proceeded, after repeated denials of their petitions for the passage of enabling acts.

5. That in some instances the adoption of a constitution by popular vote has not been required, and that the question of boundaries has been adjusted as proposed by the present bill.

It follows from all this that there never was any consistent practice on this subject.

Mr. President, having thus, as I firmly believe, established upon technical and constitutional grounds the right of the people of South Dakota to claim, as a matter of right, admission into the Union, this is a proper time to consider some of the animadversions to which the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] has subjected this most important question.

He is of the opinion, if I understood him correctly, that it is entirely within the discretion of Congress whether a State shall be admitted. I deny that proposition. I deny it in the light of law, I deny it in the light of history, in all its length and breadth.

It was held by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Dred Scott vs. Sandford, Chief-Justice Taney speaking for the court, that the United States had no right to acquire territory except with the intention and as preparatory to its admission as a State.

When the States in the Union consent to the acquisition of territory, it is upon the implied, if not the explicit, promissory representation that when the inhabitants of the region thus acquired, or of any part thereof of proper dimensions, are sufficiently numerous and present the qualifications of integrity, patriotism, and virtue to entitle them to admission, such admission shall follow as a matter of duty performed and of right conferred.

It is not a matter of discretion, upon the grounds which I have already shown. The Territory of Dakota has been covered over and over again by the benefits of the ordinance of 1787, re-enacted time after time since the adoption of the Federal Constitution. She falls directly within the operation of the beneficent third article of the treaty with France, the very object of which, in the minds of those most eminent men who entered into that relation, was to erect and consolidate a power upon the western hemisphere against Great Britain, by ceding to the United States for that purpose territory which she could not alienate. It was something unusual in a treaty, but the treaty provided that from time to time, as soon as could be reasonably done, the inhabitants of that country should be entitled to come into the Union and enjoy the rights, privileges, and immunities of States of the Union.

That treaty is very old. The great Emperor went to the island of St. Helena and died in desolation; Thomas Jefferson died full of years and honor; but their works live after them. That treaty has never been abrogated or superseded by any law. It was made for the benefit of the people of the United States and for every person who should thereafter inhabit the ceded region, and it stands upon as firm a ground, in my opinion, as any right made under a treaty of the most recent times.

Mr. VEST. Will the Senator permit me to ask him a question, for I really desire information?

Mr. DAVIS. Certainly.

Mr. VEST. Do I understand his position to be that under the treaty by which the great Napoleon sold the Louisiana territory to the United States—and I will extend it further, under the ordinance of 1787—Congress is excluded from its discretion in regard to the admission of any Territory as a State if that State has the requisite population? Do I understand the Senator to mean that the only thing under that cession or under the ordinance of 1787 is the requisite population, and that discretion of Congress as to everything else is excluded?

Mr. DAVIS. Has the Senator concluded his question?

Mr. VEST. That is my question.

Mr. DAVIS. I understand it to be precisely this, that under the treaty and the ordinance of 1787, whenever there is the requisite population and the other requisites which I have mentioned——

Mr. VEST. What other requisites?

Mr. DAVIS. A republican form of government—nothing special which will warrant the Senator in interrupting me to define, for I mentioned those requisites a few moments ago—whenever there is the population, the qualifications of virtue, integrity, and patriotism, and republican institutions, a right accrues to the people of that region to be admitted as a State into the Union, and although Congress has the power to deny it, it has not the right to deny it in the rightful exercise of discretion.

I will say, in further answer to the Senator from Missouri, there are times when the exercise of discretion becomes something more than the mere yes or no of arbitrary will. There is such a thing as abuse of discretion. There is a time when the withholding of discretion and its exercise become criminal. Abuse of judicial discretion reverses judgments. Abuse of discretion impeaches judges. Abuse of such discretion as is appealed to by the Senator from South Carolina, in the majestic tribunal of public opinion, displaces administrations and reverses executive policies. You have power, and most cruelly has it been exercised, to exclude South Dakota; but that you have power to do this wrong in the exercise of your discretion and with abuse I do most fervently deny.

The Senator from South Carolina has presented, as an entire substitute for the measure reported by the committee to secure to that Territory that for which she has struggled so wearily and so long, an amendment which strikes out everything but the enacting clause, and proposes an enabling act for the admission of the whole of Dakota as one State; and he states that the path which he thus lays out for the admission of that people as one State is opened as an easy way. Now, let us see. I shall consider hereafter in a more proper connection the validity of the argument that the Territory ought to be admitted as one State. I propose now to examine the amendment and draw some contrasts between it and another measure which is before us for our consideration. The amendment in section 7 provides for an election, the formation of a constitution, and its submission to the people—and if a majority of the legal votes cast shall be for the constitution, the governor shall certify the result to the President of the United States, together with a statement of the votes cast upon separate propositions, and a copy of said declaration, constitution, and ordinances.

That is all that the President has to do. He is to receive the result.

SEC. 26. That the constitutional convention may, by ordinance, provide for the election of a full State government, including members of the Legislatures and Representatives in Congress; but said State government shall remain in abeyance until the constitution framed by said convention shall have been approved by Congress. In case the constitution of said proposed State shall be ratified by the people, but not otherwise, the Legislature thereof may assemble, organize, and elect two Senators of the United States; and the governor and secretary of State of said proposed State shall certify the election to Congress; and when the constitution so framed is approved by Congress, and such State admitted into the Union by special act of Congress therefor, the Senators and Representatives shall be admitted to seats in Congress,

I ask, Mr. President, speaking with all courtesy, in the light of the history of the few years that are just past, does this amendment, which is described by the Senator from South Carolina as an easy path for the people of Dakota, place them in any better light or plight than they are in, knocking vainly at the doors of this Capitol to-day? They appear here as other States have done, with a constitution. When they have done all that this amendment requires, they will have progressed no further than they are to-day. They appear here, and they are met by cavil and pretext and excuse as the basis for denial.

If by any unworthy motive, such as party spirit, it should be in the interest of any party in the ascendant at that time to say, "they come here fully equipped with a constitution under this enabling act, so called, but we will keep them out year after year in the future as we have done year after year in the past," will it not be done? In what better plight would the people of Dakota be under this proposed substitute than they are to-day?

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SPOONER in the chair). Does the Senator from Minnesota yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. DAVIS. Certainly.

Mr. BUTLER. I think in common fairness when the Senator is stating my position he ought to state it correctly. Of course I do not intimate that he desires to state it incorrectly, but he must remember that the provision of my amendment applies to the whole Territory of Dakota. The bill reported by the majority of the committee applies to the south half of it, so that I do not think he is exactly fair and just in stating that I and those who agree with me have denied the admission of this Territory into the Union.

Mr. DAVIS. In discussing the logical consequences of a great measure, however great my respect may be for a Senator, he becomes very impersonal. I am speaking of the effect of the amendment. I heard well what the Senator said yesterday, and I believe him as to what he personally would cheerfully do in the event of compliance with his proposition. As to his argument respecting the admission of Dakota as one State, I said a few moments ago that I would consider the Senator's argument in a more proper connection. But my objection to his amendment is that it has no reasonable tendency in the light of the times which have recently passed to place the people of Dakota in any better position than they were before. Indeed, it remits them to a condition far less advanced. This amendment which the Senator has brought within these walls is a wooden horse loaded with delusions, and it will be in vain if we are deluded into receiving it as something divine.

I have called the especial attention of the Senate to the fact that in the amendment proposed by the Senator from South Carolina a provision which is not infrequently found in legislation of this character is omitted, namely, that the people of the Territory upon forming a constitution may be admitted by executive proclamation. That is omitted from the amendment in regard to Dakota. She is to be admitted by a special act of Congress. Whatever the design was, the manifest tendency is to keep these people out.

Has the Senator from South Carolina always upon this subject been the man he was and of the mind he was? I will not go back for years or months. It is only necessary to go back a few days to draw a most instructive contrast in what I am encouraged to think are his opinions, at least in regard to the precedents. He asked why Utah should not be admitted? He gave no answer himself. I will tell him.

Mr. BUTLER. No, Mr. President, I did not put that question in that form. I said that if the proposition advanced by the Senator from Connecticut, which I understand to be indorsed by the Senator from Minnesota now on the floor, be the correct one, there was no reason why Utah should not be admitted. That was the ground I took.

Mr. EDMUNDS. That does not follow at all.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator from Vermont says that does not follow. Perhaps that is his opinion, but I have mine. I beg pardon for differing with so distinguished a Senator, but still I have given my opinion.

Mr. DAVIS. I listened to the Senator from South Carolina with interest and pleasure, and I do not remember anything in the speech of the Senator from Connecticut which justified that allusion by the Senator from South Carolina, but I will tell the Senator what are the qualifications to be placed upon the question. If Dakota ought to be admitted Utah ought not, upon the ground that there is a matter of principle.

Mr. BUTLER. He put it on the ground of right.

Mr. DAVIS. Utah is by no means to be brought into contrast with the people of that Christian community known as South Dakota. The condition of things is notoriously such in Utah that we take judicial notice of the fact that a republican form of government is impossible in that Territory, dominated and ruled in detail and in gross as it is by a polygamous hierarchy which is superior to all government.

Mr. BUTLER. Then I understand the Senator to admit that Congress has the right to exercise a discretion in the admission of Territories as States.

Mr. DAVIS. When Congress ascertains that the character of the people and their institutions is such that a republican form of government is impossible, then there is no discretion about it at all, but a plain obligation to carry out the imperative requirements of the Constitution.

No longer ago than the 16th day of March, 1888, the Senator from South Carolina introduced a bill into the Senate for the admission of Utah as a State into the Union. I have examined the bill carefully. I regret to say that it gives us much less promise of a republican form of government than the people who made the so-called constitution of that proposed State themselves submitted to us—a constitution which contained a provision defining polygamy as a felony, and by its terms making that provision unalterable without the consent of Congress. I find no word of censure or no word of condemnation in that bill—not one syllable of condemnation—against that surviving twin of barbarism. The only reference to it, and it is a peculiar one, is—

That no inhabitant of said State shall ever be molested in person or property on account of his or her mode of religious worship.

Mr. BUTLER. Will the Senator be kind enough to inform the Senate whether that provision has not been usual in bills for the admission of new States?

Mr. DAVIS. I am presenting the results of my examination.

Mr. BUTLER. I beg the Senator's pardon.

Mr. DAVIS. The provision is that they shall not be molested in person or property on account of his or her mode of religious worship. I had the curiosity to refresh my memory by turning to the Constitution of the United States for the equivalent phraseology or something like it, but it is not to be found. It is "the mode" that is protected, against which the United States can not prescribe by legislation.

But this is not all; and perhaps what I said a moment ago did not go far enough. I called the attention of the Senate to how difficult in fact was the easy way which the amendment of the Senator from South Carolina had made for the Republican Territory of Dakota, and I now propose to call attention to the easy way in fact which he has made for the people of the Democratic Territory of Utah.

It will be remembered that the constitution contemplated by his amendment as to Dakota provides that the State government and the constitution adopted shall remain in abeyance until confirmed and ratified and the State admitted by a special act of Congress. I supposed, of course, I should find the same provision in regard to the bill which he introduced less than three weeks ago respecting Utah; but what do we find? The power of Congress as to the admission of Utah, if this bill should pass and her people should form her constitution, is in express terms disposed of and exercised in advance, and all that the people of Utah have to do under the Senator's bill is to perform a condition-subsequent. I read from page 5, section 5, of the Utah bill:

The returns of said election shall be made to the secretary of the Territory, who, with the members of the Utah Commission, or any three of them, shall canvass the same; and if a majority of the legal votes cast shall be for said constitution, the commission shall certify the result to the President of the United States, together with a copy of said declaration, constitution, and ordinances; whereupon it shall be the duty of the President of the United States, if said declaration, constitution, and ordinances shall conform to the requirements of this act, to issue his proclamation declaring the State admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States, without any further action whatever on the part of Congress.

Compare it with the provision of his amendment in regard to Dakota, for I recur to it again for the purpose of emphasizing the different positions in which the Senator from South Carolina stands in respect to the exercise of the discretion, and the different procedure which he applies to these two distinct communities.

But said State government shall remain in abeyance until the constitution framed by said convention shall have been approved by Congress. In case the constitution of said proposed State shall be ratified by the people, but not otherwise, the Legislature thereof may assemble, organize, and elect two Senators of the United States; and the governor and secretary of state of said proposed State shall certify the election to Congress; and when the constitution so framed is approved by Congress and such State admitted into the Union by special act of Congress therefor the Senators and Representatives shall be admitted to seats in Congress, and to all the rights and privileges of Senators and Representatives of other States in the Congress of the United States; and the State government formed in pursuance of said constitution, as provided by the constitutional convention, shall proceed to exercise all the functions of State officers; and all laws in force made by said Territories at the time of their admission into the Union shall be in force in said State.

Utah is to come in by a proclamation which his bill makes the duty of the President to issue, while Dakota is to again and again depend upon a special act of Congress.

Mr. President, I proceed now to answer that branch of the argument of the Senator from South Carolina in which he endeavored to persuade the Senate that it is not the desire of the people of Dakota to come in under the constitution which has been presented here. Is it not strange, if, as he says, there was marked dissent on that question, that there are no petitions or memorials except the proceedings of that unique Aberdeen convention laid upon the table of the Secretary? Is it not strange that in all the years during which the people of South Dakota have been struggling for admission no such petition or dissent has been laid before the Senate?

The whole history of the Territory from the beginning shows that such has been the desire of the people. The Senator's own party in that Territory, in all its official action from the earliest time down to the present, has been unanimous in all official declarations for division and admission. I send to the desk and ask to have read from the Huron Herald, a Democratic paper, from which I understand an extract of the speech of Judge Edgerton was read yesterday, a statement as to the position of the Democratic party in regard to the division question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HARRIS in the chair). The paper will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

RECORD OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY OF DAKOTA ON DIVISION—VOTES OF ALL THEIR CONVENTIONS—DIVISION AN ORIGINAL DEMOCRATIC MEASURE.

[From the Huron Herald-Democrat (Democratic).]

Inasmuch as the question of division of the Territory of Dakota is now before Congress, and as Ordway, Johnson, and other self-constituted leaders of the Democratic party here are endeavoring to make Congress believe that the Democrats are opposed to the division of the Territory, and in favor of admission as a whole, the Democrat proposes to give the attitude of this party upon this important question in the past, so that all may be informed on the subject.

At the Territorial Democratic convention which assembled at Bon Homme, July 18, 1872, and which nominated Moses K. Armstrong for Delegate in Congress, who was afterwards elected to his second term, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That a division of the Territory should be made, giving to the settlement of Dakota a separate and distinct Territorial government north of the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude."

At the Territorial Democratic convention held at Elk Point, August 20, 1874, in which W. A. Burleigh was nominated for Delegate in Congress, the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, That we believe the best interests of the public demand the erection of a new Territory out of that portion of Dakota lying north of the forty-sixth parallel, and we pledge the influence of the Democratic party to secure the organization of such new Territory."

At the Territorial anti-monopoly convention held at the same time and place, and which also nominated Dr. Burleigh for Delegate, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That we are in favor of the organization of a new Territory out of the northern portion of Dakota at the earliest possible day."

The Territorial Democratic convention held at Yankton, July 6, 1876, which nominated Hon. S. L. Spink for Delegate in Congress, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we earnestly favor the organization of a new Territory out of the northern part of Dakota, and believe that such organization will largely tend to enhance the interests of the people of both sections."

In the Territorial convention which nominated Bartlett Tripp for Delegate in 1878 no expression upon the division question was made. In the convention of 1880, which nominated M. L. McCormack for Delegate, it is asserted by those who were present that a division resolution was passed, but the record is not available.

In 1882 the Democrats of Dakota assembled in Territorial convention at Mitchell, and after nominating W. E. Steele, of Deadwood, for Delegate, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we are in favor of the division of Dakota on the forty-sixth parallel and retaining the present name of Dakota for the south half."

In 1884, at Sioux Falls, where the Territorial Democracy in convention assembled nominated John R. Wilson, of Deadwood, for Delegate, the resolutions adopted embraced the following:

"Resolved, That we are in favor of the division of the Territory on the seventh standard parallel, and appeal to the Democratic members of Congress to favor such division."

At the last Democratic Territorial convention, held at Aberdeen September 30, 1885, in which Hon. M. H. Day was nominated for Delegate in Congress, plank No. 7 in the platform of principles adopted was as follows:

"That we favor the submission to a vote of the people of the whole Territory the question of the division of the Territory on the seventh standard parallel."

This is the consistent, outspoken attitude of the Democratic party of Dakota for fourteen years upon the question of division. This party has been the originator, fosterer, and promoter of division. The unselfish, thoughtful Democrats who have resided here for years, and who have studied the needs and wishes of the whole people of this Territory, have pronounced time and again for division. The last Democratic convention elected its chairman upon the issue of division, nominated its candidate for Delegate upon the same issue, and came very near electing him. Every man who attended the Aberdeen convention of September 30, 1886, remembers that W. I. Quigley was nominated by the one-State men for temporary chairman. The divisionists put up Hon. John R. Wilson, who was elected by an overwhelming majority. When it came to the selection of a candidate for Delegate the same question was presented. It was a trial of the strength of the divisionists and anti-divisionists. What was the result? On the informal ballot L. G. Johnson, who represented the one-State men, received 70 votes; M. H. Day, who represented the two-State men, received 204 votes; and D. W. Maratta received 69 votes. On the formal ballot Mr. Day received 228 votes, D. W. Maratta 76 votes, and L. G. Johnson 4 votes, most of the Johnson men voting for Maratta.

Thus it will be seen that every time this question has been before the Democratic party of this Territory, in whatever form, the party has pronounced emphatically for division.

When the resolution favoring the submission of the question to a vote of the people passed the Aberdeen convention every good and true Democrat was bound to stand by the result. And what was the result? In favor of division by nearly 5,000 majority.

If Mr. Johnson was a good Democrat he would submit to this verdict. But he does not, and hence forfeits his right to be called a Democrat. In fact, his course in this matter is in keeping with his past political record. Up to a very recent date Mr. Johnson was an active Republican. When the Territorial Republican convention assembled at Pierre in 1884 he was heading the Republican delegation from Brown County and assisted in nominating Judge Gifford, the present Republican Delegate, and in the same year he was a prominent member of the Territorial convention which met in Huron to select delegates to the national Republican convention at Chicago. If he has since been converted to Democracy his acts do not prove it.

The plain truth is, a large majority of the Democrats of this Territory are now, and have always been, in favor of division. And the Democrat is getting pretty tired of having a man with the political record of Mr. Johnson assuming to represent and reflect the sentiments of the Democracy of Dakota.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Johnson is the gentleman whose name was mentioned by the Senator from South Carolina yesterday and whose remarks before the committee were presented by that Senator. The description given of him in that article comes down to last December.

The Senator from South Carolina attributes a great deal to the action of the so-called Aberdeen convention. So far as any expression of the people of that Territory is concerned upon which we should act it is of no importance. The Aberdeen convention was held a few weeks after the election by which the people of the Territory cast a vote of 67,000 and decided in favor of division by a majority of 5,000. Time does not warrant me to state fully the manipulations which produced the convention at Aberdeen, but every Federal officer desirous of continuing in power, every office-seeker desirous of a Federal appointment, every county-seat speculator interested in struggles as to which should be the capital in case the Territory should become one State, was active in giving some pretext for laying some foundation for some such argument as we heard yesterday, to break down as far as possible the express will of the people to whom it was referred by an act of the Legislature of the whole Territory of Dakota to decide.

I beg leave to read to the Senate from the statement of Hon. O. S. GIFFORD, the Delegate in Congress of the Territory of Dakota, made before the House committee on the 1st of February, 1888, in regard to this Aberdeen convention:

In regard to the Aberdeen convention recently held, it is entitled to the consideration which might be given to the opinions of a like number of people who may assemble anywhere at any time from neighboring towns, with a few from distant parts of the Territory, and to no more consideration. The original call for the convention was an anonymous call, not signed by anybody, or perhaps by one person who purported to act as secretary of something.

Mr. STRUBLE. By whom was it signed as secretary?

Judge GIFFORD. I think it was signed by Mr. Brayton, if I am not mistaken, or if it was signed at all.

Mr. JOHNSON. No, it was not signed. It was prepared for the signatures of the people and mailed to them. Judge Gifford, a wholesale liquor-dealer (in this I mean no personal disrespect), canvassed thoroughly the lines of the Northwestern Railway to secure signers to the call after it was issued. No exposition, circus, ice or corn palace was ever advertised more thoroughly in our country. Special trains, rates, and all sorts of inducements were offered to get people to attend the convention.

Let us look at this call a moment and into some of the county conventions which selected the delegates. Now, after this call was issued and public signatures were secured to the call—and I see on this list the names of men who were appointed as officers, land officers, in the Territory, and who have not resided there longer than two years. There is the name of Hugh East, of Yankton, and the name of the receiver, I think, or is it the register, of Devil's Lake? Names of land-office clerks are upon this list. Mr. E. P. Calwell, whose name appears here upon this call from Beadle County, is not a resident of that county at all and has not been for years. I am told that from reliable authority.

Mr. JOHNSON. But he was an old resident of the Territory.

Judge GIFFORD. I have in my pocket a letter from which I desire to read a short extract, if you will allow me. It is from a reputable citizen of North Dakota, who is mayor of the city of Devil's Lake. This is dated Devil's Lake, Dak., December 26, 1887:

"Now that the Aberdeen convention is over and its purposes and principles are quite well understood, it is proper that a few facts relative to the mode and manner in which that gathering was assembled should be known. As you are well aware, there was nothing legitimate in this call. Half a dozen politicians set the ball rolling; a few sharp lightning-rod agents were employed and sent out over the Territory to see the non-divisionists and secure names for the cause. A man named Moore, who I learn is an old wire-puller, was sent to this county. He obtained the name of S. S. Smith, receiver of the land office; also the names of W. Noble and W. Y. Rumney, land-office clerks, and J. F. O'Brien, who was an applicant for the registership when Mr. Lord's time expires. From here Moore drove to Benson County, and then went south to Jamestown. He did not go into Towner or Rolette Counties, but contented himself with using the names of John Hardy and McDonald, two strong divisionists, and Editor Sibley, a strong Democrat. All three of these gentlemen repudiated the whole business, and Editor Sibley denominates it a forgery. This was at Towner County. In Rolette County Moore used the name of one person who favored the admission as a whole scheme, and added two fictitious names of persons that were never heard of in the county. I understand that this same system of forgery was carried out in different parts of the Territory which the conspirators did not have time to visit."

Now what inspired the convention to take the proceedings and come to the conclusion that it did? It was the utter despair of some of the people of South Dakota and of all the people of North Dakota, that whether divided or as one they could ever be admitted into the Union as long as the agitation for the admission of South Dakota continued. If South Dakota is to be admitted as one State the people of North Dakota greatly fear, and fear with reason, that they will tread the same long and weary way that their sister has been compelled to traverse. This, I say, conclusively appears from the speech of Mr. Preston, the president of the convention. On page 13 of the proceedings of the Aberdeen convention Mr. Preston is reported as saying:

I have some time since come to the conclusion that there is no prospect for the division of this Territory and the admission of the south half. I am, indeed, grateful to those people of South Dakota and all the people who have done so much for the division of this Territory, and I give them credit for being honest in all their puposes, although they have not accomplished their desired end; they have, nevertheless, kept Dakota's greatness before the public. But when their efforts fail, when they have done all they can do by their own personal efforts, aided by legislative appropriations, as has been done, I am indeed forced to admit, after mature deliberation, that it is useless to insist longer upon division and admission. No one will admit but what our business interests are suffering.

There is not a word in Mr. Preston's address, if I recollect it correctly, certainly not one word in that passage, which pronounced as unwise the admission of this Territory as two States. His language is the language of despair, of surrender, of being beaten out of the accomplishment of all that is desired and being forced to take the best that he can get.

But in order to be entirely regular in the opinion of this convention thus called together, it seemed to have been deemed necessary by the delegates who sat therein that they should move off under the guidance of some inspiring mind; that they should receive a message from somebody which should direct their work, guide their intelligence, and stimulate them in their desires, or cast down their hopes, if such were necessary to be cast down.

Accordingly (this convention being held on the 15th of December, 1887) it seems that on the 6th of December a letter was prepared by a very eminent personage to be read as a sort of an executive message to the convention at Aberdeen. It is dated "House of Representatives, United States, Washington, D. C., December 6, 1887;" and its writer is WILLIAM M. SPRINGER, the chairman of the Committee on Territories. It is a letter addressed to this same Mr. Johnson who has been paraded here as proving the intelligence, the probity, and truth-telling capacity of the people of Dakota.

Mr. PLATT. And the non-partisan.

Mr. DAVIS. And the non-partisan.

On page 30 of these proceedings Mr. L. G. Johnson, of Brown county, said:

While the chairman is engaged in making up his list of the committee, I desire that the Secretary read this letter from Hon. WILLIAM M. SPRINGER, of Illinois.

And it was accordingly read and spread upon the record. Mr. SPRINGER says:

This is the first concerted movement on the part of the people of Dakota for single statehood which has come to my knowledge.

And I think in that respect the letter is true.

Heretofore the organized efforts of your people have been in the direction of division of the Territory into two parts, while individuals, partisan localities, and newspapers of the Territory have opposed such efforts. These contending factions among your own people have had the inevitable result of preventing affirmative action whatever by Congress.

This is his pronunciamiento, the ukase and decree of a man in a certain respect absolutely powerful, or assumed to be so, over this question, prepared in advance to be submitted to these people in that convention.

Those who are wedded to the idea of division may well postpone the realization of their hopes until a more convenient season—

Referring, I suppose, to some time after the next Presidential election—for I can assure them, from my knowledge of public sentiment here, that the division of Dakota at this time, and the erection of two States within her border, is utterly impossible.

He concludes as follows:

I therefore bid you Godspeed in the work of the convention of the 15th of December, and trust that its labor will result in the early admission of Dakota as a State in the Union.

Is it any wonder, Mr. President, with such a letter as that, prepared for this convention, sent to the gentleman who followed that convention here, who was not even a member of the committee appointed by that convention to come here and notify Congress of its proceedings, that the people who met there felt cowed, and like Mr. Preston, their chairman, who was always in favor of division before, abandoned the hope of division, and made up their minds that in every way they would endeavor to procure the best they could get?

The Senator from South Carolina finds some fault with the vote cast for the delegates to the convention which formed the constitution under which Dakota is now seeking admission into the Union. He says the vote was but 12,000 out of 77,000 votes. He says that he bows his head to the imperialism of the sovereign people, and he asks if this application for admission is a decent respect for the wish of the sovereign people, or a partial respect for the doctrine of popular sovereignty.

We have reason to felicitate ourselves, Mr. President, in these times when public sentiment seems to be eaten with the canker of a long peace, that any Senator will rise in his place and call attention to any inadequacy or violation of the franchise in any part of this country. He spread before us a map of Dakota, of which I have a counterpart, wherein the counties which voted for division were noted in somber and mournful black. I thought another map might be unrolled of a region southwest of the Potomac, and of the electoral processes whereby a great party has been removed like a cottage from over twenty degrees of latitude and over 900,000 square miles.

This debate will not be without fruit, Mr. President, if we heed the remarks of the Senator from South Carolina, which demand that a vote shall be decently full at least to entitle people applying for admission to the exercise of discretion; and I wish the same sentiment might reach to Alabama, where, in the First Congressional district, at the last election, JAMES T. JONES, in six counties, was elected a member of Congress by 4,220 votes—no opposition. In the Second district, eight counties, the candidate was elected by 5,659 votes; no opposition. In the Third district, seven counties, W. C. OATES was elected by 4,660 votes—no opposition. In the Fifth district, nine counties, JAMES E. COBB was elected by 5,558 votes to 775 for Edwards, Republican, and that was all the opposition. These are great counties of a State which has been settled for scores of years.

If 12,000 votes are not sufficient to lay a warrant of title for a Representative from Dakota or for Senators upon this floor, what shall be said of such a record as that? So it runs through other States. In Arkansas, the First district, eighteen counties, POINDEXTER DUNN received 6,092 votes—no opposition. In the Fifth district, SAMUEL W. PEEL, 4,746 votes—no opposition.

In Georgia, First district, THOMAS M. NORWOOD, eighteen counties, 2,060 votes against 17 for Groover, Republican. Second district, seventeen counties, HENRY G. TURNER, 2,411 votes—no opposition. In the Third district, sixteen counties, C. F. CRISP, 1,704 votes—no opposition. In the Fourth district, eleven counties, T. W. GRIMES, 2,909 votes; Carmichael, Republican, 330 votes. In the Fifth district, eleven counties, JOHN D. STEWART, 2,999 votes—no opposition. In the Sixth district, eleven counties, the successful candidate, 1,722 votes—no opposition. In the Eighth district, twelve counties, H. H. CARLTON, 2,377 votes against 55 scattering. In the Ninth district, A. D. CANDLER, 2,355 votes against York, Republican, 11 votes. In the Tenth district, eleven counties, GEORGE T. BARNES, 1,944 votes—no opposition.

Louisiana, Fourth district, thirteen counties, N. C. BLANCHARD, 5,747 votes—no opposition.

Mississippi, First district, eight counties, JOHN M. ALLEN, 3,140 votes; 27 scattering. Fourth district, thirteen counties, F. G. BARRY, 2,964 votes; 122 votes scattering. Seventh district—that is the Copiah district—nine counties, CHARLES E. HOOKER, 4,908 votes, and 6 scattering.

South Carolina, First district, the Charleston district, SAMUEL DIBBLE, 3,315; 2 scattering. Second district, five counties, GEORGE D. TILLMAN, 5,212; 23 scattering. Third district, five counties, JAMES S. COTHRAN, 4,402 votes; 7 scattering. Fourth district, WILLIAM H. PERRY, 4,470 votes—no opposition. Fifth district, five counties, J. J. HEMPHILL, 4,696 votes; 5 scattering. Sixth district, GEORGE W. DARGAN, 4,411 votes; 58 scattering.

In the face of such a showing as that, any suggestion which will call the attention of the American people to the negligence or denial of the exercise of the right of popular sovereignty is to be welcomed and I rejoice that the Senator from South Carolina avows here that he bows his head to the imperialism of the sovereign will, and asks if this application, backed by only 12,000 votes out of 77,000, is a decent respect for the wish of the sovereign people and for popular sovereignty.

But these gentlemen from these other regions have assumed the duties of their office without question; no objection has been made to their doing so; the conscience of the people has hardly been stirred by it; and if such things can be in that region, why should the people of Dakota, if they choose not to cast more than 12,000 votes out of 77,000, be told that their action is one to be discredited and their plea for admission insolent?

But there is one thing here to which attention has not been called. Conceding that the vote for the election of delegates which formed that constitution was a comparatively light one, yet the people of the entire Territory by their legislative act authorized the election of last fall upon the question of division under that constitution, and the result of the vote on that subject in November last was 67,618. There were for division 37,784, against division 32,913; a majority for division of 4,871.

Mr. President, that is by far the largest vote that has ever been cast in any Territory of this Union on the subject of the adoption of a constitution or admission, and although I have not computed, I venture to say it is a larger vote than the entire aggregate of the votes from these Southern districts in the election of members of Congress which I have just read in the hearing of the Senate.

What other excuses remain for postponing this long-delayed act of justice? This course of evasion, quibbling, pretext, and denial has run so long that it has ceased to be a mere error. Never in the history of this Government has such a commonwealth knocked, and in vain, at the doors of the Union; never has the equity of any people been so shamefully down-trodden.

On account of grievances much the same our ancestors rebelled.

On account of grievances less than this, though much the same and committed by the same party and for the same purpose, the injustice done Kansas shocked the popular conscience and converged upon its perpetrators the condemnation of the world.

On account of oppressions much the same, for home government denied, for the imposition of rulers alien to the soil, who govern like proconsuls, we blame England, condole with Ireland, hold meetings, pass resolutions, and contribute money with self-sufficient hypocrisy, while we are full of the same offense.

I shall not, Mr. President, detail the history of this continuous and consistent injustice; it is known of all men. I shall content myself with presenting Dakota as she is to-day.

The entire Territory contains 600,000 people. Of these not less than 350,000 inhabit South Dakota. They began to subdue that marvelous region when Indians wars were raging before and behind them.

In the midst of our struggle for national existence, and long afterwards, before a railroad was built into that country, when civilization stood pausing on her Western outposts, then not 60 miles west of the Mississippi River, the forerunners of those hardy men and brave women dared the wilderness, the savage, and all the terrors of a season when nature at times attacks man with forces that have frozen armies as they marched.

These people came from every State and from foreign lands. There are there twenty thousand soldiers of the Union Army denied enfranchisement by the nation they helped to save. This people is in the maturity of age and of physical and intellectual vigor. Go into an assemblage in that Territory and you will see few gray heads. No one there is idle or superannuated. That people have reclaimed that domain; they have created a State. It is a gift from them to the United States, which enjoys the largess and spurns the giver. They have made the prairie yellow with harvests, and they reap therefrom each year more in value than is digged from all the mines of gold and silver in the country. They have also since 1877 extorted $33,000,000 of treasure "uphoarded in the womb of earth." They have built thousands of miles of railroads; they have endowed schools and universities; they have established reformatories, prisons, and asylums; they have created a State to which nothing is wanting of use, refinement, or luxury, and nothing wanting of political completeness except the right to govern itself as a State of the Union. They are to-day, in all that constitutes a State, more fully equipped than many States which have for years persistently denied them fellowship.

From a wealth of achievement so various as to make selection difficult, here are some of the results, at least one-half of which belong to South Dakota:

Population	600,000
Acres disposed of under general land laws	35,937,930
Acreage of wheat	3,899,389
Bushels of wheat in 1887	60,000,000
Bushels of corn in 1887	27,000,000
Value of live-stock in 1887	$12,828,338
Gold and silver mined since 1877, all in South Dakota	$33,770,000
Ungraded schools	3,856
Railroad mileage	4,207

In railroad mileage Dakota stands thirteenth in the list of forty-seven States and Territories. In 1887 more miles of railroad were built there than in any of the States excepting Kansas. Her total mileage is exceeded only by that of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Texas, Kansas, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, and Wisconsin. And this mileage, more than sufficient to span the continent, has been built without subsidy or land grant, excepting the main line of the Northern Pacific, from Fargo to Bismarck, about 300 miles.

It is insisted, in opposition to the present measure, that the whole Territory should be admitted as a State. There are many reasons why this should not be. The people of the Territory do not so desire. They have voted on this subject and declared decisively their wish to be otherwise. The sentiment in South Dakota is almost unanimous in favor of division, and it would be so in North Dakota but for the fear of its people that if they are continued in Territorial dependence they will for years to come be made to endure the same delays in their own efforts for admission. It has from the beginning been the one desire upon which the people of Dakota, throughout all of their contentions, have been agreed—that in time two States would be created from it. On this forecast the public buildings have been built in duplicate for each division, north and south.

The physical geography of that Territory bears upon this question and furnishes another reason why it should be divided into two States—a reason so convincing that it has operated upon the political instinct of peoples in adjusting themselves to boundaries for ages before the principle was recognized as an element of political science. It is this: South Dakota lies mainly on the line of different productions and intercourse from that occupied by the region to the north. It lies in the latitude of Southern Minnesota and Iowa. Immigration, moving as it does in parallels, has largely gone into that region from States directly east and south. North Dakota has been populated by a much more diverse multitude; and it is generally accurate to state that a large majority of its inhabitants has gone there from regions lying nearly in the same latitude. The overflow from Minnesota has not been less than fifty thousand people. The Scandinavian population is not less than sixty thousand.

It is, perhaps, too much to say that there are now few points in common between the inhabitants of these two regions, but it is entirely correct to state that there are points of divergence between them from which an ever-widening process will inevitably go on. The products of each region will be different. North Dakota's principal staple will always be wheat. The products of South Dakota will ever be more various. Such difference, it is well known, has its effect upon the characteristics of communities, and from the beginning give rise to opposing interests and desires often irreconcilable, to different markets, to different commercial lines of intercourse, and to conflicting modes of thought and action.

The work of man in that Territory has already corroborated these assertions. Trade, like migrations, moves in parallels. South Dakota is tributary to Chicago, and reaches the seaboard through that city. North Dakota is bound commercially to St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Duluth, and its products find their way to the seaboard through those cities, thence by the way of Lake Superior during the season of navigation. The railroad recently completed through Northern Wisconsin and Michigan to the Sault Ste. Marie, and which there connects with the Canadian system of railways, furnishes a winter outlet and saves the necessity of the detour around the southern extremity of Lake Michigan.

The instinct of railroad builders has from the beginning acted under the impulse of these conceptions. The east and west lines of Chicago traverse South Dakota and are directed toward the Black Hills. Far to the north of them lie two other east and west systems, the Northern Pacific and the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba, each running into Duluth. The effect of this mandate of nature and of this obedience to it by man will be strikingly manifest twenty-five years from now, when each of these regions will contain more than two millions of people.

There is another convincing reason why the present Territory should not constitute a single State. It is too large, and will in time be too populous and powerful to subserve the equilibrium which ought to be maintained between the States. It contains 150,000 square miles. All New England can be included in it and still leave room for New York, Delaware, and Maryland. The distance from its northern to its southern boundary is equal to that between Washington and Ottawa, in Canada Divided, as proposed, it will give two States of 75,000 square miles. There is little waste land in this wide expanse. It will sustain millions of people. As one political body it will inevitably, and at no distant day, as time is measured in the life of nations, exercise an undue ascendency in political action.

This is an evil which we have only begun to experience, but it is felt to-day in the overpowering influence of great States and ever in that of great cities. It needs no prophetic gift to fear and see the power which Texas must at some time exert upon the affairs of Government, when her imperial domain, which no Texan will for this very reason consent shall be divided into new States, as was originally contemplated, becomes populous with millions of people, moving under the momentum of inordinate power, of common interest, and concentrated intelligence.

The present government is insufficient. It has for years been an anachronism. The Territorial system of administration is in theory, and ought always to be in practice, merely temporary and provisional for the short time during which the process of forming the State is gone through. The true enabling act, in principle, is the act establishing the Territory. How is it with this commonwealth, grown to full stature and exceeding beauty, standing a scorned suppliant without, while sister States, contemning her, are reveling in the great festival of power and national glory to which she has contributed so much?

The present governor is a sojourner from New York. His predecessor was a sojourner from Illinois, who was preceded by a sojourner from New Hampshire, who succeeded a sojourner from Michigan.

The Legislature is a council of twenty-four members and a house of representatives of forty-eight members. It meets biennially and its sessions are limited to sixty days. A statute of the United States prohibits legislation by special act upon many subjects which all experience has shown are best treated in that manner. Such a legislative system is utterly inadequate to the rapidly growing needs of such a people.

Any government in which public or private justice is delayed or made uncertain stands condemned by that single fact. The entire jurisdiction, original and appellate, of the courts of record of Dakota, both Federal, and Territorial, is vested in six judges. Justice delayed is justice denied. These magistrates hold several terms each year of the supreme court, and in the intervals go in eyre throughout the Territory, through many counties—as many as twenty-six to one of the judges—in the vain effort to keep down calendars of causes, necessarily leaving often hundreds of cases not reached for trial.

The collection of debts is thus deferred; private credit suffers; titles to land are assailed by pretexts barely sufficient to cloud them, and remain unsettled for years; administration of estates taken into these courts by appeal from probate tribunals is delayed until inheritances are devoured by costs of procedure; the trials of criminals are procrastinated until witnesses are become scattered, and the culprits at last go unpunished.

This is the cause of every Territory and not that of Dakota alone. Several of these ought at once to be admitted. As mere appanages to the Union they unquestionably add to its resources, but as States they increase its power many fold. We need them in the national councils. They stretch for 1,700 miles along the northern boundary of our rival. In case of war these people could seize the Canadian Pacific road and thus hold the very keys of that country in one week. Under similar conditions Great Britain would neglect no measure to establish a loyal and aggressive people on our frontier. But we, negligent of our Navy, of our merchant marine, of our coast defenses, of our duty to control interoceanic communication over Central America, of the rights of our fisheries, are negligent here also, in a matter of the highest importance, considered in reference to our relations with other powers.

Of all the causes which have contributed to the grandeur of the Republic, and made it the first power upon earth, the acquisition of regions which have been occupied by the most courageous of our people, have become Territories and then States, has been the most potent. We acquired Louisiana, a vast empire, watered by the largest navigable rivers in the world, rivers which run southward and afford the means of commercial intercourse and exchange of every product of many degrees of latitude, from the wheat of the extreme north to the sugar of the extreme south.

We acquired Florida, and the Gulf of Mexico became the Mediterranean of this nation. We acquired Texas, and look at the magnificent result. We acquired California, and it became at once the principal producer of precious metals, and stands now dominant upon the Pacific, destined to engross the commerce of Asia.

By a cowardly diplomacy we gave up unquestionable claims to part of Oregon and enabled Great Britain to share with us the most important military and naval position on the Pacific Coast from Cape Horn to Behring's Straits.

Why shall we not be at least meanly just—for generosity has long been out of the question—towards Dakota? Why delay longer this great act of national justice? Why shall we not be taught by the lessons of history, and understand that justice long deferred eventually works retribution in direct proportion to the obduracy of its denial?

Let us strip this question of every device, evasion, pretext, and sham, and plainly admit that this commonwealth has been denied admission into the Union for the sole reason that the party in power—the solid South and a few allied Northern States—do not intend that Dakota shall have any voice in the election of a President so long as the existing political ascendency can hope for continuance.

This is no new wrong. It has been perpetrated before by the same party, by the same alliance, and for the same purposes. When Kansas sought admission the same injustice was inflicted upon her. The prize in that game of chicane, injustice, and bloodshed was the continuance in power of the Democratic party. Many who were accessories to that offense had the excuse of believing that a great domestic institution was in danger. But here no such apology can be made. The admission of Dakota imperils no material interest. It will increase the power of the nation and impart benefactions to every community therein.

The party which proclaims that public office is a public trust, violates that trust; which boasts of its devotion to the principles of self-government and of civil-service reform, violates those principles in every particular by insisting that such a commonwealth shall remain under a Federal protectorate and be governed by foreign officers. The party which denies to hundreds of thousands of electors in the South a free ballot and a fair count, denies also, by a cunning which is more odious than force, the ballot, on national questions, to 70,000 white men in this portion of the North.

Mr. TURPIE. Mr. President——

Mr. VEST. The hour is late.

Mr. TURPIE. I take the floor for the purpose of taking part in the discussion.

Mr. VEST. If the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT] will allow me, I want to call up a bill for the action of the Senate.

Mr. PLATT. What did the Senator from Indiana say when asked if he wanted to go on?

Mr. VEST. He states he does not wish to go on this afternoon.

Mr. PLATT. I will not make a formal objection, but I desire that this matter shall be proceeded with as rapidly as possible, and I want to make a single observation about the procedure of the Senate in regard to these matters of importance, which, under our rules, can not be taken up until 2 o'clock, and then somebody asks that a little time be carved out to pass some informal matter, and then after an hour and three-quarters or two hours' consideration somebody asks that something else shall be done; and so we get along very slowly. I will make no objection, however, this afternoon, as I desire to accommodate the Senator from Indiana, but I shall insist after to-day that we give our undivided attention to this bill. It will be economy of time. I understand the Senator from Texas [Mr. COKE] has given notice that he will in the morning hour to-morrow make some remarks on the President's message; otherwise I should move to take up this bill immediately after the morning business to-morrow; but I appeal to the Senate to go on with it as rapidly as possible after to-day.

Mr. VEST. I am willing to sit it out now, so far as I am concerned.

Mr. VOORHEES. If the bill is passed over informally, my colleague will take the floor at 2 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. PLATT. Unless the Senator from Texas should conclude to change the time of making his speech. If he concludes not to make his speech to-morrow, I shall ask that this bill be taken up at the close of the morning business, or at the conclusion of his speech if that be earlier than 2 o'clock.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE] has the floor, and the bill is laid aside informally.

GENERAL SHIELDS'S SWORDS.

Mr. VEST. I ask unanimous consent to take up a bill to purchase of the widow and children of the late General Shields, formerly a member of this body, certain swords. The measure passed the House some days ago for the benefit of his family. He left a farm in Missouri, and his widow is supporting herself and family on a small pension granted under a special act of Congress. His widow after struggling along for some years finds it necessary to sell the swords which were presented to her husband by two different States for his distinguished military services. The House of Representatives has passed the bill unanimously. It has come to the Senate and has been reported from the Committee on the Library, and I ask the Senate to take it up and pass it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. What is the Calendar number?

Mr. VEST. It is Order of Business 689, being the bill (H. R. 3796) to purchase of the widow and children of the late General James Shields certain swords.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri asks that the Senate proceed to the consideration of this bill. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 3796) to purchase of the widow and children of the late General James Shields certain swords.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF MARION, IOWA.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to call up Order of Business 661, being Senate bill No. 1795. It will take but one moment. It is a local bill.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 1795) for the relief of the First National Bank of Marion, Iowa.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Finance with amendments, in line 7, to strike out "January" and insert "October;" in the same line, to strike out "eighty-one" and insert "eighty;" and in line 18, after the word "Provided," to insert "however;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized to pay, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $450 to the First National Bank of Marion, Iowa, as interest from October 1, 1880, to January 1, 1883, on United States 4 per cent. coupon bonds Nos. 205 and 22703, for $500 each, and Nos. 16847, 22136, 22138, and 5442, for $1,000 each, the coupons representing the interest of said bonds for the period above indicated having been destroyed while detached from the bonds and in the custody of the United States postal authorities: Provided, however, That a satisfactory bond of indemnity shall be filed with the Secretary of the Treasury before said payment shall be made.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MONUMENT TO GENERAL JOSEPH WARREN.

Mr. HOAR. I ask the consent of the Senate to proceed to the consideration of Order of Business 695, being Senate bill No. 2392.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 2392) for the erection of a monument to the memory of General Joseph Warren, who fell at the battle of Bunker Hill.

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President, I desire to be permitted to say a word in regard to this bill.

I shall not undertake to repeat in this presence the pathetic and tender story of the life and death of General Warren. He was perhaps the most brilliant figure in that great group which comprised Otis and John and Samuel Adams, of the early Massachusetts patriots, in the era which preceded and accompanied the opening of the Revolutionary war. He graduated at Harvard College, a man of fine education, of a noble and inspiring eloquence, and of the very highest professional attainments. He threw himself with all the zeal of an ardent nature into the cause of the Colonies, and his influence was one of the chief forces which prepared the American people for the war of the Revolution.

He was engaged as a volunteer in the battle of Lexington and had received the commission of major-general from the Continental Congress. He was not dispatched by the commander-in-chief to take possession of Bunker Hill, but directly on hearing the prospect of an engagement he went there as a volunteer. Colonel Prescott, who was in command of a large part of the forces on that day, knowing the superior rank of Warren, tendered him on the ground the command. Warren declined, saying that he preferred to serve as a volunteer under Prescott. As he was on his way to the spot a friend who knew him well told him he never would leave the battle-field alive, to which Warren replied: "Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori. I go; if I do not return, so be it."

It is well known that he fell in the hottest of the engagement. His figure, spotless, noble, brave, has been a perpetual inspiration to the youth of the American Republic. Two years after his death the Continental Congress passed a vote to erect a monument to General Warren, which is recited in the preamble of the present bill. That vote has remained the sole monument to his memory. It has not been the custom of the people of Massachusetts to ask of the Congress of the United States aid in commemorating their heroic dead. The manuments on Bunker Hill and Lexington, the statues of the Adamses and of Otis, have been erected by the people of the State or of the town or of the neighborhood where those monuments are erected; but it has seemed to me that it would be almost putting ignominy on the country if after this resolution of the Continental Congress the monument to Warren should be erected without national aid.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

Mr. SPOONER. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7264) for the erection of a public building at Bridgeport, Conn.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with an amendment, in line 11, before the word "thousand," to insert "and fifty;" and in line 20, before the word "thousand," to insert "and fifty;" so as to make the bill read:

That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to purchase, or otherwise provide a site, and cause to be erected thereon a substantial and commodious building, with fire-proof vaults, for the use and accommodation of the post-office and for other Government uses, at Bridgeport, Conn. The site and building thereon, when completed upon plans and specifications to be previously made and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall not exceed in cost the sum of $150,000; nor shall any site be purchased until estimates for the erection of a building which will furnish sufficient accommodations for the transaction of the public business, and which shall not exceed in cost the balance of the sum herein limited after the site shall have been purchased and paid for, shall have been approved by the Secretary of the Treasury; and no purchase of site, nor plan for said building, shall be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury involving the expenditure exceeding the said sum of $150,000 for site and building; and the site purchased shall leave the building unexposed to danger from fire by an open space of at least 40 feet, including streets and alleys: Provided, That no part of said sum shall be expended until a valid title to the said site shall be vested in the United States, nor until the State of Connecticut shall cede to the United States exclusive jurisdiction over the same, during the time the United States shall be or remain the owner thereof, for all purposes except the administration of the criminal laws of said State and the service of civil process therein.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. SPOONER. I move that the Senate insist on its amendment, and ask for a conference between the two Houses on the disagreeing votes thereon.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the President pro tempore was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. SPOONER, Mr. MORRILL, and Mr. PASCO were appointed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT FORT WORTH.

Mr. COKE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 1974) for the erection of a public building at Fort Worth, Tex.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LIFE-SAVING STATION.

Mr. SAULSBURY. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 1856) to establish a life-saving station on the Atlantic coast between Indian River Inlet, Delaware, and Ocean City, Md.

There being no objection, the bill was considerad as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT TALLAHASSEE.

Mr. PASCO. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 1083) for the erection of a public building at Tallahassee, Fla.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with an amendment, in line 4, after the word "purchase," to insert "acquire by condemnation or otherwise provide;" so as to read:

That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to purchase, acquire by condemnation, or otherwise provide a site for, and cause to be erected, a suitable building, with proper fire-proof vaults therein, for the accommodation of the courts of the United States, post-office, land office, internal-revenue offices, and other Government offices, at the city of Tallahassee, Fla. The site and building thereon, when completed, upon plans and specifications to be previously made and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall not exceed the cost of $75,000, nor shall any site be purchased until estimates for the erection of a building which will furnish sufficient accommodations for the transaction of the public business, and which shall not exceed in cost the balance of the sum herein limited after the site shall have been purchased and paid for, shall have been approved by the Secretary of the Treasury; and no purchase of site nor plan for said building shall be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury involving an expenditure exceeding the sum of $75,000 for site and building.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

NATIONAL ARMORY WORKSHOP.

Mr. DAWES. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 5639) for erecting of a fire-proof workshop at the National Armory.

There being no objection, the bill was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT DETROIT.

Mr. PALMER. I ask for the consideration of the bill (S. 2442) to increase the appropriation for the public building at Detroit, Mich.

By unanimous consent the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. By it the amount heretofore fixed as the limit of cost for the erection of a public building by the United States Government at Detroit, Mich., is increased to $1,500,000.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Mr. MORGAN. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 5062) for the erection of a public building at Birmingham, Ala.

There being no objection, the bill was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

OREGON RAILWAY AND NAVIGATION COMPANY BRIDGES.

Mr. SAWYER. I ask for the consideration of the bill (S. 2601) authorizing the construction of railroad bridges across the Snake River and across the Clear Water River, by the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FLORIDA LIGHT-HOUSE.

Mr. CALL. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 735) making an appropriation for the erection of a light-house on Dog Island, Florida.

By unanimous consent the bill was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with an amendment, in line 6, to strike out the words "Dog Island" and insert "the high land (mainland) to the westward of Crooked River;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the sum of $40,000 be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the erection of a light-house on the high land (mainland) to the westward of Crooked River, in Franklin County, Florida, said amount to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. CALL. The title should be amended.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The proposed amendment to the title will be reported.

Mr. FRYE. Was the committee's amendment adopted?

Mr. CALL. Yes; but the title should be amended.

Mr. FRYE. Very well; let the title be amended to follow the amendment that was made in the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. The amendment, in line 6, was to strike out "Dog Island" and insert "the high land (mainland) to the westward of Crooked River."

Mr. FRYE. Let that be the title.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill making an appropriation for the erection of a light-house on the high land (mainland) to the westward of Crooked River, Florida."

BESSIE S. GILMORE.

Mr. SHERMAN. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 352) for the relief of Bessie S. Gilmore.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill has been previously considered as in Committee of the Whole and read at length, and an amendment agreed to. Are there further amendments to the bill as in Committee of the Whole?

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the bill be read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be read as amended.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to redeem United States 5 per cent. coupon bond No. 38712, for $1,000, act of July 14, 1870, with interest thereon from the 1st day of August, 1876, to the 12th day of August, 1881; also one United States 5 per cent. coupon bond, No. 54191, for $500, act of July 14, 1870, with interest thereon from the 1st day of August, 1876, to the 21st day of May, 1881; also one United States 5 per cent. 10-40 coupon bond, No. 28253, for $500, act of March 3, 1864, with interest thereon from September 1, 1876, to July 18, 1879, in favor of Bessie S. Gilmore, who claims to have been the owner thereof on September 14, 1876, at which time it is alleged they were stolen from her, and who further claims they were afterward destroyed by the thief or thieves, upon the said Bessie S. Gilmore furnishing to the Treasury Department a bond of indemnity in double the amount of the face of said bonds, with good and sufficient sureties, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to secure the United States against loss or damage in consequence of the redemption of said bond.

Mr. COCKRELL. When the bill was up before the question was as to whether parties who owned United States coupon bonds which had been destroyed had the right to go into the Court of Claims to sue upon them. I still adhere to the opinion I expressed then, but there may be some doubt in regard to it. The doubt arises from the fact that Congress has provided that in the event of the loss or destruction of bonds certain proofs and a certain mode of procedure shall take place in the Treasury Department, and that may possibly be considered as an exclusive provision.

Mr. HOAR. I should like to call the attention of the Senator from Missouri to the fact that these bonds were lost some fifteen years ago. I suppose, therefore, the remedy in the Court of Claims must have long ago been barred.

Mr. SHERMAN. At any rate there is no remedy there. They have no right to sue.

Mr. HOAR. I am taking the theory of the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. COCKRELL. If six years have expired, I presume as a matter of course the remedy would not exist, because the limitation is six years after the right of action accrues.

Mr. HOAR. I suppose in a great many of these cases of loss of bonds Congress would not be willing to give a remedy so soon as six years, because the chances that the bonds would turn up would be very much greater.

Mr. COCKRELL. I make no further objection. I simply wanted to state the view that I take of the matter. I think there is no question but that a United States bond may be sued on in the Court of Claims, but there is a limitation upon it. As to destroyed bonds, I am not certain that that principle would hold; the other provision might exclude it.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MONUMENT TO GENERAL WILLIAM LEE DAVIDSON.

Mr. VANCE. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of Order of Business 687, Senate bill 1097.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 1097) to provide for the erection of a monument to the memory of Brig. Gen. William Lee Davidson.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

TENNESSEE RIVER BRIDGE AT CHATTANOOGA.

Mr. HARRIS. I ask the Senate to proceed at this time to the consideration of Order of Business 804, being House bill No. 1076.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 1076) authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee River at Chattanooga, Tenn.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

The first amendment was, in section 3, line 29, to strike out "Secretary of War" and insert "Light-House Board;" so as to read:

Provided, That said draw shall be opened promptly upon reasonable signals for the passage of boats or vessels; and said corporation shall maintain at its own expense, from sunset to sunrise, such light or other signals as the Light-House Board shall prescribe.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 5, line 5, to strike out "Congress" and insert "the Secretary of War;" in line 6, after the word "act," to insert "or the entire removal thereof;" and in line 8, after the word "expense," to insert:

If any litigation shall be necessary for the purpose of enforcing the requirements of the War Department as to altering said bridge or removing the whole structure, the same shall be had in the circuit court of the United States within whose jurisdiction the bridge or any part thereof is located.

So as to make the section read:

SEC. 5. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act so as to prevent or remove all material and substantial obstructions to the navigation of said river by the construction of said bridge is hereby expressly reserved; and any alteration or change that may be required by the Secretary of War in the bridge constructed under this act, or the entire removal thereof, shall be made by the corporation or party owning or controlling the same at its own expense. If any litigation shall be necessary for the purpose of enforcing the requirements of the War Department as to altering said bridge or removing the whole structure, the same shall be had in the circuit court of the United States within whose jurisdiction the bridge or any part thereof is located. If the construction of said bridge shall not be commenced within two and completed within four years after the passage of this act, all privileges conferred hereby, and this act, shall become null and void.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. HARRIS. I move that the Senate insist on its amendments, and ask a conference with the House of Representatives on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the President pro tempore was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. VEST, Mr. SAWYER, and Mr. HARRIS were appointed.

REVENUE-CUTTER FOR CHARLESTON.

Mr. FRYE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Order of Business 666, House bill 1818.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 1818) for construction of a revenue-cutter for Charleston, South Carolina, in maintenance of the service, to replace the United States revenue-cutter McCulloch.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROBERT C. MURPHY.

Mr. FAULKNER. I ask unanimous consent to take up Order of Business 918, Senate bill 1533.

By unanimous consent, the bill (S. 1533) for the relief of Robert C. Murphy was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides for the payment to Robert C. Murphy, late United States consul at the port of Shanghai, China, $490.68, the amount found due the United States from William Knapp, junior, late United States vice-consul at Shanghai, China, and charged to the account of Murphy in his final settlement as United States consul at that port.

Mr. SPOONER. At the time this bill was reported by the Committee on Claims the claimant was ill and was supposed to be dying with some cancerous affection. I am told by one of the clerks at the desk that he has seen some statement in a newspaper within a day or two of his death. I suggest that the bill go over, under the circumstances.

Mr. HOAR. The chairman will permit me to suggest that this is a very hard case, as our committee saw; and, instead of having any further delay, why not say "pay to him or his legal representatives?"

Mr. SPOONER. Very well; let the bill be amended by inserting the words "or his legal representatives."

Mr. FAULKNER. There is no doubt of his right to relief; but to make matters safe it is well to insert the amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In line 4, after the name "Robert C. Murphy," it is proposed to insert "or his legal representatives;" so as to read:

That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to pay to Robert C. Murphy or his legal representatives, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill for the relief of Robert C. Murphy or his legal representatives."

DANIEL B. WASHBURN.

Mr. HOAR. I ask that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Order of Business 860, being Senate bill 839.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 839) for the relief of Daniel B. Washburn.

The preamble recites that Daniel B. Washburn, of Milford, Mass., received, in his capacity of administrator of the estate of William McFarland, late of Milford, from the assistant treasurer of the United States, the sum of $1,193.94, being the amount, on the 4th day of June, 1885, due to McFarland from the United States on pension certificate No. 304382; that Washburn in good faith paid out of that amount of money the sum of $1,055.50 in payment of the debts due from the estate, and expenses of administration of the same, and for a head-stone placed at the grave of McFarland; and that Washburn has since the payment been compelled to refund the $1,193.94 to the assistant treasurer of the United States. The bill, therefore, proposes to direct the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to Washburn $1,055.50.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

MILITARY ACADEMY APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. ALLISON. I move to take up House bill 6894, being the Military Academy appropriation bill.

Mr. PLATT. The Senator moves to take it up. I suppose he asks unanimous consent. He does not wish to leave it the unfinished business.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask unanimous consent.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 6894) making appropriations for the support of the Military Academy for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask that the few amendments of the Committee on Appropriations be acted on as they are reached in the reading of the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That will be the course if there be no objection.

The Secretary proceeded to read the bill.

The first amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 2, in lines 27 and 29, to strike out the brackets inclosing the proviso.

Mr. ALLISON. The proviso there is inserted in brackets. The brackets should be struck out. The amendment is merely to strike them out.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That amendment will be agreed to, if there be no objection.

The reading of the bill was resumed.

The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, after the word "blotting-pads," in line 82, to insert "and;" and in line 83, after the words "rubber bands," to strike out "and so forth;" so as to make the clause read:

For stationery, namely, blank-books, paper, envelopes, quills, steel pens, rubbers, erasers, pencils, mucilage, wax, wafers, folders, fasteners, rules, files, ink, inkstands, type-writers, pen-holders, tape, desk-knives, blotting-pads, and rubber bands, six hundred dollars.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in line 232, at the end of the clauses making appropriations for extra pay of enlisted men, to insert the following proviso:

Provided, That the extra pay provided for by the seven preceding paragraphs shall not be paid to any enlisted man who receives extra-duty pay under existing laws or Army regulations.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 11, line 238, after the word "For," to strike out "gas, coal," and insert "gas-coal;" so as to make the clause read:

For miscellaneous and incidental expenses: For gas-coal, oil, candles, lanterns, matches, chimneys, and wicking for lighting the Academy, chapel, library, cadet barracks, mess-hall, shops, hospital, offices, stables, and riding-hall, sidewalks, camp, and wharves, $3,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, after the word "supplies," in line 281, to insert "for the departments of instruction of the Military Academy;" so as to make the clause read:

Provided, That all technical and scientific supplies for the departments of instruction of the Military Academy shall be purchased by contract or otherwise, as the Secretary of War may deem best.

The amendment was agreed to.

The reading of the bill was concluded.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

R. S. STANLEY.

Mr. WALTHALL. I ask the Senate to take up for consideration House bill 6291.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 6291) for the relief of R. S. Stanley, postmaster at Booneville, Miss. It provides for the payment of $88 to R. S. Stanley, on account of money sent from the post-office at Booneville, Miss., in a registered-package envelope, to the postmaster at St. Louis, Mo., and which was burned en route from Booneville, Miss., to St. Louis, Mo.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PURCHASE OF A SWORD OF WASHINGTON.

Mr. EVARTS. I ask to call up Order of Business 866, being the bill (S. 2564) authorizing and directing the Secretary of War to purchase from Miss Virginia Tayloe Lewis a sword of Washington.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The preamble recites that General George Washington, by the provisions of his will, bequeathed to certain of his relatives the several swords of which he died possessed; and that among these is the sword which is of exceeding historic value, as that worn by him upon the occasion of resigning his commission at Annapolis and at his public receptions while President. The bill, therefore, proposes to direct the Secretary of War to purchase from Miss Virginia Tayloe Lewis, a direct descendant of George Lewis, the devisee under the will, she being the present owner, the sword for the sum of $20,000.

Mr. COCKRELL. I think that is a very expensive sword. Is there any identity of that sword absolutely?

Mr. EVARTS. It is a sword that was very useful to the United States in the time it was used by its former owner, and in that relation it has its value. As a matter of barter and sale it has not any very great value. It is one of the five swords mentioned by General Washington and bequeathed to various of his kindred. The first one is that which is said to have been presented to General Washington by Frederick the Great with the message that it was a present from the oldest general in the world to the greatest general in the world. That is owned by the State of New York, which purchased it, with some papers and items of consideration, for the sum of $20,000.

This is brought now to the attention of the United States, and the sum named in the bill is the price that was fixed by this representative of the legatee of the sword. Its authenticity and its relation to the great event of the surrender of Washington's commission and its use by him as President at his receptions is not disputed. It is represented in historical pictures.

The Committee on the Library did not feel at liberty to cheapen this sword. If anybody was to cheapen it, it was not to be done by the United States of America; and the only proposition that we lay before Congress is whether the United States shall become the owner of this sword. If we do not become its owner, it will be offered to such other patriotic organizations as may desire it, or to such lovers of signal and valuable relics as have abundant property to acquire it at this price. It is not to be had at any other price, and the single question for this committee was whether the United States should possess it, and should possess, if they could possess, it at the price at which it could be bought, and not cheapen it in reference to any of the acquisitions of other people.

Mr. COCKRELL. I understand the question to go a little further, and I hope the Senator will not insist on a vote upon this bill this evening. The Senate is not full, and I shall be compelled to call for the yeas and nays on it. I do not think it is right; I think it is an extravagant price.

Mr. HOAR. Will the Senator permit me to remind him that we have to-day agreed to purchase General Shields's swords for $10,000?

Mr. COCKRELL. I beg pardon, we have not passed any such bill to-day.

Mr. VEST. Will my colleague allow me to say that we provided that the cost to the United States should not exceed the actual cost of the swords.

Mr. HOAR. Which is $10,000.

Mr. VEST. I do not know that it is; but $10,000 is the maximum fixed.

Mr. COCKRELL. There is no pretense that the value of this sword is $100 even. If this had been such a sword as those of General Shields, and there had been a first cost which gave them intrinsic value, it would be a different matter.

Mr. EVARTS. Now, Mr. President, I would say to the Senator from Missouri and his colleague that nobody supposes that in buying the Shields swords we were buying them as salable swords, that we could realize by putting them in the market. The question of the brilliants upon them constitute no part of the desire or of the duty of the people of the United States to possess those swords any more than any other collection of brilliants; but as to this sword, it was mentioned to us that it might be sold to others when broken up into brilliants, and so realize its value.

Does any one wish to apply any test or measure to this sword of Washington? I have stated very distinctly that the owner of it, a descendant of the legatee, values this sword at this price. If we buy it we buy it because we desire to have the sword, not that we desire to give $20,000 or $10,000. Unless it is in a certain sense inestimable, we should not buy it at all. It has no relation of money to us. It is because it was the sword of Washington that we buy it, and we buy it of an owner who states the price at which we can buy it. It is not for the benefit of the vendor, nor because of any condition of hers respecting it. If we are to have it, we are to buy it at this price; if not, it is to find richer and more patriotic possessors than the United States.

Mr. VEST. As a matter of course we all know such swords have no commercial value. It is my duty to put myself on record, having favored the bill for the purchase of General Shields's swords, as I can not vote for the purchase of this sword at the price named. This sword is not known to have been used in action by General Washington. We have erected monuments which we hope will endure as long as time to the memory of Washington. We propose to erect a monument for his mother. We have also a proposition before us to construct an avenue to Mount Vernon to be named after him. In every sort of way the American people have tried to evidence their veneration, not to say respect, for the memory of Washington.

I do not see that we are called upon to do anything which would indicate that we have occasion for this sword at the price proposed. If the heirs want to make this sale, we do not propose to pay $20,000 for it. That is all.

Mr. VOORHEES. Mr. President, I would just as soon vote to pay $100,000 for this sword as any other sum. It is not a question of money. The Government is not here speculating or saving money. There is no question of price. This is the sword that General Washington wore upon his person when, after the close of such a career of glory as no other man had in the world, he surrendered his commission at Annapolis, and bowed his lofty head to the civil authorities of his Government. It is cheap at any price, I care not what price. To talk about drawing the line between $1,000 or $10,000 or $20,000 has no meaning to my mind. This is a plain, long blade of steel, with a plain silver handle and guard. I have not seen it; but it is hallowed with such associations as belong to no other man in human history. It was worn by the man to whom Frederick the Great sent his sword, inscribed "From the oldest soldier in Europe to the greatest general in the world"—a man who had not only achieved the liberties of his own country but set a pattern for mankind.

I deem it an honor and a privilege without question to vote for this appropriation, and the more so because this sword is in the hands of the lineal blood descending from Washington's veins.

I suppose, Mr. President, I stand in critical review all the time of the men who vote narrowly, and as they say economically, but as I say with mean parsimony, on questions of this kind. It has never occurred to me that there was extravagance in preserving the relics of those who have done more for human progress, for civil and religious liberty, than anybody else.

I was glad to concur in the purchase of the swords presented to General Shields. I knew General Shields well. He had fought with distinguished courage and capacity in two wars. I have stood at the head of the western stairway of this wing of the Capitol and talked with him by the hour about that picture of the battle of Chapultepec, where he stands with his arm in a sling, where Quitman rides up to him; and certainly while it would give me pleasure to vote in committee, when it comes from the committee of which I am a member, as well as a Senator, to pay his family for swords voted to him by two great States, the States of Illinois and South Carolina, it gives me more pleasure still to vote for a measure which gives to the ownership and custody of this Government that relic, combining the greater career and the obedience to civil authority which distinguished Washington's unapproachable and unparalleled name. I am astonished that there should be opposition to it.

As I said before, Mr. President, we are not speculating, nor are we drawing the lines upon prices. I have had some experience in purchasing pictures while a member of the Library Committee. I was at one time chairman of that committee. There is a historic value; intrinsic value there is none. Will it be said that I concurred in the purchase of the swords of General Shields because they had brilliants in the handles of them or because they had diamonds upon them, as I understand they have? I understand (whether well informed or not I do not know) that the sword voted to him from South Carolina cost $5,000 or $6,000. I care nothing about that. This Government is not a junk-shop. It is neither buying nor receiving in pawn things because of their value, but because of their associated glory in the cause of the Government in its progress and its honor.

I shall, without any hesitation, vote to sustain the report of the committee and pay the sum proposed for this most sacred relic that I know of coming down from Washington. We have his clothes, we have his camp-stools, we have his iron bedstead, but we lack at last that relic which represents the very spirit of our Government, the union of military glory with obedience to civil law.

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President, the junior Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] spoke of the honor which has been already paid to Washington by the erection of a monument and to the proposed honor by the naming of an avenue to his dwelling-place after his name, but everybody knows that to a soldier the sword is the peculiar emblem of his personal glory and greatness. The loss of the sword in battle is regarded as the peculiar misfortune of a great soldier. It is a thing which he will give his life to save, even if he is saving nothing else. I suppose the sword of Washington is the one single relic on the face of this earth which all mankind would agree to prize as the most sacred and valuable——

Mr. COCKRELL. How many of them are there?

Mr. KENNA. Will the Senator from Massachusetts allow me to ask him a question in that connection?

Mr. HOAR. When I have got through I will answer the question. I would rather complete my statement first.

Mr. KENNA. Very well.

Mr. HOAR. I suppose that this sword which Washington wore upon his person in what is embodied as the greatest act of his life, in the laying down his military character which appears in historical paintings, is the one single relic on the face of this earth which all mankind would agree to recognize as the most valuable, sacred, and precious. Take the sword of the Black Prince, the sword of Napoleon, the crown of every emperor or king or queen who ever reigned, with the great Kohinoor diamond in its front, and bring them all together in a pile, let their money value be measured by millions upon millions, and they have not that sacredness, that true worth, in the hearts of the American people or the lovers of popular rights everywhere which this single relic that is offered to us now has.

We proposed to buy this afternoon the swords of General Shields for the sum of $10,000, or thereabouts. It is true we measured those two swords by their cost; we understood that was the value; but did it make a particle of difference in the vote of any Senator whether those two swords of that gallant warrior were adorned with brilliants and cost the States which presented them to him this large sum, or whether they were simply swords which could have been bought for two or three dollars apiece? I suggest to the Senator from Missouri to put his ideas about the value of this sword into a practical shape and to move to amend by striking out "$20,000" and inserting "seven dollars and a half" in the bill, which of course would be according to the logic of his speech.

Mr. KENNA. I do not want to disturb the Senator, but I should like to ask him a question.

Mr. HOAR. I will answer the Senator's question now.

Mr. KENNA. I wish to ask the Senator if it is not a fact that the battle-sword of General Washington, the sword which accompanied him in more active engagements, which followed him throughout the fortunes of the Revolution more than all other swords, came to this country as the gift of a citizen of my own State more than forty years ago, without price and without cost, and that it is now among the precious relics of the Government?

Mr. HOAR. There is another sword of Washington in the possession of the Government.

Mr. KENNA. And that was a gift in days of higher patriotism than those which demand cost for such relics.

Mr. HOAR. I suppose it was a gift, which was very proper. I suppose if any person owned this sword who could afford it he would be glad to make a similar gift to the country; but this is a case of a lady of near kindred and blood to George Washington, who is in straitened circumstances, who is not asking for charity, and the country would not permit her to give this sword to it as a gift. The relatives of Mr. Jefferson were persons in wealthy circumstances, and they presented us with the writing-desk on which he wrote his Declaration of Independence, and we celebrated its reception by a solemn ceremonial in this Chamber; but this is the important sword of Washington. It is the first sword in value of those which he left to his kindred.

If you talk about the money value, there are forty Barnums who would give twice the sum now proposed for this sword if this lady should offer it to them for sale. I suppose there are one hundred millionaires, men of wealth, in the principal cities of this country, who would buy it as a matter of ornament for their drawing-rooms or libraries at a larger price. The State of New York, it has been said, gave $20,000 for the Frederick the Great sword which they possess, accompanied, it is true, by other relics of value.

Mr. EVARTS. Not of nominal value.

Mr. HOAR. But those were not of nominal value. It seems to me that this sword is fixed at a moderate price, and that it would be a disgrace to the nation itself to let it pass into the market.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, I had not the slightest idea of causing the bursts of eloquence we have heard in regard to this subject. I thought that I had distinctly said I would be willing to go to any reasonable extent to evidence my veneration and that of the people whom I represent for the memory of Washington.

But, sir, if there ever was an illustration of the truth of the Latin maxim tempora mutantur it is given in the lecture which I have received from the Senator from Massachusetts. Whenever Massachusetts rises to such illimitable heights of magnificent generosity as we have heard here this evening, it will change the estimate the people of this country have always had of the thriftiness and canniness of her people in the way of bargains.

I have never said one word here to justify the rebuke of the Senator from Massachusetts, that I should offer seven dollars and a half for this sword. I simply have said that this price was enormous. If we propose now, as both the Senator from Indiana and the Senator from Massachusetts have indicated, that in our action here we are to show our estimate of the services of George Washington to this country, let us make the price of this sword $10,000,000; yes, as the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. RANSOM] suggests to me, $100,000,000, and then the people of the United States could not in dollars and cents fix before the people of the world their estimate of his great character and achievements.

Who has brought this sword here as a matter of commerce? One of the heirs and descendants of Washington is willing to take money for this priceless relic, of which we have heard so much. When they enter into the domain of trade, when they come and ask us as the representatives of the people for so much money as the price of this article, what right have they or their advocates here to complain that we simply wish to fix a moderate and reasonable estimate upon what we are to pay for? That is all of it, and I do not propose to be driven by any lectures of this sort into voting $20,000 for what I conceive not to be worth that amount.

In the case of General Shields the amount was fixed at what the swords cost, not to exceed $10,000, to be given to his widow, who today is attempting to carry out his will, which requested the education of his children, and she is compelled, forced, coerced to sell these swords, which she has treasured as long as she could, in order to get money for that purpose, and that alone. This is all I care to say about the matter.

Mr. REAGAN. Mr. President, as we shall perhaps have a yea-and-nay vote on this subject, I prefer saying a word before the vote is taken.

The memory of General Washington is enshrined in every American heart. The American people have done everything that they could to testify their gratitude, their respect, and their veneration for him, and if there are other acts which they could do to testify their appreciation of his great character no doubt they would be prepared to perform them.

Now we are asked to add to the evidence of our respect and veneration for General Washington by making commerce of this sword of his. It is said that it is in the hands of his descendants, interested in his fame. They certainly ought to be as much interested as other American citizens. If they feel that proud interest in his fame which most American citizens should feel, they would never have asked money for that sword, but would have proudly tendered it, to be placed where it could be of most service as a relic and a memento of the past. But we are asked to testify our respect, our admiration, our veneration for the character of Washington by entering into a commercial dicker for one of his swords!

His principal sword we are advised has been for thirty or forty years in the possession of the Government. It seems to me that there is something in our Americanism that has changed very seriously in the last thirty or forty years. Once we knew how to testify our respect for men and to pay them honors without money. Now it seems that the measure of all honors to be bestowed has to be in dollars and cents. We have come down to vulgar materialism in everything, and we are asked to testify gratitude, respect, esteem, confidence by dollars and cents. The time was when noble, manly sentiments guided our respect, and when the expressions of respect and esteem and confidence counted for something more than filthy lucre.

Instead of giving $20,000 for this sword I regard it as not creditable to the descendants of General Washington to offer to sell it for a price in money, and I shall vote against the bill at whatever price proposed.

Mr. EVARTS. Mr. President, I think I have presented this matter in such a form as should at least have saved this lineal descendant of the legatee named by Washington as the possessor of this sword from the opprobrium that has been cast by the observations of the Senator from Texas. I stated distinctly that it was not a question of traffic, and when any one proposes to give the law of charity or of beneficence for other people, it is well to take into consideration the control of their own affairs that persons thus possessing it should have.

There is but one question, whether we will buy this sword at the price at which it is now offered to this Government. It can be disposed of, I have no doubt, in other directions; but it would miss its proper depositary and would pass over the preferred purchaser, as it seems to me.

When, therefore, it is said that one patriotic representative of one line of General Washington's collateral kindred has presented a sword, so much to their credit and so much for us that we accepted it and honored it enough to take care of it. Now, it is presented to us in a different point of view, and it is for us to say yes or no, whether we will not become the owner of this sword of General Washington. Otherwise we can not become the owner of it. If we now take it we do become its owner.

It is nothing to say that neither have we been ready to measure our admiration by any expenditures that we have made, nor that money can ever estimate or measure it, or that we are willing that money should estimate our homage and duty. It is simply a transaction of this kind, that this sword having been transmitted under circumstances of a family which permitted them to keep it they are no longer able to keep it, and they offer it to the Government for $20,000; and it is for us to say, by voting one way or the other, whether we will take the sword or not.

ADMISSION OF DAKOTA.

Mr. BROWN. I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

Mr. PLATT. Will the Chair lay before the Senate the unfinished business?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The unfinished business will be laid before the Senate.

The SECRETARY. "A bill (S. 185) to provide for the admission of the State of Dakota into the Union and for the organization of the Territory of Lincoln."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Georgia moves that the Senate adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 5 o'clock and 53 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Thursday, April 12, 1888, at 12 o'clock m.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, April 12, 1888.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting the supplementary report of the United States surveyor-general for New Mexico on the private land claim No. 116 in the name of Antonio Martinez; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Private Land Claims, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, presented a memorial and joint resolution of the General Assembly of Iowa, in favor of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States limiting the ownership of land in this country to persons owing allegiance to the Government of the United States; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[Memorial and Joint Resolution No. 2.]

Whereas it is the first duty of governments to adopt such policies as will best promote the growth of national power and insure prosperity to the nation and its citizens; and

Whereas one of the means necessary to secure these results permanently is that the lands of a nation should be owned and possessed by its citizens exclusively, that the income therefrom may be added to the aggregate wealth of the nation; and

Whereas large amounts of the land of the nation are owned and controlled by citizens of foreign nations, who owe no allegiance to our Government, the income from such lands increasing the wealth of other nations, and the continuance of this evil will result in the introduction of foreign systems of landlordism, thereby oppressing the labor interests of our nation: Therefore, be it

Resolved by the house (the senate concurring), That the ownership of lands within the limits of any State or Territory of the nation by non-resident aliens is an evil threatening the prosperity of the nation, and vitally affecting the interests of the citizens.

Especially is this true of those who seek to secure homes on the public domain.

And we respectfully ask our Senators and Representatives in Congress to endeavor to have submitted to the States for their action thereon an amendment to the national Constitution providing that non-resident aliens shall not own, possess, or control, either individually or as a member of any company or corporation, any land or real estate within the limits of any State or Territory of the nation, and for the equitable extinguishment of all titles now held by non-resident aliens who shall continue to be such after the expiration of six years after the adoption of such amendment.

Resolved, That the secretary of state be instructed to transmit a certified copy of this preamble and resolution to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

Approved April 3, 1888.

I hereby certify that the foregoing memorial and joint resolution passed the senate and the house of representatives of the Twenty-second General Assembly of the State of Iowa and was approved by the governor.

[SEAL.] FRANK D. JACKSON,
Secretary of State.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, presented the petition of the Typographical Union of Ottumwa, Iowa, praying for the passage of the Chace international copyright bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. FAULKNER. I present the following memorials against the passage of Senate bill 2083, and in favor of continuing the Bureau of Animal Industry as at present organized, and to strengthen, without changing, the plan of the work; and opposed to the creation of a board of commissioners to control the work now intrusted to the Bureau of Animal Industry under the supervision of the Commissioner of Agriculture:

D. C. Hood and 43 other citizens of Alabama.
J. S. Appling and 52 other citizens of Arkansas.
L. G. Wilson and 83 other citizens of Dakota Territory.
H. J. Davis and 70 other citizens of Florida.
A. G. Gowen and 174 other citizens of Georgia.
A. B. Smith and 72 other citizens of Kentucky.
E. W. Pelton and 61 other citizens of Kansas.
W. L. Shaw and 59 other citizens of Louisiana.
Mason Smith and 105 other citizens of Michigan.
Calvin O. Allen and 145 other citizens of Missouri.
W. K. Green and 15 other citizens of Maine.
J. W. Grayson and 58 other citizens of Mississippi.
Caleb Bates and 43 other citizens of Massachusetts.
J. F. Talbott and 94 citizens of Maryland.
W. E. Kirsch and 53 other citizens of Minnesota.
David Witcher and 19 other citizens of New Hampshire.
S. W. Salmon and 180 other citizens of New Jersey.
C. G. Breed and 25 other citizens of New York.
E. N. Hodgin and 29 other citizens of North Carolina.
S. D. Kerr and 28 other citizens of Ohio.
John Brown and 170 other citizens of Oregon.
H. D. Taylor and 53 other citizens of Pennsylvania.
D. A. Stewart and 20 other citizens of Tennessee.
H. Black and 205 other citizens of Texas.
George S. Simpson and 87 other citizens of Utah Territory.
Henry Blake and 90 citizens of Vermont.
John Spears and 34 other citizens of Wisconsin.
W. T. Noll and 29 other citizens of West Virginia.

A bill on this subject being now before the Senate, I move that the memorials lie on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. FAULKNER. I also present the following petitions from citizens of the District of Columbia, in favor of the passage of Senate bill 1408, to authorize the Independent Automatic Portable Gas Works, of Washington, D. C., to construct gas-works, lay down pipes, manufacture and sell gas, and for other purposes;

The petition of John McDermott, Charles Mades, Hoadley & Page, J. J. Appich, John Fegan, and 110 others;

The petition of J. A. Smith, R. L. Main, W. W. Chambers, John F. Green, J. E. Sickles, and 100 others;

The petition of John W. Dyer, A. J. Sandford, J. W. Dickerson, J. A. Hagerty, E. J. Gibbons, A. G. Long, and 408 others;

The petition of James E. Horton, Schwing & Clark, Edward Kolb, John Sherman, jr., Gleason Brothers, and 212 others; and

The petition of George F. Vennum, L. D. Webb, C. W. Holl, and 42 others.

I move that these petitions be referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. VEST. I present the memorial of Edwin Silver and others, members of the bar of the western judicial district of Missouri, remonstrating against the passage of House bill 1604, fixing a term of the United States circuit court for the western district of Missouri on the first Monday of March in each year. The bill is pending before the Committee on the Judiciary, and I move the reference of the memorial to that committee.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CULLOM presented the petition of Isaac N. Herold, late a private in Company A, Sixth Illinois Cavalry, praying that he be granted a pension; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of 44 citizens of Charleston, Ill., members of the Charleston Gun Club, and others, praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of Typographical Union No. 74, located at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Ill., praying for the passage of the Chace bill providing for an international copyright; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. BUTLER. I present a letter from William Roach, president of the Charleston Port Society, inclosing a resolution passed by that society in regard to sending a training ship to Charleston Harbor. I move the reference of the communication and accompanying resolution to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HALE presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Knox County, Maine, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PADDOCK presented a petition of 19 citizens of Dakota County, Nebraska, and a petition of 19 citizens of Idaho Territory, praying for the passage of a bill providing payment for Indian depredations committed on the frontier; which were referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SHERMAN presented the petition of George A. Taylor, Command No. 8, Union Veterans' Union, of Lima, Ohio, praying for the passage of House bill No. 5662, to grant pensions for service in the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps of the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WALTHALL presented the petition of S. T. Nicholson and 76

other citizens of Madison County, Mississippi, praying for an increase of the pay of fourth-class postmasters; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. DAVIS presented a petition of citizens of St. Cloud, Minn., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Northfield, Vt., praying for the passage of Senate bill 548, to increase pensions of widows and minor children in certain cases; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PALMER presented the petition of Hiram A. Burt, praying for the reference to the Committee on Claims of the papers in the matter of the claim of the heirs of William A. Burt, reported adversely in the Forty-ninth Congress, new evidence having been discovered; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented the petition of Austin Burt and other heirs of the late William A. Burt, inventor of the solar compass, praying Congress to grant compensation to them for the use by the Government of that invention; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented a petition of Typographical Union No. 81, of Bay City, Mich., praying for the passage of the Chace bill, providing for an international copyright; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. SAWYER. I present various petitions from ex-Union soldiers and sailors of Wisconsin, numbering about 200, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill. I move the reference of the petitions to the Committee on Pensions.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CAMERON presented a petition of citizens of Strasburgh, and a petition of T. D. Thomas, of Lehighton, all in Pennsylvania, praying for the repeal of that portion of the internal-revenue law which classes druggists as wholesale liquor dealers, and for the reduction of the tax on distilled spirits; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CHACE presented two petitions of printers and other employés in the Ledger office, Philadelphia, Pa., praying for the passage of the international copyright law; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PAYNE presented nine petitions, signed by 739 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of the State of Ohio, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BROWN presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of the city of Atlanta, Ga., praying that an appropriation be made for the continuation of the work on the military post now being constructed near that city; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. DANIEL presented additional papers to accompany the bill (S. 2673) for the relief of Elizabeth Gaskins; which were referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. EVARTS presented a memorial of the Chamber of Commerce of New York, requesting an adequate appropriation for the improvement of Buttermilk and Gowanus Bay Channels in the New York City Harbor; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of 30 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Elbow, Warren County, New York, and a petition of 29 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Auburn, Cayuga County, New York, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. COCKRELL. The Committee on Military Affairs, to which was referred the bill (S. 1151) to remove the charge of desertion now standing on the rolls of the War Department against John Miles, late of Company C, Fifteenth Regiment Michigan Volunteers, have instructed me to report the same back to the Senate, and recommend that the committee be discharged from its further consideration, as the Secretary of War has already granted the relief proposed in the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be postponed indefinitely, if there be no objection.

Mr. COCKRELL. The Committee on Military Affairs, to which was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 58) donating useless cannon and muskets to the "Guilford Court-House Battle-Ground Association," of North Carolina, have instructed me to report it back adversely with a recommendation that it be indefinitely postponed. The Senator from North Carolina [Mr. VANCE] may possibly want it to go on the Calendar.

Mr. VANCE. Let it be placed on the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The joint resolution will be placed on the Calendar with the adverse report of the committee.

Mr. COCKRELL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2016) for the relief of William Wolff, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. BATE, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 4082) for the relief of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Alabama, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. FRYE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 532) to repeal sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 9 of the act of Congress approved June 10, 1880, entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to the immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes," asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Finance; which was agreed to.

Mr. FRYE. I am also directed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1545) for the relief of captains, pilots, engineers, and mates of steam-vessels, to report it adversely.

Mr. COCKRELL. Is there a written report?

Mr. FRYE. There is not.

Mr. BATE. I ask that the bill be placed on the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be so ordered, if there be no objection.

Mr. FRYE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2605) relating to the anchorage of vessels in the port of New York, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2506) for the establishment of a light-house, fog-signal, and day beacon in the vicinity of Goose Rocks, Fox Island Thoroughfare, Maine, reported it with an amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2477) granting the right of way to the Mobile and Birmingham Railway Company, the successor to the Mobile and Alabama Grand Trunk Railroad Company, across the Mount Vernon Arsenal reservation, in Mobile County, Alabama, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs; which was agreed to.

Mr. WALTHALL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1379) to increase the pay of chaplains in the United States Army, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2135) for the relief of Richard W. McMullin, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. DAVIS, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills and joint resolution, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills and joint resolution were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 1461) to correct the military record of Michael Healy, late of Company C, Eighth New Hampshire Infantry Volunteers;

A bill (H. R. 166) for the relief of William Thompson;

A bill (S. 2279) to provide for supplying the national cemetery near Fort Scott, Kans., with water; and Joint resolution (S. R. 64) authorizing the Secretary of War to sell and convey to the Minneapolis, Sault Ste. Marie and Atlantic Railway Company certain portions of the military reservation at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Mr. CAMERON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom were referred the following bills, submitted adverse reports thereon; which were agreed to, and the bills were postponed indefinitely:

A bill (S. 955) to amend the record of the Eleventh Regiment Rhode Island Volunteers in regard to the services of Capt. Amos C. Weeden;

A bill (S. 1201) to restore Chaplain C. M. Blake, United States Army, to rank and pay;

A bill (S. 1753) to muster Edward G. Pendleton as lieutenant of infantry into the service of the United States, and pay him for his services from August 31, 1861, to July 10, 1864, inclusive; and

A bill (H. R. 2465) for the relief the heirs of John F. Shorter.

Mr. VEST, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2199) authorizing the Little Rock and Alexandria Railway Company to maintain and construct a bridge across Bayou D'Arbonne, in Louisiana, reported it with amendments.

Mr. SPOONER, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1363) for the relief of John A. Lynch, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs; which was agreed to.

FOURTH VIRGINIA COLLECTION DISTRICT.

Mr. KENNA. I am instructed by the Committee on Commerce unanimously to report back the bill (S. 2613) to amend an act approved June 15, 1882, changing the boundaries of the fourth collection district of Virginia, and to ask that it have immediate consideration.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to amend the act of June 15, 1882, so that it shall read:

That the district of Newport News shall comprise all the waters and shores from the point forming the south shore of the mouth of the Rappahannock River, along the coast of the Chesapeake Bay, to Back River light-house; thence to a point south of Old Point Comfort midway in the channel of Hampton Roads; thence in a southwesterly direction to Pig Point light-house; thence along the south shore of the James River to a point on the peninsula formed by the James and York Rivers opposite Williamsburgh, and thence across said peninsula to the south bank of the York River, so as to embrace in said district, in addition to the ports heretofore included, Hampton and Newport News; in which Newport News shall be the port of entry and Yorktown a port of delivery.

SEC. 2. The district of Norfolk and Portsmouth to comprise all the waters and shores within the State of Virginia southward of the district of Newport News, as above described, and not included in the districts of Petersburgh and Richmond; in which Norfolk and Portsmouth shall be the sole port of entry and Suffolk and Smithfield the ports of delivery.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

TAMPA COLLECTION DISTRICT.

Mr. FRYE. I am instructed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1721) establishing a customs-collection district in Florida, to be known as the collection district of Tampa, and for other purposes, to report it with amendments.

Mr. CALL. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill just reported by the chairman of the Committee on Commerce. I think there will be no objection to it, and it is a matter of very great urgency in the public interest that it should be passed at an early day. There is a line of steamships trading there; there are extensive importations, and there are no proper conveniences for their business.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 1721) establishing a customs-collection district in Florida, to be known as the collection district of Tampa, and for other purposes.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

The amendments were, in section 2, line 4, to strike out the words "and below" and insert "to and north of;" in line 5, after the word "coast," to strike out "immediately below" and insert "north of;" and at the end of the section to add "and midway between Manatee Bay and Peace River and Charlotte Harbor;" so as to make the section read:

That said district shall include the territory south of a line immediately north of Anclothe Key light-house, running easterly across the peninsula to Indian River, and thence south to a point opposite to and north of Charlotte Harbor, and thence westerly across the peninsula to the coast north of Charlotte Harbor, and midway between Manatee Bay and Peace River and Charlotte Harbor.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

IMPROVEMENT OF BROAD CREEK, DELAWARE.

Mr. VEST. I am instructed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2123) to authorize the removal of an obstruction to the navigation of Broad Creek, in the State of Delaware, to report it favorably with amendments.

Mr. SAULSBURY. I ask the unanimous consent of the Senate that that bill may be considered at the present time.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

The first amendment was, in section 1, line 6, after the word "company," to strike out the word "or" and insert "and;" so as to read:

That the bridge over Broad Creek, a navigable stream upon which improvements have been made by appropriations authorized by Congress, erected and maintained by the Delaware Railroad Company and its lessee, near the town of Laurel, in the State of Delaware, is hereby declared to be an obstruction to the navigation of said Broad Creek and detrimental to the commerce thereof.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 2, line 2, after the word "company," to strike out "or" and insert "and;" and in line 15, after the word "company," to strike out "or" and insert "and;" so as to read:

That the Secretary of War is hereby directed to serve upon the said Delaware Railroad Company and its lessee, in the manner prescribed by the laws of the State of Delaware for the service of papers upon corporations, a notice in writing, requiring said company or its lessee, within three months from the time of such notice, to remove said obstruction by placing in said bridge and maintaining therein a draw of sufficient width and dimensions to admit the free and easy passage of all steam-boats and other vessels navigating said stream, and in case of refusal or neglect of said railroad company or its lessee to place in said bridge a suitable draw, as required by the aforesaid notice, the Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to cause a draw to be placed therein, and the cost and expense of such draw shall be a legal charge against the said railroad company and its lessee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

OHIO CONNECTING RAILWAY COMPANY BRIDGE.

Mr. QUAY. I ask the unanimous consent of the Senate at the present time to take from the Calendar the bill (H. R. 3215) to authorize the construction of the Ohio Connecting Railway Company Bridge.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill indicated by him.

Mr. HARRIS. Is it a bill just reported or a bill on the Calendar?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It is on the Calendar.

Mr. HARRIS. The morning business is not yet concluded.

Mr. QUAY. I ask for unanimous consent, if there is no objection.

Mr. HARRIS. I do not propose to object, but I suggest to the Senator that to wait a few minutes until the morning business is concluded would be a little more orderly.

Mr. QUAY. If there is no objection, I should like to have the bill considered now.

Mr. HARRIS. I do not object.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill; which was read.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. I desire to inquire whether the bill contains the usual reservation of power in Congress to amend, alter, or repeal. I did not notice such a provision read at the desk.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The proviso to section 6 will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

Provided, That if the construction of said bridge shall not be commenced within one year, and completed within four years after the passage of this act, all privileges conferred hereby, and this act, shall become null and void.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. I think there should be an amendment of the bill.

Mr. QUAY. This is a House bill, and I would prefer not to have it amended.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. In all such bills there should be a provision that the power is hereby reserved to Congress to amend, alter, or repeal the act.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator from Iowa propose an amendment?

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. It is the uniform practice to incorporate such a provision in a bill of this character, and I think it ought to be put in this bill. I move to amend by adding as a new section the following:

SEC. 7. That Congress shall have power at any time to alter, amend, or repeal this act.

Mr. QUAY. I have no objection to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. QUAY. I move that the Senate insist on its amendment, and request a conference with the House of Representatives on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the President pro tempore was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate; and Messrs. SAWYER, FRYE, and VEST were appointed.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. CALL introduced a bill (S. 2672) to enable the Secretary of the Interior to locate Indians in Florida upon lands in severalty; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. DANIEL (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2673) for the relief of Elizabeth Gaskins; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 2674) authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near the city of Nebraska City, Nebr., and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. FAULKNER introduced a bill (S. 2675) granting an increase of pension to Lieut. James R. Durham; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2676) granting an increase of pension to Capt. Francis M. Work; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PALMER (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2677) granting a pension to Jane Reilly; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BUTLER introduced a bill (S. 2678) to divide into six classes the employés in the railway mail service, and to fix the salary of each class; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. FARWELL introduced a bill (S. 2679) granting a pension to Luman N. Judd; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 2680) releasing the estate of Asher R. Eddy, late lieutenant-colonel and quartermaster-general, United States Army, deceased, and George W. Gibbs and R. L. Ogden, sureties on his official bond; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

PAPERS WITHDRAWN AND REFERRED.

On motion of Mr. PALMER, it was Ordered, That all papers referring to the claim of the heirs of William A. Burt now in the files of the Secretary of the Senate be withdrawn therefrom and referred to the Committee on Claims.

On motion of Mr. BLACKBURN, it was Ordered, That leave be granted to withdraw from the files of the Senate the papers in the case of John F. Kranz, subject to the rules.

On motion of Mr. HARRIS, it was Ordered, That the petition and papers of Collin Adams be taken from the files of the Senate and referred to the Committee on Claims on the conditions imposed by the rules.

JOHN FRUCHIER.

Mr. STEWART. I submit the following resolution, and ask for its present consideration:

Resolved, That the Secretary of State be directed to transmit to the Senate a copy of the correspondence in his Department in regard to the case of John Fruchier, an American citizen, who has been impressed into the military service of France, and also to inform the Senate what other cases of similar character have been called to the attention of his Department.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. STEWART. I wish to say that Fruchier is a citizen of my State. He is a native of France, who was naturalized in the United States, and he was impressed into the French military service some two years ago. I understand that there are other cases of this kind, and that the French Government takes the position that it will dispose of these cases through its judicial department, but does not dispose of them. I take this method of calling the attention of the Senate to it. The State Department has, I understand, called the attention of the French Government to several of these cases.

It seems to me that it is certainly a great hardship to our citizens when they visit the place of their nativity to be impressed into the military service after having been naturalized in this country. I see no reason why the French Government should do it, for there are very few Frenchmen who are naturalized in other countries and who return to France. It can not affect their military service materially, and it is certainly a matter that this Government ought to look after, and it ought to protect its citizens so far as possible.

My object in offering the resolution is to get the papers before the Senate so that they may be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, to see if anything can be done.

The resolution was agreed to.

ENGINEER IN CHARGE OF ELEVATORS.

Mr. CHANDLER submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms be, and hereby is, authorized and directed to appoint an additional assistant engineer to be in charge of elevators; and that his salary be paid out of the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate.

FLORIDA LAND TITLES.

Mr. CALL. I offer the following resolution, and ask for its present consideration:

Resolved, That it be referred to the Committee on Public Lands of the Senate to inquire whether it is essential or advisable for the protection of actual settlers on the public lands of the United States in the State of Florida, which have been heretofore patented or certified to others than actual settlers improvidently and without authority, that suits shall be brought by the United States to cancel such patents; the committee to report by bill or otherwise, and further report such other legislation as may be necessary for the protection of actual settlers on the public lands of the United States in the State of Florida, and for the settlement of the titles to the public lands in the possession of such settlers.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. COCKRELL. It is simply for reference, is it not? Let it be referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Public Lands, if there be no objection.

Mr. CALL. I ask for the adoption of the resolution, if there be no objection.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If there be no objection to the consideration of the resolution, the question is on agreeing to it.

Mr. CALL. Before that motion is put I desire to submit a very few observations upon it.

Mr. CAMERON. Is it in order to call up a bill now?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Florida has the floor.

Mr. CALL. I will give way to morning business.

Mr. CAMERON. It is not morning business. It is a bill on the Calendar which I should like to have passed.

Mr. CALL. If the Senator will wait I shall be through in a short time.

Mr. CAMERON. All right.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President, I have heretofore addressed the Senate on the subject of this resolution, and I desire to make a very few remarks in order that the facts regarding it may be presented in proper form.

There are a great many cases of hardship in the State of Florida which have been reported to me. I suppose I have one hundred letters representing cases of poor people who are resident upon the public lands in the State of Florida, which have not been conveyed by any law of the United States, with a perfect right under the laws to their land, a homestead right, a right of entry. Some of these letters are from soldiers of the Union Army, and others are from citizens of the different States who have settled upon this land and improved it.

By various maladministrations of the Department and of the land laws these people are left without a remedy. It is true they can sue in the courts of the United States, but that is a practical denial of justice. No poor man can go into the courts for a little entry of 40, 80, or 160 acres of land. If he had the money he could not afford to pay the costs; and the only redress for him is in the proper execution of the laws by the Department, and in cases where they have decided adversely to him in a plain case, by a suit brought by the United States to set aside the error of the executive officer of the United States and his violation of the laws.

I have in my hand the papers in the case of a man named Durisoe, who lived for years upon a part of a naval reservation. My former colleague, Mr. Jones, secured the passage of a law allowing the settlers on that reservation to enter the lands occupied and claimed by them, giving them the preference in the right of entry, and then exposing the remainder of the reservation to public sale and to homestead settlement, reserving the right of entry for those who had improved the land and were in possession or occupancy of them.

In the case of Mr. Durisoe, he had filed, as these papers show, an application for a homestead entry. He had been upon this land for many years. He had grown a family of children there. He had expended his and his children's labor for years in making valuable improvements upon it. Notwithstanding the law securing to him the prior right of entry, notwithstanding it was passed for the purpose of protecting these people in their occupation and their improvements, this man was deprived, by a fraudulent sale of these lands in violation of the act of Congress, of his property and a patent issued in the last hours of the administration to an alleged purchaser of the property while his homestead application was pending. Surely there can be no two sound or even plausible opinions as to the right of this man under this law and under these facts either to homestead or enter by cash entry his home and his improvements.

I applied to the Interior Department to bring suit to cancel and set aside this manifestly void patent, and the reply was that the United States have no interest in this property; the title has passed to another person; it does not matter by what fraud, it does not matter by what violation of law or by what absence of law in an officer of the United States, they have no longer any interest in this property, and we can not advise a suit. That is the attitude of the Interior Department as disclosed in the letter which I shall ask leave to publish.

Now, I wish to say that that proposition is unreasonable, without any authority of law, and is an outrage and a robbery of this poor man, committed by the officers of the Government under color of law but without the authority of law. This is only one of hundreds of like cases, and I am almost persuaded that the poor citizen of the United States without the backing of wealth and influence is the victim of all Departments of the Government, and there are none where his rights can be protected.

I am asking now of this body that they will hear the complaints of these people, that they will investigate them, that they will provide such legislation as will enable the poor man to be protected in the rights that Congress has given him, whatever they are. They are unable to sustain the expense of a lawsuit for a small piece of land, and it is an effectual denial of justice to these hundreds of people of all parties, from all the States of the Union, who are settlers upon these fraudulent and void land grants and who are the owners of these lands although patents have been issued wrongfully to others and in violation of law. What shall Congress do in respect to these wrongs to the people who appeal to them for protection in their rights? What shall Congress do in reply to the appeals of these houseless and homeless men, with their families, when they are informed by them that the land given to them by the laws has been and is being taken away from them in the interests of claimants who have neither law nor pretense of law in their favor—nothing but an executive order made without authority of law? I insist that unless the legislative department of the Government has lost all its rightful authority and power, and has become the mere creature of executive will, it will assert its power and duty to protect these people in their rights.

The magnitude of this evil will be appreciated when I state that of the thirty-odd million acres of land in the State of Florida formerly belonging to the public domain there are but 7,000,000 left of the whole area, and these 7,000,000 acres are claimed, and perhaps a very large proportion of them will pass under the swamp and overflowed land-grant act of 1850 properly, but all the high and dry lands in the State have been selected, leaving the Everglades and the low lands outside. I make no complaint of this. I have no objection to make against the confirmatory act of 1857, nor of the reservations that have been heretofore made, except in the cases where they interfere with some actual settler, some family of poor people who have gone upon high and dry lands, never swamp and overflowed, and whose possessions and labor of a lifetime and whose homes have been taken away from them in violation of law and without the opportunity of redress on their part.

These are the people whom I seek to defend and protect in their homes and in whose behalf I ask Congress to take present and immediate action. I have here in my hand a map showing the line of the old Pensacola and Georgia Railroad, along the line of which a reservation was made without authority of the State in 1856. The railroad was never built, the charter was repealed, the corporation became defunct in 1869, and yet this reservation is retained by the Interior Department in favor of another railroad company, whose road, as this map shows, is built on another and different line; and the people continue to be deprived of their homes by this executive gift of the public domain. As an instance of this defiance of the authority of Congress I read the following notice:

LAND SALE.

The Florida Railway and Navigation Company, having completed their road to Plant City, are now offering for sale all their lands north of township 29 as fast as they can be graded. These lands are sold by order of the United States court, and deeds made by a commissioner appointed by that court.

For prices and terms apply to the undersigned agents of the company for Hillsborough and Polk Counties.

HEAD & YOUNG, Plant City, Fla.

MAY 28, 1887.

It seems almost incredible that there is no statute of the State of Florida and no word in any statute which gives any right to or any interest in this grant of 1856 to this railroad company, and that the internal-improvement act under which they pretend to claim has been repealed; yet these people openly sell the homes of the settlers and the land of the people of the United States.

Now, Mr. President, I shall not say any more upon this subject at this time. If there is no objection, I will insert in the RECORD a letter from the Senator from Vermont [Mr. EDMUNDS] disclosing some important facts in this case in regard to some settlers who applied to him, and I will print also the letter of the Department in reference to the case of Mr. Durisoe, and I ask now for the passage of the resolution.

The letters are as follows:

UNITED STATES SENATE, Washington, D. C., November 29, 1884.

DEAR SIR: A person named James Mooney, the brother-in-law of a young lady here who has taught French in my family, and for whose welfare in her hard struggle for the maintenance of herself and her family I feel an interest, removed last year to Florida with his wife, mother-in-law and a young child, on the alluring but deceitful representation of some land company that he was going to get a good title to some land to settle on for a very small price. Disappointed when he got there, in that he bought out a squatter's claim and established himself on the west half of the northeast quarter section 9, township 25 south, range 21 east, in Hernando County, where in the woods he has built himself a house and has lived ever since. He has been told by land sharks down there, who profess that some antique railroad grant is going to be revived and that it will cover this land, that he must now pay sundry large sums of money in advance in order to secure his claim to this land under what they claim to be the railroad right.

In this state of things I beg you to inform me—

First. Where is the land-office in Florida at which a homestead claim to this land should be filed?

Second. The name of the land officer to whom application should be made.

Third. I should be thankful in the interest of these poor people if you will send me, if you have them, a set of blanks and instructions for the proper and formal making of a homestead claim.

I suppose, of course, that if Congress should ever revive that old grant the claims of actual settlers will be provided for and respected, but it is evident that the railroad speculators intend to squeeze the settlers who have been enticed there if they get the opportunity, and I wish to devote myself so far as I can to preventing it.

Respectfully, yours,

GEO. F. EDMUNDS.

Hon. N. C. MCFARLAND,
Commissioner of the General Land Office, Interior Department.

SENATE CHAMBER, Washington, April 20, 1885.

SIR: I beg to inclose herewith duplicate letter of James Mooney, of Fort Dade, Hernando County, Florida, inclosed to me and addressed to you, on the subject of his claim of homestead entry in that county and as therein described, he appealing from the decision of the local land officers in refusing him his homestead entry, their point being that the lands are claimed by the Florida Railway Navigation Company or some of its successors.

I have had reason, as a matter of kindness and charity, to look into this matter and others of a like kind there, and I trust that some way can be found to protect the honest settlers on those lands. It is proper to say that Mr. Mooney took up this land in the first place under some kind of an understanding with people professing to represent the railway grant, and I have reason to suppose intends to keep faith with them, but the danger of its turning out that they have no title and other dangers connected with the complications of their affairs led me to advise him to make a regular and formal application under the homestead laws, which I understand he has done, and that the papers have been forwarded to the General Land Office on his appeal from the land officer's refusal.

What I beg now to request is that you will direct the Commissioner of the General Land Office to hold the question open on the appeal until my return in the fall, unless there is some urgent public interest otherwise. I will then endeavor to look after the matter.

Respectfully, yours,

GEO. F. EDMUNDS.

Hon. L. Q. C. LAMAR,
Secretary of the Interior.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, March 10, 1888.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of January 8, 1888, inclosing one from Mr. P. L. Durisoe, of Grahamsville, Fla., and requesting that recommendation be made to the Attorney-General to institute suit to secure the cancellation of a patent issued on March 3, 1885, to Julia Cessna, for lot 1, and south half of lot 2, section 24, township 14 south, range 23 east, Gainesville, Fla.

On July 11, 1885, you addressed a letter to this Department containing the same request as to the identical land. That letter was referred to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for report, and on September 5, 1885, a copy of the report of the Commissioner was sent to you, which contained a full history of the case from its inception to the issuing of the patent; and you were informed that, the United States being without interest in the controversy, this Department would decline to recommend the suit as requested. Notwithstanding this action your second letter and that of Mr. Durisoe were referred to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for report and recommendation; and I have the honor now to inclose a copy of the report of the Acting Commissioner, dated January 28, 1888, and also a copy of the former report of September 2, 1885.

On the matters disclosed by your letter, that of Mr. Durisoe and the two reports from the Land Office, I fail to see how the Government could obtain a standing in court in an effort to secure the cancellation of said patent. But it is plain that, if the matters as stated by Mr. Durisoe and detailed in your letter can be substantiated by proof—if the latter is rightfully entitled to the land by virtue of his alleged prior settlement, continued occupation thereof, improvement, and cultivation, and his claim made thereto under the settlement laws, but wrongfully rejected—then he needs no aid from the United States in the manner proposed in order to protect his rights, but would obtain full enjoyment of them whenever he may choose properly to assert them in court.

Entertaining these views, I must decline to make the recommendation asked for by you.

Very respectfully,

WM. F. VILAS, Secretary.

Hon. WILKINSON CALL,
United States Senate.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., September 2, 1885.

SIR: I am in receipt, through reference, for recommendation, of a letter from Hon. WILKINSON CALL, addressed to you, requesting that suit be instituted to set aside certain patents which issued upon entries by Julia Cessna for lot, 1 and south half of lot 2, section 24, township 14 south, range 23 east, Gainesville, Fla.

This land was part of a reservation for naval purposes made by executive proclamation of October 4, 1855.

The act of March 3, 1879, provided that the Secretary of the Navy should certify to the Secretary of the Interior all lands in Florida no longer required for naval purposes, and that thereupon said lands "shall be subject to entry and sale in the same manner and under the same conditions as other public lands," provided that persons who had theretofore improved said lands "shall be entitled to purchase the part or parts so occupied and improved by them within such reasonable time as may be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior."

On March 29, 1880, the Secretary of the Navy released said lands from reservation.

On July 12, 1880, P. L. Durisoe wrote to this office, stating that he had been living for a long time on "Navy land," which he desired to enter, and in reply he was advised by office letter of October 24, 1880, that the land was released from reservation, and was "subject to entry under the pre-emption or homestead laws."

On December 23, 1880, he filed D. S. No. 216 for said tracts, alleging settlement August 1, 1880.

On December 27, 1880, the President issued proclamation No. 864, ordering a sale of certain lands in Florida, including these tracts, on April 21, 1881, and the usual notice to pre-emption claimants was attached thereto, but no notice was given to occupants who were accorded a preference right of purchase under the aforesaid act of 1879.

On January 15, 1881, this office addressed the Department, recommending that the day of sale be also fixed as the limit of the time for payment by said occupants, and on January 28, 1881, the recommendation was approved, and this office directed to instruct the district officers accordingly.

By proclamation No. 865, dated February 8, 1881, the sale was postponed to May 24, 1881, "for the reason that causes which have since arisen render it impracticable to give the notice prescribed by law before the date fixed in the proclamation," and by office letter of March 18, 1881, the local officers were directed to receive all applications under the act of 1879 "where the proof is found satisfactory as to such bona fide occupancy and the purchase-money is paid on or before the day named in the proclamation, to wit, May 24, 1881."

At the time of sale Durisoe was not present, and on the third day of the sale Mrs. Cessna purchased lot 1, and on June 1 following made private cash entry of the south half of lot 2.

On July 9, 1881, Durisoe offered to prove up as a pre-emptor, and his application was rejected by the local officers.

On appeal this office, under date of June 9, 1882, held that he had forfeited his pre-emption right by failure to make proof and payment before the day of sale, but that by making a pre-emption claim he had not waived his right of purchase under the act of 1879 as an occupant, and as he had not been notified of the time fixed by the Secretary, as had been customary in such special cases, the sale of the tracts was irregular and voidable, and a hearing was ordered to determine whether he had occupied and improved the land, as contemplated in said act.

From the testimony taken at the hearing it appears that he has held these tracts, together with lot 14, same section, since 1868, by a purchase of the improvements found thereon, from Lafayette Hawthorn, for $1,050.

He appears to have exercised ownership over these tracts, and for several years rented the tracts under consideration to parties for a share of the crops, but did not reside thereon until after the sale to Mrs. Cessna, since which time he appears to have built a house and warehouse and resided upon the land.

At the hearing an attempt was made to show that Durisoe had knowledge of the sale and of his rights as an occupant, but the local officers excluded the same on the ground that it was beyond the scope of the hearing.

Under date of October 25, 1883, this office sustained Durisoe's right of purchase under the act of 1879, and held Mrs. Cessna's entries for cancellation.

Upon appeal the Department, under date of May 23, 1884, reversed the decision of this office, and on July 2, 1884, suspended operation under said decision for the reason that a motion for review of the same had been filed.

On March 2, 1885, the decision of May 23, 1884, was adhered to, and the order of July 2, 1884 revoked, and on March 3, 1885, patents issued upon the entries by Mrs. Cessna.

The matter seems to have been fully considered by the Department and an award made adverse to Durisoe, and a review of the same denied. I therefore see no reason why the name of the United States should be used to a suit to set aside patents issued in accordance with the rulings of the Department.

Inclosed find the letter forwarded.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM WALKER,
Acting Commissioner.

Hon. L. Q. C. LAMAR,
Secretary of the Interior.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., January 28, 1888.

SIR: I am in receipt, by reference from the Department and direction to "report in duplicate and return papers with recommendation," of a letter from Hon. WILKINSON CALL, dated January 8, 1888, addressed to you, requesting that suit be instituted to set aside certain patents of lands in Florida, and inclosing letter of P. L. Durisoe dated Grahamsville, Fla., December 22, 1887. Both letters are returned herewith.

I would report that the lands in question are those described in private cash entries, as follows:

No. 1607, May 26, 1881, lot 1, section 24, township 14 south, range 23 east.

No. 1618, June 1, 1881, south half lot 2, section 24, township 14 south, range 23 east, as made by Julia Cessna, and that said entries were patented March 3, 1885.

Said entries were involved in contest of Durisoe vs. Cessna, and the whole history of said contest was set forth in letter of Acting Commissioner Walker, dated September 2, 1885, and addressed to Secretary Lamar, a copy of which is inclosed herewith. From said letter it appears that the same was in answer to a similar request of Hon. WILKINSON CALL, and it concludes with "I therefore see no reason why the name of the United States should be used to a suit to set aside patents issued in accordance with the rulings of the Department."

As it appears from the record, Secretary Teller, on May 23, 1884, reversed the decision of this office in said contest, and awarded the lands to Julia Cessna; on July 2, 1884, at the request of Senator Jones, of Florida, for review, he directed suspension of action and a return of the record to the Department, and on March 2, 1885, he adhered to his decision of July 2, 1884, revoked his order of suspension, and returned the record to this office. It is clear that the patents were issued in accordance with the rulings of the Department.

To so much of Senator CALL's letter of January 8, 1888 (above), as states, "Mr. Durisoe has remained in possession, contesting the right of these people, but during the expiring hours of the last administration, and unknown to Senator Jones or any one else, a patent was hastily issued and signed, giving the land to the purchasers at the sale," I would report that it is true that the patents were "hastily issued and signed;" there certainly was no time lost between the date of Secretary Teller's final action, March 2, 1885, and the patenting of the said entries. The only explanation of this, as shown by the records, appears in the following pencilings made on final certificates of each case:

On C. E. No. 1607, appears: "This case made special for patent under Secretary's decision of March 2, 1885, by Commissioner, March 3, 1885. Howes."

On C. E. No. 1618, appears: "This case made special for patent under Secretary's decision, March 2, 1885, by Commissioner. Howes."

From this and the briefing of the accompanying decision above referred to it is evident that Secretary Teller's decision of March 2, 1885, was received in General Land Office on March 3, 1885, and the entries were on same day sent from the pre-emption division ("G") to the division of public lands ("C"); were there approved, and sent to the recorder's division ("B"), where the patent was prepared and signed. While it is evident that unusual haste was displayed by this office in issuing said patents, I am not aware that it would bring any new element in the case that would cause any change of recommendation from that above referred to. I would add, however, that certified copies of the papers showing the briefing and penciling above mentioned could be furnished if deemed necessary by the Hon. WILKINSON CALL.

Respectfully,

S. M. STOCKSLAGER,
Acting Commissioner.

Hon. WILLIAM F. VILAS,
Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. President, I venture to say that the history of the world furnishes no instance of a more palpable violation of law than this correspondence, which quotes the statute "subject to entry and sale as other public lands," then alleges Durisoe's pre-emption "to be valid under the land laws," then alleges that a decision made after a sale pending this pre-emption entry that Durisoe's pre-emption was not good because although he had "occupied and improved" and cultivated and possessed the land, he had not slept upon it, but the sale to a person who had done neither in preference to him was a good sale, and upon this ruling delivers a patent to this third person, and then decides that the Government has no interest which will enable it to bring suit.

Mr. COKE. Mr. President——

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator rise to object to the adoption of the resolution?

Mr. COKE. No, sir.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL MESSAGE.

Mr. COKE. Mr. President——

Mr. CULLOM. Before the Senator proceeds I desire to inquire, in the absence of the chairman of the Committee on Territories [Mr. PLATT], who is not now able to be present, whether or not it is the understanding that immediately after the conclusion of the Senator's address the measure in relation to the Territory of Dakota will come before the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will come before the Senate at 2 o'clock as the unfinished business.

Mr. CULLOM. But I apprehend the remarks of the Senator from Texas will extend beyond that time perhaps.

Mr. COKE I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the resolution of the Senator from Ohio to refer the message of the President.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Texas moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the resolution of the Senator from Ohio, which will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution submitted by Mr. SHERMAN December 19, 1887, as follows:

Resolved, That the President's annual message be referred to the Committee on Finance.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate resumed the consideration of the resolution.

Mr. COKE. Mr. President, we are informed in official reports that on the 1st day of December last a surplus of $55,281,701.19 was lying idle in the Treasury, and estimates in the same reports aver that on the 30th of June next, if present conditions remain, the excess, above all requirements of the Government, of revenue heaped in the Treasury will be $140,000,000. The causes which take this money, for which the Government has no need, from the pockets of the people and the channels of trade, to the enfeeblement of every branch of industry, are continuing and produce more aggravated results each successive year. The surplus in the Treasury on the 30th of June, 1885, was $17,859,735.84; on the 30th of June, 1886, it was $49,405,545.20, and for the year ending the 30th of June, 1887, was $55,567,894.54. It is easy to see that unless the causes producing these results are removed, or greatly modified, it is only a question of time when a calamity, fatally involving all the industrial interests of this country, must follow this withdrawal from the business of the country of so large a proportion of the circulating medium. In view of this emergency, so full of evil portent to the country, the President, in a message to Congress as bold and direct as it is wise and patriotic, urgently recommends such a revision of the tariff, and reduction of the rates of duty on foreign imports, as will reduce the revenue to the limit required for the support of the Government. Taxation for the support of the Government is a just exaction from the people, which they willingly bear. Each individual feels morally as well as legally bound to contribute his quota to the support of a Government which protects him in the enjoyment of life, liberty, and property. No people in the world are more patriotic in responding to the just demands of their Government, for revenue for its support, than are the American people.

While this is true, no people understand the limitations upon the powers of Government better than they, or resent more promptly a deliberate violation of fundamental principles. They do not need to be informed that the system which wrings from them and piles in the Treasury a vast surplus beyond the needs of the Government is confiscation, and not legitimate taxation. Their American reason and instinct tell them this, and the President in demanding a reduction of the tariff to a point where it will produce no more than enough of revenue for the support of the Government is simply voicing a demand which comes from the people of this whole country. A great surplus in the Treasury not required for any governmental purpose invites extravagance, jobbery, and corruption, while it is a standing advertisement of a willful and reckless abuse of the taxing power. No higher duty rests on this Congress than that of revising our tax system and reducing the revenues resulting therefrom to the amount indicated by the requirements of the Government. The surplus in the Treasury can no longer be used in the purchase of Government bonds, as all these have been bought and canceled which were subject to the call of the Government, and others not so subject can only be had by the payment of ruinous premiums. So no other alternative is left than that of so remodeling our tax laws as to prevent the flow into the Treasury of more money than can be paid out in the ordinary administration of the Government. This brings us face to face with the problem, how and in what way taxes shall be so reduced as to accomplish the desired end.

For the fiscal year of 1887 the receipts from customs amounted to $217,286,893.13 and the receipts from internal revenue were $118,823,391.22, the entire revenue of the Government from the sources named and other and miscellaneous sources being $371,403,277.66, while the total of the expenditures of the Government for the year amounted to $315,835,428.12. The receipts from internal revenue are derived from the tax on distilled spirits, malt liquors, and tobacco. These are luxuries, not necessaries. They do not enter into an estimate of things necessary for the support and living of a family. Those who consume them do so as a matter of choice, and not of necessity. The revenues collected from this source go directly into the Treasury, less a small per cent (3.40), which covers the cost of collection and represents the voluntary, unforced contribution of the consumers to the national Treasury. The internal-revenue tax is clear gain to the Treasury. It adds nothing to the cost of food, clothing, shelter, or to any other item of expense of living; on the contrary, helps largely to relieve these of the burdens of taxation, while it operates in some degree as a measure of repression upon the excessive and injurious use of the articles taxed.

What consumer of these products has ever been heard to complain of the tax? Not one that I have ever known. The consumers are willing to pay for the luxury of using these articles, and make no complaint. It is not strange, then, that the President recommends that the internal-revenue or excise tax be retained in undiminished vigor, and that the necessary reduction be made by cutting down and reducing the tariff tax, which is universally denounced by all except those who participate in its bounties as excessive and burdensome to oppressiveness. No article of American manufacture can be named, of the five thousand million of dollars' worth of products shown by the census of 1880 to be manufactured annually, at that time, in this country, and the aggregate is greater now, that is not protected against the competition of the foreign article of the same character, by a duty more or less prohibitory. Secretary Manning in his last report (1886) gives the average of the tariff tax on imported goods at 46.07 per cent. This tax is levied, according to the same report, on 4,182 different articles, embracing every known article of human manufacture.

While the duties collected in our custom-houses on foreign goods imported into this country go into the Treasury, the price to our people of the same articles of domestic manufacture is increased nearly, or quite, to the extent of the duty on the foreign articles. The proportion of foreign goods imported into this country on which the tariff tax is collected and paid into the national Treasury, as compared with the goods of American manufacture consumed by our people, the prices of which are advanced to the extent of the duties imposed on the foreign goods, and which advance goes into the pockets of the domestic manufacturer, and not into the national Treasury, will be seen in the fact that the total value of the foreign goods imported into this country during the fiscal year of 1887, as shown by the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, was only $692,319,768, while, as before stated, as far back as 1880, the products of American manufacture aggregated the enormous total per annum of five thousand millions of dollars' worth. Upon the former sum the Government received the tariff duty at its custom-houses, amounting to a little more than 46 per cent. ad valorem, while upon the latter the duty was received by the manufacturers, who, by means of the tariff, were enabled to mark their goods 46 per cent. higher, before foreign goods would come in competition with them.

The aggregate value of American-manufactured products is estimated now to be $6,000,000,000 worth annually. If we throw off one-half of this amount and thereby reduce it to $3,000,000,000, and take off one-third from the average of the tariff, 46 per cent., bringing it down to 31 per cent.—and surely these deductions will more than cover all that can possibly be claimed should be, for any cause, deducted—it will be seen that while the Government is gathering through the tariff into the Treasury $217,286,893.13, the manufacturers are from the same source receiving $930,000,000, or nearly four times the amount received by the Government. That is to say, for every dollar which goes into the Treasury by the operation of the tariff, within a small fraction of four dollars go into the pockets of the manufacturers.

In round numbers it may safely be said that at the lowest calculation the tariff subjects the American people to a tax of one thousand million of dollars per annum for the benefit of private persons outside of and beyond the amount received into the national Treasury for public purposes. The President in his message, from which I read, states with great clearness and force, through the well-verified figures of the census report, who are the beneficiaries of the tax laid by the tariff upon the American people for purposes other than public or Governmental. He says:

> By the last census it is made to appear that of the 17,392,099 of our people engaged in all kinds of industries 7,670,493 are employed in agriculture, 4,074,238 in professional and personal service (2,934,876 of whom are domestic servants and laborers), while 1,810,256 are employed in trade and transportation, and 3,837,112 are classed as employed in manufacturing and mining. For present purposes, however, the last number given should be considerably reduced. Without attempting to enumerate all, it will be conceded that there should be deducted from those which it includes 375,143 carpenters and joiners, 285,401 milliners, dressmakers and seamstresses, 172,726 blacksmiths, 133,756 tailors and tailoresses, 102,473 masons, 76,241 butchers, 41,309 bakers, 22,083 plasterers, and 4,891 engaged in manufacturing agricultural implements, amounting in the aggregate to 1,214,023, leaving 2,623,089 persons employed in such manufacturing industries as are claimed to be benefited by a high tariff.

So that if these figures be correct, and no one has ever disputed them, out of 17,392,099 people in this country engaged in all forms of industry, only 2,623,089 are claimed to be benefited by the enormous tax of one thousand million of dollars annually imposed on the American people by the tariff, not one dollar of which goes into the national Treasury. In other words, six-sevenths of the people of the United States are made to pay a subsidy of one thousand millions of dollars annually to one-seventh. The total expense of the National Government for the last fiscal year, including interest on the public debt, provision for the sinking fund, pensions, everything, was $315,835,428.12, being less than one-third of the tribute levied upon the people of the United States for the benefit of the manufacturers.

It is estimated that we must reduce the revenues of the Government to the extent of $100,000,000 per annum to avoid the accumulation of a surplus. If this reduction shall be made in cutting down the tariff rather than the internal revenue, it follows conclusively from what has been said, that for every dollar of the stream of revenue now flowing into the national Treasury from the operations of the tariff that shall be cut off nearly four dollars of the tribute being paid by the people to the manufacturers will also be cut off.

While reducing the revenues which go into the Treasury from this source $100,000,000, we will necessarily reduce the burdens upon the people nearly $400,000,000, because for every dollar placed by the tariff in the national Treasury, almost four dollars is poured into the coffers of the manufacturers. The tariff out of which these results grow, and under which we have lived for twenty-five years, is the most monstrous system of taxation in its burdens upon the great mass of the people and its bounties to a small per cent. of the whole that this country in all its history—and I may add any other country in the world—has ever known. It was enacted to meet the exigencies for revenue of a stupendous war which ended more than twenty years ago, and was avowed by its authors at the time of its passage to be only temporary. The idea of saddling it upon the country as a permanent policy, as the debates of Congress show, was not dreamed of when it was passed. Vast revenues, the sinews of war, were needed, and this tariff was enacted to produce them. The change made in the tariff in 1883 was so slight as to amount to nothing, leaving it as it stands to-day, the war tariff. The times and occasion which produced it have passed away. The revenues produced by it are excessive, under changed conditions; yet its modification, its reduction, is resisted with all the power and skill at the command of those who have fattened upon it and are still being enriched by it. These demand protection from foreign competition without reference to revenue. They claim the right to protection per se, and make protection the object and purpose of impost duties, and revenue merely the incident. They claim that for their benefit, although constituting only one-seventh of the population, foreign goods should be virtually kept out of this country by taxation, and they permitted, without competition, to exact of the other six-sevenths of the people their own price for manufactured products. They speak loudly and arrogantly of "our home market," as if the people of this country were their slaves and had no right to buy except from them, and at such prices as they choose to establish. They are resisting at every step and along the entire line any reduction of the tariff, and consequently any diminution of the stream of revenue, not needed by the Government, flowing from the pockets of the people into the Treasury, and propose by extravagant appropriations to prevent its undue accumulation.

The pretext, the pretense, upon which these extraordinary claims and demands are founded is that a tariff with duties so high on foreign imports as to be mainly prohibitory is necessary for the protection of American labor against competition with the pauper labor of Europe. It is for the benefit of the American laborer, say the wealthy manufacturers and monopolists, that we spend money, flood the country with protection literature, and they might truthfully add, become ourselves millionaires, while the laborer grows poorer every day. Upon this proposition the changes are rung in infinite variety. It is not for themselves who are rich, and are every day becoming richer through the tariff, that they labor and lobby, but for the poor laborer, who must be protected against competition with the pauper labor of Europe. The high-tariff protection argument is universally based on the necessity of protecting American labor against European pauper competition. This is all there is of the protection argument, and no effort is made to place it on any other ground. A more false, heartless, and groundless pretext than this was never invented to justify or cover up a great wrong. A clearer case of stealing the livery of heaven to serve the devil in is not to be found in history.

Of the 17,392,099 of our people engaged in all kinds of industry, only 2,623,089 are employed "in such manufacturing industries as are claimed to be benefited by a high tariff." The farmers, persons employed in professional and personal service, domestic servants and laborers, merchants and tradesmen, carpenters and joiners, masons and bricklayers, blacksmiths, tailors, butchers, bakers, plasterers, milliners, and people engaged in railroading, and other forms of transportation, and in other miscellaneous occupations, numbering altogether 14,769,010, the people who perform six-sevenths of the labor done in this country, are thoroughly skinned and fleeced under the operation of the tariff. They are taxed in everything they eat, drink, and wear; in everything that enters into the construction of their houses; in their furniture; in their tools and implements; in everything they handle or touch while living, and in their coffins and grave clothes after their death, they, American laboring people, not engaged in any protected industry and not benefited by the tariff, are thus taxed in all they consume in the name of protection to American labor.

Six-sevenths of our American laborers, groaning and staggering under the burdens of a war tariff which enriches others but impoverishes them, after the war has been over for nearly twenty-five years, are solemnly informed that they must continue to bear the burden for the sake and good of American labor. The axioms of good government, which among other things demand such measures of policy as shall produce the greatest good for the greatest number, have been reversed in the tariff legislation, which taxes oppressively the great mass of the people in order that a few may become inordinately rich, and all is done in the name and is alleged to be for the benefit of the American workingman, who in fact suffers more than all others from it, while his employers, the lords of the loom, and of the foundries and furnaces, have become the richest people in America.

These self-constituted guardians of the laboring man, who have become so sleek and fat, while their wards, the laboring men, are thin and lean, the advocates of a high tariff from pure charity to the American workingman, as they would have us believe, inform the country that the sole purpose for which they desire a highly protective tariff is that they may be reimbursed the difference between the high wages paid American workingmen and the low wages paid European operatives. This, they say, is all they ask or desire. With the difference between American and European wages placed in the shape of a tariff tax on foreign goods brought into our markets, high protectionists tell us they have no fear of the competition of the foreign goods with their domestic products. Always and every time their argument centers in and is based wholly on the interests of the workingman. Capital desires nothing and receives nothing through the tariff, and the workingman gets all, says the protectionist. In order to show the utter falsity and groundlessness of this claim, I read a tabulated statement furnished me from the Bureau of Statistics, which throws a flood of light on this subject, as follows:

Table of specified manufactures, showing amount of capital, value of materials, amount of wages, and value of product, with the per cent. of material and wages, also the average ad valorem rate of duty, on similar importations for the fiscal year 1887.

[Compiled from the United States census of 1880.]

Manufactures.	Capital.	Value of materials.	Total amount paid in wages during the year.	Value of products.	Per cent. of—		Ad valorem rate of duty on imports, 1887.
					Materials.	Wages.
							Per cent.
Cotton manufactures	$219,504,794	$113,765,537	$45,614,419	$210,950,383	53.93	21.62	40.17
Cotton manufactures (specific)	208,280,346	102,206,347	42,040,510	192,090,110	53.21	21.88	*45.49
Glass	19,844,699	8,028,621	9,144,100	21,154,571	37.95	47.95	59.14
Iron and steel manufactures	230,971,884	191,271,150	55,476,785	296,557,685	64.50	18.77	40.92
Hosiery and knit goods	15,579,591	15,210,951	6,701,475	29,167,227	52.15	22.97	†62.80 ‡39.37
Silk and silk goods	19,125,300	22,467,701	9,146,705	40,033,045	56.12	22.84	50.00
Woolen goods	96,095,564	100,845,611	25,836,392	160,606,721	62.79	16.08	67.21
Worsted goods	20,374,043	23,012,628	5,683,027	33,549,942	68.59	16.94
Mixed textiles	37,996,057	37,227,741	13,316,753	66,221,703	56.22	20.11	§54.20
Woolen and worsted goods	116,469,607	123,858,239	31,519,419	194,156,663	63.79	16.23	67.21
Woolen goods and mixed materials	134,091,621	138,073,352	39,153,145	226,828,424	60.87	17.27	§50.70
Woolen goods, mixed materials, and worsted goods	154,465,664	161,085,980	44,936,172	266,378,366	60.47	16.87	§51.31

*Cotton cloths. †Woolen hoisery. ‡Cotton hosiery. §Estimated.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, BUREAU OF STATISTICS, January 25, 1888.

WM. F. SWITZLER, Chief of Bureau.

HON. RICHARD COKE, United States Senate, Washington City, D. C.

The figures given in this table may be relied on as being as nearly perfect in their accuracy as they can be made. They are compiled from the census of 1880, which was taken by Republican officials under a Republican administration; and, as is well known, the reports of that census were, so far as manufacturers were concerned, furnished by the manufacturers themselves in the different branches of manufacture, just as experts in all other forms of industry furnished similar reports. The table embraces the leading articles in the principal manufacturing schedules, and fairly exemplifies the average operations of the tariff. What do these well-verified figures furnished by the manufacturers themselves show? By comparing the per cent. of wages in each of the specified articles of manufacture with the ad valorem rate of duty on similar articles of foreign manufacture, as exhibited in the two right-hand columns of the table, it will be seen that the per cent. of tariff tax or duty on the foreign article is from one and a half to four times as great as the per cent. of wages expended in the manufacture of the domestic product. If, as is unquestionably true, the duty on the foreign article is added to the price of the corresponding domestic product when sold to our people, then the capitalist, the manufacturer, the men who hire and employ labor realize through the tariff from one and a half to four times as much as the laborer receives. They become rich while the laborer remains poor.

Take the article of cotton cloth, the second item in the table just read—wages 21.88 per cent. and the tariff duty 45.49 per cent. A lot of cotton cloth of the prime cost of $100 would represent for the wages paid out in its manufacture $21.88, while the tariff duty on the corresponding foreign article would enable the owner to put the domestic product on the market at $145.49. Again, take iron and steel manufactures. As stated in the table, wages are 18.77 per cent.; duty on the foreign article 40.92 per cent. A lot of iron and steel, or either, of the prime cost of $100, would represent, according to these figures $18.77 for the wages paid out for its manufacture, while the tariff duty on the foreign article of the same quality would enable the manufacturer to sell the domestic product at $140.92.

So with woolen goods and worsted goods—per cent. of wages 16.08, tariff duty on foreign article 67.21. Woolen goods of the cost value of $100 would represent $16.08 of wages paid out for their manufacture, while the tariff duty on the foreign article would enable the owner of the domestic product to price it to customers at $167.21, and so on through the more than four thousand duty-paying articles on the tariff list we find the per cent. of duty on the foreign article, which fixes the price at which the corresponding domestic article is sold to our people, from one and a half to four times, running as high frequently as seven or eight times, as great as the per cent. of wages expended in the manufacture of the domestic product. I repeat that the figures from which these conclusions are drawn were furnished to the officials who took the last census by the manufacturers themselves, and can therefore not be charged to have come from an unfriendly source.

I have before me a table made in 1878 by Hon. H. C. Burchard, then a distinguished member of Congress from Illinois, and afterwards Director of the Mint, and a life-long Republican, which places the per cent. of wages paid out in the manufacture of the following products as follows:

Textiles, 19½; cottons, 22; woolens, 17⅞; silk, 16; steel, 17.

The table furnished from the Bureau of Statistics, which I have commented on, although compiled from the census reports of 1880, it will be seen is almost identical in its statements of the per cent. of wages in manufactured products with that of Mr. Burchard, made two years before the census of 1880 was taken, a fact thoroughly corroborative of its accuracy and correctness.

There is no rule of reason, no principle of right, no consideration of expediency which under any theory of government or political economy, without reference to the question of revenue, would justify, for protection of manufacturers, an average of tariff duties greater than the difference between the wages paid by American manufacturers and those paid by their leading principal competitors in Europe. And it is upon the proposition to so adjust the tariff duties as to enable the manufacturers to pay this difference that the high-tariff people have planted themselves in their discussions of the question before the country. Our first tariff law passed in 1789, with an average ad valorem duty of 8½ per cent., the average raised to 11 per cent. by an enactment of the following year, and in 1792 to 13½ per cent., was confessedly predicated upon the idea of simply making up to our manufacturers the difference between American and European wages, and the successive increases of the average from that day to this simply represent the success which organized greed always achieves through log-rolling processes in legislative bodies. When our early tariffs were passed, our industries were in their infancy. We had neither capital, machinery, nor skilled labor, and were surrounded by all the hard conditions which usually attend infant beginners, yet average duties of 8½, 11, and 13½ per cent. on foreign imports were considered amply protective of our then incipient industries in affording to our manufacturers abundant means of reimbursing themselves for the difference between the high American and low European wages.

Since that time all the conditions have changed. Our industries have grown into the most robust and vigorous maturity. In 1880 it was admitted by the London Times that the aggregate value of American manufactured products exceeded the aggregate of British manufactures by more than one thousand millions of dollars' worth, and the proportion must be much greater now. The concentration of capital in the United States is now confessedly as great as in England, and greater than in any other country in the world except England; and this means that the productive capacity of our people, that is of our labor, is the greatest of any country in the world, and while nominally higher wages may be paid here than elsewhere, that capital reaps a greater reward here than in any other country, because the labor is the most efficient and produces greater results than any other in the world.

In a letter written by Hon. WILLIAM M. EVARTS, then Secretary of State, and now a distinguished member of this body from New York, dated May 17, 1879, transmitting the reports of American consuls on the state of labor in Europe, the honorable Secretary, in an enumeration of his conclusions drawn from these reports, on page 36, says:

> 9. That the average American workman performs from one and a half to twice as much work as the average European workman. This is so important a point in connection with our ability to compete with the cheap manufactures of Europe, and it seems on first thought so strange, that I will trouble you with somewhat lengthy quotations from the reports in support thereof.

The honorable Secretary then proceeds to quote at length from the various consular reports in support of his proposition, and establishes it conclusively. The conclusion of the Secretary is broad and sweeping, and embraces every branch and character of industry. On the same line and in verification of the opinions of Secretary Evarts, I read from the letter of Hon. James G. Blaine, introductory to the report of consuls in Europe on the cotton-goods trade of the world, dated June 25, 1881, when Mr. Blaine was Secretary of State. He said, on page 95:

In commenting on the strikes then imminent in Manchester, Consul Shaw, in the report transmitting the foregoing table, says:

"The plea that the factory operatives are now receiving higher wages in proportion to the time they work than American operatives is urgently made by manufacturers here, and this, together with increasing financial distress among mill-owners, is gradually allaying the discontent among operatives."

Again the honorable Secretary says:

The hours of labor in the Lancashire mills are 56, in the Massachusetts mills 60 per week. The hours of labor in the mills in the other New England States, where the wages are generally less than in Massachusetts, are usually 66 to 69 per week.

Undoubtedly the inequalities in the wages of English and American operatives are more than equalized by the greater efficiency of the latter and their longer hours of labor. If this should prove to be a fact in practice, as it seems to be proven from official statistics, it would be a very important element in the establishment of our ability to compete with England for our share of the cotton-goods trade of the world.

In the two prime factors which may be said to form the basis of the cotton manufacturing industry, namely, raw material and labor, we hold the advantage over England in the first, and stand upon an equality with her in the second. Having the raw material at our doors, it follows that we should be able to convert it into manufactures, all things else being equal, with more economy and facility than can be done by England, which imports our cotton and then manufactures it in her mills. The expense of handling, transportation, and commission must be an important item in this regard as compared with our turning in the fiber from the cotton-fields to our mills and shipping it in the advanced form of manufactured goods. Add to this the secondary fact that it costs us no more to handle and manufacture the same than it costs in England, and we stand on an undoubted equality thus far in the race of competition.

These opinions of Mr. Blaine, as well as those of Mr. EVARTS, both high protectionists, are elaborated in letters exhaustively reviewing the statistics of labor in Europe, furnished by consular experts under their immediate supervision and control. It does seem that the testimony of these great Republican leaders, possessed of the highest and most authentic information, ought to be conclusive as to the point on which they speak. The superior intelligence, alertness, and efficiency of American labor are confessed frankly in Europe, and nobody, either in Europe or America, controverts the fact that in a given number of days' or hours' work the American laborer produces for his employer much greater results than the European laborer. This fact being borne in mind in determining the difference between European and American wages, it will be seen that in many instances the difference is in favor of the European wages. The instance given by Mr. Blaine, in the cotton-goods manufacture, is only one of hundreds that can be cited to the same effect, and it is the deliberate judgment of many thoughtful men who have given great study and investigation to this subject, that judged by its value in the products it turns out and the time for which it is paid, American labor, on an average, is no better paid than the English. Wages in England, whence comes the only competition feared by our manufacturers, are stated by Mr. David A. Wells, and the statement was indorsed as correct by General N. P. Banks, of Massachusetts, and Mr. Burchard, of Illinois, both distinguished Republicans and protectionists, to be lower than the wages paid in the United States by from 25 to 50 per cent.

While I believe this statement utterly disproved by the testimony already read of Secretaries Blaine and EVARTS, and much of other testimony that can be produced, and notably by that of Robert Howard, of Fall River, Mass., an expert of the highest character, intelligence, and experience, and that of William Mather, of Manchester, England, who was in this country on the authority of the royal commission on technical education prosecuting inquiries into the facilities of our people for industrial training, both of whom were examined by the Senate Committee on Education and Labor in 1885, and whose testimony may be found in the third volume of testimony published by that committee, I will for the purpose of this argument assume it to be true. Recurring to the table from the Bureau of Statistics, 21.62 per cent. of the entire cost of cotton manufactures represents the wages paid out for labor expended in the manufacture. If this sum is 50 per cent. greater than is paid in England for the manufacture of the same goods, then one-half of that sum, or, discarding fractions, 11 per cent. of the entire cost of the goods would pay the difference between the American and English wages.

By the same table 18.77 per cent. is represented to be the proportion of wages paid in the manufacture of iron and steel. If this proportion of wages exceeds the proportion of wages paid in England for the manufacture of iron and steel by 50 per cent., then one-half of that per cent., or, discarding fractions, 10 per cent., would pay the difference between American and English wages. The proportion of wages, as shown in the same table, to be paid out in the manufacture of woolen goods, being 16.08 per cent., one-half of that per cent., or 8 per cent. of the value of the goods, would pay the 50 per cent. difference between English and American wages, and so through the tariff-list. It is perfectly clear that a tariff averaging 10 per cent. would abundantly reimburse our manufacturers the alleged difference between American and European wages; a tariff of 15 per cent. average would be highly protective, while a tariff averaging 20 per cent. would pay back to the manufacturer every dollar he pays out for wages, and more, besides equalizing in the matter of interest American with English capital, if not already equal.

If the testimony of two such eminent ministers of State as were Mr. Blaine and Mr. EVARTS, both speaking against the interest of their party and against the policies which, as high protectionists, they advocated before and have advocated since, is worth anything, there can be no question that my conclusions are greatly more favorable to the manufacturers than they should be; and these show that of the 46 per cent. average tax paid by our people under our tariff the American laborer receives at the furthest only 10 per cent., while the manufacturer pockets the other 36 per cent. The laborer who consumes his wages in living, and never has anything left over at the end of the year, while he receives 10 per cent. of the tariff subsidy, finds the cost of his living increased 46 per cent. by the tariff.

It is not wonderful that under such inspiration the men of capital, the employers of labor, the lords of the loom, the factories, and the furnaces should show such ardent sympathy, such burning zeal for the interest of the poor laboring man, who is being cruelly used to pull their chestnuts out of the fire. These men crowd the lobbies of Congress in behalf of high-tariff duties, for the protection of their respective industries, alleging them to be national in their character and public in their nature, demanding the fostering care of the Government to the end that they may be able to pay high wages to American laborers, and after securing through the names and by the influence and for the supposed benefit of the American workingmen a system of tariff taxation which oppresses the whole people they turn insolently upon their dupes, the laboring people, and inform them that their business is their own private affair, that they pay such wages as they please, and if the working people do not like the terms of their employment they can leave; and if the workingmen combine and strike for better wages they are starved into submission. Nor are they less arrogant in dealing with the general mass of the people, other than their employés.

Promising the country that protection shall breed competition and a general cheapening of manufactured products, while giving steady employment and good wages to our working people, they, in defiance of common honesty and common decency, combine into "trusts," destroy competition, limit production, and keep up high prices, regardless of the fact that the working people, in whose name they acquired the power to do it, are the first to suffer by a diminution of wages resulting necessarily from diminution of production. Men who thus conspire against the common good and general welfare are enemies of society, seeking the overthrow of social and industrial order, pirates in trade and commerce, and should be clothed in stripes and conveyed to felons' cells.

Our laboring people combine and strike, but it is for bread; the men who form these "trusts," which are simply enormous monopolies, and are able to form them because the tariff fences out foreign goods, which if admitted would break the monopoly, are simply adding to their millions other millions of which they rob the country.

In estimating the difference between American and European wages, it must be borne in mind that only 4½ per cent. of our manufactured products are made by hand labor, the balance being made by steam and machinery. England is the only country in Europe making the same low per cent. by hand labor, while Austria makes 29 per cent., Italy 34 per cent., Spain 23 per cent., and Portugal 42 per cent. by hand labor.

It is admitted on all sides that we are twenty-five years ahead of the most advanced nations in Europe in mechanical appliances and labor-saving machinery, through which manufactures are so much cheapened. Nor must the fact be overlooked, adverted to a moment ago, that England is the only other country in the world possessing an equal concentration of capital with this. I read on this point from Wealth and Progress, by Mr. George Gunton, a recent publication of great ability and merit, as follows:

In this country and in England, where the concentration of capital is the greatest in the world, the productive capacity per capita is nearly two and a half times that of the average in continental countries, five times as large as that of Italy, Spain, and Portugal, and twelve times that of China and India, and the income per capita is about thirteen times as great as that of India and China, six times that of Italy, Spain, and Portugal, and more than twice that of the average on the European continent, and the general rate of wages in England is ten times that of Asia, and nearly double that of continental Europe, while in this country it is about fifteen times that of Asia, and within a fraction of three times that of the average on the Continent.

The same author says that in India, with wages at 60 to 70 cents a week, the capital invested in production is only about $35 per head of the population. In Russia, with wages at $3.60 per week, it is $190 per capita. In Austria, Italy, Spain, and Portugal, with wages at $3.76, it is $350 per capita. In Germany, with wages at $3.84, it is $540 per capita. In France, with wages at $5, the capital invested is about $1,010 per capita, and in England, with wages at $7.74 per week, it is $1,300 per capita. England lives under absolute free trade, pays the highest wages of any country in the world outside of the United States, and by reason of her concentration of capital and her machinery, in the first of which she is fully equaled and in the last greatly surpassed by the United States, instead of asking protection against the pauper labor of her neighbors, undersells them in their own markets.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HARRIS in the chair). The Senator from Texas will please suspend for a moment until the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business of yesterday.

Mr. COCKRELL. I ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside until the Senator from Texas concludes his remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri asks unanimous consent that the unfinished business be informally laid aside. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the Senator from Texas will proceed.

Mr. COKE. Mr. President, that high wages earned in the intelligent operation of machinery produce much cheaper goods and bring greatly larger returns to capital invested than low wages in hand-made goods or goods made with inferior machinery is one of the propositions demonstrated to be true by the facts I have just read and stated. The fact of payment of high wages is of itself conclusive evidence that the profits of capital are correspondingly high, not that they are made so by a protective tariff, for England has no protective tariff; on the contrary, free trade. England gathers the raw material for her factories from the four quarters of the earth, and buys bread and meat for her operatives from foreign countries, her home supplies being utterly inadequate, and standing in the midst of and surrounded by the pauper labor of Europe, pays wages from double to ten times as great as those paid by her competitors, and maintains in the markets of the world a magnificent supremacy for her manufactured products, while our manufacturers, with the cheapest food in the world at their doors, with raw material of every kind and description lying in marvelous profusion around their factories and furnaces, with machinery admitted to be the most perfect in the world, and laborers the most active, intelligent, and skillful to be found in any country, who accomplish from one and a half to twice as much as European laborers, with their home markets at the doors of their workshops and the protection of 3,000 miles of ocean between them and European labor and competition, cry aloud for protection for American labor against competition with the pauper labor of Europe.

A balder, barer, more transparent pretext than this was never invented to cover up a scheme of plunder and spoliation. The power of concentrated capital and machinery, and the influence of these factors over wages and competition, is illustrated in the difference in wages in the several States of our Union, as in Europe. Mr. David A. Wells on this subject says:

The difference in wages in the same industries in different sections of the United States is well illustrated in the following returns of wages in the iron industries of different States, made under the census of 1880: Unskilled labor in blast furnaces in Virginia, 82 cents per day; in Alabama, 98 cents; in Pennsylvania, $1.09, and in Missouri, $1.29. Skilled labor in iron rolling-mills in Alabama, $2.25 a day; in Massachusetts, $2.70; in Pennsylvania, $3.03; in Ohio, $3.87, and in Kentucky, $4.62. The yearly average wages in the aggregate iron industries of the different sections of the United States is reported as follows: Eastern States, $417; Western, $396; Pacific, $354; Southern, $304.

Mr. Nordhof compiled from the census reports the following tables of yearly earnings in the woolen and cotton industries in the States named:

Connecticut	$335	New York	$285
Maine	320	New Hampshire	280
Pennsylvania	300	Vermont	270
New Jersey	300	Indiana	230
Massachusetts	320	Ohio	196

In cotton industries they are as follows:

New Hampshire	$255	South Carolina	$190
Massachusetts	251	Maryland	188
Rhode Island	250	Georgia	180
Pennsylvania	250	Tennessee	160
Ohio	250	Alabama	160
Connecticut	242	Virginia	150
New York	281	North Carolina	135

The Eastern or manufacturing States of the Union, by reason of their great concentration of capital and machinery, occupy toward the agricultural Western and Southern States the position held by England toward the other states of Europe in the matter of wages and competition. Although paying wages running from 30 to 75 per cent. greater than are paid in the South and West, they scarcely feel at all the competition of these sections with their low wages. We thus see free-trade England and protection-walled America, surrounded by similar conditions as regards capital and machinery, exhibiting results industrially and financially which conclusively show that the influence of a protective tariff in fixing the amount of wages is infinitesimally small. Indeed, Mr. President, the overwhelming weight of testimony shows that if any benefit accrues to the workingman at all from the tariff, it is so small as to be overwhelmed and buried out of sight in the increased cost, by reason of the tariff, of all he and his family must have to live on. No people on earth have ever been so defrauded and humbugged by a delusion and false pretense as have the people of this country by manufacturing monopolists, who, in unbroken chorus for one hundred years, have been demanding high-tariff taxation for the benefit of the American workingman, which when received has been coolly pocketed by themselves, and the poor workingman left to take care of himself as best he may.

The organization of the workingmen into unions, through which they act with a force and power unknown to the disorganized mass, is the cause and secret of the little increase that has occurred in wages in the last thirty years. The concession is made to their power to take care of themselves and to resent injustice by inflicting damage on their employers. It is to their own efforts on this line and not to the tariff that any amelioration in their condition is due. I have before me a table furnished, at my request, by Hon. Carroll D. Wright, Chief of the Labor Bureau, giving a summary of labor strikes in the United States from 1881 to 1886, both inclusive, which shows for the period named 3,903 strikes, in which 22,336 establishments were involved and 13,443 temporarily closed.

It shows that the employés actually engaged in these strikes numbered 1,020,832, and that those actually engaged with others involved aggregate 1,324,402. It shows that the loss to laborers from these strikes amounted to $51,819,163 and to employers $30,731,653. The year 1887 is not included in the table, but the strikes during 1886 numbered 1,412. It shows 2,182 establishments in which lock-outs—that is, expulsion of employés by proprietors—occurred because of their refusal to comply with conditions they deemed oppressive, and 158,548 employés were locked out. These figures speak eloquently of the fierce struggle being made by the American workingman for fair living wages, and of the dogged obstinacy with which his demands are being resisted.

What a commentary they are upon the professions of those who contend for the war tariff, which produces $100,000,000 per annum more than the Government can spend, simply, as they say, to enable them to pay good wages to our laboring people. The profound discontent of which these figures, embracing more than half of all the people laboring in the protected industries, are conclusive evidence, could not exist except in consequence of a deeply exciting cause, and that cause can be no other than the inadequacy of the wages paid for the livelihood of the laborers. What better or more conclusive proof than that furnished by this condition of our laboring people of the utter falsity of the claim that our present high protective tariff is in the interest of American labor. Let Republican Senators who so eloquently describe the wretchedness of the pauper labor of Europe ponder well the condition of American labor as disclosed by the well-verified labor-strike figures I have given; and if still doubting let them turn to the three volumes of testimony on every Senator's table taken by the Senate Committee on Education and Labor in 1885, touching the relations of labor and capital.

They will find in this testimony taken by a committee presided over by a high protective Republican chairman (Mr. BLAIR, of New Hampshire), tales of destitution, misery, and wretchedness among American laborers rivaling in pathos any ever told of pauper labor in Europe. I can not refer at length to this testimony for want of time, but will read from the testimony of Thomas O'Donnell, of Fall River, Mass., commencing on page 451 of the third volume of testimony. I will ask that the Secretary read the paragraphs marked.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Secretary will read as requested.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

Thomas O'Donnell examined.

* * * * * * *

LIFE OF A MULE-SPINNER.

Q. What is your business?

A. I am a mule-spinner by trade. I have worked at it since I have been in this country—eleven years.

Q. Are you a married man?

A. Yes, sir; I am a married man; have a wife and two children. I am not very well educated. I went to work when I was young, and have been working ever since in the cotton business; went to work when I was about eight or nine years old. I was going to state how I live. My children get along very well in summer time, on account of not having to buy fuel or shoes or one thing and another. I earn $1.50 a day and can't afford to pay very big house rent. I pay $1.50 a week rent, which comes to about $6 a month.

Q. That is, you pay this where you are at Fall River?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have work right along?

A. No, sir; since that strike we had down in Fall River about three years ago I have not worked much more than half the time, and that has brought my circumstances down very much.

Q. Why have you not worked more than half the time since then?

A. Well, at Fall River if a man has not got a boy to act as "back-boy" it is very hard for him to get along. In a great many cases they discharge men in that work and put in men who have boys.

Q. Men who have boys of their own?

A. Men who have boys of their own capable enough to work in a mill, to earn 30 or 40 cents a day.

* * * * * * *

ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF A DAY FOR NINE MONTHS TO SUPPORT SIX PEOPLE TWELVE MONTHS.

I have a brother who has four children, besides his wife and himself. All he earns is $1.50 a day. He works in the iron works at Fall River. He only works about nine months out of twelve. There is generally about three months of stoppage, taking the year right through, and his wife and his family all have to be supported for a year out of the wages of nine months—$1.50 a day for nine months out of the twelve to support six of them. It does not stand to reason that those children and he himself can have natural food or be naturally dressed. His children are often sick and he has to call in doctors. That is always hanging over him and is a great expense to him. And then if he does not pay the bill the trustee law comes on him. That is a thing that is not properly looked after. A man told me the other day that he was trusteed for $1.75, and I understood that there was a law in this State that a man could not be trusteed for less than $10. It seems to me there is something wrong in the Government somewhere; where it is I can't tell.

Q. How much money have you got?

A. I have not got a cent in the house; didn't have when I came out this morning.

Q. How much money have you had within three months?

A. I have had about $16 inside of three months.

Q. Is that all you have had within the last three months to live on?

A. Yes; $16.

SUPPORTING A FAMILY ON $133 A YEAR.

Q. How much have you had within a year?

A. Since Thanksgiving I happened to get work in the Crescent Mill and worked there exactly thirteen weeks. I got just $1.50 a day, with the exception of a few days that I lost—because in following up mule-spinning you are obliged to lose a day once in a while; you can't follow it up regularly.

Q. Thirteen weeks would be seventy-eight days, and, at $1.50 a day, that would make $117, less whatever time you lost.

A. Yes. I worked thirteen weeks there and ten days in another place, and then there was a dollar I got this week, Wednesday.

Q. Taking a full year back can you tell how much you have had?

A. That would be about fifteen weeks' work. Last winter, as I told you, I got in, and I worked up to about somewhere around Fast day, or may be New Year's day; anyway, Mr. Howard has it down on his record, if you wish to have an exact answer to that question; he can answer it better than I can, because we have a sort of union there to keep ourselves together.

Q. Do you think you have had $150 within a year?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you had $125?

A. Well, I could figure it up if I had time. The thirteen weeks is all I have had.

Q. The thirteen weeks and the $16 you have mentioned?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That would be somewhere about $133, if you have not lost any time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is all you have had?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To support yourself and wife and two children?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you had any help from outside?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you mean that yourself and wife and two children have had nothing but that for all this time?

A. That is all. I got a couple dollars' worth of coal last winter, and the wood I picked up myself. I goes around with a shovel and picks up clams and wood.

DIGGING CLAMS TO EKE OUT AN EXISTENCE.

Q. What do you do with the clams?

A. We eat them. I don't get them to sell, but just to eat, for the family. That is the way my brother lives, too, mostly. He lives close by us.

Q. How many live in that way down there?

A. I could not count them, they are so numerous. I suppose there are one thousand down there.

Q. A thousand that live on $150 a year?

A. They live on less.

Q. Less than that?

A. Yes; they live on less than I do.

Q. How long has that been so?

A. Mostly so since I have been married.

Q. How long is that?

A. Six years this month.

Q. Why do you not go West on a farm?

A. How could I go; walk it?

TOO POOR TO GO WEST.

Q. Well, I want to know why you do not go out West on a $2,000 farm, or take up a homestead and break it and work it up, and then have it for yourself and family?

A. I can't see how I could get out West. I have got nothing to go with.

Q. It would not cost you over $1,500.

A. Well, I never saw over a $20 bill, and that is when I have been getting a month's pay at once. If some one would give me $1,500 I will go.

Q. Is there any prospect that anybody will do that?

A. I don't know of anybody that would.

Q. You say you think there are a thousand men or so with their families that live in that way in Fall River?

A. Yes, sir; and I know many of them. They are around there by the score. You can see them every day; and I am sure of it, because men tell me.

Q. Are you a good workman?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you ever turned off because of misconduct or incapacity or unfitness for work?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or because you did bad work?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or because you made trouble among the help?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any personal trouble with an employer?

A. No, sir.

Q. You have not anything now, you say?

A. No, sir.

Q. How old are you?

A. About thirty.

Q. Is your health good?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What would you work for if you could get work right along; if you could be sure to have it for five years, staying right where you are?

A. Well, if I was where my family could be with me, and I could have work every day, I would take $1.50 and be glad to.

Q. One dollar and fifty cents a day, with three hundred days to the year, would make more than you make now in three or four years, would it not?

ONLY A DOLLAR'S WORTH OF COAL IN TEN MONTHS.

A. Well I would have no opportunity then to pick up clams. I have had no coal except one dollar's worth since last Christmas.

Q. When do the clams give out?

A. They give out in winter.

Q. You spoke of fuel; what do you have for fuel?

A. Wood and coal.

Q. Where does the wood come from?

A. I pick it up around the shore, any old pieces I see around that are not good for anything. There are many more that do the same thing.

Q. Do you get meat to live on much?

A. Very seldom.

Q. What kinds of meat do you get for your family?

A. Well, once in awhile we gets a piece of pork and some clams and make a clam-chowder. That makes a very good meal. We sometimes get a piece of corn beef or something like that.

Q. Have you had any fresh beef within a month?

A. Yes; we had a piece of porksteak for four of us yesterday.

Q. Have you had any beef within a month?

A. No, sir; I was invited to a man's house on Sunday. He wanted me to go up to his house, and we had a dinner of roast pork.

Q. That was an invitation out; but I mean have you had any beefsteak in your own family, of your own purchase, within a month?

A. Yes; there was a half a pound or a pound one Sunday, I think it was.

Q. Have you had only a pound or half a pound on Sunday?

A. That is all

Q. A half pound of pork?

A. Yes. About 2 pounds of pork I guess we have had in the month to make clam-chowder with, and sometimes to fry a bit.

Q. And there are four of you in the family?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many pounds of beefsteak have you had in your family, that you bought for your own home consumption within this year that we have been speaking of?

A. I don't think there has been 5 pounds of beefsteak.

Q. You have had a little porksteak?

A. We had half a pound of porksteak yesterday; I don't know when we had any before.

Q. What other kinds of meat have you had within a year?

A. Well, we have had corn-beef twice, I think, that I can remember this year—on Sunday, for dinner.

Q. Twice is all that you can remember within a year?

A. Yes—and some cabbage.

Q. What have you eaten?

A. Well, bread mostly, when we could get it; we sometimes couldn't make out to get that, and have had to go without a meal.

Q. Has there been any day in the year that you have had to go without anything to eat?

A. Yes, sir; several days.

Q. More than one day at a time?

A. No.

Q. How about the children and your wife—did they go without anything to eat, too?

THE CHILDREN CRYING FOR FOOD.

A. My wife went out this morning and went to a neighbor's and got a loaf of bread and fetched it home, and when she got home the children were crying for something to eat.

Q. Have the children had anything to eat to-day except that, do you think?

A. They had that loaf of bread; I don't know what they have had since then, if they have had anything.

Q. Did you leave any money at home?

A. No, sir.

Q. If that loaf is gone, is there anything in the house?

A. No, sir; unless my wife goes out and gets something; I don't know who would mind the children while she goes out.

Q. Has she any money to get anything with?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have the children gone without a meal at any time during the year?

A. They have gone without bread some days, but we have sometimes got meal and made porridge of it.

Q. What kind of meal?

A. Sometimes Indian meal, and sometimes oatmeal.

Q. Meal stirred up in hot water?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it cold weather down there now?

A. It is very cold now.

SCANT CLOTHING IN COLD WEATHER.

Q. What have the children got on in the way of clothing?

A. They have got along very nicely all summer, but now they are beginning to feel quite sickly. One has one shoe on, a very poor one, and a slipper that was picked up somewhere. The other has two odd shoes on, with the heel out. He has got cold and is sickly now.

Q. Have they any stockings?

A. He had got stockings, but his feet comes through them, for there is a hole in the bottom of the shoe.

Q. What have they got on the rest of their person?

A. Well, they have a little calico shirt—what should be a shirt; it is sewed up in some shape—and one little petticoat, and a kind of little dress.

Q. How many dresses has your wife got?

A. She has got one since she was married, and she hasn't worn that more than half a dozen times; she has worn it just going to church and coming back. She is very good in going to church, but when she comes back she takes it off, and it is pretty near as good now as when she bought it.

Q. She keeps that dress to go to church in?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many dresses aside from that has she?

A. Well, she got one here three months ago.

Q. What did it cost?

A. It cost $1 to make it, and I guess about a dollar for the stuff, as near as I can tell.

Q. The dress cost $2?

A. Yes.

Q. What else has she?

A. Well, she has an undershirt that she got given to her, and she has an old wrapper, which is about a mile too big for her; somebody gave it to her.

Q. She did not buy it?

A. No; that is all that I know that she has.

Q. You have had $1 or $2 worth of coal last winter?

A. I think it was a quarter of a ton, and I believe it was $2.25 worth.

Q. Is that all you have had?

A. That is all I had last winter. All the rest I picked up—wood.

Q. Did you try to get work?

A. I was working last winter.

Q. You say that a good many others are situated just like you are?

A. Yes, sir; I should say as many as a thousand down in Fall River are just in the same shape, if not worse; though they can't be much worse. I have heard many women say they would sooner be dead than living. I don't know what is wrong, but something is wrong. There is an overflow of labor in Fall River.

* * * * * * * *

Q. You live in a hired tenement?

A. Yes; but of course I can't pay a big rent. My rent is $6 a month. The man I am living under would come and put me right out and give me no notice either if I didn't pay my rent. He is a sheriff and auctioneer man. I don't know whether he has any authority to do it or not, but he does it with people.

Q. Do you see any way out of your troubles—what are you going to do for a living—or do you expect to have to stay right there?

A. Yes. I can't run around with my family.

Q. You have nowhere to go to, and no way of getting there if there was any place to go to?

A. No, sir; I have no means nor anything, so I am obliged to remain there and try to pick up something as I can.

Mr. COKE. Mr. President, thousands of operatives in Fall River City, says this witness, are in as bad and even in worse condition than himself, and all these are laborers in the so-called protected industries. And his family, six in number, have to exist on $133 per year. I now read from the first volume of testimony, taken by the same committee, commencing on page 1162, from the testimony of Mr. John Jarrett, a citizen of Sharon, Pa., and at that time president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers of the United States, as follows. I will ask the Secretary to read the part marked.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Secretary will read as indicated.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

CONDITION OF THE PENNSYLVANIA COAL-MINES.

Q. Do you know anything about the condition of the workingmen in other trades than your own?

A. I have not given that subject one-tenth of the attention that I have given to the condition of the workers in my own trade.

Q. Do you know anything about the condition of the men who mine iron the?

A. I do, sir; did you say the coal-miners?

Q. The men who mine the iron and coal?

A. Well, coal-mining in Pennsylvania, in my opinion, is a more important interest than ore mining, and the condition of the coal-miners in the State of Pennsylvania is pitiable, miserable.

Q. How many of them do you think there are?

A. There must be at least ninety thousand coal-miners in Pennsylvania.

Q. Do you mean heads of families or workers altogether?

A. I would assume that there would be among them about sixty thousand heads of families.

Q. You say their condition is pitiable and miserable; how so, and how much is it?

A. It is because the wages of coal-miners are too low. They are ill-paid. Then, too, they suffer from the truck system. Under that system they pay 100 per cent. more for what they buy than our people do. Then the houses they live in are extremely miserable. If I feel particularly for any branch of labor in this country it is the poor coal-miner. He risks his life day after day for a mere pittance. Every time he departs from the light of day he does not know whether he will ever see it again. And while in some branches it does not require much skill to be a miner, in others it does, and I think the coal-miner ought to be better paid, better clothed, better housed, and better fed than he is.

THE ENGLISH MINERS BETTER OFF.

Q. Have you been among those miners?

A. Yes, sir; and from my experience among the coal-miners in England I may say that they are really better cared for there than are the coal-miners in the United States. I do not say that the English miner gets as much money for his labor, but he is better cared for.

Q. Do you mean that he has more comfort during the year?

A. Yes, sir. The government there has taken care to make very stringent laws for the protection of the miners. The colliery laws control all the mines there, and I think it is the duty of our Government here to make equally strict laws to apply to that subject.

By Mr. CALL:

Q. Of what nature are those laws?

A. Well, they constitute a general shield of protection thrown around the workingman, by which many of the evils to which he is subject in his calling are obviated.

Q. Give us some idea of the provisions of those laws.

A. Well, they have regular men that go to examine into the condition of the mines before the men can go to work; these examiners have to go in every morning immediately before the men go into the mines, to see that they are in fit condition. Then the truck system has been entirely wiped out there; the men get their money every week.

Mr. COKE. This is another sample of the condition of so-called tariff-protected American labor. Low as are the wages of the poor miners, they are made to pay at the store of their employers (for this is what is called the truck system) 100 per cent. more for what they have to buy than other people pay. I read now from a work on the protective tariff, recently issued from the press, by Mr. Herman Lieb, commencing on page 134, where the author quotes from certain leading newspapers.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

On February 6, 1884, the Cleveland Herald—good protectionist authority—contained the following:

"For some time past all sorts of stories have been circulated in reference to the suffering of the miners and their families scattered along the Pennsylvania Railroad between this city and Allentown. These people have had their wages reduced from time to time, until they are now only getting from 60 to 70 cents per day, or an average of about 65 cents. These reports have excited considerable comment, and in order to verify them a Herald correspondent visited the mines.

"After arriving in Alburtus, Pa.," writes the correspondent, "I procured a sleigh and drove through the entire district, covering some 30 miles, and visited many homes of the miners, beside some forty-five mines in full operation. Alburtus has a population of nearly 600 people, and their true condition is probably expressed in the words of Isaac Bickel, proprietor of the American House, who said:

"'Never in the history of the town has there been so much suffering among the poor. The panic of 1873 is no comparison. The storekeepers have shut down on the men, and are now doing a strictly cash business throughout the ore district.'

"George Schrack, residing in a small log hut near Farmington, was called on in the evening.

* * * * * * *

"'Will you kindly give me an insight into your daily life, Mr. Schrack?'

"'Well, to tell you the truth, it is a tough one. I get up at 4 o'clock every morning, and leave here half an hour later in order to reach the works at 6 o'clock.'

"'What are your duties?'

"'I am a loader, and with the help of another man we load from sixty to seventy cars per day.'

"'What are you getting per day?'

"'Sixty-two cents.'

"'How do you manage to live with that amount?'

"'Oh, we manage to just hang together. We can't afford meat but once a week. Bread and molasses constitute our chief diet, with a few potatoes and corn-meal thrown in.'

"'How about your clothing, shoes, etc.?'

"'The children have no shoes, and really I can not afford to buy any for them.'

"'How much did you earn in January?'

"'Eleven dollars and thirty-eight cents. I made a little over eighteen days.'

"'How much does it cost you to live?'

"'My earnings did not quite cover the bills, and the grocer told me that hereafter none of the men would be allowed to exceed their earnings. I have not handled a cent since December the 1st.'

"'How's that?'

"'Why, you see, after the grocer is paid, nothing is left.'

"This is the story of a dozen or more, and with the exceptien of one or two cases, all tell the same story."

* * * * * * *

The Chicago Herald of July last contributes the following: "Newspaper correspondents have lately achieved the difficult task of exploring this beautiful region"—meaning the collieries of Hazelton, Pa.—"hitherto so severely ignored by the protectionist hair-raisers. With what commiseration for poor Ireland and benighted free-trade-ridden England, with what pride in the institutions of the land of his birth, must every American read of the recent evictions at Hazelton collieries, near Wilkes Barre!

"For brutality and consequent misery they surpass the most exaggerated horror yet reported from Ireland.

"Hazelton is a delightful village, nestling in the carboniferous hills near the Hazel Brook mines. Village and hills and collieries are the property of a firm named J. S. Wentz & Co. The firm will not sell or lease a foot of land to anybody, nor allow a man to build a house for himself. It compels every employé in the mines to rent from it at from $5 to $6 a month. The men are forced to sign a lease which places them absolutely at the company's mercy. They expressly waive every benefit or protection which they might have under the laws of the State. They agree that the moment they cease work for the company they must leave their homes, and can be ejected on ten days' notice; and they further have to sign what is termed an 'amicable suit of ejectment,' by which the company can at any moment issue a writ and evict them.

"This, mind you, is a strictly American and highly protected lease. Mark how it operates. Notices to quit were sent round to the strikers some weeks ago. On Saturday Deputy Sheriff Brockway, armed with the writs issued in 'amicable suit of ejectment,' and backed by a body of coal and iron police in the pay of the company, appeared in the village and began to evict. Six families, with all their goods and chattels, were thrown on the hillside; they were the families of Neal Gallagher, Daniel Nigan, Patrick Bowen, Barney Gallagher, Joseph McGonegal, and Patrick Dunlavy. Everthing the house contained was thrown pell-mell out of doors and windows, the women and children driven out, and the doors locked behind them. From their names it is apparent that these tenants came from the land of iron leases and heartless evictions, in the full hope, presumably, of finding relief in the land of the free.

"Their oppression did not stop here. Not only were they thus deprived of home and shelter, but not a soul in the village dared shelter them or their goods. The company had given notice that any tenant affording shelter to those evicted would be himself dispossessed. Mrs. Dunlavy was sick in bed when the officers entered the house, but she had to go, and her bed was put outside after her. It was with difficulty that she obtained permission to stop overnight at a neighbor's, nor were the evicted tenants able to remove their goods, for the company had prohibited any wagon from entering its lands for that purpose, and refused to grant the use of its own teams. Women and children were compelled to hunt miles in search of a place to spend the night, and some, unable to obtain shelter, were forced to sleep on the bare ground, without roof to cover them. Their goods are lying to-day just as they were thrown out, the people being unable to move them.

"It is not to be supposed that such things could happen without comment. On the contrary, the whole region was boiling over with indignation, though choking its impotent wrath through fear of incurring the horror themselves, for everybody thereabouts belongs to Wentz & Co. Even the press dared not make mention of what took place. 'What can we do?' a local editor demanded of the correspondent. 'The coal kings have the making of the postmasters, no matter which party is in power. If any paper dares to open its mouth about these outrages the postmasters get the wink and our paper is kicked upon the floor—its subscribers look in vain for it. One paper near here, at Freeland, has defied the autocrats and told the truth about them, and for years the editor has labored on the verge of bankruptcy. Oh, I tell you these men are above the law. We have submitted to them, and not until the metropolitan press take hold of the matter will justice ever be done here.

"The company store system is, of course, prevalent in this region, and not the least of the links in the chain of slavery. The Stone bill, passed in the Pennsylvania Legislature in 1884, makes this system illegal. But what of that? What is law to a protected coal baron? The miners are now compelled to trade at the company's stores, but if they don't do so—well, their services are no longer required. Then there is a doctor furnished by each company, and each miner with a family must pay 75 cents a month, whether sick or well, while each single man of twenty-one or more is docked 50 cents a month for the benefit of this pampered physician. Other doctors are not allowed. Hundreds of company doctors have made fortunes out of the business. Then each man pays 50 cents a month toward the support of a priest, but this is not insisted on. Four dollars is stopped for rent, and $1.90 for coal, with 65 cents added for delivery, and sometimes taxes are added upon the dwelling. Thus it results that the men very rarely draw more than $2 or $3 in money at the end of the month. Their slavery is complete. It is remarked that, under these conditions, the mining population grows sullen and dispirited, that the young men flee away to the cities as they grow up, leaving their places to be filled by cheap Slav labor imported for the purpose; that the young women take to a life of shame rather than live in the cursed atmosphere of their youth; that the children are joyless and ignorant. The houses are horrible; the saloons are better, and the company sells the liquor. Men take to dissipation from sheer despair. A strained, unnatural feeling of dread pervades the place, for every one knows that spies are about and he dare not speak."

Mr. COKE. Mr. President, want of time compels me to desist from a further illustration of the truth of my argument by quotations of testimony. Sufficient to say, Mr. President, that any amount of testimony of this character is in existence and of easy access. I have before me and will read briefly from the eighteenth annual report of the bureau of statistics of labor of the State of Massachusetts, published in December, 1887. On page 294 it says:

As the essential result of this investigation, it may be stated, then, that out of a total of 816,470 persons employed in gainful occupations in this State 241,589, or 29.59 per cent., were unemployed at their principal occupation, on an average, 4.11 months during the census year, the average unemployment for persons engaged in manufactures, pure and simple, being 3.90 months; in short, that about one-third of the total persons engaged in remunerative labor were unemployed at their principal occupation for about one-third of the working time.

This report verifies and corroborates the other testimony read. When the great State of Massachusetts, which leads the advance guard in all that pertains to a high social, moral, political, and industrial civilization, can make no better showing under a war tariff in respect to the elevation and ennoblement of American labor than is presented in the testimony of Thomas O'Donnell, of Fall River, and has to confess, through the report of one of her chief bureaus, that for the year 1887 one-third of her people employed in gainful occupations were unemployed for one-third of the working time, I ask if it is not time that a halt was being called and some other method of protecting American labor at least experimented on. When we consider the deplorable and "pitiable" condition of 90,000 miners of Pennsylvania, as described by Mr. Jarrett, and by the Cleveland Herald, and the proceedings against them by the protected coal barons described by the Chicago Herald, when it said, "For brutality and consequent misery they surpass the most exaggerated horror yet reported from Ireland," I ask if it is not time for the protectionists themselves to pause and ask themselves if protection does not utterly fail to protect American labor. The people of the United States pay the tariff tax. Of this there is not the least particle of doubt. Somebody receives it.

The condition of our laboring people, and the struggle they are now and have for years been making for living wages, as evidenced by the labor strikes, prove most clearly that they are not the recipients of the benefits of the tariff tax. The employers of labor, the manufacturers, are the collectors of this tax in the increased price paid them for their products by the people who consume them. They are the beneficiaries of the tax, not the laborers. The financial condition of the manufacturers and of the manufacturing States prove this to be true. A table furnished by the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, compiled from the report of the Comptroller of the Currency, and now before me, shows that the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, the great manufacturing States, being nine in number, their aggregate population being 14,507,407, have an aggregate of active banking capital of $403,553,905, and deposits in banks to the amount of $2,355,507,999, while all the other States and Territories, including the District of Columbia, being thirty-eight in number, have together $412,731,150 of active banking capital, and $1,062,177,918 of deposits, and 35,648,376 population.

The nine manufacturing States lack only $9,177,245 of having as much active banking capital as all the other thirty-eight States and Territories, and the deposits of the former are more than double those of all the latter. The little State of Rhode Island, with a population of 276,531, has more banking capital and larger deposits than such great agricultural States as Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, and Kansas, with populations averaging about 1,500,000 each. Missouri, with her two and a quarter millions of population, exceeds Rhode Island very slightly in banking capital and deposits, and is the only Southern State that is not greatly exceeded by Rhode Island in this regard. The great States of Illinois and Ohio, with populations of about three and a quarter millions each, do not double Rhode Island.

So with the remainder of the nine manufacturing States named; all, in nearly the same proportion, exceed in wealth per capita the other thirty-eight States and Territories. Nearly all the railroads in the United States are owned in the manufacturing States, and I hazard nothing in saying that two-thirds of the shipping of the United States engaged in the internal, external, and coasting trade is owned in the same States. I read here an extract from the St. Louis Republican, which estimates that the nine manufacturing States own in ten Western States farm mortgages to the amount of $3,422,000,000, as follows:

It would be instructive to have the exact figures showing farm mortgages in the United States. There is no Federal law nor general law in the States for collecting the statistics, and they can therefore only be estimated. A correspondent of the New York Times, writing from Gypsum City, Kans., taking for a basis the recent statement that one-half the farms in Michigan are mortgaged, makes the following estimate for the ten leading Western States:

In Ohio	$701,000,000
In Indiana	398,000,000
In Illinois	620,000,000
In Wisconsin	250,000,000
In Michigan	350,000,000
In Minnesota	175,000,000
In Iowa	351,000,000
In Nebraska	140,000,000
In Kansas	200,000,000
In Missouri	237,000,000
Total farm mortgages in the ten States	3,422,000,000

This aggregate is so enormous that we are inclined to think the respective sums in the States are overestimated. Still, it is a well-known fact that in the older and more prosperous States of the West, every fourth or third farm is mortgaged, and, in the newer ones, two out of three are in that condition, and the bulk of these claims is held in the prosperous and rich industrial States of the East. The insurance companies of the little city of Hartford, Conn., own $70,000,000 in western farm mortgages; and the loan companies of Boston hold $76,000,000 more. Here is $146,000,000 in two cities to begin with, and it is certain that if complete returns could be had from all the nine industrial States the aggregate would be immense, probably one-half the assessed value of western farms.

As the average annual net earnings of farming in the United States are only about 3½ per cent. on the capital invested, while the interest charged on these mortgages is 7 to 9 per cent., it is clear that the mass of farmers can not pay their debts, and that, sooner or later, their farms will fall into the hands of their creditors, and the great money-lending corporations of the rich manufacturing States will own full one-half the Western States.

The vast wealth concentrated in the nine manufacturing States, and the immense disproportion between their wealth and that of the agricultural States of the Union, indicate with unerring certainty who receives and where is located the vast subsidies which, through the operation of protective tariffs, have for nearly one hundred years been wrung from the people, not for any public purpose, but to build up and make greater the private fortunes of a few manufacturers. It does seem that the time has arrived when this wholesale robbery should cease. This abnormal congestion of wealth in a limited area and among so small a percentage of the population, produced by the protective tariff, the highest considerations of public policy require shall not be increased but, as far may be, diminished, and a more equal, just, and healthful distribution promoted. Confessedly the most powerful manufacturing people in the world, the plea for the development of our infant industries, under which the tariff was once justified, can no longer be made, and has been abandoned.

The protection of American labor against competition with the pauper labor of Europe is now the rallying cry. As the protectionists held on to the first pretext until its absurdity grew to be so transparent that they were forced to abandon it, so they will cling to the last until driven from it by a force they can not withstand. They have enjoyed a long career of success in enriching themselves by advocating protection to American labor, while at the same time crushing the spirit of the laborer by the poverty and inadequacy of the wages they have doled out to him, compared with the cost of living they have heaped upon him by means of the high tariff. Thanks to the enlightenment of the day, the increased intelligence of the people, and especially the laborers, the developments of the Tenth Census, and the statistics of the Labor Bureau, the investigations of Congressional committees, and the spirit of inquiry which is abroad in this country, the people are being awakened to the realization of the fact that they have in the name of humanity, philanthropy, and American patriotism, through which they have been appealed to in behalf of the American laborer, been fleeced and plundered by greedy capitalists intent alone upon their own enrichment.

To use a homely but expressive illustration, in the tariff milk-pail it is discovered that the cream rises to the top, when it is skimmed by the capitalist, who generously leaves the worthless swill which remains for the American laboring man.

Mr. President, the interests of the working people of the United States must always be a subject of controlling solicitude and importance, one which must receive a large share of attention from statesmen who control the affairs of government. It is now apparent that they have never received the benefits intended by the American people for them under protective tariffs, and as the execution of the tariff in respect to the working people rests exclusively in the hands of the manufacturers, who heretofore have deprived them of its benefits, while they are subject to all its burdens, some other system of taxation, as just to the people of the United States as protective tariffs have been unjust, must be resorted to for the general good.

Such plan must embrace within its beneficent operation all the working people of the United States, whether farmers, factory operatives, miners, or other working people. It must be equal upon all in its burdens, and as far as possible in its benefits. It should take from the people only so much of their earnings as is necessary for the economical support of the Government. In a word, Mr. President, we should go back to a strictly revenue tariff—a tariff for revenue only—such a tariff as we had from 1846 to 1860, under the administrations of Polk and Buchanan. It was of this period that Professor Sumner, of Yale College, in one of his learned lectures on "Protection in the United States," said:

The period from 1846 to 1860 was our period of comparative free trade. The subtreasury act of 1846 removed subjects of currency and banking from national legislation. Thus these two topics were for a time laid aside. For an industrial history of the United States no period presents greater interest than this. It was a period of very great and very solid prosperity. The tariff was bad and vexatious in many ways, if we regard it from the standpoint either of free trade or revenue tariff, but its rates were low and its effects limited. It was called "a revenue tariff with incidental protection." The manufactures which it had been said would perish, did not perish, and did not gain sudden and exorbitant profits. They made steady and genuine progress. The repeal of the English corn laws in 1846 opened a large market for American agricultural products, and took away the old argument which Niles and Carey had used with such force, that England wanted other countries to have free trade, but would not take their products. The effect on both countries was most happy. It seemed as if the old system was gone forever, and that these two great nations, with free industry and free trade, were to pour increased wealth upon each other.

The fierce dogmatism of protection and its deeply-rooted prejudices seemed to have undergone a fatal blow. Our shipping rapidly increased. Our cotton crop grew larger and larger. The discovery of gold in California added mightily to the expansion of prosperity. The States indeed repeated our old currency follies, and the panic of 1857 resulted, but it was only a stumble in a career of headlong prosperity. We recovered from it in a twelvemonth. Slavery agitation marked this period politically, and if people look back to it now they think most of that; but industrially and economically, and I will add also in the administration of the Government, the period from the Mexican to the civil war is our golden age, if we have any. There was simplicity, even to dullness, in national affairs. It was one of those happy periods when a nation has little history. As far as the balance of trade is concerned, it never was more regular and equal than in this period.

It was of the same years that Robert J. Walker, the great Secretary of the Treasury under Mr. Polk, in a letter to the people of the United States, spoke as follows:

A tariff for revenue, as experience has shown, instead of depressing improves all industrial pursuits, including manufactures, and vastly augments the wealth of the country. Under the tariff of 1846, as shown by the census, our wealth increased, from 1850 to 1860, 126.45 per cent.; whereas from 1840 to 1850 the increase was only 64 per cent.; from 1830 to 1840, 42 per cent., and from 1820 to 1830, 41 per cent. So, also, from 1850 to 1860 our agricultural products increased 95 per cent. and our manufactures 87 per cent., being in both cases nearly double any preceding ratio of increase. So, also, our exports, imports, and revenue nearly tripled in the same period of time, and our domestic trade rose nearly in the same ratio.

This augmented ratio is not the result of increase of population, which from 1850 to 1860 was less than 36 per cent. The Irish famine was supposed by my opponents to account for the increase the first year, although the decreased price paid abroad that year for our cotton nearly equaled the additional sum paid by England for our breadstuffs and provisions. But the next year and the next, before any gold had reached here from California, our exports and revenue went on augmenting in a corresponding ratio, rising in eight years from $22,000,000 under the tariff of 1842 to $64,000,000 under the tariff of 1846.

The cry for protecting bounties from the Government in these sixteen years after the "infant industries" had been weaned off from the public teat, was hushed in the presence of the palpable and notorious fact that the country had never been more prosperous, that the manufacturing interest had never rested on a more solid basis, and revenues for the Government had never been more abundant. A more complete refutation of the sophistry on which for nearly seventy-five years the people of this country have been taxed to build up and enrich a manufacturing class could not be desired than this simple recital of well authenticated facts. But the civil war came, great revenues were needed, the country thought of nothing but war and armies and navies, and how to raise the immense revenues necessary to maintain them.

Here was the opportunity to increase tariff duties to the highest possible degree, and well and thoroughly it was embraced and utilized. The "war tariff" acts were passed in rapid succession, each going beyond the other in piling up duties, until every conceivable article that could minister to human necessity, desire, convenience, or luxury was placed on the dutiable list. The object then was ostensibly revenue; nothing was heard of protection. The debates on these various acts discussed only the best methods of raising revenue so much needed. And here we are to-day with the same war tariff, for the reductions made since would not average 5 per cent. With machinery taxed, raw material taxed, and the finished product taxed, our manufactures, so far as prices are concerned, are on stilts, far more costly than those of any other country in the world. For this reason they can not be exported to foreign markets except at a loss.

Thus the high tariff, which fences out foreign goods, walls in our domestic products. The tremendous development of our manufacturing interest frequently gluts the home market, to which our goods are confined; and in order to keep up prices trusts and combinations are formed, production is diminished or stopped, and labor thrown out of employment, or, running on reduced time, of course with reduced wages, suffers.

Conditions like these account for the fact that one-third of the working people of Massachusetts were idle for one-third of the year covered by the report of the labor bureau of 1887. Excluded from foreign markets by the high prices fixed on our products by a tariff tax averaging 46 per cent. ad valorem, and the home market glutted whenever our mills and factories are run on full time, trusts and combinations to keep up prices by limiting or stopping production, as the country knows by sad experience, are inevitable, and destitution and suffering among the working people a natural consequence.

This is the legitimate outcome of "protection," so called, for American labor, which fattens the manufacturer and capitalist, while it reduces the workingman and his family to want and almost to starvation. The necessities of this country for great revenues will always, even under a tariff laid for revenue only, give abundant protection, incidentally and unavoidably, to American industries. As I have already shown a tariff averaging 10 per cent. would pay back to the manufacturer all the difference between American and European wages, and one averaging 20 per cent. would return to him every dollar of wages he pays out, besides whatever difference, if any, might exist between English and American rates of interest, and from 2½ to 5 per cent. more, in fact, while a strictly revenue tariff would incidentally be thoroughly protective. A tariff of 20 per cent. average duty, possibly of 25 per cent., is the lowest that could be relied on to produce the revenue needed by the Government. Under Mr. Polk's administration, in 1857, 19 per cent. was the average to which the tariff was reduced, and it produced abundant revenue.

While a much greater revenue is needed now than was then, it will be remembered that the population, the country, and its resources are much greater now than in 1857, and that the same per cent. average duty would produce correspondingly greater revenue. So, Mr. President, a reduction of the tariff to a revenue standard would still leave the average duty considerably above the point which would reimburse the manufacturer not only the difference between American and European wages, but all the money paid out for wages. If the manufacturer was sincere in claiming that he desires high-tariff duties for the benefit of the American laborer and to justify the payment to him of high wages, he would be satisfied with 20 per cent., for that amount will answer the purpose which he claims to have in view.

Besides, Mr. President, a reduction of the tariff to a strictly revenue standard will cheapen the cost of manufactured products, and to that extent diminish the cost of living and add to the wages of the laborer greater purchasing power, enabling him to buy more with the same money. It would open the markets of the world to the manufacturer, because our goods, being cheapened in cost, could compete in foreign markets with the manufactures of other countries, and of this the American laborer would, in common with all the people of the United States, have the full benefit. Secretary Evarts, in the letter before referred to, condenses the argument into a nutshell in what I now read. Says he:

Within the last fifteen years we have demonstrated our ability by the brilliant development of our own resources to exclude, by honest competition, foreign manufactures to a large extent from our shores. The question which now peremptorily challenges all thinking minds is, how to create a foreign demand for those which are left after supplying our home demands. We can not stand still, for the momentum of increase will soon become so great that it will push us outward anyway. To push us safely and profitably is of so much importance as to almost overtop all other public questions of the hour. This question appeals equally to the selfishness and patriotism of all our citizens, but to the laborer it appeals with tenfold force, for without work he can not live, and unless we can extend the markets for our manufactures he can not expect steady work, and unless our manufacturers can undersell foreign manufacturers we can not enlarge our foreign market.

The first great truth to be learned by our manufacturers and workingmen is, that the days of sudden fortunes and double wages are gone. We must realize the fact that ocean steam communication has annihilated distance and brought the nations face to face. This drawing together of the nations means equalization in trade, profits, wages, etc.; the advantage being with those who soonest accept the situation and show the most sensible continuity in the new paths of success.

This brief statement delineates with a pencil of light the true philosophy of the situation—that our manufacturers are able to stand alone and take care of themselves in honest competition with the world; that our extraordinary development with its present momentum will, in a very short time, compel us to seek foreign markets for our products, will burst through the bounds to which they are now confined by the tariff, and that we must be prepared to undersell foreign manufactures, or else our products will flow back upon an already glutted home market, bringing ruin and destruction.

Sir, greater or more vital truths were never uttered. And the man more interested than all others in their recognition and enforcement is the American workingman. The bottom and foundation on which this statement rests and is predicated is the necessity for cheapening American manufactures, so that they may go into foreign markets, and the most indispensable step for this purpose is to remove from them the burden of the tariff tax to the full extent that it can be done consistent with the requirements of the Government for revenue. Give us free, untaxed machinery and free raw material, such as coal, ore, wool, jute, and other textile products, these being the bases of all manufacture, a tariff devoted solely to raising revenue for the support of the Government will doubly protect the American workingman's wages, and send our cheapened goods without handicap into foreign markets to meet and defy the competition of the world. All the reasons for placing raw material on the free-list apply with twenty-fold power to the machinery which manufactures it.

Not one pound of machinery engaged in the manufacture of any article on the dutiable list, nor of raw material entering into any such article should pay a single penny of tariff tax. All incumbrances, every hindrance, every ounce of weight that can be removed from our products should be taken away, and American energy, resources, invention, skill, and genius given a fair opportunity of winning primacy in the commerce of the world. When this grand consummation shall occur, and occur it must, sooner or later, and the sooner the better, the products of the workingman's labor, no longer confined to the home market, as now, with its fitful seasons of high demand and glut, nor to the manipulations of "combines" and "trusts," will find steady sale in all the markets of the world, and thus will be insured steady employment to the labor which creates them.

The agricultural people of the United States whose exported products for the last fiscal year were 74 per cent. of the total of our exports, against 19 per cent. of manufactured products exported, who have maintained the balance of trade in favor of this country by sending out to foreign countries the products which alone bring gold, the profits of whose business scarcely average 3½ per cent. on the capital invested, as against 8 to 10, 12, 15, 20, 25. and in some instances as high as 40 per cent. paid in dividends by manufacturing enterprises; whose wheat and cotton are priced in Liverpool in direct competition with the wheat and cotton of India, and the wheat of Russia raised by human cattle on wages of from 6 to 10 cents per day, their wheat now run down to 73 cents per bushel and cotton to 8 cents per pound, while they, constituting more than half of all the labor of the United States, are being taxed an average of 46 per cent. on the entire cost of both living and dying under the existing tariff professedly for the protection of American labor against competition with the pauper labor of Europe, and who are not permitted to buy in the cheap market which fixes the prices of their products, but must buy at home at an advance of 46 per cent. over the foreign market—these agricultural people, upon whose necks the yoke of protective tariff bondage has rested heavily for seventy-five years, will hail with glad acclaim the day when, in a tariff laid only for the purpose of raising money to support their Government, and not for tribute to a manufacturing class, they are emancipated from their most oppressive burdens.

The farmers of this country live harder, wear plainer clothing, practice more rigid economy, have fewer of the luxuries of life, work harder and more constantly, and are more troubled to make both ends meet at the end of the year, and realize less on their labor and capital, than any other class of our people, and are the class upon which the protective tariff falls with the most crushing weight. The policy of exclusion maintained by our high protective tariff toward foreign nations is a declaration and maintenance of commercial war against them, and is so regarded by them; and yet these same foreign nations are the sole dependence of the American farmers for a market for their surplus products, and absolutely fix and establish the prices of American wheat and cotton both at home and abroad.

England is the pet aversion of the average protectionist, and is denounced on all occasions; yet England buys and pays us for more than half of all the cotton raised in the United States and more than half of all our breadstuffs that are exported. In a spirit of retaliation for our hostile tariff legislation, American beef and pork, although greatly needed in Europe, on one pretext and another are excluded in some States, and in others admitted only on the most onerous conditions, while other nations, notably England, in self-defense and to be relieved of her dependence on the United States as far as possible for cotton and breadstuffs, for which she is not permitted to exchange her products on equal terms, has stimulated, and with great success, the production of cotton in India, Egypt, and Brazil, and with still greater success the production of wheat in India and the Dominion of Canada. The Western wheat-growers and the Southern cotton-producers are to-day and for a number of years past have been reaping in the extreme low prices of their products the bitter fruits of our tariff policy, and have learned to their great cost that so-called protection to American manufacturers against European competition means a premium for European competition with American farmers, for a destruction of the foreign market for American agricultural products.

Mr. President, with the ports of the United States wide open to the influx of foreign labor, which is pouring in daily in immense volume, and mingling in the fierce contention for living wages now going on, with our domestic manufactures walled in and foreign goods shut out by a high tariff, as is virtually the case now, manufacturing capital is the veritable master of labor, and with each day's accession to our laboring population from abroad becomes more and more absolute. Unlimited competition in labor and the competition of foreign manufacturing capital excluded by the tariff creating a monopoly for American capital, as thoroughly and completely enslaves American labor as it is possible for it to be done. Free trade in labor and a tariff for the protection of American capital against European competition is the result and legal effect of our protective legislation. The tariff invites labor to our shores with the delusive and deceptive promise of high wages, but takes care to admit no competition with capital. If the time has not already arrived it is not far off when the continued influx of foreign labor and the continued exclusion of the competition of foreign capital will utterly prostrate American labor under the feet of monopolistic American capital.

The Southern slave-owner was never more absolute in his dominion over his slaves than will the continued existence of present conditions make the manufacturing capitalist over American labor. There was a time when it was supposed that competition would come to the relief both of the laborer and of the consumers of manufactured products, but with the advent of "trusts" and "combines," invented for the purpose of destroying competition and thereby keeping up prices, that has become an exploded theory. We have now in existence the following "trusts," which I give with the per cent. of tariff duty protecting each subject of "trust:"

	Protected by duties averaging—		Protected by duties averaging—
	Per ct.		Per ct.
Salt trust	50	Tin trust	32
Earthenware trust	56	Lead trust	74
Bessemer-steel trust	84	Glass trust	55
Plow-steel trust	45	Soap trust	26
General steel trust	45	Linseed-oil trust	54
Nail trust	45	Rubber-shoe trust	25
General iron trust	45	Envelope trust	25
Copper trust	24	Paper-bag trust	35
Zinc trust	52	Cordage trust	25

Of course these "trust" combinations in order to carry out their purposes must stop or diminish production to keep up prices, and in doing that must throw labor out of employment and diminish wages; but does not the tariff for the protection of American labor enable them to do this, and are not they the people who demanded and lobbied through the tariff in the interest of the American workingman, and who are now flooding the country with literature to sustain it? The people who thus acquire power through false pretenses, and then turn on those who grant it, as these combinations are doing, are entitled to exactly the same consideration accorded to the highway robber who, finding his victim defenseless, orders him to stand and deliver. The wide range already covered by these "trusts" shows clearly the extent to which they will be carried under the protective policy, if continued, as our laboring population becomes denser.

The President recommends that wool be placed on the free-list, and much has been said in the debates about reducing or abolishing the duties on sugar. I read from a speech made by me in the Senate on the tariff in 1882 the views I then entertained as to these products and will observe that my opinions have undergone but little if any change. I then said:

But, it is said, there is protection in the tariff for the farmer's sugar, rice, and wool. This is true, but in an extremely limited sense, for the great bulk of the farmers raise neither of these commodities and are as heavily taxed for their use as any other class; but there is one mitigating feature about the duty on these articles, which does not exist in ninety-nine out of every hundred duty-paying articles on the tariff list: all three of these articles bring large revenues into the national Treasury.

The duty on sugar, as official figures show, produces more than one-fourth of all the revenue derived under the tariff. The duty on sugar is strictly a revenue duty, as its productiveness to the Treasury shows. There are six pounds of sugar imported from abroad, which pay duty into the Treasury, to one pound raised in the United States. The Government receives six dollars of revenue to one dollar received under the tariff by the producer of sugar in the United States. The proportion of domestic-raised wool to the imported article is about as two and a half to one. The report of the Bureau of Statistics gives only partially the number of pounds imported, but the amount of duty paid on raw or unmanufactured wool indicates the correctness of the estimate I make.

Wool and the manufactures thereof yielded, under the tariff for 1880, $27,285,624.78. Of this amount official returns show that unmanufactured wool produced $17,913,666.18. Unmanufactured wool pays into the Treasury more revenue by upward of seven millions of dollars than all the manufactures composed wholly or partially of wool imported from abroad. Next to sugar it is the best revenue-paying import on the tariff list, considering the quantity and value of importation. Wool and sugar together produce considerably more than one-third of all the revenue derived from the tariff, and if we take out iron and steel and manufactures thereof, silk manufactures, cotton manufactures, and flax and manufactures thereof, the revenue derived from sugar and wool is greater than from all the values of the two thousand articles on the tariff list together.

If the entire tariff list stood upon the same revenue basis with these commodities, our Treasury instead of the coffers of the manufacturers would overflow with revenue. The agricultural class is the chief prey and victim of tariff spoliation. The duty on these two items happens to redound to the benefit of a portion of that class. I am prepared and anxious to go into the work of readjusting the tariff and placing it on a purely revenue basis, excluding rigidly the idea of protection for any interest, whether it be iron or steel or wool or sugar, because all interests are entitled to stand equal before the law, and no one or more has a right to be subsidized at the expense of the balance. But if the principle of protection is forced into the construction of the tariff and adjustment of its duties, and is to remain the fixed policy of the Government, I propose to claim for these commodities the high duties to which their position as the best revenue-paying items on the tariff list and both "the revenue only" and "the protective" theories entitle them.

Wool ought to go on the free-list, just as all the bases of manufacture and all the machinery used in manufacturing should. Woolen clothing is as absolutely necessary to all the people of the United States, and made so by climatic and sanitary considerations, as quinine is in the malarial districts. Because it is recognized as a prime necessity in the treatment of diseases in many parts of the country, quinine was placed on the free-list. For infinitely stronger reasons woolen clothing ought to be cheapened to the lowest attainable point, and the first and most indispensable step in that direction is to put wool on the free-list. When it is placed on the free-list, however, it ought to be done in the interest of the consumer, not of the manufacturer. The consumer should have the benefit of the reduction, not the manufacturer. A duty of 8½ per cent. would pay back to the manufacturer the difference between English and American wages in woolen manufacture. A duty of 17 per cent. would return to the woolen manufacturer of the United States every dollar he pays out for wages in manufacturing wool. A duty of 20 per cent. would be highly protective of the manufacturer who uses untaxed wool. To allow the manufacturer of free, untaxed wool 30 or 40 or 50 per cent. protection for the manufactured article would, in my judgment, be an outrage on the consumer.

As I do not expect a bill passed which will meet my views, and do mean to accept what I can get in the way of tariff reduction, however far it may fall short of what I desire, I may be compelled to vote for a bill containing such an injustice; but if so, it will be against my most earnest protest, and after my best efforts to reform it. And so with reference to sugar. I believe that under a tariff framed with a view to revenue only, the only proper constitutional basis for a tax to raise money for the support of the Government, it being the best revenue-paying item on the tariff list, and one carrying along with it less of incidental burden than any other, that it would be wise to leave the duty on sugar where it now is, but will accept and support any reduction of the duty found necessary to the success of a bill reducing the tariff. I propose in my action to subordinate everything to the one paramount and controlling purpose of striking down, at least as far as it can be done, the monstrous injustice of the existing tariff by the passage of the best bill we can get.

Mr. President, the issue between the Republican and Democratic parties, made before the country by the President's message, is simply this: Shall our system of taxation be that which takes from the people only enough of their earnings to support the Government economically administered, or shall it continue to be a system which wrings from the people one thousand million dollars annually more than goes into the national Treasury for the enrichment of private individuals, the continued accumulation of an idle surplus in the Treasury with its attendant train of evils, or corrupt and extravagant appropriations in order to prevent it? That is the issue, and no amount of misrepresentation can conceal it, nor can the attention of the people be drawn off or diverted from it by the sectional bloody-shirt canvass already commenced by the Republican party, and to be vigorously prosecuted for the express purpose of blinding the people with passion, so that they may not see how and by whom they are being plundered. My faith in the intelligence of the people and their attachment to honest constitutional government banishes all fear of the result of the impending contest.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVAL.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had on the 11th instant approved and signed the joint resolution (S. R. 5) in relation to the claim of John B. Read against the United States for the alleged use of projectiles for rifled ordnance, claimed as the invention of said Read, and by him alleged to have been used pursuant to a contract or arrangement made between him and the War Department in 1856, for which no compensation has been made.

ADMISSION OF DAKOTA.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senate resumes the consideration of the unfinished business.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 185) to provide for the admission of the State of Dakota into the Union and for the organization of the Territory of Lincoln, the pending question being on the amendment proposed by Mr. BUTLER to the amendment reported by the Committee on Territories as amended.

Mr. TURPIE. Mr. President, I am heartily in favor of the admission of the Territory of Dakota as a State into the Union. We are met at the very threshold with the inquiry whether we can in more than a pro forma manner debate or consider the question of admissibility. A very large number of public documents and papers have been elaborately cited to show that the Territories, and especially the Territory of Dakota, have in some inconceivable manner acquired the right to admission, indefeasible and absolute. When the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] asserted the doctrine upon this floor that the admissibility of a State was ultimately left to the discretion of Congress, it was seriously controverted on the other side of the Chamber.

I do not know that it is material what particular construction may be given to the language of the treaties, the ordinances, and the different acts of Congress referred to by the Senators upon the other side in this debate. Those instruments are laws of the land, and being laws they are subject to the paramount law. The Constitution of the country must after all control their construction. We exercise this power under constitutional warranty, and the language of that warranty is "New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union." The phrase "may be admitted" defines and describes the power as discretionary. The rule otherwise would be to hold that whether a State should be admitted does not depend upon the will and wish of the States and people already in the Union, but upon the action of the people of a Territory outside of it.

I believe it to be settled law that even in the case of an ordinary private partnership a new member may not be admitted to the firm without the consent of those who already are members. Is it possible that a less strict rule than this is to apply to the great national copartnership of the States?

The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS] has talked about the abuse of Congressional discretion. He has said that Congressional discretion upon the question of admissibility might be abused. He has even gone so far as to charge in this instance that it has been abused. To charge a party or a legislative body with the abuse of a discretionary power is to admit their possession of it. The very charge made implies undeniably the existence and the possession of this discretion which the maker of it denies.

But it is asked, after all what is the reason of the delay of admission in the case of Dakota? I think the papers before us in this record show clearly the reason. It is because parties here and elsewhere have misdirected and wasted the energies of the people of this Territory upon the question of division, and have overlooked the question of admission.

The objection made to the admission of the Territory of Dakota under what I shall denominate without discourtesy, merely for the sake of brevity, the Platt bill, is not that the proceedings upon which the measure is based were taken without prior Congressional action. The objection is not made upon that ground. It has no such foundation. We may all admit that the people of a Territory have the right to petition for the admission of that Territory as a State into the Union. We may all admit, further, that the people of a portion of a Territory have the right to petition for its admission into the Union. We may go perhaps to the uttermost limit of allowance in this matter by saying that the people of all of one of the organized Territories of the Union might petition that a portion of such Territory should be admitted separately as a State. There has been, I think, no such instance. But that is not the case here. The case here is where the people of a portion of a Territory have petitioned Congress for the admission of that portion as a State, and as far as historical precedent and example are concerned, the petition in this case is utterly without right or authority.

The Senator from Connecticut and the Senator from Minnesota have both taken the trouble to cite the instances of Michigan, of Tennessee during the administration of Washington, and of Arkansas, and of several other States which have been admitted into the Union upon a constitution and State government prepared without prior Congressional action. No one has questioned these facts. These repeated assertions of plain historical facts remind us of—

> Old-fashioned folk not met with every day,
> Who say an undisputed thing in such a solemn way.

There is no doubt but that the States named, as well as others, were admitted to the Union without prior Congressional authority, without an enabling act, but what is needed for the exigency of this case of Dakota, what is needed for the exigency of this segment called Southern Dakota, is no such instance.

This is a petition by a part of the people of a Territory for the admission of a portion of the people of the Territory as a State, and it is the first instance in the history of the country in which such action has occurred or in which such a claim has been presented or even been considered. Have Senators on the other side cited any case where a part of the people of the Territory of Tennessee, of the Territory of Arkansas, or of the Territory of Michigan petitioned for the entrance into the Union of a portion of such Territory as a State? That is the claim made here.

The honorable Senator from Connecticut spoke of the carving out of States from public domain and their successive admission. It is submitted that this is a misconception of the history and of the growth of the Federal Union, of the law of its growth. States have not been carved out of the public domain. With three exceptions, Texas, California, West Virginia, no State, in modern times at least, has been admitted to the Union without having first passed through a period of Territorial tutelage. The order of growth has been in every other instance, first, a system of unorganized territory; next a Territory duly organized; and thereafter a State lawfully admitted. There is such a Territory as Dakota, very large, great, extensive; but South Dakota, the region mentioned by the Platt bill, is not a Territory. It is not an official division of the Union at all. It a mere geographical expression. The rights incident to a constitution and State government formed in anticipation by the people of a Territory duly organized for admission here are not incident to any of the measures placed before us by the supporters of the Platt bill.

Not only has this carving out been done in the first instance in the form of a Territory, but it has been uniformly done in pursuance of the original design of the construction of the Federal Union.

The Senator from Minnesota has alluded to the acquisition of territory from France during the presidency of Jefferson. It is very true, as that Senator said, that the territory so acquired was divided into two parts in a very short time after its acquisition. The southern part was denominated the Territory of Orleans, and the northern part, reaching to the northern limit of the present State of Oregon north and west indefinitely toward the Rocky Mountains, was called the District of Louisiana. A few years afterwards the Territory of Orleans was admitted as a State and was called the State of Louisiana. About the same time the name of the district to the north of it was changed to that of Missouri, and subsequently the Territory of Arkansas, the Territory of Missouri, the Territory of Iowa, the Territory of Nebraska, the Territory of Minnesota, and others, having been duly formed and established as Territories, were admitted as States with boundaries coterminous in every instance with those which they formerly had as Territories.

In the same manner the territory northwest of the Ohio was dealt with. The first law of Congress applicable to its government was the ordinance of 1787. That ordinance of 1787 provided, amongst other things, that there should be framed from the territory acquired by the generous cession of Virginia not less than three nor more than five States. In the text of the ordinance it was provided what the boundaries of those States should be, and subsequently Territories were carved out of this vast dominion, and the States were admitted with boundaries coterminous as before with those they had enjoyed as Territories under the express provision and in pursuance of the original design of the authors and framers of the ordinance of 1787, many of whom were also authors and makers of the Federal Constitution.

Now, I ask Senators on the other side, was there any provision in the act organizing the Territory of Dakota looking towards its division by the action of its own people into two or more States?

Mr. PLATT. Does the Senator wish me to reply?

Mr. TURPIE. There has not been a line of legislation——

Mr. PLATT. If the Senator wishes me to reply now, I will say to him that the provision was contained in the organic act.

Mr. TURPIE. I prefer to go on in regular order.

Mr. PLATT. I beg the Senator's pardon. I thought he was asking a question on a subject about which he would like to be informed.

Mr. TURPIE. I did not ask a question; I made a statement. I shall be very glad to receive such information, and also to learn that the action of the people of the Territory has been in accordance with the organic act. Then I think there will be some foundation for this most unexampled proceeding.

But I wish to say further that I do not think there has been a line of Federal legislation since the organization of the Territory of Dakota which looked to or contemplated in the remotest manner the dismemberment of that Territory or its division in any mode at all, and I am not here to admit that the people of an organized Territory have the sole right to pass upon the question of its division. The people of the Union, to whom the Territory owes its birth, its form, its creation, the whole people of this entire nationality have a right to be heard upon the policy and the propriety of such a division and to consider and determine upon it.

It is said by way of argument in favor of the admission of what is called "South Dakota," that it has a population of between 300,000 and 400,000—Dakota has much more; that it has an area of 77,000 square miles and millions of acres of tillable land—Dakota has much more. If these be arguments in favor of admission, then the argument in favor of the admission of Dakota as a whole is much greater than for the admission of a part thereof.

The Territory of Dakota was organized in 1861, twenty-seven years ago. At that time it had a population of about 50,000. Even at that early day it had largely attracted immigration. During the war the tide of immigration increased. At the close of the war it became enormous in numbers and in every other respect. There are hundreds of thousands of people living within that Territory who were born during the war, and at the time of the great flood of immigration thereto, who have attained maturity and majority as citizens of Dakota. These people have lived long enough together to acquire a homogeneous character. They have been almost the life-time of a generation subject to the same laws, the same usages, the same institutions, the same form of government; and we may imagine, may indeed presume, that under the plastic arts of civil society incident to so prolonged an association they have formed ties which ought not to be rudely torn asunder.

For myself I would as soon vote for the division of a State as for the division of a Territory under these circumstances; and yet the history of the country affords but one example of the division of a State. The State was a very large one, but it was not divided on account of its size, it was divided for very different reasons.

It is said, however, in excuse for this glaring innovation upon Federal usage and tradition, that the people of the Territory have desired and expressed a wish for division. Is that position justifiable or defensible? As a matter of fact the question of division has never been proposed at an election. I speak advisedly. The question of division has never been the subject of an election. I admit that it was the subject of a vote at an election—at an election covered all over, superimposed, by other questions more directly appealing to the local and personal interests of the people of this fragment of the Territory which is now seeking admission. That question in relation to division was proposed at the same time as the general election held for officers of the new State government, held for the Legislature which chose Senators to this body, held for the choice of Representatives in the other branch of Congress, held for the choice of a full staff of State officers in the new government. It is easy to conceive how large groups of voters were influenced in their ballot on the question of division in this part of the Territory, not with reference to their feelings or interests in respect to Territorial integrity, but with reference to the issues raised by the matters to which I have called the attention of the Senate. For instance, there would be at such an election held in a certain quarter a large group of voters subject to influence on account of the locality of the anticipated capital. Property in the neighborhood of such capital would be undoubtedly largely appreciated by the location of it. Another large group of voters would be controlled in their votes on the question of division by the views of their friends, eminent gentlemen who were to represent this fragment of Dakota upon the floor of the Senate, men very eminent, with large followings, with wide acquaintance. It is not to be presumed that they were silent or inactive upon the decision of this question. The same may be said of the State officers and of the Congressmen. Then it is not, indeed, too much to presume that an election, organized under these circumstances, was colored, tinted, not to say tainted, in the strongest hues by partisan feeling and by personal and local interests. If ever any attention is to be paid to the result of a popular election at all on the question of division of a Territory the very slightest weight ought to be given to a result obtained under such influences—a very meager majority for division, a very large majority of South Dakota in favor of division and almost as large a majority in North Dakota against it, this pretended vote for division being made up by the aggregate difference of the majorities between the separate votes of the two sections.

I do not think that gives any true expression of the popular will upon such a subject. If the people of Dakota really wish division we should have had a vote almost unanimous here in favor of such action years ago. We should not have been delayed with discussing the possibility of what their wishes were by any examination of as doubtful results as those which have been submitted to the committee in support of the Platt bill.

Moreover, we have a later expression of the will of the people of this Territory on this very subject. I allude now to the action of the convention held at the city of Aberdeen. That convention assembled on the 15th of last December, since the meeting of the present Congress. It was called on the personal request and the autograph signatures of fifteen thousand citizens of Dakota, residing in all the different counties of the whole Territory. That is a constituency three thousand larger than the vote polled for the Platt constitution. It is a constituency much more general and extensive in its character, composed of citizens of every county in the whole Territory.

I am speaking now of the call for the convention. When the convention met it was attended by delegates from nearly all the counties, and especially by a large delegation from the counties in Southern Dakota. The people of Southern Dakota seemed to have reconsidered their action on the question of division, and this convention, composed of over three hundred delegates selected from every county in the whole Territory, deliberately petitioned Congress for the passage of the enabling act provided for in the bill introduced by the honorable Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER]. There has been no counteraction against the determination of this convention. There has been no protest since it met. It is the latest, largest, undeniable expression of the people of Dakota upon this subject.

The honorable Senator from Minnesota called this convention a unique body, even a grotesque body. I do not think it is justly obnoxious to such epithets. What is there peculiar about it? The inhabitants of the Territory of Dakota, although not inhabitants of a State, had one right, indeed all the rights of citizens of the United States as such; and one of those rights, one of the primary, inalienable rights, is that of peaceably assembling and petitioning for the redress of grievances. That was the character of the convention at Aberdeen, and allow me to say, with all due respect to the learned and honorable Senator from Minnesota, that more than two-thirds of the States admitted into this Union have been admitted upon proceedings precisely analogous to those had by that convention held at Aberdeen in the Territory of Dakota in December last. There is nothing singular or extraordinary in the action of that people. On the contrary, it is the most formal, regular, and de jure expression of their sentiments which has been made upon the question of either division or admission. Upon both these questions its utterance is clear and emphatic. The people of the whole Territory are against division. The people of the whole Territory desire the passage of an enabling act as a step direct into the family of States.

I was about to ask, sir, what do the inhabitants of this semi-Territory, and demi-State, called South Dakota, propose to do with the remnant left outside? They propose to make a new Territory of it. That is their proposition.

You will recollect, Mr. President, for no man can fail to remember what an appalling picture of abject misery, despair, and wretchedness was drawn by the Senators who preceded me on that side, of a people living under a system of Territorial government. It made an impression on the hearer as one of the pages of Carlyle, descriptive of the reign of terror in the first French revolution. Now these people, these petitioners, propose in cold blood to consign 150,000 or 200,000 of their fellow-citizens to the tender mercies, to all the delays, the oppressions, the hardships, the injustice of Federal appointees, judges, and governors, who in the course of law must preside over this new Territory for an indefinite period. Is that proposition unique? It is something more. It seems to me that is a most ungracious proposal from their point of view, full of cruelty and atrocity.

Further, these inhabitants of this fragment, South Dakota, propose to name the new Territory Lincoln, after the name of one whose memory is canonized in the hearts of the American people for his love of freedom, his hatred of oppression, his all-enduring and all-embracing charity both in sentiment and in action. What evil spirit projected such a frightful misnomer? Name it Lincoln! The scene of this outrage, the very arena, the place and home of this continued tyranny and oppression, is to be named after this martyr of liberty, this advocate of social and political freedom! Is not this a travesty, unique and grotesque, upon a name so justly revered?

But it is said, what is the size of Dakota? The honorable Senator from Connecticut said it would prevent a poor man from participating in the government of the country to admit the State as the Territory is now constituted. Well, sir, I presume if this State were admitted that the capital would be located somewhere in the center. The State is a parallelogram. It is a little over 400 miles each way. The capital would be distant from the most distant Dakotian not more than 250 miles, perhaps not that. I do not think that is a distance which may not be overcome so as to render the capital easy of access.

As was shown before the committee, there are now in the Territory two lines of railroad from north to south and a third in process of construction. Transversely it is traversed already by four railroads at convenient distances from each other, so that I do not think there is an inhabitant of the whole Territory that is now not within a reasonable distance of where the capital is proposed to be in any manner located. I recollect very well in my own State, a time not very remote, when the mileage of senators and representatives by the most ordinary route of travel reached in many cases 250 and in several cases 300 miles. I have known the time in an adjoining State when a rise in the Sangamon and freshets in other rivers made the capital of that State so inaccessible as not to be reached except by a detour much longer than will ever be undertaken by any inhabitant of Dakota to reach the seat of government. I recollect the time when even the western districts of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh and the adjacent regions, were distant in time much farther from Harrisburg or from Philadelphia than any inhabitant of Dakota can be from his capital in the future. There was constant difficulty in many States in that respect before the completion of the present railroad system, which has done so much to facilitate intercourse; but in this Territory of Dakota there is no such barrier, there is no stream impassable, there is nothing to prevent, but there is everything to encourage the presumption that any man who wishes to participate in the government, by presence in the lobby for instance, at the new capital may go, and that the mileage of the members of the Legislature will not be excessive.

The size of the Territory is referred to very frequently. One would almost imagine that there is a physical, mechanical obstruction in the very size, and that having entered the doorway of the Union it would prevent future accessions and further entries. I assure Senators upon the other side that such imagination is entirely vain. We need not receive Dakota by piecemeal. We can take her whole without disturbing in the least the equilibrium of the Federal Union.

All the States admitted, in modern times at least, have been large States as compared with some of those which are called the smaller. South Carolina, New Jersey, Delaware, Rhode Island—these smaller States were never admitted into the Union; they have prescribed conditions for the admission of others. These were charter members of the grand lodge and order of American liberty.

Dakota, large as she is, with her millions of acres and her thousands of square miles, may be much aggrandized by admission into the Union upon an equal footing with the smallest, the least of the original members, the thirteen colonies who first declared and achieved national independence. If Dakota is large, the Union is yet larger. Dakota, with its present area, is not so great in comparison with the area of the whole country as either New York, Pennsylvania, or Virginia was to the area of the Union of the thirteen original States.

Sir, it has become the fashion, the mode, to admit large States and to admit no others. Nebraska, for instance, large enough to make two States the size of Indiana, was admitted just as she was; who proposed or thought of dividing it? Minnesota, large enough to make three States the size of South Carolina; who proposed its partition? Certainly not the distinguished Senator who represents it upon this floor, nor any of his illustrious predecessors.

I am not aware that the superficial area, the mere size of a State, has much to do with its fortunes, its power, its influence, or its character. Massachusetts might be accounted an undersized State; the truth is she is a large State, one of the very largest—large enough to hold the sites of Lexington, of Concord, of Bunker Hill—large enough to have been the home of the first bard, poet, and prophet of this vast region now in argument, this fertile Lapland of our Western zone, the land of the Dakotas. The poet foresaw the evil of this very day. He spoke of it in words of portentous warning—

> Then a dark and dreary vision
> Passed before me, vague and cloud like,
> I beheld our people severed,
> All forgetful of my counsels,
> Saw the remnants of our people
> Weakened, warring with each other.

Sir, this is not only a prediction, it is an exact and accurate description, of the political condition of the people of this Territory prior to the assemblage and action of the convention which met at the city of Aberdeen in December last. How may we restore peace, harmony, and unity to this great people already so prosperous? We may do it by maintaining, preserving, and securing the territorial integrity of Dakota.

Shall we, the special representatives of the States, who have always been the advocates of popular local autonomy, who have been for almost a century the guardians and protectors of the solidarity of peoples living under the form of Territorial government—shall we now, because certain spirits of discord and dissension have disagreed with respect to its future form, guidance, and management, whet the knife to cut this child in twain? That is no remedy for these evils.

To note, and I hope it will not be discourteous to note, what may not be so apparent, the honorable Senator from Connecticut who has introduced this bill for the admission of a portion of this Territory undoubtedly would like to connect his name—a very laudable ambition—with the entrance of a new State into the Union, to be considered the legislative founder and maker of a new member of this great family of States. But allow me to ask, why does he come here the representative of this segmentary fraction, of this dissevered portion of the people and soil of Dakota? Why may he not stand side by side with the Senator from South Carolina as co-sponsor for Dakota unbroken, with her magnificent domain undiminished, and with all her borders unmarred?

Mr. CULLOM. Mr. President, it is with some reluctance that I take the floor to occupy the time of the Senate, but being upon the Committee on Territories, and having had something to do with the report of the bill now under consideration, I think it proper that I should say a few words.

Divested of everything that does not really belong to the question, it seems to me that the pertinent inquiry of the Senate ought to be, Whether the proposed Territory, in the first place, has a right to form itself into a Territorial government, and then, if it has, whether it has the requisite population, wealth, and civilization to justify the Congress of the United States in admitting it into the Union?

Before I proceed to the discussion of any other feature of the subject, I may be allowed to refer to the honorable Senator from Indiana, who has just taken his seat, and who starts out upon the supposition that the portion of Dakota known as South Dakota has no legal right to come here and ask admission as a State in the Union.

I believe the honorable Senator asserted that there was nothing in any statute which looked in any degree to the division of the Territory of Dakota. I desire to call his attention in the outset to the statute passed in 1861, being "An act to provide a temporary government for the Territory of Dakota, and to create the office of surveyor-general therein," which contains this provision of law:

> Provided further, That nothing in this act contained shall be construed to inhibit the Government of the United States from dividing said Territory into two or more Territories in such manner and at such times as Congress shall deem convenient and proper, or from attaching any portion thereof to any other Territory or State.

I submit to the honorable Senator, notwithstanding his assertion that the people of South Dakota are and have been acting entirely outside of authority, whether they are not acting entirely and technically within the limits of the statute of the Congress of the United States passed in 1861? That statute expressly negatives the idea that the people of that Territory should not have the right to divide it into more States or Territories than one, or that the Congress of the United States should not have the right to divide it, or lop off a portion of the Territory if it chose and attach it to some other Territory or State of the Union. Yet we are told that these people have been doing an unwarranted act from the time they commenced their effort to get into the Union as a State with the boundaries that are known now as South Dakota.

The whole foundation of the Senator's speech—except the talk about the size of the proposed State and the convenience of travel in that country—is based on the assumption that no such thing as this was ever attempted anywhere else, or at any other time in the history of this Government. Yet when you go to the statutes you find when the State of Oregon was admitted—and I believe he referred to the State of Oregon—the people composing a certain territory organized themselves into a Territorial government, formed their constitution, came to the Congress of the United States with their constitution, with the boundaries fixed and prescribed in it, and the Congress of the United States without any enabling act whatever took hold of the subject and passed an act admitting the Territory of Oregon into the Union as a State; and instead of fixing the boundary as the people of the Territory had fixed it, they proceeded to add this provision of law when they admitted the Territory of Oregon into the Union:

> And be it further enacted, That until Congress shall otherwise direct, the residue of the Territory of Oregon shall be, and is hereby, incorporated into and made a part of the Territory of Washington.

Thereby, as I understand this statute, taking off a portion of the original limits fixed in the constitution and giving it to the Territory of Washington. If I am not right in that statement, the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH] will correct me.

Mr. DOLPH. I have not looked at it in many years, but I am inclined to think that the Senator is wrong. I think the constitution framed by the proposed State fixed the limit, but did not embrace all of the Territory of Oregon, and Congress simply provided in the act referred to that that part of the Territory of Oregon not embraced in the limits of the new State should be incorporated into and become a part of the Territory of Washington.

Mr. CULLOM. I stand corrected. That then is the meaning of the statute from which I have read. I have just had my attention called to it and have not had time to look at it carefully.

Mr. DOLPH. While I am on the floor I should like to state another historical fact, that Oregon sent her Senators and Representatives here and they were admitted, the Representatives in the House of Representatives and the Senators in the Senate, as soon as the act took effect, the very day that the act became a law.

Mr. CULLOM. So these propositions made by the honorable Senators on the other side of this Chamber in opposition to the admission of South Dakota because, as is alleged, there is no warrant of law for the action on the part of the people of South Dakota that they have taken, fall to the ground by reference to the statute in relation to Dakota and also to the statute in relation to the Territory of Oregon.

If that is so, what is there in this case? Everybody knows that there is population enough in the Territory of Dakota called South Dakota to justify its admission as a State. Everybody knows that the educational interests and all that make up a community worthy of the admission of that Territory into the Union as a State are existing there to-day, and have been for years.

Now let us see a little in relation to the history of this whole proceeding on the part of these people, wearied and worried in their efforts to get into the Union. Let us see what they have been doing in hese years. The statute that I read was passed on the 2d of March, 1861, in which the clause is inserted which expressly negatives the idea that they shall not be prohibited from dividing the Territory if they should see proper to do so. What has occurred with reference to those people and the Congress of the United States? At the last session of the Forty-eighth Congress—and I have taken a little pains to run through the records and see what the record showed on that subject—the Senate Committee on Territories reported an enabling act for the admission of South Dakota. Let us see what has been going on on the part of those people in their efforts to get admitted as a State into the Union.

For many years the people of Dakota, through the Territorial Legislature, have petitioned Congress to divide the Territory upon the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude. In January, 1871, such a memorial, praying for a division and organization of two Territorial governments, was adopted unanimously by the Legislature of that Territory. In December, 1872, the Legislature of that Territory adopted another memorial asking for a division of the Territory. On this the vote was unanimous in the council and 21 to 4 in the house. In 1874 the Legislature again adopted a memorial praying for division and the organization of the north part into a Territory. On this the vote was unanimous in the house and 12 to 1 in the council. In January, 1877, a similar memorial was adopted by the Legislature without a dissenting vote in either branch. In 1879 a protest against the admission of the whole Territory as one State was passed.

The honorable Senators from South Carolina and Indiana seem to assume that whatever has been said or done by the people of Dakota looking to a division of this Territory and the admission of the south part into the Union as a State, has not been done by any portion of the people of that Territory participating in that movement except those living in the south part and belonging to South Dakota, but that the whole movement has been by the politicians, as the honorable Senator from South Carolina saw proper to characterize them, and was not a reflection or a declaration on the part of the people in favor of the division of the Territory, while the record shows that year after year, and year after year, through their Legislative Assemblies representing the whole Territory, one memorial after another was adopted by that Legislature in different years, and sent here to the Congress of the United States asking Congress to divide that Territory and make a State of the south part and a State of the north part as well.

And yet we are met to-day by gentlemen who are basing their opposition simply upon that Aberdeen convention, which had no legislative authority behind it, and for which there was no regular election called, but which was based simply upon town meetings, mass meetings getting together as they might, and sending delegates to the Aberdeen convention, asking the Congress of the United States to admit the whole Territory as one State into the Union. The movement on the part of those people from the beginning, except as to the Aberdeen convention, has been entirely regular, because every time they petitioned or memorialized Congress until they adopted the constitution of 1885, the action taken was the action of the Legislature of the Territory made up of members from every portion of it, and adopted almost unanimously in every instance and sent here, asking, pleading to be admitted as a State into the Union, first by an enabling act time and time again, and then, finally, receiving no encouragement at the hands of the Congress of the United States, or at least not very much, they adopted a constitution, fixed their boundaries, and are now before us asking for admission as a State without any enabling act. And yet these people are traduced, I may say, and it is charged that the men who took part in the movement in favor of the division of the Territory are simply a gang of politicians seeking office, and do not represent the masses of the people.

In 1881 a memorial praying for division into three Territories was passed with ten negative votes in the house and three in the council. I did not understand before why that memorial was passed, but I find that this provision of law was the provision perhaps that encouraged them to believe that they might get three States if they desired to ask for that many.

In 1883 a bill for a constitutional convention to frame a constitution for South Dakota was passed with practical unanimity, but the governor withheld his signature.

In 1885, with the same unanimity, the Legislature passed another act for a constitutional convention for South Dakota. This convention was held at Sioux Falls in September, 1885, and it framed a constitution which was ratified by a vote of 25,236 for to 6,565 against. In addition, this Legislature passed unanimously a memorial to Congress praying for the division of the Territory and the admission of the south part as a State. This Legislature also contained double the membership of former ones, and was elected after the question of division had been agitated in Congress and the Senate had passed an enabling act for South Dakota. Its unanimous petition surely must be assumed to represent the sentiment of the people of the whole Territory; and yet, I repeat, we are told by those who are unwilling to allow this Territory to be divided, that the sentiments of the people are not in favor of division, notwithstanding through this whole period from 1871 to 1885, when they adopted the constitution which is before Congress for consideration, there has been almost a unanimous vote of the whole Territory through its legislative body when the question was submitted to them for discussion; but still we are told that we ought not to consider that, but that we ought to take the Aberdeen convention as evidence that the people are not in favor of division.

From 1871 down to 1885, without, I believe, the omission of a single session, the people of the Territory, through their Legislature, have been memorializing Congress for a division of the Territory, and these Legislatures contained members from North as well as South Dakota; and yet in nearly every case the vote on these memorials was unanimous and in all cases practically so. The question of admission and division has been the most important one in the minds of the people of Dakota during all these years, and such unanimous action by their chosen representatives must certainly express the wish and desire of the people of that Territory.

Now, sir, what has Congress been doing? At the first session of the Forty-eighth Congress the Senate Committee on Territories reported an enabling act for the admission of South Dakota, Senate bill 1682, I believe it was. At the beginning of the second session of that Congress the Senate proceeded to the consideration of that bill. On December 9, 1884, Mr. Harrison moved to proceed with its consideration, whereupon Mr. VEST demanded the yeas and nays. The motion prevailed. Every Republican who was recorded voted in the affirmative, and every Democrat in the negative. So the RECORD will show that at every step which has been taken in Congress the Democratic representatives on this floor, for some reason or other, have opposed every movement that was made looking to the admission of South Dakota as a State.

Mr. BUTLER. Will it interrupt the Senator if I ask him a question?

Mr. CULLOM. I guess not.

Mr. BUTLER. I would call his attention to a historical fact that occurred in this body, that I think will to some extent modify his statement. The Senator has been giving a history of this legislation so conveniently as to omit one very important part of it—I presume it escaped his attention, however—that is that on February 5, 1886, a protest was presented to this body by the honorable Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE] against the admission.

Mr. PLATT. In 1886?

Mr. BUTLER. I do not know that the protest was presented in 1886, but the RECORD of February 5, 1886, contains it. I see that it was originally presented March 21, 1882. The honorable Senator from Maine then presented a protest to this body against the admission of the Territory of Dakota on the ground that they had repudiated——

Mr. SPOONER. It did not come from the Territory.

Mr. BUTLER. But that is not the point. The Senator from Illinois stated a moment ago that in every movement for the admission of the Territory, every Republican had voted for it and every Democrat against it. I simply wanted to correct the Senator and show him that that was not strictly and entirely correct.

Mr. CULLOM. Is that all?

Mr. BUTLER. All for the present.

Mr. CULLOM. Well, sir, so far as the Senator's interruption is concerned, and the suggestion he makes, in every vote that I have found in the RECORD upon the question of the admission of South Dakota—if the Senator himself will look at the votes actually recorded, I am inclined to think that he will find that the Republicans all voted for it and the Democrats all against it.

I will say further that so far as the protest referred to by the Senator from South Carolina is concerned, while I had not the honor of being a member of the Senate at that time, yet my recollection is that that was a protest coming from the outside involving the question of whether the Territory was acting honestly about its funded debt or something of that sort, or rather one particular county of it; and that the protest had no relation whatever to the question of the admission of South Dakota as a State.

Mr. BUTLER. The object of the protest was against the admission.

Mr. CULLOM. But the primary object of it on the part of the men who got it up was to see if they could not collect their debt, and it does not interfere with what I am stating that in the record of the Senate whenever the yeas and nays have been called in favor of proceeding with a bill for the admission of South Dakota, or upon a vote upon the passage of such a bill, you will find, unless I have overlooked some of the votes, that in every instance the Republicans have voted for it and the Democrats have voted against it.

Mr. BUTLER. How has it been when there was an opportunity to vote for the admission of the whole Territory?

Mr. CULLOM. The Republicans voted in favor of a division of the Territory because the people of the Territory were in favor of it and because the right in the premises was in favor of the division of the Territory, taking into account all the interests of the country and, as the Senator from Indiana has said, the question of size as well. Now, let me go on.

After a debate, in which the bill was opposed among others by Messrs. Garland, VEST, and MORGAN, the bill was passed December 16, 1884—yeas 34, nays 28. Every affirmative vote was cast by Republicans and every negative vote was cast by Democrats.

January 28, 1885, the bill was taken from the Speaker's table in the House of Representatives and referred to the Committee on Territories, which was the last ever heard of it in that distinguished Democratic body, if I may be allowed to refer to it.

Early in the first session of the last Congress, on January 11, 1886, the Senate Committee on Territories reported a bill for the admission of the State of Dakota and the organization of the Territory of Lincoln. Debate upon this measure began on January 27, 1886, the bill being opposed among others by Messrs. BUTLER, VEST, MORGAN, and BECK, and on February 5, 1886, the vote was taken on Mr. BUTLER'S amendment to admit the whole Territory, which was rejected—yeas 22, all Democrats, nays 33, all Republicans except Mr. VOORHEES. On the passage of the bill the vote was yeas 32, 31 Republicans and Mr. VOORHEES, nays 22, all Democrats.

On February 9 the House referred the bill to the Committee on Territories, which held it until May 25, when it was reported back adversely and no further action taken.

Mr. President, I have thus given you a brief outline or sketch of what has transpired in that Territory with reference to a division of the Territory and the admission of South Dakota, and of what has transpired in the Congress of the United States in relation to their appeals to Congress, knocking at the door for admission, and I submit after all that has been recited and which is upon the record, whether it is in good faith toward those people or whether it is fair to them that Senators shall stand upon this floor and denounce the efforts that have been made on their part and characterize their efforts as the eccentricity of a gang of ambitious politicians seeking for office, when the record shows by their constituted local authorities the whole Territory has spoken every time in favor of the division until you get to the Aberdeen convention. And the Senator from Minnesota says that they have been denounced as insolent also, which was the language of the honorable Senator from South Carolina. I am not sure that he has got it in the RECORD. As I read his speech to-day, it did not sound to me as it did when I heard it. While I am not making the statement that the Senator has changed the RECORD, yet his speech seems to me very much modified in tone from what it was as I heard it.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator will find that I have not modified the language of my speech in the slightest.

Mr. CULLOM. In looking over it, I did not find the expression I had in my mind. I will read it, however:

> But, sir, I will never consent, and I will protest to the last against the insolent demands of a few self-seeking politicians who have brandished their insolence in the face of Congress and maligned and misrepresented every man in either House of Congress who has dared to take issue with them.

Who has been "taking issue with them?" I find it is there exactly as I had it down in my notes.

Mr. BUTLER. I have not modified my language. I am not in the habit of doing that.

Mr. CULLOM. I am not making any charges against the Senator; but it sounded differently from what appeared when I came to read it over quietly.

Mr. BUTLER. It sounds very well now.

Mr. CULLOM. The trouble with me is that I can not quite throw the intensity into these remarks with which they were uttered.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator ought to borrow a little of the power of the Senator from Massachusetts on his left [Mr. HOAR], such as he displayed yesterday.

Mr. CULLOM. Now let us go further. What is the situation? I am not going into the general history of the admission of States into the Union, because it seems to be perfectly clear that so far as the Constitution is concerned there is no question but that the people of South Dakota have a right to come here as they have come, and ask at our hands admission as a State into the Union. Then let us see whether they are fit to be represented, and whether it is not in the interest of this Republic that this Territory should be divided.

It the first place, I admit that there is no special danger to the Republic in the fact that one State is smaller than another, that there is irregularity in the size of the States in territorial area. I do not realize that there is anything serious about that, because we have got along pretty well so far as that question has been concerned heretofore; but is it not better that the Congress of the United States, having this subject in its own control, so far as it can do so consistently, should attempt to make the States of the Union substantially of nearly the same territorial size? And that has been the history of the Government in a large degree.

Let us see how that is. Suppose we divide this Territory as the constitution before us proposes to divide it, and that we erect the State of South Dakota; it will have in it 77,000 square miles. Nebraska has 76,000; Missouri has 65,000; Iowa has 55,000; Wisconsin has 54,000; Kansas has 81,000; Minnesota, 83,000. Then take the Middle States. Illinois has 55,000 square miles and a little over; Indiana has 34,000; Ohio has 40,000; Michigan, 56,000; Arkansas, 52,000; Kentucky, 38,000; Tennessee, 45,000; Alabama. 51,000; Louisiana, 41,000; Mississippi, 47,000; Georgia, 58,000; Florida, 59,000; South Carolina, 34,000; North Carolina, 51,000; Virginia, 38,000; West Virginia, 23,000; Maryland, 11,000. Then take the more Northern States. Pennsylvania has 46,000 square miles; Delaware, 2,120; New Jersey, 8,320; New York, 47,000; Massachusetts, 7,800; Maine, 35,000; New Hampshire, 9,280; Connecticut, 4,750; Vermont, 10,212; Rhode Island, 1,306. Oregon has 95,000; Colorado, 104,000; California, 189,000; Nevada, 104,000; and Texas, 274,000.

Senators will see that in the main the great bulk of the States are smaller in territorial limits than this proposed State of South Dakota. There are only seven States in the Union that have a greater territorial extent than has the proposed State of South Dakota. While I recognize the fact that it is within the power of Congress to keep this Territory out as a whole or in part, yet upon the question of what is best, taking into account the proportions of other States that are in the Union, I submit whether it is not nearer in accord with the history of our country in the formation and admission of States to divide the Territory than it is to take it in as a whole, making it larger than any other State except two.

I say, then, of the opposition to this bill on the ground of a proposed division, if there is nothing in the Constitution that prevents us from dividing it, the division ought to be made in the interest of fairness, in the interest of the whole country. Then on the score of population, this Territory is knocking at the door of the Senate, and has been for years, with a population very much larger than that of almost any other State that has ever been admitted into the Union—I mean at the time of its admission.

Mr. PLATT. More than twice as many as the population of any other State admitted.

Mr. CULLOM. More than twice as many. Let me give you a few facts on this question; and we might as well come down to the merits of the case as to be pounding away on the admission of this Territory when there is something to support it. Let us see how the States have run. Let us take the States composing the great Northwest Territory, that has been celebrating the opening of that great country under the ordinance of 1787, which has been erected into five great States—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan. Let us see what the record shows in reference to them at the time of their admission.

When Ohio, that great empire in population and wealth, was admitted into the Union it had but 45,365 inhabitants, and yet at the last census, in 1880—and it probably will number half a million more now—that great State numbered 3,198,062. This Territory of South Dakota, coming here with a population of nearly 400,000, has been knocking at the door of Congress for ten years and more, and is denied admission because, forsooth, it is proposed to erect two States there, either of them with 100,000 more population than either of the great States in the Northwest Territory had when they were admitted. They are denied the privilege of statehood for some unaccountable reason.

Take the Northwest Territory, which comprises these five States, and they only numbered altogether at the time they were admitted into the Union 388,882 persons. In 1880, according to the last census, they numbered 11,206,668 persons.

I desire to say here that I am indebted for the suggestion in reference to these figures to the honorable Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR], who has but recently been out in that Territory assisting in doing honor to the great people that inhabit those great States of the Union. When they were admitted into the Union, respectively, they had but a handful of population or anything else.

The Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. DAWES] suggests a contrast of the aggregate population with the population now of South Dakota. As the Senator from Connecticut says, South Dakota to-day numbers about 400,000. All five of these States at the time they were admitted only aggregated 388,882. The average population of these States when admitted was 77,776. That was the average of the five Territories, now the five great States that I have named. The average population in 1880 was 2,241,333.

Let me say that there is nothing, so far as our information goes, that does not warrant me in assuming that by the time South Dakota has lived as a State as long as either of these, it too will teem with its millions of people and its industries in the same proportion that exists with reference to the States to which I have referred.

Let us see a little further. As to rank in population Ohio is the third State in the Union; Indiana is the sixth; Illinois, the fourth; Michigan, the ninth; Wisconsin, the sixteenth. In manufactures—and I may be excused for referring to these statistics a little more at length than would appear to be exactly pertinent to the question before the Senate—in manufactures these are the figures:

Manufactures in 1880.

States.	No. of establishments.	Capital invested.	Hands employed.	Value of product.
Ohio	20,699	$188,939,614	183,609	$348,298,390
Indiana	11,198	65,742,962	69,508	148,006,411
Illinois	14,549	140,652,066	144,727	414,864,673
Michigan	8,873	92,930,959	77,591	150,715,025
Wisconsin	7,674	73,821,802	57,109	128,255,480

According to the census of 1880 the agricultural rank of these five States among the several States was: In number of farms Ohio stood second; Indiana, sixth; Illinois, first; Michigan, twelfth, and Wisconsin, sixteenth. In aggregate value of farms: Ohio, first; Indiana, fifth; Illinois, third; Michigan, seventh; Wisconsin, ninth. In aggregate value of agricultural products: Ohio, third; Indiana, sixth; Illinois, first; Michigan, eighth; Wisconsin, ninth. In number of establishments the relative standing of these States, as compared with all the States, was: Ohio, third; Indiana, sixth; Illinois, fourth; Michigan, seventh; Wisconsin, ninth. In capital invested in manufactures: Ohio, fourth; Illinois, fifth; Indiana, twelfth; Michigan, eighth; Wisconsin, tenth. In value of manufactured products: Ohio, fifth; Illinois, fourth; Indiana, tenth; Michigan, ninth; Wisconsin, eleventh.

I have referred to these figures, which may be a little tedious, for the purpose of showing that while these Territories, when they were admitted as States, were small in population and small in wealth, yet it required but a few decades to bring about a condition of wealth and population that would seem to be unprecedented in the period of time that was required to bring it about.

The Senator from South Carolina—and I desire his attention—was undertaking to show that the people of that Territory were not really in favor of this thing because, out of a voting population, as he said, of 77,000, only 12,000 votes were cast at a particular election—the election, perhaps, of the members to the constitutional convention. The fact is that the record does show that there were only about 61,000 votes then, but the Senator knows that at an election for members to a constitutional convention, when there is nothing else before the people to be voted upon, invariably, in our Northern States and in the Southern States as well, there is but very little interest taken, especially if there is not a sharp contest made on the question, and that was the truth in reference to that case.

But I want to refer to a vote that was referred to yesterday, and I want to put it a little more compactly than the honorable Senator from Minnesota did, because I think the Senate will see that there is a much worse state of thing in some of the States that the honorable Senators on that side of the Chamber represent than there was in the Territory of Dakota when only 12,000 votes were cast when there were 60,000 or 70,000 voters in the Territory.

Take, for instance, Alabama, which has eight Congressional districts. The total number of voters, according to the census of 1880, was 259,884; the total vote cast in 1886 for members of Congress was 86,657, and there were 173,227 votes not cast, or voters not voting, on the theory that all the people who were entitled to vote in 1880 were there still, and I take it for granted there were more, because the Senators from the South say that in their country their interests are growing and their population increasing.

Take the State of Arkansas, which has five Congressional districts. The total number of voters, according to the census of 1880, was 182,977. The total number of votes cast in 1886 for Representatives in Congress was 55,488. The total number of those who had the right to vote, according to the census of 1880, and did not vote, was 127,489.

The State of Georgia, with ten Congressional districts, had in 1880 a voting population of 321,438. The total vote cast for members of Congress in the year 1886 was 27,520. The total number of non-voting voters was 293,918. According to the Senator's theory the gentlemen who are in the House of Representatives, if I may be allowed to refer to that body, are a parcel of politicians, not here representing the mass of the voters of those States.

Take the State of Louisiana, with six Congressional districts. It had a voting population in 1880 of 216,787. The vote polled for Congressmen in 1886 was 84,763. The non-voting voters in that State were 132,024.

Take the State of Mississippi, which has seven Congressional districts, with a voting population in 1880 of 238,532. The total vote polled for members of Congress in 1886 was 45,354. The non-voting voters of that State, according to the census of 1880, amounted to 193,178.

Take the State of North Carolina, with nine members of Congress, and a total voting population in 1880 of 394,750; total vote polled in 1886, 197,214; the non-voting voters of the State, according to the census of 1880, 197,536.

Take the State represented so ably upon this floor by the honorable Senator from South Carolina, with seven Congressional districts. The voting population, according to the census of 1880, was 205,789; the total vote polled for members of Congress in 1886 was 39,072; the number of non-voting voters, according to that census, was 166,717.

The total number of districts is fifty-two, just about the number of members that have been obstructing legislation in another part of this Capitol for the last ten days; with a total voting population, according to the census of 1880, of 1,820,157. The number of votes cast for members of Congress in 1886 was 536,068. The total number of non-voting members, according to the census of 1880, was 1,284,089. The average number of votes cast in these fifty-two Congressional districts was 10,309. The average number of voters in these districts is 35,003.

The figures I have read are grouped together in the following table:

States.	Districts.	Total number voters.	Total vote 1886.	Number not voting.
Alabama	8	259,884	86,657	173,227
Arkansas	5	182,977	55,488	127,489
Georgia	10	321,438	27,520	293,918
Louisiana	6	216,787	84,763	132,024
Mississippi	7	238,532	45,354	193,178
North Carolina	9	394,750	197,214	197,536
South Carolina	7	205,789	39,072	166,717
Total	52	1,820,157	536,068	1,284,089

The average number of votes cast in these fifty-two Congressional districts was 10,309.

The average number of voters in these districts is 35,003.

I have given these figures not for the purpose of stirring up any political animosity, but as an answer to the suggestion of the honorable Senator that the fact that only 12,000 votes were cast in Dakota when there were 60,000 or 70,000 voters actually there was an evidence that it was not a reflection of the sentiment of that people in favor of a division of the Territory and its admission as a State.

I do not know that I ought to take up any more of the time of the Senate, but I am inclined to believe that there must be some explanation we have not yet heard for resisting this bill proposing to admit South Dakota into the Union as a State—some reason which has not been explained. I am inclined to think that a paragraph which I have here, from the Washington Post of this city, will indicate, perhaps, what is the matter with our friends on the other side of this Chamber when they refuse to admit this Territory. The Post said some little time ago, in an editorial:

> The Republicans have for two or three years past been insisting on the admission of Dakota into the family of States. The Democrats have not acceded to this demand for various reasons, one of which is that they have not thought it advisable to complicate the political situation until after the Presidential election of this year.

I am strongly of the opinion that if the honorable Senator from South Carolina, who is now smiling so benignantly upon me, would stand up and tell the honest truth he would admit that the whole opposition to the admission of this Territory as a State into the Union is based on the fact that he and his party associates do not want any further political complications thrust upon the country until after another Presidential election.

Mr. BUTLER. If the Senator will allow me just one moment. I hardly think it is fair to apply that to me when I have steadily voted, whenever there was an opportunity, to admit the whole Territory of Dakota, which is certainly Republican. I hardly think that would be good ground for me. I would do it now.

Mr. CULLOM. The Senator is always ready to do something that nobody else is for. This article goes on:

> No new State will be admitted during the first session of the present Congress, no matter what may be its political status. The figures of the electoral college will not be changed before 1892.

Mr. DAWES. What is that from?

Mr. CULLOM. This is from the Post, the organ of the Democratic party in this city. You do not propose to change the figures. Well, you may prevent us from changing the figures by the admission of South Dakota, giving us a few electoral votes thereby, but we intend to change the figures by the honest votes of the States already in the Union when the election comes on in November next.

I am strengthened in my belief by another little incident. I am not at all in the secrets of the Democratic party as represented in the Congress of the United States, but I think I am warranted in saying, from all that I have heard, that this subject has gotten to be the subject of a serious caucus convention by the Democrats of the two Houses of Congress. It, I suppose, has been decreed by the majority in the other branch, if I may be allowed to say it, and by the members of the Democratic party in the Senate, that no bill shall pass Congress admitting this Territory until after the next Presidential election.

Mr. BUTLER. I am sure that my friend will not require the votes of this Territory in the next election. I understand he has been announced as a candidate for the Presidency, and I am sure he will have quite enough without the vote of this Territory.

Mr. CULLOM. I think so, too. [Laughter.]

Mr. BUTLER. I have no doubt about it.

Mr. CULLOM. Still I should like to have this vote, too. [Laughter.]

Mr. BUTLER. Possibly our amiable friend from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON] might have something to say on that subject—I do not know—or the Senator from Vermont [Mr. EDMUNDS].

Mr. EDMUNDS. I shall have something to say on the subject before we get through.

Mr. CULLOM. Mr. President, I have concluded substantially what I desired to say, but I wish to refer again to my honorable friend from Indiana. He makes quite an argument upon the proposition that Illinois in its earlier days had its troubles in crossing the Sangamon, which is near my own city and in my own county, which became occasionally an obstruction to travel from one place to another when they had to cross. That is all true, and so it is of every other State in the Union that has got any water in it; and we have plenty of it there, and other things to match.

So far as that is concerned I recognize the fact that the Territory of Dakota, as a whole, is a somewhat level surface, the most of it, and probably not cut up by large streams, and possibly travel across from one part to the other is more easily done than it is in other portions of the country where they have not the advantage of bridges, etc. But that has nothing to do with the question. Here we present to you a Territory which asks admission, as large as any other State in the Union with the exception of seven, larger than most of them, with all capacities, with its 62,000,000 bushels of wheat raised during the year 1887, and I understand that great amount of wheat will be largely increased in quantity by the crop of 1888.

It has its wealth in agriculture, in mines, and in all that makes a great commonwealth. It has its universities, it has its school of mines, it has its school-houses, it has its churches, and it has a population as far along in the advancement of all that makes a people great and prosperous and wealthy as is the population of almost any State in the Union.

Mr. EDMUNDS. It has everything except barbaric politics.

Mr. CULLOM. The honorable Senator from Vermont on my right says it has everything except barbaric politics. I agree that that is so. That reminds me that the honorable Senator from South Carolina became very eloquent and indignant in his declarations against the provisions of the memorial presented by the convention which adopted the constitution because they were frank enough to say that they wanted nothing but a State of the Union as they had carved it out, and for which they had been waiting and waiting for ten years and more. It was only an outburst of that courage and manhood which belong to the people of the West, and which I do not blame them for, although perhaps it might have been a little indiscreet in view of the fact that they were going to meet opposition in this august body.

Mr. President, I shall not detain the Senate any longer.

Mr. JONES, of Arkansas. I move that when the Senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

Mr. SPOONER. I desire to address the Senate briefly in support of the pending bill If the Senator from Arkansas will allow me to take the floor I will yield for a motion to adjourn.

Mr. JONES, of Arkansas. I have no objection to that.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair will recognize the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] on the pending bill.

Mr. SPOONER. I yield for the motion of the Senator from Arkansas.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

Mr. JONES, of Arkansas. I renew my motion.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES] moves that when the Senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

Mr. DOLPH. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. EVARTS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN]. I do not know how he would vote. So I can not vote.

The roll-call was concluded.

Mr. HARRIS (after having voted in the affirmative). I voted, but I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL], who is absent on account of indisposition. I see that his colleague voted "nay," and I therefore withdraw my vote.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Tennessee withdraws his vote.

Mr. WILSON, of Maryland. I am paired with the Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON]. Not knowing how he would vote, I shall refrain from voting.

The result was announced—yeas 26, nays 20; as follows.

YEAS—26.

Bate,	Colquitt,	Palmer,	Spooner,
Bowen,	Faulkner,	Pasco,	Stewart,
Call,	George,	Payne,	Vance,
Cameron,	Gorman,	Pugh,	Vest,
Chandler,	Jones of Arkansas.	Quay,	Walthall.
Cockrell,	Mitchell,	Ransom,
Coke,	Morgan,	Saulsbury,

NAYS—20.

Aldrich,	Butler,	Edmunds,	Platt,
Allison,	Chace,	Farwell,	Reagan,
Berry,	Cullom,	Frye,	Sawyer,
Blair,	Dawes,	Hiscock,	Sherman,
Brown,	Dolph,	Hoar,	Stockbridge.

ABSENT—30.

Beck,	Gray,	Kenna,	Stanford,
Blackburn,	Hale,	McPherson,	Teller,
Blodgett,	Hampton,	Manderson,	Turpie,
Daniel,	Harris,	Morrill,	Voorhees,
Davis,	Hawley,	Paddock,	Wilson of Iowa,
Eustis,	Hearst,	Plumb,	Wilson of Md.
Evarts,	Ingalls,	Riddleberger,
Gibson,	Jones of Nevada,	Sabin,

So the motion was agreed to.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. HARRIS. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After twenty-two minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 5 o'clock and 35 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until Monday, April 16, 1888, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate, April 12, 1888.

CONSUL.

Thomas T. Tunstall, of Mobile, Ala., to be consul of the United States at San Salvador, vice L. J. Du Pré, resigned.

REVENUE SERVICE.

Herbert W. York, of New York, to be a second assistant engineer in the Revenue Service of the United States, vice Thomas B. Brown, promoted.

John R. Coyle, of Maine, to be a second assistant engineer in the Revenue Service of the United States, vice Charles F. Dyce, promoted.

Second Assistant Engineer Thomas B. Brown, of Pennsylvania, to be a first assistant engineer in the revenue service of the United States, to fill an original vacancy.

Second Assistant Engineer Charles F. Dyce, of Pennsylvania, to be a first assistant engineer in the revenue service of the United States, vice James Ogdin, deceased.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate, April 12, 1888.

TERRITORIAL ASSOCIATE JUSTICE.

John Lee Logan, of New York, to be associate justice of the supreme court of the Territory of Idaho.

PENSION AGENT.

Jacob Schenkelberger, of New York, to be pension agent at Syracuse, in the State of New York.

INDIAN AGENTS.

Thomas McCunniff, of Alamosa, Colo., to be agent for the Indians of the Southern Ute agency, in Colorado.

Joseph B. Lane, of East Portland, Oregon, to be agent for the Indians of the Siletz agency, in Oregon.

Enos Gheen, of Mount Pleasant, Iowa, to be agent for the Indians of the Sac and Fox agency, in Iowa.

REGISTERS OF LAND OFFICE.

Julien E. Pardee, of Quincy, Cal., to be register of the land office at Susanville, Cal.

H. H. Dickman, of Minnesota, to be register of the land office at Crookston, Minn.

J. H. Woodworth, of Waupaca, Wis., to be register of the land office at Menasha, Wis.

POSTMASTERS.

Miss Julia H. Bronson, to be postmaster at Clinton, Oneida County, New York.

Thomas Murphy, to be postmaster at Mechanicsville, Saratoga County, New York.

Henry Pape, sr., to be postmaster at Jacksonville, Jackson County, Oregon.

Thomas Francis Meagher, to be postmaster at Sprague, Lincoln County, Territory of Washington.

Barton J. Morrow, to be postmaster at Neosho, in the county of Newton and State of Missouri.

James C. Frost, to be postmaster at Anoka, in the county of Anoka and State of Minnesota.

John H. Andrick, to be postmaster at McGregor, in the county of Clayton and State of Iowa.

Stephen W. Coffman, to be postmaster at Watsonville, in the county of Santa Cruz and State of California.

William F. Jones, to be postmaster at Eaton, in the county of Preble and State of Ohio.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, April 4, 1888.

[CALENDAR DAY, April 11, 1888.]

AFTER RECESS.

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at 11.45 a. m. (Thursday, April 12).

Mr. REED. I call for the regular order.

Mr. RANDALL addressed the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The regular order is demanded.

Mr. RANDALL. I ask unanimous consent to submit the following——

Mr. REED. Regular order.

Mr. COX. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. RANDALL. I hope the gentleman from New York will not insist on that motion at this moment.

Mr. COX. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. REED. On the motion of the gentleman from New York [Mr. COX] I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. RANDALL again addressed the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Maine calls for the regular order.

Mr. TOWNSHEND. I submit that the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. RANDALL] has the right to state for what purpose he rises.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Pennsylvania ask unanimous consent to make a statement?

Mr. REED. I demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York [Mr. COX] moves that the House do now adjourn; and upon that motion the gentleman from Maine [Mr. REED] asks for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 130, nays 133, not voting 62; as follows:

YEAS—130.

Abbott,	Cummings,	Lanham,	Rowland,
Anderson, Ill.	Davidson, Fla.	Lawler,	Russell, Mass.
Bacon,	Dibble,	Lee,	Rusk,
Bankhead,	Dockery,	Macdonald,	Sayers,
Barnes,	Dougherty,	Mahoney,	Seney,
Barry,	Dunn,	Maish,	Smith.
Belmont,	Elliott,	Mansur,	Snyder,
Biggs.	Enloe,	Martin,	Springer,
Blanchard,	Ermentrout,	McAdoo,	Stahlnecker,
Bliss,	Foran,	McClammy,	Stewart, Tex.
Blount,	Ford,	McCreary,	Stewart, Ga.
Breckinridge, Ark.	French,	McKinney,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Gay,	McMillin,	Stone, Ky.
Bryce,	Glass,	McRae,	Stone, Mo.
Buckalew,	Greenman,	McShane,	Tarsney,
Burnes,	Grimes,	Montgomery,	Taulbee,
Burnett,	Hall,	Moore,	Townshend,
Bynum,	Hare,	Morgan,	Turner, Ga.
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hatch,	Morse,	Vance,
Campbell, Ohio	Hayes,	Neal,	Walker,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Henderson, N. C.	Newton,	Washington,
Candler,	Herbert,	Norwood,	Weaver,
Carlton,	Holman,	Oates,	Wheeler,
Caruth,	Hooker,	O'Ferrall,	Whiting, Mich.
Catchings,	Hopkins, Va.	O'Neall, Ind.	Whitthorne,
Chipman,	Howard,	Outhwaite,	Wilkins,
Clements,	Hudd,	Peel,	Wilkinson,
Compton,	Johnston, N. C.	Penington,	Wilson, Minn.
Cowles,	Jones,	Randall,	Wilson, W. Va.
Cox,	Kilgore,	Rayner,	Wise,
Crain,	Laffoon,	Rice,	Carlisle, Speaker.
Crisp,	Landes,	Richardson,
Culberson,	Lane,	Robertson,

NAYS—133.

Adams,	Darlington,	Kerr,	Russell, Conn.
Allen, Mass.	Davenport,	Laidlaw.	Ryan,
Allen, Mich.	Davis,	Laird,	Sawyer,
Anderson, Iowa	Dingley,	Lehlbach,	Scull,
Anderson, Kans.	Dorsey,	Lind,	Seymour,
Atkinson,	Farquhar,	Lodge,	Sherman,
Baker, N. Y.	Finley,	Long,	Sowden,
Baker, Ill.	Flood,	Lyman,	Spooner,
Bayne,	Fuller,	Mason,	Steele,
Belden,	Funston,	McComas,	Stephenson,
Boothman,	Gaines,	McCormick,	Stewart, Vt.
Bound,	Gallinger,	McKenna,	Struble,
Boutelle,	Gear,	McKinley,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Bowden,	Gest,	Moffitt,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bowen,	Goff,	Morrill,	Thomas, Ky.
Brewer,	Grosvenor,	Morrow,	Thomas, Wis.
Brower,	Grout,	Nelson,	Turner, Kans.
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Guenther,	Nichols,	Vandever,
Brown, Ohio	Harmer,	Nutting,	Wade,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Haugen,	O'Donnell,	Warner,
Brumm,	Henderson, Iowa	O'Neill, Pa.	Weber.
Buchanan,	Henderson, Ill.	Osborne,	West,
Bunnell,	Hermann,	Owen,	White, Ind.
Burrows,	Hires,	Parker,	White, N. Y.
Butler,	Hitt,	Patton,	Whiting, Mass.
Butterworth,	Holmes,	Perkins,	Wickham,
Cannon,	Hopkins, Ill.	Peters,	Wilber,
Caswell,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Phelps.	Williams.
Cheadle,	Houk,	Plumb,	Woodburn,
Cogswell,	Hovey,	Post,	Yardley,
Conger,	Hunter,	Pugsley,	Yost.
Cooper,	Johnston, Ind.	Reed,
Crouse,	Kean,	Romeis,
Dalzell,	Kennedy,	Rowell,

NOT VOTING—62.

Allen, Miss.	Dunham,	Ketcham,	Rockwell,
Anderson, Miss.	Felton,	La Follette,	Rogers,
Arnold,	Fisher,	Lagan,	Scott,
Bingham,	Fitch,	Latham,	Shaw,
Bland,	Forney,	Lynch,	Shively,
Browne, Ind.	Gibson,	Maffett,	Simmons,
Clardy,	Glover,	Matson,	Spinola,
Clark,	Granger,	McCullogh,	Symes,
Cobb,	Hayden,	Merriman,	Thomas, Ill.
Cockran,	Heard,	Milliken,	Thompson, Ohio
Collins,	Hemphill,	Mills,	Thompson, Cal.
Cothran,	Hiestand,	O'Neill, Mo.	Tillman,
Cutcheon,	Hogg,	Payson,	Tracey,
Dargan,	Hutton,	Perry,	Yoder.
Davidson, Ala.	Jackson,	Phelan,
De Lano,	Kelley,	Pidcock,

So the House refused to adjourn.

After the roll-call the Speaker directed the Clerk to call his name, and he voted "ay."

Mr. COBB. I desire to vote. I learned when I came into the Hall that my name had just been called.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not think that the statement of the gentleman from Alabama brings him within the exception of the rule. He can not vote unless he states that he was in the Hall and failed to hear his name called.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. CLARDY with Mr. BROWNE, of Indiana, on all political questions, until further notice.

Mr. GLOVER with Mr. BINGHAM, on this vote.

Mr. MATSON with Mr. ROCKWELL.

The result of the vote was then announced as above stated. The announcement called forth loud applause from the Republican side of the House.

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker, regular order.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Mr. Speaker—— [Cries of "Regular order!"]

The SPEAKER. The Chair will enforce the regular order as soon as order is restored.

Mr. MCMILLIN. I move that there be a call of the House.

[Cries of "Oh! oh!" from the Republican side.]

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee moves a call of the House.

Mr. RANDALL. If I can have order——

The SPEAKER. The House will please come to order. It is impossible to transact business unless gentlemen will preserve order on the floor. Gentlemen will please take their seats and stop conversation.

Mr. TOWNSHEND. Can not the officers of the House restore order?

The SPEAKER. There is no necessity for the Sergeant-at-Arms to intervene if members themselves will preserve order. The Chair will not attempt to resume the business of the House until gentlemen are seated. [After an interval.] The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MCMILLIN] moves a call of the House.

Mr. REED. Is that motion in order?

The SPEAKER. It is.

Mr. REED. I call for the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The rule provides that after the previous question is ordered a call of the House shall not be in order unless it shall appear upon an actual count by the Speaker that a quorum is not present. But that does not apply here, as the previous question has not been ordered.

Mr. REED. I call for the regular order.

Mr. RANDALL. Pending the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee, I ask to have read for information——

Mr. REED. I call for the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Maine calls for the regular order, which cuts off all requests for unanimous consent.

Mr. RANDALL. I have a right to state——

Mr. REED and other members called for the regular order.

The SPEAKER put the question on the motion of Mr. MCMILLIN that there be a call of the House, and stated that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Several members called for a division.

Mr. SPRINGER. I withdraw the demand for a division.

Mr. STEELE. I renew it.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana renews the demand for a division. As many as are in favor of the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee will rise and stand until they are counted.

A number of members having risen and having resumed their seats before being counted, there was loud derisive laughter on the Republican side of the House.

The SPEAKER rapped to order and said: This is the House of Representatives of the United States. This is not a public meeting in which such exhibitions may be proper.

Mr. TOWNSHEND. He laughs best who laughs last. [Renewed derisive laughter.]

A MEMBER. That is an old chestnut.

The vote having been counted, the Speaker announced it—ayes 10, noes 164.

So the motion for a call of the House was not agreed to.

Mr. COX. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. TOWNSHEND and Mr. REED called for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 147, nays 137, not voting 40; as follows:

YEAS—147.

Abbott,	Davidson, Fla.	Lane,	Robertson,
Allen, Miss.	Dibble,	Lanham,	Rogers,
Anderson, Miss.	Dockery,	Latham,	Rowland,
Anderson, Ill.	Dougherty,	Lawler,	Russell, Mass.
Bacon,	Dunn,	Lee,	Rusk,
Bankhead,	Elliott,	Macdonald,	Sayers,
Barnes,	Enloe,	Mahoney,	Seney,
Barry,	Ermentrout,	Maish,	Shaw,
Belmont,	Fisher,	Mansur,	Shively,
Biggs,	Foran,	Martin,	Simmons,
Blanchard,	Ford,	McAdoo,	Smith,
Bliss,	French,	McClammy,	Snyder,
Blount,	Gay,	McCreary,	Springer,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Gibson,	McKinney,	Stahlnecker,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Glass,	McMillin,	Stewart, Ga.
Bryce,	Glover,	McRae,	Stockdale,
Buckalew,	Granger,	McShane,	Stone, Ky.
Burnes,	Greenman,	Merriman,	Stone, Mo.
Burnett,	Grimes,	Montgomery,	Tarsney,
Bynum,	Hall,	Moore,	Taulbee,
Campbell, F., N. Y.	Hare,	Morgan,	Thompson, Cal.
Campbell, Ohio.	Hatch,	Morse,	Tillman,
Campbell, T. J., N. Y.	Hayes,	Neal,	Townshend,
Candler,	Heard,	Newton,	Turner, Ga.
Carlton,	Henderson, N. C.	Norwood,	Vance,
Caruth,	Herbert,	Oates,	Walker,
Catchings,	Holman,	O'Ferrall,	Washington,
Chipman,	Hooker,	O'Neall, Ind.	Weaver,
Clements,	Hopkins, Va.	Outhwaite,	Wheeler,
Cobb,	Howard,	Peel,	Whiting, Mich.
Compton,	Hudd,	Penington,	Whitthorne,
Cowles,	Hutton,	Phelan,	Wilkins,
Cox,	Johnston, N. C.	Pidcock,	Wilkinson,
Crain,	Jones,	Randall,	Wilson, Minn.
Crisp,	Kilgore,	Rayner,	Wilson, W. Va.
Culberson,	Laffoon,	Rice,	Wise.
Cummings,	Landes,	Richardson,

NAYS—137.

Adams,	Darlington,	Kerr,	Russell, Conn.
Allen, Mass.	Davenport,	Laidlaw,	Ryan,
Allen, Mich.	Davis,	Laird,	Sawyer,
Anderson, Iowa	Dingley,	Lehlbach,	Scull,
Anderson, Kans.	Dorsey,	Lind,	Seymour,
Arnold,	Farquhar,	Lodge,	Sherman,
Atkinson,	Finley,	Long,	Sowden,
Baker, N. Y.	Flood,	Lyman,	Spooner,
Baker, Ill.	Fuller,	Mason,	Steele,
Bayne,	Funston,	McComas,	Stephenson,
Belden,	Gaines,	McCormick,	Stewart, Vt.
Bingham,	Gallinger,	McKenna,	Struble,
Boothman,	Gear,	McKinley,	Symes,
Bound,	Gest,	Milliken,	Taylor, E. B., Ohio
Boutelle,	Goff,	Moffitt,	Taylor, J. D., Ohio
Bowden,	Grosvenor,	Morrill,	Thomas, Ky.
Bowen,	Grout,	Morrow,	Thomas, Wis.
Brewer,	Guenther,	Nelson,	Turner, Kans.
Brower,	Harmer,	Nichols,	Vandever,
Browne, T. H. B., Va.	Haugen,	Nutting,	Wade,
Brown, Ohio.	Henderson, Iowa	O'Donnell,	Warner,
Brown, J. R., Va.	Henderson, Ill.	O'Neill, Pa.	Weber,
Brumm,	Hermann,	Osborne,	West,
Buchanan,	Hires,	Owen,	White, Ind.
Bunnell,	Hitt,	Parker,	White, N. Y.
Burrows,	Holmes,	Patton,	Whiting, Mass.
Butler,	Hopkins, Ill.	Perkins,	Wickham,
Butterworth,	Hopkins, N. Y.	Peters,	Wilber,
Cannon,	Houk,	Phelps,	Williams,
Caswell,	Hovey,	Plumb,	Woodburn,
Cheadle,	Hunter,	Post,	Yardley,
Cogswell,	Johnston, Ind.	Pugsley,	Yost.
Cooper,	Kean,	Reed,
Crouse,	Kelley,	Romeis,
Dalzell,	Kennedy,	Rowell,

NOT VOTING—40.

Bland,	Davidson, Ala.	Jackson,	Payson,
Browne, Ind.	De Lano,	Ketcham,	Perry,
Clardy,	Dunham,	La Follette,	Rockwell,
Clark,	Felton,	Lagan,	Scott,
Cockran,	Fitch,	Lynch,	Spinola,
Collins,	Forney,	Maffett,	Stewart, Tex.
Conger,	Hayden,	Matson,	Thomas, Ill.
Cothran,	Hemphill,	McCullogh,	Thompson, Ohio
Cutcheon,	Hiestand,	Mills,	Tracey,
Dargan,	Hogg,	O'Neill, Mo.	Yoder.

So the motion was agreed to.

During the roll call the House received the following

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. McCOOK, its Secretary, informed the House that the Senate had passed bills of the following titles; in which the concurrence of the House was requested:

A bill (S. 2601) authorizing the construction of railroad bridges across the Snake River and across Clearwater River by the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company;

A bill (S. 1097) to provide for the erection of a monument to the memory of Brig. Gen. William Lee Davidson;

A bill (S. 2442) to increase the appropriation for the public building at Detroit, Mich.;

A bill (S. 2392) for the erection of a monument to the memory of General Joseph Warren, who fell at the battle of Bunker Hill;

A bill (S. 1974) for the erection of a public building at Fort Worth, Tex.;

A bill (S. 1889) to authorize the Tennessee Midland Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Tennessee River at any point on the line between the counties of Decatur and Perry, in the State of Tennessee it may deem acceptable;

A bill (S. 1856) to establish a life-saving station on the Atlantic coast between Indian River Inlet, Delaware, and Ocean City, Md.;

A bill (S. 1795) for the relief of the First National Bank of Marion, Iowa;

A bill (S. 1533) for the relief of Robert C. Murphy or his legal representatives;

A bill (S. 1083) for the erection of a public building at Tallahassee, Fla.;

A bill (S. 839) for the relief of Daniel B. Washburn;

A bill (S. 735) making an appropriation for the erection of a lighthouse on the high land (mainland) to the westward of Crooked River, Fla.;

A bill (S. 352) for the relief of Bessie S. Gilmore;

A bill (S. 105) for the erection of a public building at Pueblo, Colo.;

A bill (S. 2651) to remove the political disabilities of John Rutledge, of South Carolina;

A bill (S. 1176) to authorize the sale to aliens of certain mineral lands; and Joint resolution (S. R. 70) appropriating $30,000 for the international exhibition in Brussels, Belgium.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills of the House of the following titles:

A bill (H. R. 1818) for the construction of a revenue-cutter for Charleston, South Carolina, in maintenance of the service to replace the United States revenue-cutter McCulloch;

A bill (H. R. 3796) to purchase of the widow and children of the late General James Shields certain swords;

A bill (H. R. 4811) for the relief of Robert Johnston, of the State of New York;

A bill (H. R. 5062) for the erection of a public building at Birmingham, Ala.;

A bill (H. R. 5639) for erection of a fireproof work shop at the National Armory;

A bill (H. R. 5673) to give validity to certain patents for inventions which were irregularly executed;

A bill (H. R. 6291) for the relief of R. S. Stanley, postmaster at Booneville, Miss.; and

A bill (H. R. 8044) to change the day of the sessions of the circuit and district courts of the northern division of the eastern district of Missouri.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed, with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House was requested, bills of the following titles:

A bill (H. R. 6051) regulating the times for holding the terms of the United States courts in the northern district of Iowa; and

A bill (H. R. 6894) making appropriations for the support of the Military Academy for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889.

The message further announced that the Senate had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the joint resolution (H. Res. 81) to authorize the purchase of the lands necessary for the construction of the locks and dams on the Cumberland River.

The message further announced that the Senate had passed, with amendments, bills of the following titles, asked a conference with the House on the bills and amendments, and had appointed on the part of the Senate conferees as indicated below:

A bill (S. R. 1076) authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee River at Chattanooga, Tenn.—conferees, Mr. VEST, Mr. SAWYER, and Mr. HARRIS.

A bill (H. R. 7264) for the erection of a public building at Bridgeport, Conn.—conferees, Mr. SPOONER, Mr. MORRILL, and Mr. PASCO.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

[Loud cheering on the Democratic side and counter-cheers on the Republican side.]

The House accordingly Thursday, April 12, 1888 (at 12 o'clock and 50 minutes), adjourned.

PRIVATE BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED.

Under the rule private bills of the following titles were introduced and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. CONGER: A bill (H. R. 9339) granting a pension to Malinda S. Coe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9340) granting a pension to Mrs. Lucy A. Noel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9341) granting a pension to Mrs. Dulcena Noel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUNTER: A bill (H. R. 9342) granting a pension to Harriet Ewing—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. E. J. TURNER: A bill (H. R. 9343) granting a pension to Leander Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUNTER: A bill (H. R. 9344) granting a pension to James C. White—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

The following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, under the rule, and referred as follows:

By Mr. BIGGS: Three petitions of several hundred miners and citizens of the gold belt of California, asking the passage of House bill No. 1216, to investigate the mining-débris question in California—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

By Mr. BUCHANAN: Petition of 24 citizens and of 10 citizens of Barnegat, N. J., in favor of increased pay for persons engaged in the Life-Saving Service—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. BUNNELL: Petition of citizens of Ulster and of Litchfield, Bradford County, Pennsylvania, for increased duty on farm products, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CARUTH: Petition of the assistant United States district attorney of Kentucky, in regard to the salary of that office—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. CONGER: Paper to accompany House bill 152, for the relief of Theresa Gurlich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DINGLEY: Petition of William H. Hilton and others, of Damariscotta, Me., for protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. FORD: Remonstrance of Grand Rapids (Mich.) Brush Company and others, against a reduction of the tariff on brushes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GAINES: Petition of G. R. Durand, J. D. Proctor, and others, of City Point, Va., for protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of Dibbrel S. Clark, son of Benjamin Clark, of Amelia County, and of Indiana M. Tucker, heir of John A. Chappell, of Dinwiddie County, Virginia, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GROUT: Petition of Hon. William P. Dillingham and 27 others, citizens of Waterbury, Vt., for the passage of Senate bill 283—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. D. B. HENDERSON: Memorial and joint resolution of the General Assembly of Iowa for an amendment to the Constitution so that aliens can not hold lands in the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. S. T. HOPKINS: Petition of 50 citizens of South Rondout, N. Y., asking that the duty on cement be left undisturbed—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. JOSEPH: Two petitions of citizens of New Mexico for the admission of said Territory into the Union as a State—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. LAWLER: Resolutions of the Tued Seite Turn Gemeinde Society of Chicago, Ill., protesting against the passage of the bills to alter the present emigration laws—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. NUTTING: Petition of S. E. Bacon and 41 others, citizens of Five Corners, Cayuga County, New York, for more effectual protection to farmers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, resolution of the Legislature of New York that muster-out rolls be furnished to each State—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. PEEL: Petition of the Miami Indians of Indian Territory to have their moneys now in the United States Treasury paid over to them—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. RANDALL: Petition of Charles L. Hamilton and others connected with industries engaged in the production of books, favoring the passage of the international copyright bill of Senator CHACE—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: Petition of Mary M. King, wife of B. F. King, of Rutherford County, Tennessee, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SHERMAN: Petition of John R. Baxter and 12 others, and of John D. Collins and 36 others, citizens of Oneida County, New York, for protection to the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. STAHLNECKER: Petition of the New York State convention of county superintendents of the poor, for a law to prevent immigrants of the pauper and criminal classes coming to the United States—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. STONE, of Kentucky: Petition of Nathan Joiner, and of Richard Knight, of Trigg County; and of W. J. Jennings, of Livingston county, Kentucky, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. STRUBLE: Joint resolution of the General Assembly of Iowa, for a constitutional amendment to prohibit aliens from holding title to land in the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Petition of 45 farmers of Hartford, Ohio, for additional protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. J. D. TAYLOR: Petition of G. W. Sanborn and 35 others, of Charles Moore and 14 others, of John O. Walters and 12 others, of J. N. McMillen and 30 others, and of Joseph Little and 10 others, of Guernsey County, Ohio, for the re-enactment of the tariff of 1867 as applicable to wool—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WEBER: Petition of farmers of Niagara County and of Erie County, New York, for protection of farm products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. YOST: Petition of citizens of Amherst County, Virginia, for more effectual protection of agricultural products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law to establish a system of telegraphy, to be owned and controlled by the Government of the United States, and operated in connection with the Post-Office Department, were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. BELDEN: Of M. H. Peek and 56 others, citizens of Homer, N. Y.

By Mr. BELMONT: Of citizens of the First district of New York.

By Mr. BROWER: Petition of Moses Ring and 858 others, citizens of North Carolina.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: Of John Welch and 300 others, citizens of Ohio; of W. V. Colton and 83 others, of Carbondale; of Y. C. Smith and 22 others, of P. J. Beckler and 25 others, of J. R. Ram and 24 others, of John Tolliver and 26 others, of George Nixon and 30 others, of Frank Smith and 25 others, and of Martin Grimodale and 17 others, citizens of Ohio.

Also, of W. Burger and 200 others, citizens of Marietta, Ohio.

By Mr. JONES: Of W. Kennedy and 8,651 others, citizens of Mobile, Ala.

By Mr. REED: Of citizens of Maine.

By Mr. ROCKWELL: Of citizens of Massachusetts.

By Mr. SAYERS: Of citizens of Austin, San Antonio, Lampasas, and other cities and towns of Texas.

By Mr. SIMMONS: Of A. W. Rivers and 4,380 others, citizens of the Second district of North Carolina.

By Mr. T. L. THOMPSON: Of Robert Douglas and 1,491 others, citizens of California.

By Mr. WHEELER: Of J. L. Davis and 312 others, of Alabama.

The following petitions, indorsing the per diem rated service-pension bill, based on the principle of paying all soldiers, sailors, and marines of the late war a monthly pension of 1 cent a day for each day they were in the service, were severally referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

By Mr. BELDEN: Of J. A. Barber and 25 other soldiers and sailors, of Mottville, N. Y.

By Mr. BUNNELL: Of 150 soldiers of Athens, Bradford County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. S. T. HOPKINS: Of members of Bradford Post, No. 177, Department of New York, and 93 citizens of Sidney, Delaware County, New York.

By Mr. HUNTER: Of Harry L. Burnam and 80 others, of Bowling Green, Ky.

By Mr. MOFFITT: Of S. A. Ormsby and 29 others, citizens of Elbow, Warren County, New York.

Also, of S. A. Ormsby and 29 others, citizens of Elbow, Warren County, New York.

By Mr. SHERMAN: Of John H. Adams and 29 other ex-soldiers, of Oneida County, New York.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law providing temporary aid for common schools, to be disbursed on the basis of illiteracy, were severally referred to the Committee on Education:

By Mr. BURNETT: Of citizens of the Ninth district of Massachusetts.

By Mr. FULLER: Of 21 citizens of Fayette County, Iowa.

By Mr. GIFFORD: Of 58 citizens of Burleigh County, and of 87 citizens of Clark County, Dakota.

By Mr. McKENNA: Of 48 citizens of Alameda County, California.

By Mr. MORRILL: Of 140 citizens of Leavenworth County, Kansas.

By Mr. J. D. TAYLOR: Of W. H. Boyd and 100 others, citizens of Belmont County, Ohio.

By Mr. WICKHAM: Of 172 citizens of Huron County, Ohio.

The following petition for an increase of compensation of fourth-class postmasters was referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. COWLES: Of citizens of Beam's Mills, Cleveland County, and of York College Institute, Alexander County, North Carolina.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, April 13, 1888.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. WILLIAM H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the proceedings of the legislative day of Wednesday, April 4.

Mr. DOCKERY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the remainder of the Journal.

Mr. GROSVENOR and Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR objected.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Speaker, is it in order to move that the reading of the Journal be dispensed with?

The SPEAKER. The Chair thinks not. The rules require that the Journal shall be read.

Mr. SPRINGER. I would state to the gentleman from Ohio that the Journal embraces about 90 pages and over 70 roll-calls.

Mr. GROSVENOR. All the better. I object, on the ground that it is very interesting reading.

The Clerk resumed the reading of the Journal.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, is it not in order to move that the Clerk be excused from the further reading?

The SPEAKER. The reading of the Journal can not be dispensed with except by unanimous consent. A request for that purpose has been made and objected to.

The Clerk resumed the reading.

Mr. LANHAM. I renew the request to dispense with the further reading of the Journal. If this request be granted, my object is to move that the House go into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of considering business on the Private Calendar.

Mr. REED. If it is the purpose to go on with the business of private-bill day, I do not think any one on this side will make objection.

Mr. LANHAM. That is my object.

Mr. REED. Well, is that the understanding?

Mr. LANHAM. So far as I know it is; I know nothing to the contrary.

Mr. REED. If nobody has any objection to that course——

Mr. MCMILLIN. I am not aware that there is any understanding on the subject. I do not know that the matter has been discussed. I think it should be left for the House to decide.

Mr. TAULBEE. I for one am in favor of going on with the Private Calendar.

Mr. MCMILLIN. So far as I am concerned, I think it is high time that some of the appropriation bills were disposed of.

Mr. REED. I wish you had thought so at any time during the last week.

Mr. MCMILLIN. I wish you had reflected on the subject and been less obstinate.

Mr. REED. I did reflect several nights.

Mr. NELSON. Why should we not go on with the Indian appropriation bill to-day?

Several MEMBERS. Oh, no; this is private-bill day.

Mr. STEELE. I call for the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The regular order being demanded, the Clerk will proceed with the reading of the Journal.

The reading of the Journal was resumed until the Clerk read the following:

Mr. BOUTELLE made the point of order that Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas, being present, had failed to vote on the preceding call, in violation of the rule, and that he should be required to record his vote or state that he had a pecuniary interest in the result of the vote.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Just at this point the Journal is not accurate in stating that I held that the gentleman from Arkansas should be required to record his vote. I think the RECORD will show the language used to have been that the rule required——

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will again read that part of the Journal.

The Clerk again read the paragraph already given.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is inaccurate, Mr. Speaker. The official RECORD will show that I had the rule read and then made the point of order that the rule required the gentleman to vote or to state to the House that he had a personal or pecuniary interest in the question.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will correct that portion of the Journal.

The reading of the Journal was resumed and (at 1 o'clock p. m.) concluded.

The SPEAKER. The Chair discovers from the reading of the Journal that in some instances where a motion was made to fix the day to which the House should adjourn, and an amendment offered striking out the day named and inserting another, the amendment, instead of being stated as such, is stated as an independent motion. If there be no objection, the Chair will cause those parts of the Journal to be corrected in accordance with the fact. The Chair hears no objection. If there be no further correction, the Journal will be approved as read.

LANDS FOR SEMINOLE INDIANS IN FLORIDA.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying documents, referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication of the 6th instant from the Secretary of the Interior, submitting, with accompanying papers, a draught of proposed legislation, prepared in the office of Indian Affairs, to authorize the use of certain funds therein specified in the purchase of lands in the State of Florida upon which to locate the Seminole Indians in that State. The matter is presented for the favorable consideration of Congress.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, April 9, 1888.

REPORT ON TONNAGE TAX.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the House, a statement showing the tonnage tax imposed in the United States from 1882 to 1887, inclusive, on American vessels, foreign vessels, sailing vessels, and steam-vessels, respectively, and the total tax collected; which was referred to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, and ordered to be printed.

STEAM-TENDERS FOR LIGHT-HOUSE DISTRICTS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a letter from the Light-House Board submitting an estimate for an appropriation of $85,000 for the construction of a new steam-tender for the eleventh light-house district; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Light-House Board submitting an estimate for an appropriation of $85,000 for the construction of a new steam-tender for the first light-house district; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

SUPPLY STEAMER FOR ATLANTIC AND GULF COASTS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Light-House Board submitting an estimate for an appropriation of $32,500 for the construction of a supply steamer for the Atlantic and Gulf coasts; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

LOTS 11 AND 12, SQUARE 689, WASHINGTON, D. C.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting the report of three persons appointed to appraise lots 11 and 12, square 689, Washington, D. C., in compliance with the provisions contained in the sundry civil appropriation act of March 3, 1887; which was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and ordered to be printed.

CONTINGENT EXPENSES, MINT BUREAU.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting copy of a communication from the Director of the Mint requesting that the sum of $500 of the unexpended balance of the appropriations for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1887, be made available for the same object for the current fiscal year; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

PRINTING AND BINDING, STATE DEPARTMENT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting copy of a communication from the Secretary of State submitting an estimate of deficiency in appropriation for printing and binding for the Department of State; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

WATER SUPPLY, BUREAU OF ENGRAVING AND PRINTING.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting copy of a communication from the Chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in relation to the inadequacy of the water supply for that bureau; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

STOWAWAYS ON INCOMING VESSELS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury in relation to stowaways on vessels bound to the port of New York from foreign countries, and suggesting an amendment to the act of August 3, 1882, entitled "An act to regulate emigration;" which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

CLERICAL FORCE, POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting copy of a communication from the Postmaster-General submitting estimates of appropriations for salaries and clerical force for the Post-Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, in addition to those heretofore submitted; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

CONSTRUCTION OF CERTAIN LIGHT-HOUSES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting copy of a communication from the Light-House Board relative to additional appropriations to complete the construction of light-houses at Lubec Narrows, Deer Island, and Crabtree Ledge; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

PRIVATE LAND CLAIMS, NEW MEXICO.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a supplementary report of the United States surveyor-general of New Mexico on private land claim No. 116, in the name of Antonio Martinez; which was referred to the Committee on Private Land Claims.

ADJUSTMENT OF PAY UNDER EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, in response to a resolution of the House asking for information as to the probable cost of adjustments of the pay of laborers and mechanics under the provisions of House bill 1322, in regard to the eight-hour law; which was referred to the Committee on Labor.

UNITED STATES PENITENTIARY, BOISÉ CITY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Attorney-General in relation to an appropriation to extend and repair the United States penitentiary at Boisé City, Idaho; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

SMITH WINDMILL, PETTEY'S ISLAND, DELAWARE RIVER.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a letter from the Chief of Engineers, with copy of a report of the Board of Engineers appointed to examine into Smith windmill at Pettey's Island, Delaware River; which was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

UNITED STATES COURTS, IOWA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6051) to regulate the times for holding the terms of the United States courts in the northern district of Iowa.

Mr. HENDERSON, of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, there is but one amendment to this bill made by the Senate, which is not material, and I will ask that it be concurred in now. The bill is simply local, regulating the terms of the courts in that district of the State of Iowa.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the amendment, after which the Chair will ask for objections.

The amendment of the Senate was read.

There being no objection, the Senate amendment was concurred in.

MILITARY ACADEMY APPROPRIATION BILL.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6894) making appropriations for the support of the Military Academy for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889; which were referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE TENNESSEE RIVER, CHATTANOOGA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 1076) authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee River at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mr. CRISP. Mr. Speaker, the Senate requests a conference with the House on this bill. There are but two or three amendments, and they are of a mere verbal character. I would therefore ask unanimous consent that the House concur in the amendments of the Senate.

The SPEAKER. The amendments of the Senate will be read, after which the Chair will ask for objections.

The amendments of the Senate were read.

There being no objection, the Senate amendments were concurred in.

PUBLIC BUILDING, BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 7264) for the erection of a public building at Bridgeport, Conn.

Mr. DIBBLE. In this case the Senate also ask a conference with the House. I ask, therefore, that the House non-concur in the amendments of the Senate and agree to the conference asked for.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

Some time subsequently,

The SPEAKER announced as managers of the conference on the part of the House Mr. DIBBLE, Mr. SOWDEN, and Mr. LEHLBACH.

MONUMENT TO MEMORY OF GENERAL JOSEPH WARREN.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (S. 2392) for the erection of a monument to the memory of General Joseph Warren, who fell at the battle of Bunker Hill.

Mr. LONG. That bill has been considered by the Committee on the Library. I ask that it be put upon its passage.

Mr. McMILLIN. I think it is better that it should take its regular course.

The bill was read twice, and referred to the Committee on the Library.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House bills of the Senate of the following titles; which were read twice, and referred as follows:

The bill (S. 2601) authorizing the construction of railroad bridges across the Snake River and across Clearwater River by the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company—to the Committee on Commerce.

The bill (S. 1097) to provide for the erection of a monument to the memory of Brig. Gen. William Lee Davidson—to the Committee on the Library.

The bill (S. 2442) to increase the appropriation for the public building at Detroit, Mich.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

The bill (S. 1974) for the erection of a public building at Fort Worth, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

The bill (S. 1889) to authorize the Tennessee Midland Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Tennessee River at any point on the line between the counties of Decatur and Perry, in the State of Tennessee, it may deem acceptable—to the Committee on Commerce.

The bill (S. 1856) to establish a life-saving station on the Atlantic coast between Indian River Inlet, Delaware, and Ocean City, Md.—to the Committee on Commerce.

The bill (S. 1795) for the relief of the First National Bank of Marion, Iowa—to the Committee on Claims.

The bill (S. 1533) for the relief of Robert C. Murphy or his legal representatives—to the Committee on Claims.

The bill (S. 839) for the relief of Daniel B. Washburn—to the Committee on Claims.

The bill (S. 735) making an appropriation for the erection of a light-house on the high land (mainland) to the westward of Crooked River, Florida—to the Committee on Commerce.

The bill (S. 352) for the relief of Bessie S. Gilmore—to the Committee on Claims.

The bill (S. 2651) to remove the political disabilities of John Rutledge, of South Carolina—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The bill (S. 1176) to authorize the sale to aliens of certain mineral lands—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

The bill (S. 1935) for the relief of Andrew T. McReynolds—to the Committee on Claims.

The bill (S. 1204) to provide for holding the district and circuit courts of the United States at Martinsburgh, in the district of West Virginia—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The bill (S. 2345) authorizing the construction of bridges across the Cape Fear River, Black River, and the North East River, in the State of North Carolina—to the Committee on Commerce.

WILLIAM S. SIMS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (H. R. 2077) to place on the pension-roll the name of William S. Sims, with amendments by the Senate; which was referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PENSION BILLS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following Senate bills granting pensions; which were read twice, and referred (without their titles being read) to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

A bill (S. 645) granting a pension to Mrs. Margaret B. Todd;

A bill (S. 655) granting an increase of pension to Mary Von Kusserow;

A bill (S. 734) granting a pension to James Hale;

A bill (S. 766) granting an increase of pension to John Moore;

A bill (S. 886) granting a pension to Sarah F. Jones;

A bill (S. 1041) granting a pension to Mary E. Walker, M. D.;

A bill (S. 1122) granting an increase of pension to William Collinsworth;

A bill (S. 1126) granting a pension to Francis M. Yearian;

A bill (S. 1159) granting a pension to Alphonzo H. Melendy;

A bill (S. 1161) granting a pension to Mrs. Jennie Stone, widow of General Charles P. Stone;

A bill (S. 1074) for the relief of J. W. McMillan;

A bill (S. 1110) granting a pension to Mrs. Fredericka Hauser;

A bill (S. 1266) granting a pension to Shelton Flannigan;

A bill (S. 1267) granting a pension to Joseph B. Tingley;

A bill (S. 1272) granting a pension to Helen A. Beebe;

A bill (S. 1314) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin M. Fisher;

A bill (S. 1320) granting a pension to Catherine M. Lee;

A bill (S. 1466) granting a pension to John Eckland;

A bill (S. 1488) granting an increase of pension to Louisa V. de Kilpatrick, widow of Maj. Gen. Judson Kilpatrick, United States Volunteers;

A bill (S. 1515) granting a pension to Helen Plunkett;

A bill (S. 1539) to increase the pension of James E. Gott;

A bill (S. 1552) for an increase of pension to Oscar K. Rogers;

A bill (S. 1577) granting a pension to Mary H. Casler;

A bill (S. 1658) granting a pension to William H. Shivers;

A bill (S. 1687) to restore J. Rock Williamson to the pension-roll.

A bill (S. 1702) granting a pension to Joanna W. Turner;

A bill (S. 1737) granting a pension to Theodore Gardner;

A bill (S. 1744) granting a pension to William M. Davis;

A bill (S. 1749) granting a pension to Wealtha Young;

A bill (S. 1760) to increase the pension of Mrs. Laura Hooper Denby;

A bill (S. 1762) granting a pension to Benjamin A. Burtram;
A bill (S. 1831) granting a pension to Mrs. Mary Heap Nicholson;
A bill (S. 1867) granting a pension to Mrs. Mary L. Ristine;
A bill (S. 1877) granting a pension to Harriet L. Vaughan;
A bill (S. 1906) granting a pension to Matilda Bleumner;
A bill (S. 1942) granting a pension to Mrs. Ellen Courtney;
A bill (S. 1952) for the relief of Sigmund Bauer;
A bill (S. 1958) granting an increase of pension to Eleanor B. Goodfellow;
A bill (S. 1997) granting a pension to Peter Thompson;
A bill (S. 2006) granting a pension to Mary E. Noll, widow of Philip Noll;
A bill (S. 2014) granting a pension to John Farlow;
A bill (S. 2067) granting a pension to William O. Doyel;
A bill (S. 2087) granting a pension to Julia B. McComb;
A bill (S. 2088) granting a pension to Mattie V. Boothe and Mary M. Boothe;
A bill (S. 2100) granting a pension to Charles Tidmarsh;
A bill (S. 2108) granting a pension to George W. De Motte;
A bill (S. 2118) granting a pension to Richard H. Van Dorin;
A bill (S. 2129) to increase the pension of Mary M. Gibson, widow of Commander William Gibson;
A bill (S. 2138) granting an increase of pension to Ezra A. Miller;
A bill (S. 2183) granting a pension to Rachel Plummer;
A bill (S. 2206) granting a pension to David H. Lutman;
A bill (S. 2230) granting a pension to D. P. Houghland;
A bill (S. 2231) granting a pension to William N. Cline;
A bill (S. 2356) to provide a pension for Mrs. Adeline Couzins;
A bill (S. 2375) granting a pension to Joseph McGuckian;
A bill (S. 2419) granting a pension to Lemuel R. Rea;
A bill (S. 2447) granting a pension to Mary J. Goslee;
A bill (S. 2448) granting a pension to Catharine McQuade;
A bill (S. 2449) granting a pension to James W. Bowman;
A bill (S. 2520) granting a pension to James White; and
A bill (S. 2567) granting a pension to Nancy Polock.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:
To Mr. PATTON, for ten days, on account of important business.
To Mr. O'FERRALL, for four days, on account of important business.
To Mr. HENDERSON, of North Carolina, for one week, on account of important business.
To Mr. LATHAM, for one week, on account of the critical illness of a near relative.
To Mr. HAYES, indefinitely, on account of important business.
To Mr. CLARDY, on account of sickness in his family.
To Mr. WHITE, of New York, for ten days, on account of sickness in his family.
To Mr. PUGSLEY, indefinitely, on account of important business.
To Mr. TAULBEE, indefinitely, on account of sickness.
To Mr. BOOTHMAN, until Monday, April 23, on account of important business.
To Mr. FORAN, until Tuesday, April 17, on account of important business.
To Mr. HOLMES, indefinitely.
To Mr. MATSON, until the 30th instant, on account of important business; and
To Mr. COMPTON, for to-day, on account of important business.

SAMUEL A. B. WOODFORD.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. TAULBEE], on behalf of the Committee on Claims, asks that that committee be discharged from the further consideration of the bill (S. 525) for the relief of Samuel A. B. Woodford, and that it be referred to the Committee on War Claims.

Mr. TAULBEE. I wish to state with reference to this bill that it was inadvertently referred to the Committee on Claims, of which I am a member. The Senate has passed this bill, and the Committee on War Claims have reported unanimously a bill similar in all its provisions. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be now considered. I think it is one to which no one will object. I ask that the Senate bill be substituted for the House bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman can ask for the passage of the Senate bill. The Clerk will read the bill, after which the Chair will ask for objections.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the claim of Samuel A. B. Woodford, of Clark County, Kentucky for the value of seventy-five barrels of whisky, taken from him by order of General Samuel D. Sturgis, in April, 1863, be referred to the Surgeon-General of the Army to find and determine whether or not, the United States received the benefit of said whisky, and whether or not said Woodford, during the late civil war, was loyal to the United States; and if he shall find that said whisky was taken for the benefit of the United States (and that said claimant was loyal to the United States during the late civil war), to determine and award to the claimant the value of the whisky so taken; and the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay the sum so awarded, if any, to said Woodford. And that a sufficient sum be, and is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the payment thereof.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. HOLMAN. Let the report be read.

Mr. TAULBEE. Certainly, let it be read. It is very short. I wish to state also that both the House and the Senate committees reported this bill favorably in the last Congress.

The report upon the House bill was read, as follows:

The Committee on War Claims, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 2359) for the relief of Samuel A. B. Woodford, report as follows:

The facts out of which this bill for relief arises will be found stated in Senate report from the Committee on Claims of the present Congress, a copy of which is hereto annexed for information.

Your committee adopt the said report as their own, and report back the bill, and recommend its passage, with the following amendments:

In line 7 strike out the words "Surgeon-General of the Army" and insert the words "Secretary of War."

Strike out line 9 and to the words "United States," in line 10, inclusive.

Strike out from the word "and," in line 11, to the word "war," in line 13, inclusive.

[Senate Report No. 272, Fiftieth Congress, first session.]

The claim of Samuel A. B. Woodford for compensation for whisky taken from him in 1863 by order of General S. D. Sturgis, United States Army, in Clark County, Kentucky, was before the last Congress, and favorable reports were made in both Houses, but no final action was taken before the adjournment. The present bill appears to have been drawn according to the report (No. 1652) upon the bill before the Senate at the second session of the Forty-ninth Congress.

The files of the War Department show conclusively that the whisky was taken under an order of General Sturgis, dated April —, 1863. A copy of the order, which is with the papers, shows that General Sturgis directed it to be seized and stored in Winchester "for the use of the medical department and for such other use as the proper authorities may direct."

It was accordingly stored in the court-house at Winchester under the charge of the provost-marshal there, and subsequently hauled away in Government wagons to Lexington, Ky.

Captain Linn, who acted as provost-marshal at Winchester, and had the whisky in his custody there, in a letter written to General Sturgis, March 2, 1886, stating what disposition he made of it, says:

"I am confident that there was a receipt for the whole from the medical department."

There is abundant testimony in the record that Mr. Woodford was a Union man, and that he had no sympathy with those who favored the secession movement, and that he never, directly or indirectly, aided the Confederate army or cause. There is but a single statement to the contrary, and that is made by an officer who first claimed to have captured the whisky before General Sturgis ordered its formal seizure. While his opinion is entitled to respect, it is supported by no evidence, and the statements to the contrary are supported by affidavits of many of those among whom Mr. Woodford had lived all his life, and who were themselves men of positive Union sentiments, whose loyalty is not questioned.

The bill proposes to refer the claim to the Surgeon-General of the Army, to find and determine whether or not the United States received the benefit of the whisky, and whether or not Woodford was loyal to the United States during the late civil war, and upon finding an affirmative to both questions to award him the value of the whisky.

The claimant is shown to have used due diligence in prosecuting his demand, and it is not his fault that the settlement has been so long delayed.

The committee, regarding the loyalty of the claimant as established by the evidence, do not consider a further examination of that question necessary. They think, too, that the Secretary of War should, as the head of his Department, ascertain whether or not the United States received the benefit of the whisky, and that the responsibility should not rest upon the Surgeon-General of the Army.

It is therefore recommended that the bill be passed, after being amended as follows:

In line 7, strike out "Surgeon-General of the Army" and insert "Secretary of War."

Strike out, after "whisky," in line 9, to "United States," in line 10, inclusive.

Strike out line 12 and to "war," in line 13, inclusive.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

Mr. BUCHANAN. Were there not some amendments recommended by the committee?

The SPEAKER. The report that was read was the report on the House bill, and the amendments recommended were amendments to that bill. This is the Senate bill.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. TAULBEE moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

Mr. LANHAM. I call for the regular order.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH.

Mr. BAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a privileged question.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BAYNE. Petitions are in the hands of nearly every member of the House, perhaps of every member, with reference to the establishment of a Government telegraph. There is a diversity of opinion as to what committee those petitions should be referred to. Some of them have been referred to the Committee on Commerce, others to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads, and still others, as I understand, to the Committee on Labor. I desire to ask for the reference of these petitions to the proper committee, and to have that question decided.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined some of the petitions, and presumes they are all substantially alike. They ask for the establishment of a telegraph as a part of the postal system, and the Chair thinks that under the rules of the House they ought properly to go to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads, but, under the rules, that is a matter which is left to the judgment of each individual member when he presents a petition.

Mr. RAYNER. Does the Chair make that ruling?

The SPEAKER. The Chair has made no ruling upon the subject, because it is not one upon which the Chair can officially make a ruling. The rules of the House provide that when a petition is presented by a member he shall indorse upon it such reference as he thinks proper and put it in the petition-box.

Mr. RAYNER. There is a bill now on the Calendar of the House on that subject.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not know what that bill is. Any petition or bill which proposes to make the telegraph a part of the postal system should go, the Chair supposes, to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Mr. RAYNER. There is a point of order being made on that. We claim that it should go to the Committee on Commerce.

SIGNAL-SERVICE BUILDINGS.

Mr. DIBBLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to make an urgent report from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds appropriating the money necessary to complete a purchase already agreed upon, passed into a law, and approved by the President, a site for a building for the Signal Service here in Washington. The act authorizing the purchase of the site contains no appropriation, and the Department will save $1,000 a month by an immediate appropriation of the money so as to stop rentals and other outside expenses. Therefore, in the interest of economy, I ask unanimous consent to report the bill at this time. It is a Senate bill.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be read, after which the Chair will ask for objections.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That there is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated a sum sufficient to carry out the provisions of an act entitled "An act for the purchase of a site, including the building thereon, also for the erection of the necessary store-houses, for the use of the office of the Chief Signal Officer of the Army, at the city of Washington, D. C," approved March 5, 1888.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

There was no objection.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. DIBBLE moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

POST-OFFICE APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. BLOUNT, from the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads, reported a bill (H. R. 9345) making appropriations for the service of the Post-Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. BURROWS. I reserve all points of order on that bill.

The SPEAKER. All points of order will be reserved.

AGREEMENT WITH INDIANS IN MONTANA.

Mr. PEEL. I rise to submit a privileged report—a report from a committee of conference.

The Clerk read as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 1956) "to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Gros Ventre, Piegan, Blood, Blackfeet, and River Crow Indians in Montana," having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 2 and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 1: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Strike out line 6 of section 3 of said amendment and insert: "the town-site laws and the laws governing the disposal of coal lands, desert lands, and mineral lands."

Also strike out all after and including section 4 of said amendment and insert:

"SEC. 4. The Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to appoint a commission, consisting of three persons, with authority to negotiate with the band of Ute Indians of Southern Colorado for such modifications of their treaty and other rights, and such exchange of their reservation as may be deemed desirable by said Indians and the Secretary of the Interior; and said commission is also authorized, if the result of such negotiations shall make it necessary, to negotiate with any other tribes of Indians for such portion of their reservation as may be necessary for said band of Ute Indians of Southern Colorado, if said Indians shall determine to remove from their present location: the report of said commission to be made to and subject to ratification by Congress before taking effect; and for this purpose the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, which shall be immediately available."

And the Senate agree to the same.

S. W. PEEL,
SILAS HARE,
Managers on the part of the House.
H. L. DAWES,
F. B. STOCKBRIDGE,
JOHN W. DANIEL,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

The statement of the House conferees was read, as follows:

We, the undersigned, conferees on the part of the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses, have the honor to submit the following:

This bill simply ratifies an agreement between the United States and the Indians in Montana receiving rations at Fort Peck, Fort Belknap, and Blackfeet agencies, by which they cede to the United States 17,500,000 acres of land. The first amendment of the Senate, which is agreed to as amended, opens said land for disposal under the homestead law, except as to the provision of said law contained in section 2301 of Revised Statutes of the United States—coal, mineral, desert, and town-site lands of the United States only—thereby excluding it from disposal under the commuted homestead, pre-emption, and timber-culture acts. The second and only other amendment of the Senate provides for a commission to negotiate with the Southern Utes of the State of Colorado in regard to change of reservation by sale or otherwise, subject to the ratification of Congress.

All of which is respectfully submitted with recommendation that said amendments be adopted.

S. W. PEEL,
SILAS HARE,
Managers on the part of the House.

The conference report was adopted.

Mr. PEEL moved to reconsider the vote by which the conference report was adopted; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

DIVISION OF GREAT SIOUX INDIAN RESERVATION.

Mr. PEEL. I desire to submit another conference report.

The Clerk read as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 7315) to divide the Great Sioux Indian reservation into smaller separate reservations, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, 30, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 50, 51, 52, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, and 60, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 5: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Insert in said amendment, after "entitled," in line 3, the following: "To be paid out of the proceeds of lands relinquished under this act." Also strike out all of said amendment after "Interior," in line 4; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 14: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Lines 12 and 13 of said amendment of the Senate, strike out "and the form and manner of executing such release shall also be prescribed by Congress;" and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 27: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 27, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Strike out "or," in said amendment, and insert "and;" and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 29: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 29, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Line 7 of said amendment, after "facilities," insert "of and for said railways." Also, at the end of said amendment add "connected with said railways:" and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 31: That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 31, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Strike out all on page 13 of the bill after and including "and," in line 10, and insert:

"And provided further, That said railway companies and each of them shall, within nine months after this act takes effect, definitely locate their respective lines of road, including all station grounds and terminals, across and upon the lands of said reservation designated in said agreements, and shall also within the said period of nine months file with the Secretary of the Interior a map of such definite location, specifying clearly the line of road, the several station grounds, and the amount of land required for railroad purposes, as herein specified, of the said separate sections of land and said tracts of 188 acres and 75 acres; and the Secretary of the Interior shall, within three months after the filing of such map, designate the particular portions of said sections and of said tracts of land which the said railway companies respectively may take and hold under the provisions of this act for railway purposes. And the said railway companies and each of them shall, within three years after this act takes effect, construct, complete, and put in operation their said lines of road, and in case the said lines of road are not definitely located and maps of location filed within the period hereinbefore provided, or in case the said lines of road are not constructed, completed, and put in operation within the time herein provided, then and in either case the lands granted for right of way, station grounds, or other railway purposes, as in this act provided, shall without any further act or ceremony be declared by proclamation of the President forfeited, and shall, without entry or further action on the part of the United States, revert to the United States and be subject to entry under the other provisions of this act; and whenever such forfeiture occurs the Secretary of the Interior shall ascertain the fact and give due notice thereof to the local land officers, and thereupon the lands so forfeited shall be open to homestead entry under the provisions of this act."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 49: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 49, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Add, after the word "settlements," the following: "with intent to enter the same under the homestead or pre-emption laws of the United States;" and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 53: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 53, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Page 20, line 9, of the bill, strike out "provisions of section 20 of this act" and insert "homestead or pre-emption laws of the United States," and, at the end of line 15, insert "Provided, That pre-emption claimants shall reside on their lands the same length of time before procuring title as homestead claimants under this act;" and the Senate agree to the same.

S. W. PEEL,
THOS. R. HUDD,
KNUTE NELSON,
Managers on the part of the House.
H. L. DAWES,
O. H. PLATT,
JAMES K. JONES,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

The statement of the House conferees was read, as follows:

The managers of the House appointed on the conference ordered on the disagreement of the House on the amendments offered by the Senate to House bill 7315, being a bill entitled "An act to divide the Great Sioux Indian reservation into separate smaller reservations, and for other purposes," herewith submit the joint report of the conferees of the Senate and the managers of the House, which was unanimously agreed to, and in explanation of the amendments made and their effect, herewith submit the following detailed statement, all of which are recommended for adoption:

The general features of the bill with its principal aims and provisions have not been changed or modified in any manner so as to materially affect the bill.

Amendments 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 43, 44, 46, 47, 48, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, and 59, are all amendments changing phraseology and not provisions of bill, mostly changing the number of section merely so as to be numerical.

Amendment 5: Permits Flambeau Indians to buy lands on the Sisseton reservation instead of taking allotments on the Great Sioux reservation, using only the 50 cents an acre which their lands thus bring and buying only the amount allotted to them.

Amendment 14: Inserts a new section which only reaffirms the allotment law already passed.

Amendments 29, 30, and 31: Although 29 and 30 are somewhat immaterial as to phraseology, yet it is the railroad section, and is as the House passed it, except that it is more binding on the railroad company and gives them land only for railroad purposes strictly, and requires the railroad companies to select their right of way and depot grounds within nine months after the taking effect of this act, file maps thereof, and upon failure to build within three years of taking effect of this act to forfeit all without further legislation; President to issue proclamation thereof.

Amendments 39, 40, 41, and 42: Change school section, dispensing with superintendent, but building school-houses, just the same, under direction of the Secretary of the Interior.

Amendment 45: Provides for payment by the towns to the Indians if any of their improvements are on American, Farm, and Niobrara Islands.

Amendments 49, 50, 51, and 52: Provide that while protecting settlers on Crow Creek reservation in their claims taken in good faith between the two proclamations, one opening and the other closing land to settlement, that settlers must live on land, whether homestead or pre-emption, the same time that they do on other parts of the reservation.

Amendment 60: Simply changes title of bill—no difference in meaning.

All of which is unanimously agreed to by the undersigned managers on the part of the House.

S. W. PEEL,
THOS. R. HUDD,
KNUTE NELSON,
Managers on the part of the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HATCH). The question is on the adoption of this report.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, if I am not mistaken, when the Senate amendments to this bill came to the House the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] asked unanimous consent to non-concur in the amendments and agree to a conference with the Senate thereupon. I always notice a request of that kind, feeling that it is my duty to get up and object, because the consequence is, as a rule, that the duty of legislating upon these subjects, which the House should undertake and perform for itself, is simply delegated by such process to the three members of the House who may be selected and to three members of the other body. But I dislike to object very much to such requests, and therefore I allowed the request in this instance to go through.

I simply desire now, sir, to call the attention of this House to the fact that an important bill, considered, it is true, in the first instance by this House, went to the other body, was amended there by the insertion of some sixty amendments, and these amendments, having been returned to this body, have never been considered by the House of Representatives at all. They have been considered by the conferees on the part of the House, and by them alone. They are intelligent gentlemen, I have no doubt. They are far more familiar with this subject in its details than I am. I do not profess any familiarity with it whatever; but I do wish to protest against this method of legislation, by which, for the purpose of avoiding a little delay or possible inconvenience, this House delegates the duty which it should perform and remits it to three members selected from each body. It seems to me that although many of these amendments may be merely clerical and of little importance, the conference report should be at least printed and lie over for one day, and we should have an opportunity of seeing it in print and going at least through the form of considering it, either approving or rejecting the amendments in detail. It is idle to say that we approve or reject them when for the sake of saving time we agree to the report of the conference committee, when not one man in ten can tell anything whatever about what the amendments are or what effect they will have upon the bill.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I desire only to say in response to the gentleman from Illinois that, as stated in the report submitted under the rule by the managers on the part of the House, the various amendments which have been suggested by the Senate and acted upon by the conference committee are clearly and distinctly set forth, and their effect upon the bill is given in detail as clearly and fully as language can accomplish such a purpose. All the amendments are set forth in the report and their effect stated.

The House will observe, if it has observed the reading of the report, that in nearly all of the amendments the changes suggested by the Senate were merely in phraseology, without changing any material section or item in the bill, and those that are material are clearly and distinctly set out in the report, so that every member who listened to the reading of the report can fully understand their purport.

And I will further state for the information of the House: It will be found that the most material change made from the bill of the House was in regard to the railroad clause, granting the right of way. The House committee reported the bill allowing these roads two years from the time the bill passed the House to complete the road. The House amended it by extending that period to three years. The Senate amendment was to fix the time at four years after the bill takes effect. The difference between the passage of the bill and the taking effect of the bill is that the bill must be ratified by three-fourths of the Indians before it becomes a law. The House conferees submitted an amendment on this point, which was agreed to by the Senate, to strike out the term fixed in that body—four years—and insert three years after the law takes effect, with a further amendment that the road be required to make a definite location of the right of way for all lands taken under the bill within nine months or forfeit its right, and the Secretary of the Interior must approve it within three months; and if they fail to do so, then they forfeit their right and all rights accorded to them under the bill. That is the only change of material importance in the bill. Therefore I should dislike very much to see the bill allowed to lie over any longer. It has been before the House for a long, long time, and I think is clearly understood in all of its parts.

Mr. ADAMS. Allow me to say to the gentleman from Arkansas it has not been before the House on the Senate amendments. I wish to say to him that although I noticed the amendment substituting four years for three years in the bill, I was not aware at that time that any railroad right-of-way interest was involved in the bill at all until I was subsequently informed of that fact.

Now, whether it be right or wrong, I ask the gentleman whether any particular public interest will suffer if the bill be allowed to lie over and be printed in the RECORD, so that we may go through the form at least of discharging our duty in connection with the consideration of the amendments?

Mr. PEEL. I do not know that any important public interest would suffer, but the only objection to any further delay is that this bill has been before Congress for eight or ten years, and I think it is well understood in all of its parts. The whole country is expecting the passage of the bill. They have been anxiously waiting for years for some such measure. The effect of the bill, as the gentleman is aware, is to open up a large amount of the public domain, from which settlers are now excluded, to settlement under the homestead law at 50 cents an acre, and confine the Indians to a very small reservation.

I will say further that I believe every Indian association ever organized and every element in this country that has given the subject consideration has had a chance to review and consider the provisions of the bill, and as it stands it meets the concurrence of all of them. Not an objection has been made by any of these Indian rights associations or by any persons interested in their welfare, and I do hope the gentleman will withdraw his objection and let the report be adopted.

Mr. ADAMS. If the gentleman will allow me one word further I will not trespass further upon the time of the House. I think the object I had in view is obvious; and the gentleman will take notice from what I said that my objection is as to the continuance of this practice in the House.

I have seen that practice growing ever since I came to Congress. During my term of service here I have thought time after time that it was my duty to rise and object. I did not care to do so while I was a new member. But I say it is a vicious practice and one which involves a question much larger than this bill. It may be this bill is entirely unexceptionable; it may be that every provision agreed upon by the committee of conference is correct; but I insist as a general principle it is a bad habit for the House to confirm a conference report without having the Senate amendments read so that the House can understand them.

Mr. PEEL. I appreciate the reasons given by the gentleman from Illinois for caution with reference to conference reports, but under the new rules of the House the managers of the conference are required to give a full and clear statement of the effect of all that has been agreed to by the committee of conference. I think that meets the objection of the gentleman from Illinois. I demand the previous question.

The previous question was ordered, and under the operation thereof the report was adopted.

Mr. PEEL moved to reconsider the vote by which the report was adopted; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. FISHER, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that the committee had examined and found duly enrolled bills of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (H. R. 1818) for construction of a revenue-cutter for Charleston, S. C., in maintenance of the service, to replace the United States revenue-cutter McCulloch;

A bill (H. R. 3796) to purchase of the widow and children of the late General James Shields certain swords;

A bill (H. R. 4811) for the relief of Robert Johnston, of the State of New York;

A bill (H. R. 5062) for the erection of a public building at Birmingham, Ala.;

A bill (H. R. 5639) for erecting a fire-proof workshop at the National Armory;

A bill (H. R. 5673) to give validity to certain patents for inventions which were irregularly executed;

A bill (H. R. 6291) for the relief of R. S. Stanley, postmaster at Booneville, Miss.; and

A bill (H. R. 8044) to change the time of the sessions of the circuit and district courts of the northern division of the eastern district of Missouri.

EXHIBITION IN BRUSSELS.

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the joint resolution (S. R. 70) appropriating $30,000 for the international exhibition at Brussels, Belgium; which was read twice, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

DULUTH AND SOUTHWESTERN RAILROAD.

Mr. McSHANE. I present the report of a committee of conference.

The Clerk read the report, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 1584) granting the right of way to the Duluth, Rainy Lake River and Southwestern Railway Company through certain Indian lands in the State of Minnesota, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate and agree to the same.

THOMAS R. HUDD,
JOHN A. McSHANE,
KNUTE NELSON,
Managers on the part of the House.
H. L. DAWES,
GEORGE HEARST,
THOMAS M. BOWEN,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

The statement of the managers on the part of the House was read, as follows:

The managers on the part of the House upon the disagreeing votes of the two Houses upon the Senate amendments to the bill (H. R. 1584) "granting the right of way to the Duluth, Rainy Lake River and Southwestern Railway Company through certain Indian lands in the State of Minnesota," make the following detailed statement as to the effect of the several Senate amendments recommended for adoption:

The first amendment prescribes that the consent of the Indians to the right of way shall be obtained by the railway company in such manner as the President may direct.

The second amendment requires that the amount of compensation due individual Indians for damages sustained by the location of the road shall be fixed, ascertained, and paid in the like manner as compensation for damages sustained by the band or tribe as such.

The third amendment requires that the Secretary of the Interior's approval of the plots of definite location of line of road shall be in writing and open to the inspection of all interested parties.

The fourth amendment is merely to correct a verbal inaccuracy, substituting the phrase "due regard for the rights of the Indians" for the phrase "due regard for the Indians."

The fifth amendment strikes out section 6 of the original bill, which provides "that the act shall take effect from and after its passage and publication."

The sixth amendment makes an additional section, the effect of which is to prohibit the railway company from attempting or aiding in depriving the Indians of their title or interest in their reservation or any part thereof, and from opening up their reservation or any part thereof to settlement; and prescribes a total forfeiture of the right of way in case this prohibition is violated.

The seventh amendment makes an additional section, reserving to Congress the unlimited right of amendment or repeal.

THOS. R. HUDD,
JOHN A. McSHANE,
KNUTE NELSON,
Managers on the part of the House.

The report of the committee of conference was agreed to.

Mr. McSHANE moved to reconsider the vote by which the report was agreed to; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. LANHAM. I call for the regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The regular order is the call of committees for reports of bills of a private nature. The morning hour commences at six minutes to 2 o'clock.

Mr. TAULBEE. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the morning hour and to allow reports to be filed at the Clerk's desk.

Mr. STEELE. I object.

EXPOSITION AT LOUISVILLE, KY.

Mr. BYNUM, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 4771) for the relief of the Southern Exposition at Louisville, Ky.; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

BRIDGE OVER TENNESSEE RIVER.

Mr. CRISP, from the Committee on Commerce, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 8623) authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Tennessee River near Guntersville, and for other purposes; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

REGISTRY OF BARGES.

Mr. CRISP also, from the Committee on Commerce, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 6072) for the registry of the barges Alfred M., Condor, and Adelante; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

BRIDGES IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Mr. CRISP also, from the Committee on Commerce, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 8492) authorizing the construction of bridges over the Northeast River, the Black River, and Cape Fear River, in the State of North Carolina; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the amendments and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

GEORGE W. DAVENPORT.

Mr. FORD, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 882) to correct the muster of and for the relief of George W. Davenport; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANDREW J. SMITH.

Mr. GEAR, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 2579) authorizing the President to appoint and retire Andrew J. Smith, late colonel of the Seventh United States Cavalry and a major-general of volunteers; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ALVIS BESHEARS.

Mr. GEAR, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 2948) to correct the military record of Alvis Beshears; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

DAVID B. M'KIBBIN.

Mr. STEELE, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 5283) for the relief of David B. McKibbin; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ALFRED J. WORCESTER.

Mr. STEELE also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 7470) for the relief of Alfred J. Worcester; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ADVERSE REPORT.

Mr. STEELE also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back adversely bills of the following titles; which were severally laid on the table, and the accompanying reports ordered to be printed:

A bill (H. R. 8412) for the relief of Michael Needy;

A bill (H. R. 8457) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of James W. Byrd;

A bill (H. R. 8499) to remove the charge of desertion against Alfred G. Romine;

A bill (H. R. 8503) for the relief of Otis H. Gaylord;

A bill (H. R. 8536) for the relief of Benjamin M. Clark;

A bill (H. R. 8540) for the relief of Bernard Drinks;

A bill (H. R. 8551) for the relief of Ira Hann;

A bill (H. R. 8572) to correct the military record of George W. Camp;

A bill (H. R. 6604) for the relief of James S. Fausey;

A bill (H. R. 8584) for the relief of Elias Dutton, Inez, Martin County, Kentucky;

A bill (H. R. 940) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Aquilla Mahan;

A bill (H. R. 8543) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Charles Richter;

A bill (H. R. 8681) to remove the charge of desertion against Henry Crangle;

A bill (H. R. 8445) for the relief of John T. Crownover;

A bill (H. R. 8408) for the relief of Thomas Lymaugh;

A bill (H. R. 8555) for the relief of Nicolas Dailey;

A bill (H. R. 8702) for the relief of John Pifher;

A bill (H. R. 8703) for the relief of Charles W. Creager;

A bill (H. R. 8708) for the removal of the charge of desertion from the record of George W. Dunlap;

A bill (H. R. 8803) for the relief of John Holt;

A bill (H. R. 8676) for the relief of David Hulburt;

A bill (H. R. 8766) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of John Williams;

A bill (H. R. 8765) for the relief of William Kline;

A bill (H. R. 3436) for the relief of Richard Facion;

A bill (H. R. 8736) to remove the charge of desertion against John Young, and to place his name on the pension-roll;

A bill (H. R. 7906) for the relief of Alpheus P. Stephenson; and

A bill (H. R. 8535) for the relief of Thomas A. McLaughlin.

Mr. STEELE. Mr. Speaker, I ask that those bills lie on the table without prejudice, and that the accompanying report be printed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The report will be printed as a matter of course.

HENRY S. PRATT.

Mr. CUTCHEON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 4692) for the relief of Capt. Henry S. Pratt; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANDREW R. G. SMITH.

Mr. CUTCHEON also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 5156) for the relief of Andrew R. G. Smith; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SARAH K. M'LEAN.

Mr. ROBERTSON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 3927) for the relief of Sarah K. McLean; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

WILLIAM GRAY.

Mr. HOOKER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the (bill H. R. 422) for the relief of William Gray; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

NATHANIEL CRANE.

Mr. LAIRD, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 3551) for the relief of Nathaniel Crane; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

TIMOTHY C. BARJEROW.

Mr. LAIRD also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 6527) to remove the charge of desertion against Timothy C. Barjerow; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARTIN M'NAMARA.

Mr. LAIRD also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 4843) for the relief of Martin McNamara, alias Martin Mack; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

G. W. M'CULLOUGH.

Mr. LAIRD also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 1105) for the relief of G. W. McCullough; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

HENRY ISENBURG.

Mr. LAIRD also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 6068) for the relief of Henry Isenburg; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANDREW BROWN.

Mr. LAIRD also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 3974) to remove the charge of desertion from Andrew Brown; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

RUSH CARLEY.

Mr. LAIRD also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 2729) for the relief of Rush Carley; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ADVERSE REPORTS.

Mr. LAIRD. I send to the desk several bills upon which the Committee on Military Affairs report with the recommendation that they be laid on the table without prejudice, the subject-matter being covered by other legislation referred to in the report.

The following bills reported by Mr. LAIRD were severally laid on the table, and the accompanying reports ordered to be printed:

A bill (H. R. 3226) for the relief of Jeremiah Fritts;

A bill (H. R. 5070) for the relief of Peter Crenshaw;

A bill (H. R. 6447) for the relief of Edward Marcum; and

A bill (H. R. 3967) to remove the charge of desertion from Michael Shannon.

GRADE OF COMMANDER IN THE NAVY.

Mr. ABBOTT, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported back adversely the bill (H. R. 4298) touching the grade of commander in the Navy, and to correct an error in relation to an appointment therein; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, upon the request of Mr. HOLMAN, and the accompanying report ordered to be printed.

RIGHT OF WAY THROUGH CROW INDIAN RESERVATION.

Mr. COBB, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (S. 325) granting to the Billings, Clark's Fork and Cooke City Railroad Company the right of way through the Crow Indian reservation; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. NELSON. I ask leave to file the views of a minority of the committee on this bill.

Mr. COBB. I thought it was understood between us that we would adopt the report and views of the minority made on the pending House bill on the same subject-matter as this bill.

Mr. NELSON. I prefer to file additional views of the minority.

Mr. COBB. Then I may wish to file an additional report.

There being no objection, leave to file the views of the minority and also an additional report of the committee was granted.

JOHN LITTLE AND HOBART WILLIAMS.

Mr. McSHANE, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 2626) for the relief of John Little and Hobart Williams; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

RIGHT OF WAY THROUGH PUBLIC LAND, ETC.

Mr. PERKINS, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 7223) to grant the right of way through the Public Land Strip and Indian Territory to the Montana, Kansas and Texas Railroad Company, and for other purposes; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SUSAN JONES.

Mr. MATSON, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 3125) for the relief of Susan Jones; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANN V. FERGUSON.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 7944) granting a pension to Ann V. Ferguson; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

WARREN OHAVER.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 2156) granting a pension to Warren Ohaver; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

LIEUT. JAMES G. W. HARDY.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 8281) for the relief of Lieut. James G. W. Hardy; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

CULLEN W. GREEN.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 3537) granting a pension to Cullen W. Green; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JOANNA BARRY.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 4653) granting a pension to Joanna Barry; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ENOCH WEATHERS.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 6973) for the relief of Enoch Weathers; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JOHN GLENNING.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 7688) granting a pension to John Glenning; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARY NEVELS.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 7162) for the relief of Mary Nevels; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANNA M. THIELE.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 6976) for the relief of Anna M. Thiele; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

NANCY BALDWIN.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 4504) for the relief of Nancy Baldwin; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ADVERSE REPORTS.

Mr. MATSON also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back adversely bills of the following titles; which were severally ordered to be laid upon the table, and the accompanying reports printed, namely:

A bill (H. R. 5530) for the relief of Thomas Harris;
A bill (H. R. 3540) granting a pension to Joseph Zimmerman;
A bill (H. R. 2163) for the relief of Jesse T. Battles;
A bill (H. R. 4657) granting a pension to Wilhelmine C. Druschel;
A bill (H. R. 4763) granting a pension to Joseph Van Arsdel;
A bill (H. R. 6852) for the relief of Albertina Eberlin;
A bill (H. R. 5356) granting a pension to Eliza Etnire;
A bill (H. R. 4761) granting a pension to Samuel Price;
A bill (H. R. 4656) for the relief of Joseph D. McClure;
A bill (H. R. 6502) for the relief of Joseph D. McClure;
A bill (H. R. 3528) for the relief of Samuel C. Fisher;
A bill (H. R. 7689) granting an increase of pension to George Bernhard;
A bill (H. R. 3538) granting a pension to John Slissler;
A bill (H. R. 3535) granting a pension to William H. Brewer; and
A bill (H. R. 8214) to increase the pension of Abraham Heilman.

MARY ANN LANG.

Mr. CHIPMAN, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 7907) granting a pension to Mary Ann Lang; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MATTHEW H. REYNOLDS.

Mr. CHIPMAN also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 4774) granting a pension to Matthew H. Reynolds; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ELLEN M. THIERS.

Mr. CHIPMAN also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 5789) granting a pension to Ellen M. Thiers; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JOHN SHINE.

Mr. CHIPMAN also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 5544) granting a pension to John Shine; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PLEMAN COOK.

Mr. CHIPMAN also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 5177) granting a pension to Pleman Cook; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

GEORGE W. CROOP.

Mr. CHIPMAN also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 8256) granting a pension to George W. Croop; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ADELAIDE L. JESSUP.

Mr. FRENCH, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 2475) granting a pension to Adelaide L. Jessup; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the amendment and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ISABELLA F. DYKE.

Mr. FRENCH also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 8694) granting a pension to Isabella F. Dyke; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MRS. MARY M'GEE.

Mr. FRENCH also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 1495) granting a pension to Mrs. Mary McGee; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MRS. MARGARET GALLAGHER.

Mr. FRENCH also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 5) granting a pension to Mrs. Margaret Gallagher; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SOPHIA SCHIMMELFENING.

Mr. LYNCH, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 5284) increasing pension of Sophia Schimmelfening, widow of Alexander Schimmelfening, late brigadier-general and major-general by brevet; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the amendments and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

LEAH ROORK.

Mr. WALKER, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 6531) to pension Leah Roork; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

AMANDA F. DECK.

Mr. WALKER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 470) granting a pension to Amanda F. Deck; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

TILLMAN FAUX.

Mr. PIDCOCK, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 5378) for the relief of Tillman Faux; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

LEVI LITTLE.

Mr. PIDCOCK also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 8794) granting a pension to Levi Little; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

FRIEDERICKE RAFF.

Mr. PIDCOCK also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 927) for the relief of Friedericke Raff; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

FRANKLIN LONG.

Mr. MORRILL, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 5114) granting a pension to Franklin Long; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARY FLORA.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 6006) granting a pension to Mary Flora; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

BENJAMIN CONTEL.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 6302) granting a pension to Benjamin Contel; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the amendment and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ELLEN ST. CYR.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 2535) granting a pension to Ellen St. Cyr; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

HENRY P. ALEXANDER.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 2234) granting a pension to Henry P. Alexander; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

WIDOW OF SAMUEL CLARY.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 7253) granting a pension to the widow of Samuel Clary; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

STEPHEN SCHIEDEL.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 1017) granting a pension to Stephen Schiedel; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PHILOMELIA L. DARTT.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 1827) granting a pension to Philomelia L. Dartt; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

GEORGE W. SCHELL.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 625) granting a pension to George W. Schell; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MICHAEL LANE.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 1286) granting a pension to Michael Lane; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARGARET M. COLLINS.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 1015) granting a pension to Margaret M. Collins; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

STEPHEN C. LOBDILL.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 760) granting a pension to Stephen C. Lobdill; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

L. J. M'GOFFIN.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 1146) granting a pension to L. J. McGoffin; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MICHAEL A. MORAN.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 1037) granting a pension to the infant children of Michael A. Moran; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARY E. WOODWARD.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 2167) granting a pension to Mary E. Woodward; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

THEODORE F. CASAMER.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 2157) granting an increase of pension to Theodore F. Casamer; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

EMMA S. FREE.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with an amendment the bill (S. 431) granting a pension to Emma S. Free, widow of Thomas S. Free, late major United States Army; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

HETTIE K. PAINTER.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with an amendment the bill (S. 434) granting a pension to Mrs. Hettie K. Painter; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JULIET G. HOWE.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with an amendment the bill (S. 300) granting a pension to Mrs. Juliet G. Howe; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

GEORGE PARK.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 1299) granting a pension to George Park; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

VIRTUE SMITH.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 1957) granting a pension to Virtue Smith; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JOHN LINSLEY.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 2332) granting a pension to John Linsley; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ADVERSE REPORTS.

Mr. MORRILL also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back adversely bills of the following titles; which were severally laid on the table, and the accompanying reports ordered to be printed:

A bill (H. R. 3848) to restore to the pension-roll the name of Hiram G. D. Squire;

A bill (H. R. 8179) granting a pension to Henry P. Alexander;

A bill (H. R. 226) granting a pension to Oliver Bellamy;

A bill (H. R. 5806) granting a pension to William Frakes;

A bill (H. R. 3763) granting a pension to William H. Derking;

A bill (H. R. 2237) to grant a pension to Thomas Anderson;

A bill (H. R. 3601) granting a pension to William Dorman;

A bill (H. R. 8447) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. Belinda J. McLellan;

A bill (H. R. 2238) for the relief of Samuel Henry;

A bill (H. R. 2232) for the relief of Joseph Guy; and

A bill (H. R. 7563) granting a pension to John Beichley

CHARLES H. ORDWAY.

Mr. GALLINGER, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 8762) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Ordway; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANNA BUTTERFIELD.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 8761) granting a pension to Mrs. Anna Butterfield; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARY FOSTER.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 817) granting a pension to Mary Foster; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARY E. FORREN.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 8677) granting a pension to Mary E. Forren; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARTHA B. PERRY.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 4100) granting a pension to Martha B. Perry; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

FRANK H. REED.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported, as a substitute for the bill H. R. 674, a bill (H. R. 9346) granting a pension to Frank H. Reed; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The original bill, H. R. 674, was laid on the table.

WILLIAM H. H. BUCK.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported, as a substitute for the bill H. R. 5313, a bill (H. R. 9347) granting an increase of pension to William H. H. Buck; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The original bill, H. R. 5313, was laid on the table.

LUCIUS B. VARNEY.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 8607) to increase the pension of Lucius B. Varney; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

HANNAH BABB HUTCHENS.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 5098) granting a pension to Hannah Babb Hutchens; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

NATHANIEL D. CHASE.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 367) granting a pension to Nathaniel D. Chase; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JENNIE HART MULLANY.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendment the bill (S. 2346) granting increase of pension to Jennie Hart Mullany; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARGARET BLADES.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 2073) granting a pension to Margaret Blades; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ROBERT FOSS.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 887) granting a pension to Robert Foss; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JOHN CHILD.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1288) granting a pension to John Child; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANN M. THOMPSON.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back adversely the bill (H. R. 6403) granting a pension to Ann M. Thompson; which was laid on the table, and the accompanying report ordered to be printed.

WILLIAM H. S. RILEY.

Mr. GALLINGER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back adversely the bill (H. R. 374) granting balance of pension to William H. S. Riley; which was laid on the table, and the acpanying report ordered to be printed.

CARTER W. TILLER.

Mr. HUNTER, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 3681) granting a pension to Carter W. Tiller; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ROBERT M'CLEAN.

Mr. HUNTER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 1069) granting a pension to Robert McClean; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

VAN BUREN BROWN.

Mr. HUNTER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 6431) for the relief of Van Buren Brown; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ISAAC M. JOHNSON.

Mr. HUNTER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 5443) granting a pension to Isaac M. Johnson; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

GENERAL S. W. PRICE.

Mr. HUNTER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 433) granting an increase of pension to General S. W. Price; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARY DICKINSON.

Mr. SAWYER, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 8779) granting a pension to Mary Dickinson; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JOHN R. STILES.

Mr. SAWYER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 8673) to increase the pension of John R. Stiles, late a member of Company G, One hundred and forty-eighth Regiment New York Volunteers; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

AUGUSTUS AXMACHER.

Mr. SAWYER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 2690) granting a pension to Augustus Axmacher; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

A. F. SAINT SURE LINDEFELT.

Mr. SAWYER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 3055) for the relief of A. F. Saint Sure Lindefelt; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MRS. ALICE CROARKIN.

Mr. SAWYER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 900) for the relief of Mrs. Alice Croarkin; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARY WHIRRY.

Mr. SAWYER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1194) granting a pension to Mary Whirry; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SOPHIA W. WRIGHT.

Mr. SAWYER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendments the bill (S. 901) for the relief of Sophia W. Wright; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARY A. DOUD.

Mr. SAWYER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1359) for the relief of Mary A. Doud; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JOHN VERTESSY.

Mr. SAWYER also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back adversely the bill (S. 821) granting a pension to John Vertessy; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the adverse report, ordered to be printed.

MARY M. GIBSON.

Mr. BLISS, from the Committee on Pensions, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 7247) to increase the pension of Mary M. Gibson, widow of Commander William Gibson; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANN GIBSON YATES.

Mr. BLISS also, from the Committee on Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 7708) to increase the pension of Ann Gibson Yates; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

EDMUND ASHWORTH.

Mr. BLISS also, from the Committee on Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 231) granting a pension to Edmund Ashworth; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

DANIEL CLARY.

Mr. BLISS also, from the Committee on Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 741) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Clary; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARIE A. SALISBURY AND ALMIRA MORGAN.

Mr. BLISS also, from the Committee on Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 469) granting a pension to Mary A. Salisbury and Almira Morgan, only children of Maj. Abner Morgan, of the Revolutionary war; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

LAFAYETTE LAKIN.

Mr. BLISS also, from the Committee on Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 8211) granting a pension to Lafayette Lakin; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JACOB KINTZ.

Mr. BLISS also, from the Committee on Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 1086) granting a pension to Jacob Kintz, alias John Walters; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARY J. DAVIS.

Mr. BLISS also, from the Committee on Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1111) granting a pension to Mary J. Davis; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

EMILY W. OGDEN.

Mr. BANKHEAD, from the Committee on Pensions, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 2641) granting a pension to Emily W. Ogden; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ADVERSE REPORT.

Mr. SHAW, from the Committee on Claims, reported back adversely the bill (H. R. 4031) for the relief of Jabez Burchard; which was ordered to be laid upon the table and the accompanying report printed.

WILLIAM W. BURNS.

Mr. SHAW also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 72) for the relief of William W. Burns; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANNA SCHAAP.

Mr. SHAW also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 2437) for the relief of Anna Schaap; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SELIGMAN AND STETTHEIMER.

Mr. SHAW also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 2435) for the relief of Seligman and Stettheimer; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JABEZ BURCHARD.

Mr. SHAW also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back favorably the bill (S. 131) for the relief of Jabez Burchard; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JAMES ENTWISTLE.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 5409) for the relief of James Entwistle; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ROBERT C. MURPHY.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 473) for the relief of Robert C. Murphy; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

HEIRS OF JAMES W. SHAUMBURG.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 954) for the relief of the heirs, legal representatives, or legatees of James W. Shaumburg; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

WRECK OF THE TALLAPOOSA.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 869) for the relief of the sufferers by the wreck of the United States steamer Tallapoosa; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

HENRIETTA M. SANDS.

Mr. TIMOTHY J. CAMPBELL also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 1089) for the relief of Henrietta M. Sands, widow of the late Rear-Admiral Benjamin F. Sands, United States Navy; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SIMEON WAGNER AND OTHERS.

Mr. SIMMONS, from the Committee on Claims, reported, as a substitute for the bill H. R. 8678, a bill (H. R. 9348) for the relief of Simeon Wagner and others; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The bill H. R. 8678 was laid on the table.

STUBBS & LACKEY.

Mr. SIMMONS also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 6999) for the relief of Stubbs & Lackey; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SAMUEL B. SEAT.

Mr. SIMMONS also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 573) for the relief of Samuel B. Seat, administrator of Christian Kropp, deceased; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

S. E. SCARBOROUGH.

Mr. SIMMONS also, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 2059) for the relief of S. E. Scarborough; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

DAVID RYAN.

Mr. MASON, from the Committee on Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 8356) to confer jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to hear and determine the claim of David Ryan against the United States; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

D. K. PONDER.

Mr. WILKINSON, from the Committee on War Claims, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 6885) for the relief of D. K. Ponder, of Ripley County, Missouri; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the amendments and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MRS. MARY SHANNON.

Mr. WILKINSON also, from the Committee on War Claims, reported, as a substitute for the bill H. R. 3718, a bill (H. R. 9349) for the relief of Mrs. Mary Shannon, widow and administratrix of the estate of Joseph R. Shannon, deceased, and to provide for payment of the loss of the steam-boat A. W. Quarrier; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The bill H. R. 3718 was laid on the table.

Mr. CROUSE presented the views of the minority; which were ordered to be printed with the report of the majority.

ANDREW LUTZ.

Mr. BLISS, from the Committee on War Claims, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 2697) for the relief of Andrew Lutz; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the amendments and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

CLAIMS REPORTED BY COURT OF CLAIMS.

Mr. STONE, of Kentucky, from the Committee on War Claims, reported a bill (H. R. 9350) for the allowance of certain claims for stores and supplies taken and used by the United States Army, as reported by the Court of Claims under the provisions of the act of March 3, 1883; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

DAVIDSON DICKSON.

Mr. O'NEALL, of Indiana, from the Committee on War Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (H. R. 63) for the relief of Davidson Dickson and others; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The hour for the presentation of reports has expired.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. McCOOK, its Secretary, informed the House that the Senate had passed with an amendment the bill of the House (H. R. 1983) to ratify an act entitled "An act creating the county of San Juan, Territory of New Mexico," asked a conference on the bill and amendment, and had appointed as conferees on the part of the Senate Mr. DAVIS, Mr. STEWART, and Mr. BUTLER.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed with an amendment the bill of the House (H. R. 3215) to authorize the construction of the "Ohio Connecting Railway bridge," asked a conference with the House on the bill and amendment, and had appointed as conferees on the part of the Senate Mr. SAWYER, Mr. FRYE, and Mr. VEST.

The message further announced that the Senate had passed bills of the following titles; in which the concurrence of the House was requested:

A bill (S. 2123) to authorize the removal of an obstruction to the navigation of Broad Creek, in the State of Delaware;

A bill (S. 1721) establishing a customs district in the State of Florida, to be known as the collection district of Tampa, and for other purposes; and

A bill (S. 2613) to amend an act approved June 15, 1882, changing the boundaries of the fourth collection district of Virginia.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House now resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union for the purpose of considering bills on the Private Calendar.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to raise the question of consideration. My object is to ask the House to go into Committee of the Whole to consider the appropriation bill reported from the Committee on Indian Affairs.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There is no question of consideration that can be raised on the motion of the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PEEL. I simply desire to give notice that if that motion is voted down I shall then ask the House to go into Committee of the Whole on the bill I have indicated.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That will be in order if the motion of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. LANHAM] is voted down.

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to present a report from a committee. We have not got through with the reports yet.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. But there is only an hour allowed for that business under the rule.

Mr. BIGGS. I understand that; but I ask unanimous consent that the time be extended.

A MEMBER. I object.

Mr. BIGGS. I ask unanimous consent to present a report which I have had in hand for some time.

There was no objection.

WILLIAM MIDKIFF.

Mr. BIGGS, from the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 7983) for the relief of William Midkiff; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

BRIDGE OVER MISSOURI RIVER AT OMAHA.

Mr. PHELAN, by unanimous consent, reported from the Committee on Commerce a bill (H. R. 6440) to authorize the construction of a bridge over the Missouri River at or near the city of Omaha, Nebr.; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The question was taken on the motion of Mr. LANHAM that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the purpose of considering bills on the Private Calendar, and the Speaker pro tempore declared that the ayes seemed to have it.

Mr. SPRINGER. I call for a division.

The House divided; and there were ayes 109.

Mr. PEEL. No further count is demanded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. LANHAM] is agreed to. The House determines to resolve itself into Committee of the Whole, and the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. ROGERS] will please take the chair.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole (Mr. ROGERS in the chair).

The CHAIRMAN. The House is in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of bills on the Private Calendar. The Clerk will report the first bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 6348) for the relief of Mrs. Ellen P. Malloy.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Mrs. Ellen P. Malloy the sum of $700.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Chairman, I do not know who made the report on this bill, and unless some gentleman insists on its present consideration I shall ask that the bill be laid aside.

Mr. GLASS. Let the report be read.

The report (by Mr. LAWLER) was read, as follows:

The Committee on War Claims of the Forty-eighth Congress, not being fully and clearly advised of all the facts in the case, referred it to the Court of Claims for a finding of the facts under the provisions of an act entitled "An act to afford assistance and relief to Congress and the Executive Departments in the investigation of claims and demands against the Government," approved March 3, 1883.

Said claim has been returned by said Court of Claims with the following findings of fact, filed June 7, 1886, which findings have been referred to the Committee on War Claims of the present Congress, to wit:

"[In the Court of Claims, Congressional case No. 108, Mrs. E. P. Molloy vs. The United States.]

"FINDINGS OF FACT.—FILED JUNE 7, 1886.

"The claim in the above-entitled suit having been transmitted to this court by the Committee on War Claims of the House of Representatives on the 22d day of May, 1884, and the Attorney-General having appeared for the defendants, and the suit having been brought to a hearing on the 22d day of April, 1886, the court, upon the proofs and evidence, and after hearing Gilbert Moyers, esq., of counsel for the claimant, and H. J. May, esq., of counsel for the defendants, finds the following facts:

"I.

"On the 12th November, 1864, the military authorities in Memphis, Tenn., took possession of the dwelling-house in that city known as No. 65 Union street, the separate estate and property of the claimant. The house was used and occupied as a portion of the military headquarters in that city for upwards of seven months. The fair and reasonable rent of such a house for the period named was $100 per month, amounting in the aggregate to $700, which has never been paid to the claimant.

"II.

"At the time the military authorities took possession of the said house, as set forth in the preceding finding, it contained the furniture of a private residence. A bureau of the quartermaster's department in Memphis, termed the rental office, at the time of occupancy, took a full inventory, with apparently great particularity and care, of every article of furniture in the house. The said inventory contained upward of sixty entries, and enumerated several hundred items. It was duly returned by the officer of the rental office to Col. R. E. Cleary, deputy quartermaster-general at Memphis, and was filed in his office. Of the furniture so inventoried a large part was removed by the quartermaster's department from the house, and articles of the value of $1,200 were never returned to the claimant, nor has she been compensated for them.

"III.

"So much of the claim as relates to the furniture was submitted to the Quartermaster-General, but was not paid.

"BY THE COURT.

"A true transcript of record.
"Test, this 8th day of June, A. D. 1886.
"[SEAL.]

"JOHN RANDOLPH,
"Assistant Clerk Court of Claims."

Your committee therefore report a bill herewith providing for the payment of the amount found by said court for rent of said property, amounting to $700, and recommend that it do pass.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Chairman, this case has been before two Congresses, and has been reported upon favorably in each. My colleague [Mr. RICHARDSON], who introduced the bill and has charge of it, is absent at this moment. I move that the bill be laid aside to be reported to the House with a favorable recommendation.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Mr. Chairman, I do not intend to make a "crank" of myself in opposing appropriations of this character. I simply wish to point out that this is one of a class of claims which never have been paid, and the limitation to which, if we once begin to pay them, no computation can do justice to. If in every case where a military officer in the Southern States occupied a house overnight or for one month, or six months, compensation at this late day is to be given, it is not important that we should adopt any other measures for reducing the surplus revenue. I oppose every appropriation of this character.

Mr. SPRINGER. This bill is very short and I wish to have it read again. I do not think it corresponds with the report of the committee.

The bill was again read.

Mr. SPRINGER. This bill should state that the payment which it proposes to make is in full of all claims against the United States; for the report discloses that the same person is claiming a large amount for furniture destroyed at the same time. The bill should state that this payment is in full.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not think it is.

Mr. SPRINGER. I understand this to be an adjudication of all that is due the claimant, the whole case having been referred to the Court of Claims. Therefore, in order that another bill may not come in for the furniture, this bill should state that this payment is in full. I understand that the whole claim of the claimant has been referred to the Court of Claims, and that the court has found that this amount should be paid for rent, as it was found to be due by a board of Army officers appointed at the time to consider the question. This appropriation is made, I understand, to cover the claim which was adjudicated in that way at the time.

Mr. PERKINS. Why does not the gentleman offer an amendment?

Mr. SPRINGER. I do offer an amendment, to insert these words: "in full of all demands against the United States."

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Chairman, having just come in, I have not heard all the debate on this question; but the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SPRINGER] is mistaken in regard to the finding of the Court of Claims. If he will examine the finding he will see that the court found the facts to be as follows: That this woman was the owner of this property located in the city of Memphis; that it was taken possession of, used and occupied by the Army, and that this occupation continued for seven months. The court finds that a reasonable rent is $100 per month for those seven months. But the gentleman is mistaken as to the furniture and personal property. The court finds that she had in the house $1,200 worth of personal property, which was also taken and used by the Army. Now, the court does not recommend, as the gentleman supposes, that the claimant be paid simply $700 as rent. The court does not make any recommendation, but simply finds the facts. The court does not say, as the gentleman seems to suppose, that the personal property ought not to be paid for, but that there was $1,200 worth of personal property taken and used by the Army.

Mr. McMILLIN. They report that as a fact?

Mr. RICHARDSON. They report that as a fact, just as they do in regard to the $700 for rent.

Mr. Chairman, the facts of this case are as I have stated them. But when the findings of the Court of Claims were before the Committee on War Claims in the last House that committee made a mistake in reporting merely an appropriation of $700 for rent or for use and occupation of this property. By all means they ought to have reported an appropriation of $1,200 as compensation for personal property taken and used. According to the custom and usages which have obtained in Congress payment ought to have been made for the property taken, rather than for use and occupation. I do not think I can be mistaken in that.

Mr. SPRINGER. The gentleman corrects me properly. I thought the recommendation read by the Clerk was that of the Court of Claims; I see now it is the recommendation of the committee. From merely listening to the reading I could not tell where the language of the court ceased and that of the committee began. By looking at the paper, however, I find the committee recommend that the amount of $700, found by the court as properly due for rent, be paid. The bill which went before the Committee on War Claims provided for paying the whole amount of this claimant's demand against the Government, covering rent and furniture; and the committee having adjudged, as I understand from the report, that the Government is liable only for the rent, and having reported in favor of paying that amount, the bill ought to show that such has been the finding in regard to the claimant's demand against the Government, so that this payment may be a finality. It was for this reason I suggested the amendment.

Mr. RICHARDSON rose.

Mr. BREWER. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I will in a moment; but first I wish to make a statement. It occurs to me that instead of the amendment suggested by the gentleman from Illinois, an amendment should be adopted providing payment for the personal property, if we are going to pay for only one character of loss, because payment for personal property is in line with former acts of the Government. But my idea is that if we are going to pay for rent, we certainly ought to pay for the personal property taken. I have here the original list given by Col. R. E. Cleary, deputy quartermaster, who was the rental agent of the Federal Army. Here is the original inventory of these items of personal property taken and the original receipt, which any gentleman can examine, and which I will read in a moment.

It occurs to my mind that the Government ought to pay for the personal property taken rather than for the rent, although there is no question that we should pay for both; and my amendment which I shall offer will be to pay for both, instead of excluding her from this amount. I think the Committee on War Claims, as I have said, made a mistake in the last Congress in that respect.

Now I will yield to the gentleman from New Jersey, who wished to ask a question.

Mr. BREWER. Have you a memorandum of the personal property taken?

Mr. RICHARDSON. There is a receipt here which perhaps I had better read, as it will convey the information the gentleman seeks. I can not tell myself. I will read portions of this receipt and ask to have it incorporated as a part of my remarks. The receipt for this property is as follows:

RENTAL OFFICE, Memphis, Tenn., November 12, 1864.

The above and foregoing——

Referring to the inventory of property—contains a true inventory of the furniture this day delivered to R. E. Cleary, deputy quartermaster-general, at Memphis, Tenn., and signed by L. R. Harbeck, lieutenant and acting assistant quartermaster-general, and approved by R. E. Cleary, deputy quartermaster-general, as being correct. Said furniture being in the possession of Charles Northrup, the occupant of the house known as the "Malloy house," on the south side of Union street, in the city of Memphis, Tenn.—the third house west of General Washburn's headquarters, said house and furniture having been seized by the military authorities of the United States.

Col. R. E. CLEARY,
Deputy Quartermaster-General.
Per L. S. LEONARD,
Rental Agent.

Here follows the list, which includes, as stated in the findings of the Court of Claims, over sixty different entries of articles, comprising some hundreds of items, consisting in part of carpets, chairs, tables, bedding, bed-clothes, bedsteads, and household articles generally.

Mr. SPRINGER. Will my friend from Tennessee yield to me for a moment, as I desire to read the heading of this paper to which he has referred?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Certainly I yield for that purpose.

Mr. SPRINGER. I read the caption, as follows:

List of furniture in the Malloy House, on the south side of Union street, the third house west of General Washburn's headquarters, now occupied by Charles Northrup; November 12, 1864.

Then follows the articles found in the house when the Army took possession.

Mr. BREWER. The list of property which is given there seems to be a list of what was found in the house when the Army entered the city and took possession.

Mr. SPRINGER. Yes, sir; this shows that it is a list of property that was found in the house when the Army took possession. A description is given of the property and its location in the house; for instance, there is a list of furniture in the front parlor, in the back parlor, bath-room, etc.

Mr. BURROWS. Did the Army carry it off?

Mr. SPRINGER. No; that is the furniture that was in the house when the Army took possession.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The finding of the Court of Claims is, as I stated to my friend from Michigan, that the property was taken possession of by the Government authorities, and an inventory of it was correctly made out; but the property itself was never returned to the owner. The finding of the Court of Claims says in regard to this receipt:

It was duly returned by the officer of the rent office to Col. R. E. Cleary, deputy quartermaster-general at Memphis, and was filed in his office. Of the furniture so inventoried a large part was removed by the quartermaster's department from the house, and articles of the value of $1,200 were never returned to the claimant, nor has she been compensated for them.

That is the finding of the Court of Claims; and it seems to me that the proper amendment, instead of saying that she shall be estopped from the collection of this amount, would be to include it in the appropriation for her benefit, making the total amount $1,900. If there should be a determination to pay but one of these claims, I should insist that it ought to be for the personal property rather than the amount of the rent.

Mr. BREWER. Is the gentleman from Tennessee a member of the committee which made this report?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I am not now a member of the committee. I was in the last Congress.

Mr. BREWER. Does the gentleman understand that the Court of Claims has made a favorable report for the use and occupation of premises occupied by the Union Army after they had conquered this territory from those in rebellion?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir; I do not.

Mr. BREWER. Is this not just such a case?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir; I think not. This is a case in which they needed such property, and one in which they made a contract for the rent.

Mr. BREWER. Where is the contract for the rent of the house?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have not the contract, but that is found by the Court of Claims, as I understand.

Mr. KERR. Does the gentleman understand that these are quartermaster's supplies?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir. Some were, I presume.

Mr. PERKINS. Does the gentleman from Tennessee understand that there is any mention whatever in the findings of the Court of Claims of any contract that had been made for this property?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I am not positive of that. There is, however, a rental contract.

Mr. PERKINS. Does the gentleman not find further that there is positively no finding whatever of loyalty by the Court of Claims?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir.

Mr. PERKINS. There is no such finding.

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir; that is not the case. The findings of the Court of Claims may not so specify, but it is clearly demonstrated; because in all the arguments that have taken place heretofore on these claims it has been shown clearly, I think, that the court never takes jurisdiction of such cases until the question of loyalty was first found; because, under the Bowman act referring these cases to the Court of Claims, loyalty is a jurisdictional question, and the court can not, and it is understood does not, enter upon the consideration of the claim at all on its merits until the question of loyalty has been affirmatively ascertained. That I understand to be the practice.

Mr. PERKINS. That, perhaps, is logically correct, but it may not be practically correct, because we know as a matter of fact in most of the findings of the Court of Claims there is a distinct finding on the subject of loyalty. In this case there is not.

Mr. RICHARDSON. There is not that finding in all the cases.

Mr. PERKINS. In nearly all there is; but in this case there is an absence of finding on that subject. Then, as I understand, there is no finding that any contract had been entered into between the Government of the United States or its representative and this claimant.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The receipt is signed by the rental officer.

Mr. PERKINS. There is no such statement in the findings.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The findings do not set out all the facts, but only the conclusions.

Mr. DINGLEY. Is there not a statement that this house and property were seized?

Mr. RICHARDSON. They were occupied; not exactly seized.

Mr. LANHAM. The language is that the house was taken possession of. The first finding of the Court of Claims states this:

On the 12th November, 1864, the military authorities in Memphis, Tenn., took possession of the dwelling-house in that city known as No. 65 Union street, the separate estate and property of the claimant.

There is nothing said about any rental contract in the finding of the court.

Mr. PETERS. I would like to ask how the gentleman from Tennessee explains the fact that the bill is for $700.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I suppose the bill was drawn simply to cover the amount found to be due by the Committee on War Claims in the last House. I introduced the bill, not noticing the fact at the time that the finding of the Court of Claims placed the amount at $1,200. I introduced the bill for $700. If there be any mistake, I take the responsibility.

Mr. BREWER. I was very glad at the time the Bowman bill was passed, by which many of this class of claims were to go to the Court of Claims for the purpose of finding out the facts, and providing that the court should report the facts, together with the law, to this House; but during my experience at this session of Congress I have come to the conclusion that we have made a mistake.

During the Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth Congresses, in which I had the honor to serve in this House, claims similar to the one which is under consideration at the present time would not have met with the favorable consideration of the House, and they were, I think I can say, universally voted down.

So far as my experience goes during the present session these claims are favorably reported and have succeeded in getting through this House.

Now, what are the facts in this case, if we are to gather the facts from the statement of the gentleman who introduced the bill? The city of Memphis, as is well known, was for some time within hostile territory. It was for some time occupied by those who were in armed rebellion against the Government. The Union troops took possession of that city, and it became necessary—of course a military necessity—that they should occupy certain buildings, and they took possession of this building, and in the building there seems to have been some furniture.

Now, what is done? A list of that furniture is made out and a receipt given to the party perhaps who owned the premises in question. There is no contract that should bind the Government to return this property or that would make the Government an insurer of this property in any shape. There was no contract that the Government should be in any way responsible for the use and occupation of these premises; and I insist that we are establishing by our votes here to-day a precedent that we shall hereafter regret. The evidence fails to show that the furniture was at any time removed from the building.

Mr. RICHARDSON. What is the precedent of which the gentleman speaks?

Mr. BREWER. The precedent that we shall pay for the use and occupation of premises that were occupied by the Union forces in rebel territory.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Will the gentleman allow me a question?

Mr. BREWER. Certainly.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Does the gentleman claim that Memphis in 1864 was the seat of war?

Mr. BREWER. I do not suppose that at that time it was the seat of war, because it was then occupied by the Union forces, and it had been the seat of war. It had been taken by the Union Army from those who were in rebellion, and if the Government was liable in that case it is just as liable in the case of occupancy of property in New Orleans, Mobile, Atlanta, and Charleston, S. C., or in any other of the cities of the rebel States. Can there be any distinction?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. BREWER. I will be glad to have the gentleman, when he has the floor, point out the distinction. If the Government is liable for the use and occupation of property in Memphis, why would it not be liable for the use and occupation of property in Charleston?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Will the gentleman yield to permit me to answer his question?

Mr. BREWER. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I read from the decision of the Court of Claims in the case of Thomas G. Neal vs. The United States. The opinion was delivered by Justice Nott, of that court, and I think it makes the distinction very clear. He says:

The military occupation of Tennessee began with the beginning of the year 1862, and the advance of the Union forces was continuous and rapid, extending through the most populous portion of the State to its extreme southwestern border. The permanent occupation of Nashville dates from the 25th of February, and that of Memphis from the 6th of June.

Before the military occupation of the State was complete a great number of refugees passed over into Kentucky and enlisted in Union regiments forming there. This number the adjutant-general of Tennessee, in his report for 1866, computes to be about 7,000. Within the State there were raised and organized thirty-two regiments of cavalry and infantry and five batteries of light artillery, containing, according to the rolls of the War Department, 31,092 white troops. We may therefore conclude that the number of white troops furnished by the State of Tennessee was, in round numbers, not far from 38,000.

Does the gentleman know how many Michigan furnished?

Mr. BREWER. Oh, yes.

Mr. RICHARDSON. How many?

Mr. BREWER. Something over ninety thousand.

Mr. RICHARDSON. There were a number of States, though, which furnished fewer troops than Tennessee; Vermont, for instance, and Kansas.

Mr. ROWELL. Vermont is not a very large State.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I understand that; but I am simply showing that we had loyal men in Tennessee. The court goes on to say "that the magnitude of Tennessee's contribution to the Union forces will be better appreciated by a comparison," and then it makes the comparison, which shows that Tennessee contributed more troops to the Union Army than either New Hampshire, West Virginia, or Vermont; nearly twice as many as Kansas, Rhode Island, or Minnesota; more than twice as many as either California or the District of Columbia; three times as many as Delaware; and four times as many as Arkansas.

Mr. BREWER. The gentleman rose to answer a question, but my question was not as to how many troops Tennessee had furnished to the Union Army.

Mr. RICHARDSON. If the gentleman will allow me, I do not care to read all of this opinion, but these facts appear in the opinion and the opinion answers his question. I will now read further from the opinion of the court, omitting so much of it as relates to the number of soldiers furnished. The court say:

If the aid which the State gave to the Union had begun earlier or later, it might not have received the extraordinary appreciation which was accorded to it, but its coming was during the disastrous campaign of 1862, when the resources of the Northern States were strained to the utmost, when the siege of Richmond was abandoned, and the State of Maryland was invaded, and the bloody fields of the seven days' battles, the second Bull Run, Shiloh, and Antietam lay fresh before the public gaze.

On the 22d day of September, 1862, the President issued the proclamation which announced that on the 1st January ensuing he would "by proclamation designate the States and parts of States, if any, in which the people thereof, respectively, shall then be in rebellion," and the proclamation likewise declared "that on the 1st day of January, in the year of our Lord 1863, 'all persons held as slaves within any State or designated part of any State the people whereof shall then be in rebellion' against the United States shall be then, thenceforward, and forever free."

On the 1st January, 1863, the President issued the proclamation of emancipation, wherein he receited the provisions above referred to of the preceding proclamation, and declared that in accordance with his purpose "publicly proclaimed for the full period of one hundred days," he did "order and designate as the States and parts of States wherein the people thereof, respectively, are this day in rebellion against the United States the following," and Tennessee was not one of them.

Such being the action of the executive concerning the State of Tennessee, we now pass to the legislative. It will be found set forth in the statutes enumerated in the case just decided (Heflebower). Briefly stated it was this. Congress by the act of 4th July, 1864, provided a remedy for the exclusive benefit of the loyal citizens of the loyal States, the language of the act being "States not in rebellion." By the act 28th July, 1866, Congress extended the benefits of the act 4th July, 1864, "to the loyal citizens of the State of Tennessee." From that moment, therefore, the citizens of Tennessee, loyal or disloyal, so far as claims for personal property were involved stood upon precisely the same footing as the citizens of States never in rebellion. In 1867 this action of the legislative branch of the Government was rendered still more expressive by a provision attached to the act 21st February, 1867 (14 Stat. L., 397), which forbade the settlement of claims that had "originated" in States or parts of States declared in rebellion by the proclamation 1st July, 1862, but which added the significant declaration "that nothing herein contained shall repeal or modify" the previous action of Congress in favor of the State of Tennessee. The purpose of the act 1867, therefore, was to restrict the benefits of the act 1864 to cases where both the claimant and the claim came from a loyal State, and the effect was to declare that a claim which had originated in the State of Tennessee should be regarded, so far as the act 1864 was involved, as a claim which had "originated" in a loyal State.

Now, Mr. Chairman, that answers the gentleman's question, and shows most conclusively to my mind that when this contract was made or when this occupation occurred, in November, 1864, it was immaterial whether it was in the State of Tennessee or in the State of Michigan.

Mr. BREWER. Mr. Chairman, the question which I propounded to the gentleman was a short one, but he has been a long time in answering it. I am glad to know that the State of Tennessee became a loyal State, as the gentleman says, previous to 1864; but in 1864, if I remember correctly, the city of Memphis, where this property was occupied, had no city government whatever, except that of the military power, and I may say until the close of the war the city of Memphis could be occupied by Union people only by reason of the protection which was given to them by the Union Army stationed there. It is said that the President issued a proclamation in which it appeared that Tennessee was withdrawn from the States said to be in rebellion. Let us see about that. At the very time when this claim originated the city of Nashville was occupied by the Union forces, and it was after that time, if I recollect correctly, that a battle was fought south of the city of Nashville, in which thousands and thousands of men were slain on the Union side in order that the Union armies might hold that city.

Yet my friend talks about the loyalty of the western portion of the State of Tennessee in 1864. The city of Memphis was as disloyal in 1864 as it was in 1862, when it was occupied by those in armed hostility to the Government; and it is nonsense for gentlemen to stand here and say that this Government should treat that city as one which had always been loyal to the country. The Union Army had conquered that city; had driven from it those in armed rebellion against the Government; had taken possession of the city, and had occupied this house as a matter of military necessity, as it had the right to do. It had taken possession of this house, with household furniture in it, and a list was made of that furniture. Is it possible that twenty-five years after the close of the war gentlemen are to come here and demand compensation from this Government for the occupation of property which was conquered by force of arms? I do not believe this House is ready to vote in favor of any such proposition. I do not believe the people of this country will sustain any such action.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Mr. Chairman, the authority which has been read by my friend from Tennessee is an authority which undertook to define what were the limits of the territory in rebellion, what was an insurrectionary district at certain periods of the war history. My opposition to payment of this claim and kindred claims does not rest upon any question of that kind and is not affected by that decision in any respect whatever.

If this claim were for occupation of a house in Ohio or Massachusetts, the surrounding circumstances being the same other than the character of the inhabitants and their history with relation to the war, I should oppose the payment of the claim upon the very ground on which President Grant based two vetoes which became landmarks in the policy of the Government in dealing with these questions. In the first place, I may say—but this, however, is to my mind an unimportant objection as compared with my next objection.

I do not consent to the proposition of the gentleman from Tennessee that it must be assumed the Court of Claims found a certain fact affirmatively, otherwise it would not have proceeded to adjudicate upon this claim at all. As I understand his argument, it is that, inasmuch as the Court of Claims found certain facts to exist, they must have found another fact to have existed, or they would not have found the others. I know of no rule of logic, Mr. Chairman, which is as broad as that. In other words, inasmuch as the Court of Claims reported the existence of certain facts which it was incumbent it should find, is it to be conclusively presumed that it also found another fact? I can not consent to this doctrine.

To illustrate, five questions of fact are sent to a referee (and for the purposes of my argument and so far as concerns the law of the present case the Court of Claims is a referee) for a report of the facts and, if you please, the law. This referee finds upon four questions of fact and is silent as to the other. If this other fact is a jurisdictional one, it seems to me the report is fatal to the claim.

Now, the language of the Bowman act is very plain to my mind. It provides that whenever one of these claims is sent to the Court of Claims for the finding of facts, if it is for military or naval stores taken for the use of the Army or Navy in the suppression of the rebelllion, then, among other things, the court is to find whether or not the claimant was throughout the war loyal to the Government of the United States; and, in the words of the act, "the fact of such loyalty shall be a jurisdictional fact."

Now, will any lawyer say that silence on that question is an affirmation? The court itself has not acted upon that theory, for in almost all its reports it has been careful to find upon that fact. You remember, Mr. Chairman, that in the case we had before us a week or two ago—the claim of compensation for tobacco—the Court of Claims emphasized the fact that not only the wife but the husband had been loyal throughout the war. So, I may say with safety, the court has done generally. It has so understood its duty, and has usually discharged it by passing upon that question.

But I do not stand upon that branch of the case with the same confidence as I do upon the other. Here is an act of the Army which was a simple act of occupation, nothing more. It is not pretended here that there was any contract; it is not pretended that anybody agreed to pay. We take knowledge of how the thing was done. The Army moved in and took possession under the usages and laws of war. It had a right to take possession of all the property that was necessary for the comfort of the troops. It took possession of certain personal property, and, if you please, destroyed it. What was that act? I do not care whether the property was receipted for; I do not care whether the Army used it or burned it, or carried it home with them, or carried it forward and used it afterward in camp. The act had a single quality. It is classed as "ravages of war."

This property was not taken as quartermaster's stores; it could not have been so taken. It was taken as the "boys" on our side took possession of the houses in the South and occupied the beds and the furniture; it was taken as the "boys" on the other side rode through the lanes and roads of my State carrying the bed-clothes and cooking utensils of our citizens strung upon their horses and mules. The people of that State suffered therein the "ravages of war," and were bound to suffer without compensation under the laws of war, which are as well settled as the laws of contract.

Now, then, it is said that this authority read by my friend from Tennessee takes this case outside of that class of cases entirely. Why, Mr. Chairman, the very construction of this statute forbids such a conclusion as that. This statute provides that this court shall not take jurisdiction for the purpose of payment or adjudication of any claim for the occupation of real estate by any part of the military or naval forces of the United States in the operation of said forces during the war at the "seat of war," and I read from the third section of the act itself.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Will the gentleman allow me for a moment to read a part of this decision of the court to which I have referred? I did not conclude the reading.

Mr. GROSVENOR. If it is in the direction of what I am talking about I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think it will satisfy the gentleman on that point.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Very well; I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The court say:

Upon this executive and legislative action and for the reason set forth in the Heflebower case (just decided), to which this is a sequel, the court bases its conclusion that on the 1st of January, 1863, the State of Tennessee ceased to be hostile territory, and from that time could not be regarded as the seat of war within the meaning of the third section of the Bowman act.

Mr. GROSVENOR. The gentleman need not read further.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is all; I did not want to read further; that covers the case.

Mr. GROSVENOR. That has not the slightest application to my argument; and certainly I do not know whether I would do the gentleman from Tennessee a greater injury to say that he purposely does not understand the point in the case, or that he, from some disability, does not understand it.

I am not talking about the question of what territory was loyal at a given time. The language of the Bowman act was drawn for the express purpose of getting rid of the whole question. They do not say anything about an insurrectionary district. They do not say a word about any State being loyal or in rebellion; but the law expressly says that we shall never pay for the use or occupation of real estate at the "seat of war."

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is just the point of my argument. This was not at the seat of war.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Then what is the seat of war?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Are you willing that the Court of Claims shall decide that?

Mr. GROSVENOR. I do not think the Court of Claims is needed to settle the question of geography.

Mr. RICHARDSON. But this is a judicial decision of the Court of Claims.

Mr. GROSVENOR. For the purpose of my argument I might grant all you say. I do not know where the gentleman was on the 3d and 4th of July, 1863, but if he was in the neighborhood of Gettysburgh I imagine that he would have concluded there was a "seat of war" somewhere in that neighborhood about that time. The "seat of war" is where war is going on. If the territory is not insurrectionary, then per se it was not at a "seat of war." But if actual war is going on, then the rules of war apply, and by those rules the Army may occupy houses and not be liable for rent.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not want my friend from Ohio to get his geography mixed. Gettysburgh is not in the direction of Tennessee.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Is it not?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir.

Mr. GROSVENOR. I am glad to hear you say so. I find you have studied the map of your country to some purpose.

Mr. Chairman, the point I make is that the principle applies wherever the Army of the United States was engaged in war; and that the payment for occupation of real estate at Gettysburgh by the United States troops was just as much barred under the Bowman act as though it had taken place in the heart of the then Southern Confederacy. That is my point. The "seat of war," to use the words of the statute—the seat of war excluded from the operation of these claims any place where the armies of the United States by the exigencies of war were carrying on the war and occupying real estate.

Why, Mr. Chairman, this law was not drawn blindly or hastily. It was drawn to get rid of these millions upon millions of dollars of claims to be presented in this manner. No matter where the Army was, that was the seat of war. The territory was not in insurrection. The territory was not the territory of the enemy; but it was the seat of war, and the Government has always claimed the right to occupy the houses, the farms, and the property of the citizen whenever in the exigency of war it was necessary that the Government should occupy them for the use of the Army during its operations when the country is in a state of war.

Mr. BRUMM. And whether the citizen be loyal or disloyal.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Whether loyal or disloyal.

It has been settled, as I said before, by the vetoes of General Grant. It has been settled by the consent of the American people, those who were loyal as well as those who were disloyal, and at this late day I stand here to protest against removing that landmark that we may turn over to these claimants, or their successors, whoever they may be, an illimitable field of plunder from the Treasury of the United States. They may have been loyal. If so, they paid the price of loyalty.

They contributed in this way to the salvation of this magnificent Government. They may have been disloyal, and in that way have contributed to their own punishment; and the laws of war, the settled policy of this Government, forbids that in a case of a small sum of $700, a trifling claim, or in case of a large one, that we should enter the Treasury of the United States and open such a field as this, the end of which no man can see.

I was drawn into this, sir, and do not intend to make myself the champion of the opposition to this claimant; but I have placed upon the records of this country, at what I believe to be the threshold of this disastrous attack upon the Treasury of the United States, my opposition to the whole system.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Illinois insist on his amendment?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I withdraw any amendment which I have offered.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Do I understand this claim has been paid by the State of Tennessee?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Would it not be the more regular way for the State to pay this claim and then be credited with it on the $281,000 of direct tax which it owes the Government?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That might be; but I think the sight of the gentleman from Maine is as much blinded as the sight of the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Does the gentleman from Maine offer that as an amendment?

Mr. BOUTELLE. I offer it as a suggestion.

Mr. RICHARDSON. In regard to the position of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR], I do not want to discuss it further. It seems to me he does not attempt to answer the legal conclusion reached by the Court of Claims; that is, that from the date mentioned in this decision the State of Tennessee in 1863 was not the seat of war. The gentleman says I get confused upon this point, and he undertakes to attribute that to some quotation which he says he can not exactly understand. It seems to me if he had paid attention he would not have stood up here and made the bald argument which he has made in reference to the legal conclusion reached by the court.

Mr. KERR. Does he not answer that when he says that the court had no jurisdiction under the Bowman act?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The question of jurisdiction was the first question to which the Court of Claims addressed itself; and it is an insult to the intelligence of that court to say that it would assume jurisdiction of a case over which it had not jurisdiction by an express statute which referred the case to the court.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Will the gentleman allow me a question?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. GROSVENOR. What is the character of the jurisdiction of that court? What would a lawyer call it? Is it not a court of limited jurisdiction?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Unquestionably.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Is it not a fundamental proposition that all courts of limited jurisdiction must find affirmatively that the statute confers the jurisdiction upon them in each case?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I take it the gentleman is not familiar with the proceedings of the Court of Claims under the Bowman act.

Mr. GROSVENOR. I am familiar with the general principles of law.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I want to say that before the Court of Claims takes jurisdiction of this case or any others there is a plea filed to the jurisdiction of the court. There are two trials. Not a solitary case comes here until after two investigations in that court. First, unlike the courts in the States, so far as my observation has extended, there is a trial upon the question of jurisdiction and there must be an affirmative finding in favor of the jurisdiction of the claim before the court takes a step. After trying the question of jurisdiction and finding that affirmatively, the court then remits the case to the rule docket as it would be called in a court of chancery, and then a trial is made as to the merits of the claim.

Mr. REED. But if they find that affirmatively, why does it not appear in their findings?

Mr. RICHARDSON. They do not set it forth in their findings.

Mr. REED. If they do not set it forth, does not that show that they did not find it?

Mr. MCMILLIN. Under the provisions of the Bowman act loyalty is made a jurisdictional fact, and if the court do not find that affirmatively they have no right to take up the case.

Mr. REED. But the question as to the seat of war is another proposition. Do they find this was not within the seat of war?

Mr. RICHARDSON. After the two trials to which I have referred, the court would not take jurisdiction until they found the jurisdictional question in favor of the claimant. Then I say they come to the merits of the claim, and the merits must be found affirmatively.

Now, as to the question of the location of this property, there is no question of fact involved that relates to the jurisdiction of the court.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Why not? Must it not be found affirmatively that this was not at the seat of war?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is what I read from this opinion of the Court of Claims.

Mr. GROSVENOR. You read about some State that was not in rebellion, that was not the seat of war.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is exactly what I did read. In the last sentence the court said:

> The seat of war under the Bowman act was not in Tennessee.

Tennessee was not the seat of war.

Mr. GROSVENOR. For the purposes of that case?

Mr. RICHARDSON. For the purposes of the language of the Bowman act. The whole State of Tennessee by that decision is taken out of the difficulty which the gentleman suggests.

They expressly decide that that was not the seat of war in the sense in which those words are used in the third section of the Bowman act.

Mr. REED. In the report in the case of Perez Dickinson, which is contained in House Report No. 982, the question of loyalty is affirmatively found; a fact which shows that the court understood that they were to find upon the question of loyalty and report it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes; I commented upon that a few moments ago.

Mr. REED. I was not in the House.

Mr. RICHARDSON. In the "omnibus" bill which was passed here a few weeks ago it was found that in nearly every case, except three or four, the court did not set out affirmatively that the claimant was found to be loyal, but, as I then argued and as I argue now, inasmuch as the question of loyalty is made jurisdictional and as there have to be two trials of every case in the court, they could not find on the merits of any case until they had first found affirmatively on the question of loyalty. On one of these cases the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. WARNER] raised the question here in that discussion, and I then stated that while the finding of the court did not set forth affirmatively that the party was loyal, I would undertake before the evening closed to obtain from the Court of Claims a certificate that they had found upon that question, and in an hour we had here, under the seal of the court, the affirmative finding of the court on the question of loyalty, showing that they do not always set out in their report their finding on that question.

Mr. REED. They ought to do it if we are to act upon their decisions.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I agree with the gentleman that that would be a safer method; but when the question of loyalty is made a jurisdictional one, which the court can not get over, it does not seem to be absolutely necessary that it should be set out in the report, and gentlemen will remember that it is not necessary for the Attorney-General to file that plea. The court considers it filed. It is filed by the statute. The Attorney-General, however, in every case appears and represents the Government of the United States, and the claimant is represented by his attorney. In addition to all the facts in this case which I have stated, I am informed by my colleague from Tennessee [Mr. GLASS] that he knows the claimant in this case, and knows that she was loyal and that the finding of the court is to that effect.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Do I understand my friend from Tennessee to say that it has been judicially ascertained that the seat of war during 1864 did not include Tennessee?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I say that is the decision of the Court of Claims.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Well, I shall have to disagree with the court and with the gentleman.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is what the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR] has been doing. The gentleman has that right.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I was down there at that time, and if there was no war there, I know personally that at least there was very earnest playing at war. [Laughter.] I am inclined to think there is a mistake somewhere about this matter of Tennessee not having been at the seat of war. Now, if my friend from Tennessee will allow me another question——

Mr. RICHARDSON. The fact that Confederate troops raided into Tennessee in 1864, or came into occupation of territory there in some hurried way, would not make it the seat of war any more than the occupation of a portion of Ohio by Morgan's cavalry, or of Pennsylvania by General Lee's army, made that the seat of war. There was no permanent occupation of Tennessee by the Confederate troops after 1862.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. If my friend from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON], for whom I have the greatest respect and admiration, for I have known him long enough to ascertain that he is an honest man——

Mr. RICHARDSON. Thank you.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. If my friend will allow me, I think I can suggest a solution of this question, and not only of this, but every such case that shall come after it. Our friends on the other side have decided two things; first, that they will not allow the loyal States to receive back their share of the direct tax which they have paid, and secondly, that they will not pay their share.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think the gentleman is doing us injustice in that.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Well, I am going to fix it up all right. [Laughter.]

Mr. RICHARDSON. If the gentleman will pardon me, I will remind him that we have fixed a time when he can get his bill passed, which he could not do before.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I make this suggestion: that from this time forward all claims of this sort against the Government shall be held as a set-off against the unpaid direct tax. [Laughter.]

A MEMBER. The direct-tax bill will come up in December.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Yes, but at that time it will be unnecessary to consider it, because when a new administration and a new House of Representatives come in on the 4th of March next we will fix these things up all right. [Laughter.]

Mr. RICHARDSON. If the gentleman thinks that is good, sound policy, why did his party in 1864 and in 1866 pass these laws allowing the loyal people of Tennessee to make these claims? Why did they not set them off against the direct tax when they had the power?

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I had not the least idea in 1864 that Congress was doing anything of that kind. I was down there in Tennessee attending to business, and I liked the country very much indeed, but if there was not war there, I know, for one, that I do not want to see anything more like war. [Laughter.]

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Chairman, I do hope that the time of the committee will not be "frittered away" [laughter] by a discussion of the direct-tax bill. Let us go ahead and consider these bills.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Let me say that the frittering away has not been done by this side of the House.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Chairman, I will not insist on the amendment. I withdraw it, and ask for a vote.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, it appears to me that there has been a misunderstanding of what is known as the Bowman act. I think, sir, it will be found in every case where supplies or stores have been furnished and a claim has been made and referred to the Court of Claims, not only that the law requires the court to determine but that the court has in every instance determined the question of loyalty or disloyalty of the claimant and reported upon that question in its finding. For instance, I hold in my hand the finding of the Court of Claims relating to stores and supplies in a case which is now on the docket and will soon come up, in which the court on preliminary inquiry found from the evidence that the claimant was loyal to the Government of the United States throughout the war. Now, the fourth section of the Bowman act expressly provides that the court, before it shall have jurisdiction, shall, on a preliminary inquiry, find that the person who furnished the supplies or stores, or from whom the same were taken, was loyal to the Government of the United States. The law provides that the court shall so find. Of course, the only way we have of knowing whether they find it is by a statement in their finding. But, sir, this does not apply, as I understand it, to rents of real estate. Section 3 reads as follows:

SEC. 3. The jurisdiction of said court shall not extend to or include any claim against the United States growing out of the destruction or damage to property by the Army or Navy during the war for the suppression of the rebellion, or for the use and occupation of real estate by any part of the military or naval forces of the United States in the operations of said forces during the said war at the seat of war; nor shall the said court have jurisdiction of any claim against the United States which is now barred by virtue of the provisions of any law of the United States.

So that in cases of rent for the use of real estate it is not required that the court shall first inquire into the loyalty of the claimant. Now, this claim has two elements in it: first, it is for rent of a building for seven months at $100 a month; second, for stores and supplies valued at $1,200. The court makes a finding on both branches of the case, but does not find the loyalty of the claimant; it is silent on that subject. The inference—and the only inference which can be made—is that the claimant was disloyal. But this circumstance does not necessarily, under the law, cut out the claim for rent.

There is another provision of the act which says that the finding of the Court of Claims shall not be conclusive, but shall require affirmative action on the part of Congress. Now, as I view the matter, the State of Tennessee was not included within "the seat of war." It has been so decided, I think, by every court which has had that question under consideration. It is, however, competent for Congress to say—and it has always stood, as I understand, upon that ground—that it is not good policy to pay out of the Treasury of the United States for the use or destruction of property of persons who were disloyal. It is not in conflict with the Bowman act to make compensation in such cases, if Congress so chooses; and in regard to the claim of $700 for rent the court was not required to find as to the loyalty of the claimant; but the court having neglected to find that the claimant was loyal, and there being a question in relation to personal property—stores and supplies—which made it necessary for the court to find the fact of loyalty affirmatively, the only conclusion is that the court could not so find, and that the finding in relation to the $700 for rent proceeded upon a finding that the claimant was disloyal. So that the question before Congress, as I look at it, is whether we shall consent to pay a disloyal claimant for the use of real estate in the State of Tennessee?

Mr. GROSVENOR. Or anywhere else.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. Or anywhere else. I shall certainly not consent to that; and that is the question in this case.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Do I understand the gentleman to say that the finding of the Court of Claims recognizes a difference between the claim for $700 rent and the claim for personal property?

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. Certainly.

Mr. RICHARDSON. There is no difference.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. I hold there is a difference.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Not a particle.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. The third section of the Bowman act does not require a finding as to the fact of loyalty.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The finding of the Court of Claims is the same in both particulars, but I understood the gentleman to argue that the court found favorably on one item and unfavorably on the other.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. But so far as the court has found favorably it has simply found the amount, has not recommended payment, and has neglected to make any finding as to the loyalty of the claimant.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The gentleman is proceeding upon the idea that the court recommended payment of one item. The court did not recommend payment of either.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. The court found the facts. The law requires that in the case of claims for personal property or stores and supplies the court shall find affirmatively that the claimant was loyal. The court having failed so to find, the fair inference is that the court could not so find, and that the claimant is disloyal. If the gentleman will show me an instance of a claim involving stores and supplies alone in which the Court of Claims has failed to find affirmatively upon the question of the loyalty or disloyalty of the claimant, I will concede that my argument has no foundation. But so far as my research has extended the court in every case where stores and supplies alone were involved has determined affirmatively the question of loyalty.

Mr. RICHARDSON. If I understand the gentleman he states that the court in this case did not find the party loyal, and that therefore it is to be assumed they found that the claimant was disloyal. I say there is no evidence of that.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. They report no finding on that point.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The gentleman does not state the matter correctly as I understand it. We have no evidence that the court failed to find the party loyal; they simply have not set it out in the finding.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. The law says——

Mr. RICHARDSON. And it is not required that the question of loyalty shall be stated in the report.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. I think it is. The statute says that they shall find as to this fact; and how are we to determine that they have so found unless it be set forth in the report?

Mr. RICHARDSON. But what I say is, they can not inquire into the merits of the case at all unless they do so find.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. But in all other cases they state this fact.

Mr. RICHARDSON. No; there is just where the gentleman is mistaken. They do not so find.

Mr. SPRINGER. If the gentleman from Wisconsin will allow me, I think that I can explain this point as to why the court did not pass upon this question to the satisfaction of both gentlemen.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. SPRINGER. I have before me the decision of the Court of Claims in a similar case, the case of Heflebower vs. The United States, in which the court gives a reason for not finding upon the question of loyalty. They say:

Now, the fourth section of the Bowman act relates to stores and supplies—to personal property; and it requires in such cases proof of loyalty. Furthermore, it declares that loyalty shall be a jurisdictional fact; furthermore, it requires that this jurisdictional fact of loyalty shall be found on a preliminary inquiry; furthermore, it prescribes that if loyalty be not found further proceedings shall be dismissed. And these provisions agree with all previous legislation on that subject, the only difference being that they are more particularly searching and stringent.

But while such has been the invariable legislation of Congress concerning personal property, that provision of the third section which relates exclusively to real property is absolutely silent as to the loyalty of the claimant, and imposes upon the right of action no condition of allegiance whatever.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. That is what I say. I agree to that.

Mr. SPRINGER. So the court held that where the claim was for the use of real estate the question of loyalty was not material, and was not required by the act of Congress.

Mr. THOMAS, of Wisconsin. But that it does become material to the House when we come to appropriate the money to pay the claim.

Mr. SPRINGER. I merely cite this to show the reason the Court of Claims assigned for not finding upon the question of loyalty. It is an explanation which will be found on page 235 of this report, in the Heflebower case, as a reason why they did not investigate the question of loyalty. It will be seen that they put it upon the ground that the third section of the Bowman act, which relates to claims for the use of real estate, and which were barred from consideration by that court where the claim arose and at the seat of war—that in such cases where they did not arise at the seat of war the question of allegiance was not necessary, and the court so state.

Now for myself I beg leave to differ with the Court of Claims upon that question. I think the court is mistaken in its ruling upon that point. But it explains why they did not find upon the question of loyalty in the pending case, and it was for the purpose of explaining the attitude of the court in that respect that I called attention to this extract.

Now as to whether Congress intended to make a distinction between the claims for the use and destruction of personal property and claims for the occupancy of real estate is another question. I am satisfied that Congress never intended to make any such distinction, and that the Bowman act does not contain any ground upon which the court was warranted in making such a distinction. The third section of the Bowman act was introduced, as you will remember, as an amendment to the original bill by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN]——

Mr. HOLMAN. The third and fourth sections were so introduced.

Mr. SPRINGER. Yes, the third and fourth sections were both introduced as amendments, and it would be quite surprising, I am sure, to the gentleman from Indiana, who is now in his seat, to be informed by the Court of Claims that a provision which he introduced in Congress was one in which in the consideration of a pending claim for the occupancy of real estate the question of loyalty was immaterial, while it was a material feature to be taken into consideration in a claim for personal property. Congress never intended to make such a distinction, and in my judgment, I repeat, the Court of Claims is not warranted in its findings in that regard.

It seems to me, with all due deference to that court, that it is disposed to take jurisdiction of everything that comes before it. I have known of no single case referred to the court where it has disclaimed jurisdiction. It will take all cases that are offered.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Will the gentleman from Illinois permit me to ask him if he speaks advisedly in regard to that matter? Is the gentleman aware of the fact that a large number of cases have gone before the court in which it has not jurisdiction? He says they do not deny their jurisdiction in any case. Now, if he knows that to be a fact, I wish to state to him that in the Fiftieth Congress of over two thousand cases—to be exact two thousand and twenty-five cases—referred by Congress to the Court of Claims, less than 10 per cent. have been taken jurisdiction of by the court and favorable findings made.

If he does not know that fact, then he ought not to presume to pass judgment in ignorance of the fact.

Mr. SPRINGER. I think the gentleman is mistaken in one respect. I have no doubt that in the consideration of these cases upon their merits they have found less than 10 per cent. of them were meritorious.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Does the gentleman know how many Court of Claims decisions have been reversed by the Supreme Court?

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Chairman, I do not rise to make a speech; but I represent on this floor some constituents who are unfortunately in the same condition as the claimant whose claim is being now discussed—claimants whose claims are being defeated, not by a direct vote, but by the frittering away of the time of the House upon a discussion of a point which, to my knowledge, has been discussed over and over again on every private-claim day we have had since I have been a member of this House.

I represent a class of constituents who are good people, in my judgment, many of whom voted against me when I was elected to Congress, who were loyal men at the time of the civil war in a territory where, as it has been well said by a gentleman on this floor, it cost something to be loyal. I represent some of those people from the State of Kentucky who, like this claimant from Tennessee, are here asking at the end of twenty-five years—as some gentlemen have twitted us by saying—asking at the end of twenty-five years for some compensation on that class of claims which were paid to loyal men on the other side of the river immediately after their property was taken and used for the purpose of carrying on the war.

They were not only loyal then but are loyal now, many of them differing with me in politics. Many of them were then and are still Republicans. Yet, they are my constituents, and I feel interested that justice be done them. And whenever any man, who is as honorable as I believe the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. GLASS] who represents this claim to be, comes upon this floor and says a constituent whom he represents or claimant whom he knows was loyal, as he has asserted in this case, we ought to be willing to vote for the claim. And I believe the gentlemen who are opposing this on this floor, if they knew the position those people occupied and the losses they suffered during the war, would certainly be willing to vote for a claim like this.

I do not believe that the quality of loyalty ought to be tested by the locality in which the party lived during the war. But if that test is to be applied I think those citizens who lived in Tennessee or Kentucky or in the territory which may be called the theater of war, ought, in respect to loyalty, be classed higher than those who lived where it was perfectly safe to be loyal. But, Mr. Chairman, I desire only to say to gentlemen who are opposing this claim that, while you may not defeat it, you have since this claim was up, by wasting time, defeated a half dozen other claimants who were unquestionably loyal during the war. I feel safe in saying that in the time occupied in the discussion of this bill you have defeated at least five or six other claims which ought to have been passed, especially when the Court of Claims, to which they were referred to ascertain the loyalty of the parties, have, by taking jurisdiction of them and finding the facts, determined that the claimants were loyal. On behalf of these claimants who have lost their property and who have been knocking at the doors of the Departments and of Congress for so many years to get their claims at least considered, I appeal to the House to proceed to vote upon this question without further discussion of the jurisdictional question which has been discussed on every day set apart during this session for the consideration of private claims. Let us determine by a vote whether we consider that these parties, who unfortunately live south of the Ohio River, have any claims which Congress will recognize as just. [Applause.]

Mr. KERR. The question now before the committee is whether it is proper to allow a claim such as this to pass without a finding by the Court of Claims on the question of the loyalty of the claimant? The loyalty of the claimant is not found in this case. In regard to one portion of the case the Court of Claims has found the facts; in regard to another portion of the case it has not found the fact; and the inference was clearly drawn by the gentleman from Wisconsin in regard to the reasons for that. Everything connected with the passage of the Bowman act shows that the object of the provision cited was to prevent an inquiry by the Court of Claims in exactly this kind of case. And yet the court has taken jurisdiction, and has found that Western Tennessee was not the seat of war in 1863 and 1864, when a reference to the facts shows there was no civil government organized in West Tennessee until 1865, except those established by the military authorities. The right of trial by jury did not exist there. The lines of the Union Army were drawn close around the city of Memphis. The picket-guards stood within 200 yards of each other in all that time. And yet the gentleman from Tennessee says that was not the seat of war, and the court so holds. It is an absurdity.

The Bowman act expressly says that if a claim is from the seat of war it shall not be considered by the Court of Claims; and yet in this case it has been considered. And the only ground for assuming that position is because in the President's proclamation excepting a certain portion of the country from the operation of the emancipation proclamation Tennessee was included. It was included because a large portion of East Tennessee was loyal and because they could not draw the exact line against exact localities of the State, and in order that loyal men might not suffer with regard to the particular class of claims growing out of the ownership of negro property the whole State was excluded from the effect of the proclamation for the benefit of those loyal men. The Court of Claims gives that proclamation as a reason why Tennessee should not be properly considered as coming within the exceptions of the Bowman act, and should not be considered the seat of war; an inference which I think is not warranted.

Mr. COBB. Mr. Chairman, I had not thought to enter into this discussion because I am not a very strenuous advocate for the payment of any of these so-called war claims; and I believe I would join very heartily with the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR] to wipe them all out of existence and hear no more of them in this House hereafter, let them come from what quarter they may. But when we pretend to be proceeding under an act of Congress, it seems to me it is well for us to clearly understand the true purport and meaning of that act and give to it a proper legal construction.

Now, it has been asserted time and again during the course of this discussion that in this particular case the Court of Claims did not find that the claimant was loyal to the Government. I assert the reverse to be true; and I say that, in the very necessity of the case, if we will construe this act as all legislative acts ought to be construed, with reference to the great rules of construction that prevail everywhere, we are compelled to the conclusion that in this identical case now pending before the Committee of the Whole the Court of Claims has decided that the claimant was loyal.

I was astonished to hear one gentleman on the other side say that the fact of the declaration of claimant's loyalty not being contained here in the findings of the court was conclusive evidence of her disloyalty. It is simply with reference to this question of legal construction that I desire to say a word or two. There are certain well-defined, well-understood, clearly established rules of construction that prevail whenever a question like this is presented. Gentlemen say that the Court of Claims is a court of limited jurisdiction, and therefore, unless the finding of loyalty appears in the report made to this House, the conclusion is that such question was not passed upon by the court.

Now, Mr. Chairman, such an assumption violates a fundamental rule of construction, as I shall attempt to show. The Bowman act provides that the claimant shall file in the Court of Claims a petition when the claim goes there originally, and that before the case presented by the petition shall be heard the court shall ascertain, upon preliminary inquiry, whether or not the claimant was loyal.

When is it that this Court of Claims rightfully assumes jurisdiction?

What is the rule in a court of limited jurisdiction—as, for the purpose of the argument, I will concede this court to have been—not proposing to take issue upon that point at present, as it is not necessary so to do—as to the time when jurisdiction can be legally assumed? Mr. Chairman, the court has jurisdiction whenever a proper petition is filed before it. That is the point, so far as we are concerned, where the question of jurisdiction is determined. The act says that, before the court shall assume jurisdiction, the claimant shall file a petition, which petition shall contain certain averments of jurisdictional facts.

Now, under all the authorities, when the proper petition is filed, containing the jurisdictional averments, and the court goes on to decide the question submitted, the presumption is conclusive in favor of the court, nothing to the contrary appearing of record, that it did first ascertain the existence of the jurisdictional facts. This is the law as it has been decided in numerous cases.

Mr. BRUMM. Does the gentlemen mean to say that the court has no right to traverse the averments in the petition?

Mr. COBB. No, sir; I do not say that.

Mr. BRUMM. Then the question of jurisdiction is not finally settled until after the averments in the petition have been traversed and the facts established.

Mr. COBB. If the gentleman will wait a moment he will see my point. I say that whenever a petition contains a proper jurisdictional averment, and afterward the court goes on and acts under that petition, then, if in its record there is nothing said about jurisdiction except in the petition, the conclusion is that the court made preliminary inquiry and found the jurisdictional fact.

Mr. WICKHAM. Is there ever any presumption in favor of the finding of a court of limited jurisdiction?

Mr. COBB. Always; there is never any presumption upon the jurisdictional fact. If the petition is defective in not containing the proper averment, and the court goes on and acts under that petition, and the case comes up here petition and all, and the petition on its face discloses the fact that there is no jurisdictional averment, then it is a case of coram non judice, and the whole proceeding is void. But if the petition contains the averment necessary to give jurisdiction and the court acts, you never can raise the question of want of jurisdiction in a collateral attack; you can, possibly, upon a direct appeal.

Mr. WICKHAM. Does the gentleman hold that rule as applying to a court of limited jurisdiction?

Mr. COBB. Yes, sir; I can bring you good authorities on that point.

A MEMBER. Bring one.

Mr. COBB. I will; but I can not at this moment.

Let me illustrate this question by reference to a matter with which I am familiar and which presents a similar question. In the State of Alabama we have what is called a court of probate—a court of general jurisdiction for certain purposes. The Legislature of Alabama has conferred upon that court jurisdiction of other matters than those coming within its general jurisdiction, and with reference to these its jurisdiction is limited.

Now, the law prescribes what shall be necessary in order to give that court jurisdiction upon these special matters; and the supreme court of Alabama has decided in a dozen cases that wherever the petition filed before that court contains the averment prescribed by the law in order to give the court jurisdiction, then, no matter how many errors occur after the filing of the petition, the court will not notice one of them, but will uphold the judgment of the probate court against any collateral attack. It is true that the parties interested may take a direct appeal.

Mr. LAIDLAW. But the question here is as to providing means to pay this judgment.

Mr. COBB. Certainly.

Mr. LAIDLAW. Is that collateral?

Mr. COBB. I think it is collateral in a legal sense.

Mr. LAIDLAW. It does not so strike me.

Mr. COBB. It is true that the Bowman act says that there shall be no final judgment by the Court of Claims; but it prescribes that the court shall find certain facts. Now, certain facts are reported here—not to a court of appellate jurisdiction at all. This is not a court of appellate jurisdiction in any sense, and is not intended so to be. When the case comes here upon the finding of the court, whatever attack is made upon that finding is bound to be collateral, because we are not an appellate tribunal with power to revise, in a legal sense, the finding of the Court of Claims.

Mr. BRUMM. Have we not the power specifically by the terms of the act itself to revise the findings of fact as well as to review the law?

Mr. COBB. I was coming to that point directly; but I will answer the gentleman's question now. The action of the Court of Claims under the Bowman act is purely and simply advisory to this House; there is nothing binding upon us in its action. I concede that and have done so all the way through.

Mr. BRUMM. Then the power of the court is nothing more nor less than that of a master in chancery.

Mr. COBB. It is advisory, I admit.

Now, what was the intention of the Congress of the United States when this Bowman act was passed? Let us look at that for a moment. The Congress of the United States found itself pressed, overwhelmingly pressed, with a large number of claims from various quarters. These had accumulated to such an extent that it was evident Congress could not give them that fair and just consideration which the importance of the question merited. Now, in order to provide a tribunal where a fair, just, and equitable hearing could be had, the act was passed providing that all of these claims might go, under certain conditions, to the Court of Claims; and that the court, provided as it was with all of the machinery of a court of justice, should give them a reasonable hearing under rules to be prescribed by the court itself. And, mark you, this court—the United States being heard and the claimant being heard—was required to judicially determine and ascertain certain facts submitted to it.

What do you suppose was the purpose of Congress in passing that act? Evidently to relieve Congress of this overwhelming mass of private business; evidently with a view and purpose that the decisions of the Court of Claims should be accepted by the House and by Congress as final.

Mr. LAIDLAW. As far as they went.

Mr. COBB. Certainly, as far as they went, unless there were reasons appearing on the face of the record or clearly shown which would make it appear that the courts had not given just and fair consideration. Do you not agree to that?

Mr. LAIDLAW. Yes.

Mr. COBB. Now, is there not some sort of a moral obligation on the part of the House when these proceedings of the Court of Claims are brought before it to accept the findings as having at least some moral weight?

Mr. LAIDLAW. Yes; but the objection here is that there is one vital fact not established.

Mr. COBB. But I make the point that that vital fact to which the gentleman alludes is not necessary to appear in the findings of the court.

Mr. LAIDLAW. Then it is not important in your opinion?

Mr. COBB. It is important, but the presumption is that it has been found by the court.

Mr. LAIDLAW. The act under which these claims are submitted to the court makes that jurisdictional.

Mr. COBB. Yes.

Mr. RICHARDSON. But, as I understand the gentleman from New York, he claims that this must appear affirmatively as a part of the findings of the court. Now, I claim that the court would not take jurisdiction at all if it had not first ascertained that fact. I think it is a preliminary fact.

Mr. LAIDLAW. I think not. I think it should appear in the findings.

Mr. COBB. Mr. Chairman, there are two reasons why it is not necessary that these findings as to the question of loyalty should appear here. I have already alluded to one, but I will go over the same ground again. It is expressly stated in the act itself that this fact of loyalty should be a preliminary inquiry. It is stronger even than the Alabama cases to which I have alluded. The court must first determine the question of jurisdiction by an ascertainment of the fact of loyalty and if such fact is not established the case must be dismissed. So says the Bowman act.

But there is another rule of law which is equally strong, namely, that the presumption is a court of law has acted properly and legally within the meaning of the act establishing it, unless the contrary appears upon the face of its record. If, then, my argument is worth anything, it comes to this point, not that it is immaterial whether the jurisdictional fact is found, because it is highly material, but that in this particular case, and in all cases where the contrary does not appear, the conclusive presumption is the court investigated the facts which, under the act, were preliminary to the taking of jurisdiction in this case, the question of loyalty, and found them to exist. Having found that fact, they proceed to make the inquiry as to the facts on which the claim is based. Having found the facts establishing the claim, the presumption of law is that the court did its duty as to the prior jurisdictional fact.

Now, we find as a presumption of law that the court made a proper preliminary inquiry as to the question of jurisdiction; that it decided in favor of the claimant; and, having so decided, returns its findings of fact for the action of this House. Is it not then binding upon us morally? I claim that it is, because otherwise we repudiate the act by which the court was given this special jurisdiction.

We must accept the findings of that court as worth something, or we must declare that we do not regard them as worth anything in any case. There is no alternative.

But we are continually proceeding under this Bowman act. We do not choose to repudiate it. What have we here? The Court of Claims, acting upon the questions presented to them, and with full judicial authority to ascertain the facts, have returned their findings, and I claim that we are bound to accept, morally bound to accept—not legally—the facts so ascertained. We may repudiate them if we wish; but we are clearly bound to accept those findings of fact, unless, upon the face of the proceedings, something appears to show that the court acted in an erroneous manner.

Mr. STONE, of Kentucky. By order of the House a recess is to be taken at 5 o'clock, and as it is nearly that hour, I move that the committee rise.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and Mr. HATCH having taken the chair as Speaker pro tempore, Mr. ROGERS reported that the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, having had under consideration the bill H. R. 9647, had arrived at no conclusion thereon.

H. CORTHS.

Mr. STONE, of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to discharge the Committee of the Whole House from the further consideration of the bill (H. R. 285) for the relief of the legal representatives of H. Corths, deceased, and put it upon its passage.

I will say that the object of this act is to refer a claim to the Quartermaster-General and have it investigated.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the claim of the legal representatives of H. Corths, deceased, and late of Ballard County, State of Kentucky, for quartermaster's stores and commissary supplies, alleged to have been taken and used by the United States Army during the late war, from the farm of said Corths, in Ballard County, Kentucky, be referred to the Quartermaster-General, who shall investigate the justice and legality of said claim and report the amount and value of said stores and supplies taken and used by the Army of the United States; and that he report all the facts and evidence for the consideration of Congress.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Unless there is an amendment to the bill providing that there shall be also an ascertainment and report of the fact of loyalty of the claimant, I shall object.

Mr. STONE, of Kentucky. I am perfectly willing, if you insist upon the question of loyalty with regard to a fourteen-year-old girl.

Mr. GROSVENOR. I do not know anything about who the claimants are, but I insist that there shall also be an amendment providing that the Quartermaster-General shall report whether or not the present claimant was loyal during the war.

Mr. STONE, of Kentucky. I have no objection.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. STONE, of Kentucky, moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

On motion of Mr. RICE, by unanimous consent, the Committee on Rivers and Harbors was discharged from the further consideration of the bill introduced January 23, 1888, to authorize a survey to be made for a canal to connect Lake Superior with the St. Croix River, and the same was referred to the Committee on Railways and Canals.

The hour of 5 o'clock having arrived, the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. HATCH), under the special order, declared the House in recess until 7.30 p. m.

EVENING SESSION.

The recess having expired, the House reassembled at 7.30 p. m., and was called to order by Mr. RICHARDSON, who directed the reading of the following communication from the Speaker:

SPEAKER'S ROOM, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D. C., April 13, 1888.

Hon. J. D. RICHARDSON is designated to preside at the session of this evening as Speaker pro tempore.

J. G. CARLISLE, Speaker.

Hon. JNO. B. CLARK,
Clerk House of Representatives.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. MORRILL. I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House for the consideration of bills under the special order.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole, Mr. DOCKERY in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is in Committee of the Whole under the special order for the sessions of Friday evening. The Clerk will report the first bill.

The Clerk read the title of the first pension bill on the Calendar, as follows:

A bill (S. 450) for the relief of Thomas S. Hopkins, late of Company C, Sixteenth Maine Volunteers.

Mr. MORRILL. I ask that that bill be laid over, retaining its place on the Calendar.

There was no objection.

Mr. MORRILL. I make the same request with reference to the next pension bill on the Calendar, the bill (S. 393) for the relief of Frances Anne Pyne Ricketts.

There was no objection.

GEORGE SCHNEIDER.

The next pension bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 112) granting a pension to George Schneider, reported by Mr. BLISS from the Committee on Pensions.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George Schneider, late a private in Company G of the Third Regiment of United States Artillery.

The report (by Mr. BLISS) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 112) for the relief of George Schneider, beg leave to report that this soldier enlisted in Company G of the Third Regiment of United States Artillery on the 21st day of July, 1840, and was discharged from the service on the 21st day of July, 1845, by reason of expiration of term of service.

He alleges that he became afflicted with scurvy in March, 1841, while in the line of his duty as a soldier, and as the result of being compelled to eat unwholesome food. His military record shows that he was sick during the months of March and April, 1841, although the nature of the disease is not specified; but the other evidence in the case, being the testimony of the claimant himself, of Dr. G. H. Fuller, of Buda, Ill., and of neighbors of the claimant, satisfies your committee that this soldier is disabled in a pensionable degree; that the disability resulted from scurvy; that the disease (scurvy) was contracted by him in the line of his duty as a soldier, as alleged in his application for pension now on file in the Pension Office; and we therefore recommend that the bill do pass.

Mr. HENDERSON, of Illinois. I move that the bill be laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

The motion was agreed to.

ABBIE M. HAY.

The next pension bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 172) granting a pension to Abbie M. Hay.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Abbie M. Hay, widow of Thomas H. Hay, late a captain in the United States Army.

The report (by Mr. SPOONER), was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 172) granting a pension to Abbie M. Hay, respectfully report:

They adopt the accompanying Senate report as their own, and recommend the passage of the bill.

"The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred a bill (S. 172) granting a pension to Abbie M. Hay, have examined the same, and report:

"The soldier, Thomas H. Hay, was mustered into the service of the United States as first lieutenant Company H, Fifty-fourth Regiment New York Volunteers, December 1, 1862, and served until July 2, 1863, when he was wounded in the foot at the battle of Gettysburgh, where he had command of his regiment. It was found necessary to amputate his left leg just below the knee, and he remained in hospital from July, 1863, until May, 1864, when he was honorably discharged from the service on account of physical disability from wounds received in action.

"June 27, 1863, he was appointed a first lieutenant in the Veteran Reserve Corps, and remained in that service until March 31, 1867, at which time he was appointed first lieutenant in the Forty-second United States Infantry, which position he retained until December 3, 1870, when he was placed on the retired-list of the Army by a board of officers, who found him "unfit to discharge the active duties of his office in consequence of the loss of his left leg, resulting from a severe wound of his left ankle-joint received in the battle of Gettysburgh, on the 2d day of July, 1863," It appears that after his leg was amputated he was constantly troubled with severe pain in the knee, which affected his nervous system seriously, producing extreme sleeplessness and prostration. For relief he was obliged to resort to the use of anæsthetics, the improvident use of which resulted in his death December 8, 1881.

"Your committee recommend the passage of the bill."

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MARY MARTIN.

The next pension bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 174) granting a pension to Mary Martin.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary Martin, widow of Thomas Martin, late a private in Company C, Second Massachusetts Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. SPOONER) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 174) granting a pension to Mary Martin, respectfully report:

A similar bill passed the Senate in the Forty-ninth Congress, and was favorably reported in the House, but was not reached for consideration.

Your committee adopt the accompanying Senate report as their own, and recommend the passage of the bill.

"The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 174) granting a pension to Mary Martin, have examined the same, and report:

"That Thomas J. Martin was a private in Battery B, First Rhode Island Light Artillery, from the 13th of August, 1861, to the 18th of December, 1861, when he was discharged for disability. He afterwards, on the 21st of August, 1862, enlisted as a private in Company C, Second Massachusetts Volunteers. While on his way to join his regiment it appears from the testimony that on the 31st of August, 1862, in the city of Fall River, Mass., he was accidentally knocked down, run over, and severely injured. He was taken to New York and to the New England rooms for treatment, and remained there a number of weeks. After leaving New York, and while searching on the south side of the Potomac for his regiment, he voluntarily joined Company B, Second Maine Volunteers, and was engaged with that company in an action on the 21st of September, as appears from the following certificate:

"ENCAMPMENT SECOND MAINE VOLUNTEERS,
"September 21, 1862.

"This is to certify that the bearer, Thomas J. Martin, who has lately left the hospital, is in search of his regiment, and not straggling about the country. That in the action yesterday in crossing the river he joined my company, picked up a musket, borrowed ammunition from my men, and done his duty like a soldier.

"W. S. MUDGETT,
"Captain Company B, Second Maine Volunteers.

"He finally succeeded in joining his regiment in the latter part of September, 1862, but was sent early in the following December to the general hospital at Frederick, Md., for treatment, and he remained continuously in various general hospitals until September 17, 1863, when he was transferred to Company C, Twenty-first Veteran Reserve Corps, by reason of injury to side and swollen limbs. He remained in the Veteran Reserve Corps until June 24, 1864, when he was mustered out.

"There is abundant testimony that Martin was a good soldier, and it appears from the evidence that he was a strong, healthy man prior to the time of enlistment, and from the evidence of neighbors it also appears that he was a continuous sufferer and disabled from working at his trade by reason of his condition, resulting from his injuries, up to the time of his death. The physicians who treated him during this time are dead, and there is no direct medical evidence of the cause of his death, but from a mass of collateral testimony your committee have no doubt that his death resulted from injuries received in the service and in the line of duty. They therefore recommend the passage of the accompanying bill."

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MARY M'GRATH.

The next pension bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 404) for the relief of Mary McGrath.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary McGrath, dependent mother of Peter McGrath, deceased, late of Company F, Twenty-seventh Regiment Michigan Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. CHIPMAN) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 404) for the relief of Mary McGrath, submit the following report:

The claimant is over eighty-four years of age. She is dependent on charity for support. She applied to the Commissioner of Pensions to be put on the pension-rolls as the dependent mother of Peter McGrath, deceased, of Company F, Twenty-seventh Regiment Michigan Volunteers. After many years of effort in support of her application it was finally rejected in 1885, on the ground that "the cause of the soldier's death was not the result of his services, and the claimant was not dependent upon him at his death."

The testimony in support of the claim certainly shows as plainly as a fact can be established that during all the time from 1847, when the McGrath family came to America from Ireland, up to his death he took the sole care of and maintained his mother. There is nothing in the record to contradict this, and every witness is certified, in response to inquiry by the commissioner by persons selected by him, to be veracious and of good character.

As to the origin of the disease of which the soldier died, Captain Baker, of his company and regiment, testifies that he knows he was "sound and healthy from the time of his enlistment to his capture, August 21, 1864."

Matthew Craven testifies that he was captured with the deceased at Weldon Railroad, Virginia; that deceased was healthy at that time, but that he contracted a severe cough, scurvy, and diarrhea in prison, and that affiant nursed him. He further testifies that the deceased never recovered his health, but got worse after he was released.

Patrick Leonard testifies to the deceased's good health before enlistment.

Other witnesses prove his death.

Terence and Susan Kelly testify to his death in St. Mary's Hospital, Detroit, Mich., of scurvy and consumption, and Sister Mary Francis, of that hospital, certifies the character of his malady.

The Adjutant-General's office certifies that the deceased was enlisted for three years; was captured near Petersburgh, Va., August 21, 1864; and was subsequently confined as a prisoner of war at Richmond and Salisbury, and returned to Richmond, and in the month of February, 1865, paroled, when he reported for duty and went into hospital at Annapolis, Md.; the records failing to show the cause, and that the regimental prescription book and hospital register, subsequent to April, 1864, are not on file.

There is no doubt that the cause of this soldier's death was consumption and scurvy; that he had no such diseases when he was taken prisoner; that he incurred them while in prison, and was never free from them until he died.

The claimant is a very old woman; she is a childless widow, and there is no one legally bound to support her.

We recommend that the bill do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MRS. D. B. WOODBURY.

The next pension bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 5961) to increase the pension now paid to Mrs. D. B. Woodbury.

The bill was read.

The report was read in part.

Mr. CHEADLE (interrupting the reading). I object to the consideration of this bill. I desire to say that I shall demand a constitutional majority on a vote wherever a pension is granted to any one in excess of the amount that is allowed by law.

Mr. MORRILL. I ask that this bill be passed over, retaining its place on the Calendar.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

JOHN H. SAYERS.

The next pension bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 3180) granting a pension to John H. Sayers.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place upon the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John H. Sayers, late captain of Company H, Twenty-sixth Regiment of Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and that he be allowed and paid a pension according to his rank, as provided by law.

The report (by Mr. CHIPMAN) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 3180) granting a pension to John H. Sayers, beg leave to report:

That said claimant enlisted in the military service on August 13, 1862, and took on said day the oath of allegiance, etc., in the usual form; that at the time of such enlistment it seems to have been understood by said Sayers that he should have a captaincy in the Twenty-sixth Michigan Infantry, then being raised and recruited; that said Sayers proceeded to recruit his company, and soon after went into camp at Jackson, Mich., that being the place of rendezvous designated by the governor of the State of Michigan, and he was then commissioned as captain of Company H of the Twenty-sixth Michigan Volunteer Infantry by the said governor, and afterwards and on the 25th day of September, 1862, he was duly mustered.

The evidence clearly shows that claimant, while in camp at Jackson, Mich., took a cold which settled in his head, causing neuralgia in the left side of his head, resulting in inflammation of the left eye, for which he received medical treatment, but which did not prevent his being mustered on September 25 as stated; that such disability, instead of decreasing, continued to increase until he was compelled, by reason of his disability, to resign from the service on January 7, 1863. The surgeon's certificate, which accompanied his resignation, and upon which he was honorably discharged, contains the following statement:

"This is to certify that Capt. J. H. Sayers has suffered from inflammation of the left eye and lids for the last two months, much of the time severely, and it is my opinion that in order to effect a cure it will become necessary for him to abandon camp duties for some considerable length of time."

The evidence does not clearly show whether the cold from which the disease sprung was contracted in camp before his muster or afterwards, but that the cold was contracted while in camp at Jackson and the disease manifested itself before the regiment was sent to the front we think there can be no reasonable doubt, and that the disability continued to increase until his discharge and afterwards, the evidence clearly shows, until the claimant, as the board of medical examiners state, has practically lost the sight of his left eye. On March 3, 1884, the claimant filed his application for pension in the Pension Office and established the facts, as your committee think, as given above, but his claim was rejected upon the ground that the Pension Office found, as a question of fact, that claimant had contracted the disability before muster, although after enlistment and while in the camp of rendezvous at Jackson, and held as a matter of law that he was not entitled to a pension.

As a legal proposition the ruling was probably correct; but we think the case one where special relief should be granted by Congress, and as a matter of equity and right we think that when claimant enlisted and was commissioned as captain of his company and went into camp with his company, as stated, if he contracted a disability, he is entitled to relief. He did not leave the service until he was actually compelled to do so by reason of his disability. For the reasons stated we report the bill back to the House and recommend that the same do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

NANCY F. JENNINGS.

The next pension bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 5545) granting a pension to Nancy F. Jennings.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to put the name of Nancy F. Jennings, widow of William Jennings, late of Company D, Third Regiment Michigan Cavalry, on the pension-roll, subject to the limitations and provisions of the pension laws.

The bill was reported with the following amendment:

Strike out "D, Third," and insert "F, Thirteenth;" so that it will read "late of Company F, Thirteenth Regiment Michigan Cavalry."

The report (by Mr. CHIPMAN) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 5545) granting a pension to Nancy F. Jennings, having had the same under consideration, beg leave to report as follows:

Nancy F. Jennings is the widow of William Jennings, who served in Company F, Thirteenth Regiment Michigan Volunteers, during the war of the rebellion. He enlisted October 29, 1861, and was discharged in 1862, and came home sick with chronic diarrhea. He died February 17, 1877, of cerebral apoplexy. His widow filed a declaration for a pension September 24, 1878. The claim was rejected on the ground that the soldier's "real disease, apoplexy, was not a result of his military service."

The evidence is overwhelming that he contracted chronic diarrhea in the service and in the line of duty; that he was discharged in 1862 and came home sick from that complaint. Abundant and convincing proof has been submitted that the soldier was in poor health, and that he suffered from the above-mentioned disease almost continually from the time he was discharged the service until he died, and that his physical condition from said complaint was such that he was incapacitated from performing manual labor.

Dr. Barnes, who attended him in his last sickness, testifies that "prior to his death the soldier suffered from chronic diarrhea, and that the apoplexy was probably caused by a sudden arrest of the diarrhea."

His widow is now in indigent circumstances, and the committee believe, from a fair consideration of the above, that her name ought to be placed on the pension-roll.

The committee recommend that the bill be amended by striking out, in line 5, the words "Company D, Third," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "Company F, Thirteenth," and that as thus amended the bill do pass.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

ROYAL J. HIAR.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 879) granting a pension to Royal J. Hiar.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Royal J. Hiar, late of Company K, First Regiment Michigan Engineers and Mechanics Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. CHIPMAN) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 879) granting a pension to Royal J. Hiar, having considered the same, beg leave to submit the following report:

Hiar was a member of Company K, First Regiment Michigan Engineers and Mechanics, during the war of the rebellion. In 1876 he filed an application for a pension on the ground of injury to his right leg, received in the line of his duty. His claim was rejected November 22, 1884, on the ground "that there is no record of alleged disease of right side and hip, and claimant having failed to prove incurrence in the service of the United States and line of duty."

Claimant testifies that in March, 1862, he was detailed with others for service at Elizabethtown, Ky. That while repairing the hospital tent there he contracted a severe cold, but continued on duty until ordered to Nashville, Tenn., when he was taken with typhoid pneumonia, and was in the hospital there very sick. That soon after his discharge from the hospital he began to feel a lameness in his right side, resulting from the disease, which has continued and increased until now his right leg is two inches shorter than the other.

Being on detached duty, and separated from his command when he contracted his illness, he is unable to furnish the testimony of but two persons as to origin, namely, Mark D. Mason and John Cahoon, both members of his company, whose affidavits fully corroborate the declaration of the claimant and clearly show the existence in the service of the disability.

The committee recommend that the bill do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

JOSEPH PERRY.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 138) granting a pension to Joseph Perry.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, directed to place the name of Joseph Perry, of Dearborn County, Indiana, late a private in Capt. Joseph H. Burkam's company, Twelfth Regiment of Indiana Militia, on the pension-roll, subject to the limitations of the pension laws, the said Joseph Perry having been disabled while in the line of duty in the military service in the late war.

The report (by Mr. MATSON) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 138) granting a pension to Joseph Perry, have had the same under consideration, and now submit the following report:

It appears from the papers making application for pension now on file in the office of the Commissioner of Pensions that Joseph Perry enlisted in Company ——, Twelfth Indiana Militia, under Capt. Albert Kern, Col. Joseph H. Burkham commanding said regiment. The soldier was with his company and regiment, and the said regiment was in active service at South Vernon, being at said place to intercept the rebel John Morgan in his raid through Indiana, in the year 1863, and the said regiment being in line of battle, in the night-time, the said Joseph Perry was trampled down by a militia or independent cavalry company or regiment, and was knocked off the bank of the Muscatatuck River to the foot of the bank, a distance of about 30 feet; broke his leg, dislocated his knee, fractured his skull, and knocked out three of his teeth, leaving him a cripple for life.

It is stated as a fact, and it is undoubtedly true, that this Twelfth Regiment of Indiana Militia was raised and equipped in compliance with orders from the authorities at Indianapolis by telegraphic dispatch, and was disbanded by said authority by same method, and that all of said militiamen were duly sworn into the service of the United States and of the State of Indiana.

Joseph H. Burkham, colonel of said regiment, testifies that the statement of the manner of the wounding of the said Perry as related above is true, as he verily believes. He further says that he was in command as colonel of said Twelfth Regiment of Indiana Militia at the time and place stated, and that he knows that the said Perry was injured as set forth in his said affidavit.

Benjamin P. Huestis says that he was a private of said company and regiment, and was present at the time said Perry was wounded, and knows that he received the injuries as stated.

Appended to the statement of the said Perry as to the manner in which his injuries were received is the following:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Manchester township, certify to the above facts, we being present and in the same company with him, and were detailed to take care of him.

"JOHN ALEXANDER.	GEORGE CLARK.
"OWEN T. HAMLIN.	JOHN COLLIER.
"LAFAYETTE PLUMER.	JESSE H. MENDELL.
"DAVID H. CLARK.	EDWIN JACQUITH.
"T. B. CRIDER.	JOHN E. HUESTIS.
"ALBERT D. JACKSON.	S. T. P. SCHOOLEY."
"R. C. CLASPILL.

The captain of said company makes affidavit that Joseph Perry was a private in his company, and that while in the service and in line of duty was injured by being knocked down a steep embankment in the night-time by some mounted troops of either the United States Army or in the service of the State of Indiana, but under and subject to the command of the United States commandant of the military forces of Indiana during the Morgan raid, and that he received the following injuries, namely: His right leg broken at the thigh, injury of knee of right leg, and fracture of skull on right side of head, and that said injuries were received at or near a place called South Vernon, in Jennings County, State of Indiana.

Dr. T. M. Kyle certifies as follows:

"I have examined Joseph Perry as to the extent of his injuries received while engaged as a volunteer soldier in the Twelfth Indiana Regiment. Right leg broken above the knee, 2 inches shorter and 'pronated,' causing considerable pain during walking. A depression about three-fourths of an inch in diameter in the right parietal bone, causing at times severe pains in his head."

From a letter on file, written by William H. Dowdell, esq., we make the following extract:

"Col. Joseph H. Burkham informed me that his regiment was ordered into the service at the time and place mentioned by order of General Wilcox, commanding in Indiana, and that General Wilcox was under General Burnside, then commandant of Cincinnati, Ohio. It would seen that at the time of the wounding of Joseph Perry his company and regiment were doing duty under command of General Wilcox, a United States Army officer. The claimant, Joseph Perry, is a poor man, but well esteemed by his neighbors. He is a cripple for life, one leg being about 2 inches shorter than the other, and a depression of the skull, that causes him a great deal of pain and expense in the way of medical treatment, and his ability to gain a livelihood and get on in the world greatly diminished."

The claim for pension was rejected by the Commissioner of Pensions on the ground "that there is no record of such organization as the Twelfth Indiana Volunteer Militia at the War Department."

In the opinion of the committee the evidence abundantly proves that the said Joseph Perry was in the service of the United States and in line of duty when he received the injuries for which he asks a pension, and that said soldier has produced sufficient evidence to prove that the injuries received justly entitle him to be placed upon the pension-roll. The soldier enlisted in obedience to a call for volunteers from a proper authority of the United States Army, to suppress the raid of the rebel general John Morgan, at a time when it was impossible to send regular troops to the scene of action, and the committee can see no good reason why a volunteer soldier, duly sworn into the service of the United States, and enrolled into the State militia, and who, while in the line of duty, received wounds which disable him from pursuing his usual avocation or earning a living by manual labor, should not be placed upon the same footing as the soldier who is recognized by the Government as regularly in the service of the United States.

The committee therefore submit a favorable report, and recommend the passage of the bill.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move that that bill be laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

DAVID M. RENNOE.

The next business on the Private Calendar was a bill (H. R. 6379) to increase the pension of David M. Rennoe.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to increase the pension of David M. Rennoe, late private in Company H, Twenty-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteers, and pay him at the rate of $40 per month, in lieu of the pension now received, and which increase of pension shall be for disability resulting from wounds in left foot, neck, and hand.

The report (by Mr. MATSON) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6379) to increase the pension of David M. Rennoe, having considered the same, submit the following report:

This claimant, David M. Rennoe, enlisted as a private in Company H, Twenty-ninth Indiana Volunteers, November 29, 1861, and was honorably discharged March 23, 1863, for gunshot wounds received at the battle of Murfreesborough, Tenn., December 31, 1862.

Claimant was pensioned December 28, 1863, at the rate of $8 per month, for loss of right foot, which was increased from time to time by the Pension Department until he received a pension for total third grade. At the session of the Forty-ninth Congress a special act was passed, June 4, 1886, increasing his pension to $30 per month, because of wounds of left foot, neck, and hand. Subsequent to the passage of the aforesaid act a general act of Congress was passed August 4, 1886, increasing the rate for total disability of right foot to $30 per month. Since the passage of the aforesaid act he continued to receive only $30 per month, or the rate for the disability of right foot, and nothing for the disabilities of left foot, neck, and hand. By the ruling of the Pension Bureau the special act for his relief, passed June 4, 1886, must govern, and therefore the general act of August 4, 1886, which increased the rate on his disability of right foot to $30 per month, is made to repeal the effect of the special act of June 4, 1886, which increased his pension from $24 to $30 per month because of wounds of left foot, neck, and hand, and this bill for an increase of pension is to secure what Congress by special act allowed him for the last-named disabilities, but which has not been permitted by the Pension Bureau since the approval of the general act of August 4, 1886.

The evidence now on file in this case discloses the following facts: Soldier was wounded at the battle of Murfreesborough, Tenn., December 31, 1862, the ball passing through the left foot, just in front of the astragalus and os calcis bones, and through the center of the os calcis of the right foot, fracturing the bone in many pieces. Three months after soldier was discharged from the service on account of said wounds. In discharge it is stated "gunshot wound, fracture of the right and left metatarsi; disability total."

In a short time after the arrival of soldier at home it became necessary to amputate the right foot to save his life. The board of examining surgeons at South Bend, Ind., make the following report upon examination:

"Pensioner's right foot is off about 18 inches above the ankle; left foot shot through below and a little forward of the ankle-joint. We find the foot tender, and he is not capable of walking or being on his left foot much on account of the lameness and soreness it produces; foot looks tender and red. The wounds of neck and hand are not painful, and, he says, do not trouble him. We find his disability as described above to be equal to and entitling him to total third grade for loss of right foot, and one-half total for wound of left foot."

The evidence of the examining surgeons and the citizens of his home clearly establish the fact that the soldier is now receiving a pension only for the amputation of right leg, and nothing on the wounds of the left foot, neck, or hand, and that soldier is unable for the performance of manual labor.

The committee, being unanimously of the opinion that claimant is entitled to the benefit of the general act of August 4, 1886, submit a favorable report, and recommend the passage of the bill.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

ELLEN SHEA.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 3579) granting a pension to Ellen Shea.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the limitations and provisions of the pension laws, the name of Ellen Shea, mother of Michael Shea, late of Company A, Thirteenth Illinois Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. LANE) was read, as follows:

The accompanying bill (H. R. 3579) was introduced in the Senate in the first session of the Forty-ninth Congress, and the Committee of the Senate on Invalid Pensions made a favorable report thereon, which report your committee adopt as their own, and which report is as follows:

"The claimant filed her application on July 1, 1884, alleging that her son, Michael Shea, had contracted a fever in the Army, which resulted in insanity, and that, having wandered from home, he lost his life by reason of a snow-slide which occurred at Woodstock, Colo., on March 10, 1884.

"Mrs. Ellen Shea is a widow, seventy-six years of age, lives at Chicago, and is in poor circumstances.

"The deceased soldier, Michael Shea, enlisted on January 13, 1862, in Company A, Thirteenth Illinois Volunteers. He is reported sick in 1863, and sick on furlough, but the nature of the ailment does not appear. He returned to the service, and was discharged January 20, 1865.

"The physician who treated Michael Shea during his furlough testifies that he had brain fever; that he returned to the Army, but never after had the right use of his mind, and could not support himself.

"The claim was rejected by the Pension Department on the ground that the soldier's death was not a result of the service; but your committee are of the opinion that the cause of death may reasonably be traced to the insanity contracted in the service, and that therefore this claim for a pension may be properly allowed."

In view of the facts of this case your committee recommend that the bill do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

ALONZO B. CHATFIELD.

The next business on the Private Calendar was a bill (H. R. 2094) to increase the pension of Alonzo B. Chatfield.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the pension of Alonzo B. Chatfield, late of Company B, Thirty-third Regiment of Illinois Volunteer Infantry, be rerated and included as equal disability with that class of pensioners which have lost an arm at or above the elbow, and granted the same pension; and said pensioner shall receive the same increase of pension as has been or may be granted to the class in which he is rerated; and the Commissioner of Pensions is authorized hereby to continue said pensioner on the pension-rolls at the rate of said class as they may receive an increase of pension under any subsequent law of Congress.

The report (by Mr. LANE) was read, as follows:

The accompanying bill (H. R. 2094) was reported on favorably by the Forty-ninth Congress by the committee thereof on Invalid Pensions, and the committee now adopt said report as the report of this committee, which reads as follows:

"During the Forty-eighth Congress Alonzo B. Chatfield, the applicant for this increase, was, by special act, rerated and granted an increase of pension equal to the class who had lost an arm at or above the elbow. Said increase was given in consequence of the applicant's arm being amputated so close below the elbow as to practically create a disability equal to the class in which he was placed.

"Now, during the first session of the present Congress there was a further increase given that class of pensioners who had lost an arm at or above the elbow, by act approved August 4, 1886, but the said applicant was denied the benefit thereof, and it is therefore sought by renewing this act to grant him the increase under said act of August 4, 1886, and all benefits from subsequent acts, if any should occur, without further enactment declaring his status.

"It will be observed that by giving the said pensioner the increase from the time of the act of August 4, 1886, it will be applying and continuing the former rerating, and which it was supposed would be perpetual."

In view of the facts above stated the committee are of opinion that the relief asked for should be granted, and therefore report favorably, and ask that this bill do pass, with the amendment.

The committee recommended amendments substituting the word "rated" for the word "rerated," in lines 4 and 5, and striking out all after the words "same pension," in line 7.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with a recommendation that it do pass.

THOMAS S. HOPKINS.

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to go back to page 37 of the Calendar, and take up the Senate bill (S. 450) for the relief of Thomas S. Hopkins, which was passed over informally earlier in the session.

There was no objection.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That Thomas S. Hopkins, late a private in Company C, Sixteenth Maine Volunteers, now on the pension-roll, be, and he is hereby, exempted by reason of mental incapacity from the limitation prescribed in section 2 of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1879, entitled "An act making appropriations for the payment of the arrears of pensions granted by an act of Congress approved January 25, 1879, and for other purposes," and he shall be entitled to, and there shall be paid to him, the same rate of pension, and the same arrears thereof, as if his application for a pension had been filed with and allowed by the Commissioner of Pensions prior to June 16, 1880.

The report (by Mr. GALLINGER) is as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred bill (S. 450) for the relief of Thomas S. Hopkins, having examined the same, report as follows:

A bill identical with this passed both Houses of the Forty-ninth Congress and was vetoed by the President. The Senate, with only seven dissenting votes, passed the bill over the veto, but it lacked a few votes of the necessary two-thirds in the House.

The probability is that the executive veto was based upon a misapprehension of the real facts in the case, which was largely due to a want of explicitness in the reports made by the committees of the Forty-ninth Congress, whereby the fact was not clearly shown that, under the general law, insane persons were expressly exempted from the limitation contained in the act of March, 1879. While it is not contended that claimant suffered from actual insanity, it is conclusively shown that he was suffering from disease of the brain and spinal cord in a very severe form, and hence was utterly unable to comply with the provisions of the law.

The Senate has again passed the bill, and as their report is very full and explicit, your committee adopt it as their own, which is as follows:

"[Senate Report No. 141, Fiftieth Congress, first session.]

"The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 450) for the relief of Thomas S. Hopkins, having examined the same, make the following report:

"A bill for the relief of this claimant was passed by the last Congress, and was vetoed by the President.

"By some oversight, when the bill was before the Senate at that time, the real ground of the claim was not set forth in the report of the committee, namely, that 'insane persons' and children were expressly exempted from the limitation contained in the act of March 3, 1879. It seems probable that this omission contributed largely towards, if it was not wholly the cause of, the Presidential veto. So clearly did this appear, that the Senate, after a full consideration of the facts, passed the bill notwithstanding the veto, there being but seven dissenting votes.

"The claimant seeks relief from the limitation in the arrears-of-pensions act of March 3, 1879, and the increase of his pension under the act of June 16, 1880, on the grounds—

"1. That from the date of the passage of the first-named act, and long before, down to some months after the limitation took effect (June 30, 1880), he was utterly unable, mentally and physically, by reason of the extreme severity of his illness (disease of the brain and spinal cord), to make any effort towards securing a pension.

"2. That with the very first return of mental strength, and before he could dictate more than the fragment of a brief letter, and before he could write at all himself, he applied for a pension (November 20, 1880), which was promptly granted him.

"3. That the true intent and meaning of the act in question, which exempts 'insane persons and children under sixteen years' from the limitation contained therein, was to exempt all persons who, by reason of mental incapacity, were prevented from taking advantage of its provisions, whether such mental weakness came within the strict technical definition of the term 'insanity' or not.

"4. That the extreme severity of his illness, which of itself ought to entitle him to the highest rate of pension, has in fact been the very means of debarring him from it, and preventing his participation in the benefits of the arrears act.'

"Had a soldier been totally unconscious during that period, or had he been completely paralyzed or beyond seas, he would not have been technically 'insane;' yet all will admit that each of these cases would come within the true spirit and intent of the act, and would call for relief by special acts of Congress.

"It seems so clear that the saving clause in the statute, which exempts 'insane persons' and children from the limitation, was intended to include all persons who were suffering from mental incapacity, that the only question requiring serious consideration appears to be whether or not the applicant, during the period of time involved, was, in fact, absolutely disqualified by reason of the 'disease of the brain and spinal cord,' from which he was suffering, from applying for a pension. With this end in view, the committee have examined the evidence with unusual care. The facts in the case as developed by the evidence are as follows:

"In the summer of 1878 the applicant was suddenly stricken down upon the street with nervous exhaustion (neurasthenia) of the severest character. This attack so seriously affected his mental as well as his physical powers as to render him wholly incompetent to attend to even the slightest details of business for more than two years thereafter. With the first return of mental strength, before he could read or write at all himself, and while he could dictate only a fragment of a brief letter at a time, he applied for a pension (November 20, 1880), which was promptly granted him. His attending physicians state that the effort he made in thus applying for a pension while his mind was in such a weak condition 'has seriously retarded his recovery.' (See affidavits of Dr. W. W. Johnston and Dr. H. D. Fry, accompanying claimant's memorial to Congress, dated December 27, 1881, and their joint affidavit of June 7, 1882.)

"The Pension Office diagnosed his case as 'disease of the brain and spinal cord from chronic diarrhea and malarial poisoning.' (Pension certificate No. 189988.)

"But the applicant's pension only dated from the time when his application was actually filed, so that he received no allowance for the two and one-third years during which his mind and body were so weakened by the extreme character of his illness as to prevent him from taking any steps towards securing a pension; and he also lost the increase of pension he would otherwise have been entitled to under the act of June 16, 1880.

"The proof as to the applicant's mental condition, from a date prior to the passage of the arrears act down to some months after the limitation expired, is absolutely conclusive. There is not the shadow of a doubt in regard to it. He has resided in this city ever since his discharge from the Army in 1865. He has been a practicing lawyer in good standing and of undoubted integrity. His case is well known to the court and bar of this District and to a large number of the citizens of Washington. The many peculiar features of the case, and the intensity and obstinate duration of the symptoms, appear to have excited the interest of the medical profession generally. The list of physicians who attended him during the period in question, and who certify to his complete prostration, contains the names of some of the most distinguished members of the profession in Washington, namely, Dr. W. W. Johnston, Dr. H. D. Fry, Dr. S. C. Busey, Dr. A. F. A. King, and Dr. W. V. Marmion. Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, the celebrated nervous specialist of Philadelphia, and other physicians outside of Washington, also testify as to the mental and physical condition of the applicant.

"'He could see or converse with no one but the members of his own family and his physicians, and even that intercourse was of the simplest and most limited character. He could not read or hear read a single line, or put forth the slightest mental effort without producing most distressing symptoms. He was so weak that he could not grasp a pen, lift a book, or feed himself.' (Certificate of Drs. Fry and Johnston, attached to applicant's memorial to Congress, dated December 27, 1881.)

"The effort to read 'for even a short time was impossible. The slightest exertion, whether of a physical or mental character, threw him into a condition of nervous depression and exhaustion.' (Dr. W. V. Marmion.)

"'He was completely bedridden * * * Muscular power almost nil. When asked to grasp your hand he could scarcely exert any appreciable force. He was unable to feed himself or make any voluntary effort to attend to his own wants.' (Dr. H. D. Fry's original affidavit.)

"'He was suffering from nervous exhaustion of extreme character, largely due to or connected with anæmia, of dangerous intensity.' (Affidavit of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, of Philadelphia, who was called to Washington to see the applicant, in consultation with Dr. Johnston, in April, 1877.)

"The following extract from the joint affidavit of two of the Washington physicians, Drs. Johnston and Fry, who attended the applicant all through his illness, will show how clear and unequivocal the evidence is:

"'They have been the regular medical attendants of Thomas S. Hopkins during his long illness.

"'That his disease has been the severest case of nervous exhaustion which has ever come under their observation.

"'That from March 3, 1879, and for many months previous thereto, down to November, 1880, he was absolutely disqualified, both mentally and physically, from attending to the business of applying for a pension, or any other business, by reason of the intensity of his symptoms, and that there were no intervals, however short, during that period when he could have safely undertaken the work.

"'That the effort he made in applying at so early a date has seriously retarded his recovery.

"'That he is still confined to his bed, and requires the constant attendance of some one.

"'So near to death's door did this man lie in May, 1879, that in order to keep him alive it became necessary to give him liquid nourishment by means of rectal injections, administered five times a day; and this was continued for over a year. And he was during this period, or a portion of it, so weak that he could not repeat to himself a brief familiar prayer.' (Affidavit of C. W. Hopkins.)

"But this does not include all the evidence.

"The supreme court of this District, during this period, by a decree in equity, based upon evidence taken, which showed that the applicant, who was trustee under a deed of trust, was in feeble health, 'and totally unable to perform his duties as trustee, or to attend to any other business,' removed him from his office and substituted another trustee in his place. (Equity case No. 6809.) The bill was filed June 2, 1879, and the decree was made in the following September. A certified transcript is on file with the evidence in this case.

"'There was also on file affidavits of notaries public of this District, certifying that in 1879 and in 1880 they called at the applicant's residence, seeking to obtain his signature and acknowledgments to various deeds. These were mere formal acts on his part, but it was of great importance to the parties interested that the signatures and acknowledgments should be obtained. But none of the notaries were allowed even to enter his room because of his critical condition.' (Affidavits of Hon. Simon Wolf and Saml. C. Mills.)

"Prominent citizens of Washington, who were also numbered among his personal friends, testify as to his inability to see any one because of his mental condition. (See affidavits of B. H. Warner, president of National Bank of Columbia; M. Ashford, president Real Estate Title Insurance Company, and Col. George F. Schayer, late deputy recorder of deeds.)

"No man can read the direct and circumstantial evidence in this case and remain in doubt as to the condition of the applicant's mind from the passage of the arrears act until long after the expiration of the limitation contained in it. He was as mentally incompetent during that period as though he had been technically insane.

"Every principle of right and justice demands that he shall be allowed the same standing before the Pension Office as he would have been entitled to had he, during these years, been competent to avail himself of his legal rights. Nothing more is asked. This bill contains no specific appropriation; it leaves the degree of disability and the periods during which it existed to be determined by the Commissioner of Pensions upon a consideration of all the evidence. The case clearly comes within the spirit, if not within the strict letter, of the act of March 3, 1879, and the claimant should also receive the increase allowed by the act of June 16, 1880, at which date he was laboring under absolute mental disability. This is not a case where Congress is asked to be generous. Justice only is invoked.

"The committee recommend the passage of the accompanying bill."

Believing that this is a thoroughly meritorious claim, and that its allowance will in no way establish a dangerous precedent, your committee report the bill back favorably and recommend its passage.

The CHAIRMAN. If there be no objection, this bill will be laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

Mr. WALKER. I want to vote "no" on that bill.

Upon a vote, the bill was ordered to be laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass, only one member, Mr. WALKER, voting in the negative.

SARAH E. M'CALEB.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 6609) for the relief of Sarah E. McCaleb.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sarah E. McCaleb, widow of the late Hebert A. McCaleb, of Company I, Eleventh Illinois Infantry.

The report (by Mr. LANE) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6609) for the relief of Sarah E. McCaleb, having considered the same, respectfully report:

The record shows that the soldier, Hebert A. McCaleb, enlisted August 20, 1861, and was discharged June 30, 1865, and died April 1, 1878. His wife, Sarah E. McCaleb, applied for pension in 1880, and the same was rejected on the ground that suicide, of which the soldier died, was not a result of wounds in the head nor of his military service.

William W. Laggart, lieutenant of the soldier's company, testifies in the record that the soldier received three gunshot wounds February 15, 1862, at the battle of Fort Donelson, Tennessee; one through his foot, one through his thigh, the other struck on top of his head about 1 inch back of forehead, but did not penetrate through the skull.

Dr. Robert M. McArthur, who knew soldier, testifies that soldier was suffering with insanity at the date of his death, and that insanity might be induced by wound in head; that the soldier after 1862 suffered with attacks of melancholy, which, at the time, the witness did not connect with the wound in the head, but since the soldier's death he is satisfied had more or less to do with his final taking off.

Dr. J. C. Colus testifies that he knew soldier; that he heard soldier complain of injuries in his head on various times; that the injury on soldier's head was plainly visible, there being a depression on the outer table of the skull.

Charles S. Miller and P. W. Stocksleger testify that the soldier was insane at the time of his death, and that the insanity had more or less to do with the wound in the head; and these facts are also sustained by James McManus and P. O. A. Oltann.

Claimant testifies that soldier died March 24, 1878, from suicide, while in a state of melancholy or insane from result of wound in head received in action. The soldier's mother and two brothers testify as to insanity from wound, and no insanity in family.

The testimony as a whole shows that the soldier when he entered the service was in good health and that after he received the wound in his head he was more or less affected with insanity and melancholy, and in a fit of melancholy committed suicide.

It is the most reasonable and certainly the most charitable view of the matter, in the opinion of your committee, that the soldier committed suicide as the result of his wound in the head, and they therefore recommend that the bill do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MRS. JEANNIE STONE.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 401) granting a pension to Mrs. Jeannie Stone.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to Mrs. Jeannie Stone, widow of General Charles P. Stone, a pension of $600 per annum, to take effect from January 24, 1887, the date of General Stone's death.

The report (by Mr. FRENCH) is as follows:

The history of this case as given by Mrs. Stone in her appeal "to the Senate and House of Representatives" is as follows:

"I respectfully appeal to you, the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled, for relief by granting me a pension. I am the widow of General Charles P. Stone, of Massachusetts, and late of the United States Army, and, with his children, am left without means of support.

"General Stone from July 1, 1845, the day he entered the service of the United States as an officer of the Army to the day of his death was a loyal citizen and servant of his country, devoting his labors while in commission to its interests, and often, when necessary, risking his life to protect its honor.

"By efficient service on General Scott's staff in Mexico he secured the everabiding confidence of General Scott, and won honorable mention in brevet commission 'for gallant and meritorious services in the battle of Molino del Rey,' and also 'in the capture of Chapultepec.' He was selected as chief of ordnance on the staff of the commanding general in California in 1851, and was charged at a time of threatening danger with the duty of putting the harbor of San Francisco in a state of defense, which duty was accomplished as far as practicable with the limited means at his disposal.

In the winter of 1860 and 1861 he was in Washington City, attending to important interests as chief of the commission for the survey and exploration of the public lands in the State of Sonora, Mexico. The safety of the capital was seriously threatened by efforts to dissolve the Union. Deeming his duty to his Government as overpowering his personal interests, he at once resigned that important position, and was the first person, during these serious threatenings, to volunteer his services to the Government. Assigned to the command of the District of Columbia Volunteers, he enrolled, organized, and disciplined them, and applied himself most successfully to the security of the capital by protecting the President during the inauguration. These services were appreciated by the Government, which recognized them by appointing him a colonel in the Army and brigadier-general of volunteers.

"During subsequent services in Maryland some of his acts were misconstrued, and other unfortunate acts of some of his command were incorrectly attributed to him. In consequence he was unjustly subjected to harsh and oppressive treatment, which, in connection with other severe treatment in Louisiana amid active and efficient duty, shattered his health and unsettled his mind. While in this mental and bodily condition, intensified by illness contracted during service in unhealthy localities of Louisiana, Illinois, and Virginia, he tendered his resignation under the expectation of an early death, and thereby severed his connection with the Army.

"For a long time he was a sufferer in his intellect, and in connection with the state of the public mind during the war, was prevented entering into commercial or other business, whereby he could lay by anything to maintain his family. Consequently for years he was compelled to accept position offered by the Pasha of Egypt. For the reason that he was thus led to resign from the Army, after having spent his substance and imperiled his life in the service of his country, I now respectfully appeal to you for aid, earnestly trusting the Government he loyally served will not permit his destitute family to be sufferers.

"Very respectfully,

"JEANNIE STONE.

"NEW YORK, December 26, 1887."

This petition is numerously signed, and the passage of the bill earnestly recommended by a large number of prominent citizens of Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, and Pennsylvania, among whom are Abram S. Hewitt, mayor of New York; General H. W. Slocum, General William T. Sherman, General W. B. Frye, Henry Dowd, D. O. Mills, Robert G. Ingersoll, C. F. Tiffany, H. Villard, General Fitz John Porter, and many others.

The Adjutant-General of the Army, at the request of this committee, has furnished the following report of the services of General Stone:

"WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
"Washington, February 15, 1888.

"Statement of the military service of Charles P. Stone, late of the United States Army, compiled from the records of this office.

"REGULAR ARMY RECORD.

"He was a cadet at the United States Military Academy from July 1, 1841, to July 1, 1845, when graduated and appointed brevet second lieutenant of ordnance; promoted second lieutenant March 3, 1847; first lieutenant February 26, 1853; resigned, honorably, November 17, 1856.

"Appointed colonel Fourteenth Infantry May 14, 1861; resigned, honorably, September 13, 1864.

"He received the brevets of first lieutenant September 8, 1847, 'for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Molino del Rey, Mexico,' and of captain September 13, 1847, 'for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Chapultepec, Mexico.'

"He was on duty at the United States Military Academy from July 1, 1845, to January 13, 1846; at Watervliet Arsenal, New York, to May, 1846, and at Fort Monroe Arsenal, Virginia, to December, 1846; with siege train en route to and in Mexico to June, 1848; participating in the siege of Vera Cruz March 9 to 29, 1847; battle of Contreras, August 19, 1847; Molino del Rey, September 8, 1847; Chapultepec, September 13, 1847; and assault and capture of the City of Mexico, September 13, 14, 1847; in garrison in the City of Mexico, September 14, 1847, to June, 1848; en route to and on duty at Watervliet Arsenal, New York, to September 15, 1848; on leave of absence to visit Europe, 'for the purpose of improvement in his profession and the gaining of general information,' to May 13, 1850; on duty at Watervliet Arsenal from June 1 to July 20, 1850, and at Fort Monroe Arsenal to December 10, 1850, under orders of the Secretary of War, attending and embarking men and stores and conducting them to California, via Cape Horn, to August, 1851; in charge of construction and in command of Benicia Arsenal, and chief of ordnance, Division and Department of the Pacific, to January 27, 1856; on leave to November 17, 1856, upon which date he resigned.

"VOLUNTEER RECORD.

"He was appointed colonel and inspector-general, District of Columbia Militia, January 1, 1861, and Brigadier-General United States Volunteers May 17, 1861.

"He was mustered into service January 2, 1861, by special application of the general-in-chief, Lieutenant-General Scott, and was engaged under his orders disciplining the volunteers of the District of Columbia from January 2, 1861, to April 16, 1861, commanding District of Columbia volunteers in charge of all the outposts of Washington, and guarding the railroad between Washington and Annapolis Junction; was also in command of the advanced guard in the passage of the Potomac under 'such admirable arrangements (made by him) that he was enabled to take possession of the Virginia side of the Long Bridge before any alarm was given, thus preventing the rebels from firing it,' and taking of Alexandria, Va., May 24, 1861, which place he commanded for two days, when recalled, and he resumed command of the outposts of Washington, commanding Rockville expedition, and was engaged in the skirmishes of Edwards and Conrad's Ferry in June, and skirmish at Harper's Ferry, July 7, 1861; commanding First Brigade in General Patterson's operations in the Shenandoah Valley, July 8 to 23, 1861; commanding Corps of Observation, Army of the Potomac, from August 10, 1861, to February 9, 1862; was imprisoned at Fort Lafayette, New York, to August 16, 1862, when released (no charges having been preferred against him); awaiting orders to May 3, 1863, when he was ordered to report for duty to the commanding general, Department of the Gulf; he served in that department from May, 1863, to April 17, 1864, participating in the siege of Port Hudson, June and July, 1863, and was senior member of the commission for receiving the surrender of that place, July 8, 1863; was chief of staff to Major-General Banks, commanding Department of the Gulf, from July 25, 1863, to April 17, 1864, participating in the campaign of Bayou Teche, La., in October, 1863, the Red River campaign, March and April, 1864, battle of Sabine Cross-roads, April 8, 1864, and battle of Pleasant Hill, La., April 9, 1864.

"He was honorably mustered out as brigadier-general of volunteers, April 4, 1864. Awaiting orders from April, 1864 (when relieved from duty as brigadier-general of volunteers), to August 21, 1864, commanding First Brigade, Second Division, Fifth Corps, Army of the Potomac, to September 13, 1864, upon which date he resigned.

"R. C. DRUM, Adjutant-General."

In view of all the facts in the case, and the high character of those whose names appear attached to the petition requesting the passage of the bill, the committee are of opinion that the same ought to pass; amended, however, by striking out all after the word "pension," in line 5, and inserting instead the words "subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws."

Mr. FORD. Is this the General Stone who was at one time in the employ of the Pasha of Egypt?

Mr. MORRILL. Yes. The bill is for the benefit of the widow of General Stone, who was a distinguished soldier, and I move that it be laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

An amendment reported from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, striking out all after the word "pension," in line 5 of the bill, and inserting in lieu thereof the words "subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws," was agreed to.

The bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MARY SULLIVAN.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 838) granting a pension to Mary Sullivan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary Sullivan, widow of Michael Sullivan, late a private in Company K, Ninety-third Regiment Illinois Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. FRENCH) was read, as follows:

The Senate Committee on Pensions have presented a report, based upon the report of the Committee on Invalid Pensions in the Forty-ninth Congress in the case, and as it contains the principal facts in the same, your committee adopts the same as its own, and likewise recommends the passage of the accompanying bill.

"That a careful examination convinces the committee that the House report made to the Forty-ninth Congress on this bill was a proper one, and therefore adopt it. The report is as follows:

"'Michael Sullivan, the husband of this claimant, was on the pension-roll at the time of his death for wounds received in the service.

"'The claim of the widow was rejected in the Pension Office on the ground that her husband died from apoplexy, and not from a disease or disability which originated in the service. The soldier died at the National Home for Disabled Soldiers at Milwaukee, Wis., on the 22d day of August, A. D. 1882, and it is true that the records of the Home show that he died from "apoplexy," and the surgeon of the Home, when called upon for his opinion, says that the apoplexy of which the soldier died was in no way produced by the gunshot wound of the bladder and rectum.

"'But from the evidence in the case it appears that the wound of this soldier was of a very aggravated character, he having been wounded by a gunshot which passed through the bladder and rectum; and from the testimony of a physician who knew him from the date of his discharge from the Army, and who treated him occasionally, it appears that none of his urine passed out of his bladder in the natural way, but passed out at two artificial openings, one just below the scrotum and one in the right thigh. Other physicians also corroborate the statement, and say that not only the urine, but the fæces passed out in the same unnatural way; and such was the condition of the soldier, suffering as he did, that he often required some one to assist in dressing and undressing him. He was for some years at the National Home for Disabled Soldiers at Milwaukee, Wis., where he finally died, and at one time while there was a patient in the Home hospital for seven months, when he was, at his own request, discharged from the Home.

"'And suffering as this soldier did from this aggravated wound, it is not, in the opinion of the committee, certain but that the wound, affecting the soldier in the way and manner it did, may have contributed to the death of the soldier; but however that may be, in view of the long suffering of this soldier, and the nature of his disability, and the constant care and attention of his wife to him, the committee think that his widow should be granted a pension. She well says in a statement found among the papers in the case, that—

"'"Widows that their husbands died or got killed in the war know nothing of the trouble it was to take care of them as I did. When my husband came home in 1865, at the close of the late war, from Camp Butler, near Springfield, Ill., he was as helpless as a child, so I had to feed him with a knife and fork, and had to care for him night and day—that in addition to a family of four small children—so my health has entirely failed, and leaves me dependent on his pension for my living. I have been steadily under the doctor's care for the past year."

"'Your committee therefore report the bill back and recommend its passage.'"

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

ELIZA SUMMERS.

The next business on the Private Calendar was a bill (S. 472) granting a pension to Eliza Summers.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Eliza Summers, widow of Cornelius Summers, deceased, late a private of Company I, Seventy-first Regiment Missouri Enrolled Militia.

The report (by Mr. WALKER) was read, as follows:

The applicant is the widow of Cornelius Summers, who was a private in the Seventy-first Regiment Enrolled Missouri Militia, Company I. The regiment was not enrolled in the service of the United States, but in that of the State of Missouri. The evidence, both record and parol, shows the husband entered service August 12, 1862, and remained therein until September, 1862, when he was killed in battle by the enemy near Wellington, Mo. The marriage of claimant and deceased is shown conclusively by parol and by the record to have occurred the 28th day of January, 1855.

It is conceded that if the claim had been filed prior to July 14, 1874, or if the husband had been mustered into the service of the United States, the pension must have been granted under existing laws. This regiment of enrolled militia were acting under the orders of the Government at the time of the death. Though not technically in the service, the men were really part of the military forces of the Union, and employed against the public enemy. The claimant is a woman yet a widow, in needy circumstances, with three children at the time of her affliction dependent upon her for support. The widow's application was filed August 11, 1874, about a month too late.

We think this a case for legislative relief. It can make little real difference to the Government in whose service the husband was formally enrolled, where he lost his life in the service of the United States. We think a pension should be allowed at least to his widow.

Passage of the bill is recommended.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

OSCAR F. CARPENTER.

The next bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 930) to grant a pension to Oscar F. Carpenter, Eleventh Independent Battery Ohio Light Artillery.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the restrictions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Oscar F. Carpenter, late of the Eleventh Independent Battery of Ohio Light Artillery, for a wound of the right leg, accidentally inflicted in camp in December, 1862, by a pistol in the hands of a comrade.

The report (by Mr. WALKER) was read, as follows:

Your committee adopt the report of the Senate committee, which is as follows, and recommend the passage of the bill:

"The applicant was a private in the Eleventh Independent Battery, Ohio Light Artillery. He enlisted September 17, 1861, and was discharged November 5, 1864. On February 24, 1885, he filed an application for a pension, wherein he alleges that in December of 1862 he was sitting in his tent, when he was accidentally shot in the right leg by a pistol in the hands of a comrade. The ball was extracted by the battery surgeon. Of late years the applicant claims the wounded limb has given him much pain and interfered somewhat with his performance of manual labor. The board of examining surgeons gave him a one-fourth rating. His claim was rejected August 1, 1887, on the ground that the alleged pistol-shot wound was not received in the line of duty. The claimant appealed, alleging that a 'soldier is always either in line of duty or out of it. Certainly Carpenter was not out of it when shot. The rejection was affirmed.

"Your committee is of the opinion that an injury sustained by a soldier while in the service not the result of his own gross carelessness should be treated as though such injury was sustained while in the line of duty. We therefore recommend the passage of the bill."

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

JAMES D. WHALEY.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 753) granting a pension to James D. Whaley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James D. Whaley, of Lawrence County, Missouri, late of Company H, Fourth Regiment Missouri State Militia Cavalry.

The report (by Mr. WALKER) is as follows:

The basis of this claim is an alleged disease of the bladder, stated to have been contracted in the line of duty.

It was rejected February 1, 1881, on the ground that there is no record of said disease, and the claimant's inability to furnish medical testimony showing the existence of the same in the service or at the date of discharge.

These assumptions are true.

And the question is whether upon the other proofs this claim can be sustained.

The claimant deposes that his disease first appeared some time in December, 1864, and that it was caused by long and continuous marching, night and day, and exposure to the weather during the Price raid in Missouri in October, 1864; that he was treated by Dr. Hunt, of Rose Hill, Mo., in 1867, who was called because claimant's water had stopped. Dr. Hunt died about 1869. Claimant has since been using his prescriptions and other remedies.

A. C. Davidson and Samuel Smith depose (August 25, 1879; January 24, 1879) that they have known claimant for twenty years; that when he enlisted he was in good bodily health and free from disease of the bladder.

The claimant states that he did not receive treatment while in the service for the reason that he did not think much of the disease, but that it continued to grow worse until discharge.

He can not, therefore, furnish medical testimony, nor that of any commissioned officer, because, as to the latter, after effort made, he has not been able to find any such officer knowing the facts.

The said Samuel Smith, after deposing as above to claimant's soundness prior to enlistment, states, in the same affidavit, that after claimant's discharge from the service, and on about April 1, 1865, he was complaining and suffering from disease of the bladder; has since such date seen claimant on an average of twelve times a year and worked with him part of the time, and that at no time since claimant's discharge has he been free from such disease, but has suffered therefrom continuously. Claimant is a farmer, and has lost about three-fourths of his time.

The deponent Davidson testifies to the same effect, except that his statements are more explicit.

Pleasant M. Smith, a comrade of claimant, deposes that claimant contracted disease of the bladder in October, 1864, while on the Price raid, in Missouri, by reason of hard marching and riding. This witness states that his knowledge is derived from personal observation, having been present at the time and place stated.

To the same effect is the affidavit of George M. Pruitt, February 5, 1880.

As above stated, this claim was rejected February 1, 1881. Since that date the following additional testimony has been submitted to the Bureau of Pensions, but has not been deemed sufficient to change the adverse decision:

William Rickman deposes, July 6, 1883, that he saw claimant about May 1, 1865; his condition was then very bad; was troubled with disease of the bladder; was under treatment of a physician; was able to be up sometimes, but at other times was confined; was unable to labor; has seen claimant not less than once a year since, and for the last five years as often as once a month; first year after discharge deponent lived in same neighborhood with the claimant; was with him in his efforts to work, and the claimant was unable to perform manual labor to amount to anything.

This statement is corroborated as respects dates and disability by the affidavit of William White, August 10, 1883, who worked on an adjoining farm.

Levi Smith, a comrade, deposes, February 8, 1884, that he was present on the Price raid, and that claimant was on that occasion disabled as claimed.

"When we returned he (claimant) complained of it, and I could see something was wrong, and I know that he is now bodily afflicted. The cause of the disability was hard riding and exposure. He seemed to grow worse and worse. It affected him when he went to urinate, and I have lived near him most of the time since he was discharged. I see he is badly afflicted and is gradually growing worse."

G. M. Pruitt again deposes, December 4, 1885, that he was claimant's bunk and mess-mate in said company and regiment. About six months before discharge he began complaining of misery in the back, low down, and great pain in discharge of urine, late in fall of 1864, after return from Price raid. From that time until discharge, in March, 1865, claimant continued to suffer much in the same manner, more severely at times than at other times. The same symptoms are present now and have been ever since his discharge.

Pleasant Smith again deposes, February 6, 1886, that he was a mess-mate of claimant in said company and regiment when the latter was discharged and long prior, during which claimant complained of a great deal of pain in the lower part of his back and in making water; commenced complaining along towards the close of the Price raid in 1864. Claimant has been troubled with urinary disease ever since his discharge. Affiant has lived neighbor to him during greater portion of time since, and knows the facts of his own personal knowledge.

The claimant was examined by a board of examiners January 12, 1887, who report the existence of a stricture, extreme sensitiveness at stricture, a mucous discharge after urinating, and at intervals between urinating; great pain on pressure in lumbar region; the urine issues in a thready stream; can not find that claimant has ever had any venereal disease.

There is no contradiction to this body of testimony. The good character of the witness is duly attested.

Your committee are of the opinion that the claim is sustained by the proofs, and they recommend the passage of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

DAVID L. PARTLOW.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 8185) granting a pension to David L. Partlow.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-rolls, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David L. Partlow, father of David S. Partlow, late of Company A, Fifth Regiment Minnesota Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. MORRILL) is as follows:

It appears from the papers on file in the Pension Office that David S. Partlow enlisted September 16, 1862, in Company A, Fifth Minnesota Volunteers. He died in the service, of disease, August 7, 1863. The soldier's sister went to Fort Snelling in summer of 1863 to help care for the sick, and while there was taken sick and died September 1, 1863. After the daughter was taken sick the mother went to take care of her, and was herself taken ill, and died September 22, 1863. Thus in less than fifty days this old man was deprived of his family. The Pension Office can afford no relief, because at the time of the soldier's death the father was not dependent upon him for support. In later years, by reason of old age, disease, and the loss of his property, he became, and now is, a subject of charity.

Your committee believe that the simple statement of this case is sufficient to secure the passage of a bill for the relief of this old man by a unanimous vote. They therefore recommend the passage of the accompanying bill.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

DAVID W. SEELY.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 5195) granting a pension to David W. Seely.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place the name of David W. Seely on the pension-roll and pay him a pension of —— dollars per month during the period of his natural life.

The report (by Mr. MORRILL) is as follows:

The applicant in this case was a member of Lieut. R. Crandall's company of the Minnesota State Militia, called out to fight the Indians in 1865. In 1866 he filed an application in the Pension Office for pension, which was rejected on the ground that the injury was not received in actual engagement with the Indians.

It seems that while he was in pursuit of the Indians with his company, by the accidental discharge of his gun he was wounded in the left arm, rendering amputation necessary. The facts as herein set forth seem to be fully established. Had the wound been received in an actual engagement with the Indians, claimant would have been entitled to and would have received a pension under the general laws.

Your committee feel that the man was actually engaged in protecting the frontier from the hostile Indians and that the technicality ought to be waived, and therefore recommend the passage of the bill with an amendment, striking out all after "pension-roll" and inserting "subject to provisions and limitations of the pension laws."

The amendment recommended by the committee was adopted.

The bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

WILSON C. MOLES.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 3844) granting an increase of pension to Wilson C. Moles.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to increase the amount of pension paid to Wilson C. Moles, late of Company H, First Ohio Heavy Artillery, from $50 per month to the sum of $72 per month, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, on account of total disability and requiring the constant care of an attendant.

The report (by Mr. MORRILL) is as follows:

The claimant in this case was pensioned for partial paralysis, receiving $8 per month from March 3, 1864, $15 from May 1, 1869, $18 from June 4, 1872, $24 from August 9, 1880, and $50 from May 27, 1885. This is the highest rate that can be allowed in this case by the Pension Office, because the claimant does not come under the provisions of the act of June 16, 1880, not being on the pension-roll at that time for $50 per month.

The files in the Pension Office show that though comparatively a young man, having enlisted in the service when only a little more than sixteen years of age, he is a complete wreck.

The report of the examining board of surgeons at Marysville, Kans., after describing the disabilities, add:

"This man is certainly a pitiable subject, dependent upon the kindness of friends for everything. He requires the regular aid and attendance of another person."

Affidavits filed in the case show that from the effects of the paralysis the soldier has lost all control of his bowels and has to be cared for as an infant would be. His condition is certainly worse than that of a man who has lost the sight of both eyes, or of one who has lost both legs or both arms, and is otherwise in good health. The present pension is inadequate to provide for his comfortable support and to pay for necessary medical attendance. It is not possible for him to live many months, and your committee believe that it is the duty of the Government to make him as comfortable as possible for the short time he can live.

Your committee therefore report favorably and recommend the passage of the bill.

The committee recommended striking out all after the word "laws," in the eighth line.

The amendment was adopted.

The bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MARY G. CROCKER.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 4579) granting a pension to Mary G. Crocker.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll the name of Mary G. Crocker, widow of George W. Crocker, late of the Seventy-fifth Regiment New York Volunteers, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws.

The report (by Mr. SAWYER) is as follows:

Mary G. Crocker is the widow of George W. Crocker, late a sergeant of Company A, Seventy-fifth Regiment New York Volunteers.

The papers in the Pension Office show that the soldier received a gunshot wound at Port Hudson, La., May 27, 1863. The examining surgeon, in his certificate describing the soldier's disability, states as follows:

"Musket-ball entered thorax at left superior margin of sternum; passed through right lung; emerged at anterior margin of right axilla, fracturing second rib and injuring pectoral muscle. Fracture of rib ununited; left shoulder atrophied and weak."

The soldier was drawing a pension at time of death, which occurred March 12, 1882.

The widow applied for a pension July 6, 1882, which was rejected on the ground that the disease, typhoid pneumonia, from which he died, was not the result of his military service.

The evidence shows that the soldier received a gunshot wound, the ball passing through the right lung, fracturing a rib, which remained ununited.

Dr. Lester, late surgeon of Fourteenth New York Cavalry, states in his affidavit:

"I saw him (the soldier) while a member of his regiment, in Louisiana, after he received his wound and before, many times.

"He was in good health previous to his injury, and his family were a long-lived race. After he was wounded and came home I frequently saw him, he living near my father's residence. He was emaciated and feeble; could not walk 10 rods without great difficulty of breathing and prostration. I saw him about a year before he died, and he walked up the street with me, and his shortness of breath and difficulty of breathing made it necessary for us to stop to let him get his wind, as he termed it. I believe that the wound he received so impaired his lungs by adhesion and contraction around the track of the bullet that he would be an easy victim to pneumonia, and I further believe that if he had received no injury of that kind he would have been living to-day."

Dr. Coleman, in his affidavit, speaking of the soldier, states:

"For some time previous to the attack of pneumonia which proved fatal he suffered from severe neuralgic pain in the region of the wound. His physical condition was not good, and his constitution so impaired as not to withstand the onset of the disease, as a healthy man would by reason of his ability."

When the case was pending in the Pension Office the case was referred to William M. Goodlove, medical examiner, for his opinion, who, in his report to the chief of the law division, states as follows:

"The condition of this soldier when living, as shown by the different boards of examining surgeons, was such, as shown, that the least exposure, however unavoidable, would reasonably result in pneumonia.

"But the Auburn (N. Y.) board of examining surgeons describe a wound (and its effects) to the chest so susceptible to the attack of pneumonia, that it must in pathology be accepted as a sequence not altogether uncommon, and in my opinion the case should be admitted as medically established."

This report was approved by the medical referee.

The committee can but agree in the opinion of the medical examiner, that it is medically established that the death of soldier was the result of the wound received while in the service of his country, and would therefore recommend that the bill do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

FARNAREN BALL.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 4580) granting a pension to Farnaren Ball.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll the name of Farnaren Ball, mother of Augustus F. Coldecott, late private in Company F, Seventy-fifth Regiment New York Volunteers, war of the rebellion, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws.

The report (by Mr. SAWYER) is as follows:

Farnaren Ball was the mother of Augustus F. Coldecott. The papers in the Pension Office show that the soldier entered the Army October 1, 1861, for three years, and re-enlisted in veteran service January 1, 1864; that while in the service he was taken prisoner, when he was confined about one month and paroled and mustered out in March, 1865. The soldier died June, 1872, leaving Mrs. Ball, his mother. He had never been married. At the time of his death he was drawing a pension for asthma and resulting disease of lungs.

Mrs. Ball applied for a pension in February, 1884, and the same was rejected for the reason that the soldier's death was not the result of his service.

The soldier died from an overdose of opium. The evidence as set forth in the papers on file in the Pension Office is as follows:

Dr. Benjamin Wilson states he knew soldier at time of his enlistment and since to his death. From frequent examinations and conversations learned he was suffering from consumption beyond recovery. Dr. Pasco testifies as to the consumption and its progress.

Emily B. Hendricks, who had known soldier since his childhood: that for a long time before his death he had become enfeebled, debilitated, a great sufferer, and died in her family, where he had lived much of the last three years; that he was in the habit of taking laudanum to relieve his suffering from spasms; that he regulated himself the doses he took; that the night before his death he had one of his distressed turns; that she believes he took laudanum, as usual, and was found insensible in morning and soon died in such condition; his feeble condition would not admit of his usual dose.

Dr. F. M. Pasco testified that he knew the soldier; that he treated him for consumption, and gives it as his opinion that it was a reasonable conclusion that he may have become temporarily insane from the suffering and distress produced by the disease which he had.

Dr. Wilson testified that he was intimately acquainted with the soldier since before his enlistment; that the soldier had suffered greatly from frequent recurring attacks of asthma, which finally resulted in pulmonary consumption; that by reason of his suffering from pain and frequent attacks of difficult breathing so great as to indicate impending death, he, the soldier, sought relief in the use of laudanum; that the continued use was advised and prescribed by his physician as the only method of treatment possible in his case to relieve his sufferings; that it was imperative for him to take opiates to prolong his life and to relieve the symptoms of a fatal disease. It was the demand of physical relief that caused the fatal dose to be taken. The constant use of opium was advised by his physician with the desire of extending for a few months his life. He had not been accustomed to the use of opium, and after being obliged to use it he could not live without it, until his intensified sufferings compelled him to take a dose which proved too much for him in his enfeebled condition and rapid decline, but which he might have taken with impunity before. I do not believe he intended to commit suicide, but unwittingly, in his extremity, took an overdose.

Dr. J. B. C. Baxter, of the medical staff in the Pension Bureau, says:

"It is not impossible that from the character of his disease soldier contracted the opium habit from the use of this drug prescribed by his physician. It is a question whether he took an overdose by mistake or when temporarily insane. In either case I think the claim should be admitted, unless there is some legal objection. Opium is usually prescribed in such diseases as soldier had, and he could easily contract the opium habit before he was aware of it himself. If he was really insane, it would be safe, in my opinion, to admit it as a result of his disease, directly and indirectly."

The claim was rejected.

The fact that the mother is poor and that the soldier was a kind son, contributing to the mother's support, as far as he was able, is undisputed.

The committee are of the opinion that this is a case entitling the poor mother to the relief granted by this bill, and therefore recommend that the bill do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MRS. BETSY WINTERBOTTOM.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 895) for the relief of Mrs. Betsy Winterbottom.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the restrictions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mrs. Betsey Winterbottom, widow of John Winterbottom, late of Company A, Twenty-seventh Regiment Wisconsin Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. SAWYER) is as follows:

The Senate Committee on Pensions have made the following report in the case:

"The claimant is the widow of John Winterbottom, late of Company A, Twenty-seventh Wisconsin Volunteers. She claims that he was a strong and healthy man when he went into the service, and that he was wounded, and that his death is referable to his service. The Pension Office rejects, on the ground that his death was due to kidney disease, which existed prior to his enlistment. There is no evidence whatever to sustain this decision.

"The soldier was an engineer, and worked for years prior to his enlistment for an extensive lumber company at Kewaunee, Wis. It was a common thing in Wisconsin, when the war came, for men to abandon their employ and enlist in the service. It was so in this case. Winterbottom and a number of his co-laborers left their work and joined the Twenty-seventh Regiment. About a dozen of these men testify that they had intimate acquaintance with the soldier from two to five years before he enlisted. They worked with him, and know that he was an unusually strong and healthy man—never sick, never absent from his work. At least a dozen of his companions set forth this fact in affidavits, and the evidence is strong and should be satisfactory to show that he was sound when he enlisted. The Government not only accepted him, but was glad to get him, and certified to his soundness.

"His certificate of discharge is signed by the surgeon of the regiment, who says he has 'gravel, occurring upon slight exposure. The disease followed an injury received twenty years ago.'

"This statement is improbable on its face. It is not corroborated by any proof or pretense of proof. It is contradicted. It is contradicted by a round dozen of good, honest witnesses. It is inconsistent with any theory that is applicable in the case. He died after years of suffering that those who witnessed it say is indescribable, and he was obliged to endure it without any sympathy or aid from the country he had defended, and which was his only by adoption.

"His aged and helpless wife in asking recognition is told that her husband, upon whose strength and protection she could confidently depend before his enlistment, and who was never once able to raise a hand to help her after his discharge, was unsound before he volunteered.

"The bill is reported favorably, with a recommendation that it do pass."

The records of the War Department show that this soldier enlisted August 20, 1862, and that he was present with his command until August 21, 1863. Even were it true that he received an injury, as alleged, twenty years prior to his enlistment, it is self-evident that it did not develop into a disability sufficient to disqualify him for the duties of a soldier until he had undergone the hardships of an active campaign.

Having been accepted as sound, and subjected to exposure and hardship liable to cause permanent injury, your committee feel inclined to accept the evidence filed in support of prior soundness as sufficient to overcome the record heretofore referred to, and return the accompanying bill with the recommendation that it do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

CHRISTOPHER WISEMILLER.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 819) granting a pension to Christopher Wisemiller.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Christopher Wisemiller, late private Company B, Third Regiment Wisconsin Cavalry Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. SAWYER) is as follows:

The Senate Committee on Pensions have made the following report:

"The claimant was a private in Company B, Third Regiment Wisconsin Cavalry. He enlisted December 27, 1861, and was mustered out July 29, 1865. He claims a pension for disease of the lungs contracted on board a steamer while exposed to a severe rain-storm in the spring of 1865.

"The report of the Surgeon-General shows that he was sick in different hospitals at different times during the last year of his service, and that he was discharged by order of the War Department July 29 of that year.

"Dr. R. H. Robinson, of Winneconne, Wis., testifies that he was called to treat the claimant in the fall of 1865, who was afflicted with lung disease and intermittent fever, which had afflicted him since his discharge; that after consulting with other neighboring physicians he treated him accordingly, and had him under his treatment until he removed from that place. He has been his family physician since the fall of 1865; that his case is rather a hopeless one, and he has no hope of his recovery. The Pension Office rating of this affiant is "creditably good." It is in order here to state that the claim was rejected by the Pension Office on the ground that the alleged disease of the lungs was the result of an attack of pneumonia had subsequent to his discharge, and was not due to his military service.

"It will be observed that he claims to have taken a severe cold by exposure on a steamer's deck in the spring of 1865; that he was mustered out or discharged in July, 1865, on account of disability; that in the fall of 1865 the doctor above named was called to treat him for lung disease. Added to this, it must be borne in mind that for months before he was discharged he was, as the Surgeon-General's report shows, sick in different hospitals; was sick in hospital when he was discharged. These facts show a very close connection between the disability and the service.

"There is testimony from physicians and other respectable sources to show that from his discharge down to the time of his application he has had continuous treatment for lung disease.

"E. F. Dunham, of Oshkosh, testifies that he was a very large, strong, robust man before he went into the service, and adds:

"'I have heard him and others talk that his health was broken down in the Army; that he was never as strong and able after he came out as he was before.'

"It is very clear from the testimony, which the committee has carefully examined, that this claimant has been a continuous sufferer from pulmonary disease contracted in the service, with intervals of relief, until he has become incapable of manual labor. He was a man accustomed to hard work, and he was faithful to his habit of industry when it was possible for him to engage in outdoor employment which was favorable to his condition. The fact that he tried to work, and was able at intervals to do something, is made a ground for rejection by the special examiner, who makes a very voluminous report, but which does not change the fact established by reliable testimony, that he contracted the disease in the service, and that its continuance has disqualified him for manual labor.

"The bill is reported favorably, with the recommendation that it do pass."

Your committee have carefully examined the evidence in the case, in particular the report of the special examiner.

The latter contains, among others, the depositions of Lieutenants Reed and Sharp, and Dr. Jaunce, claimant's comrade and neighbors Steiner and Rich, from which it appears that claimant's lungs became diseased as early as July, 1864; that he was treated therefor while in service, and that on the way home he could only speak in a whisper. These witnesses are shown by the special examiner as men of the highest character.

The attack of pneumonia shortly after discharge should, in the opinion of this committee, in no way prejudice the claimant's right to pension.

Believing the claim to be meritorious, we return the accompanying bill, and recommend that it do pass, amended, however, by striking out the word "Christopher" in the title and also in line 3, and inserting therein instead the word "Christian."

Mr. MORRILL. Mr. Chairman, this is a lengthy report, and I would like that it be printed in the RECORD without being read.

Mr. SHAW. I would like to ask the gentleman what is the object of that? This report has been already printed, and is accessible to any member who chooses to read it.

Mr. MORRILL. The report has been printed, but only in pamphlet form.

Mr. SHAW. But I ask why it is now requested to have it again printed in the RECORD.

Mr. MORRILL. So that the RECORD may show the basis of our action here in passing bills. Some objection has been made because the reports have not been printed in all these cases.

There being no objection, the reading of the report was dispensed with, and it was printed as above.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MRS. LEPHA A. OSBORN.

Mr. WICKHAM. I ask consent to take from the Calendar the bill (H. R. 5966) granting a pension to Mrs. Lepha A. Osborn and put it upon its passage.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place the name of Mrs. Lepha A. Osborn, widow of Henry A. Osborn, late corporal Company C, One hundred and eleventh Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, on the pension-roll, subject to the limitations and provisions of the general pension laws.

Mr. CHIPMAN. Is that on the Calendar?

Mr. WICKHAM. It is.

Mr. MORRILL. Is this a request for unanimous consent that the bill be taken up out of its order?

The CHAIRMAN. It is.

Mr. MORRILL. Then I give notice that I shall object for the present to any other unanimous consents. In this case I shall not make objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The report will be read.

The report (by Mr. THOMPSON, of Ohio) was read, as follows:

Lepha A. Osborn is the widow of Henry A. Osborn, who enlisted in Company C, One hundred and eleventh Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, on the 25th day of October, 1861, and was discharged from said service on November 7, 1862, on surgeon's certificate of disability on account of chronic diarrhea of six months' duration. He again enlisted in Company E, One hundred and twenty-eighth Regiment Ohio Volunteers, on the 18th day of December, 1863; was transferred to Company B, One hundred and twenty-eighth Ohio Volunteers, on March 31, 1865, and was discharged from the service at Camp Chase, Ohio, on July 13, 1865.

He died of consumption or hemorrhage of the lungs on the 26th day of July, 1869.

The soldier applied for a pension during his life-time on account of chronic diarrhea and heart disease.

His widow filed a claim for pension on May 13, 1875, alleging that his death was due to disease contracted during his military service.

Both claims have undergone a thorough special examination by a special examiner of the Pension Bureau. The special examiner, Mr. F. E. Brownell, submitted his report to the Commissioner of Pensions on September 29, 1884.

In this report he says:

* * * "From all the facts and the testimony in the case, giving the claimant (widow) the benefit of all doubts, I am of the opinion that the claims should be admitted."

On September 15, 1885, the soldier's claim, No. 4105, was allowed by the Commissioner of Pensions on account of chronic diarrhea at $8 per month from the date of his discharge from Company C, One hundred and eleventh Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, deducting his subsequent service to the date of his death, on July 26, 1869.

So much of the claim as relates to heart disease was rejected on the ground that said disease was not shown to have originated during his military service.

The widow's claim, No. 209301, was rejected "on the ground that the disease of lungs, which caused soldier's death, was not a result of chronic diarrhea which was contracted in the United States service, or otherwise chargeable to said service, but had its origin in the typhoid-pneumonia that soldier had in the winter of 1866-'67 or spring of 1867."

It appears from the evidence of comrades obtained during the special examination of this claim that the soldier suffered almost continuously during his service in the One hundred and twenty-eighth Regiment Ohio Volunteers with chronic diarrhea; that he had a "bad, hacking cough while in said service, and at times would expectorate blood."

It also appears from the evidence of neighbors that while at home on furlough from the One hundred and twenty-eighth Regiment Ohio Volunteers he was suffering with chronic diarrhea and lung disease, and had a bad, hacking cough.

It also appears from the evidence of doctors and neighbors that when the soldier returned from the Army in the year 1865 he was greatly emaciated and debilitated, suffering from chronic diarrhea and had a hacking cough; that he never recovered from these complaints, but, on the contrary, they continued to affect him and disable him, until his constitution was completely shattered.

It also appears from the evidence that the soldier did have an attack of "lung trouble," or typhoid pneumonia, in the year 1866 or 1867, but your committee are of the opinion that his condition at that time, in consequence of chronic diarrhea and lung disease, was such that his constitution was unable to resist the attack.

Dr. A. A. Cross, who treated the soldier immediately on his return home from the Army, states in his affidavit:

"Was called to treat the soldier immediately on his return home from the Army, the date of which he does not recollect: that he found him suffering from chronic diarrhea of an obstinate character. His blood was in a very low condition, with lungs strongly sympathizing with the disease in the stomach and alimentary canal, the lung trouble finally culminating in a severe cough of a spasmodic character, the blood being in a low condition, composed in a large proportion of serum and lacking red globules. The excitement in lungs during the spasmodic cough determined the blood to the lungs and brought on hæmoptesis, or hemorrhage of lungs.

"These conditions often recurring so prostrated the system that nature could not sustain itself nor even the best medical aid overcome the debility. Thus prostrated, ere long the vital spark had fled, and in all probability the exciting cause was chronic diarrhea contracted in the Army."

The committee, after considering all the evidence in the case are, of the opinion that it is a very just and meritorious case, and recommend the passage of the bill with the following amendment: After the word "volunteers," in line 7, insert "and of Company E, One hundred and twenty-eighth Ohio Infantry Volunteers."

The amendment recommended by the committee was agreed to.

The bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

ROSANNA ROBEY.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 4491) granting a pension to Rosanna Robey.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Rosanna Robey, widow of Phineas S. Robey, deceased, late of Company L, Third Wisconsin Cavalry Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. THOMPSON, of California) was read, as follows:

Rosanna Robey is the widow of Phineas S. Robey, who served as private (unassigned) in the Third Regiment Wisconsin Cavalry, and died July 30, 1875. The soldier while in service received serious injuries while breaking in horses, for which he was pensioned. His disabilities for which he was pensioned are described as follows by the examining surgeon: "Left testicle disorganized and absorbed. The right testicle is hypertrophied and painful. Is obliged to wear a suspensory bandage night and day. The left knee was fractured. Has shortening of about an inch of left leg. Suffers constantly with chronic synovitis."

The widow's claim was rejected by the Pension Office on the ground that the soldier's fatal disease, typhoid fever, was not chargeable to his army service. This action was based upon the testimony of Dr. W. A. Hughson, who was called in the case but a short time before the soldier's death. He states that the disease at time of death was typhoid fever, which proved fatal from the utter lack of reactionary power in his system. In so far as his nervous power was concerned he was entirely paralyzed, it being utterly impossible to arouse any action, even with artificial aid. Knee of left limb deformed, the result of a violent bruise. Both testicles injured, especially the left. In the scrotum an abnormal excrescent growth necessitated the use of suspending apparatus. The brain and spinal cord were also so far injured that an impairment of intellect and a degree of general paralysis resulted. The type of the fever in the beginning was mild and should in an ordinary case have resulted in no evil, but was rendered fatal by the previous condition of the patient.

It is also shown that for some time before the fatal attack soldier became so entirely disabled, by reason of the injuries received in service, that he required the regular aid and attendance of another person.

While it may be true that the immediate cause of the soldier's death was typhoid fever, yet the wretched condition of the soldier, due to his military service, must necessarily have entered so largely into the fatal result, that it should not be ignored in the consideration of the widow's title to pension. He could have survived but a short time had not his already pitiable condition been complicated with this acute disease.

Believing that the relief asked for should be granted, your committee report favorably on accompanying bill and ask that it do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

CATHARINE BLACK.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 3554) granting a pension to Catharine Black.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Catharine Black, widow of Patrick W. Black, deceased, late a first lieutenant in Company F, Ninth Massachusetts Volunteers, also captain of Company B, Twenty-eighth Massachusetts Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. THOMPSON, of California) was read, as follows:

Claimant is the widow of Patrick W. Black, who died of disease of lungs November 7, 1881. The soldier entered the service as commissary-sergeant of the Ninth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers June, 1861; was promoted to second lieutenant of Company B, same regiment, August 26, 1861; to captain, same company, October 20, 1862, and honorably discharged July 28, 1863. He again entered the service as private in Company I, Twenty-eighth Massachusetts Volunteers, March 29, 1864, and was promoted to second lieutenant April 10, 1864; to first lieutenant June 5, 1864, and to captain November 22, 1864; was finally mustered out July 22, 1865. For conspicuous gallantry in the engagement near Boydton Plank road, for efficient services on all subsequent occasions, and for particularly meritorious services during the campaign terminating with the surrender of Lee's army he was brevetted major by the President. He was a pensioner on account of gunshot wound of right hand.

The widow's claim has been rejected because, in the opinion of the Pension Office, the evidence is insufficient to connect the death cause with the service.

The evidence in the case shows beyond a doubt that after the officer's return from a four-months' confinement in a Southern prison, in 1862, he suffered from diarrhea and dyspepsia, and continued to suffer therefrom during the remainder of his service. It is also shown that in July, 1864, he received a contused wound in the region of the left kidney, on account of which he was granted leave of absence. From the testimony of fellow officers it appears that Captain Black was frequently under medical treatment by the regimental surgeon for malarial troubles, chronic diarrhea, and dyspepsia, and that he frequently became prostrated from the combined effects of these diseases during the campaigns of 1862 and 1863.

The physical condition of this officer, from date of discharge until 1871, is shown by lay testimony only, as the attending physician during that period is dead.

Dr. Wiley comes in the case in 1871. He testifies that he became the officer's family physician in that year, and continued to be such until his death, in 1881. Captain Black's health during that period was very poor. He suffered from chronic diarrhea, aggravated dyspepsia, and cough. This terminated in phthisis pulmonalis, of which he died.

The long and faithful services of Captain Black, together with the acknowledged incurrence of diseases in the Army, and the well-established connection between the same and the cause of his death, afford ample ground to your committee for the favorable consideration of the claim of his widow, who is without means and dependent upon her own effort for the support of herself and two minor children, and therefore return the accompanying bill with the recommendation that it do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

HENRY H. STUTSMAN.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (H. R. 680) granting a pension to Henry H. Stutsman.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry H. Stutsman, late of Company F, Thirteenth Regiment Iowa Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. THOMPSON, of California) was read, as follows:

Stutsman enlisted in Company F, Thirteenth Iowa Volunteers, October 21, 1861, and was discharged June 11, 1862, for disability. He applied for pension May 2, 1878, on account of injury, or, as he terms it, rupture of left side. The claim has been rejected by the Pension Office because of the insufficiency of the evidence to show origin in the service.

Claimant alleges that while stationed at Jefferson City, Mo., about February 10, 1862, he was ruptured in left side while helping a sick man, who fainted and fell upon him.

In corroboration of this allegation there has been filed the following testimony:

Dr. Sylvester G. Matsen, of Anamosa, Iowa, testifies, in 1878, that he has been a practicing physician for forty-five years; has known the soldier from childhood, and was his father's family physician for many years. Considered soldier sound at enlistment; if otherwise, would have known it.

Dr. E. H. Lockwood testifies that he was intimately acquainted with the claimant for fifteen years prior to his enlistment were together most of the time, and knows that he was physically sound when he entered the Army.

Comrade Oliver Brundidge testifies that claimant was taking care of one of the sick, and while helping him to the door the man fainted and fell with claimant, the latter striking his left side upon a stick that was driven in the ground. Complained of his side and was shortly thereafter sent home on furlough. The record of the War Department does show that claimant was sent home on furlough February 10, 1862, to return March 12, 1862.

Neighbors testify that upon his return home on furlough claimant was suffering from an injury to left side, and came under treatment of Dr. Stone, now deceased.

Although the record shows that claimant was discharged on account of disability, there is no certificate of disability on file, and is, therefore, without fault on his part, deprived of what corroborative record evidence there should be available.

Medical examination shows a well-defined tumor about 3 inches in diameter, immediately above the anterior portion of crest of left ilium, which disappears when assuming a recumbent position, but reappears when erect. It is probably due to rupture of the abdominal muscles.

The witnesses in the case are shown to be competent and credible. There is nothing in the whole history of the case in any way inconsistent with claimant's allegations, and while the evidence may not be conclusive enough to warrant favorable action under the rules of the Pension Office, yet your committee believe that the claim is meritorious, and therefore report favorably on the accompanying bill and ask that it do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

HELEN M. RANDOLPH.

The next business on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 1354) granting a pension to Helen Randolph.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Helen M. Randolph, widow of John Randolph, late of Company I, Thirty-fourth Regiment New York Volunteers, and of Company G, One hundred and eighty-ninth Regiment New York Volunteers.

The report (by Mr. THOMPSON, of California) was read, as follows:

The Senate Committee on Pensions have made the following report in the case:

"The claimant, Helen M. Randolph, is the widow of John S. Randolph, who enlisted June 15, 1861, in Company I, Thirty-fourth New York Volunteers, and served until June 30, 1863, and re-enlisted August 27, 1864, in Company G, One hundred and eighty-ninth New York Volunteers, serving until May 30, 1865. The soldier was allowed a pension of $4 a month for chronic diarrhea, and died January 3, 1883. The claim of Helen M. Randolph, as his widow, was rejected by the Pension Office on the ground that the cause of death (typhoid pneumonia) was not a result of his service.

"The official records of the War Department show that the soldier was admitted for hospital treatment November 23, 1862, on account of 'debility' and 'chronic diarrhea,' and continued in hospital until March 24, 1863.

"Edwin A. Draper, first lieutenant of the company to which Randolph was assigned at his second enlistment, testifies that Randolph, whom he knew well, about the 12th of December, 1864, at the time of the raid on the Weldon Railroad, took a severe cold, caused by wet and exposure and marching through water and sleet for several days, which settled on his lungs and induced a severe cough and soreness of the lungs. This condition became chronic and disabled him for duty a considerable portion of the time.

"Dr. S. R. Abram testifies that he knew Randolph from boyhood; that he was rosy-cheeked and healthy at enlistment, but that at his discharge he was thin and haggard and suffering from lung disease, and that whenever he talked with the soldier about his ill health Randolph always attributed it to the service. This evidence is corroborated by several other witnesses.

"Dr. Rogers, who attended Randolph during his last illness, says he thinks that the chronic diarrhea seriously complicated the case and contributed toward the fatal result.

"The soldier, until his death, was a respected preacher of the gospel, and he leaves a wife and six children. He enlisted early in the war, and served most of the time until the close, and was a good soldier. It is but a reasonable conclusion from the evidence that he died of disease contracted in that service."

It may be proper to add to the foregoing report that there is on file, in addition to the testimony therein set forth, the testimony of comrades and neighbors showing beyond any doubt that soldier's lungs became diseased in the service and that he was a constant sufferer therefrom until the fatal attack of pneumonia. The exact physical condition of the soldier prior thereto is not satisfactorily shown by medical evidence, as he was not examined by the Pension Office surgeons. The rate of pension for chronic diarrhea in the absence of such examination was necessarily an arbitrary one, as it must be under those circumstances.

Accepting the fact that the soldier was, in addition to chronic diarrhea, affected with disease of lungs of nearly twenty years' standing, your committee can readily see the connection between the fatal disease and the diseases originating in the service, and therefore report favorably in the case, and ask that the accompanying bill do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

JAMES COEY.

The next pension bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 1413) to increase the pension of James Coey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he hereby is, authorized to increase the pension of James Coey, late major of the One hundred and forty-seventh Regiment of New York Volunteers, and pay him at the rate of $60 per month in lieu of the pension now paid to him.

The committee reported the bill with an amendment, striking out "$60" and inserting "$45."

The report (by Mr. THOMPSON, of Californi..) was read in part, and is as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1413) to increase the pension of James Coey, have had the same under consideration, and beg leave to submit the following report:

The report of the Senate committee is as follows:

"The military record of James Coey shows that he enlisted August 21, 1862, in Company E, One hundred and forty-seventh Regiment, New York Volunteers; was commissioned first lieutenant October 4, 1862; captain, February 24, 1863; major, October 28, 1864; lieutenant-colonel, November 15, 1864, but not mustered, the regiment being below minimum; lieutenant-colonel by brevet, March 13, 1865, 'for conspicuous gallantry in the battles of the Wilderness and at Laurel Hill, Va.;' colonel by brevet April 9, 1865, 'for gallant and meritorious services during the war and in the recent campaigns terminating with the surrender of the insurgent army under General Robert E. Lee.' He was severely wounded in the leg at Laurel Hill, Va., and at Hatcher's Run, Va.; on February 6, 1865, he was terribly wounded in the head. It was on account of the last wound that he was pensioned from June 7, 1865, at $25 per month, which was increased to $30 per month from August, 1886, the increase being for the original disability and resulting diseases—total deafness of right ear, facial paralysis, and loss of sense of smell.

"The bill under consideration provides for an increase of pension to $60 per month. The claimant's disability, in substance corresponding with the technical medical description, is: gunshot wound through the head, the ball entering below the left eye near the nose, and passing out through the right side of the head, under the right ear. Subsequently a small piece of the ball passed out of the right ear. He has lost the use of hearing in the right ear entirely, and is suffering, and has been for the last four years, from a discharge from the right ear. Further, that he is suffering from paralysis of the entire right side of the face; the eyelid of right eye is completely paralyzed, and does not perform its usual function of protection to the eye, and thus the sight of the right eye is much impaired and is constantly growing weaker, and the sense of smell is entirely lost. Memory is also impaired, and capacity for mental labor.

"There is no question about the extent of disability as above stated; nor that it is permanent, and of a character that will increase with years; nor that the complication of troubles now affecting claimant is directly resultant from his wounds received in service.

"Your committee deem the case so plain and meritorious that they recommend the passage of the bill."

The pension now received by this officer, though all to which he is entitled under the general pension laws, is entirely inadequate with the degree of disability from the combined effect of the severe wounds received on the field of battle, and relief should be granted him by Congress. The amount of increase proposed in the bill is, however, above that granted in similar cases, and following a well-established rule of this committee we recommend that the bill be amended by striking out the word "sixty," in line 4, and inserting therein instead the words "forty-five," and thus amended ask that it do pass.

Mr. MORRILL. The report recommends an amendment making the pension $45 a month in place of $60.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

M. T. LINDSEY.

The next pension bill on the Private Calendar was the bill (S. 703) granting a pension to M. T. Lindsey, of Oregon.

Mr. MORRILL. In this case, although it does not so appear on the Calendar, there is an adverse report. I ask that the bill be reported back to the House with the recommendation that it be indefinitely postponed.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. CHIPMAN. I wish to say on behalf of the Committee on Invalid Pensions that we have no objection to unanimous consent being given to the gentlemen present who want to call up their bills.

GENERAL W. E. WOODRUFF.

Mr. CARUTH. I ask unanimous consent to call up for present consideration the bill (H R. 335) granting a pension to General W. E. Woodruff.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior, in recognition of meritorious service, is hereby authorized and directed to place the name of General W. E. Woodruff, of Kentucky, on the pension-roll, at the rate of $25 per month.

The report (by Mr. HUNTER) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 335) granting a pension to General W. E. Woodruff, submit the following report:

The committee recommend the passage of this bill.

General W. E. Woodruff was a soldier in the Mexican war. He was one of the first Kentuckians to respond to President Lincoln's call for troops at the outbreak of the civil war. He was the organizer and drill-master of both the First and Second Kentucky Regiments, and rendered great service in keeping his State in the Union. He was captured early in the war, and was one of the first prisoners confined in the Libby prison at Richmond. He was one of the five Union officers who were held as hostages and sentenced to death in the event of the execution of certain Confederates who were confined at Philadelphia as pirates.

The gallows on which he was to be hung was constructed and was erected in sight of his window. He was thus held four months under death-sentence, in full view of the scaffold: until the United States Government agreed to treat the Philadelphia prisoners as prisoners of war. Whilst on duty in West Virginia he was thrown from his horse and suffered internal injuries from which he has never recovered. General Woodruff was a brave and gallant officer, and has suffered greatly for his devotion to the Union cause. He is now over sixty years of age, infirm, and without resources.

Your committee think the modest sum of $25 a month asked by him should be cheerfully allowed.

Mr. CARUTH. I desire to offer an amendment to the bill, to strike out "$25" and insert "$50."

Several MEMBERS. Oh, no!

Mr. CARUTH. I think the statement of the case as made by the committee in the report shows that General Woodruff deserves the amount I have named, and on consultation with some of the gentlemen present I offer that amendment.

Mr. MORRILL. Has General Woodruff ever applied to the Pension Office for this pension?

Mr. CARUTH. Not that I know of. The facts are set forth in the report.

Mr. MORRILL. It is a dangerous precedent to establish to put a man on the pension-roll at $50 a month who has never applied for a pension.

Mr. CARUTH. If members had paid attention to the reading of the report they would have learned the fact that this man lay for four months in sight of a gallows erected to hang him if certain persons in Philadelphia were executed. He was the second man of the Union officers to cross the threshold of Libby prison. I think, in view of the facts stated in the report, there is not a gentleman here who will object to my amendment.

General Woodruff is over sixty years of age. He is infirm and in destitute circumstances, as I personally know, and he ought to have this money from the Government, which should recognize meritorious services such as were rendered by him. The committee originally recommended a pension of $25 and have reported that amount, but after consultation with a number of members I offer this amendment to increase the pension to $50. I do not think you can pay such a man too large a pension.

A MEMBER. What was his rank?

Mr. CARUTH. He was a brigadier-general. He was one of the first men from Kentucky to place himself in the Union Army. All the members from Kentucky know the facts which I have stated.

The amendment was agreed to, and the bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

WILLIAM O. DOYEL.

Mr. HUNTER. I call up for consideration the bill (H. R. 7476) granting a pension to William O. Doyel.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William O. Doyel, dependent son of Richard G. Doyel, late a private in Company C, Twenty-third Regiment of Kentucky Volunteers, said pension to date from January 1, 1888.

The committee reported the bill with the following amendment:

Strike out the words "said pension to date from January 1, 1888," and insert in lieu thereof "and pay him a pension of $18 per month."

The report (by Mr. HUNTER) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 7476) granting a pension to William O. Doyel, submit the following:

William O. Doyel is a resident of Mammoth Cave, Edmonson County, Kentucky, and is a son of Richard G. Doyel, late a private in Company C, Twenty-third Regiment of Kentucky Volunteers, who died in the Army during the year 1864.

The claimant was born in 1864, and has been a helpless cripple since his birth. He has lateral curvature of the spine, with complete paralysis of the lower extremities, and great wasting away of soft parts of the same, rendering him thereby helpless and necessitating the constant aid and attendance of another. He is a physical wreck, and his life under the circumstances can not be long. He is in destitute circumstances, and unless relief is obtained he must of necessity become a county charge.

The case appeals strongly to the generosity of Congress, and it is to be hoped that a prosperous Government, blessed with a plethoric Treasury, will not permit the son of a gallant soldier who fell in her defense to seek refuge in an almshouse or be found begging for bread.

The committee therefore make this favorable report, with the following amendment, and recommend the passage of the bill:

Strike out all after the word "volunteers," in the eighth line, and insert the words "and pay him a pension of $18 per month."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HUNTER. I desire to substitute for the House bill the Senate bill, which is exactly the same.

There being no objection, the bill S. 2067, which was identical with the House bill as amended, was ordered to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass; and the bill H. R. 7476 with the recommendation that it do lie on the table.

FRANCIS DANIELS.

Mr. GREENMAN. I call up for consideration the bill (H. R. 2664) for the relief of Francis Daniels.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Francis Daniels, of Cropseyville, N. Y., late a private in Company H, One hundred and twenty-fifth Regiment of New York Volunteers, at the rate of — per month commencing at the date of his discharge on the 11th day of May, 1863.

The committee recommended that the bill be amended by striking out all after the words "New York Volunteers."

The report (by Mr. SAWYER) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 2664) for the relief of Francis Daniels, submit the following report:

That from the papers on file in the Pension Office it appears that the soldier enlisted August 14, 1862, at Troy, N. Y., and joined his company, then in Camp Halleck, near Troy aforesaid. That within a week or ten days after his enlistment he was taken sick in camp. Before the company started to the front he was permitted to return home on account of his sickness, where he remained until the following spring, April 13, 1863, when he rejoined his regiment, then at Alexandria, Va. He was absent at home when his company was mustered into service. The next day, April 14, 1863, he was sent to King Street General Hospital at Alexandria, with hypertrophy of heart, and discharged therefrom May 13, 1863. No records of the regiment on file bearing upon the case. His certificate of discharge, dated May 16, 1863, made by the assistant surgeon of the United States Army, states "disease developed before enlistment; has never done any duty; was enlisted for three years, but never mustered in service" and "incapable of performing the duties of a soldier because of valvular disease of heart and hypertrophy."

The soldier made application for pension June 12, 1880, claiming a pension for disabilities resulting from bilious fever, diarrhea, and heart disease, which was rejected on the ground that the disabilities did not arise in the service.

The fact that the soldier was sick during nearly his whole service and soon became totally unable to perform the duties of a soldier, and that he has since remained unable to perform manual labor seems to be undisputed.

A bill was introduced in the Forty-eighth Congress for his relief and an unfavorable report made thereon by the Committee on Invalid Pensions, but no further action was had thereon.

The point seems to be, when did the cause of the disability originate? The United States assistant surgeon states "disease developed before enlistment."

Then we have the facts concerning his being taken sick and the continuation thereof.

On the other side, we have the affidavit of Dr. William S. Cooper, who states that he was late surgeon of the One hundred and twenty-fifth Regiment New York Volunteers, the soldier's regiment:

"That on the 14th day of August, 1862, he examined Francis Daniels, private in Company H, One hundred and twenty-fifth New York Volunteers, and found him to be a sound man and free from heart disease. Further, if he had heart disease detectable by ordinary methods of diagnosis, affiant would have ascertained its existence."

The evidence of a number of witnesses shows that soldier's father carried on a saw-mill and turning shop, where the soldier worked before his enlistment, and there are on file the affidavits of several persons who had known the soldier from his boyhood down to his enlistment, and saw him with other boys running and jumping, lifting and carrying heavy logs and planks while at work, and that they never knew or heard of any heart difficulty or other disease or difficulty, but that they always regarded him as entirely sound and healthy.

The affidavits of his mother and brother are to the same effect.

There have been filed with the committee since the introduction of this bill the affidavits of four persons, whose character and credibility are fully indorsed, showing that the soldier, previously sound and healthy, was taken sick in the camp at Troy, N. Y., with the bilious fever, and was taken home and there remained until he had sufficiently recovered to rejoin his regiment, the mother stating that the soldier, up to the time of his enlistment, had never been sick or required the attendance of a physician.

The committee can but believe that while the soldier was extremely unfortunate in his military service, he was a sound and healthy man at the time of his enlistment, and for that reason entitled to the relief granted by this bill, and they therefore recommend that the bill do pass with an amendment striking out after the word "Volunteers," in the eighth line thereof.

The amendment was agreed to; and the bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

NELLIE PALFREY GOODWIN.

Mr. GALLINGER, by unanimous consent, called up the bill (H. R. 7913) granting a pension to Nellie Palfrey Goodwin.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll the name of Nellie Palfrey Goodwin, the invalid, dependent, and pauper daughter of William H. Goodwin, late of Company K, Second New Hampshire Volunteers, at the rate of $18 per month, payable to her legally constituted guardian.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. Chairman, as the report is pretty long, and as the case is one in the line of precedents that we have established, if the committee will bear with me I will make a brief statement covering all the essential points. The father of this girl was wounded twice at the first battle of Bull Run, and again, very severely, at the second battle of Bull Run. After leaving the service he had to use crutches to get about, and he died in consequence of the injuries received in that battle. He never applied for nor drew a pension. This child, at the age of two years, fell from a window and was injured so severely that ever since she has been partially paralyzed. She is without relatives able to support her, and for two years past she has been an inmate of the almshouse at Tewksbury, Mass. The bill simply provides that she shall be cared for as other children of soldiers have been cared for by Congress under like circumstances, and I think there will be no objection to it. I ask that the report be printed in the RECORD.

The report (by Mr. GALLINGER) is as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 7913) granting a pension to Nellie Palfrey Goodwin, having considered the same, beg leave to report as follows:

Nellie Palfrey Goodwin is the invalid and dependent daughter of William H. Goodwin, late of Company K, Second New Hampshire Volunteers. A petition, signed by Charles A. Currier, of Chelsea, Mass., and Margaret Sunderland Cooper, of Concord, N. H.; the certificates of A. D. Ayling, adjutant-general of the State of New Hampshire, and of Capt. William O. Sides, of Portsmouth, N. H., showing the military service of the soldier; and the certificate of C. Irving Fisher, M. D., superintendent of the State almshouse at Tewksbury, Mass., setting forth the fact that claimant is an inmate of that institution, show so clearly the status and justice of this claim that they are herewith appended:

"To the honorable Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled:

"The undersigned, your petitioners, respectfully represent that Nellie Palfrey Goodwin, a daughter of the late William H. Goodwin, formerly a private in Company H, Second New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, is, and for a long time has been, an inmate of the State almshouse at Tewksbury, Mass.

"That she is about twenty-nine years of age, and in consequence of injuries received in infancy (by falling from a window at Portsmouth, N. H.), is physically incapacitated from obtaining a livelihood; that she has no relatives from whom she can claim support.

"That her father, the said William H. Goodwin, served in the above-named company and regiment, on the quota of Portsmouth, N. H.; that while in line of duty with his company and regiment, at Bull Run, Va., July 21, 1861, he received a slight wound, a particular description of which is unknown to your petitioners.

"That while in line of duty with his company and regiment, at Bull Run, Va., August 30, 1862, he suffered severe wounds of the ankle and hip, which ever afterward disqualified him for duty as a soldier; that the official record shows him to have been in consequence discharged on the 21st day May, 1863; that he was never afterward able to perform manual labor, and only with the greatest difficulty could he get about, even with the aid of crutches; that he never received from the Government a pension or other remuneration on account of his wounds received in line of duty as a soldier; that on or about the month of August, 1865, while sailing near Portsmouth, N. H., his boat was upset; that three persons who were with him at the time were able to save themselves, but having no use of his lower limbs, the said Goodwin was then and there drowned.

"We therefore respectfully petition that such legislation may be had as shall provide for the said Nellie Palfrey Goodwin a proper home outside the walls of a pauper institution, and as in duty bound will ever pray.

"CHAS. A. CURRIER,
"Chelsea, Mass., late Captain Fortieth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry.
"MARGARET SUNDERLAND COOPER,
"Concord, N. H., Widow of Lieut. Col. J. D. Cooper,
"Second New Hampshire Regiment.

"BOSTON, MASS., February 24, 1888."

"STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
"Concord, January 25, 1887.

"I certify that the official records of this office show that William H. Goodwin enlisted on the 21st day of May, 1861, and was mustered into the service of the United States as a private in Company K, Second Regiment Infantry, New Hampshire Volunteers, on the 8th day of June, 1861, for the period of three years.

"He is also officially reported as discharged May 21, 1863, Medical Department, Philadelphia, Pa.

"A. D. AYLING,
"Adjutant-General."

"I William O. Sides, of Portsmouth, county of Rockingham, and State of New Hampshire, on oath depose, declare, and say that I enlisted William H. Goodwin as a private in Company K, Second Regiment New Hampshire Volunteers, and that he was mustered into the service of the United States on the 8th day of June, 1861.

"WILLIAM O. SIDES,
"Late Captain Company K, Second Regiment New Hampshire Volunteers.

"Sworn to before me this 21st January, 1887.

"JOHN ALBEE,
"Justice Peace and Commissioner for New Hampshire.

"STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE,
"Rockingham, ss:

"Then personally appeared before me the aforesaid William O. Sides and made oath that the said affidavit by him signed is the truth. I have no interest in the claim to which said affidavit pertains.

"[SEAL.] WILLIAM H. HACKETT,
"Clerk Circuit Court United States, District of New Hampshire."

"STATE ALMSHOUSE, Tewksbury, February 24, 1888.

"To whom it may concern:

"This is to certify that Nellie Goodwin, twenty-seven years old, born in Portsmouth, N. H., was admitted to this institution from Chelsea, Mass., September 27, 1886, and is still an inmate here.

"C. IRVING FISHER, M. D.,
"Superintendent."

Certain facts are indisputably shown in this case by the above documents and other papers filed with your committee. It conclusively appears that the soldier was severely wounded in the military service, and lost his life in direct consequence of his wounds; that the daughter, at the early age of two years, fell from a window and injured herself for life, partial paralysis resulting from the fall; that she is not only an orphan, but also without relatives who can care for her, and that for nearly two years she has been an inmate of the State almshouse, Tewksbury, Mass., clothed in the garb of the inmates of a pauper institution, most of her companions being representatives of the most degraded classes.

It is not necessary to argue this case. Surrounded with the blessings of peace secured at the sacrifice of so many of its sons, the Congress of the nation will not hesitate to throw the ægis of its protecting arms around this neglected and suffering child of a Union soldier, especially as there are many precedents for the beneficent legislation asked for in this case.

Your committee report the bill favorably, with a recommendation that it do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

WILLIAM SACKMAN.

Mr. WALKER, by unanimous consent, called up the bill (S. 465) granting a pension to William Sackman, sr.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Sackman, sr., late a private in Company K, Fifth Regiment Missouri State Militia Cavalry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Chairman, as the report in this case is rather long, I suggest that its reading be dispensed with, and that it be printed in the RECORD. The bill has passed the Senate and the case is a good strong one. I trust there will be no objection to the bill.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

The report (by Mr. WALKER) is as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 465) granting a pension to William Sackman, sr., submit the following report:

Your committee adopt the report of the Senate committee, which is as follows, and recommend the passage of the bill:

"The claimant enlisted as a private in Company K, Fifth Regiment Missouri Militia Cavalry, on the 24th of December, 1861, to serve during the war in Missouri, and was discharged on the 29th of February, 1864. His declaration for a pension was filed July 1, 1881, claiming that 'at Fredericktown, Mo., about the 10th or 12th of April, 1863, he had three ribs broken by falling from his horse while surrounded by the guerrillas.'

"The claim was rejected by the Pension Bureau April 9, 1883, upon the ground 'that the record evidence shows that the alleged disability was not incurred in the line of duty.'

"The records of the Adjutant-General's Office show the petitioner present April 10, 1863. Absent sick at hospital until October 31, 1863. Present January and February, 1864. Nature of sickness not stated. No evidence by the record of the injury complained of.

"The discharge for disability shows—

"'Palpitation of the heart and defective lungs, the disability caused by falling off his horse near Fredericktown, Mo., while intoxicated, on detached service in the month of September, 1862. Not having done any duty since, a discharge would benefit the Government and himself.'

"The assistant and acting surgeon certifies the disability to consist of—

"'Hypertrophy with dilatation of left side of heart. The disease, in this case, has been produced by sexual indulgence and excessive use of intoxicating liquors.'

"The surgeon who attached the certificate to the discharge for disability, in reply to a letter from the Commissioner of Pensions, under date of November 21, 1885, says:

"'I have to state that I remember the case very distinctly. I made the examination in person, and was thoroughly acquainted with the case. I read the statement on which the application for discharge was based to the man, and he consented to have the papers forwarded as they read. The application for pension is fraudulent and should not be allowed. The excessive venery alluded to was in part masturbation.'

"Upon this evidence the Pension Bureau rejected the claim and declined to reconsider its decision, notwithstanding the affidavits filed by the petitioner, as follows:

"'Henry Markwort, on the 27th day of December, 1883, made oath that "he knew claimant, William Sackman, sr., in the year 1860, and also ever since, and knew him while he was a member of the above-named organization with affiant, and the said claimant was, during all that time, of sober habits and of virtuous disposition, and affiant never saw him in a state of intoxication, * * * and was never, to his knowledge, guilty of sexual indulgence, but that he was a good soldier and bore a good name for morality."'

"Frederick Lauderman, Christian Pape, Deiderich Klingman, Henry Thiessen, and John Haslauer, on the 26th day of September, 1883, made oath 'that they were members of the above-named organization, and that they well knew the claimant herein, William Sackman, sr., prior to his enlistment and during his service in said organization, and ever since he was discharged from the service of the United States, and that said William Sackman was a good soldier and bore a good character always for sobriety and moral habits, and that he was never guilty of the charge of being intoxicated or indulging in the excessive use of intoxicating liquors nor of sexual indulgence.'

"Henry Thiessen and William Braus, on the 11th day of June, 1883, made oath 'that they were members of the organization aforesaid, and that they well knew William Sackman, sr., the claimant herein, and that in the organization aforesaid in the line of duty, being on detached service at the time, the said Henry Thiessen being a corporal at that time in command of said detachment, and the said William Braus also a member of said detachment, and that while so detached for the purpose of guarding one of their company to his home, the horse claimant was riding took fright and ran off with him, thereby injuring said claimant so that he could not arise nor get on to his horse without assistance. That the post surgeon furnished a certificate to the said corporal in regard of the inability of said William Sackman, sr., to be carried back to his command.'

"William Wolfeckiller, on the 17th of September, 1883, made oath 'that the said petitioner, while on duty on the march from Pilot Knob to Cape Girardeau, in the year 1862 or 1863, was thrown from his horse and seriously injured; that he was not intoxicated at that time; that he served with the said petitioner in the same company about three years, and that the said petitioner was free from sexual indulgence and the excessive use of intoxicating liquors.'

"William Northropt, on the 17th day of September, 1883, made oath 'that he was first sergeant of Company D, Twelfth Regiment Missouri State Militia Cavalry, and knew petitioner to be a sober man and never saw him intoxicated or indulging in any bad habits. The record showing that the petitioner indulged in the excessive use of intoxicating liquors or sexual indulgence is false.'

"G. H. Cramer, mayor of Cape Girardeau, where the petitioner resides, on the 12th day of February, 1884, made oath as follows: 'I have known said petitioner and have been well acquainted with him ever since about the year 1854, while he was, as he is yet, a citizen of Cape Girardeau. I have never heard or seen anything derogatory to his moral character, and I believe he is considered generally as an honorable and virtuous man.'

"On June 28, 1882, Fred. B. Schultz, examining surgeon of the Pension Office, examined the petitioner and certified: 'The disability is a fracture of three ribs on the left side.'

"The evidence above quoted fully sustains that of the petitioner, that while in the service and in the line of duty he was thrown from his horse and seriously injured. This appears on the face of the certificate of discharge for disability. The records of the Adjutant-General's Department, as well as the Surgeon-General's, tends to sustain this view of the case. The certificate of the examing surgeon of the Pension Bureau confirms the claim of the petitioner in the declaration for a pension. Does the evidence justify the conclusion reached by the Pension Bureau that at the time of the injury he was not in the line of duty, or that it occurred while he was intoxicated, or that his disability at present is the result of excessive sexual indulgence or the improper use of stimulants?

"The committee is of opinion that the certificate of discharge and the evidence of his comrades conclusively show that the injury, happening to him by the falling from his horse, near Fredericktown, Mo., was while in the line of duty, and that at the time he was performing services under the orders of his superior officer.

"Was he intoxicated at the time the injury occurred?

"The only evidence to sustain that allegation is the statement embodied in the discharge for disability signed by his captain. This is contradicted by the oath of the petitioner, as well as the testimony of two of his comrades, who were present and had personal knowledge of the fact, and the corroborating evidence of a number of his comrades, who testify to his sober habits. This view is further strengthened by the affidavit of the mayor of the city in which he lives, who testifies to his moral character.

"Was his disability the result of sexual indulgence or the excessive use of liquor?

"The testimony upon these questions is full and satisfactory. The numerous affidavits filed overthrow even the suspicion that his disability is the result of either cause assigned; and the certificate of the examining surgeon of the Pension Bureau, that 'the disability is the result of the fracture of three ribs on the left side,' in the absence of all other evidence, should be conclusive on this point.

"In the opinion of the committee the claim of the petitioner for a pension should be sustained. The bill is therefore reported favorably, with the recommendation that it do pass."

ALOURED H. GREGORY.

Mr. GROUT, by unanimous consent, called up the bill (H. R. 5311) granting a pension to Aloured H. Gregory.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby directed to place upon the pension-roll, subject to the limitations and restrictions of the pension laws, the name of Aloured H. Gregory, of Company G, Fifteenth Regiment, Vermont Volunteers.

The Committee on Invalid Pensions recommended amendments striking out the name "Aloured," in line 5, and inserting "Alonzo," striking out "G," in line 6, and inserting "H," and amending the title so as to read; "A bill granting a pension to Alonzo H. Gregory."

The report (by Mr. GALLINGER) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R 5311) granting a pension to Aloured H. Gregory, having considered the same report as follows:

The substantial facts in this case, as gleaned from a mass of papers on file at the Pension Office, are that soldier alleges that on the 7th day of November, 1862, at Fairfax Seminary, Va., while at work on a fort, he sustained an injury which resulted in rupture of the right side. It appears that a few days after the alleged injury soldier was admitted to the regimental hospital, where he remained nearly two months, but the records are imperfect and do not show for what he was treated, and many years afterward the assistant surgeon certifies that he does not think claimant was treated for hernia at the time.

One comrade, who is certified to as a reliable and truthful witness, says:

"Said soldier incurred a rupture in the right groin while at work with me and other soldiers building a new fort. The rupture was incurred while soldier was lifting and pulling to get out some stumps to use in building the fort. I was with said Gregory at the time, and saw the rupture the same day, and know that he went to the hospital for treatment."

Dr. C. R. Keach swears that he knew soldier to be sound at enlistment, and was called to attend him for rupture immediately after he returned from the Army.

The claim was rejected on the ground of insufficient testimony. It appears to your committee, however, that it is made out that soldier was sound at enlistment and had a hernia at discharge, which is pretty conclusive proof that he must have incurred the disability while in the Army.

The bill is therefore reported back favorably, with a recommendation that it do pass, after being amended by substituting the word "Alonzo" for "Aloured" in the fifth line, and also "Company H" for "Company G" in the sixth line, and by substituting the word "Alonzo" for the word "Aloured" in the title of the bill.

The amendments recommended by the committee were agreed to.

The bill as amended was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

ELIZA SHREEVE.

Mr. SHAW, by unanimous consent, called up the bill (H. R. 3735) granting a pension to Eliza Shreeve.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the limitations and provisions of the pension laws, the name of Eliza Shreeve, widow of Alfred T. Shreeve, late of Company A, Sixth Regiment Maryland Volunteer Infantry.

The report (by Mr. LYNCH) is as follows:

Alfred F. Shreeve enlisted August 11, 1862, in Company A, Sixth Maryland Volunteers; was discharged May 14, 1865, on account of gunshot wound of left knee-joint, causing amputation of the thigh at its middle, for which disability he was pensioned at the rate of $24 per month until his death, and died October 24, 1883.

His widow, Eliza Shreeve, filed her declaration January 19, 1884, on the ground that soldier, her husband, died from the effects of the gunshot wound and final amputation of leg. The Pension Department rejected her claim, because there was no evidence on file as to origin of or treatment for consumption, the fatal disease, in service; no medical or other satisfactory evidence showing the existence of said disease at or soon after date of discharge, and none showing the connection between fatal disease and loss of limb, for which said soldier was pensioned.

In support of the client's declaration the following evidence is adduced, and there is none on file to the contrary:

Dr. Billingslea, a reputable physician of Westminster, Md., testifies:

"I was the attending physician upon Alfred F. Shreeve at the date of his death, which occurred October 24, 1883, and he died of consumption, and I believe that the consumption was due to soldier's loss of leg and the sedentary habits thereby enforced."

Dr. H. M. Wilson, of Baltimore, Md., testifies that—

"The presence of pulmonary phthisis, incited, as I think, by exposure during the war, and soldier's inability to take proper exercise by reason of the loss of one limb, were the causes of his death. When I was first consulted by soldier I made special inquiry as to his previous history, sickness, wounds, and general exposure during his military service. The lung sounds indicated incipient phthisis, and its steady development was in no sense a surprise to me. As to its origin I reasoned thus: A young man from an exceptionally healthy country, of good habits, and in robust health, with a good family record, enters the Army, serves in the peninsula, is fearfully wounded, contracts malaria, endures a long hospital confinement, and upon a recovery sufficient to enable him to return home commences to cough, and upon physical exploration the initial stage of consumption is recognized.

"While the loss of the limb of itself and alone did not occasion the lung trouble, it most certainly did enter as an element into the circumstances that lighted up the disease, and I think it was the most potent factor in its rapid progress, in so far as it prevented free exercise in the open air."

Your committee believe that the result arrived at by Dr. Wilson in his analysis of this case is entirely correct, and that the consumption from which the soldier died was the result indirectly of the amputation of his leg. Entertaining this opinion, they think favorably of the bill and recommend its passage.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

HOWARD S. ABBOTT.

Mr. PETERS, by unanimous consent, called up the bill (H. R. 3158) increasing the pension of Howard S. Abbott.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the pension of Howard S. Abbott, certificate 73522, late adjutant of the Seventy-eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, be increased from $17 to $30 per month, the same to be in lieu of the pension he is now receiving.

Mr. PETERS. As the report is somewhat lengthy, with the permission of the committee I will make a brief statement of the case. This soldier was wounded in the head at Champion Hill, and was left on the field for dead. The last examination by a medical board, which was in 1887, declared that the disability was equal to the loss of a hand or a foot, and the committee have reported the bill upon that basis. The case is a very meritorious one. I ask that the report be printed in the RECORD.

The report (by Mr. MORRILL) is as follows:

It appears from the record in this case that the soldier was enrolled on November 1, 1862, and mustered into the service the same day as lieutenant and adjutant Seventy-eighth Regiment of Ohio Volunteers to serve for three years, and was honorably discharged by special order of the War Department from October 14, 1863, on account of wound received at Champion Hill, Mississippi, and has received a pension from date of discharge at the rate of $17 per month. As indicating the severity of his wound your committee copy the report of Colonel Wiles, commanding his regiment, to the Adjutant-General, United States Army:

"HEADQUARTERS SEVENTY-EIGHTH O. V. I.,
"Vicksburg, Miss., September 26, 1863.

"SIR: In accordance with G. O. 100, series of 1862, I have the honor of reporting the name of First Lieut. and Adjt. Howard S. Abbott, Seventy-eighth Regiment Ohio Infantry Volunteers, as having been absent since May 16, 1863, on account of severe wound in head, received May 16, 1863, in engagement at Champion Hills, Mississippi. He has been 'absent with leave' since June 22, 1863, per S. O. 137, Sixteenth Corps Headquarters. There are few hopes of his recovery.

"Very respectfully,
"G. F. WILES,
"Colonel, Commanding Seventy-eighth O. V. I.

"Brig. Gen. L. THOMAS,
"Adjutant-General, U. S. Army."

Claimant filed an application for increase of pension on March 24, 1887, describing his disability and claiming increase "on account of his rate now being unjustly low and disproportionate to his degree of disability." On May 4, 1887, claimant was examined by the board of medical examiners at Larned, Kans., and said board thus describe his injuries:

"The ball seems to have grazed the left temple, and passing downward and backward through the pima at upper margin of tragus and antitragus, and beneath the concha, entered the mastoid portion of the skull immediately back of the ear, and, continuing downward and backward, emerged about three-fourths of an inch from point of entrance back of ear. The bony structure of meatus auditorius externus was fractured, and canal almost entirely closed, making it impossible to explore internal ear. Left ear entirely deaf; can not hear the tick of a watch in close contact. Right normal. Claimant's eyes have a weak, dull, hazy appearance.

"The disability caused by disease of eyes is probably due to injury to optic nerve. Claimant is nervous, uneasy, and restless. Pulse abnormally frequent, quick and irregular. Sees Snellen's 100-foot test type at 30 feet; the 50-foot at 15, and the 30-foot at 9 to 10 feet distant; both eyes about equally affected; nervous system oversensitive; claimant easily startled. This condition due to wound. Tongue clean but pale; lungs, liver, stomach, kidneys, and bladder normal. The disability is equal to the loss of a hand or a foot."

This application for increase was rejected September 5, 1887, because of "no increase."

The bill under consideration proposes to increase claimant's pension to $30 per month. Your committee, accepting the report of the board of medical examiners, made less than a year ago, to be a true statement of claimant's injuries, and that his disability is equivalent "to the loss of a hand or foot," as stated in said report, report the bill back with the recommendation that it do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

JOHN KINNEY.

Mr. SHIVELY, by unanimous consent, called up the bill (H. R. 7882) granting a pension to John Kinney.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll the name of John Kinney, late private Company M, First Regiment Ohio Heavy Artillery, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws.

The report by (Mr. MATSON) is as follows:

John Kinney was enrolled on the 5th day of July, 1863, in Company M, First Regiment Heavy Artillery Ohio Volunteers, and was honorably discharged July 25, 1865.

He applied for pension, alleging disability arising from typhoid fever, small-pox, and double rupture while in line of duty as a member of said company and regiment. The claim was rejected on the ground that there is no record and the best attainable evidence fails to establish origin of alleged double rupture in line of duty, or to show that claimant incurred typhoid fever and small-pox in the service, or that he has suffered since his discharge from any result of said fever or small-pox.

The board of medical examiners report that—

"The general health is good—no debility present. There is a complete inguinal hernia on left side; on right side the inguinal canal is obliterated, and there has evidently been a hernia, but there is none at present, the opening being closed. He wears a truss which retains the hernia perfectly. We find no disability from typhoid fever or small-pox. The rating is based solely on hernia on left side."

There is abundant proof that the claimant was free from rupture or hernia prior to and at the time of his enlistment. The rupture, as appears from the evidence of several comrades, members of the claimant's company, occurred about as follows: The soldier was sick at the time the rupture happened; was excused by the doctor from duty, as he was unable to do duty. Capt. Henry I. Bly wanted claimant to go on guard duty, but he refused to go, and the captain then ordered him lashed to a cannon. He was lashed down to the cannon with his back down and was kept tied in that position for two and three-quarter hours. All the evidence shows this to be the fact, except a letter written by Captain Bly, in which he denies the statement in toto. There is evidence that the captain was an untruthful, vicious, and unreliable man, capable of doing an inhuman act like that he caused to be inflicted on the soldier.

In the opinion of the committee there is not sufficient evidence to establish any disability from typhoid fever or small-pox. The only question before the committee, then, is, was the soldier in line of duty when he received the rupture as set forth? He had disobeyed orders in not going on detail as directed. According to military law he was subject to punishment, but the alleged rupture was not incurred during the interim of disobedience of orders, but was incident to the punishment consequent thereupon. The captain's punishment was inhuman, entirely uncalled-for, and your committee believe that any disability incurred by the claimant while undergoing that punishment is a pensionable disability.

Your committee believe that the claimant ought to receive a pension according to rating for rupture, and therefore recommend the passage of the bill.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

ELIZABETH WARD.

Mr. WADE, by unanimous consent, called up the bill (H. R. 6582) granting a pension to Elizabeth Ward.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elizabeth Ward, wife of Joseph S. Ward, late a private in Company B, Seventy-second Enrolled Missouri Militia.

The report (by Mr. WALKER) is as follows:

Elizabeth Ward is the widow of Joseph S. Ward, late a private in Company B, Seventy-second Enrolled Missouri Militia. A certificate of the adjutant-general of the State of Missouri says:

"Joseph Ward, private Company B, Seventy-second Enrolled Missouri Militia, was enrolled July 30, 1862, and served two hundred and twelve days."

Henry Sullivan, late captain of Forty-sixth Missouri Cavalry, Company K, testifies as follows:

"I was engaged in a fight with rebel bushwhackers near James River, in Stone County, Missouri, November, 1863, I think the 17th day. Lieut. D. S. Pierce, of Company B, Seventy-second Enrolled Missouri Militia, was under my command at the time. I had a squad of five men, composed of men of the Forty-sixth Missouri Cavalry and Seventy-second Enrolled Missouri Militia. Lieutenant Pierce had a squad of nearly twenty men, composed of members of the Forty-sixth Missouri Cavalry and the Seventy-second Enrolled Missouri Militia. During the fight Joseph Ward, of the Seventy-second Enrolled Missouri Militia, Company B, was instantly killed and his body taken home next day and buried."

Dr. Frazier testifies:

"I was practicing medicine in this neighborhood in 1863, and the day after the battle near James River, in Stone County, Missouri, I was sent for to go and attend professionally some of the wounded. After attending to the wounded I went out where the battle had been fought, and saw two men dead. One was Mr. Joseph S. Ward, husband of Elizabeth Ward. He was shot through the head. I think his remains were brought home and buried in the neighborhood. I have known his widow, Elizabeth Ward, and their children since the death of the husband. She still remains a widow, and has raised a family of five children."

Special Order No. 240, issued by Brigadier-General Sanborn, gives substantially the same facts related by Dr. Frazier. It is clear from the evidence before the committee that the soldier was in the service of the United States in line of duty when he lost his life, and that the relief asked for in the bill ought to be granted. Your committee therefore submit a favorable report, and recommend the passage of the bill.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MRS. THEODORA M. PIATT.

Mr. McCREARY. I ask consent for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 2282) to pension Mrs. Theodora M. Piatt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Theodora M. Piatt, widow of Benjamin M. Piatt, late a captain and assistant adjutant-general of United States volunteers.

Mr. PERKINS. The report in this case is long. Perhaps the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. McCREARY] can make an explanation which will avoid the necessity for reading the report.

Mr. McCREARY. I ask that the first paragraph of the report be read, and that the whole report be printed in the RECORD.

The report (by Mr. HUNTER), a part of which was read, is as follows:

Benjamin M. Piatt, husband of Theodora M. Piatt, enlisted in the late war in 1861 as a volunteer, and was appointed assistant adjutant-general with rank of captain in the volunteer army on the 16th of May, 1862; promoted brevet major and major March 2, 1865, and honorably mustered out November 22, 1865. Entered the regular Army as second lieutenant in the Forty-fourth United States Infantry Veteran Reserve Corps, because not able to accept appointment of first lieutenant in the Twenty-fifth Regiment (active); promoted July 2, 1867, first lieutenant by brevet "for gallant and meritorious services in the battle of Chancellorsville," and to captain by brevet "for gallant and meritorious services in the battle of Gettysburgh." Major Piatt seems to have been a great sufferer from a lame leg and general ill-health, and was a great sufferer after he was retired, and finally his mind gave way and in a moment of mental aberration he committed suicide on the 17th day of April, 1885, leaving a large and helpless family.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette contained the following in regard to his death:

"Coroner Garrick yesterday returned the following verdict:

"Benjamin M. Piatt came to his death from a pistol-bullet through the brain, fired from a pistol in his own hand, with suicidal intent, while laboring under a fit of temporary insanity, caused by morbid sensitiveness of wasted opportunities, and constantly brooding over imaginary troubles and financial difficulties."

In his application for retirement we glean the following facts in regard to his disability. He says:

"I have had from my birth a slight lameness in my leg and foot. This lameness never materially disqualified me for active exercise of almost every sort, and until after a long, severe, and extremely debilitating sickness in 1862, my ankle-joint never had the weakness it now has. Upon entering the volunteer army I was able to walk 10 or 15 miles a day without the use or necessity of a cane or any sort of assistance, and I believe I could do the same to-day but for the effects of what I have suffered in the service. I walked at fourteen months old, and was employed in my father's business (farming) as long as I remained at home.

"In the month of July, 1862, at Winchester, Va., I was prostrated by a violent attack of fever, accompanied by severe rheumatism, and was ill from that time until the latter part of August, when, believing myself able to return to duty, and being very anxious to join my brigade commander at Bull Run, I left Alexandria, Va., with a regiment of infantry and a battery of artillery that were under orders to report to General A. S. Piatt, then commanding a brigade in General Sturgis's division. I went with these troops, I think, on the 1st of September, notwithstanding my great weakness and debility, as far as Fairfax Court House, where we met the Army. We remained near Fairfax that night, and I was for many hours exposed to terrible storm of rain that fell that night. The next morning I was very ill, but did not stop until I found General Piatt and reported to him the troops I was conducting. We then went to Fort Corcoran, or near it, and from there, after several days of severe illness and pain, I was sent away on sick leave on account of the relapse caused by the exposure to which I had been subjected in my weak condition.

"I was absent nearly a month and returned again to duty, but was still weak, and suffered much pain in my ankle and leg, and, in fact, in all of my limbs and body, but being a mounted officer I was able to perform the usual routine of duty pertaining to my position.

"At the battle of Gettysburgh my horse was shot under me, and I was considerably bruised by the fall, besides which I received several other slight injuries during the battle that I believe still affect me in the use of my foot. I remained on duty on the field, except as herein mentioned, through 1862, 1863, up to about the 1st of May, 1864, taking part during my field service in ten battles, of which the following is a list: Manassas Gap, Fredericksburgh, Chancellorsville, Beverly Ford, Gettysburgh, Wapping Heights, Auburn, Kelly's Ford, Locust Grove, and Mine Run.

"In the spring of 1864 I was relieved from duty in the Army of the Potomac and assigned to duty on staff of General Rosecrans, Department of Missouri. Having disposed of my horses before leaving the field, I had a good deal of walking to do after going to St. Louis, and instead of being able to walk as I had done before the war, I found the tendons of my leg and foot much contracted, and that I could not walk any considerable distance without both pain and fatigue, almost the entire weight being thrown forward and to one side upon the ball of the little toe, causing the foot to give way under me at every step, just as it does now, or nearly so. The contracting of the tendons and muscles is I think at least an inch.

"The leg has diminished considerably in circumference, and I can scarcely estimate the loss of strength or power; certainly it has not one-fourth the action and strength it had when I entered the volunteer Army, as at that time I could walk more than four times the distance without a cane that I can now with one, and in addition could walk then free from pain, whereas my foot now becomes tired and sore, and besides my leg and foot are both extremely sensitive to the cold, and when thoroughly chilled are almost as powerless as if in a state of paralysis. Believing that I have a just claim to be retired I have submitted this statement. I am now hopelessly lame for life, a condition I believe to be due to my sufferings and labors in the service of my country, in whose behalf I am ready, whenever the necessity may arrive, to lay down my life."

A. Sanders Piatt, late brigadier-general of volunteers, testifies that he has known Benjamin M. Piatt ever since he was seven years old and up to the time of his enlistment in the Army. Prior to that time he was able to walk 10 or 15 miles a day without difficulty, which he often did on hunting and other excursions. He believes the hardships and exposures of active service in the field have disabled and permanently injured the said Benjamin M. Piatt.

Benjamin R. Runkle, brevet colonel, United States Army, testifies to substantially the same state of facts, as does also H. C. Borden. Dr. M. H. Harding, the family physician of the soldier's father, says he has known Major Piatt for twenty-five years, and although always slightly lame from an early period, he was comparatively active in the discharge of his father's business, and before the war of 1861 never used or seemed to need the use of a cane in walking.

F. W. Egan, colonel Fortieth New York State Volunteers, in concluding his report of the battle of Gettysburgh, says of Major Piatt:

"Too much can not be said of this brave and gallant officer; always cool under the most trying circumstances, and by his courage and example he afforded services that were of infinite value in restoring order to my command. When his horse was shot under him he still remained in the van, always by my side, greatly distinguishing himself by noble conduct."

There are a large number of letters from Army officers, generals, colonels, etc., all showing that the soldier was an exceptionally brave and efficient officer.

The following is an extract from official Army Register for January, 1885:

"Retired from active service, Piatt, Benjamin M., 2d July, 1867. Bvt. Capt. July 2, 1867, Disability in line of duty (act August 3, 1861)."

Miss Bell F. Hopkins testifies as follows:

"I have resided in the family of the late Maj. Benjamin M. Piatt for the last ten years or more. He was during all that time an exemplary husband and father, with a heart full of kindly impulses for everybody. He lived one of the purest lives, his habits being without the least irregularity and remote as could be from intemperance in every form. His right leg from hip to foot was perishing away, weakening this limb to such a degree that it was very difficult for him to get about upon it. He could walk but a short distance, say five or six squares, without becoming so fatigued as to be obliged to take a car or other vehicle. The limb was very sensitive, and at times quite painful, and was the source of much annoyance to him, frequently disturbing his usually amiable temper and causing some irritability of speech and mind.

"In the latter part of the year 1884, in passing down one of the stairs at the Gibson House, Cincinnati, he tripped and fell to the bottom, a distance of several feet, striking his forehead, over one of his eyes, on the marble floor. He remained unconscious from about 7 p. m. of that day until the next morning. The fall was a heavy one, as the major weighed over 220 pounds, and the forehead, face, and eye were black. From the effects of the fall he never entirely recovered. The side of his face on which he fell was withering away as a result of the fall, and he showed evident signs of softening of the brain. In my opinion, the fall, which was due to the enfeebled and sensitive limb, striking as he did upon his head, did more to cause the condition of mind which resulted in his death than any or all other causes or agencies. After this fall, and up to the time of his death, he complained of being dizzy and light-headed."

The affidavits of a large number of his neighbors who knew him long and well are to the effect that the major was a man of the highest order of morals, that his conduct was exemplary and strictly temperate, and that he was an ardent advocate of temperance.

He was on the retired-list and had not applied for a pension at the time of his death, and no application to the Pension Office has since been made by his widow, as, owing to the manner of his death, she had no hope that an application would be favorably acted upon, and she therefore appeals directly to Congress for the relief she thinks she is justly entitled to.

After a careful consideration of the case, the committee are of the opinion that the death of the major may reasonably be considered to have been the result of the injuries to his limb received while serving in the Army, and in line of duty. In view of the long and valuable services the deceased soldier rendered the Government in its hour of need, the fact that he was retired for disabilities incurred in the Army, the needy condition of his family, and all the incidents leading up to the tragic end of the distinguished soldier, the committee are of the opinion that the relief asked for in the bill ought to be granted.

We therefore submit a favorable report and recommend the passage of the bill.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

PETER CLARK, JR.

Mr. MORRILL. I desire to call up the bill (H. R. 6971) to pension Peter Clark, jr.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place upon the pension-roll the name of Peter Clark, jr., of Atchison, Kans., late of Company H, Second Illinois Light Artillery, subject to the provisions of the general pension laws.

Mr. MORRILL. I ask that the reading of the report in this case be dispensed with, and that it be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, it was ordered accordingly.

The report (by Mr. MORRILL) is as follows:

Peter Clark, jr., was mustered into the service as a private on the 31st day of December, 1861, at Springfield, Ill., in Company H, Second Regiment of Illinois Light Artillery Volunteers. On the muster-roll of Company H of that regiment for the months of July and August, 1862, he is reported, "corporal, sick in post hospital, Columbus, Ky." Return of said company for March, 1863, reports him "absent sick since August 25, 1862; was left by the company in hospital at Columbus, Ky." He was honorably discharged September 18, 1862, at Columbus, Ky., "by reason of general disability resulting from camp fever," as appears from the discharge papers on file.

In his declaration for pension, filed February 4, 1873, he alleges that while at Columbus, Ky., in July, 1862, he was ruptured while assisting in removing artillery for two or three weeks, at which time he became very tired and stupid and unable to do duty, and was sent to the hospital last of July, 1862. The claim was rejected August 25, 1887, on the ground, as stated, "of no record in the War Department of alleged hernia, and of the declared inability of the soldier to furnish the necessary evidence to establish the origin of hernia in the service and line of duty."

There is abundant proof that the soldier was a sound, healthy man, entirely free from hernia when he entered the service, and there is no evidence whatever to the contrary; therefore it may be assumed as a fact that if hernia exists, as is alleged, it must have occurred during the soldier's services in the Army or after his discharge.

Dr. Westfall, the soldier's father's family physician, testifies that he did not examine or treat him after his return from the Army, that he can recollect. Not long after he returned from the service he says he was compelled to wear a truss, but can not say just how long it was.

Dugald Clark, brother of the soldier, testifies that he learned that his brother was completely prostrated and confined in a hospital at Columbus, Ky. He went at once to his assistance, and on his arrival there found him very sick and unable to travel. He continues: "He (the affiant) waited about three weeks for the said invalid to gain sufficient strength to be carried home, and at the end of the time, three weeks, he (the affiant) started with the said Peter Clark, jr., and with great care and difficulty succeeded in getting him home." The affiant further declares that his brother was a mere skeleton and a complete physical wreck, and upon his arrival home and upon becoming better acquainted with the nature of his sickness in detail, he discovered that the claimant was badly ruptured, and he saw him at various times attempt to replace the protuberance. He further declares that up to the present time he has not recovered and is growing worse. His knowledge is derived from the fact that his relations were of the closest kind, acting as a nurse and caring for him.

Andrew Steubeck, late captain of Company H, Second Illinois Light Artillery, testifies "that he is very well acquainted with Peter Clark, who was a member of the same company; that said Peter Clark assisted in hauling artillery up the bluff at Columbus, Ky., on or about the 10th or 15th days of July, 1862. The weather was very warm, the men were very much fatigued, and the said Peter Clark contracted diarrhea and fever, and was sent to post hospital at Columbus. He also claimed to have been ruptured at the same time. This affiant further declares that said Peter Clark was an excellent soldier, and always ready for duty."

William Geer testifies as follows: "That he is well acquainted with the claimant, and was a member of the same company and regiment in the war of 1861; that in the spring of 1862, at Columbus, Ky., while prying up out of the mud the cannons that the rebels had dismounted, the claimant had hold of a skid which slipped and went down, and the claimant was injured in some way by the fall, and was sent to the hospital and remained there until discharged from the service. Affiant states that he was present when claimant received said injury, but he can not now remember the exact manner in which it was received, nor the exact character of the injury, but that he has personal knowledge of the fact as above stated."

The said William Geer, in reply to a letter of inquiry from Commissioner Black, says: "The surgeon, Dr. Ransom, who treated Peter Clark's injuries, is dead."

Alexander Jones and Isidor Walter, both members of Company H, Second Illinois Light Artillery, testify that they are well acquainted with Peter Clark, jr., who was a member of said company and regiment; that while at Columbus, Ky., they, with the said Clark, were employed at Columbus, Ky., for over three weeks removing artillery, some time in the latter part of July, 1862; that said Clark was rendered unable to do military duty and sent to hospital at Columbus, Ky.; that they have no knowledge of the particular disease, but from the case as it has since developed itself have no doubt but what the said Clark was ruptured removing said artillery.

Henry H. Ross makes affidavit that he was acquainted with the said Peter Clark, and that he examined him a few days after his return home from the hospital, or about the last part of the month of September, 1862, and found him suffering from hernia and sold him a truss, and also told him that would be all that could be done in the way of help, and thought the truss might help and perhaps cure it.

James Clark testifies that he "saw him after coming home from the Army, and he was nothing but a skeleton, and was also told that he was ruptured."

Edgar L. Phillips, George W. Foot, and Lee S. Lambert, examining surgeons, say: "We find a large inguinal hernia of left side, disability one-half of total, or $4 per month."

The committee, having carefully examined all the papers on file in this case, believe that the relief asked for in this bill ought to be granted. We are of the opinion that the soldier has established the fact beyond a reasonable doubt that the hernia for which he asked to be pensioned was contracted in the Army while in line of duty, and so believing we submit a favorable report and recommend the passage of the bill.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

JAMES M. M'KEEHAN.

Mr. FINLEY. I ask consent for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 6576) for the relief of James M. McKuhan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to all the limitations and provisions of the pension laws of the United States, the name of James M. McKuhan, late private in Company G, Seventh Kentucky Volunteer Infantry.

Mr. FINLEY. The name in this bill is incorrectly printed, and should be "McKeehan" instead of "McKuhan." I move that amendment in the body of the bill and the title.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. FINLEY. I know personally this applicant for a pension, and I know the history of his case. His application was rejected at the Pension Office upon the ground that he had defective eyes when he entered the service. The proof abundantly shows that he was near-sighted when he enlisted, but his eyes had no other defect. After entering the service he took a severe cold, and in consequence of the sickness which followed he became totally blind. He is dependent upon charity for support. I hope the reading of the report will not be insisted upon, but that it may be printed in the RECORD.

The report (by Mr. HUNTER) is as follows:

James M. McKeehan was enrolled on the 20th day of August, 1861, in Company G, of the Seventh Regiment of Kentucky Volunteers. In his original application the soldier states that while in the service and in line of duty at the ford of Cumberland, in the State of Kentucky, in March, 1862, he, from exposure incident to the service, contracted severe cold which settled in the eyes, affecting them to such an extent as to cause the total loss of sight. Affiant being totally blind is therefore rendered helpless and unable to perform the duties required by the only business he is at all acquainted with, and must depend upon the charities of others for support.

His application for pension was rejected by the Department on the ground that the disease of the eyes had probably existed before enlistment. On special examination several of his neighbors testified that they had known him before and since the war, that he was "near-sighted," but that was all the disease of the eyes they had any knowledge of.

James D. Foster, examining surgeon, says:

"In my opinion the said applicant is total first grade incapacitated for obtaining his subsistence by manual labor from the cause above stated. Judging from his present condition and from the evidence before me it is my belief that the said disability did reasonably originate in the service aforesaid, in the line of duty, and that the disability is permanent."

The surgeon further adds:

"This man, James M. McKeehan, is totally blind. His pupils are dilated; he has amaurosis, with a perfect destruction of the nervous structure of the retina. He is totally and eternally blind, and should always have an attendant to keep him out of danger."

All the evidence goes to show that the soldier had weak eyes, but that the severe cold, the result of exposure while in the Army and in line of duty, hastened, if it was not the direct cause of producing, total blindness. He was a good and faithful soldier so long as he remained in the Army. And while the evidence is not conclusive that blindness was the result of exposure in line of duty, the committee are inclined to give him the benefit of the doubt, and therefore submit a favorable report and recommend the passage of the bill.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

WILLIAM H. HESTER.

Mr. PERKINS. I ask for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 8164) granting a pension to William H. Hester.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William H. Hester, late of Company M, Nineteenth Kansas Cavalry.

Mr. PERKINS. The report in this case is very long, and with the permission of the House I will make a brief statement, which I think will obviate the necessity for reading the report.

This man is totally blind. He has a wife, and I believe three children. He is an object of charity—is maintained by the Grand Army post of the village where he resides. He enlisted three times as a soldier—first as a boy of seventeen. He was wounded and taken prisoner at Richmond, Ky., and was subsequently discharged from the service upon a writ of habeas corpus, granted on his father's application. He afterward re-enlisted. After the war he removed to Kansas, and during the Indian outbreak there in 1868 he joined the Kansas organization raised for the purpose of fighting the Indians. While engaged in that service he contracted a very severe cold, which settled in his eyes, and he became totally blind.

He employed some pension agents at Eureka Springs, Ark., to prosecute his application for pension. It seems from the developments that they secured some forged affidavits to establish the claim, which, because of this fraud, was rejected at the Pension Office. But the evidence clearly shows that the claimant was not a party to the fraud. I ask that the report be printed without being read.

The report (by Mr. FINLEY) is as follows:

William H. Heister (not Heisler) first enlisted in the Union Army under the name of William Hester on August 10, 1862, for three years, in Company C, Sixty-ninth Indiana Volunteers, when, from the evidence in the case bearing upon his age, he was seventeen years old.

A report from the office of the Assistant Adjutant-General, under date of February 13, 1884, shows that he was on the muster-rolls to October 31, 1862; was wounded in battle near Richmond, Ky., August 30, 1862, at which place and date, as shown by said report, his company was in action. On September 2, 1862, same report shows him home on furlough, having been paroled. Rolls for November and December, 1862, show him to have been discharged by writ of habeas corpus November 20, 1862, at Indianapolis, Ind.

Prisoner-of-war records show him paroled at Richmond, Ky., 1862; date of capture not given. From an examination of claimant held by Special Examiner M. H. Parks, at Eureka Springs, Ark., December 18, 1882, it appears from his evidence that claimant enlisted in the Sixty-ninth Indiana Volunteers some time in August or September, 1862; was wounded and taken prisoner at Richmond, Ky., and having enlisted under age, his father instituted habeas corpus proceedings, which resulted in his discharge.

He enlisted on March 25, 1864, in Company H, One hundredth Indiana Volunteers, as appears from the report of the Assistant Adjutant-General of date April 10, 1882, which report represents him present as to May and June, 1864, same report as to April 30, 1865 (the last roll on file). He was transferred (date not given) to Company G, Forty-eighth Indiana Volunteers, and was discharged with his company July 25, 1865.

On October 30, 1868, at Topeka, Kans., he enlisted in Company M, Nineteenth Kansas Cavalry, to serve for six months. The same report from the Assistant Adjutant-General last above named shows him present October 31, 1868; name not borne on returns for December, 1868, or January, 1869; mustered out with company April 18, 1869, at Fort Hays, Kansas, as a private.

On August 29, 1881, claimant filed his application for a pension, alleging that at Fort Dodge, Kans., on January 1, 1869, he contracted sore eyes, from which he never recovered, and which continued to grow worse, causing total blindness. On February 7, 1882, he was examined by the medical examining board in this city (Washington), who, to quote the exact language, reported him "practically totally blind," and that he required the constant aid and assistance of another person.

In an affidavit filed July 14, 1882, claimant alleges that on the 15th day of January, 1869, while in the service and line of duty and while on guard at night (guarding the horses) at Fort Dodge, Kans., there prevailed a very strong bleak wind, which carried with it dust and sand; that he took a severe cold, and the next morning his eyes were badly inflamed; that it was nearly a month before he was able to perform any duty again, and then only on company guard for two hours, but was never thereafter able to go on picket or regimental guard; that his eyes continued to grow worse from that date; that the captain of the company frequently requested affiant to go to the hospital, but he preferred to and was permitted to remain with his company, but was relieved from duty; and that at the expiration of his service he was discharged with the company. From the claimant's evidence, which is satisfactorily corroborated, he became blind in the fall of 1880.

The claimant employed one H. F. Hill, of Eureka Springs, Ark., as his agent to prepare his original application and prosecute his claim; another agent at same place named Charles H. Miller, also one William F. Burch, a brother-in-law of the claimant, became interested in the prosecution of the claim.

The whole three were a set of scoundrels, and in 1882 Hill and Miller were both in the penitentiary, having been convicted by the United States district court at Fort Smith, Ark., for fraudulent practices in connection with certain pension cases. It does not clearly appear that Burch, who in 1882 was a fugitive from justice, was operating with Hill and Miller generally, but he took a hand with them in efforts to supply certain affidavits deemed by them essential to success, and among them, by joint action as it seems, the affidavits of the captain of the company in which claimant last served (who was at the time dead) and those of two comrades were forged and filed in the cause. In the course of the progress of the claim suspicion was aroused at the Pension Office that fraud was being attempted, and the case was referred to special examiners in the field, who were directed to make thorough examination, which was done, and the frauds clearly shown.

From a careful consideration of all the evidence your committee are confident that the claimant was not a party to the frauds of Hill, Miller, and Burch. The claimant at the time was totally blind and in very dependent circumstances, with a wife and three children to be supported by friends and charity. Miller (acting, no doubt, for himself and Hill) procured of claimant a promise to pay him one-third of the amount of pension recovered, and then proceeded to do the business according to methods then in practice by him. That these men kept their villainous schemes to themselves, and did not acquaint claimant with them, is evident from a number of points in the evidence, to recite all of which would require much time and space.

They procured of claimant the names and last known addresses of the captain of the company and two comrades, proceeded to draught the necessary affidavits, not disclosing the post-office addresses of the respective witnesses, and, after a time, informed claimant that they had procured them, and handed them to him, and he turned them over to Miller, who finally brought claimant to Washington to have the business completed by an examination, etc. Later, upon calling upon claimant, who had returned home, for the post-office addresses of the parties whose affidavits had been forged, he replied with frankness, giving the addresses surmised when Hill, Miller, and Burch applied to him, and as to which they later confirmed his impressions.

This led at once to the special examinations, not only of such of the three witnesses as were alive, but of a large number of others; and while there are some points as to which conflicts of evidence exist, yet a review and careful analysis of all the evidence has satisfied your committee that when claimant enlisted in the Nineteenth Kansas Cavalry he was free from disease of the eyes; that he incurred disease of the eyes in the service; had sore eyes at discharge, which continued to gradually grow worse, until, in the fall of 1880, he became totally blind.

The claimant enlisted three times as a soldier between the years 1862 and 1869, and while nothing affirmatively appears as to medical examinations upon enlistment the presumption is he was each time carefully examined by competent surgeons. The reports from the Adjutant-General's Office, while exhibiting considerable in his favor, show not the least suspicion of disease to eyes at either enlistment. Men for whom he worked on farms, both immediately before enlistment and after discharge, give clear evidence as to prior soundness and subsequent diseased condition, and in most cases these witnesses are vouched for by the respective special examiners who took evidence in the cause as being of good reputation, while of the claimant himself Special Examiner M. H. Parks declared in his report as follows:

"The claimant is a clear-headed, intelligent man, and the manner in which he told his story and the satisfactory answers he gave to the questions I put to him left the impression that he was telling the truth."

The examination of claimant by Parks was lengthy and thorough and skillfully conducted, and in the opinion of your committee the result justified the impressions of claimant on the part of the examiner as expressed in the above quotation from his report. The claimant in an affidavit filed with the papers declares that he had no knowledge of the attempt of Miller, Hill, and Burch to commit a fraud on the Pension Office.

In conclusion, while the attempt to commit an infamous fraud upon the Pension Office was well calculated to arouse a strong prejudice against claimant, and while some features of the evidence taken in examinations, if credited and not carefully analyzed and compared with other well-sustained proof, may have justified the Pension Department in rejecting the claim and adhering thereto, your committee, notwithstanding an original sense of prejudice, have concluded that the claimant is not chargeable with the attempted frauds, that he is innocent of any complicity therein, and that the evidence as a whole sustains his right to a pension at the hands of Congress.

In view of the foregoing, the committee recommend that the bill do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

MARTHA GRAY.

Mr. ADAMS. I desire to call up the bill (H. R. 2071) for the relief of Martha Gray.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Martha Gray, widow of Charles Gray, deceased, formerly of Company A, Fourth Illinois Cavalry.

The report was partly read, when—

Mr. ADAMS said: Mr. Speaker, there is no question that this soldier was wounded and never recovered from his wound. There is no question that his widow supports herself and her children by washing and scrubbing. A considerable part of the report is taken up with testimony of a physician as to the connection between the soldier's final disease and the disability incurred in the service. I believe this is one of those cases in which the House is disposed to adopt a liberal construction of the evidence. I ask that the report be printed in the RECORD, and the bill be laid aside to be reported favorably to the House.

The reading of the report was called for.

The report (by Mr. LANE) was read, as follows:

Claimant is the widow of Charles Gray, deceased, late private Company A, Twenty-fourth Illinois Cavalry.

The soldier enlisted September 13, 1861, for three years, and was discharged on account of disability January 30, 1864, for gunshot wound of right leg, for which he was pensioned by certificate 207342.

Soldier had a running sore on the right leg when discharged, and subsequently dropsical effusion, which extended to his abdomen, chest, and heart, and caused his death February 27, 1883

Soldier left surviving him a widow, Martha Gray, and two minor children. The widow, Martha Gray, applied for pension December, 1883, No. 311797, for herself and children. Her claim was rejected August 5, 1886, on the ground that the disease which it is alleged was the cause of the soldier's death, namely, "valvular disease of the heart," was not due to his military services.

Dr. O. W. Newell, of Chicago, Ill., testified that he was called to see soldier February 24, 1883, and found him suffering with dropsical effusion and also, as near as he could determine, "valvular disease of the heart." He also learned that soldier had been wounded in the leg, which wound had produced a fracture that had troubled him more or less ever since; that for about eight years he had not been able to do any work; that he had spent considerable time in the hospital, and also nearly one year in the Soldiers' Home in Milwaukee, Wis.

He also had open, running sores on his leg, which he said had discharged continuously since his hurt. The doctor says that he saw him again on Sunday, February 25, that he was unable to lie down, and died February 27, 1883. The doctor adds:

"All I know further is hearsay; still I think from all the information that I can get that his death was caused indirectly by the wound of his leg, which had nearly unfitted him for business for the last years of his life."

The widow supports herself and children by washing and scrubbing.

A liberal construction of the testimony warrants the conclusion that the soldier died from the wounds received in action, and the committee therefore recommend that the bill do pass.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

GEORGE P. STONE.

Mr. CHIPMAN. I ask unanimous consent to take up for present consideration the bill (H. R. 6453) granting a pension to George P. Stone.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pensions laws, the name of George P. Stone, late captain of Company C, Thirty-seventh Regiment of Kentucky Volunteers, at the rate of $20 per month.

The report (by Mr. HUNTER) was read, as follows:

The records of the War Department show that George P. Stone entered the military service of the United States on the 25th day of September, 1861, as a private in Company A, Ninth Regiment of Kentucky Volunteers, and was discharged therefrom on surgeon's certificate of disability on the 23d day of May, 1862, while in regimental hospital at Corinth, Miss.; that he again entered the Army on the 17th day of September, 1863, as captain of Company C, Thirty-seventh Regiment of Kentucky Volunteers, from which he was honorably discharged on the 29th day of December, 1864, by reason of expiration of term of service.

The records of the Pension Office show that while he was serving in the last-named regiment, and while said command was stationed at Glasgow, Ky., in January, 1864, claimant had a severe attack of typhoid pneumonia; that before his complete recovery therefrom he was compelled to undergo some exposure incident to the service, which caused a relapse and resulting inflammatory rheumatism.

Dr. R. W. Haselwood, of Pittman, Taylor County, Kentucky, who was assistant surgeon of the regiment, swears:

"That he treated claimant for typhoid pneumonia in January, 1864, for two or three weeks; that he then went on duty, but was soon attacked with inflammatory rheumatism, for which affiant treated him during the remainder of his term of service; that he has a distinct recollection of this man, and makes this statement from personal knowledge."

Dr. F. M. Stone, of Fountain Run, Monroe County, Kentucky, states:

"That he is a brother of claimant, and visited him while he was sick at Glasgow, Ky., in January, 1864; that he had pneumonia, and has been hardly fit for anything since."

Charles A. McCue, of Flippin, Monroe County, Kentucky, who was a lieutenant in claimant's command, swears:

"That the claimant, at Glasgow, Ky., had an attack of pneumonia, fever, and rheumatism about January, 1864, and that the disability has continued ever since."

Dr. D. R. Haggard, of Burkesville, Cumberland County, Kentucky, swears:

"That in the winter of 1865, at the United States Hotel, Louisville, Ky., he treated the claimant for a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism."

Dr. James R. Duncan, of Newton, Harvey County, Kansas, who was surgeon of claimant's regiment, states:

"That so far as he knows claimant was physically sound at date of enlistment."

Dr. E. G. Williams, of Rocky Hill Station, Edmonson County, Kentucky, states:

"That he was well acquainted with the claimant, and knows that he was free from rheumatism and pneumonia when he entered the Army, and has heard him complain of rheumatism since his discharge."

W. P. Gibson and C. H. Austin, good, reputable citizens of Fountain Run, Monroe County, Kentucky, and neighbors of claimant, state:

"That Captain Stone was apparently free from rheumatism and in good health at enlistment."

Dr. W. R. Shapard, United States examining surgeon at Scottsville, Allen County, Kentucky, made an official examination of claimant, and states:

"That left lung by percussion reveals a dull sound over upper third. By auscultation a cracking sound, with labored breathing; heart beating rapidly. The joints of fingers and toes seem stiff."

The proof shows and claimant admits the existence of chorea prior to enlistment.

Claimant made application for a pension in the usual way on account of rheumatism and the effects of pneumonia, but the claim was rejected by the Pension Office on the ground that the alleged rheumatism, which was of a neuralgic character, existed prior to enlistment, and that it was due directly or indirectly to the chorea.

That claimant was free from rheumatism and lung trouble at the date of enlistment; that he had an attack of typhoid pneumonia and inflammatory rheumatism while in the service, from the effects of which he has suffered since his discharge, is abundantly proven by the proof above cited, and which is but a small portion of the evidence on file in the case; and why the Pension Office should see proper to reject the claim on the ground that the rheumatism was due directly or indirectly to the chorea is beyond the comprehension of this committee, for it is a well-known medical fact that these two diseases have no pathological connection whatever.

Your committee therefore submit a favorable report and recommend the passage of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

GEORGIA A. STRICKLETT.

Mr. THOMAS, of Kentucky. I ask unanimous consent to take up the bill (H. R. 7715) for the relief of Georgia A. Stricklett.

The bill was read as, follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Georgia A. Stricklett, widow of P. M. Stricklett, late second lieutenant in Company A, Forty-fifth Kentucky Mounted Infantry Volunteers, in the war of 1861.

The report (by Mr. HUNTER) was read, as follows:

Pleasant M. Stricklett was second lieutenant Company A, Forty-fifth Kentucky Infantry. Capt. Joseph W. Cottingham, captain of said company, testifies that while in the recruiting service in Lewis County, Kentucky, in company with said Lieutenant Stricklett, the latter was shot by a bushwhacker and very badly wounded with buckshot July 23, 1863. The said Cottingham was at the time riding beside said Stricklett and was also wounded badly by the same discharge. The said Stricklett was so disabled as to do little duty with his company during the remainder of 1863. He was immediately removed to his father's house in Clarksburgh, where he remained during his entire convalescence, treated by Drs. Barber, Taylor, and Jones. He did not return to his command during all of this period, and was not treated by the regimental surgeon.

After his recovery said Stricklett joined his company and served out his time, and was honorably discharged. The said Cottingham applied for and received a pension for wounds received at the same time Stricklett was wounded. Stricklett did not apply for a pension.

Dr. L. A. Grimes testifies:

"That for twenty-one years he has been a regular practicing physician in Concord, Lewis County, Kentucky; that he was for some time prior and at the time of said Lieutenant Stricklett's death his regular family physician, and was present when the said Stricklett died, July 21, 1873. The affiant, Grimes, made an examination of the body after death, and to the best of his knowledge the same was caused partially by epilepsy; that he had frequently expressed the opinion to said Stricklett and family that epilepsy would be the cause of his death, and advised him to arrange his worldly affairs, being of the opinion that Stricklett would not live long. The epilepsy was caused from said wound about the face and head received during his service during the war."

That is, from the wounds inflicted July 23, 1863, as detailed by Capt. Joseph W. Cottingham.

Dr. C. Honaker testifies that—

"He is a regular practicing physician; age, fifty-three [when testimony was given, January 27, 1885]. Has practiced medicine twenty-five years. Knew said P. M. Stricklett prior to, during, and since the war. In 1868 said Stricklett applied to said Honaker for treatment. His disability was the development of confirmed epilepsy, which resisted all and any treatment affiant could give him, which grew worse day by day, month after month, until his mind was weakened and he was fast giving way mentally and physically, and had he lived to die a natural death he certainly would have died an insane epileptic, for he was a mental and physical wreck at the time of his death."

The said Honaker gives as "his deliberate judgment the opinion that the epilepsy was due to one of the buckshot received, as described by Captain Cottingham, and that said epilepsy was inevitably fatal in the end, as he would have died an insane epileptic."

Georgia A. Stricklett, the widow of said Lieutenant Stricklett, applied for a pension, and filed her application April 21, 1883, alleging that while in service on July 23, 1863, her husband received a gunshot wound of the head and left cheek. The claim was rejected on the ground that the wound did not cause the soldier's death.

The application of said widow is No. 303612. The proof is conclusive that the soldier was badly wounded while in the service, recruiting; that as soon as he recovered he returned to his company and served out his time, and the proof is clear that said wounds so received by said soldier while in the service caused an attack of epilepsy, from which he never recovered, and at the time of his death, by an accidental shot, said soldier was a mental and physical wreck and could have lived but a short time. Dr. Grimes, an eminent and honorable physician, testifies that he was the soldier's family physician, and was present at his death, and says that his death was caused partly by epilepsy.

Dr. Honaker, another eminent and celebrated physician, says that the soldier was a mental and physical wreck at and some time before his death, and that his death was inevitable in a short time from said attack of epilepsy.

Your committee is of opinion that this is a very meritorious case, clearly made out. They therefore recommend the passage of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. CHIPMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee do now rise.

Mr. FINLEY. I hope the gentleman will withhold that motion for a moment. I will not be here on next Friday night, and I have a bill that I am satisfied it will not take a minute to pass, granting a pension to a hopeless, friendless soldier.

Mr. CHIPMAN. I have no objection if we have time.

Mr. MORRILL. I would call the attention of the Chairman to the time.

The CHAIRMAN. It will be manifestly impossible to pass the bills acted upon in committee to-night unless the committee shall now rise.

The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Michigan.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and Mr. MCMILLIN having taken the chair as Speaker pro tempore, Mr. DOCKERY reported that the Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration pension bills on the Private Calendar, had directed him to report sundry bills with various recommendations.

BILLS PASSED.

The following House bills, reported from the Committee of the Whole without amendments, were severally considered, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, and being engrossed were accordingly read the third time and passed, namely:

A bill (H. R. 112) granting a pension to George Schneider;
A bill (H. R. 404) for the relief of Mary McGrath;
A bill (H. R. 3180) granting a pension to John H. Sayers;
A bill (H. R. 879) granting a pension to Royal J. Hiar;
A bill (H. R. 138) granting a pension to Joseph Perry;
A bill (H. R. 6379) to increase the pension of David M. Rennoe;
A bill (H. R. 3579) granting a pension to Ellen Shea;
A bill (H. R. 6609) for the relief of Sarah E. McCaleb;
A bill (H. R. 8185) granting a pension to David L. Bartlow;
A bill (H. R. 4579) granting a pension to Mary J. Crocker;
A bill (H. R. 4580) granting a pension to Farnaren Ball;
A bill (H. R. 4491) granting a pension to Rosanna Robey;
A bill (H. R. 3554) granting a pension to Catharine Black;
A bill (H. R. 680) granting a pension to Henry H. Stuttsman;
A bill (H. R. 7913) granting a pension to Nellie Palfrey Goodwin;
A bill (H. R. 3735) granting a pension to Eliza Shreeve;
A bill (H. R. 3158) increasing the pension to Howard S. Abbott;
A bill (H. R. 7882) granting a pension to John Kinney;
A bill (H. R. 6582) granting a pension to Elizabeth Ward;
A bill (H. R. 2282) to pension Mrs. Theodora M. Piatt;
A bill (H. R. 6971) to pension Peter Clark, jr.;
A bill (H. R. 8164) granting a pension to William H. Hester;
A bill (H. R. 2071) for the relief of Martha Gray;
A bill (H. R. 6453) granting a pension to George P. Stone; and
A bill (H. R. 7715) for the relief of Georgia A. Stricklett.

Bills of the following titles, reported from the Committee of the Whole with amendments, were severally considered, the amendments concurred in, and the bills as amended ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, were accordingly read the third time, and passed, namely:

A bill (H. R. 5545) granting a pension to Nancy F. Jennings;
A bill (H. R. 2094) to increase the pension of Alonzo B. Chatfield;
A bill (H. R. 401) granting a pension to Mrs. Jeannie Stone;
A bill (H. R. 5195) granting a pension to David W. Seely;
A bill (H. R. 3844) granting an increase of pension to Wilson C. Moles;
A bill (H. R. 5966) granting a pension to Mrs. Lepha A. Osborn;
A bill (H. R. 335) granting a pension to General W. E. Woodruff; and
A bill (H. R. 2664) for the relief of Francis Daniels.

The bills (H. R. 5311) granting a pension to Alonzo H. Gregory and (H. R. 6576) for the relief of Thomas M. McKeehan were severally considered, the amendments concurred in, and the bills as amended ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, were accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The titles were amended to conform to the amendments to the bills.

The bill (H. R. 7476) granting a pension to William O. Doyel was ordered to be laid on the table.

Senate bills of the following titles, reported from the Committee of the Whole, were severally considered, ordered to a third reading, and passed, namely:

A bill (S. 172) granting a pension to Abbie M. Hay;
A bill (S. 174) granting a pension to Mary Martin;
A bill (S. 450) for the relief of Thomas S. Hopkins;
A bill (S. 838) granting a pension to Mary Sullivan;
A bill (S. 472) granting a pension to Eliza Summers;
A bill (S. 930) to pension Oscar F. Carpenter;
A bill (S. 753) granting a pension to James D. Whaley;
A bill (S. 895) for the relief of Mrs. Betsey Winterbottom;
A bill (S. 819) granting a pension to Christopher Wisemiller;
A bill (S. 1354) granting a pension to Helen M. Randolph;
A bill (S. 2067) granting a pension to William O. Doyel; and
A bill (S. 465) granting a pension to William Jackman, sr.

The bill (S. 1413) to increase the pension of James Cary, reported from the Committee of the Whole with amendments, was considered, the amendments concurred in, and the bill as amended ordered to a third reading, and being read the third time, was passed.

The bill (S. 703) granting a pension to M. T. Lindsay, of Oregon, was considered, and the recommendation of the Committee of the Whole that it be indefinitely postponed concurred in.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If there be no objection, the several votes just taken will be reconsidered, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

And then (the hour of 10 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m. having arrived) the Speaker pro tempore declared the House adjourned.

PRIVATE BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED.

Under the rule private bills of the following titles were introduced and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. G. A. ANDERSON: A bill (H. R. 9351) for the relief of Mrs. Elizabeth Leebrick—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. A. R. ANDERSON: A bill (H. R. 9352) for the relief of George F. Bowers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9353) for the relief of Thomas J. Graham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BACON (by request): A bill (H. R. 9354) for the relief of James I. Demarest—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BIGGS: A bill (H. R. 9355) for the relief of Joanna Barry—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. BLISS: A bill (H. R. 9356) granting an increase of pension to John Ericsson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9357) granting an increase of pension to Emery Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CARUTH: A bill (H. R. 9358) to increase the pension of Rosalie O'Sullivan—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CHEADLE: A bill (H. R. 9359) granting a pension to Margaret T. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FISHER: A bill (H. R. 9360) for the relief of Sarah Spaulding—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. HEARD: A bill (H. R. 9361) granting a pension to Nancy Hughes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOWARD: A bill (H. R. 9362) restoring the name of David Briggs to the pension-roll—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McKINNEY: A bill (H. R. 9363) granting a pension to Edwin J. Godfrey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MORRILL: A bill (H. R. 9364) granting a pension to John Bush—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. RANDALL: A bill (H. R. 9365) granting a pension to Sarah Hays—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. C. A. RUSSELL: A bill (H. R. 9366) granting a pension to Andrew J. Lepard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9367) to remove the charge of desertion against James H. Gay—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. J. E. RUSSELL: A bill (H. R. 9368) for the relief of George K. Otis—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. SENEY: A bill (H. R. 9369) to increase the pension of Michael Kopf—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SEYMOUR (by request): A bill (H. R. 9370) granting a pension to Mrs. Susan Bates—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9371) granting a pension to Betsey Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SPINOLA: A bill (H. R. 9372) granting a pension to John Dean—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. VANDEVER: A bill (H. R. 9373) for the relief of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, Cal.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. WADE: A bill (H. R. 9374) granting a pension to William Hurse—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9375) granting a pension to George Solomon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9376) granting a pension to James Wise—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

The following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, under the rule, and referred as follows:

By Mr. A. R. ANDERSON: Petition of James Valentine and 14 others of Murray, Iowa, asking that salt be placed on the free-list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. C. L. ANDERSON: Petition of W. W. George and 434 others, citizens of East Mississippi, for the holding of terms of the United States courts at Meridian, Miss.—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BACON (by request): Petition of James I. Demarest, father of Henry W. W. Demarest, late private Company F, Thirteenth Regiment New York Cavalry, for a special-act pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of 173 citizens against reduction of duty on green and colored glass bottles—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. C. S. BAKER: Petition of Joseph O'Connor and other citizens of Rochester, N. Y., in favor of Senate bill 283—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BAYNE: Petition of Adolph Schmidt and others, druggists, of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, for repeal of a certain portion of the internal-revenue law—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BELDEN: Petition of P. H. Hays and 30 others, cigar-makers of Syracuse, N. Y., for repeal of revenue duties on cigars and cheroots—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BELMONT: Petition of citizens of Suffolk County, of Queens County, and of Richmond County, New York, for protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BINGHAM: Petition to repeal that portion of the internal-revenue law classing druggists as liquor dealers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BOUND: Petition of Samuel Weiss, jr., M. D., and others of Lebanon and Annville, Pa., for the repeal of all taxes on alcohol to be used in medicine and the arts—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BURNES: Memorial of Ferd. Garesche and other officials in the customs service in St. Louis, Mo., for additional appropriation for said service—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. BURNETT: Petition for improvement in mail service in New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BUTLER: Petition of sundry citizens of Sullivan County, Tennessee, for compensation for postmasters for fuel, etc.—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. FELIX CAMPBELL: Joint resolution of the Legislature of New York, in favor of House bill 8857—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CANNON: Petition of Otto Weiss and others, of Charleston, Ill., for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. CARUTH: Papers in the pension claim of Rosalie O'Sullivan—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CONGER: Paper to accompany House bill 152, for relief of of Mrs. Theresa Gurlich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CUTCHEON: Petition of citizens of Antrim County, Michigan, in favor of better protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Territories.

Also, memorial of the Board of Trade of Detroit, Mich., in regard to Canadian railroads as channels of interstate commerce—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. DALZELL: Petition of citizens of Pennsylvania, for repeal of the internal-revenue law classing druggists as liquor dealers, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. R. H. M. DAVIDSON: Petition of citizens of Pensacola, Fla., against the passage of the Butterworth and Dawes lard bills—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. DIBBLE (by request): Petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of South Carolina, for the repeal of the internal-revenue tax on all alcoholic liquors—to the Select Committee on the Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.

By Mr. DORSEY: Petition of citizens of Nebraska, for the organization of Oklahoma—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. ERMENTROUT: Memorial of the merchant tailors of Philadelphia, in reference to unjust discrimination in duty on woolens—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FISHER: Petition of G. Rutson and 32 others, and of George F. Buchanan and 23 others, for increase of pay of keepers and surfmen of the Life-Saving Service—to the Committee on Commerce.

Also, petition of 72 soldiers and sailors, and 167 citizens of Ogemaw County, Michigan, indorsing House bill 5662 and Senate bill 1537—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FORD: Remonstrance of E. A. Dopper and many others, against the passage of House bill 7901—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. FUNSTON: Petition of citizens of Kansas City, Kans., for the passage of the tonnage bill—to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. GEAR: Resolutions of the General Assembly of Iowa, for an amendment to the Constitution forbidding non-resident aliens to own land in the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of W. H. Carpenter and 32 other citizens, praying that workmen on Government contracts shall be paid once in two weeks—to the Committee on Labor.

Also, petition of S. S. Daniels, of Tipton, Iowa, for relief—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GIFFORD: Petition of O. W. Sheldon and 38 others, of Brown County, Dakota, that the present tariff on flax and flax products be retained—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Mrs. Anna Aldrich, of Plankinton, Dak., for the repeal of the internal-revenue tax on alcoholic liquors—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GRANGER (by request): Petition of J. A. Lockwood and others, for an appropriation for the improvement of Cos Cob and Mianus Harbor, Connecticut—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of F. A. Perkins and others, and of H. C. Dudd and others, for protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. GROUT: Memorial of James Thompson & Co., of Valley Falls, N. Y., for increase of duty on flax, hemp, and jute—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of George K. Russell, of Bellows Falls, Vt., against putting wood-pulp on the free-list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of E. J. Linker, of Beebe Plains, Vt., for better mail facilities between New England and the West—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GUENTHER: Petition of Gerhard Mockley, of Holy Cross, Wis., for relief—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the Bartlett Clinical Club, of Milwaukee, Wis., for removal of tariff on medicines, medical and surgical appliances, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HARE: Three petitions of sundry citizens of Denton County, Texas, to make provision to pay Indian depredation claims—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. HOOKER: Petition of K. D. Wright, heir of Lucy Cordell, of Hinds County, Mississippi, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HOUK: Petition of Knights of Labor, of Knoxville, Tenn., in behalf of the tonnage bill—to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. KETCHAM: Petition of John D. Kellogg and 21 others, citizens of North Salem, N. Y., for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. LAIDLAW: Two petitions of citizens of Jamestown, N. Y., for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. LEE: Petition of Angus McD. Green, administrator of Mrs. Mary Guinn, of Culpeper County, Virginia, for reference of claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LONG: Petition of Eliza Ewer, of Boston, Mass., for increase of pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, memorial of the Central Labor Union, of Quincy, Mass., against the withdrawal of protection on dressed stone—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McCORMICK: Petition of Wilson Nevel and 75 others, citizens of Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, for the passage of Senate bill No. 283—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of Milton Huber and others, druggists, of Williamsport, Pa., for repeal of statute classifying druggists as liquor dealers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McKINLEY: Petition of farmers of Stark County, Ohio, protesting against the passage of the Mills tariff bill—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MORGAN: Petition of Madison Ledbetter, of Marshall County, Mississippi, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MORROW: Petition of employés of the customs service at San Francisco, Cal., for appropriation to supply a deficiency for the year ending June 30, 1888—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. NEAL: Petition of Samuel Ray, of James County, Tennessee, for payment of his war claim—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. NUTTING: Petition of W. L. Hearlet and 30 others, citizens of Auburn, N. Y., for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. —— O'NEILL: Petition and papers of Mrs. Sophia Schimmelfinnig, for an increase of pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PARKER: Resolution of the Assembly of New York, in favor of the muster-roll bill—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. ROMEIS: Memorial of 27 citizens of Fremont, Ohio, for protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. RUSK: Petition for a pension for Mrs. M. A. Parnell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SCULL: Memorial of citizens of Everett and Bedford, Pa., for repeal of that part of the internal revenue classing druggists as liquor dealers, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SENEY: Petition of W. H. Darrah and 14 others, citizens of Bucyrus, Ohio, for the passage of Senate bill 283—to the Commit-tee on the Public Lands.

Also, paper of James Thompson & Co., respecting the tariff duty on flax and hemp—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SHIVELY: Petition of Typographical Union No. 128, of South Bend, Ind., in favor of the Chace copyright bill—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. SPOONER: Petition of A. B. Chace and 22 others, citizens of Rhode Island, for the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. STAHLNECKER: Petition of Hon. E. B. Pond, mayor of San Francisco, Cal., and others, for an act to establish a quarantine station at that port—to the Committee on Commerce.

Also, joint resolution of the New York Legislature, favoring House bill No. 8857—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. J. W. STEWART: Petition of C. J. Wright and others, and of J. H. Guild and others, of Vermont, for protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Petition of citizens of Lordstown, Ohio, for additional protection to agriculture—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. G. M. THOMAS: Petition of Elizabeth Hull, widow of William Hull, late private Company D, Seventh Kentucky Cavalry, for relief—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition for a pension for Jacob Libber—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WADE: Petition of the president and professors of Drury College, Springfield, Mo., for an international copyright law—to the Committee on Patents.

Also, petition of citizens of McDonald County, Missouri, for an amendment of the homestead law—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. WASHINGTON: Petition of N. W. Baldridge, of Davidson County, Tennessee, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. J. R. WHITING: Petition of Richard Pearson and 25 others, and of Jefferson Tardice and 76 others, citizens of Greenleaf, Mich., against a reduction of duty on wool and woolens—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Hugh McAlpin and 95 others, and of Richard Pearson and 25 others, of Sanilac County, Michigan, for the pleuro-pneumonia bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. WILLIAM WHITING: Petition of C. C. Hitchcock and others, citizens of Ware, and of W. L. Granger and others, citizens of Westfield, Mass., for protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of Stratton Bros., of Gardner, Mass., for better mail facilities in New England—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

The following petitions for the more effectual protection of agriculture, by means of certain import duties, were received and severally referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

By Mr. CANNON: Of F. T. Banker and 150 others, of Zif, Ill.

By Mr. CUTCHEON: Of citizens of Osceola County and of Mason County, Michigan.

By Mr. KEAN: Of John H. Denise and others, citizens of Freehold, N. J.

By Mr. KETCHAM: Of 20 farmers of Fremont Centre, N. Y.

By Mr. PARKER: Of citizens of Pierpont, N. Y., and of T. F. Dana and others, of New York.

By Mr. SAWYER: Of citizens of Linwood, N. Y.

By Mr. WICKHAM: Of 49 citizens of Lorain County, Ohio.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law to establish a system of telegraphy, to be owned and controlled by the Government of the United States and operated in connection with the Post-Office Department, were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. A. R. ANDERSON: Of R. M. Carson and 2,210 others, citizens of the Eighth district of Iowa.

By Mr. JEHU BAKER: Of John Huegle and 106 others, citizens of the Twentieth district of Illinois.

By Mr. BAYNE: Of T. B. Walker and 1,430 others, citizens of the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth districts of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. BELDEN: Of W. A. Hill and 125 others, Knights of Labor of Syracuse, N. Y.

By Mr. CUTCHEON: Of citizens of Michigan.

By Mr. R. H. M. DAVIDSON: Of J. B. Hill and 1,668 others, citizens of the First district of Florida.

By Mr. FISHER: Of John Maxwell and 2,496 others, citizens of Michigan.

By Mr. GRANGER (by request): Of A. A. Curtis and others, citizens of Connecticut.

By Mr. HEARD: Of citizens of the Sixth district of Missouri.

By Mr. HIRES: Of numerous citizens of the First district of New Jersey.

By Mr. KETCHAM: Of John McNulty and 208 others, citizens of the Sixteenth district of New York.

By Mr. LYNCH: Petition of John J. Barrett and 6,760 others, citizens of the Twelfth district of Pennsylvania.

By Mr. ROWELL: Of T. J. Butler and 853 others, citizens of the Fourteenth district of Illinois.

By Mr. ROWLAND: Of certain citizens of Robeson County, North Carolina.

By Mr. M. A. SMITH: Of E. B. Gage and 100 others, citizens of Arizona.

By Mr. J. R. THOMAS: Of J. W. Coleman and 1,642 others, citizens of the Twentieth district of Illinois.

The following petitions, indorsing the per diem rated service-pension bill, based on the principle of paying all soldiers, sailors, and marines of the late war a monthly pension of 1 cent a day for each day they were in the service, were severally referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

By Mr. A. R. ANDERSON: Of James Humeston and 35 other members of Davenport Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Woodburn, Iowa, and of George Phillips and 83 other ex-soldiers, of Woodburn, Iowa.

By Mr. BRUMM: Of J. M. Wetherill and 44 others, citizens of Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. BURNES: Of John Galbreath and other ex-soldiers, of Fillmore, Mo.

By Mr. BURROWS: Of ex-soldiers and sailors of Michigan.

By Mr. CUTCHEON: Of sundry citizens and soldiers of Newaygo County, Michigan.

By Mr. FISHER: Of 9 soldiers and sailors of Odessa; of 20 soldiers and sailors, of 14 soldiers and sailors, and of 16 soldiers and sailors, of Luzerne and Farwell, Mich.

By Mr. FUNSTON: Of members of Grand Army of the Republic post, of Williamsburgh, Kans.

By Mr. GIFFORD: Of James Crosby and 47 others, of Woonsocket; of E. Huntington and 23 others, of Webster, Dak.

By Mr. KETCHAM: Of Wallace Payntor and 68 others, ex-soldiers and sailors of Fishkill, N. Y.

By Mr. LANE: Of Post No. 354, Grand Army of the Republic of Illinois.

By Mr. McKINLEY: Of citizens of East Liverpool, Ohio.

By Mr. OSBORNE: Of John Shafer and 41 others, ex-soldiers of Luzerne County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. SENEY: Of N. W. Jenkins and 182 others, citizens of Hancock County, Ohio.

By Mr. SPOONER: Of C. B. Harbach and others, soldiers of Barrington, R. I.

By Mr. O. B. THOMAS: Of 75 citizens, of 34 ex-soldiers, and of 125 citizens of Richland County, Wisconsin.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law providing temporary aid for common schools, to be disbursed on the basis of illiteracy, were severally referred to the Committee on Education:

By Mr. PARKER: Of 96 citizens of St. Lawrence County, New York.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Of citizens of Ashtabula County, Ohio.

By Mr. WALKER: Of 68 citizens of Butler County, Missouri.

By Mr. WEAVER: Of 164 citizens of Monroe County, Iowa.

By Mr. WEBER: Of 29 citizens of Niagara County, New York.

The following petitions for an increase of compensation of fourth-class postmasters were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. R. H. M. DAVIDSON: Of citizens of Cerro Gordo, Fla.

By Mr. HEARD: Of citizens of Camden County, Missouri.

By Mr. HOUK: Of citizens of Morgan County, Tennessee.

By Mr. McCLAMMY: Of Lewis Mills and 50 others, citizens of Onslow County, North Carolina.

By Mr. McCORMICK: Of H. H. Ogden and 13 others, citizens of Tioga County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. McRAE: Of citizens of Fairland, Ark.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

SATURDAY, April 14, 1888.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. WILLIAM H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday's proceedings.

Mr. McMILLIN. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of that portion of the Journal which relates to the presentation of reports. It is somewhat lengthy.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

The reading of the Journal was completed with the exception of the portion referred to, and was approved as read.

FINDINGS OF COURT OF CLAIMS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House letters from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting copies of the findings of fact in the following cases, and they were referred to the Committee on War Claims:

In the case of Caroline Hedges against the United States;

In the case of James W. Johnston, administrator, against the United States;

In the case of Thomas M. Brown and others against the United States;

In the case of Joseph Lowe and others against the United States;

In the case of Thomas H. Wysong against the United States;

In the case of George Cooper against the United States; and

In the case of Ebenezer Cunningham against the United States.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of fact in the case of Philip C. Rowe against the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Patents.

OHIO CONNECTING RAILWAY BRIDGE.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (H. R. 3215) to authorize the construction of the Ohio Connecting Railway bridge; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

COUNTY OF SAN JUAN IN NEW MEXICO.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (H. R. 1983) to ratify an act entitled "An act creating the county of San Juan in the Territory of New Mexico," with amendments by the Senate.

Mr. SPRINGER. There was a committee of conference asked on that bill.

The SPEAKER. That does not give it any preference.

Mr. SPRINGER. I am aware of that; but I ask unanimous consent to non-concur in the Senate amendments and agree to the request for a committee of conference.

Mr. ADAMS. What is the bill?

The SPEAKER. It is a bill to create the county of San Juan in the Territory of New Mexico.

Mr. DINGLEY. Has this bill reached the conference stage?

The SPEAKER. It has not. The Senate has asked a conference.

Mr. DINGLEY. That does not make it privileged.

The SPEAKER. It does not. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SPRINGER] asks unanimous consent that the House non-concur in the Senate amendments and agree to the request for a committee of conference. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and will appoint the managers during the day.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT TALLAHASSEE, FLA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (S. 1083) for the erection of a public building at Tallahassee, Fla.

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Florida. I ask unanimous consent that that bill be considered now; and with the indulgence of the House I will give a word of explanation. The bill provides for the erection of a public building at Tallahassee, Fla. This is a Senate bill. A similar bill has been considered favorably by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds. I ask the House to pass it now. The amount involved is $75,000.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be read, after which the Chair will ask for objections.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I regret to have to object, but I will do so after the reading of the bill, and I may as well do so now.

The bill was read twice, and was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House bills of the Senate of the following titles; which were severally read twice, and referred to committees as indicated:

The bill (S. 2123) to authorize the removal of an obstruction to the navigation of Broad Creek, in the State of Delaware—to the Committee on Commerce.

The bill (S. 1721) establishing a customs collection district in Florida, to be known as the collection district of Tampa, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Commerce.

The bill (S. 2613) to amend an act approved June 15, 1882, changing the boundaries of the fourth collection district of Virginia—to the Committee on Commerce.

The bill (S. 2392) for the erection of a monument to the memory of General Joseph Warren, who fell at the battle of Bunker Hill—to the Committee on the Library.

The bill (S. 1241) to prevent obstructive and injurious deposits within the harbor and adjacent waters of New York City by dumping or otherwise, and to punish and prevent such offenses—to the Committee on Commerce.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

The SPEAKER. The Chair also lays before the House the bill (S. 2202) for the relief of Samuel Noble. This bill is before the Committee on War Claims. They ask to be discharged from its further consideration and that it be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. OATES. A bill precisely the same as this for the relief of Samuel Noble has been reported favorably from the Judiciary Committee and is on the House Calendar now. I ask that if this bill is to be referred it shall go to the same committee.

The SPEAKER. The bill was received some time since and was referred to the Committee on War Claims. The chairman of that committee has sent it to the desk with the request that it be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary. It can only be so referred by unanimous consent of the House.

Mr. OATES. A bill has been before the Judiciary Committee relating to this particular case, both last Congress and this, and upon an examination of the bill there is found a good reason for its being there, because there are some legal questions involved that are unusual in cases of this character. The bill seeks an adjudication of the claim by the Court of Claims, where the case once was in a different form from that which is sought now.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OATES] asks unanimous consent that the Committee on War Claims be discharged from the further consideration of this bill, and that it be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. Is it proposed to put the bill upon its passage, or merely to refer it?

The SPEAKER. To refer it; to change the reference.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I have no objection to that.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. HUTTON for two weeks, on account of important business.

To Mr. BACON indefinitely, on account of important business.

To Mr. LANE indefinitely, on account of important business.

To Mr. CUTCHEON indefinitely, on account of ill health.

LEGISLATIVE, JUDICIAL, AND EXECUTIVE APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Speaker, in the absence of Mr. FORNEY, by direction of the Committee on Appropriations, I report the bill (H. R. 9377) making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, and for other purposes.

The bill was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying reports, ordered to be printed.

Mr. BURROWS. I reserve all points of order.

Mr. McMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, I reserve all points of order on that bill.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. BROWN, of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee of the Whole be discharged from the further consideration of House bill No. 1740, and that it be put upon its passage.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be read, after which the Chair will ask for objections.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. Regular order.

The SPEAKER. The regular order is demanded, which cuts off all requests for unanimous consent.

Mr. HOLMAN. I move that the morning hour be dispensed with, for the purpose of moving to take up and complete, if possible, what is known as the "homestead bill." I do not think it will occupy more than a single sitting of the House; and I trust there will be no objection to the course which I propose.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] moves to dispense with the morning hour for the call of committees; which requires a vote of two-thirds.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. Speaker, I understand that the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PAYSON] has been called home by reason of a death in his family, and I think that the bill to which the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] refers ought not to be taken up in his absence. Mr. PAYSON is very familiar with it, and has participated in the debate attending its consideration so far, and I think he ought to be present when we proceed with its consideration.

Mr. HOLMAN. Judge PAYSON is in perfect harmony with the provisions of the bill. He has an amendment pending, but he is in perfect harmony with the bill; in fact it is to a very large extent the work of Judge PAYSON and a subcommittee.

Mr. BURROWS. It may be that he is in perfect harmony with the bill, and yet my friend from Indiana will permit me to say that Judge PAYSON's suggestions would be found very valuable in the consideration of the bill.

Mr. HOLMAN. Judge PAYSON would desire the consideration of the bill to proceed. He is very anxious to have it disposed of.

Mr. PERKINS. Is the bill to which the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] refers the bill revising the entire land system of the Government?

Mr. HOLMAN. Yes; the homestead bill.

The question was taken on the motion of Mr. HOLMAN to dispense with the morning hour, and the Speaker declared that the noes seemed to have it.

Mr. SPRINGER. Perhaps the gentleman's motion would not meet any opposition if it was understood that members having reports to present could hand them to the Clerk.

Mr. REED. No; let us go along the regular way.

The House divided on the motion of Mr. HOLMAN; and there were ayes 48.

Mr. HOLMAN. I withdraw the motion.

The SPEAKER. The motion is withdrawn, and the regular order is demanded.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, among the Senate bills submitted to the House was a bill in relation to the harbor of New York, which my colleague, Mr. BRYCE, desires to ask unanimous consent to have considered at this time. It is almost exactly the same bill that the Committee on Commerce reported to the House in relation to the dumping of refuse matter into New York Harbor. Such a bill passed the House several years ago, and this comes from the Senate now with the general consent of the Representatives of New York and New Jersey.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I hope there will be no debate about the matter.

Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I hope there will be no objection to the consideration of that bill.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. Mr. Speaker, I can not withdraw the demand for the regular order.

Mr. COX. It is the same old bill that my friend from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] once reported to the House.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. There is no objection to the bill, but I must insist on the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The regular order is the call of committees for reports.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Mr. CASWELL, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported back the bill (H. R. 4407) to amend Title XXXIII of the Revised Statutes as amended by chapter 121 of the laws, approved March 3, 1883, with the recommendation that the Committee on the Judiciary be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. Speaker, I suggest that the morning hour expired yesterday before the committees had been called through.

The SPEAKER. That call was for private bills only; this call is for both public and private bills.

RELIEF OF SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

Mr. ROBERTSON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1295) for the relief of soldiers and sailors who enlisted or served under assumed names, while minors or otherwise, in the Army or Navy during the war of the rebellion; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

DETAILS OF ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS.

Mr. FORD, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with amendment the bill (S. 186) to amend section 1225 of the Revised Statutes concerning details of officers of the Army and Navy to educational institutions, etc.; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

FORT LOWELL MILITARY RESERVATION, ARIZONA.

Mr. MAISH, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 3060) granting right of way to the Pima Land and Water Company across Fort Lowell military reservation, in Arizona, and for other purposes; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. MAISH also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 1938) to reduce the Fort Lowell military reservation, in Arizona; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

COL. DANIEL M'CLURE.

Mr. MAISH also, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported, as a substitute for House bill 124, a bill (H. R. 9377) for the relief of Col. Daniel McClure; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

House bill 124 was, by unanimous consent, laid on the table.

PAY OF ENSIGNS IN THE NAVY.

Mr. HERBERT submitted the views of a minority of the Committee on Naval Affairs upon House bill 4465, relative to the pay of ensigns of the United States Navy; which were ordered to be printed with the report of the majority.

ROAD TO NATIONAL CEMETERY NEAR MEMPHIS.

Mr. HOOKER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 4372) to provide for the construction of a macadamized road from the city of Memphis, in the State of Tennessee, to the national cemetery near said city; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

SWAMP AND OVERFLOWED LANDS.

Mr. McRAE, from the Committee on the Public Lands, reported back with amendment the bill (S. 758) to relieve purchasers of, and to indemnify certain States for, swamp and overflowed lands disposed of, and for other purposes; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

HUGH FOSTER.

Mr. LAFFOON, from the Committee on the Public Lands, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 9040) to confirm the homestead entry of Hugh Foster; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PATENTS FOR DONATION CLAIMS.

Mr. HERMANN, from the Committee on the Public Lands, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1709) to provide for the issue of patents to certain persons for donation claims under the act approved September 27, 1850, commonly known as the donation law; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, reported back with amendment the bill (H. R. 907) to provide for the erection of a public building at Charlotte, N. C.; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BUILDING, STOCKTON, CAL.

Mr. NEWTON, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, reported, as a substitute for House bill 5606, a bill (H. R. 9378) for the erection of a public building at Stockton, Cal.; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The bill H. R. 5606 was ordered to be laid on the table.

PUBLIC BUILDING, FREMONT, NEBR.

Mr. NEAL, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 1613) for the erection of a public building at Fremont, Nebr.; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BUILDING, ELMIRA, N. Y.

Mr. NEAL also, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, reported as a substitute for House bill 6713 a bill (H. R. 9379) for the erection of a public building in the city of Elmira, N. Y.; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The bill H. R. 6713 was ordered to be laid on the table.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise to submit a privileged motion.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GROSVENOR. I move to reconsider the vote by which the bill H. R. 285 was passed on yesterday by the House.

The SPEAKER. The motion will be entered.

Mr. GROSVENOR. I do not care to press the matter at this time.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman's motion will come up on private-bill day.

JOHN M. HUTCHINS.

Mr. LANE, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 6042) granting a pension to John M. Hutchins; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

CHLOE FRAILY.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 9127) for the relief of Chloe Fraily; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

EDWARD HEALEY.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 6057) to place on the pension-roll the name of Edward Healey; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JAMES T. BOURLAND.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 8428) granting a pension to James T. Bourland; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

HARRIET E. COOPER.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 8807) granting a pension to Harriet E. Cooper; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANSON WARD.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 5740) granting a pension to Anson Ward; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ORISON S. BALDWIN.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 8076) granting a pension to the minor children of Orison S. Baldwin; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

M. J. FOGG.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1928) granting a pension to M. J. Fogg; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MARGARET J. CASH.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1384) granting a pension to Margaret J. Cash; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

ANN MERTZ.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1237) granting a pension to Ann Mertz; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

HERMAN BUNN.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (S. 1121) granting a pension to Herman Bunn; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JOHN W. JANUARY.

Mr. LANE also, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 1124) to increase the pension of John W. January; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PENSION FOR LOSS OF BOTH HANDS.

Mr. GALLINGER, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported back with amendments the bill (S. 379) to allow soldiers and sailors of the United States service who have lost both hands an increased pension; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

PENSIONS TO EX-SOLDIERS, ETC., AND DEPENDENT RELATIVES.

Mr. BYNUM. On behalf of my colleague, Mr. MATSON, I desire to submit a report from the Committee on Invalid Pensions upon Senate bill 181, granting pensions to ex-soldiers and sailors who are incapacitated for the performance of manual labor, and providing for pensions to dependent relatives of soldiers and sailors. The bill is reported with amendments.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. GALLINGER. I desire consent to submit the views of the minority of the committee to accompany that bill.

There was no objection.

MOBILE MARINE DOCK COMPANY.

Mr. STOCKDALE, from the Committee on War Claims, reported back with a favorable recommendation the bill (S. 439) for the relief of the Mobile Marine Dock Company; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. STOCKDALE. My colleague on the committee, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. THOMAS], whom I do not now see in his seat, desires to have leave to present the views of the minority on this bill.

There was no objection.

INDIAN DEPREDATIONS.

Mr. WHITTHORNE, from the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 8990) to provide for the adjudication and payment of claims arising from Indian depredations; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the amendments and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JOSÉ ANDRES URTECHO.

Mr. TOWNSHEND, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back with a favorable recommendation the joint resolution (S. R. 68) authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the Military Academy at West Point José Andres Urtecho, of Nicaragua; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

COUNTY OF LAHTO.

Mr. MANSUR, from the Committee on the Territories, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 8663) to create and organize the county of Lahto; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the amendments and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

IOWA RIVER.

Mr. BAYNE, from the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, reported a bill (H. R. 9380) declaring the Iowa River below Wapello an unnavigable stream; which was read a first and second time, referred to the House Calendar, and ordered to be printed.

AGRICULTURAL STATIONS.

Mr. HATCH, from the Committee on Agriculture, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 7222) to amend the act entitled "An act to establish agricultural stations in connection with the colleges established in the several States under the provisions of an act approved July 2, 1862, and of the act supplementary thereto;" which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the amendments and accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Mr. RANDALL, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported back the bill (H. R. 6125) to regulate the salaries of watchmen in the Departments of the Government; and moved that the committee be discharged from the further consideration of the same, and that it be referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department.

The motion was agreed to.

J. G. FELL AND OTHERS.

Mr. SHIVELY, from the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims, reported, as a substitute for the bill H. R. 52, a bill (H. R. 9381) for the relief of J. G. Fell, Edward Hoopes, and George Burnham; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the Private Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The bill H. R. 52 was laid on the table.

CLAIM OF E. JOHN ELLIS.

Mr. PEEL, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, presented an adverse report on the House resolution in regard to the claim of E. John Ellis vs. The Pottawatomie Indians.

The resolution was laid on the table, and the accompanying report ordered to be printed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. This completes the call of committees for reports.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. GEAR until Tuesday next, on account of sickness in his family.

LEAVE TO PRINT.

By unanimous consent, Mr. CASWELL was granted leave to print in the RECORD some remarks on the bill to refund the direct tax. [See APPENDIX.]

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. HOLMAN. I now move that the House take up for consideration the unfinished business, being what is known as the homestead bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana calls up the privileged unfinished business.

Mr. PERKINS. I would like to ask the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] if his committee is ready to proceed with the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill to-day. If so, I think it would be better to consider that bill to-day rather than the bill suggested by the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. PEEL. I will say to the gentleman from Kansas that I am ready, as a matter of course, to go on with the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill. But I regard the bill called up by the gentleman from Indiana as of very great importance, and I think it is proper the House should decide which bill it will consider.

Mr. CANNON. Why not let the Indian appropriation bill take the time to-day which the bill called up by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] would take?

Mr. HOLMAN. As yet, it has only been discussed for an hour and a half.

Mr. CANNON. It has got to pass in the end.

Mr. HOLMAN. No doubt it will pass.

Mr. WEAVER. I believe that in the consideration hour the call rests with the Committee on Patents.

The SPEAKER. It does.

Mr. WEAVER. And that there has been no proposition to dispense with that hour.

The SPEAKER. It can not be dispensed with except by unanimous consent.

Mr. WEAVER. The Committee on Patents has one or two small bills which it should like to have considered. But I am willing the consideration hour should be passed over if that committee does not lose its place.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman asks unanimous consent to dispense with the hour for the consideration of bills called up by committees.

Mr. DINGLEY. I object.

The SPEAKER. The call rests with the Committee on Patents. The hour for the consideration of bills begins at 10 minutes to 1 o'clock.

HYLAND C. KIRK AND OTHERS.

Mr. WEAVER. I yield to the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. VANCE].

Mr. VANCE. I call up for consideration the bill (S. 395) for the relief of Hyland C. Kirk and others, assignees of Addison C. Fletcher and others.

The SPEAKER. This bill is in Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. VANCE. I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of considering this bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole House, Mr. HATCH in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is in Committee of the Whole for the purpose of considering the bill which the Clerk will read.

The bill was read.

Mr. SPRINGER. I rise to a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SPRINGER. This hour is set apart for the consideration of public bills. This bill is either on the Private Calendar or should be there. It belongs there and is not a public bill. Another point of order I make is this, that this bill has undoubtedly been referred to the Committee on Patents through the petition-box.

Mr. WEAVER. Oh, no; it is a Senate bill.

Mr. SPRINGER. Under our rules all bills of this character must go to the Committee on Claims or the Committee on War Claims, unless by unanimous consent the House shall otherwise direct. I do not know how the bill got to the Committee on Patents. Being simply a private claim, it should have gone to the Committee on Claims.

It was before the Committee on Claims during the last Congress and it was at that time that I became somewhat familiar with the case. I did not know it was the same case until I heard the bill read, and I at once recognized it as one that had been before the Committee on Claims at the last session. I make the point of order that this hour is for public business, and private bills can not be considered.

Mr. WEAVER. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman I wish to say that this bill was referred to the Committee on Patents in the regular course of business of the House, was considered by that committee, was reported back to the House, and was placed on the Calendar. It is a Senate bill. It has been passed by the Senate and referred to the House; and it is too late now to make the point of order, the House having gone into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill.

Mr. SPRINGER. I could not make the point of order until I heard the bill read. Immediately upon the reading of the bill I did make the point.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will cause to be read by the Clerk a portion of paragraph 5 of Rule XXIV.

Mr. WEAVER. Let me add, Mr. Chairman, that the bill involves the infringement of a patent.

The Clerk read as follows:

Paragraph 5 of Rule XXIV: "After the morning hour shall have been devoted to reports from committees (or the call completed), the Speaker shall again call the committees in regular order for one hour, upon which call each committee, on being named, shall have the right to call up for consideration any bill reported by it on a previous day, on either the House or Union Calendar."

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will now read the Calendar upon which this bill appears to be.

The Clerk read as follows:

Private Calendar, page 62, Senate bill 395, with Report 1476: A bill for the relief of Hyland C. Kirk and others, assignees of Addison C. Fletcher.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair thinks there is no room for any but one interpretation or construction of the rule. The bill is neither on the House Calendar nor on the Union Calendar, and the rule that has been read must be construed strictly. The Chair, therefore, sustains the point of order. This bill can not be considered in this hour.

Mr. WEAVER. There is an additional point of order that the point made by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SPRINGER] came too late.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair does not think the point could be made until the bill was read, so that members might know what it was.

Mr. WEAVER. The bill was read by its title in the House, and the motion was made to go into the Committee of the Whole to consider it.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair thinks that the point of order was made at the proper time, as soon as the bill was read at length in the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. WEAVER. I move that the committee rise.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. HATCH, from the Committee of the Whole, reported that they had had under consideration the bill S. 395, and that a point of order having been raised against it, the Chair sustained the point of order, whereupon the committee rose.

The SPEAKER. The Chair did not observe the character of this bill when it was read, his attention having been otherwise attracted at the moment; but under the rule private bills can not be considered in this hour.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I now call up the unfinished business, the "homestead bill."

Mr. DINGLEY. Have we not entered upon the execution of the morning hour, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. We have. The hour has not expired.

Mr. DINGLEY. I ask for the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The regular order is demanded. The Clerk will call the next committee.

Mr. MORRILL (when the Committee on Invalid Pensions was called). I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Invalid Pensions be passed over on this call without losing its place.

Mr. MCMILLIN. What is the gentleman's object?

Mr. MORRILL. The reason is that the chairman is absent and there are only one or two members of the committee present.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

Mr. LANHAM (when the Committee on Claims was called). I call up for consideration House bill No. 3255, to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to settle and pay the claim of the State of Florida for expenses incurred in suppressing Indian hostilities, and for other purposes. I do not, however, see the gentleman from Florida [Mr. DOUGHERTY] in his seat at this moment, and therefore I will ask the consent of the House that the Committee on Claims be passed over for the present, not losing its place in the call.

A MEMBER. Is not this a private bill?

The SPEAKER. Bills to reimburse States are always treated as public bills, and go to the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union.

Mr. TURNER, of Georgia. The gentleman from Florida [Mr. DAVIDSON] has been in attendance this morning, and will probably return very soon.

Mr. LANHAM. Then, with that understanding, Mr. Speaker, I ask the House to proceed with the consideration of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The bill is in Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union.

Mr. LANHAM. I move that the House now resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union for the purpose of considering the bill which I have indicated.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union (Mr. McCREARY in the chair) and proceeded to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 3255) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to settle and pay the claim of the State of Florida on account of expenditures made in suppressing Indian hostilities, and for other purposes.

The bill was read, as follows:

Whereas under the joint resolution of Congress approved March 3, 1881, directing the Secretary of War to investigate the claim of the State of Florida against the United States for the suppression of Indian hostilities, between the years 1855 and 1860, the said Secretary of War did investigate said claim and ascertain the amount due to the said State to be $224,648.09, as returned to Congress in the letter of the Secretary of War, dated May 22, 1882, in Executive Document No. 203; and

Whereas there were certain items in said State claim which the Judge-Advocate of the United States Army deemed best to "be passed upon by the accounting officers of the Treasury under proper equitable rules provided by legislation in that behalf;" and

Whereas there is now held by the Treasury of the United States, in trust for the Indian trust fund, certain bonds of the State of Florida aggregating the sum of $132,000; and

Whereas there has been credited upon the account of said bonds of the State of Florida certain moneys due said State under the act approved March 3, 1845, entitled "An act supplemental to the act for the admission of Florida and Iowa into the Union, and for other purposes;" and

Whereas certain other moneys are due said State under the act approved March 2, 1855, entitled "An act for the relief of purchasers of swamp and overflowed lands:" Now, therefore,

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to settle and adjust the claim of the said State of Florida as found and reported in said letter of the Secretary of War, dated March 22, 1882, and under the acts above cited, and to pay to the said State such sum of money as he may find to be due the said State (under the aforesaid letter and acts, and also any further sum that may be found to be due the said State on any other account), and in making such settlement he shall retain the whole, or so much thereof as may be necessary, of said allowance or settlement and apply the same to the payment of the principal and interest, or either, of said bonds of the State of Florida, held as aforesaid, or to the reimbursement of the United States of moneys advanced by the United States on account of interest due on such bonds, and shall demand of said State, and allow to it, upon said claim or claims for the purpose of such settlement, the rate of interest stipulated in said bonds.

SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Treasury shall allow said State to file such further evidence as the State may have to establish the right of the State to demand of the United States the payment of the items of said claim disallowed or suspended by the Secretary of War in the said report of the Judge-Advocate of the United States Army, and to include in such evidence all other payments made by said State for services, and shall settle and adjust the claim of the State therefor, and shall pay such sum as may be ascertained to be due the State thereon; and there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, a sum sufficient to enable the Secretary of the Treasury to carry out the provisions of this act: Provided, That the balance remaining due of the direct tax under the act of August 5, 1861, be held and treated as a proper set-off against the claims of the State of Florida, in the adjustment herein required, unless Congress shall otherwise provide by general law, releasing all claims for said direct tax or for refunding all payments of such tax heretofore paid.

SEC. 3. That this act shall take effect immediately upon its passage.

The amendments reported by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 10 and 11 strike out the words "and also any further sum that may be found to be due the said State on any other account."

At the end of section 2 add these words: "And provided further, That no portion of any claim heretofore paid said State under any appropriation by Congress shall be considered in said settlement."

Mr. LANHAM obtained the floor.

Mr. KEAN. Mr. Chairman, would it be in order to move that this bill be reported to the House with the recommendation that it be postponed until the 6th day of December next?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. LANHAM] has the floor, and has not yielded it.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Chairman, this bill was favorably reported from the Committee on Claims in the last Congress, was considered by the House and passed here—perhaps unanimously—at least there was no yea-and-nay vote, I believe, taken upon it; and no serious opposition was then urged to the bill. The gentleman from Florida [Mr. DAVIDSON] introduced the bill; and it was reported by his colleague [Mr. DOUGHERTY] from the Committee on Claims. I now yield the floor to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. DAVIDSON], who will take charge of the bill.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas. Has the report been read?

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Florida. It has not been read. I ask that it be read, or so much as may be necessary.

The Clerk proceeded to read the report, but was interrupted by

Mr. KEAN, who said: Mr. Chairman, I think it would be better to postpone the consideration of this bill until the 6th of December, rather than occupy time by reading this long report.

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Florida. The gentleman has not the floor to make that motion.

Mr. KEAN. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. KEAN. Would it be in order now to move that this bill be reported to the House with the recommendation that its further consideration be postponed until the 6th day of next December?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida had the floor and is having the report read in the time allowed him.

Mr. KEAN. I thought perhaps we might save the time of the House by the course I suggested.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will continue the reading of the report.

The Clerk resumed and concluded the reading of the following report (by Mr. DOUGHERTY):

The Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 3255) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to settle and pay the claim of the State of Florida on account of expenditures made in suppressing Indian hostilities, and for other purposes, beg leave to submit the following report:

A bill identical with the one under consideration passed the House of Representatives during the second session of the Forty-ninth Congress, the same having been reported from the Committee on Claims.

The facts are substantially set forth in the House Report 803, Forty-ninth Congress, first session.

In accordance with the requirements of the joint resolution of Congress approved March 3, 1881, the Secretary of War has investigated, audited, and made a report to Congress, May 23, 1882, of the amount of the claim of the State of Florida for expenditures made in suppressing Indian hostilities in that State between the 1st day of December, 1855, and the 1st day of January, 1860. (Ex. Doc. 203, Forty-seventh Congress, first session. See Appendix.)

The conclusion of this report is as follows:

"The amounts to be reported to Congress, in the view taken by me of the provisions of the joint resolution of March 3, 1881, are as follows:

Abstract A	$154,623.66
Abstract B	7,890.92
Abstract C	34,669.74
Abstract D	17,247.39
Abstract E	98.59
Abstract F	395.16
Abstract G	187.90
Abstract H	9,015.81
Abstract I	10.10
Abstract K	501.32
Account of J. H. Cooper	7.50
Total	224,648.09

"An amount less by $54,985.58 than that of the claim as submitted by the State; $11,316.91 of this is for payment of troops for service in 1849, and $6,270.37 for the payment of two companies in cases where both muster and pay rolls are missing and referred to specifically in this report in consideration of Abstract A. The reasons for the failure to include the remainder have been hereinbefore set forth.

"Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

"THOMAS F. BARR,
"Judge-Advocate, United States Army.

"The SECRETARY OF WAR."

The expenditures grew out of the Seminole war of 1855, 1856, and 1857, the State authorities being compelled, in the presence of an anticipated and subsequently actual outbreak of the Indians, to call forth the militia of the State, the force of United States troops then on duty being inadequate to the protection of the people. The report of the Secretary of War (Ex. Doc. 203) fully sets forth in detail the items of expenditure allowed and disallowed. The total amount of the claim found to be due is $224,648.09.

All of the facts are set forth in letter from the Secretary of War heretofore appended, together with copies of documents which establish the necessity for the use of the troops.

From the records cited in said letter it clearly appears that the use of the troops was approved by the authorities, namely, President of the United States through the Secretary of War, and that orders were issued to have them mustered in and out of the service of the United States, so that they might be paid as other United States troops were paid.

It also appears that the orders for such mustering in and out of the service did not reach the seat of war in said State in time, and the State was left to pay the troops.

Upon this subject the following statement and letters seem conclusive:

"On the 8th of May, 1857, the governor of Florida addressed a communication to the Secretary of War, setting forth at considerable length his action in calling for troops, the service in which they were employed for the protection of the citizens, and the faithful manner in which they acquitted themselves. He called special attention to the fact that these forces had acted in effective co-operation with the United States troops; and to emphasize the necessity of the course he pursued, he alluded to the circumstance that when Brigadier-General Harney was subsequently ordered to the command in Florida he felt it necessary, in addition to a greatly increased regular force, to make requisition for ten mounted and five foot companies of volunteers, 'being,' as the governor remarks, 'a much larger volunteer force than had, at any previous time since this last outbreak occurred, been employed by the Federal and State authorities combined, thus fully indorsing and vindicating the action of the State in this matter.' The governor concluded his letter by asking the Secretary of War, in behalf of the United States, 'to approve and adopt the service.'

"Upon this letter of Governor Broome's are indorsements of the Paymaster-General and Adjutant-General, reciting that, according to the precedents, it was only necessary for the President to recognize the troops as having been in the service of the United States, and direct that they be mustered in and out of service, when they could be paid upon an appropriation therefor being made by Congress. The Adjutant-General recommended that 'an officer be sent as soon as possible to muster them in and out of the service of the United States,' which recommendation was approved by the Secretary of War, who notified the governor as follows:

"WAR DEPARTMENT, Washington, D. C., May 21, 1857.

"SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, asking an approval of the services of certain volunteers called out by you, and in reply to inform you that the explanation as to the necessity of their services is satisfactory, and orders have been issued to the officer commanding in Florida to muster them in and out of the service of the United States.

"Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

"JOHN B. FLOYD,
"Secretary of War.

"His excellency JAMES E. BROOME,
"Governor of Florida, Washington."

"WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
"Washington, D. C., May 21, 1857.

"SIR: I have the honor to transmit a copy of a letter addressed by the governor of Florida, under date of May 3, 1857, to the Secretary of War, respecting volunteers called out by the former to suppress Indian hostilities in Florida, but never regularly mustered into the service of the United States.

"The services of these volunteers having been recognized and approved by the President, the Secretary of War directs that you cause one of the officers of your command to muster into and out of the service of the United States, as soon as practicable, the troops indicated by Governor Broome, to the end that they may be paid whenever Congress shall make the necessary appropriation for the purpose. A supply of blank muster-rolls will at once be sent to your address.

"I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

"S. COOPER, Adjutant-General.

"COMMANDING OFFICER, DEPARTMENT OF FLORIDA,
"Tampa, Fla.

"On the 7th of July following the governor wrote to the Secretary of War, stating that it had been found to be impracticable to muster in those troops, as directed by the Secretary, they having long since been disbanded, and it being impossible again to assemble them at any one point. The governor suggested that the muster be made from the properly certified rolls of the State. To this the Secretary replied that no officer could make a constructive muster, as suggested, but that to certify the rolls he must have mustered the troops present. The Secretary adds:

"'Under the circumstances the only course left for the Department is to receive as official the State rolls, duly certified by the State authorities, and to base upon them a recommendation to Congress for the appropriation necessary to pay off the troops. This course will obviate the difficulties mentioned by you on account of the disbandment of the volunteers in question.' (See muster-rolls in appendix.)"

Congress having directed the Secretary of War to ascertain the amount of the claim of Florida, and that Department having reported the amount of the claim of the State to be $224,648.09, there is no difficulty presented as to the amount.

The grounds for the claim being clearly set forth, the question arises, is it the duty of the Government to pay said claim?

The Constitution, the laws, and the precedents in similar cases establish this liability.

Article 4, section 4, of the Constitution expressly enjoins upon the United States the duty to "protect them (the States) against invasions." The act of February 28, 1795, was passed to effectuate that provision of the Constitution, and its section 1642 Revised Statutes included "invasion of Indian tribes" as one of the kind of invasions against which the United States shall guaranty the States.

The question of authority on the part of the President in such cases is no longer an open one, but has been decided by the Supreme Court in Luther vs. Burden (7 Howard, 45) that the President was the sole and exclusive judge of the fact as to when an emergency calling for Federal aid to repel invasion had arisen, and that "the State itself must determine what degree of force the crisis demands." The same was also held in Martin vs. Mott (12 Wheaton, 29).

In the case of Florida the State did determine that the employment of the State troops was necessary, and the Secretary of War, whose official acts are those of the President (Wilcox vs. McConnell, 13 Peters, 513), did decide in May, 1857, that the State troops maintained and paid by Florida were essential to the security of the State, and approved and adopted their service, and ordered that they be "mustered in and out of the United States service," that they might be paid.

Under these authorities quoted above the decision of the President was final and conclusive upon all parties, and can not be disturbed or inquired into by Congress or the courts.

The President decided that an emergency had arisen calling for Federal aid in protecting Florida. The governor decided that additional force was needed and the President approved his decision, and these troops were employed and paid by the State. Congress directs the War Department to ascertain what amount was so paid by Florida, and he ascertains and reports the sum.

A line of unbroken precedents setting forth the action of the Government in similar cases establishes the liability of the Government to pay the claim and to reimburse the State for money expended.

Such a basis of settlement introduces in this case the question of interest.

It is established that the funds at the command of the executive of the State of Florida in the years referred to were insufficient to equip, supply, and pay the troops in the field, and, relying upon the approval given by the President of the United States, through the Secretary of War, on the 21st day of May, 1857, of the services of these volunteers, the State Legislature, in order to provide their equipment and maintenance, authorized the issue of 7 per cent. bonds.

A portion of the bonds, amounting to $132,000, was sold by the governor to the Indian trust fund of the United States, and the proceeds of such sale were disbursed by the treasurer of the State for the "expenses of Indian hostilities," as appears from his report to the Legislature for the year ending October 31, 1857 (Ex. Doc. 203, Forty-seventh Congress, first session). Another portion was hypothecated to the banks of South Carolina and Georgia as security for a loan of $222,015, and $192,331 of this loan was disbursed directly by a disbursing agent of the State in payment of "expenses of Indian hostilities," including pay of volunteers (Ex. Doc. 203, Forty-seventh Congress, first session, hereto appended).

The Government has uniformly paid interest in cases where the States have borrowed money expended in its behalf, upon which they themselves have paid interest.

We cite the cases where interest has been allowed and paid for moneys advanced during the war of 1812-'15, as follows:

"Virginia, act March 3, 1825 (4 Stat. at Large, page 132).
"Maryland, act May 13, 1826 (4 Stat. at Large, page 161).
"Delaware, act May 20, 1826 (4 Stat. at Large, page 175).
"New York, act May 22, 1826 (4 Stat. at Large, page 192).
"Pennsylvania, act March 3, 1827 (4 Stat. at Large, page 241).
"South Carolina, act March 22, 1832 (4 Stat. at Large, page 499).
"Massachusetts, act July 8, 1870 (16 Stat. at Large, page 198)."

For advances for Indian and other wars the same rule has been observed in the following cases:

"Alabama, act January 26, 1849 (4 Stat. at Large, page 344).
"Georgia, act March 31, 1851 (9 Stat. at Large, page 626).
"Georgia, act March 3, 1879 (20 Stat. at Large, page 385).
"Washington Territory, act March 3, 1859 (11 Stat. at Large, page 429).
"New Hampshire, act January 27, 1852 (10 Stat. at Large, page 1)."

In addition to the citations above, there seems nowhere any conflict of authorities upon these points.

Following the same line will be found the reports of the Senate Committee on Claims, No. 2, Forty-ninth Congress, first session, and No. 1,900, Forty-ninth Congress, second session, respectively.

The opinion of Attorney-General Wirt on an analogous case, is as follows:

"The expenditure thus incurred forms a debt against the United States which they are bound to reimburse. If the expenditures made for such purpose are supplied from the treasury of the State, the United States reimburse the principal without interest; but if, being unable itself, from the condition of its own finances, to meet the emergency, such State has been obliged to borrow money for the purpose, and thus to incur a debt on which she herself has had to pay interest, such debt is essentially a debt due by the United States, and both the principal and interest are to be paid by the United States." (See Opinions of Attorneys-General, volume 1, page 174.)

In addition, the opinion of Attorney-General Crittenden, who says:

"The act of 27th of February, 1851, is intended to indemnify the State against loss or damage. Reimbursing means repairing the loss or expenses by an equivalent. If the State of Florida has contracted obligations bearing interest, or has paid money with interest, for the use and benefit, in necessary and proper supplies for the troops called into service in 1849, to refund to the State of Florida the principal sum only, without the interest, would not reimburse the State, would not save the State from loss and damage, would not be an equivalent for the expense the State has incurred for the United States. There is no public policy, no saving to the public Treasury, no virtue, no laudable end consulted in order to cut down the claims of the several States in opposition to the intention of Congress and the good faith of the Government."

Also of Attorney-General Brewster in case of the State of New York, dated July 23, 1883:

"Undoubtedly the interest paid by the State of New York on money borrowed and applied to the objects specified in the act of July 27, 1861, forms a part of the burden borne by that State for the general public defense, and constitutes a just charge against the United States, and the obligation to reimburse for payments of that kind, made under similar circumstances, has frequently been recognized by Congress, as appears by statutes above cited."

Upon the facts as presented by the official records of the State of Florida, by those of the War Department as set forth in letter of Secretary appended hereto, and from the law and precedents, your committee arrive at the following conclusions:

1. That the services were rendered by the troops of the State of Florida in connection with the Army of the United States.

2. These services were recognized and approved by the President and Secretary of War, and the Secretary of War issued orders that the troops be mustered in and out of the service of the United States for the purpose of paying for such service in the usual and regular way.

3. That before the orders for mustering in and out of service reached Florida, the State troops had been disbanded, and they could not be actually mustered, and the officers of the Army decided that there could not be a constructive muster, which was right and proper, and which brought the claim to Congress.

4. The report of the Secretary of War excludes all claims and charges except those usually allowed to the regular Army under similar circumstances.

5. The amendments recommended continue to shut out these claims and claims heretofore allowed or disallowed under other appropriations.

6. The law has been decided to be that where a State pays interest on disbursements for the United States, that in allowing the claim interest shall be allowed.

The case is further strengthened, in the opinion of the committee, by the fact that a committee of the Senate has twice reported a bill to pay the State of Florida the sum of $92,000, and a bill to that effect passed the Senate on June 9, 1886. (See CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, first session Forty-ninth Congress.)

A bill identical with this, as has been stated, passed the House of Representatives, second session Forty-ninth Congress, the only difference between the two bills being the amount of the appropriation.

Therefore, the passage of the bill with the following amendments is recommended:

Strike out in lines 10 and 11 the words "and also any further sum that may be found to be due the said State on any other account."

In line 14, section 2, after the words "direct tax," insert the words "under the."

In line 20, after the word "paid," insert "And provided further, That no portion of any claim heretofore paid said State under any appropriation by Congress shall be considered in said settlement."

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Florida. Mr. Chairman——

Mr. BURROWS. The gentleman will pardon me a moment. Was it the intention to have the entire report read?

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Florida. The appendix embracing various exhibits is not properly a part of the report, and it is not necessary to read it.

Mr. BURROWS. I see that the report, as already read, makes constant reference to certain exhibits, which it strikes me ought to be read in order that the House may have a clear understanding of the matter.

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Florida. If necessary, those exhibits can be read, but not in my time.

Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. MANSUR] was a member of the subcommittee of the Committee on Claims which considered this bill. I yield to him such time as he may desire.

Mr. MANSUR. Mr. Chairman, when the subcommittees of the Committee on Claims were appointed this claim was the first one brought to the attention of the subcommittee of which I was a member by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. DOUGHERTY]; and it occupied the time of the subcommittee during some three or four meetings. Although it was very vigorously urged by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. DOUGHERTY], I for a time hesitated to lend my sanction to its favorable report to the full committee; but after as careful an investigation of the whole claim as our time would permit, I recognized it as an honest and just claim, one which the Government ought to have allowed and paid long ago.

The difficulty in regard to this claim arises from the fact that at one time the then Secretary of War, Mr. Jefferson Davis, had refused to accept more than five companies of volunteer troops on the part of Florida in defense of the citizens of that State from the uprising and insurrection of the Indians within its borders. But finally, hostilities breaking out very suddenly, by which a lieutenant and a number of men were killed, the governor of the State, Mr. Broome, felt himself called upon to take the necessary steps in defense of the citizens of the State. The report being made to the Secretary of War, Mr. Davis, he at once changed his former instructions, as will be noticed from a letter on page 20 of the report sent to Capt. John C. Casey. In this letter the Secretary of War remarks:

The occurrence of actual hostilities commenced by the Seminole Indians suspends all the instructions heretofore given you with a view to effect the peaceable removal of those Indians.

Turning to page 17 of the report, we find a letter of Governor Broome, addressed to the Senate and House of Representatives, under date of November 24, 1856. In this letter he says:

In December last the contingency occurred upon the happening of which the executive was required to carry the law into execution. The Indians commenced actual hostilities by attacking a detachment of United States troops commanded by Lieutenant Hartsuff. This attack was entirely unexpected, and found our frontier population in an unprotected condition. The officer in command of the United States forces was not able to give promptly the protection required for such a line of frontier, and the citizens naturally and properly called upon the State government to protect them in the enjoyment of their lives and property. Before, however, the decision of the executive could be obtained, many men from the counties of Manatee, Hillsborough, and Hernando, moved by patriotic impulses, had organized themselves into companies, elected officers, armed, equipped, and rationed themselves, and had marched to the frontier. These companies I promptly recognized as in the service of the State, and instructed them to give efficient protection to the frontier population, and prevent, if possible, the breaking up and abandonment of the settlements.

I immediately tendered to the Secretary of War such portion of the brigade as had been raised, and offered to raise the balance at the earliest practicable period. He declined, however, to receive more than five companies, three of mounted men and two of infantry—the latter of which I could only procure to the extent of one detachment.

The three mounted companies of volunteers, numbering, rank and file, about two hundred and sixty men, were all the force of that description that I was advised the Government designed using for frontier protection. This, to my mind, was quite insufficient for the reasonable protection of the country, to say nothing of furnishing pursuing parties when the Indians should make their appearance in the settlements.

Further down on page 18, near the second break, it will be observed that Governor Broome says further:

That the Secretary of War did honestly determine to remove the Indians I entertain no doubt, but that he made a mistake in reference to the kind and extent of force necessary for that purpose is now manifest.

Again, on page 19, near the close of the letter, the governor says:

Should the United States call for no additional mounted volunteer force for the present campaign and make no other provision for cavalry, it will in my judgment be unsafe to discharge any part of the mounted force now employed by the State.

I have read these extracts, Mr. Chairman, for the purpose of calling the attention of this committee to the fact that there was at that time a difference of opinion, at least between the Federal Government and the State authorities, as to the amount of force necessary to protect the citizens of Florida against the uprising on the part of the Seminole Indians, the Federal Government no doubt at that time honestly thinking that it had called for sufficient troops to suppress the uprising, while in the opinion of the governor of Florida, who was in a position to better determine the necessities of the occasion, there were not enough troops to meet the actual necessities of the occasion, and hence the need of these additional troops. This bill seeks, then, as will be observed, by calling the attention of the committee to the letter of Mr. Jefferson Davis, which will be found on page 20 of the report, where he revokes all former instructions with regard to the peaceable removal of the Indians, and also by reference to exhibit 7 on the same page, being the order issued by Colonel Monroe, major of the Second Regiment of Artillery, commanding the troops on the peninsula of Florida, in which he makes requisition, under authority of the War Department, upon the government of the State for the following volunteer forces to provide for the protection of the frontier and to co-operate with the United States troops in enforcing the removal of the Indians remaining in the State:

One company of mounted volunteers, to be mustered into service, say, in the neighborhood of Fort Gatlin.

One company of mounted volunteers, to be mustered into service, say, in the neighborhood of Heecheepoksasa, and one company of mounted volunteers, to be mustered into service, say, in the neighborhood of Fort Meade.

Two companies of foot, to be composed exclusively of good woodsmen, familiar with the habits of Indians, to be employed as hunters and trailers in the swamps and morasses, where horsemen can not go, and where alone Indians are to be found and overcome.

I also call attention to the first paragraph of Exhibit No. 8, being the report of Colonel Monroe, major and brevet-colonel, commanding the troops in Florida, in which he transmits a return to the War Department of his requisition on the governor of Florida, and uses the following language:

Doubting whether foot troops could be readily raised, if at all, of a suitable character, my call has been for the maximum number of mounted men authorized, believing it to be the only course which would keep the mass of the frontier settlers at their homes, which they would otherwise abandon, thereby subjecting themselves to much suffering.

With this statement from the official documents in the record I call the attention of the House to the further fact that the difficulty in this claim originated from a difference of opinion between the Federal authorities on the one side, and the State authorities, or rather the executive of the State of Florida, on the other, as to the number of troops necessary for the purpose of removing these Indians. The executive of Florida, determining to protect his people at the first outbreak of the Indians, called into existence and recognized as State troops these troops the payment of which is now in dispute.

They did co-operate for two or three years, more or less—I can not state exactly the time now—with the Federal forces, and were then suffered to be disbanded and sent home. The Government in the mean time having become thoroughly convinced of their necessity, issued an order, bearing date May 21, 1857, and addressed to the governor of the State of Florida. It reads as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1857.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit a copy of a letter addressed by the governor of Florida, under date of May 3, 1857, to the Secretary of War, respecting volunteers called out by the former to suppress Indian hostilities in Florida, but never regularly mustered into the service of the United States.

The services of these volunteers having been recognized and approved by the President, the Secretary of War directs that you cause one of the officers of your command to muster into and out of the service of the United States, as soon as practicable, the troops indicated by Governor Broome, to the end that they may be paid whenever Congress shall make the necessary appropriation for the purpose. A supply of blank muster-rolls will at once be sent to your address.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
S. COOPER, Adjutant-General.

COMMANDING OFFICER, DEPARTMENT OF FLORIDA,
Tampa, Fla.

On page 2 will also be found a statement where Brigadier-General Harney, afterwards in command there, recognized the necessity for these troops and ordered the increase of the command by these five companies to be raised to assist in the protection of the citizens of the State.

From these facts, Mr. Chairman, it is evident that at that time—in 1857, May the 21st—the Government actually recognized the necessity for these troops in the defense of the citizens of the State, and had reached the determination to pay them, but when the officer went down to Florida for the purpose of mustering them in, and to prepare the muster-rolls, he found that the troops had been disbanded and returned home, and it became utterly impracticable to obtain the muster-rolls. The Government then decided that in view of this fact there was no way to have the matter adjusted except to come to Congress and rely upon certified copies of the State rolls as furnishing the data on which to adjust the claim. Three or four years ago the Secretary of War was authorized to investigate this claim and report the exact amount due to the State, originating in the expense incurred by the State in the support and maintenance of these troops; and the Secretary of War, after a careful determination, reported the amount due at $224,648.09.

Thus we see that the amount is fixed, and that probably there is nothing in this case that ought to suspend the judgment of any gentleman upon this floor for a moment, when he is familiar with all the facts upon which it is based. It takes quite a time to look them all over and become familiar with the claim; but on a careful examination of the claim I am satisfied that it is just, and I trust that I have in this very imperfect manner called to the attention of the committee at least the salient points upon which gentlemen may be able to found a correct conclusion when they come to vote upon the question presented.

Mr. DAVIDSON, of Florida. I yield part of my time to my colleague [Mr. DOUGHERTY].

Mr. DOUGHERTY. During the second session of the Forty-ninth Congress, when this bill passed the House, I then made a statement to the House of the facts in this case. It is probably due to the House to state, what all gentlemen here may not know, that when a bill identical with this, having passed the House at the last session of Congress, went to the Senate it met in that body with an adverse report. That adverse report, however, was not a unanimous report. The views of the minority were submitted at that time by a gentleman then a Senator from Tennessee, now a member of this House, and those views as expressed by him, in my judgment, put the gist of the case before the Senate.

The report of the Senate committee was adverse principally upon the ground that there was no emergency calling for the use of these troops. There is no proof anywhere that these troops were not called into service by the governor of Florida. All of the records, both of the Government and of the State, go to show that those troops were used in connection with United States troops and under the command of United States officers. In addition to that the records will show indisputably that the use of those troops was approved by the President of the United States through the Secretary of War.

[Here the hammer fell.]

The CHAIRMAN. The hour for the consideration of bills has expired. The gentleman from Florida [Mr. DOUGHERTY] will be entitled to the floor when the consideration of the bill is resumed. The committee will rise.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. MCCREARY reported that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, having had under consideration the bill H. R. 3255, had come to no conclusion thereon.

CORRECTION OF A CONFERENCE REPORT.

Mr. HOLMAN rose.

Mr. PEEL. Will the gentleman from Indiana yield to me for a moment?

Mr. HOLMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. PEEL. In the conference report I made yesterday on the bill for the division of the Sioux reservation, the clerk omitted two amendments. The effect of this omission was, in the first place, to derange the numerical order of the balance of the amendments as set forth in the conference report. One of those omissions is No. 43, on page 17, line 12, only changing the number of the section. The other omission is No. 44, page 18, line 20, which was to insert, after the word "State," the words "to be disposed of by future legislation only." That referred to a couple of islands—American and Farm Islands—in the Missouri River, donated to the cities of Chamberlain and Pierre for a park on condition they accept them within twelve months and make improvements; and on their failure those islands revert to the Government to be disposed of by it. That is the only change. I ask that the report which I now send to the desk be substituted, by unanimous consent, for the report presented yesterday.

The SPEAKER. Does the Chair understand that the omission was by the clerk of the committee?

Mr. PEEL. Yes, sir.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Arkansas calls attention to two errors in the report of the committee of conference which he presented yesterday, and asks that they be corrected. The one, the Chair understands, is merely in the numbering of the sections. That is only a clerical error, and the clerk can give the proper numbers. If there be no objection, the other error will be corrected and the corrected report will be substituted for the erroneous one.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. HOLMAN. I now call up for consideration, as unfinished business, the bill H. R. 7901, known as the homestead bill.

Mr. CANNON. It is evident the consideration of that bill can not be finished to-day, as my colleague [Mr. PAYSON], whom we follow on this side in this legislation, and who helped to prepare the bill, is absent under circumstances known to the gentleman from Indiana. I will be very glad if we can go on with the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill, a future day being fixed for considering this bill. I hope the gentleman will accept that proposition.

Mr. HOLMAN. I should be exceedingly glad to do so if a time could be fixed for the future consideration of this bill. I very much regret the absence of Judge PAYSON, who is very familiar with the bill, and who was very prominently identified with its preparation in all its parts. I regret his absence; but I know that, although he has been compelled to leave the House under the circumstances which called him home, he would still desire that that bill be proceeded with at once. I hope there will be no opposition to the consideration of the bill to-day, unless a definite time can be fixed for proceeding with it.

Mr. CANNON. Say two or three weeks from to-day.

Mr. HOLMAN. Do not put it off so far as that.

Mr. CANNON. Well, say next Saturday.

Mr. HOLMAN. If next Saturday is set apart for the consideration of the bill, I will be very glad to consent to its postponement.

A MEMBER. After the reading of the Journal.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana asks unanimous consent that next Saturday, a week from to-day, immediately after the reading of the Journal, be set apart for the further consideration of the unfinished business reported from the Committee on the Public Lands. Is there objection?

Mr. HERMANN. With this understanding, that the assignment shall include such local measures or private bills as have been agreed on and reported by the same committee.

Mr. HOLMAN. I would have to insist on preference for this bill.

Mr. HERMANN. But after the completion of this bill?

Mr. HOLMAN. Certainly, after the completion of the bill.

The SPEAKER. With that modification the Chair hears no objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I object to any assignment of time.

A MEMBER. Too late.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman was on his feet, but the Chair did not know for what purpose when the Chair announced that he heard no objection.

Mr. HOLMAN. I trust the gentleman from Arkansas will not insist on his objection.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Let it go over for the present, and after consultation we will see on Monday if we can not come to an agreement.

Mr. KEAN. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. HOLMAN. I trust that motion will not be put at this moment.

Mr. KEAN. I withdraw it.

Mr. HOLMAN. And I trust that my friend from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] will withdraw his objection.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Arkansas. I can not withdraw it.

Mr. HOLMAN. Then, Mr. Speaker, I move to postpone the further consideration of this bill until next Saturday.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana calls up the bill indicated by him, and moves that its further consideration be postponed until Saturday next. That motion is in order.

The motion was agreed to.

COUNTY OF SAN JUAN, NEW MEXICO.

The SPEAKER announced as conferees on the part of the House on the bill (H. R. 1983) to ratify an act entitled "An act creating the county of San Juan, Territory of New Mexico," Mr. KILGORE, Mr. SPRINGER, and Mr. WARNER.

INDIAN APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I now move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of considering general appropriation bills, with the view of completing the Indian appropriation bill; and pending that I move that general debate be limited to one hour and a half.

Mr. CANNON. Will the gentleman permit me to ask whether he expects to finish his bill to-day?

Mr PEEL. I hope to do so. Of course I can not tell.

Mr. CANNON. He can hardly expect to finish it to-day if the general debate is to occupy an hour and a half.

Several MEMBERS to Mr. PEEL. Make it half an hour.

Mr. PEEL. I have no objection myself, but other members of the committee desire to be heard.

Mr. CANNON. I am a little selfish about the matter. I would like to see the bill finished to-day, so that we may proceed to other business.

Mr. PEEL. Then, Mr. Speaker, if there is any objection I will modify my motion by moving that general debate be limited to half an hour.

Mr. PERKINS. I move to amend that by making the time one hour.

Mr. PEEL. I accept that.

The amendment was agreed to.

The motion of Mr. PEEL as amended was then agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question now is on the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL], that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union for the purpose of considering general appropriation bills.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole, Mr. MCCREARY in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is now in Committee of the Whole for the purpose of continuing the consideration of the bill, the title of which the Clerk will read:

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 8565) making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes for the year ending June 30, 1889, and for other purposes.

Mr. PEEL. I now yield thirty minutes to my colleague on the committee, the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. PERKINS].

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Chairman, this bill has, I think, with a single exception, no new provision. It makes the annual appropriation for the Indian service and for the Indian Bureau and follows the liberal precedent that for a few years has been observed in Congress in providing for the education of the Indians. It has, however, a provision for the payment of what is known as the Choctaw and Chickasaw judgment. That is a large item and is likely to provoke some discussion. It was the judgment of the committee that that claim against the Government of the United States should be provided for, and hence the appropriation has been inserted in the bill.

As is known to the members of this House, that is a claim of long standing, arising under treaty obligations and an act of Congress sending the demand of the Indians to the Court of Claims for adjudication, with directions that if a judgment was rendered against the Government of the United States an appeal should be taken to the Supreme Court by the Attorney-General of the United States. Judgment was rendered in the Court of Claims against the Government, and an appeal was taken. The judgment of the Court of Claims was affirmed by the Supreme Court and increased in amount, and was returned to the Court of Claims for final judgment. This judgment was rendered and now draws 5 per cent. interest, and aggregates $2,800,000 and more. This is a solemn adjudication against the Government by the court of last resort under an act of Congress, and I see no defense or relief for the Government from it except it be repudiation. That was the feeling of the committee, and believing this great Government is able to pay its obligations, and should do so, even where the claimants are Indians, it has provided that this judgment shall be paid in full.

[Mr. PERKINS withholds his remarks for revision. See APPENDIX.]

Mr. PEEL. Not only has the tariff been introduced in this debate, but the Confederacy has been resurrected in connection with this Indian appropriation bill. Some day, no doubt, the Indians will understand the tariff, and when they read the speech of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. NELSON] they will all be Democrats. I yield twenty-five minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. ALLEN].

[Mr. ALLEN, of Mississippi, withholds his remarks for revision. See APPENDIX.]

Mr. PEEL. I yield the remainder of the time allowed for general debate to the gentleman from New Mexico [Mr. JOSEPH].

Mr. JOSEPH. Mr. Chairman, it is necessary that I should avail myself of the opportunity offered for general debate on this bill for the purpose of making fitting response to the reflections and unwarranted charges made by the minority report of the Committee on Territories against the character of my constituency.

Mr. Chairman, local pride and national patriotism alike inspire my advocacy of the passage of the bill "to provide for the formation and admission into the Union of the Territory of New Mexico."

Passing for the present the patent fact of her right by requisite population for such admittance, I desire to call the attention of both sides of this House to the natural policy of any government, and to the peculiar idea of this, to stretch the stakes thereof and increase its power by every legal accommodation to the people who pioneer its prairies and plains, open the else barren portion of its territory, and cause its wildernesses to blossom as the rose.

If, sir, the people of New Mexico were asking any stretch to the limits of your Constitution, or any romantic expression to the sentiment of its framers to "increase and multiply;" if they were not deserving, and if it were not for the best interests of the whole Union, I should not ask, my people would not desire, to become a partner actively responsible therein.

The bloodshed, the sacrifices, the unwritten but understood sufferings of our colonial fathers were not alone for the Atlantic strip of country whose soil their blood had enriched. The great eye who watched the interests of the colonists had, from the savage shores of the Ohio, telescopically scanned a more promised land than Moses viewed, and prophetically saw the coming hordes of European sufferers and colonial children peopling the grand wastes to the great Gulf and to the Pacific, and Washington carried that idea throughout the Revolutionary strife, nerving him for the struggles of his mission; he inoculated his first Congress with it, grafted it firmly into the statesmanship of his generation, until the conception became fruition in the settled policy of our fathers.

No pent-up Utica contracts our powers,
But the whole boundless continent is ours.

We, sir, and the passing generation have witnessed the remarkable fulfillment of the prophetic-ken of Washington and his co-statesmen in the incessant march of immigration beyond the Ohio, the filling up of waste territories, the formation of new States, adding more rapidly than we can hardly realize, not asteroids, but grand stars to the galaxy of our glorious Union. We have grasped the continent with iron and copper and silver and golden bands, binding indissolubly the Union from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Thus has been followed the never-forgotten, never-neglected policy of our country. Only asking for loyalty and the constitutional numerical strength, we have favored the growth, encouraged the immigration, fostered embryotic conditions, and admitted States until has been made of this, geographically as well as politically, a nation of material wealth and prosperity unsurpassed in modern, unrivaled in ancient history.

But, sir, in the anxious searching of the restless immigration for a profitable rest, the golden halo of the Pacific Coast outblazed the silver sheen of the midway Eurekas, like Colorado and New Mexico; and our peopling has been comparatively slow, but nevertheless sure and steady; so that to-day, and for years, New Mexico offers her application for membership in the grand sisterhood of States, with a people of energetic industry, unquestioned loyalty, and far beyond the requisite number for statehood.

POPULATION.

From 1850 to 1860 her population increased from 61,547 to 93,516, nearly 50 per cent. Intelligent observers of the history of our great Western States will not forget to credit New Mexico with her loss of many (9,000) thousands to create the Territory of Arizona, and more (15,000) thousands sliced off to help out Colorado. Notwithstanding these drains the increase of population in 1870 was shown to be by the United States census about 35 per cent.; this, too, in an interior where Indian wars had decimated her people and paralyzed her every industry, and with not a railroad nearer to her boarders than a thousand miles. This was the slowest era of her growth—1860 to 1870—when Indian wars not only decimated population, but retarded immigration; when a thousand miles intervened between her and the civilized world; when the idea of a Territory suggested to Eastern people lawlessness, no protection to property or life; no society that was desirable, only disorder, disaster, and discontent. Against these and other odds she grew 35 per cent. numerically; and, sir, during that decade let us look at the growth of older States. In Alabama, Connecticut, Georgia, Arkansas, Delaware, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New York, North and South Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Tennessee the increase was only 20 per cent. True, during this crucial period these States were passing through the fires of fratricidal war. So, too, was New Mexico; yet, and with her added detriments to which they were strangers, she increased in population 35 per cent. to their 20.

In 1885 the population of the Territory, in its thirteen counties, was as follows:

County.	Population.	County.	Population.
Colfax	6,279	Socorro	2,315
Taos	9,775	Sierra	2,438
Rio Arriba	11,764	Lincoln	4,777
Mora	10,015	Doña Ana	7,921
San Miguel	21,435	Grant	7,397
Santa Fé	10,455
Bernalillo	20,061	Total	124,641
Valencia	9,509

Sparsely settled districts were not visited, hence not enumerated which by authentic calculation would add 40,000 to the above.

Non-citizenized Indians (although civilized and among the most industrious, frugal, and prosperous citizens) number 25,000. So that the entire actual population of New Mexico to-day is 189,000.

The present Delegate was elected by a vote of 16,235, against 12,347 for his opponent, making a total vote of 28,582. About 10,000 legal voters are known to have been absent from the polls. It is, therefore, a reasonable assumption that New Mexico's Delegate represents in the present Congress approximating 40,000 voters. Now, sir, let us glance over this House for a comparative representation, and we find from Alabama a gentleman representing 4,220 voters of his own and all opposing parties; one from Arkansas representing 29,100; one from California representing 29,000; the same number represented from Connecticut; one from Delaware represents 22,000; one from Georgia represents 1,700; Illinois, one representing 29,000; Indiana sends one man to represent 35,000; Iowa, one to 26,000; Kansas, one to 30,000; Kentucky, one to 18,000; Louisiana, one to 13,000; Maine, one to 36,000; New York, one to present the interests of 23,000; North Carolina, one for 14,000; Ohio, one for 28,000; Pennsylvania, one for 26,000; Rhode Island, one for 6,000; South Carolina, one for 3,000; Tennessee, one for 20,000; Texas, one for 5,000; Vermont, one for 21,000; Virginia, one for 21,000; West Virginia, one for 28,000; Wisconsin, one for 27,000.

Yet, let me repeat, Mr. Chairman, New Mexico's Delegate on this floor to-day represents 40,000 voters, and I may add that the official lists show that every Delegate from that Territory since 1872 received more votes than were cast for Representatives in many districts in the States.

Now, Mr. Chairman, the census of the Territory for 1885 shows by actual count nearly 125,000 inhabitants. Almost as authentic reports show at least 40,000 more in the sparsely settled districts which were not visited, and the non-citizenized civilized Indians increase the population, as I have said, 25,000 more. Then New Mexico asks admittance as a State with 189,000 people. In later as in former years at least fifteen States have been admitted with less than half that number, namely:

States.	Admitted.	Population.
Nebraska	1866	60,000
Nevada	1864	40,000
Oregon	1849	52,465
Iowa	1846	81,920
Florida	1845	54,447
Arkansas	1836	52,240
Missouri	1821	66,586
Illinois	1818	34,620
Mississippi	1817	75,512
Indiana	1816	63,805
Louisiana	1812	76,556
Ohio	1802	41,915
Tennessee	1796	77,202
Kentucky	1792	73,077
Vermont	1791	85,339

Here are fifteen States which were admitted with not one of them containing one-half the people New Mexico holds to-day. Their aggregate gives an average to each of about 62,000 inhabitants, or one-third of the present population of New Mexico.

But the question of population does not all come from the Constitution or any statute. The custom has been to admit as a State any Territory having the constitutional number of people to entitle them to one Representative in Congress. The Constitution simply says, "New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union."

That word "may" gives the authority so explicitly that no question thereof has ever arisen; gives Congress the power to admit States without the semblance of limitation based upon population. And it is a settled maxim that a given power to act presupposes the action to be a duty. And, sir, it is the duty of the American Congress to admit to full representation any body of American people who may have become a local community of sufficient numerical strength to compose a State. And the exercise of that duty I have already shown has been the settled policy of this Government.

True, it is left discretionary with the Congress. It may refuse admittance to a Territory, but never with propriety when such Territory offers for admission properly prepared. The discretion does not vest a power to hold a Territory in colonial vassalage according to the whim of Congress; but devolves the duty to admit as soon as the people ask and show capacity to support a State government. As a Virginia Senator in the Forty-fourth Congress expressed it more forcibly:

And even this power is subject to control. Whenever a Territory is sufficiently large and its population sufficiently numerous, your discretion ceases, and the obligation becomes imperious that you forthwith admit; for I hold that, according to the spirit of the Constitution, the people thus circumstanced are entitled to the privilege of self-government.

Mr. Chairman, New Mexico has been forty years in the Union; her pupilage has passed, her infancy ended long ago; fitness for self-government has been long evident. Political partisanship manifested in Congressional power has enslaved her in the dependency of Territorial vassalage and denied her vote in the government of herself. But, sir, law, justice, and the genius of our institutions declare the exercise of that power an injustice.

WHY HAS NEW MEXICO NOT BEEN ADMITTED?

In 1850 the people of New Mexico, confiding in the terms of the treaty by which they became a portion of the United States, called a convention, and that body framed a constitution, United States Senators were elected, and Congress was memorialized to admit them to statehood. Greatly to the surprise of that people their request was refused. Why? Never was it said because of any lack of the requisite qualifications on the part of New Mexico. But, sir, the ominous signs and signals of the slavery agitation was the sole cause for refusal. The pro-slavery element in the other Chamber of this Congress was deemed to be already too great, and the probability that the two new Senators from New Mexico might be of the same political hue settled her case adversely.

To-day, sir, that question is dead, buried with the fallen heroes whose life-blood washed it from among the vexed questions on our country's calendar.

Appeals have been made to every Congress since, memorials and petitions have burdened your proceedings, and still New Mexico, with her nearly 200,000 people, stands knocking at the door for entrance. Why? A lack of population has not been hinted for years, because the figures I have given are too universally known; no public man dares to appear ignorant by raising that objection.

Twenty years ago the charge was made of a paucity of educational advantages, and a consequent illiteracy among her people was one of the reasons given for non-admission. Whatever may have been the fact in that unfortunate period of her history, when Indian wars, meager communication facilities between her own people or with the outside world, a widely-scattered population, vast regions traversed by hostile savages, and other untoward circumstances rendered schools almost an impossibility, to-day New Mexico compares more than favorably as to education and educational facilities with one-third of the present States of the Union, and not unfavorably with all. In 1871 she adopted the

PUBLIC-SCHOOL SYSTEM.

The report of the Territorial auditor dated February 28, 1888, containing a consolidation for publication of the reports of the county superintendents of schools for the year ending December 31, 1887, has the following synoptical exhibit:

EXHIBIT A.—Public schools in 1887.

Counties.	Children of school age (5 to 20 years).			Number of pupils enrolled.
	Males.	Females.	Total.	Males.	Females.	Total.
Bernalillo	3,490	1,187	4,677	.....	.....	.....
Colfax	1,185	1,027	2,212	572	621	1,193
Doña Aña	1,250	1,038	2,288	371	353	724
Grant	.....	.....	1,443	226	154	380
Lincoln	.....	.....	1,967	576	389	965
Mora	.....	.....	3,112	.....	.....	.....
Rio Arriba	641	317	958	2,270	1,604	3,874
San Juan	270	217	493	.....	.....	.....
San Miguel	3,979	3,448	7,427	2,091	1,106	3,197
Santa Fé	1,675	1,619	2,694	802	556	1,358
Sierra	501	411	911	152	128	280
Socorro	1,727	1,273	3,000	.....	.....	.....
Taos	.....	.....	2,247	.....	.....	.....
Valencia	.....	.....	3,006	765	400	1,165
Totals	14,718	9,937	36,435	7,825	5,311	13,136

Counties.	Average daily attendance.			Teachers employed.			No. of months taught.	No. districts in county.
	Males.	Females.	Total.	Females.	Males.	Total.
Bernalillo	1,745	593	2,338	.....	.....	.....	.....	36
Colfax	431	501	942	29	11	40	152	27
Doña Aña	243	268	511	10	7	17	67½	16
Grant	.....	.....	291	.....	.....	25	82	20
Lincoln	.....	.....	644	31	12	43	107	37
Mora	596	284	880	.....	.....	62	106	34
Rio Arriba	641	317	958	36	.....	36	.....	34
San Juan	.....	.....	.....	6	4	10	.....	10
San Miguel	1,527½	733½	2,261	61	9	70	220	63
Santa Fé	743	527	1,270	22	10	32	76½	16
Sierra	509	420	929	7	6	13	47½	9
Socorro	.....	.....	.....	25	15	40	.....	.....
Taos	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
Valencia	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	26	.....	.....
Totals	6,435½	3,643½	11,024	227	74	414	858½	302

EXHIBIT A.—Public schools in 1887—Continued.

Counties.	No. of schools in report.	Amount on hand at beginning of school year, balance December 1, 1886.	From county.	Total amount received.	Amount collected and paid to the treasurer.	Total receipts.
Bernalillo	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
Colfax	.....	.....	.....	$16,788.78	.....	$18,055.70
Doña Aña	.....	$682.54	$1,983.90	2,587.88	.....	.....
Grant	.....	.....	6,049.53	.....	.....	.....
Lincoln	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
Mora	54	.....	7,304.15	.....	.....	.....
Rio Arriba	.....	115.40	1,470.00	.....	.....	.....
San Juan	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
San Miguel	68	1,751.33	13,710.40	16,857.06	.....	.....
Santa Fé	.....	1,178.50½	5,480.00	6,658.50½	.....	.....
Sierra	.....	.....	.....	.....	$2,793.36	.....
Socorro	.....	1,139.85	9,150.00	10,189.85	4,953.24	.....
Taos	24	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
Valencia	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
Totals	146	4,867.62½	45,147.98	53,082.07½	7,746.60	18,055.70

Counties.	Salaries paid to teachers.			Amount paid for blanks, rent, fuel, stationery.
	Highest salary.	Lowest salary.	Total paid to teachers.
Bernalillo	.....	.....	.....	.....
Colfax	.....	.....	$11,465.60	$1,109.05
Doña Aña	.....	.....	1,662.70	155.46
Grant	.....	.....	.....	.....
Lincoln	.....	.....	.....	.....
Mora	$60.00	$15.00	1,109.00	.....
Rio Arriba	.....	.....	.....	.....
San Juan	.....	.....	.....	.....
San Miguel	.....	.....	11,650.55	3,017.07
Santa Fé	.....	.....	4,436.50	595.00
Sierra	100.00	25.00	3,048.50	747.79
Socorro	.....	.....	.....	.....
Taos	25.00	15.00	.....	.....
Valencia	.....	.....	.....	.....
Totals	.....	.....	33,312.85	5,624.37

Counties.	Amount paid school-houses, sites, other purposes, expenditures.	Total expended during the year.	Balance on hand December 31, 1887.	Value of school buildings.	Number of school buildings.
Bernalillo	.....	.....	$9,275.92	.....	.....
Colfax	$3,386.61	$15,663.80	1,634.99	$26,875.00	19
Doña Aña	.....	.....	804.70	100.00	1
Grant	.....	.....	.....	10,350.00	7
Lincoln	.....	8,081.20	1,046.51	.....	.....
Mora	.....	4,637.90	2,066.40	.....	.....
Rio Arriba	.....	3,244.20	1,182.20	.....	.....
San Juan	.....	.....	.....	1,000.00	4
San Miguel	291.90	.....	1,987.54	.....	.....
Santa Fé	359.98	5,390.98	1,267.52½	27,100.00	6
Sierra	850.47	.....	73.31	2,779.12	3
Socorro	.....	.....	.....	.....	1
Taos	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
Valencia	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
Totals	4,798.96	37,018.08	19,939.09½	68,204.12	41

From this it will be observed that over $53,000 were received in the hands of the proper officers in New Mexico for school purposes during 1887, and that at the end of 1887 there was on hand some $20,000.

Her law provides for a general levy of 3 mills on the dollar for school purposes, makes convenient school districts in every county, and provides for the organization of more whenever ten or more heads of families ask therefor, creates superintendents and directors for each county and district, and makes compulsory attendance between the ages of five and twenty. The curriculum is the same as the public schools of Massachusetts or other States. And the zeal of the people in fostering the school system and crowding the school-houses with their children is sufficient refutation of the charge of illiteracy. She has now in successful operation over one hundred and fifty public schools, and appropriates to their support a larger share of her taxes than any other State or Territory in the Union. Besides her public schools there are quite a number of colleges and high schools in the Territory. The pupils, whether the descendants of the natives or the children of Eastern immigrants, are taught everything in English, and it is said with no little degree of pride that there is little if any intellectual superiority in the Eastern pupils over their native fellows.

COMMERCIAL FACILITIES.

Commercial facilities are increasing as rapidly as the increasing wants of the people and the demands of trade. It was years ago one of the so-called reasons for denying New Mexico admittance that she was entirely isolated from the commercial world because of not having a railway within her boundaries. To-day the trains of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad traverse the Territory from the northeast to the southwest corner; the Rio Grande and Utah Railroad is opening the northwest corner; the Atlantic and Pacific Railway, entering from midwest, pierces the center of the Territory; the Southern Pacific has opened the southwest portion from Texas to Arizona; the Silver City and Deming and other branch railways are developing the unrivaled wealth of her mining regions; the Denver and Rio Grande and Texas, Santa Fé and Northern has pierced her north center to Santa Fé, the Territorial capital, and connected her silver mines with those of Colorado. Every one of her rapidly-growing cities and towns offers either railway facilities for travel or stage lines over roadways not excelled in the Union in grades or condition.

Caste is the last and least and weakest objection urged against admitting New Mexico into the sisterhood of States. The objectors argue that her population consists of a people who speak a foreign tongue, with meager American literature, and consequently ignorant of the political and social institutions of the United States. This may have been in a measure true forty years ago, when she first became a portion of the Union. But the same was true of Louisiana when in 1812 she was given the full broad seal of statehood, with only 76,500 inhabitants, nearly all of whom were foreigners or the children of French and Spanish parents. Southern California and other States might have been kept out for the same reason. But what is the truth in this regard of New Mexico? For twenty years her immigration has been altogether from the East, so that to-day the majority of her people are English-speaking citizens of native or American birth. Of the minority the younger portion of the native element have become entirely Americanized, speaking and transacting business in English, and all have made themselves more or less familiar with our customs, laws, and institutions. Some of the descendants of those natives have been the honorable occupants of seats in this Chamber, but without a vote—an empty honor so far as the rights of their constituents were concerned.

Mr. Chairman, I will not be the first member of this House to define the demarkation of American citizenship by language or blood or wealth. Indeed, sir, if we look over the whole Union endeavoring to find the best blood, we are forced to the conclusion that the mixture of races and blood to be found in the people of the United States has made her what she is, in grandeur par excellence of the world. New Mexico has a like admixture of foreign and native blood; but all, or so nearly all as to admit the expression, speaking the English language.

Why, then, Mr. Chairman, has New Mexico so long been denied admittance as a State? With so nearly 200,000 people, no public debt worthy of mention, with public schools liberally supported and fully patronized, with wealth and commerce, with abundant agricultural and mineral resources—why, with all these facts in her favor, has she been so long kept in the vassalage of Territorial government?

It was once asked, "What good is it to the people of a Territory to be a State?" It might be answered that a Territory has no vote, and suffers taxation without representation; it has no power, and the arm of your Government is too short to reach and control remote sections, to guard the people's rights and foster their interests; and, further, history proves that States flourish and increase more rapidly than Territories. The idea of a Territory suggests to the Eastern man want of society, lack of law, and hence emigration thereto is retarded and capital slowly invested, while a State gives promise of power and dignity, and consequently the more attracts immigration. It is "good" to enact their own laws by their own selected legislators and execute them by their own appointed officers instead of stranger aliens placed over them by the National Government.

It is also "good" for the whole Union, for statehood releases the expense of Territorial machinery, thus greatly reducing your annual appropriations; and more, of the few arguments left to State rights none is more potent than that State power will best prevent further bloodshed—in this: a centralized government wields power from center to circumference. To do this in a Territory 300 miles wide is an impossibility without a standing army to enforce the dignity of law and preserve the peaceful protection of the people, and a standing army is repugnant to our institutions. From Washington to Alaska or the Gulf is too great a distance for the arm of the law to extend. State authority and State power relieves the General Government of that task, and does control its people, whether remote from or adjacent to the nation's head. And may not this be really the key to the time-honored policy of this Government to admit the Territories into statehood as rapidly as possible?

But that is not a question of good to the Territory or to the Government. It is a matter of right, if not a constitutional right. It has become the unwritten law by Congressional action for so long a period as to be as firmly one of your institutions as any demand in your grand charter. New Mexico has thrice the population demanded by that action; she has the resources and capacity for State government. It was the agreement in the treaty by which her people became a portion of the United States, and she now stands in your Congressional Halls and demands, not only as good to herself and good to the nation, but as a right inalienable that she be admitted to the honor and dignity and power of a State.

It is strange, Mr. Chairman, in our day, when steam and electricity have canceled distance, when four days' travel introduces us to every mile of our continent, and half-hour telegrams whisper from ocean to ocean, when our bureaus give us the climatic diagnosis of every area and monthly statements of every crop, when New Mexico is as near to you practically as is New York—I say it is strange in our day to find such want of information as is printed in a Congressional paper on this very question of admitting New Mexico as a State. I quote:

> There is claimed for it (New Mexico) an excellence of soil and climate which, however, is substantially, or in great degree, refuted by official and other reports on that region.

"Region!" Were they considering the Congo country? Is New Mexico—midway of your continent—as unknown as the mazy geography of the Nile? Is a Territory of this Government so remote that this same paper must further say:

> A general belief exists that much mineral wealth may be found in the otherwise forbidding country.

There is no excuse in our day of printing-presses for such feigned ignorance of the agricultural and mineral wealth of New Mexico. What are the facts?

New Mexico, lying south of Colorado and east of Arizona, embraces an area of 122,000 square miles, or about 78,000,000 acres of land. The Territory is three times as large as Ohio, thrice as large as all New England. The country is well watered by the Rio Grande, Pecos, San Juan, Red, Taos, Mora, and the Puerco Rivers, besides many other smaller streams. The valleys on both sides of every river have rich alluvial soil as deep and as fertile as the world can show. The statistical reports show that her arable lands yield from 27 to 35 bushels of wheat, of corn 60 to 85 bushels per acre, and the other cereals in like proportion; vineyards show a yield of 1,360 gallons of best wine to the acre. But to be more particular, let me quote from one of the authentic publications of the Territory for last year, the Bulletin, which gives the average grain production in one of New Mexico's valleys:

Corn	bushels per acre	75 to 100
Wheat	do	30 to 60
Oats	do	50 to 75
Barley	do	40 to 50
Rye	do	30 to 45
Pease	do	25 to 35
Alfalfa, 2 tons per cutting tri-annually.
Potatoes, sweet	bushels per acre	75 to 100
Parsnips	do	175 to 275
Mangoes (weighing 30 to 40 pounds each)	do	500 to 800
Beets	do	175 to 400
Carrots	do	175 to 300
Cabbages	weighing pounds per head	5 to 30
Tomatoes	weighing pounds each	½ to 1
Cucumbers	do	1 to 6
Squash (hubbard)	do	10 to 25
Squash (marrowfat)	do	30 to 75
Pumpkins	do	10 to 25

Besides these, New Mexico valleys raise cotton, flax, hemp, tobacco, sorghum, rice, chilli, egg-plant, beans, and other garden vegetables, with excellent hops; and, more yet, after harvesting her crop of wheat, oats, barley, or pease, she plows anew, and the same year secures a crop of corn, cabbage, beets, or turnips.

In fruits, her apples, pears, peaches, apricots, plums, cherries, gages, quinces, equal those of any State in the Union; while her almonds, chestnuts, English walnuts, and filberts will bear successful competition with the nut-growers of the world. Her vineyards have for ten years stood equal with any in America in product, flavor, and wine yield; her melons have, so far, met with no superiors on the continent; while her small fruits, such as strawberries, gooseberries, raspberries, currants, etc., with asparagus, celery, spinach, radishes, and peanuts are unrivaled, and your Agricultural Department will tell you her onions beat the world.

Her plains now, and for years past, have been dotted with profitable ranches crowded with cattle, sheep, and horses, with more favorable round-ups and less percentage of loss than any cattle country of the West can show, and with her beef, mutton, wool, and horses standing on the first grade in Chicago and Eastern marts. The most nutritious grasses cover the broad plateaus of New Mexico, which will continue for years to grow, to offer the best grazing facilities of any cattle country in the United States. The cost of beef-raising is nominal, as stock need never to be housed or fed. The high and dry climate precludes almost the possibility of disease among sheep or cattle. At least half the lands of New Mexico are especially adapted to grazing purposes; and even if future improvement tempted agriculture, stock-raising would always be more profitable. So that New Mexico will forever be one of the main supplies of the beef-caters of the world.

Governor Arny said of New Mexico: "For the profitable raising of horses, mules, cattle, goats, and sheep, and on the most extensive scale, no portion of the world can rival this district. Its mild climate presents no rigors, while its mountain slopes, valleys, and plains are unlimited extents of pasturage."

Her mountains and high table-lands offer immense forests of pine and spruce, enough for ample supply of lumber to her growing population and rapidly building cities.

I might be more explicit with regard to her capacity as a wine-producing country. The Rio Grande and Pecos River valleys produce grapes in wild profusion, whose wines are ranked for table use and compare favorably with Rhine wines. Fair estimates, from practicable sources, give the value of an acre of land well set with vines at from three to five hundred dollars. As early as 1804 Baron Humboldt said of the El Paso country: "The vineyards produce excellent wines, which are preferred even to the wines of Parras and New Biscay." Almost any of the side hills offer excellent vineyard sites, but especially wealthy in this respect is the Rio Grande valley, extending a distance of 350 miles in New Mexico.

HER MINERAL RESOURCES.

It has been stated, and I believe is true, that "the knowledge of the mineral wealth of New Mexico had caused it for a long time previous to its acquisition, in 1846, to be looked upon by the United States as a most desirable addition to the Union."

Early after 1846 rumors of its still fabulous wealth, added to the historical mineral riches it had given for years to Old Mexico, induced hardy pioneers to test its richness, and during that period (from 1846 to 1880), not withstanding its isolation and its then total lack of transportation, notwithstanding the difficulty of obtaining tools or supplies, notwithstanding the miners had to work with arms and ammunition at hand to meet the persistent attacks of hordes of savages—in spite of such almost insurmountable obstacles, in those few years your mint statistics show that those brave delvers dug from the plethoric bowels of New Mexico $13,972,000 in ore, of which $10,350,000 was gold and $3,622,000 silver.

The succeeding five years, from 1881 to 1886, the production of the Territory was:

Years.	Gold.	Silver.	Total.
1882	$691,000	$1,985,000	$2,676,000
1883	700,000	3,376,000	4,076,000
1884	709,000	3,700,000	4,409,000
1885	911,000	4,381,000	5,292,000
1886	797,000	5,671,000	6,468,000
Total	3,808,000	19,113,000	22,921,000

This does not include many valuable shipments of ore sent to other States for reduction. Nor does it make allowance for copper ingot, ore, and matte from the Territory, amounting in that five years to several millions. But the figures demonstrate that the product of the precious metals increased rapidly every year.

Gold has been found in nearly every county in the Territory, either in the river or creek beds as placers, or in the mountain ranges in veins or lodes as quartz.

Lead and smelting ores abound in nearly every portion of the Territory, comprising gold and silver ores, which, being allied to the baser metals, as lead, zinc, sulphur, etc., can not be profitably reduced except by smelting.

Silver, in the form of native, ruby, or vitreous silver, is found in richly paying quantity in many districts of the Territory. Copper has been found in many districts in largely profitable veins, but the depressed condition of that market and the high rate of railroad transportation during the past two years have prevented its extensive working.

Lead, iron, mica, cement, gypsum, fire-clay in inexhaustible amounts, excellent marble, turquoise of purest blue—but, sir, I would weary the House and myself to enumerate the extent and variety of the authentically recorded minerals of this Territory, and I close with a brief allusion to her coal, the mining of which, though in its infancy, has already become an important factor in the resources of the Territory. The United States Geological Survey report gives some instructive facts and figures, as published by your Interior Department. It says:

In New Mexico coal is found in seven counties in beds from 1 to 14 feet thick. The quality ranges through all varieties, from brown to anthracite. The most important fields yet opened are those in Colfax County, and embrace an area of 600,000 acres, the product being a lignite, which varies greatly in quality. The following analyses were made from specimens taken near the surface:

Constituents.	Top of vein.	Middle.	Bottom.
	Per cent.	Per cent.	Per cent.
Moisture	2.00	3.10	2.60
Volatile matter	37.10	35.00	34.30
Fixed carbon	51.60	51.50	47.50
Ash	9.30	10.40	15.60
Total	100.00	100.00	100.00

The report further says of the coal mined from the Los Cerillos beds:

The coal is hard, dense, and of a brilliant luster, and is said to be, so far as application for all practical purposes is concerned, fully equal to the best Pennsylvania anthracite.

It also gives minute reports of bituminous coal-beds in other portions of the Territory, and closes generally with the following:

The New Mexico coals compare favorably with those found farther north. The production of the Territory since 1881 has been:

	Raton.	Gallup.	Monero.	Cerillos.	San Pedro.	Total.
1882	91,798	33,373	12,000	3,600	16,321	157,092
1883	112,089	42,000	17,240	3,000	37,018	211,347
1884	102,513	62,802	11,203	3,000	41,039	220,557
1885	135,833	97,755	14,958	1,000	56,656	306,202
1886						271,285
Grand total						1,116,483

And continues:

Placing the value of these coals at $5 per ton (which is a fair average for the entire period), the value of the product of the Territory during the past five years is, in total, $5,832,415.

It is surely not necessary, Mr. Chairman, that this intelligent House should be burdened with further citations to prove the capacity of New Mexico for State government and her promise in native resources for enriching all the myriads of industrious people who will eventually crowd her borders, and for adding one of the most lustrous to the galaxy of States that glorify this Union.

It is enough, sir, to say that New Mexico offers population sufficient, resources adequate, wealth enough to make and keep her statehood. She has made the same offer for years, and for years she has been refused admittance as a State.

MINORITY REPORT.

The minority report evidences on its face that only by a stretch of the imagination and an unwarranted attack on the morals and religion of our Mexican citizens do they expect to defeat this measure looking for the admission of New Mexico.

In their report appear the following statements and quotations:

NEW MEXICO.

New Mexico was organized as a Territory on March 9, 1850, with a population numbering about 80,000 people of Spanish-Mexican descent. In 1885 the population was 134,141, and is now estimated by the governor of the Territory to be nearly 160,000. While the minority of your committee have felt a hesitancy and delicacy about presenting facts that may appear otherwise than flattering to the people of that Territory, as well as to the country at large, yet believing this Territory not now sufficiently advanced in material respects, as well as in civilization and education, to entitle her people to admission into the Union at this time, and being charged with the duty of either assenting or dissenting to that proposition, we feel that, in the face of the surprising and unjustifiable attempt on the part of the majority of the committee to have Congress pass an enabling act for the people of New Mexico, thus recommending her admission into the Union, the actual facts relating to the fitness of her people for intelligent statehood, in so far as we are able to gather them, should be presented to the House.

In so doing we assert most earnestly our desire that this Territory may continue upon its present improved course of development, which affords ground to believe that, in course of time, her population, by immigration, advancement in agriculture, manufactures, the arts, and, above all, by education and the more general dissemination of knowledge among her people, will have attained such condition as to justify her admission into the Union. That it can not reasonably be anticipated her people will very soon become of equal intelligence with those inhabiting other Territories now seeking admission into the Union, a brief glance at her history, the social, moral, intellectual, and political conditions heretofore and now existing, we think fully substantiates.

This part of the present domain of the Republic was settled more than three centuries ago by Spaniards, who, together with the Indians then inhabiting that section, are the ancestors of the present people. Its civilization has been, and is largely now, Spanish-Mexican. We acquired New Mexico by cession from Mexico, part by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo and the remainder by the Gadsden purchase.

It was organized into a Territory in 1850. It then had 61,547 inhabitants; in 1860, 93,516; 1870, 91,874; 1880, 119,565; and in 1885, 134,141.

Governor Ross, of that Territory, estimates the present population at above 150,000. We think this number large. The population is composed of about 35,000 to 40,000 white people, 9,000 Indians included within the population estimate, and 100,000 Mexicans.

Clarence Pullen, a resident of the Territory, in a paper written in 1887 for the American Geographical Society, and published by that society in its quarterly Bulletin, volume 19, No. 1, 1887, on the point of population says:

"The proportion of the elements composing the population of 131,985 given New Mexico by the census of 1885 is about as follows: 100,000 people of Mexican descent, 9,200 Pueblo Indians, and 22,785 Americans not of Mexican descent and persons of other nationalities.

"While there are among its people many educated citizens well fitted and competent for intelligent self-government, candor compels us to say that the large majority of the people are uneducated and unfamiliar with either our language, customs, or system of government. That we may not be subject to the criticism of inaccuracy, we beg to submit our authority for the statements we have made in regard to the condition of this people."

* * * * * * *

In order to present to the House the condition of the people of New Mexico and to impart accurate information upon the subject, we deem it proper to cite authority relating to the manners, customs, morals, and intelligence of the Mexican people soon after a Territorial government was established in 1850, and follow this with more recent data on the same subject, together with evidence of their present condition, all of which we believe will serve to assist members of the House in arriving at a correct judgment of the questions involved in the substitute proposed by the majority of the Committee on the Territories in so far as it concerns New Mexico.

We now quote at considerable length from a volume entitled El Gringo, by W. W. H. Davis, who, for two and a half years prior to 1856, was United States district attorney for New Mexico, as to the condition of the Mexican people in that day, and will follow with a reference to other and later authorities, some of which present facts indicating the gratifying improvement now taking place among this people.

"NATIONAL COSTUMES, CUSTOMS, ETC.

"The national costume of the Mexicans is fast disappearing among the better classes, who are learning to adopt the American style of dress. The females conform themselves to the fashions of Paris and New York with greater facility than the men, but they are so far removed from the world of dress as to be a year or two behind the times. The bonnet they discard entirely, and wear instead the rebozo, which appears to be a fixture in the toilet of a New Mexican lady. It consists of a long scarf, made of silk or cotton, according to the taste of the wearer, which is worn over the head with one end thrown across the left shoulder. A lady is never seen in the street without her rebozo, and it is rarely laid aside within doors, when it is drawn loosely around the person. When promenading the face is so much muffled up that not more than one eye is visible, and it is almost impossible to recognize your most intimate friend in the street.

"The dress of the peasant women seldom consists of more than a chemise and enaguas, or petticoat of home-made flannel, generally of bright colors. They usually go barefooted, and wear the rebozo upon the head. The common people have also improved in their style of dress since the Americans have had possession of the country. A few years ago the serape, or blanket, was universally worn, and that which served for a bed at night made a suit of clothes during the day. The head is thrust through a hole in the middle, and the whole person is enveloped in its ample folds. This article of clothing is gradually disappearing, and its place is being supplied with shirts and coats. A large proportion of the peasantry in the country still dress in tanned deer-skin, and wear moccasins upon the feet. Among all classes the females are extremely fond of jewelry, and when they appear in public they wear a profusion of ornaments, if they can obtain them. In dress they like bright colors, and are more fond of making a show than a neat and genteel appearance; and those who can afford it wear the most expensive articles of dress, but display little or no taste in the adornment of their persons.

"The standard of education in New Mexico is at a very low ebb, and there is a larger number of persons who can not read and write than in any other Territory in the Union. The census of 1850 shows a population of 61,547 inhabitants, of whom 25,089 are returned as being unable to read and write. I feel confident that this ratio is too low, and that the number may safely be set down at one-half the whole population who can not read their catechisms and write their names. The number attending school is given as 460, which is about 1 scholar to every 125 inhabitants. This exhibits a fearful amount of ignorance among the people, and is enough to make us question the propriety of intrusting them with the power to make their own laws. It was always the policy of Spain and Mexico to keep her people in ignorance, and so far as New Mexico was concerned they seem to have carried out the system with singular faithfulness; and in no country in the world that lays the least claim to civilization has general education and a cultivation of the arts been so entirely neglected. The few who received any education at all, except those destined for the church, and the sons of some of the ricos, who were sent into Southern Mexico, had to be content with the simplest rudiments, and if they were able to read and write and had a smattering of arithmetic they were considered learned. There is not a native physician in the country, nor am I aware that there has ever been one.

"The education of the females has, if anything, been more neglected than that of the males, and the number of them who can not read and write is greater. Gregg, who wrote ten years ago, in speaking of female education in New Mexico, says: 'Indeed, until very recently, to be able to read and write on the part of a woman was considered an indication of very extraordinary talent; and the fair damsel who could pen a billet-doux to her lover was looked upon as almost a prodigy.' This picture is a little overdrawn, but, at the same time, except among the few wealthy families, it is a rare thing to see a woman who possesses these useful accomplishments. Those who have received any education at all have been taught in the most superficial manner, and it proves of little benefit to either head or heart.

"A slight change for the better has taken place, in an educational point of view, since the country fell into the hands of the United States. The boarding and day schools at Santa Fé, under the care of Bishop Lamy, will, in time, produce a good effect in the Territory. The pupils come from various sections of the country, who, when they shall return to their families and friends, will carry with them enlarged ideas, and be the means of disseminating to some extent a knowledge of our country and institutions. They will make a new generation of youth of both sexes, and, if so disposed, can do much toward the regeneration of New Mexico. The American missionaries who have come into the country have also taken an interest in the cause of education, and wherever stationed have endeavored to establish schools. In some instances they have been able to gather together a few scholars, but the opposition of the priesthood to the children being educated in Protestant schools is so great that they could not accomplish much.

"MORALS.

"I regret that I am not able to speak more favorably of the morals of New Mexico, but in this particular the truth must be told. Probably there is no other country in the world, claiming to be civilized, where vice is more prevalent among all classes of the inhabitants. Their ancestors were governed in this matter by the standard of morality that prevailed in Southern Europe and along the shores of the Mediterranean, where morals were never deemed an essential to respectability and good standing in society, and laches in this respect had no visible effect upon their social position. The people of New Mexico have inherited all the vices of their ancestors, which they have continued to practice to this day. They have never received any moral training in the American sense of the word, and have been allowed to grow up from infancy to manhood without being taught that it is wrong to indulge in vicious habits. The standard of female chastity is deplorably low and the virtuous are far outnumbered by the vicious. Prostitution is carried to a fearful extent, and it is quite common for parents to sell their own daughters for money to gratify the lust of the purchaser, thus making a profit from their own and their children's shame.

"It is almost a universal practice for men and women to live together as husband and wife and rear a family of children without having been married. One thing which has greatly conduced to this condition of life in times gone by was the high price of the marriage fee. The peasantry could not afford to be married according to the rites of the church, and as no other ceremony was legal, they were, in a measure, driven into this unlawful and sinful intercourse. This irregular mode of life is also encouraged by the matrimonial system practiced, which results in illy-advised matches, which in a large number of instances drives the parties to a separation, when one or both assume an illicit connection.

"It is the custom for married men to support a wife and mistress at the same time, and but too frequently the wife also has her male friend. A gentleman of many years' residence in the country, and who has a thorough acquaintance with the people, assured me that such practices are indulged in by three-fourths of the married population. The marriage vow is held sacred by a very few, and the ceremony is more a matter of convenience than anything else. The custom of keeping mistresses appears to be part of the social system, and the feelings of society are in no manner outraged by it, because the public opinion of the country sanctions it; and what seems to argue an exceedingly liberal code of morals is the fact that the standing of neither party is injured in the community in which they live, but they seemed to maintain the same degree of respectability as though they did not thus violate the rules of propriety and decency. This mode of life is practiced openly and without shame. The parties keep up a regular domestic establishment, receive their friends, and appear together in public as though their union was sanctioned by the holy rites of marriage and blessed by the laws of God and man.

"There are two or three causes for the almost universal looseness of morals among the native population, the principal of which is the entire absence of that necessary moral training which children receive in the States. In times gone by the church conduced much to this state of things; a majority of the priests themselves lived in open prostitution, and the most abandoned characters retained their standing in the church if they were regular at the confessional and paid the customary dues without fail. The organization of society is such that a large number are driven into this mode of life by sheer poverty. There are no employments to which indigent females can resort to make a respectable living as in the States. All domestic labor is performed by Indian slaves, and women can find no occupation in housework for their own maintenance. Thus, when their parents die, and they are thrown upon their own resources for support, they have but the alternative of starving or adopting this degraded mode of life, which, not being considered in the least disreputable, neither driving them from society nor injuring their prospect of a subsequent marriage, is most generally embraced.

"In other respects society is not as refined as would be desirable. I have already mentioned that gambling is almost universal and is considered a gentlemanly and respectable calling. The practice of carrying deadly weapons is nearly as common, and most of the inhabitants go armed at all times; they wear knives or pistols girded around them during the day, and sleep with them under the head at night. The merchant behind the counter waits upon his customer with a six-shooter or a big knife at his side; and when the lawyer goes into court to try a cause he, too, is armed to the teeth. These 'peace-makers' also accompany the owner to the ball-room and the evening party; and even when they enter the house of God on the Sabbath they go better prepared to resist assassins than to worship their Maker. There is some necessity to wear arms, but not to the extent practiced, and the consequence is that many unfortunate affrays take place.

"SUPERSTITION.

"As a race, the people of New Mexico are extremely superstitious, and which prevails to a greater or less degree among all classes, the intelligent as well as the most ignorant. They have an abiding faith in saints and images, and with the mass of the inhabitants their worship appears no more than a blind adoration of these insensible objects. Some of the most intelligent of the better class look upon these bits of wood as all-powerful in every emergency, and upon the occasion of a fire in Santa Fé a few years ago a prominent Mexican gentleman was anxious that one of the wooden saints should be brought from the church to quench the flames. The second summer of my residence there there was a severe hail-storm in the month of June, when the people, in order to protect their crops, stuck up crosses in their fields; and it is no uncommon thing for them to have their fields blessed by a priest after the seed is put into the ground, in order that they may bring forth good crops.

"Upon one occasion, when visiting a family, a member of which was quite ill, a number of friends came in with a small image of a favorite saint, altar, and other necessary apparatus. They were placed in the middle of the room, when a few coals of fire were brought from the kitchen and put in the vessel that contained the incense, which ignited and filled the room with its odor, the whole party the while performing some ceremony that I did not understand. I left them in the midst of their semi-heathen incantations, neither being able to appreciate the service nor being willing longer to witness what I look upon as a senseless and unmeaning performance. The sick man recovered, and I have no doubt another miraculous cure was placed to the credit of the dingy little image. The number of saints in the religious calendar makes up a long array, and to all the leading ones particular days are devoted, and observed with appropriate ceremonies. The Virgin of Guadalupe, who heads the list, appears to be the keystone of the whole system of worship in Mexico.

"As another evidence of the superstition of the people, I need only mention their general belief in witchcraft and every other kind of sorcery, which is not confined alone to the most ignorant portion of the community. In the year 1853 a man was arrested in Taos for this imagined offense, and bound over by an alcalde to answer at the next term of the United States district court. When the cause came up for trial it was at once dismissed and the prosecutor was made to understand that there were no such offenses under our laws. Subsequently two Indians of Nambé were put to death for a similar offense. These facts exhibit a fearful amount of superstition in the middle of the nineteenth century, when knowledge in every department of learning is making such rapid strides toward universal intelligence."

To all we quote from this writer it may be urged that he wrote of a condition of things existing more than thirty years ago, to which we answer that a race of people residing for many years immediately adjacent to the American Republic, whose ancestry inhabited that country long prior to the landing of the Pilgrims, and who for more than thirty years have been a part and parcel of the territory of the United States and under their care and control, and yet among whom so little advancement in education and the common arts of civilization has been made, can not reasonably be expected to have greatly changed for the better, nor that the most rapid progress will be made in the future. As corroborative of District Attorney Davis, and as showing somewhat the condition of things in the Territory at that time, we now quote from "New Mexico," by Professor Charles R. Bliss, written in 1879, and from pages 8, 9, and 10; it will be noticed that nearly a quarter of a century had passed since Davis pictured the people, their customs, etc. Here is what Professor Bliss says:

"NEW MEXICO—THE PEOPLE.

"These are of several races—the Americans, the Indians, and the Mexicans. Of Americans there are about ten thousand, engaged in grazing and mining and in conducting the general business of the Territory.

"The Indians number about twenty thousand; half of them are nomadic. A few years ago they were restless and fierce, but of late they have become satisfied with their reservations and occasion no trouble. The most advanced of these nomadic Indians are the Navajoes, numbering about eight thousand, who possess the art of dyeing wool and weaving fine blankets. They have large flocks, and are pursuing the business of grazing with much skill and success.

"The Pueblo Indians are considerably higher in the scale of civilization than the nomadic tribes. They are descendants of the old Aztecs, though some of them are supposed to be descended from the Toltecs, a still older race. They retain many of the characteristics of the people whom Cortez conquered. They live in large structures, four or five stories high, made of sun-dried bricks, and capable, sometimes, of sheltering more than two hundred people. Acoma, a cut of which is given on the cover of this pamphlet, is one of the most interesting of their towns. It is built on a plain 69 acres in extent, upon the top of a sandstone rock 200 feet high, and is approached by a winding stairway cut in the rock. It was founded before the Spanish occupation, and, if captured, was left to itself, and is to-day inhabited by the race that have possessed it at least three hundred years. The Taos Pueblo is of almost equal interest. A building, not wanting in symmetry, five stories high and perhaps two centuries old, serves as their principal dwelling.

"The Pueblo Indians cultivate the soil, sustain themselves without the aid of Government, and have been declared by judicial authority to be citizens. They speak the Spanish language, and also an Indian tongue which they are not willing to impart to others. They are apparently fervent Catholics, but beneath their Catholic faith they retain the old beliefs of sun-worshippers. When they yielded to the invader they took the religion that was imposed upon them, but retained their own. Romish missionaries in New Mexico, as in many other places, did not deem it necessary to eradicate errors, provided their converts adopted Romish forms. Humboldt says: 'I have seen them masked, and, adorned with tinkling bells, perform savage dances around the altar, while a monk of St. Francis elevated the host.' The emblems of heathen idolatry are seen in the homes of these fellow-countrymen of ours to-day, and utter as loud a call for missionary aid as reaches our churches from any other quarter.

"The Mexicans are by far the most numerous portion of the population, reaching 100,000. Varying in blood from nearly pure Castilian to nearly pure Indian, they possess qualities of great diversity. Some have all the alertness and acuteness of the Spaniard; others, all the stolidity and grossness of the Indian. A few are well educated, shrewd, and successful in business, and intelligent upon current affairs; while the great mass are ignorant, superstitious, and, so far as fitness to discharge the duties of American citizenship is concerned, probably lower in the scale than any other class upon whom such duties have been imposed. They speak a foreign tongue, and are actuated by a foreign spirit. Their arts of life belong to the sixteenth rather than the nineteenth century, and to mediæval Europe rather than modern America. Their methods and implements of agriculture, the structure of their dwellings, and their means of intercommunication are of a very rude and primitive type.

"Their beliefs are like those generally entertained in Christendom three centuries ago. Fables, that the rest of the world has outgrown, are current among them; and monkish practices, which ceased among civilized men long ago, are in full vigor there. The Penitentes, an order widely diffused among them, believe that the sins of the soul may be atoned for by lacerating the body; and, at a fixed time in spring, they assemble at a church or in some desolate cañon, and, armed each with a scourge, made of cactus or thorns, or whatever else is fitted to tear the flesh, they inflict the severest cruelties upon themselves. They then form a procession, headed by a man bearing a heavy cross, and, arriving at an appointed spot, they halt, bind the bearer of the cross upon it, and raise him from the ground, in imitation of the closing act in the life of Christ. The crucifixion not unfrequently ends in death. In 1877 four young men are reported to have ended life in this way in Southern Colorado."

* * * * * * *

It remains to be said, in truth, however, that the cause of general education is yet in its infancy, and the present situation in this regard may be thus accurately summarized:

A Territory containing 122,580 square miles, subdivided into fourteen counties, its population more than two-thirds Spanish-Mexican, with the language, customs, and ignorance of that people largely unchanged, save as it has been slightly modified and improved in recent years by the influence of American language, customs, and educational system.

A Territorial school system, first established in 1871, resulted, after about eight years' experience, as shown by the census of 1880, in exhibiting a school population between the ages of six to fourteen of about 29,255, with an enrollment of 4,755; daily average attendance, 3,115; number of teachers, 164; total receipts for school purposes, $32,171; total expenditure for same purposes, $28,973; Indian schools maintained by Government, 16; Indian school population, 10,512; average attendance, 541; number of children of school age in 1880 who could not read, 52,991; number of such in same year who could not write, 57,156; number in 1887 who could not read, 42,091; number in 1887 who could not write, 44,890.

* * * * * * *

We are aware that the last Territorial Assembly, as well as some prior ones, was Republican, but a knowledge of this fact, and an impression that upon a vote of the people if a State were organized it might be carried by electors of that political party, have not deterred us from presenting our views as adverse to the organization of a State, either this session or during the Fiftieth Congress, nor, indeed, until by immigration, education, and general development it is apparent that American civilization, which we hope may rapidly extend, becomes permanently dominant over that old and inferior condition to a large extent still prevalent among the people. We have the impression that the more intelligent class of Mexican people in this Territory are doing what they reasonably can to hasten this result.

* * * * * * *

All of which is respectfully submitted.

I. S. STRUBLE.
CHAS. S. BAKER.
WM. WARNER.
GEO. W. E. DORSEY.

I concur with the foregoing minority report, except that I put my opposition to the admission of New Mexico on the ground that her governor, Delegate in Congress, or her people have not in any way asked for admission at this time.

G. G. SYMES.

The majority report, recommending the admission of this Territory as a State, is signed by all the Democratic members of the committee, while all the members of the committee who have signed this minority report, so abusive of the people of New Mexico, are members of the same Republican party which voted in 1874, fourteen years ago, by a two-thirds majority in favor of an enabling act, like this to which they now so strenuously object, to admit New Mexico into the Union as a State.

The report of the minority contains a compendium of all the slanders and scandalous misrepresentations about our New Mexican citizens that its advocates could collate from all sources running over a period of some forty years last past, and I can not sit in this Chamber and permit this unwarranted wholesale abuse of my constituents to pass without an emphatic protest; it shall not go before this House and the world unrebuked.

An imputation is cast against their religion and mine, against their forms, habits and customs, the chastity of their wives and daughters is questioned, and they are characterized as an ignorant, depraved people, and this in the present House of Representatives of the greatest nation, the most progressive, the most liberal, the wisest on the face of the earth. For shame, that men assuming to be advised of the history of their country should resort to such a subterfuge to do injustice to a worthy people now asking admission as a State, in order to defeat them in their just demands. For shame, that men belonging to a political organization claiming to be liberal in its ideas, and truthful in principle, should stoop to base slander to gain a temporary advantage over a now comparatively defenseless people, who are remediless to call them to an accounting. The language of the Las Vegas Optic, a Republican newspaper of New Mexico, referring to this report, is opportunely appropriate in this connection:

A SLANDER THAT CRIES FOR REDRESS.

When any one slanders an individual the law gives ample redress to the maligned man, but when one slanders a community or a people there is no redress but in the contempt and execration to which such an one sinks in public esteem when his ignorance or malice becomes generally known. It is the design of the Optic to contribute its part towards covering with deserved infamy the members of the Congressional Committee on Territories who brought in the minority report, wherein New Mexico is slandered to an extent heretofore unknown even in the slums of American demagogery.

Probably 60 per cent. of the population of New Mexico are members of the Catholic Church, and I do not blush, sir, when I say with pride that I am a member of the same church and a believer in the sacred doctrines; the forms, customs, and teachings of our church are the same as in the progressive cities of the Eastern States. Our priests are men of education and good moral purity; they teach our people education and progress. I defy an opponent of New Mexico on the floor of this House, or elsewhere, to point to a church or organization that has done more in the establishment of schools and in the interest of education within their means than the Catholic clergy of New Mexico. Sectarian lines are not as closely drawn there as in many Eastern States. Catholic and Protestant attend the same church, join hand in hand in the same enterprises looking to the education and advancement of the people, contribute liberally to the erection and maintenance of the same school. All Protestant organizations are received with open arms and given every aid and facility for the carrying out of their laudable objects. They, too, have done wonders in New Mexico, and I am happy to say are daily progressing and increasing in numbers.

The women of New Mexico are not wanting in virtue; they are not idle or lazy. If the members of this House had seen them, sir, as I have—plowing in the fields with their own hands, gathering the grain, caring vigilantly for their little ones at night, watching over and protecting them day after day and month after month while their husbands and fathers were absent battling with savage Indians to save their defenseless homes, which the faith of a great nation was pledged to protect and then failed them in the hour of peril—you would not have the heart to accuse them; if you had seen them as I have leading their little children to their church each day at sunrise and, kneeling down, offer up a fervent prayer for their absent husbands and fathers, for their protection and safe return, for victory, and "God bless the Government of the United States," you would not accuse them.

I assert without fear of successful contradiction that the percentage of Mexican prostitutes in proportion to the whole number of citizens in New Mexico is less than in any other State or Territory, and I defy the minority to show the contrary, and challenge them to prove the statements contained in their report reflecting on the women of New Mexico.

There are no more loyal or patriotic people in the United States than the Mexican citizens of my Territory. They are by nature mild and sympathetic, their hearts are as tender as that of a child, but in the hour of peril brave as lions. For the past forty years, when necessity has required it, they have defended themselves against constantly recurring incursions of hostile Indians. History testifies that they were always the first to rally around the standard of the new country of their adoption in defense of its honor and sovereignty. They have spent during that period in their own defense over $1,000,000 on account of organized militia, and sustained losses on account of Indian depredations aggregating some $5,000,000.

During the late rebellion, true to their natural instincts, they were loyal to the Union and fought most bravely to drive out invaders, as the bleaching bones of their dead soldiers in the scorching sands of Valverde, Glorieta, and Canoncito to this day bear unimpeachable testimony.

I appeal to every member of this House who has at heart the best interests of this nation to cast his vote in favor of the admission of New Mexico as a State, and I pledge you that when organized as such you will all be proud of us.

I ask to have printed in this connection some newspaper extracts bearing upon the question, and a memorial from the governor of the Territory of New Mexico.

There was no objection.

The extracts and memorial are as follows:

RESOLUTIONS TO THE POINT.

The Santa Fé Presbytery, of the Presbyterian Church in New Mexico, yesterday passed the following resolutions, which speak for themselves:

"Whereas in a recent report of the minority of the Committee on Territories of the House of Representatives, in the Congress of the United States, upon a bill pending in favor of the admission of New Mexico as a State, there were inserted the following and many other kindred statements and charges against the people of the Territory of New Mexico, to wit: First, 'that the people of New Mexico have retained all the vices and none of the virtues of their ancestors; second, that the practice of the two sexes living together out of wedlock, and raising families in this unholy connection, is the almost universal custom; third, that the custom of carrying fire-arms is so common that when the people repair to the house of God they go better prepared to resist the assassin than to worship their Maker;' and

"Whereas the above statements have been printed and published officially in the records of Congress, and also by a large part of the public press of the United States: Therefore,

"Resolved, That we, the Presbytery of Santa Fé, of the Presbyterian Church, representing the entire Territory of New Mexico, and composed of ministers, evangelists, and ruling elders from all parts thereof, and being now in session at Las Vegas, N. Mex., do hereby express our sincere regret that such untruthful and slanderous statements should be used by our Congressmen and be officially published by them and the public press, to the great injury of the fair name of our Territory and her citizens and the cause of Christ in the Territory.

"Resolved, That we solemnly declare that such a state of affairs, or anything approaching it, does not exist in our Territory now, nor do we believe that such a state of affairs ever did exist in said Territory since its organization, unless, possibly, in small and isolated spots, and, in our opinion, such statements originated in the fertile but sensational brain of some person who was probably never nearer the Territory of New Mexico than his statements are to the truth.

"Resolved, That as a refutation of such statements, we, as a presbytery, declare that the Presbyterian Church is making rapid progress in said Territory. Churches have been and are being erected in all parts of the Territory, and the membership rapidly increasing, both from our American and native population; that it is our belief that other denominations of the church are making rapid progress also; so that all Christians coming to said Territory can find a home in the Church of Christ, and be as free from harm or molestation as in any State in the Union; that the cause of education is making rapid progress everywhere, and that the majority of our people will compare favorably in point of morals with those of any other Territory, and many, if not all, of the States.

"Resolved, That we declare the statement to be false that it is the custom of our people to carry fire-arms to church; but, on the contrary, we point to the fact that we have on our statute-books a rigid law against the carrying of deadly weapons at any time; so rigid, indeed, that a stranger or other person carrying a concealed weapon to a village or town must disarm himself within fifteen minutes after his arrival therein, which law is in advance of the laws of the States. And further, we believe that the Territory of New Mexico is about if not the only Territory or State in the Union that punishes train robbery with death.

"Resolved, That we call upon our people and all Christians, as well as the public press, both sacred and secular, to denounce publicly such false and injurious statements, and in that way set us right before our countrymen and Christians everywhere, as far as can be done in this way, since it is justice we ask and nothing more.

"Resolved, That if the author of said statements is still living, we desire to call vividly before him the sad case of Ananias, and also express the hope that God may have mercy on his soul.

"J. McGAUGHEY, Stated Clerk."

IMPORTANT PUBLIC MEETING.

To the Citizens of San Miguel County:

A public meeting will be held on Saturday evening, the 7th instant, at the hour of 8 o'clock, at the court-house, for the purpose of considering the report of the minority Committee on Territories. As in that report the inhabitants of this Territory are willfully and maliciously insulted, it is hoped that every man who has regard for his family and hearth will attend.

LORENZO LOPEZ.	F. A. MANZANARES.
BENIGNO ROMERO.	FELIX MARTINEZ.
HILARIO ROMERO.	L. P. BROWNE.
CHAS. BLANCHARD.	W. J. MILLS.
J. RAYNOLDS.	MIGUEL SALAZAR.
J. M. TAFOYA.	W. R. TIPTON.
EUGENIO ROMERO.

JUSTICE DEMANDED—ONE OF THE MOST ENTHUSIASTIC MEETINGS EVER HELD IN LAS VEGAS, IN WHICH ALL CLASSES ARE REPRESENTED.

The call for an indignation meeting to consider the minority report by the Congressional Committee on Territories was largely attended on Saturday night at the court-house. The leading people of both East and West Las Vegas, and of both nationalities, were present in large numbers.

Maj. M. Salazar called the meeting to order, and nominated L. P. Browne for permanent chairman. The nomination was carried unanimously. Capt. W. M. Eads, Hon. Lorenza Lopez, Jefferson Reynolds, Judge Lee, and Sheriff Eugenio Romero were elected vice-presidents. Capt. F. A. Blake and Juan Ortes were elected secretary and assistant secretary.

A letter was filed with the secretary from Hon. F. A. Manzanares, stating that while family affliction prevented his presence, he heartly sympathized with the purpose of the meeting and would approve of any action which might be taken.

Captain Eads was then called upon to state the object of the meeting, which he did in an able speech, full of eloquent indignation. Dr. George T. Gould was then called for, and addressed the crowd along the line of the same thought, denouncing the slanders placed upon the people of New Mexico, and demanding that we vindicate ourselves, and that we call on Congress to vindicate us.

Major M. Salazar interpreted for Captain Eads, but before Dr. Gould addressed the audience, Hon. Felix Martinez was appointed the interpreter of the evening. Don Aniceto Abeytia, of Santa Fé, addressed the meeting in Spanish, in a firm and eloquent strain, which frequently brought down the house.

Mr. Jefferson Raynolds moved that a committee be appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sentiment of the meeting. This motion was seconded. Judge Lee, seconded by Captain Eads, offered as an amendment, that the committee be given till Tuesday or Wednesday to make their report to an adjourned meeting and that statistics be adduced showing the falsity of the charges. Both the judge and the captain made arguments in support of their resolution. The motion was opposed by Aniceto Abeytia, Judge O'Bryan, Dr. Gould, and Rafael E. Salazar. The general feeling seemed to be that when a man calls you a "son of a bitch," what you want to do is not to get statistics and prove to him by the parson or the padre that your father and mother were married, and by the doctor or midwife who attended the delivery that you were the child born in wedlock, but the demands of the moment are simply to knock him down; so the demands of the present occasion were not to attempt to prove to the minority of the Congressional committee that they were mistaken in their charges against the people of New Mexico, but to tell them in very plain words that they had simply lied.

The motion for a future report was withdrawn, and Captain Eads, Judge Lorenzo Lopez, Judge Lee, Major Salazar, and Dr. Gould were appointed a committee on resolutions. The committee withdrew.

The following preamble and resolutions were prepared, presented, and adopted with much enthusiasm:

Whereas the minority report of the Committee on Territories, of the House of Representatives in Congress assembled, does most foully, falsely, and maliciously traduce and slander the good people of New Mexico, in that it charges them with unblushing licentiousness, open lasciviousness, and shameless debauchery; and

Whereas this charge is not confined to the few, such as may be found in every city and State in the Union, but is made to apply to the great body of the people of our Territory, with a reckless disregard of fact and a daring violation of truth which is absolutely phenomenal in its audacity; and

Whereas the charge of violence and bloodshed is added to the imputation of immorality, and is set forth with an elaboration which is ridiculous and with a want of truth which is disgusting; and

Whereas, not content with traducing our hearths and our homes by statements which, if true, would cover them with lewdness, and place the stigma of shame upon our parents and our children, these slanderers of an entire people have even dared to whet the tongue of their malice against the fair fame of the church of God, and to cast upon her the filth of their falsehoods, though she had gathered her flocks in this wilderness even before Virginia received a settler or ever the pilgrims landed in Massachusetts; though she was a comfort, a counselor, and a guide to the inhabitants of these valleys in all the long ages of their isolation, and though to-day she merits the approval of the good and the wise of the earth for her patience and persistence as well as for her eminent success in training the people in the practice of virtue and in the knowledge of God; and

Whereas this unprovoked and unmitigated assault upon the character of the inhabitants of New Mexico has come from a source which will give it much weight and influence in the minds of the uninformed, to the damage of our reputation as a people and to the detriment of the material development of the Territory; and

Whereas the law gives no redress to a vilified community, leaving it to seek its vindication at the bar of public opinion: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That we, children or New Mexico by birth or adoption, citizens of San Miguel County, in public meeting assembled, regardless of national descent and political bias, do pronounce the assertions in the said minority report, touching the morals and good behavior of the people of this Territory, to be false, slanderous, and without foundation, other than the salacious imagination of the infamous defamer who originally penned the charges and the prurient propensities of the demagogues who adopted and promulgated them.

Resolved, That from our own observation in the States and in this Territory, and from the testimony of hundreds of others who have had varied and extensive opportunities for a similar observation, we do assert, without the possibility of truthful contradiction, that for morality and virtue, for security of life and property, for the absence of violence and the scarcity of crime, New Mexico will compare favorably with any other portion of the United States, while the record of the great mass of our people for the practice of domestic virtue and the purity of their social intercourse, will put to shame the records of the very men by whom they have been so maliciously traduced.

Resolved, That we have ascertained the names of those who have perpetrated this outrage upon our feelings and our fame, and we will teach them to our children to be held in perpetual detestation, as more abhorrent than the thief who filches our purse or the murderer who attempts our life; for they, with dastardly design, would impeach the honor of our fathers and cast opprobrium upon the virtue of our mothers and sisters, our daughters and wives, and we call upon the American people everywhere, who love truth and hate falsehood, who pity the slandered and abhor the slanderer, who uphold with their sympathy and approval those who defend the sanctity of their firesides and chastise the traducer of the chastity of their women—we call upon these to unite with us in heaping the punishment of merited rebuke upon the heads of the authors of the minority report.

Resolved, That these resolutions be given the utmost publicity to which they can reach through the press of this city, of the Territory, and of the country at large.

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent to Hon. A. JOSEPH, New Mexico's Delegate to Congress, and that he be requested to present our protest upon the floor of the National Legislature, so that the very halls which heard the foul and slanderous falsehoods heaped upon us shall also hear our indignant denials, and our true and fearless denunciation of the contemptible demagogues who, for the paltry purposes of party or other ends, could so befoul the entire people of a large and important part of the great American commonwealth; and we call upon those Congressmen who have been in New Mexico to stand by the side of our Delegate and aid him in doing justice to the citizens of this Territory as a virtuous, moral, and law-abiding people.

Resolved finally, That our Delegate be instructed to obtain the expunging from the records of Congress of these slanders against which we now protest.

W. M. EADS.
W. D. LEE.
LORENZO LOPEZ.
GEO. T. GOULD.
MIGUEL SALAZAR.

MEMORIAL FROM THE GOVERNOR OF NEW MEXICO.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26, 1888.

To the honorable the President of the United States and the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled:

The undersigned, speaking in behalf of the admission of the Territory of New Mexico as a State in the Union, has the honor to represent:

That the region of country now comprising the Territory of New Mexico was acquired from the Republic of Mexico by the treaty with that republic in 1848, in which treaty the admission of New Mexico as a State in the Union was guaranteed.

As a precedent condition thereto, New Mexico was organized as a Territory of the United States by act of Congress approved August 9, 1850, and a full Territorial government provided.

Since that date two distinct efforts to secure admission have been made by the people of that Territory—in 1874 and in 1876. In 1874 a bill was passed by a three-fourths vote in each House, but failed for lack of agreement between the Houses in a matter of mere detail in the process of admission on the expiration of that Congress.

The second attempt at admission, in 1876, failed for want of action by the House, the bill having previously passed the Senate by a large majority.

The population of New Mexico in 1880, not counting Indians, was 119,000. In 1885 it had increased to over 134,000, an increase of 15,000 in five years. From reliable data it is estimated that the increase since that time, nearly three years, has been fully as great as during the preceding five years, or 15,000 to 16,000 more, making an aggregate of 160,000 people as the present population of the Territory. Particularly during the past two years has immigration into the Territory been noticeably active, and in nearly all parts, especially in the eastern, southeastern, and southwestern counties.

In the southeast—Lincoln County—bordering on the State of Texas, the influx has been very large. The excellent condition of the New Mexico cattle ranges, and the great extent of comparatively unoccupied lands in that county, embracing an area of some 16,000,000 acres, constitute an attraction to the cattlemen and farmers of Western Texas, and a region that three years ago was practically uninhabited and considered to a degree uninhabitable is now dotted over in every direction with farms and ranches and embryo towns and cities. It is estimated that six to seven thousand people have settled and made permanent homes in that county alone in the time stated.

A railroad has been constructed across the east end of Colfax County, in the northeast, during the past year, which has attracted a considerable immigration to that section of the Territory, and rapid improvement and development is there also taking place, as also in eastern San Miguel, along the Texas border, across which two transcontinental lines of railway have been surveyed and located and construction measurably certain during the current year.

In the Southwest, too, the increase has been quite as marked. The permanent suppression of Indian hostilities in that section two years ago made it safe for prospecting, and the active development of mining and ranching properties to a degree that had never been known and could never have been known so long as those hostilities continued. Several thousand people have been added to the population of that region since the restoration of peace there.

In the Northwest, also, there have been during the same time considerable additions from special causes and sources, while in the central portions there have been the usual accretions from the usual ordinary causes of growth in a new country.

A conspicuous feature of this gratifying increase of population is that it is largely composed of agriculturists—people who have come to till the soil and develop the productive energy of the land, and to add to the substantial wealth of the Territory.

A potent reason for the growth in the localities specially mentioned is that there are in those localities few or no grants. Those lands are almost entirely of the public domain, and there is consequently no fear on the part of the locator and homesteader, isolated as he is in the four corners of the Territory, far removed from the seats of the early Spanish settlements, and the remarkable attractions of the country unknown till developed by these settlers, that a Spanish grant might any day obscure his title and absorb his improvements.

While all portions of the Territory are growing in population much the largest gain has been in these hitherto comparatively unoccupied regions of the public domain, and mainly since the taking of the semi-decennial census of 1885.

That census shows that 100,000 of the population is of Spanish origin. The balance, 60,000, are of the Anglo-Saxon race. Among the former the voting strength is as 1 to 5, among all others 1 to 3, which would give a voting strength of 40,000. So that the estimate of 160,000 as the present population of the Territory is entirely within bounds, a population so near the basis of representation established at the last national census, and very much larger than that of many of the Territories at the time of their admission and now among the great States of the Union, that it is sufficient to warrant admission now, and especially so in view of the increase of population and development now well established, with every indication that the measure of that development must increase rather than diminish, and in view, too, of the possession of extensive railroad facilities, embracing four great railroad corporations and eleven hundred miles of rail now in operation, to a degree never before possessed by any Territory prior to admission.

It is my judgment that a considerable majority of the people of New Mexico favor admission, and that that sentiment will materially strengthen as the proposition is discussed. The certainty of the extension of railroads throughout the Territory, the introduction of American methods of business and of American social and economic ideas generally, has in the last few years very greatly stimulated the sentiment for statehood. There is a general and growing ambition on the part of the native people to fit themselves for competition with their neighbors; to do business as they do; to adopt their social ideas and customs, their system of cultivation and general farming; to encourage immigration, and in all general ways to conform to the changed and changing conditions that they have come to regard as inevitable.

As to the physical resources of New Mexico, they are fully equal in all respects and vastly superior in some, and equally developed, to those of any of the existing States at the date of their passage from a Territorial condition to statehood; equal to any in agricultural possibilities, and far beyond all in extent of coal and mineral resources. There are 60,000,000 tillable acres of land in that Territory, mainly of the public domain, sufficient to furnish homes of a quarter-section each for nearly 400,000 heads of families, or an aggregate of 2,000,000 people engaged in and dependent upon rural pursuits, not to speak of an equally vast population of the cities, towns, and villages, dependent upon manufacturing, merchandising, the trades, and all the vocations peculiar to urban communities, certain, in the order of nature and of business, to keep pace with those engaged in agricultural production.

It is certainly logical and safe to say that the very marked growth and development that invariably followed admission to statehood in the case of all the Western Territories, may be expected in the case of New Mexico, especially in view of the vast array of splendid possibilities there presented.

It is the part of wise statesmanship to so order affairs as to afford opportunity and scope for the free exercise of the genius of the people for speculation and development. Of that development comes wealth and power and national grandeur. As the Territorial dependencies, as they become, one by one, integral parts of the great Confederation, a new dignity and consequence is added to the whole, new life is given to the spirit of improvement, new avenues are opened to exploitation by American enterprise, the aggressive forces which in less than a hundred years have added twenty-five States to the Union with vastly more than corresponding millions of people and a wealth almost beyond computation, is illustrative of the wisdom of early and effective encouragement of statehood for the Territories.

Notwithstanding the foregoing facts as to the conditions prevailing in New Mexico contrasting favorably, as they do, with the conditions prevailing in all the Territories heretofore admitted into the Union, and notwithstanding the fact of record that the House years ago passed one and the Senate two separate bills for the admission of that Territory, and by very large majorities, the proposition to admit New Mexico now is confronted with adverse views of the minority of the House committee having the proposition in charge.

It would be a mild characterization of that minority report to say that it is a wanton, unprovoked, and positively untruthful assault upon the character and good name and all the interests of an entire community of American citizens.

That report quotes extensively from the statements, as a rule, of mere adventurers in New Mexico, who went there with commissions in their pockets, and without thought of permanent residence—who failed in their purposes and schemes, whatever they might be, and returned whence they came, and under the sting of disappointment sat down deliberately to publicly malign that people and their country.

Much the larger portion of the views of the minority relating to New Mexico is devoted to the reproduction of these slanderous statements, of which the following extracts are but a sample:

"The standard of female chastity is deplorably low, and the virtuous are far outnumbered by the vicious. Prostitution is carried to a fearful extent, and it is quite common for parents to sell their own daughters to gratify the lust of the purchasers, thus making a profit from their own and their children's shame. * * * It is the custom for married men to support a wife and mistress at the same time; and but too frequently the wife has also her male friend. * * * The marriage vow is held sacred by a very few, and the ceremony is more a matter of convenience than anything else. The custom of keeping mistresses appears to be part of the social system, and the feelings of society are in no manner outraged by it, because the public opinion of the country sustains it. * * * This mode of life is practiced openly and without shame. * * * Such practices are indulged in by three-fourths of the married population. * * * The people of New Mexico are extremely superstitious, and which prevails to a greater or less degree among all classes, the intelligent as well as the most ignorant. * * * A majority of the priests themselves lived in open prostitution, and the most abandoned characters retained their standing in the church if they were regular at the confessional and paid the customary dues without fail."

The foregoing is not only a sample of the argument used, but practically the only reason assigned for the denial of statehood to New Mexico—with apparently the studied intent to misrepresent that Territory to its disadvantage, and with a motive which the report vainly seeks to conceal.

To illustrate the vicious animus of this minority report, it proceeds to add insult to injury by declaring that among these people, since these slanderous statements were first published, thirty years ago, "so little advancement in education and the common arts of civilization has been made" that they "can not reasonably be expected to have greatly changed for the better, nor that the most rapid progress will be made in the future," thus saying, in effect, that the people of New Mexico are, as a community, now ignorant, licentious, and brutish, and therefore unfit for statehood.

So intent appears the report of the minority upon the establishment of a belief of the lowest possible condition of degradation among the native people of New Mexico of to-day that it even goes into Colorado to find a case of Penetential crucifixion to charge to them that is "reported" to have occurred in that State eleven years ago.

Since the annexation of New Mexico her people have been, till within the past three years, in a condition of constant warfare in self-protection. They have been hemmed in on all sides by a cordon of almost impenetrable savagery. For much the greater part of forty years the protection afforded them by the Government was so insufficient that large portions of the Territory were practically abandoned, except in so far as the people were able to defend themselves, notwithstanding the solemn guaranty of treaty for their protection against Indian hostilities. It was a constant fight for life against the wiliest and most brutal of savage foes, in which every house was at times converted into a castle and every village and hamlet a garrison. On every cross-road and highway are still the marks of that prolonged and desperate struggle in which, from first to last, thousands of the native people of New Mexico went to their graves. It was a struggle unsurpassed in fortitude, personal bravery, and heroic endurance by even the history of the early colonists of the Atlantic seaboard.

Yet now, because they are for the fourth time asking a performance of the guaranty of the treaty of annexation that they should in due time be admitted to the honors and the dignity of statehood, as have been seven other Territories since the organization of Territorial government in New Mexico, after they had for more than a generation, almost single-handed, with but insufficient support from the Government, whose flag they had carried and fought for and loved, in victory and in defeat, sustained themselves as patriotic citizens of the Republic, and sealed with the blood of thousands of their people their right to the highest walks of American citizenship, they are sneeringly told that they are "greasers," and an "ignorant, depraved, and licentious people," and unfit for political association with the States of the American Union, and their religion, represented by the most powerful of all the Christian churches, is assailed as the potent cause of that condition.

If they failed in the demands of the age to provide the facilities for education usual to the American youth during that fearful period, it was their misfortune, but the fault of the Government that failed in its duties of protection against the savage foe that environed them and made any effective or general system of public education impossible.

However, that is all changed now, whatever may have been the laches of the past in this regard. During the five years preceding the taking of the semi-decennial census of 1885 it is shown by that census that the rate of illiteracy was reduced 20 per cent., while careful inquiry and observation warrants the conclusion that quite as great an improvement has occurred during the nearly three years that have since elapsed. In no community have more persistent or successful efforts been inaugurated, by both church and public, for the promotion of public education than has been the case in New Mexico during that time.

Since the establishment of Territorial government in New Mexico seven Territories have been admitted to statehood, but one of them possessing more than two-thirds the population of New Mexico, none of them possessing the vast range of natural resources of wealth and possibilities of developments and none of them better equipped for the satisfactory discharge of the responsibilities of statehood in any particular than is New Mexico to-day.

California was admitted in 1850, with 92,597 people; Minnesota in 1858, with 120,000; Oregon in 1859, with 50,000; Kansas in 1861, with 107,000; Nevada in 1864, with 40,000; Nebraska in 1867, with 100,000, and Colorado in 1876, with 100,000; while New Mexico has 160,000, 60,000 of whom are natives of the various States of the Union, mainly of the West and Southwest, and as thoroughly equipped as any people on earth for the successful establishment and maintenance of independent self-government.

The native people are eminently and emphatically loyal and patriotic. They not only obey the law, but insist upon its rigid enforcement upon all offenders, irrespective of race or religion. They compose at least a half of all the juries in the courts, and the results of jury trials in all grades of offenses demonstrate that with them there is no race discrimination in the administration of justice. The records of the courts and of our penal institutions show that the requirements of the law are quite as fully and promptly met by native as by other jurymen, and, moreover, quite as rigidly and intelligently applied in New Mexico as in any other State or Territory.

The economic provisions of the pending bill for admission are peculiarly favorable to the stimulation of development in New Mexico. The appropriation of a quarter of a million acres of land for the establishment of permanent water reservoirs for purposes of irrigation is one of the wisest possible of the economic features of the bill, as the lands so set apart, if the trust shall be judiciously administered, will lead to the early establishment of a comprehensive and effective system of irrigation. There are not to exceed 10,000,000 acres out of the aggregate of 78,000,000 acres of land in that Territory that can not be irrigated.

While it is reasonably certain that practically the entire acreage of New Mexico will eventually become tillable by the natural rainfall, as the once arid plains of Kansas and Nebraska have become in the past thirty years, yet the absolute certainty of crop and the increased yield secured by irrigation makes it actually cheaper to cultivate by irrigation than to depend upon the clouds, and therefore unadvisable ever to dispense with that method of cultivation.

This bill puts it in the power of the State to provide for the establishment of such a system at once, and entirely without cost to the State.

This, in connection with the settlement of titles to Spanish and Mexican land grants, bills for which are now pending, with every prospect of reasonably early passage, will at once establish and stimulate an era and strength of immigration, investment, and development that alone, if there were no other reasons therefor, would be sufficient to justify the immediate admission of that Territory to statehood.

Respectfully submitted.

EDMUND G. ROSS,
Governor New Mexico.

The CHAIRMAN. The time for general debate has expired. The Clerk will report the first section of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

For pay of 59 agents of Indian affairs at the following-named agencies, at the rates respectively indicated, namely:

Mr. ADAMS. I move to strike out lines 9, 10, and 11.

I make that amendment, Mr. Chairman, to point out what I regard to have been an error in the mind of the gentleman from Mississipp, [Mr. ALLEN] in his estimate of the motive of the gentlemen from Kansas in referring to the constitution of the late Confederate States. The gentleman from Kansas was making a speech on the tariff. It was proper and legitimate for him to point out that the character of that bill was based upon the principle of free trade. It is known to all that in the North that bill is misrepresented from end to end as being a bill for tariff reform. We ought to distinguish between these ideas; they are horizon-wide apart, and the object of the gentleman from Kansas was not to awaken the bitter memories of the war, but to show that the gentlemen who reported the bill do, or rather did, believe, and the section from which they came believes almost unanimously, in the principle of free trade.

What was there objectionable and offensive in saying that that was the prevailing notion in the section from which those gentlemen come? The answer, the logical answer would have been that the Southern or the late Confederate States have changed their minds in that particular. That answer was not made.

The gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. ALLEN] simply reproached my friend from Kansas for reviving the bitter memories of the war. That was not the idea. His idea was to point out the fact that the principle underlying this bill is not the false pretense under which it will be pushed in many of the manufacturing States of the North; but it is the principle of free trade, pure and simple, which was a prevailing notion of the States of the South.

I do not believe that my friend from Kansas had any other motive than that, and I can not see how any other answer can be made to that than one of two answers: either to say that the bill is not a bill for tariff reform, but is really based on the principle of free trade, or else to say whatever the notions prevailing in their sections of the country twenty-five years ago they have been educated into a different frame of thought.

I withdraw the amendment.

Mr. PEEL. I ask unanimous consent that gentlemen have leave to print remarks on the bill.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the following paragraph:

At the Osage agency, at $1,600.

Mr. PEEL. I am instructed by the committee to ask unanimous consent to strike out "$1,600," and insert "$2,200." I hold in my hand a letter from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs saying he had been totally unable to procure an agent for this agency from the fact that the salary was so low that he could not get a man to accept the agency at that rate. This is an amendment offered by the committee. Being subject to the point of order I ask unanimous consent to offer it. It is the only agency we increase. It is an agency in the Indian Territory.

Mr. CANNON. Is it not true that in the last two or three appropriation bills there has been a considerable increase in the salaries of Indian agents?

Mr. PEEL. No, sir; the Department has given estimates and recommended increases, but there has been no increase in the appropriation bills.

Mr. CANNON. Since when?

Mr. PEEL. Since the Committee on Indian Affairs has had charge of this bill. Since then the Secretary has sent in estimates increasing the amount, but they have not been adopted.

Mr. CANNON. How much is it proposed to increase this salary?

Mr. PEEL. By this amendment we propose to strike out $1,600 and insert $2,200. The Department informs us they had to detail an Army officer there for several years, because they can not get a man to take the agency for that salary and give the bond which is required, of $75,000. The agent has to give that bond because of the fact that he has to disburse as much as a quarter of a million of dollars, and it was the sense of the committee that in the interest of the Indian service the salary ought to be increased.

Mr. RYAN. About the only duty is to pay the annuities to these Indians, of whom there are only 1,500 altogether.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Can the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] inform me why it was that Mr. Davids, who was appointed a year or two ago as agent at the Osage agency, did not continue in his office?

Mr. PEEL. I know of no reason except that assigned by the Department, that he could not afford to retain the agency at that salary.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Then you do not know the reason?

Mr. PEEL. We are informed by the Indian Office that that is the reason they can not get an agent.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I saw him there and he made no complaint about his salary, but he made serious complaint about other things.

Mr. PEEL. He may have had good cause to complain; but I do not know as to that.

Mr. WHITE, of Indiana. For one I should feel like opposing any such amendment as that proposed by the gentleman from Arkansas. The appropriations as made in the bill, it seems to me, are perfectly proper, and I am willing to vote for them as they come along. But why an amendment should be brought in at this moment to increase the salary at this particular agency I do not understand. If the Secretary of the Interior is at a loss to find a good man to fill that position let him write to me and I will find a dozen good men in my State, not outside of my own county, who would be glad to undertake this duty at the salary named, and who would furnish a bond for a million dollars if necessary.

It is true it may embarrass him very much to find a man for that position, but I will relieve him of the embarrassment, and I think there is not a member on this floor who would not be willing to undertake to do the same thing.

Mr. GROSVENOR. What would be the politics of your man?

Mr. WHITE, of Indiana. My man would be a good, sound Republican; but if necessary I would furnish him a good Democrat. There are plenty of them, good men; there is no trouble about finding them.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the next amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 92, "At the Osage agency, at $1,600," strike out "one thousand six hundred" and insert "twenty-two hundred."

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope my friend from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] will not press that amendment.

Mr. PEEL. I am instructed by the committee to offer the amendment.

Mr. BLOUNT. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BLOUNT. Is the point of order waived?

The CHAIRMAN. No one has made a point of order upon the amendment.

Mr. HOLMAN. The point was not made because the discussion began; attention was directed to it.

Mr. BLOUNT. The gentleman asked unanimous consent, thus assuming that the amendment was subject to the point of order.

Mr. RYAN. I do not think it is subject to the point of order.

Mr. HOLMAN. Oh, yes. These salaries are all fixed by law.

Mr. BLOUNT. I make that suggestion because I do not see any use in spending time here discussing the merits of the matter if the point of order is to be made.

Mr. PEEL. It is too late to make the point of order now. I would not insist upon the amendment but for the instruction of the committee.

Mr. HOLMAN. That is not a very important agency.

Mr. PEEL. There is a large amount of money disbursed there annually.

Mr. HOLMAN. I know there is a good deal of money disbursed there, but it seems to me that we ought not to increase any of these salaries, and I hope my friend will not press the amendment.

Mr. PEEL. I ask for a vote.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the Mackinac agency, at $1,000.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I am directed by the committee to ask unanimous consent to offer an amendment increasing the salary of the agent at the Mackinac agency from $1,000 to $1,500.

Mr. HOLMAN. I make the point of order that that salary is fixed by law, and therefore the amendment is not in order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. ALLEN] asks unanimous consent to offer the amendment indicated by him, and the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] objects.

Mr. HOLMAN. I will withhold the objection to allow the gentleman to make a statement, but I hope he will bear in mind the fact that the Indians over whom this agency extends are citizens of his State, and voters.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I am quite familiar with the Indians of Michigan. I had charge of that agency until circumstances over which I had no control appointed my successor. [Laughter.] When I was appointed agent at Mackinaw the salary was $1,200 a year, but it was cut down here on a motion made, I believe, by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN]. [Laughter.] The gentleman did not know me at that time. If he had known me as well as he does now he never would have done it. [Renewed laughter.] Mr. Chairman, the State of Michigan has about six thousand Indians. Of these probably about four thousand are under the control of the Government in one way or another. While they are citizens, still they are the wards of the nation in regard to lands, money, and schools. The Indians of Michigan are not only numerous, but they are scattered over every part of the State.

You will find them in the midst of the high civilization of Calhoun County, in the southern part of the State, and you will find them on Lake Superior, where they dwell by themselves. The agent is obliged to travel from one end of the State to the other to visit them all. There are six different Indian schools which he is obliged to look after. The work takes the entire time of a very competent man, and from the time I was appointed up to the present we have always had men of that kind. [Laughter.] The agent must see to the allotment of lands and to the schools. He must likewise look after depredations committed upon the lands of the Indians, who are constantly annoyed by persons stealing their timber, and the agent is really obliged to give his entire time to the work, as I understand the present agent is doing. Now, a competent man will not and can not do that work for $1,000 a year. I should have resigned myself only that I expected to come to Congress and have the matter righted. [Laughter.]

Fifteen hundred dollars is certainly little enough compensation for the agent there, because, as I have said, not only does he have to travel over the entire State of Michigan, but he must give his constant attention to the duties of his office. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs, who has, of course, investigated this question, reports strongly in favor of increasing the salary of the agent at Mackinaw, and I speak what I know when I say that an honest, conscientious, industrious Indian agent is worthy of his hire. The Indian agencies ought never to be made political machines. The position ought to be occupied by men who can appreciate the wants and the conditions of the Indians, and who have the conscience and the manhood to stand up for them.

Mr. RYAN obtained the floor, and yielded his time to Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, Indian agents have been accused of being politicians. My friend from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] once, when I was Indian agent in Michigan, had the hardihood to say on this floor that the office was filled by a first-class politician, who gave more attention to politics than anything else. While I was agent for the Indians of Michigan, Mr. Chairman, I neither spoke to them myself upon political questions nor allowed any one else to do so; and if I were President of the United States I would remove a man who undertook to interfere with the politics of the Indians, if they had any, more quickly than for any other one cause. Such interference with politics is not the business of an Indian agent, and my friend from Indiana never would have made that charge against me had he known the facts.

Mr. NELSON. Or the man.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Yes, or the man. [Laughter.] The present agent there, I am satisfied, is working faithfully to do his duty, and I believe it is but a matter of justice to give him a salary something near what the duties of the office demand. My own salary was cut down without inquiry, upon assertions which were not true, although I know the honorable gentleman from Indiana would not state anything knowing it to be untrue; but he was misinformed. The circumstances connected with this agency do not justify the continuance of so meager a salary as $1,000 a year, and I hope this Democratic House will consent to give that Democratic official who is serving as Indian agent there a salary of $1,500. I am not afraid to vote to pay men properly for their services where they are in positions to earn their salaries, as is the case of the man who has charge of the Mackinac agency.

Mr. RYAN. Will the gentleman be kind enough to state how many Indians are under the control of that agency?

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. There are two reservations in Michigan, and about forty-five hundred Indians under the control to a greater or less extent of the agent. The agency is very large. The duties connected with the distribution of lands and money and the supervision of the six Indian schools make that a very important position; and it has never, so far as I know, been a political place.

Mr. RYAN. What is the amount of money and property distributed annually there?

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. To one band of Indians, a remnant of the Pottawatomies, there is a perpetual annuity of $400; to another band there is distributed $2,200 a year; but this is distributed not in cash but in goods which are purchased by the agent. In addition to these matters, the agent has charge of the Indian schools, the allotments of lands, and the protection of these lands from trespassers, which is a very important item. When I was agent there I paid attention more particularly to the education of the Indians. The present agent has given more attention to the prevention of trespassing upon the Indian lands than I did. He has done his duty in that respect, and I give him credit for it. I think he ought to have the salary I now propose. If I live long enough, I expect to compel the Government of the United States to pay me what it agreed to pay me when I took charge of that agency; and I expect my friend from Indiana to help me in bringing about that result. The Government owes me about $500. [Laughter.]

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I think the fact that my friend from Michigan [Mr. ALLEN] held the office now under consideration at a salary less than he now proposes to pay——

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. Allow me a moment. The salary of the office when I took it was not less. It was cut down after I got in.

Mr. HOLMAN. While the gentleman occupied the office Congress, not knowing how well the position was filled, reduced the salary. I agree with my friend from Michigan, that if we had known at that time that he held the office and how well he filled it no such effort at reduction would have been made. Yet there is compensation in all this. My friend from that office comes here to Congress and receives a much better salary.

A MEMBER. The Indian agency was a stepping-stone.

Mr. HOLMAN. The inducement for holding an office of this kind should not be a purely mercenary one. The motive for taking the position should be not so much the salary, but such a motive as influenced my friend from Michigan. I hope he will bear in mind that these offices ought all to be held from a motive of that kind, for the benefit of these "wards of the nation," as they are called. These positions which involve the care of the Indians should be held by benevolent, kind-hearted gentlemen, who sympathize with the unfortunate condition of these remnants of once powerful tribes—gentlemen who feel an earnest interest in the education of the Indian children and want to protect the Indians from the rapacity and injustice of the white men. It is this class of men who should hold these offices; and now, since I have come to know the gentleman from Michigan, I can bear testimony that he came fully up to the qualifications requisite for an Indian agent.

I do not wish to see a motive held out to seek these positions for the purpose of making money. On the contrary, these offices should be held by men who feel interested in this work—clergymen, for instance—though I believe my friend from Michigan is not a clergyman. There can be found, however, all over the country clergymen who would be glad to spend their lives as missionaries to the Indians, doing everything possible for their welfare, and desiring as a general thing nothing more in the way of compensation than the payment of their current expenses.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Does the gentleman know how much the Indian traders usually make?

Mr. HOLMAN. I do not.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Do they not usually make about $20,000 a year?

Mr. HOLMAN. I am very sorry if such a thing is permitted.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Would it not be proper to secure some reduction in that direction?

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. We have no Indian traders in Michigan.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. No; I suppose not.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think the salary provided in the bill for this office is ample.

The gentleman from Michigan some years ago tried to get the compensation of this agent increased to $1,200, but this side of the House, very properly, in my judgment, refused to increase the amount, and now that this office is held by a Democrat, as I am informed, certainly that should make no difference to induce the House to change its action.

I trust my friend from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] will see to it that when the House refused to increase this salary on the motion of the gentleman from Michigan to $1,200 at a time when this office was held by a gentleman belonging to a different political party, that he will not now subject himself and his committee to the charge of permitting the increase to be made when the office is held by a member of his own political party. I do not think that politics should enter into such appointments at all, but certainly unless better reasons are given than those which have been assigned the increase should not be made.

Mr. KERR. It would be well, perhaps, for the gentleman to move to reconsider the former action of the House.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understands the gentleman from Indiana as objecting, and the amendment is not before the committee.

Mr. PEEL. I hope the gentleman from Indiana will not insist upon the point of order, but let the committee determine the matter by a direct vote.

Mr. HOLMAN. I strenuously opposed the increase of this salary when the proposition was made here by my friend from Michigan himself, and I see no reason to change the opinion that I then expressed.

Mr. ALLEN, of Michigan. I move a pro forma amendment, which I believe is the proper way to get the floor at this stage of the bill.

I want to say to my friend from Indiana that when he moved in this House to reduce the salary of that agency he certainly must have been unaware of the importance of the work that is to be done there. Now, as a matter of fact, it has been generally held and believed that the Mackinaw agency was simply a sinecure for some played-out politician; but I wish to assure the gentleman that it never has been such. It has been and is one of the most important agencies in the United States. It is not necessary that an agency, in order to be important, shall be one where the Indians are all grouped together.

Indeed, I think it takes more ability, or a higher order of ability, to oversee an agency where the Indians are scattered as they are over the State of Michigan, and do them justice, than is required at Standing Rock agency, for instance, where there is a great aggregation of Indians; and I say to him and to the committee, honestly and sincerely, that I believe the agent at this point ought to have more money. I know that a man can not do the work there and do it well unless he is a man of ability.

I know further that a thousand dollars is a mere bagatelle to a man who will conscientiously and honestly attend to his duties as Indian agent at the Mackinaw agency. There is no reason whatever for cutting the salary down.

It was cut down once because of some misunderstanding as to what the agent had to do. But that is a mistake that ought not to be repeated. Now, the mistake having been made, let us do what is right in order to rectify it. If we did a wrong before, we are now able to repair the injury and set the wrong right.

I want to say further to my friend from Indiana that I believe that he is actuated from the very highest motives in opposing the amendment. I believe that every objection he raises here is from an honest and sincere heart; and I am glad he is here, because we need just such clogs upon the enthusiasm and extravagance of the House; but when my friend has his eyes opened as I have endeavored to open them to-day, I beg him not to continue that injustice which has been done at this agency the past five years.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, if I had the excuse that my friend from Michigan thinks I have, that is not understanding the subject at the time this reduction was made, I would have no hesitation in complying with his appeal, but I am compelled to make the admission that he is mistaken. I have had somewhat of experience amongst the Indians of Michigan. I have seen some of them around the Mackinaw agency. I know something of them, their schools, their present condition, and their progress in a general way; and having insisted that $1,000 was a sufficient compensation for the agency there, which opinion was based upon some knowledge of the conditions, and especially when the office was held by a Republican, I can not, as a Democrat, consent to the increase of that salary when the office is held by one of my own political party. I can not consent to the increase.

Another thing: There is no branch of the public service, Mr. Chairman, where the tendency to extravagance is greater than just here in connection with these small offices. The tendency is always to increase, and you can not increase the salary of the agent at the Mackinaw agency without the result being felt all along the line. That is the way you create a precedent and make the basis upon which increase after increase of compensation is asked.

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Chairman, I rise to a question of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BLOUNT. Is there anything before the committee?

The CHAIRMAN. The pro forma amendment of the gentleman from Michigan is pending.

Mr. BREWER. I would like to ask the gentleman from Indiana a question before he takes his seat.

Mr. HOLMAN. Certainly.

Mr. BREWER. I wish to ask the gentleman if he expects to apply that rule to all Republican officials during this Administration?

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope it will be so applied strictly.

Mr. BREWER. And to all Democrats.

Mr. HOLMAN. I see no excuse for the increase of any salaries now paid by the Government. In the Public Land Office there has been a different policy from that in any other bureau of the Government; but even there I could not myself consent to any material increase of any appropriation, although all of the salaries there are below the averages paid in other bureaus. I wish to add if I could consistently withdraw this objection I would with pleasure, for I appreciate highly the motive which actuates the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. ALLEN].

The Clerk read the following paragraph:

Necessary traveling expenses of one Indian school inspector, including incidental expenses of inspection and investigation, $1,500: Provided, That he shall be allowed $3 per day for traveling expenses when actually on duty in the field, exclusive of cost of transportation and sleeping-car fare.

Mr. HOLMAN. I ask the gentleman from Arkansas if that is a part of the appropriation bill of last year?

Mr. PEEL. With the consent of the committee I would like to go back to the appropriation for the agencies, so that the aggregate may be changed to fit the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. That will be done by the Clerk.

Mr. HOLMAN. Is the paragraph just read the same as in the appropriation bill for the current year?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Indiana move an amendment?

Mr. HOLMAN. I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. PEEL. I will state that the last appropriation for this purpose was $1,000. The Department asked for $2,000, but in the bill we make it $1,500.

Mr. HOLMAN. I inquire whether or no this inspector of schools can not be with great propriety entirely dispensed with? We have five inspectors, and they are, as far as I am aware, and have been for years, men of fair ability and are paid large salaries. They are visiting of course these agencies all the time, and they are brought into contact with the schools constantly, almost every one within the limits of the Indian reservation. Nearly all the schools are at the agencies and are brought directly under the eyes of the inspectors. We have five inspectors traveling over the country constantly. We make appropriations sufficient to keep them traveling all the time. Does my friend think there is any necessity for this particular inspectorship, inasmuch as the duty of inspecting the Indian children at school is necessarily performed by those five inspectors? When the inspector visits an agency he has the Indian school right under his eye. It occurred to me there was no necessity for this particular inspector—that this only made the number six instead of five.

Mr. PEEL. I see what is perhaps misleading the gentleman from Indiana. In the last appropriation bill, and for several years preceding it, this officer was termed superintendent of Indian schools. But the committee found the law creating the office styled him "inspector," and there is no such office known to the law as superintendent. We have changed the phraseology to comply with the law, which denominates him "inspector." That is the proper name for him under the law creating the office. And I will say to my friend from Indiana that what makes it more necessary that this amount be appropriated for traveling expenses is that we require in this change of phraseology to make it the duty of this officer to visit each Indian school at least once in two years. His duty in that respect is clearly defined in the preceding paragraph.

Mr. HOLMAN. He might visit every Indian school in the United States in six months.

Mr. PEEL. I am satisfied the gentleman from Indiana did not understand my first statement, as he was engaged in conversation when I made it. The appropriation for inspector is not new; the former appropriation bills made the appropriation for a superintendent, and there is no such office. We found this officer was an inspector and we call him inspector, and appropriate for him and require him, in the preceding clause, to visit the Indian schools at least once in two years. And this particular item for his traveling expenses is a necessary one.

Mr. HOLMAN. Was there any such appropriation for the superintendent?

Mr. PEEL. Yes, sir.

Mr. HOLMAN. Of the same amount?

Mr. PEEL. Yes; but his duties were not defined.

Mr. BLOUNT. If my friend will allow me, I will call his attention to the language here used:

Necessary traveling expenses of one Indian school inspector, including incidental expenses of inspection and investigation.

Now, several appropriation bills have designated this officer as superintendent; but as such his duties went further than inspection and investigation. He had a general supervision of the schools, which, I suppose, in the opinion of the Indian Office, was of great advantage. I ask the gentleman from Arkansas if there is any objection to designating this officer according to the character of the duties he has been performing for many years?

Mr. NELSON. Will the gentleman allow me to read the law creating the office?

Mr. BLOUNT. I am not objecting to the law; but it is competent for my friend from Arkansas, as no question of order has been raised, to designate this officer from the duties properly assigned to him.

Mr. PEEL. I do not see any good reason for that.

Mr. BLOUNT. This paragraph directs him to inspect and designate; but he not only does that, but he is superintendent of the schools.

Mr. RYAN. I think the suggestion of my friend from Georgia is a good one. The duties of this officer are not those of an inspector merely. The office was created to make a head of the Indian schools that would give them superintendence and supervision and take charge of them as such head, and it seems to me the designation of superintendent is far more appropriate than that of inspector.

It seems to me that the designation of superintendent is far more appropriate than that of inspector.

Mr. PEEL. I will say to my friend from Kansas [Mr. RYAN] and to my friend from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT] that I do not see that any change of duty would result from changing the style of the officer. The officer is styled in the bill what the existing law styles him, which I think is the better way.

Mr. NELSON. If the gentleman will permit me, I will have the law read.

The Clerk read as follows:

The President is authorized to appoint a person to inspect all Indian schools, who is hereby required to report a plan for carrying into effect in the most economical and efficient manner all existing treaty stipulations for the education of Indians, with careful estimates of the cost thereof; also a plan and estimates for educating all Indian youths for whom no such provision now exists, and estimates of what sums can be saved from existing expenditures for Indian support by the adoption of such plan, whose compensation shall not exceed $3,000, which sum is hereby appropriated for that purpose, and also a further sum of $1,500 for his necessary traveling expenses.

Mr. BLOUNT. It seems to me that the purpose of that statute has been effectuated. So far as the language goes, it assumes that plans are expected from that official which have probably been presented long ago, and it does not seem to apply at all to this inspection service.

Mr. PERKINS. Perhaps it will be satisfactory to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT] to understand that the committee have reported a bill designating this officer as superintendent of schools and defining his duties.

Mr. BLOUNT. It appears that the duties contemplated in this paragraph of the bill are not at all the same that were contemplated in the law which has been read. Where is that law found? Is it in an appropriation bill?

Mr. NELSON. Yes; it is in the appropriation act of 1882.

Mr. BLOUNT. Then it stands upon no higher footing than the subsequent act providing for an Indian inspector at a salary.

Mr. NELSON. The difference is this: In the act which has been read the President is directed to appoint such an officer, but there is no such direction in any subsequent act.

Mr. HOLMAN. But this was quite manifestly intended as a temporary office at the time.

Mr. BLOUNT. It is quite obvious from the language of the provision that the officer there contemplated was expected to report plans and make suggestions, which work it is to be presumed has been accomplished long ago.

Mr. NELSON. Then there is no permanent appropriation existing for the office of superintendent of Indian schools. There is no such office, technically.

Mr. BLOUNT. That may be very true, but my point is this: You have this provision in this bill; you have a purpose to subserve; practically you are using this officer for other purposes than as an inspector. Therefore why not allow the correction to be made here and designate him as superintendent instead of as inspector?

Mr. PERKINS. If there be no objection, it may be possible for the chairman of the committee to offer as an amendment, in the line of the suggestion of the gentleman from Georgia, the bill which we have reported from the committee creating the office of superintendent. That bill enlarges his powers and duties somewhat.

Mr. BLOUNT. I want to know of my friend if he does not desire to use the person provided for in this bill for the work of superintending the schools.

Mr. PERKINS. Yes, I understand that that is what he is for.

Mr. BLOUNT. Then why not allow him to be so designated?

Mr. PERKINS. I see no objection to it.

Mr. BLOUNT. I submit that no one on reading the bill would suppose that this man had anything to do with the control of the Indian schools. The inspector has limited duties, and in this case they are especially limited, and I do not see how you can charge this person with the additional duties unless you give him the proper designation.

Mr. RYAN. As a mere inspector he is not necessary.

Mr. BLOUNT. Not at all.

Mr. PEEL. If the House desires now to do anything in a permanent way about this matter we might, by consent, take this course. The Senate has passed a bill creating the office of Indian school superintendent. It is a well-draughted bill. It was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs and was reported to the House by that committee unanimously and is now on the Calendar. It creates the office of Indian school superintendent, and I will say to the House that it is a bill in which the President and the Secretary of the Interior take a great interest, so that if the House desires to create that office and establish it as a permanent matter this is a very good time to do it.

Mr. BLOUNT. Are you not using this person now for this very purpose?

Mr. PEEL. We have styled him in this bill exactly what the law styles him, and the only change we have made from the phraseology of the last bill is in defining his duties, that he should visit each school once in two years. The remainder of the provision is precisely as it was. Now, why we should call him superintendent, when there is no such office known to the law, I do not see.

Mr. RYAN. I suppose this officer is doing that very duty.

Mr. PEEL. Certainly; he is doing what the law requires him to do.

Mr. BLOUNT. What law does the gentleman refer to?

Mr. PEEL. The law which was read awhile ago.

Mr. BLOUNT. It did not refer to him at all.

Mr. PEEL. It referred to an inspector.

Mr. BLOUNT. It referred to an inspector with certain specified duties; not to this official at all.

Mr. NELSON. Will the gentleman agree that the bill which has passed the Senate, and which we have reported favorably here, may be incorporated in this bill?

Mr. BLOUNT. If it was left to me I would have no objection. I have not offered any amendment; I have simply made a suggestion.

Mr. ROGERS. Mr. Chairman, I suggest to the gentleman in charge of the bill that he ask consent to pass from this section, with the privilege of returning to it, and that hereafter he return and offer as an amendment the Senate bill, which prescribes this officer's duties, gives him a proper name, and gives him a salary.

Mr. PEEL. I think the suggestion is a good one, and I will accept it.

Mr. BLOUNT. I hope my friend will allow an inquiry before we pass from this section. I find here a provision that this officer is to be allowed $3 per day for traveling expenses, exclusive of cost of transportation and sleeping-car fare. I wish to know whether the gentleman does not think that $3 per day is ample for traveling expenses of all sorts?

Mr. PEEL. We have followed the last appropriation bill.

Mr. BLOUNT. The gentleman says they have followed the last appropriation bill, but I ask him whether he does not think $3 per day sufficient for traveling expenses?

Mr. PEEL. In some localities it may be and in others it may not.

Mr. NELSON. It would not pay his railroad fare.

Mr. RYAN. The Departments which employ traveling agents usually make the allowance contained in the bill.

Mr. BLOUNT. I think my friend is mistaken.

Mr. PEEL. Let me say to the gentleman [Mr. BLOUNT] that I was in error when I said that this was the allowance heretofore made. It was $4 a day, and the committee cut it down to $3.

The request of Mr. PEEL, that this paragraph should be passed over temporarily, was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

For subsistence and civilization of two thousand Yankton Sioux, heretofore provided for in appropriations under "Fulfilling treaty with Sioux of different tribes," $35,000; in all, $60,000.

Mr. MACDONALD. I have an amendment to offer which has been approved unanimously by the Committee on Indian Affairs, but was not incorporated in the bill because the correspondence with the Department on this subject did not reach the committee in time. I ask that the amendment be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert after the paragraph just read the following:

"For the support of the full-blood Indians in Minnesota, belonging to the Medwakanton band of Sioux Indians, who have resided in said State since the 20th day of May, A. D. 1886, and severed their tribal relations, $20,000, to be expended by the Secretary of the Interior in the purchase, in such manner as in his judgment he may deem best, of agricultural implements, cattle, horses, and lands, and in making improvements thereon: Provided, That of this amount the Secretary, if he deems it for the best interest of said Indians, may cause to be erected for the use of said Indians at the most suitable location, a school-house, at a cost not exceeding $2,000: And provided also, That he may appoint a suitable person to make the above-mentioned expenditures under his direction, the expense of the same to be paid out of this appropriation."

Mr. MACDONALD. Mr. Chairman, I think it is proper I should submit a few words in explanation of this amendment. It has been prepared by the Indian Department, and is submitted by me, because I represent the district of country directly interested; and I might say that nearly all of these Indians are located in the district which I represent.

In the month of August, 1862, our State was the scene of one of the most bloody and destructive Indian wars recorded in the history of our country. Almost the entire tribe of Sioux Indians, then resident within the borders of our State, rose up in arms and made war upon our settlers without a moment's warning along the entire frontier of our State upon which they could operate, a distance of nearly 200 miles, without a day or a moment's warning to our frontier settlers. I will not attempt to describe the scenes of horror that followed the general onslaught. I must leave that to be imagined. Only those who were there can form any idea of the awful scenes and tragedies that were enacted. It has been well said that the fiends of hell could not invent more fearful atrocities than were perpetrated by the savages upon their victims; that the bullet, the tomahawk, and the scalping-knife spared neither age nor sex, and that but few prisoners were taken except the young women, and a few children. Of the young women, it is needless to say that they would have been fortunate to have met instant death rather than to have had to endure the agonies and tortures to which they were subjected.

In the short space of thirty-six hours from the beginning of the outbreak nearly one thousand whites were cruelly slain, and for nights that entire frontier was lit up by the flames of burning dwellings, barns, stacks of grain and hay, and other property to which these ruthless savages applied the torch. The character of this war and the confidence with which these Indians made the onslaught may be judged from the fact that they attacked in force Fort Ridgely, one of our strongest military posts, and also, in broad daylight, assailed the town of New Ulm.

Our State was then comparatively weak in population and had sent one-half of its fighting men to the Union armies in the South, and the Indians had come to the conclusion that in consequence of this fact they could recover possession of our State by putting to death or driving out of it all our people. We talk of the horrors of war and its scenes of blood and carnage, but nothing that was ever enacted in civilized warfare can be compared to the horrible and atrocious conduct of these bloodthirsty savages.

Now, when I tell you that all the Sioux Indians did not prove fiends in human form, but that on the contrary a few of them remained friendly to the whites and became their trusted allies and defenders, and that a number of them did valuable service in protecting our people and their property, and in saving many lives, you can understand how grateful we must feel to those true and tried Indians who did us such valuable service. They have ever since had claims upon not only our gratitude but that of the nation at large, which ought long ago to have been recognized and partially, at least, compensated for their invaluable services.

But I am sorry to say, sir, that this has not been the case, and that the story of the treatment of these friendly Indians is, in a measure, but history repeating itself. At the time this outbreak occurred these Indians were what we term treaty Indians, located upon the Sioux Indian reservation, in our State, and were entitled to annuities in money and goods and provisions, and had an annual allowance for educational purposes, together with a sum for agricultural and general civilization purposes. By the act of Congress, entitled "An act for the relief of persons for damages sustained by reason of depredations by certain bands of Sioux Indians," approved February 16, 1863, all treaties with the Sisseton, Wahpeton, Medewakanton, and Wahpakoota bands were declared to be abrogated and annulled, and all the lands, annuities, and claims previously accorded to said Indians were declared to be forfeited to the United States; said forfeiture being made, as stated in said act, in consequence of the war waged by said bands against the white settlers of Minnesota. I am almost ashamed to say it, but the fact is that no exception was made, even in favor of these friendly Indians.

The Indians who are to be the beneficiaries of this appropriation are, as my amendment indicates, members of the Medawakanton band. After this outbreak was suppressed by force of arms and the most guilty punished with the aid of these Indians, in whose behalf I am appealing, they were placed by the Government upon a reservation set apart for them, but these were unable to remain there. Some, in fact, never went upon that reservation, deeming it unsafe for them to do so. By aiding and defending our white settlers they had incurred the hatred and relentless hostility of the "hostiles," and their lives were not safe while they were together. The result has been that these friendly Indians have nearly all long ago severed their tribal relations and taken up their residence among the whites, nearly all of them being located in the district I have the honor to represent.

I should have said that the amount and value of the land and annuities of this band of Indians, which was so confiscated and covered into the United States Treasury, was about $1,000,000. It will, therefore, be seen that if these Indians secured their share of this money they would receive annually more than this sum proposed by me and be able to support themselves. Naturally enough they do not feel that justice has been done them; for they are fully aware of the facts just stated by me in relation to the confiscation and sale of their reservation and similar disposition of their annuities. In proof of this fact I will have read a letter from "Good Thunder," of whom I will let Bishop Whipple—whom you all know—speak hereafter. Before coming here to attend this session, the leading men of these Indians came to see me, and among them "Good Thunder." He pleaded that justice be done his people in this matter, and I advised him, upon his return home, to call upon his missionary (for he is a Christian as well as a hero) or some other friend, and have him write me a letter to submit to the Department in support of an appeal for justice in behalf of his people. He has done so, and I submit it to the candid, thoughtful consideration of the House.

BIRCH COOLEY, RENVILLE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, February 20, 1888.

DEAR SIR: In the matter of the claim of the Medawakanton Sioux, residing in the State of Minnesota, to a pro rata share of the fund arising from the sale of the Sioux Indian reservations in that State, under the authority of the act of Congress of 1863, we desire to make the following statement of fact, as it appears to us, for your information and advice.

If you shall consider that our claim is well grounded and that the facts and the law are favorable to our view of the matter, we respectfully ask you to again lay it before the honorable Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and, if he be not convinced hereby, to push the matter to an ultimate decision by appeal to the honorable Secretary of the Interior or otherwise, as you shall deem best for our interest.

We desire the matter finally and speedily settled, as it is a constant source of anxiety and bad feeling among our people, who feel that they are being shut out from their hereditary rights, and that their money is being paid out to others in excess of their just claims, and to some who have no right and claim to any benefit arising therefrom.

If the sum were a small one, or if we were in comfortable circumstances, we might remain silent or feel little interest. But the sum in bulk is a large one (nearly if not quite a million dollars), and our own pro rata share would be enough, if expended for land, to make us comfortable for life.

And our needy circumstances are not of our fault or choice. We are the people who, when our tribes revolted or were seduced into war against the United States, were friendly to the whites and fought for them and rescued many prisoners and served until the frontier was cleared of the enemy, as scouts and pickets on the whole western border of Minnesota. All of us, or our fathers, were in such service. On this account we were unable to go to the reservations set apart for various of our bands, or having attempted it, to remain on such reservations. The people, though of our own blood, were hostile to us, and destroyed the property and threatened the lives of such of us as attempted to make residence among them.

We think these things in themselves constitute an apparent and just ground for our claim to our share of the moneys arising from the sale of our own homes.

But beyond this, we think the law and the manner in which it has been administered lie in our favor, and on this ground we make our demand.

The law of 1863, confiscating our annuities and ordering the sale of our lands and homes for our benefit, says that the moneys arising from this sale shall be expended for the benefit of these "Indians in their new homes." If it had said new reservations it might have meant to limit its benefits to reservation Indians, and thus exclude such as did not return to tribal life and so all these friendly soldiers and scouts. But it is not so worded; it says in their "new homes," not reservations.

Again, it has in one instance at least been interpreted by the Department in accordance with our views. The Indians living near Flandreau, Moody County, Dakota Territory, do not now live and never have lived there on a reservation. They, like us, have renounced their tribal allegiance and become citizens, and have acquired title to their lands under the homestead laws of the United States as citizens, and yet they have been allowed to participate in the distribution of the moneys arising from the sale of the Minnesota reservation. Moreover, some of them having, as citizens, mortgaged their homesteads, they have been provided money to clear these mortgages by the Indian Office, and they are still applicants for further aid from this reservation fund. The Santees, living in Nebraska, are also living on homesteads, and are citizens of the State, and yet have received large sums from this fund, and are still applying for further grants.

These facts not only appear, but we consider that the fund has been unjustly administered, not through fault of the law of 1863, but by the interpretation of it in the Indian Office. The parceling out of the fund is the administrative act of the Indian Office, and if error has been made may be corrected in that office.

The reservation in Minnesota was 120 miles long by 10 in width, on the south side of the Minnesota River. Of this land one-half, extending from Rock Creek to the Yellow Medicine River, belonged to the Medawakanton wan Sioux and to the Wahpekutes, both these tribes being now known as Santees, and the upper half of the reservation, extending from the Yellow Medicine River to the Dakota line, belonged to the Sisseton and Wahpeton Sioux. Yet in the distribution of the fund the latter have been allowed more than one-half of the moneys. Moreover, the Santee lands were better lands, and were first sold and brought better prices, and yet no advantage was allowed to accrue to them from these facts.

At Devil's Lake are settled a large number of Cut-heads and other James River Dakota Territory Indians, who had no treaty with the Government, who never lived in Minnesota, and had no rights or interest in and to the Minnesota reservation, and yet they also have been enumerated together with the Sissetons residing there, and been allowed to participate in the benefits of this fund.

Further, the Minnesota Indians had an individual interest in their late reservation, and had under the treaty 80-acre tracts assigned to each family and houses and other improvements. The distribution of this fund should have been equitable as between individuals, every one receiving, in some way, his own proper part and share. It has not been so administered. Certain men and families have received benefits to the amount of hundreds of dollars and others have received nothing. If the record of the office is inspected, it will be seen that large gifts have been made to certain families, say Frazier, Ross, and Hake-waste, and to others nothing at all.

But this is of the past and under another administration of affairs. For the present we claim that the balance of the fund yet unexpended belongs fairly and of right to the Minnesota Sioux, whose new homes are here, and who have been the faithful allies and friends of the Government. We can not rightly be deprived of our interest in the fund arising from the sale of our old homes and farms. And if the Commissioner shall order a hearing or grant us this fund we want it expended only for lands and improvements.

Will you kindly present our cause as forcibly as you can and push it to a final decision. If you need further information or substantiation of our claim we are prepared to furnish it forthwith.

Respectfully,

GOOD-THUNDER, his × mark.

Hon. J. L. MACDONALD, M. C., Washington, D. C.

While this letter is couched in the language of an educated person, I know that it is but the substance of what this Indian would say if he were here, and that he tells his story about as he tells it in the Dakota tongue. There is a sadness that is truly pathetic in this appeal of "Good Thunder" in behalf of his people as well as himself. It will be seen that this letter was not intended for Congress, but for the Indian Department, and is a dignified protest against the fact that their fidelity and loyalty to the whites have been ignored, and that no exception was made in their behalf when the confiscation of the land and annuities of their tribe was made, as was already stated.

I can submit no more eloquent appeal in behalf of these friendly Indians, or more influential testimony as to the character of "Good Thunder," than is to be found in the letter of their warm friend and advocate, Bishop H. B. Whipple:

FARIBAULT, MINN., December 9, 1887.

MY DEAR MR. MACDONALD: I write to ask your kind interest in behalf of the scattered Sioux of our State. You know these men are homeless largely on account of their devotion to us during the Sioux war. Their annuities were confiscated and they thrust out of home, while their friendship for us made them afraid to go to the mission. Congress has made appropriations for them twice—the first in money, which was of no use beyond their temporary support. The second was used in part to buy lands, etc., near Shakopee, Red Wing, and Wabasha, where they secured poor land and had no one to guide them.

Good Thunder, the Christian hero, who was chief of scouts under Sibley, purchased land near their old home. He gave 20 acres for a mission-house, and I have built a mission house, with a room attached, large enough for worship. There are twenty-three families here, and all are industrious and doing well, although some who have only 5 or 10 acres of land ought to have more. The land is good, plenty of timber, and a few miles away grass-land can be had cheap. I believe that if Congress will appropriate $20,000 for the purchase of land, agricultural implements, and to build a school-house not to cost over $1,000, with furniture, books, etc., we can remove all of these scattered Sioux and have a model Christian village.

The missionary I have paid myself from my deep love for men who showed such heroism in the war. Will you show this to Judge WILSON, RICE, and other members, and if you will secure this I shall give you all my life-long gratitude. You all know my devotion to this poor people. Many of the infirmities which have made me an old man before my time have been earned in their service. I do honestly believe that these friendly Sioux deserve, as no others, the kindness of the Government. Please all of you try to get this, and our Heavenly Father, who never forgets a deed of love to His poor children, will repay. With kind regards to my friends, Mr. RICE and Judge WILSON, Mr. NELSON, and Mr. LIND.

Your friend,

H. B. WHIPPLE,
Bishop of Minnesota.

In a letter dated January 13, 1878, General Sibley said in relation to this confiscation of the lands and annuities of these Indians:

I have always regarded the sweeping act of confiscation referred to as grossly unjust to the many who remained faithful to the Government, and whose lives were threatened and their property destroyed as a result of that fidelity.

Having been in command of the forces which suppressed the outbreak, and punished the participators in it, I became necessarily well informed as to the conduct of the bands and the individuals who took part for or against the Government during the progress of the war, and I have repeatedly, in my official dispatches, called the attention of the Government to the great injustice done the former class by including them in the legislation which deprived them of their annuities.

Very respectfully yours,

H. H. SIBLEY,
Brevet Major-General United States Volunteers.

As evidence in support of the fact that this appropriation is recommended by the proper Department of the Government, I submit the following letters relating thereto:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, D. C., March 16, 1888.

SIR: I have the honor to inclose herewith copy of a letter from Hon. JOHN L. MACDONALD, member of Congress from Minnesota, together with copy of a letter from Bishop Whipple, in relation to a band of Medawakanton Sioux residing in Minnesota, and respectfully recommend that the inclosed item of appropriation be transmitted to the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs of the House, and of the Committee on Appropriations in the Senate, with your favorable recommendation, to be added to the Indian appropriation bill now before the House committee.

Very respectfully, J. D. C. ATKINS, Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

[Indorsement.]

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, March 17, 1888.

Respectfully forwarded to the honorable Secretary of the Treasury, for transmission to and for the favorable consideration of Congress.

WM. F. VILAS, Secretary.

In obedience to similar appeals Congress last year appropriated $10,000, which was to be used in the purchase of lands and farming implements for these Indians, but because of a failure on the part of the person chosen to expend it to attend to the matter, nearly one-half of it was not used and remains in the Treasury. Consequently, a portion of them did not receive the lands intended to be thereby secured for them, and the Indians did not have the benefit of but little more than half of that appropriation. The object of this appropriation is to further aid these Indians in becoming self-sustaining and adopting the habits and customs of our civilization.

In explanation of the fact that the amendment is presented in this way, I wish to say, in justice to myself and all parties concerned, that I had an understanding with my friend, the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, that I should be notified in time to call upon the Department for the correspondence on this subject, in order to submit it to the committee, but in the press of business the matter was overlooked and the bill reported without this provision.

Mr. BLOUNT. Is it not true that the Indians who were engaged in the hostilities referred to are under later treaties getting annuities now?

Mr. MACDONALD. That is the fact, although these friendly Indians are not receiving their annuities.

Mr. BLOUNT. So I understand; and that makes the case a stronger one for the gentleman's proposition.

Mr. MACDONALD. Yes; it makes it stronger.

Mr. RYAN. Are these Indians under the control of any agency?

Mr. MACDONALD. No, sir; they are nearly all of them located in my district. By an appropriation heretofore made land has been purchased for the majority of them——

Mr. RYAN. Are they engaged in agriculture?

Mr. MACDONALD. Yes, sir; and this money is designed to buy horses, cattle, seed, and implements to be used by them in their occupations, which we hope may be the means of their becoming fully civilized. I will state that the money forfeited, which belonged to the tribe of which these Indians were members, amounts to about $1,000,000.

Mr. BLOUNT. They get nothing under treaty.

Mr. MACDONALD. Not a dollar.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk resumed and continued the reading of the bill until the appropriations on page 32, for "miscellaneous supports," had been reached.

Mr. PEEL. I ask now that we go back to consider the matter of the Sioux superintendent. A Senate bill on this subject has received favorable action at the hands of our committee; and I do not think there will be any objection to incorporating in this appropriation bill the measure which is to be offered as an amendment.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think there will be no objection if it be understood that there is to be no increase of the present salary. The duties will be substantially the same as at present—will require no more time for their performance.

The CHAIRMAN. Permission has been given to return to page 6 of the bill. The Clerk will read the amendment when it is sent up.

Mr. NELSON. I now send up to the desk the following amendments for the purpose of having them acted upon as a whole. The first amendment changes the phraseology of the bill as to the title of this inspector of Indian schools and prescribes his duties and compensation; and the latter part of the amendment is offered as a new section 8, and changes the number of the present section 8 to section 9.

I call attention to what I have corrected in the printed bill as the first amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The latter amendment could not be entertained now.

Mr. NELSON. It is offered as a whole by an understanding already had, and I ask unanimous consent to offer the amendments as an entirety. Unless unanimous consent is given for that purpose I shall not offer them at all.

Mr. HOLMAN. Let the amendments be read, subject to the point of order.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend line 126, page 6, of the bill, to read:

"Pay of one superintendent of Indian schools, $3,000."

Strike out the remainder of lines 127, 128, 129, and 130.

Amend lines 131 and 132 to read as follows:

"Traveling expenses of one superintendent of Indian schools, including incidental expenses of inspection and investigation, $1,500."

SEC. 8. That there shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a person of knowledge and experience in the management, training, and education of Indian children, to be superintendent of Indian schools.

That it shall be the duty of the superintendent of Indian schools to visit, from time to time, and as often as the nature of his duties will permit, the schools where Indians are taught, in whole or in part, by appropriations from the United States Treasury, and, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, to report annually to Congress the condition and progress of said schools; what, in his judgment, are the defects, if any, in any of them in system, in administration, or in means for the most effective advancement of the children in them toward civilization and self-support; and what changes are needed to remedy such defects as may exist.

It shall be the duty of said superintendent, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, to employ and discharge superintendents, teachers, and any other person connected with such schools, and to make such rules and regulations for the conduct of the schools as in his judgment the good of such schools may require. He shall embody in detail his doings under this section, with the reasons for his action in each case, in his annual report to Congress.

The said superintendent shall be allowed and paid a salary of $3,000 per annum, and, in addition thereto, his actual and necessary traveling expenses incurred while in the discharge of the duties prescribed by this act, such expenses to be allowed and paid on vouchers approved by the Secretary of the Interior.

The Secretary of the Interior shall cause to be detailed from the employés of his Department such assistants and shall furnish such facilities as shall be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

Mr. HOLMAN. I still retain the point of order.

Mr. NELSON. I understood the point of order was not to be made.

Mr. MCMILLIN. These amendments were only read for the information of the committee.

Mr. BLOUNT Not at all. The gentleman from Minnesota asked unanimous consent some time ago to offer this amendment; and the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] said that he would object unless the compensation of the superintendent was reduced to $3,000, and if the gentleman modified it he would not object.

Mr. MCMILLIN. But no further request for objection was made by the Chair, and that action of the gentleman from Indiana can not be taken as an estoppel of the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. The right to object has not been waived.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think that there is but one further objection to this——

Mr. BLOUNT. The gentleman from Minnesota asked to submit these amendments in their proper place, and on objection being made the question was submitted to the committee. I insist that it is now too late to raise the objection after the amendment has been modified as agreed upon by the committee.

Mr. NELSON. The salary has been fixed, as will be seen by the amendment, at $3,000.

Mr. HOLMAN. I wish to call the attention of my friend to this fact: That on hastily looking at the amendment I had but one objection, which was as to the $4,000 salary. I objected because the duties were precisely the same as those of the predecessor of this official, and the sum heretofore appropriated was $3,000. But on reading the amendment still further I find there is no such limitation as has been heretofore imposed ever since 1882—that is, as to the expenditures, the per diem, and traveling expenses; and the appropriation heretofore made was fixed upon that basis; that is to say, that there is to be so much per diem in addition to the traveling expenses.

Now, I think that language ought to be retained in the amendment. In all other respects I am satisfied with it.

Mr. NELSON. I desire briefly to explain the amendment, hoping that we may agree upon the general plan of it, and then perfect the matter after it is before the committee. I simply ask that the amendments be considered by unanimous consent at this time, and then we can determine if it will be necessary to modify or change them.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

Mr. MCMILLIN. I prefer, Mr. Chairman, that my friend shall put this upon its own merits as an independent proposition.

Permit me to state that I favor such appropriations as are required by treaty stipulations; but I doubt very seriously the propriety of going beyond the treaty stipulations in this provision of the bill.

Mr. RYAN. Perhaps my friend does not understand this, that we have already made provision in the bill for such an officer and fixed the pay at $3,000? Now this simply designates the officer by another name, and provides how he shall be appointed, and prescribes his duties. It seems to me that the legislation is very proper in connection with this provision. If you are to have the officer at all, you ought to have a law providing how he shall be appointed and what his annual salary shall be, as well as the duties.

Mr. MCMILLIN. My friend and I differ only in this: I should oppose the appointment by the Government of any officer in connection with those schools except such as are required by treaty stipulation with the Indians.

Mr. BLOUNT. The duty of making those appointments grows out of the treaty stipulations. Those funds belong to the Indians and are used for their improvement, and among other things schools are an important agency for the improvement of the Indians.

Mr. NELSON. I desire to explain the reasons for this amendment. We have by law technically no authority for a superintendent of schools. But by the law found in volume 22, Statutes at Large, page 70, the office of inspector of schools was established; and this is the only warrant we have for an official of this kind.

Mr. MCMILLIN. That is what I am complaining of, that we are letting a system grow up outside of our treaty stipulations.

Mr. NELSON. This was a bill which passed the Senate, came over here, and was unanimously recommended by the Committee on Indian Affairs. It creates the office which has been practically in existence since the appropriation bill of 1882. We have made year by year an appropriation of $3,000 for a superintendent of Indian schools, when technically there was no such office. Now, this is to put it on a proper legal basis. The great virtue of this amendment is that it makes the inspector of schools an independent officer under the Secretary of the Interior. It segregates the office from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and establishes it under the Secretary of the Interior. But as now amended, it does not increase or change the salary that will be paid to the inspector of Indian schools. The same salary has been allowed in every appropriation bill since 1882.

Mr. McMILLIN. It is the old experience. You first put in an appropriation bill a temporary appropriation for an officer, and the first thing you know he is a permanent officer of the Government; and frequently he buds into a bureau, as is proposed here; and you have that fastened on the Government forever. I am prepared to carry out every treaty stipulation which the Government of the United States has made with the Indians. I am in favor of adhering closely to those stipulations; but I am opposed to the Government of the United States going beyond the treaty stipulations in making appropriations of money for schools.

Mr. BLOUNT. I do not think this is exactly the old story, as my friend from Tennessee wishes us to believe. So far as the Indians themselves are concerned, the Government having taken their lands at a nominal value for homesteads for its own citizens, this is a mere bagatelle out of the public Treasury compared with the vast domains we have taken by treaties, fraudulent in their nature, made in a manner which is a disgrace to the people of this country.

Mr. McMILLIN. The time of the ratification of those treaties would be more properly the occasion for remedying any wrong.

Mr. BLOUNT. If the gentleman will allow me to proceed, I will say that so far as regards decent conduct to the Indians the proper time is whenever we have occasion to discharge our duties to them. We have by virtue of treaties acquired these lands, and a large part of the funds out of which these appropriations are made are the funds of the Indians. They are rightfully theirs. The money which is used for the purpose of helping them to farm, for giving them agricultural implements, for the purchase of stock, for the education of their children, receives the high-sounding term of appropriations out of the public Treasury, but is really out of the funds of the Indians themselves. And in taking control of their funds what is more proper than that we should, in providing for their education, appoint some competent person to superintend their schools and properly systematize an intelligent use of the funds and make an intelligent report to Congress of such facts as it may need in order to legislate in reference thereto?

There is no question here of wasting the public treasure for the benefit of the Indians. What has been done is to take their treasure and put it into the common Treasury of the people of the United States.

I trust that my friend from Tennessee will see fit to allow a sufficient sum to be provided to have an efficient superintendent.

Mr. HOLMAN. I ask my friend from Georgia this: He understands the duties which have been performed heretofore and which will be performed hereafter by this officer; whether you call him superintendent or inspector, he will visit all the schools, will have a general supervision of them, and will direct their progress and advancement.

Heretofore this officer has been simply an officer of the Indian Bureau, and the duties, so far as I am aware, have been well performed. Professor Oberly, now occupying a different office, was a very efficient superintendent. He performed the duties with entire satisfaction heretofore as a part of the Indian Office. I presume this officer will perform in the future the same duties as those I have indicated. But the effect of this amendment is to make this a new bureau, putting it on the same footing as the Bureau of Education or the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Now, I ask the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT], after all he has said upon this subject of new bureaus—and we all know how they grow and how rapidly their employés increase—I ask him, after all he has said on that subject, can he consent to create this new bureau in the Interior Department? If any gentleman can suggest to me how, in any degree, this superintendent will be more efficient as an independent bureau than he would be as an officer of the Indian Office, I will yield the point.

Mr. BLOUNT. My friend puts to me a very simple proposition, if I accept his premises. It is about equivalent to this: Do I believe I am telling the truth? I say I do; but I do not concede all the facts which my friend alleges.

Mr. HOLMAN. What more can this officer do as superintendent than he has done heretofore?

Mr. BLOUNT. The point to which the gentleman is objecting is not about this officer's duties. It is about the independent bureau.

Now, I simply want to say that I do not claim absolute knowledge as to what is best to do in this connection. I concede to my friend from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] a large amount of knowledge on this subject, but I likewise understand that the Secretary of the Interior, who is charged by Congress with, among other things, the supervision of the Indian service, does believe that it will advance that service to make this officer independent of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and have him report directly to the Secretary.

Mr. HOLMAN. What objection has my friend to give all the efficiency that the provision can give, but at the same time provide that this bureau shall still remain a part of the Indian Office? Call this officer a superintendent, if you please, because I have no objection to the name, but after all let the officer continue to be a part of the Indian Office instead of creating him a new bureau.

Mr. BLOUNT. I do not see that there is anything about a new bureau in it at all.

Mr. HOLMAN. In terms you make this a new bureau.

Mr. BLOUNT. I take it that the officers of the Interior Department, who have made this matter a study, are more persuasive in their authority than any gentleman who casually takes the matter up, however great his knowledge may be.

Mr. HOLMAN. Is this change recommended by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

Mr. BLOUNT. It is recommended by the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. HOLMAN. Yes, I know; but is it recommended by those gentlemen who have made the subject a special study for years?

Mr. BLOUNT. I can not say as to that. I have no doubt that the head of this great Department has availed himself of the counsel of those around him and of the information in that Department. He is quite capable of making a recommendation on this subject.

Mr. HOLMAN. I concede his ability and general experience; but no person can be so familiar with the current duties to be performed by this superintendent as the head of the Indian Office. What I am objecting to is the establishment of a new bureau, when the same efficiency in the performance of the duties could be secured in connection with the present bureau.

Mr. BLOUNT. I have no idea that the Commissioner of Indian Affairs has much to do now with the superintendent of these schools. My friend knows that in the Departments there are recognized by law many nominal heads who know but little of various matters coming within their jurisdiction. I do not think any harm is to come from creating this office of commissioner of education with the limited duties proposed.

Mr. HOLMAN. I am not objecting to that.

Mr. BLOUNT. These Indians are not numerous and the schools will necessarily not be large. I can not see why we must constantly be told the old story about the evils of creating new bureaus.

The CHAIRMAN. There is nothing before the committee. The gentleman from Tennessee has objected to the amendment.

Mr. NELSON. I understood he withdrew his point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. Is the objection to the consideration of the amendment withdrawn?

Mr. McMILLIN. I do not withdraw it.

Mr. BLOUNT. I hope my friend from Tennessee will allow the Committee of the Whole to consider the matter.

The CHAIRMAN. As this amendment proposes to create a new and independent office, it can not be considered if the point of order is insisted upon. The Clerk will proceed with the reading of the bill.

The Clerk resumed the reading.

The following was read:

Surveying and allotting Indian reservations (reimbursable): For pay of special agents, and necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of section 3 of the act approved February 8, 1887, entitled "An act to provide for the allotment of lands in severalty to Indians on the various reservations, and to extend the protection of the laws of the United States and the Territories over the Indians, and for other purposes," $25,000.

Mr. PEEL. I offer the amendment which I send to the desk, an amendment, however, which does not come from the committee.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 1011 strike out the words "twenty-five thousand dollars" and insert "$35,000, $10,000 of which sum shall be immediately available."

Mr. PEEL. The reason for offering this amendment is that in the present state of the finances of the Department no money is available for the purpose of continuing this allotment. Some time must elapse before the money appropriated in this bill will be available. Hence the necessity for this amendment.

Mr. RYAN. Is this appropriation for the purpose of carrying out the severalty act?

Mr. PEEL. Yes, sir.

Mr. HOOKER. Mr. Chairman, I desire to obtain some information in reference to the portion of the bill upon page 42. The amendment now offered by the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] proposes to increase the appropriation provided in line 1011 from $25,000 to $35,000. A prior paragraph of the bill, it will be observed, is in this language:

For survey and subdivision of Indian reservations and of lands to be allotted to Indians, and to make allotments in severalty, to be expended by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, $25,000.

Then comes the provision:

Surveying and allotting of Indian reservations (reimbursable).

I suppose this means that the money is to be paid back to the Government out of the proceeds of lands which may be ceded under this allotment of the Indian lands—

For pay of special agents and necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of section 3 of the act approved February 8, 1887, etc.—

That is the act known as the allotment act—

twenty-five thousand dollars.

This appropriation the gentleman's amendment proposes to increase to $35,000. Then follows this further provision:

For surveys and resurveys under the provisions of the act of Congress approved February 8, 1887, to be repaid proportionately out of the proceeds of the sales of such lands as may be acquired from the Indians under the provisions of said act, $75,000.

These appropriations, as provided in the bill, make in the aggregate $125,000; and the amendment of the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs will increase the aggregate to $135,000. In other words, the bill in these provisions for the allotment of lands among the Indians proposes to appropriate, with the amendment now pending, $135,000. I submit that this amount is excessive; that the sum provided in the bill is certainly sufficient, if not too much, for all necessary purposes. Indeed, when the chairman of the committee rose, I was just about to offer an amendment to cut down this appropriation from the very large amount of $125,000 to something which, in my view, would be reasonable.

As I understand, under this allotment act, the surveys are to be made at the expense of the Government, to be reimbursed from the lands which it is supposed will be acquired by the Government as these allotments are made and the Indian reservations cut down. My friend from Alabama has introduced only to-day a proposition, which will come before this committee for consideration, to amend the act of 1887 providing for this allotment of land among the Indians. And, sir, when you consider either the rights of the Indians or the rights of the Government, it is a very doubtful question whether that allotment act was founded in legislative wisdom with reference either to the interests of the United States or the interests of the Indians.

These allotments in severalty—and it was announced here to-day that the proposition is to bring all of the Indian tribes under that system as citizens of the Government under the control and provisions of its laws; and yet it is a remarkable fact that in all of the bills which have been introduced in the Congress of the United States upon this subject there never has been a proposition, and probably never will come one from the Indian Committee, proposing to apply this principle of allotment to those Indians who have attained the highest degree of civilization, to wit, the five semi-civilized tribes of the Indian Territory; and why, Mr. Chairman?

If it should not be applied to them, why should it be applied to the more ignorant and savage Indians? The five semi-civilized tribes probably hold their lands by a somewhat different tenure under their treaties from that of the savage tribes upon the plains; but no proposition has been made, either through the Indian Committee or elsewhere before the Congress of the United States, to allot the lands in severalty to them.

Mr. RYAN. Is that not due to the fact that the power is not delegated to Congress by the treaties except under a certain condition?

Mr. HOOKER. The Congress has no right under the treaties to compel the Indians to hold their lands in any other way than as they now hold them; and as long as the Indian holds his own intelligence and understands his own treaty interests, and I think the five semi-civilized tribes do understand their interests, they will be found bitterly opposed, as I have asserted heretofore, to the principle of allotments in severalty, because it presages by such an act the termination of their existence as a people. They understand that fact, and hence there has never been a demand on the part of that people for such action on the part of the Government.

Now it is proposed, either at the expense of the Government or the Indians, to apply it to certain tribes of Indians upon the plains—the wilder tribes—and enter upon this system in regard to them, the Government assuming in the first instance the expense and claiming to be reimbursed out of the proceeds of the sale of lands. I think, Mr. Chairman, that so far from the amendments having been founded in reason, with all due respect to the committee, that the amount appropriated by the bill should rather be cut down; and I hope the amendment will not prevail

Mr. PEEL. I regret that my friend from Mississippi is not in accord with the administration of the Indian Bureau, and I believe with the Executive himself, in regard to this doctrine of allotment of lands in severalty. Yet it is the law, and we are now dealing simply with the money of the Government to execute the law.

My reason for offering the amendment was, as I stated before, that in the appropriation for the last fiscal year there is no money now available to carry on the work.

Mr. HOLMAN. Why not take the $10,000 out of the $25,000?

Mr. PEEL. I have no objection to that, but inasmuch as the committee appropriates $25,000 for the next fiscal year, and that does not become available until after the 1st of July, it was supposed that the whole amount would be needed in the next fiscal year; and hence the $10,000 was added by way of amendment to carry it on from now until that sum becomes available.

But if the committee think the $25,000 appropriated in the bill is enough, and will make $10,000 of it available now to carry on this work up to the first of the next fiscal year, and then that the other $15,000 shall be available for the next year, I have no objection, and I presume it will be agreeable to the committee.

Now, a word as to the five semi-civilized tribes in regard to which the gentleman from Mississippi has spoken. I regret very much that the treaties existing with them are of such a character as to prohibit the application of a general allotment bill to them. If gentlemen will go back to the treaties between the Government and these tribes they will discover that the Government has no power to allot the lands in severalty to them until the application is made through their national council to the Government; but unfortunately such a state of political affairs exists there that the national council is very careful not to call upon the Government for that purpose, for reasons that they understand and the country around them understands pretty well. It is to be regretted that the treaties are of such a character that they are excepted from the operation of that law; and I hope the time will come when we will see a way out of it.

I have made some efforts myself to have a court established there and give to that court jurisdiction to partition the lands, giving to the Indians there, or any one of them who shall desire to have his undivided allotment, the right to his land in that manner, lands which are now improperly used by others who are able to prevent the allotments and division.

Mr. DUBOIS. Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment just read will be adopted. There are quite a large number of Indians living on reservations who have signified their desire to take their lands in severalty. There is one tribe, the Nez Percé Indians, in my Territory who are anxious to have their lands allotted to them, and they are about as highly civilized, I imagine, as any Indians in the country outside, perhaps, of the five semi-civilized tribes of the Indian Territory. It is their great desire to have their lands in severalty, so that they can have homes of their own. The work of allotting the lands has been stopped because no money is available for the purpose. The Indians and the Indian Department have agreed to it, and they are simply waiting for the Department to survey the lands. That of course can not be done unless the appropriation is made.

I am satisfied that it would be to the great advantage of a number of Indians on reservations in the West to have their lands allotted in severalty. They are of the same opinion. An appropriation of $35,000 for this purpose could not be too much, and that portion of the amendment which provides that $10,000 shall be immediately available, I think is necessary in justice to the Indians.

If you put it off until after the 1st of July, and the season of cold and snows comes on, the delay practically stops the work for a year. If the money is made available now they can go on with the work during the summer months.

Mr. HOOKER. Mr. Chairman, I am more impressed with the propriety of my opposition to the pending provision by what has fallen from my friend from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL]. I am struck with another fact, that the remark which fell from my distinguished friend as chairman of the committee ought to be, and I doubt not will be, considered a note of warning that the reason why the Committee on Indian Affairs and nobody else has ever proposed to apply the doctrine of allotment to the five semi-civilized tribes was simply the want of power.

The gentleman from Arkansas expressed the hope that the time will come when through the instrumentality of judicial tribunals established in the Indian Territory he may be able to apply the doctrine of allotment and division to the five semi-civilized tribes. I say that when that thing shall be done you will have, according to the gentleman's own confession, to override the solemn treaties of the Government with these five semi-civilized tribes. And if that can not be done by an open act of legislation I pity the judicial tribunal which will lend itself to the accomplishment of the purpose by an adjudication which does not respect the solemn treaties made with these people and the patents given to them. We have too often violated them with impunity. But I say they ought to be respected in the spirit and temper with which those lands were given them.

In this bill you have a tardy act of justice performed by the Government to the Choctaw Nation, which for fifty years has been knocking at the doors of the Government for what is justly due them. When they ceded the land owned by them on the east side of the Mississippi River you gave them the territory on the west side in common with the five semi-civilized tribes, declaring it to be theirs; using a beautiful figure of their own, "as long as water flows and grass grows." You did it by treaty. You obligated yourselves by every form of obligation that it should be theirs; not for you to divide; not for you to allot, that your citizens may be enabled to possess these lands; but it is theirs to hold—whether in community or severalty they are the best judges.

The principle on which the intelligent men who control the affairs of the five civilized tribes claim that their land shall be held in community, rather than in severalty, is that that is a condition which is necessary to their being preserved in that peace and plenty which they are now enjoying. I assert that in a financial point of view no agricultural portion of the people of our country are in a better position than that of the five semi-civilized tribes. They know their rights and their interests, and they have always been opposed to this allotment. I trust the time hoped for by the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs will be very remote when there shall come from his committee or any individual member of the Legislature of the United States a proposition to take from these Indians the lands given them, not only by the solemnity of treaties, but by patents to these tribes. I do not, therefore, share the anxiety of my friend about the rapid execution of the allotment act. Perhaps it would be better for the Indians if it never should be executed, and that is certainly true in regard to the Indians belonging to the semi-civilized tribes.

I am almost tempted to make a proposition to strike out the whole section making an appropriation to carry out what I regard as a part of the policy now being urged. It may be my misfortune to differ with the Secretary of the Interior, and perhaps with the Executive, but I do so because I believe it is the duty of the Congress of the United States to respect these rights. If a policy is adopted by the head of the Interior Department or by the Executive which looks to the violation of any of the treaty rights of these Indians, or should permit them to peddle those rights, I am opposed to it, whoever may attempt to carry out such a policy.

Mr. PEEL. I hope this discussion will now close; but I desire for a very few moments to be permitted to reply to my distinguished friend from Mississippi [Mr. HOOKER] in regard to the five semi-civilized tribes. I think he has not examined the treaties with these people as minutely as I allow his ability would have enabled him to do. It is guarantied that the Government shall protect those Indians; and I ask the gentleman whether it is proper to protect a few nabobs who have amassed fortunes in that country and have monopolized the property of 90 per cent. of the people of that country?

If my friend will pass through the five civilized tribes and become acquainted with those people he will find that he is mistaken in stating that they are opposed to holding their lands in severalty. They are crying out now on that subject. They have to stand by and see their common property used by these nabobs to their exclusion; and they are so weak politically that they are powerless to wrench from the politicians of the Territories the control of the legislative bodies through which and by which only they can have their lands divided.

Mr. HOOKER. I will ask the gentleman if there is an Indian among the five civilized tribes who has not a home. Is there a pauper among them?

Mr. PEEL. Yes, the Indian has a home, so called, located at the back of some landlord's farm in a little hut, working on his own land as a day laborer for a man who has inclosed all the land around him. Under the local laws of those "nations" any citizen may fence in all the land he pleases, provided it is not occupied by any other citizen, even if it is 10,000 acres. At an early day advantage was taken of this law to fence in large farms of from 5,000 to 10,000 acres, upon which the owners of the land are employed as simple day laborers. That is the condition of the Indians, and if we are going to protect them, I say that while we guaranty by treaty to protect them in the title to their lands we should also devise some means of protecting them in their individual rights. It is a principle not only of equity but of common sense and justice that if a citizen has a property in common with some one else, and if he is capable of managing his own affairs, he shall have the right to go to the Government or to the courts and have his individual rights set off to him, in order that he may be independent; and we ought to make the Indian independent of those who hold him down under the yoke of political despotism. That is my view of the subject.

Mr. CANNON. Let me ask the gentleman if it is not also notorious that the most powerful of the five civilized tribes is practically dominated by the cattle syndicates upon the Cherokee Outlet?

Mr. PEEL. Very likely that is true.

Mr. CANNON. And is it not true also that much of the talk, which is no doubt honestly believed in by well-meaning people not fully informed—much of the talk that is heard about the hardships that are feared by these Indians from the change is promoted or originated by these men, who have got possession of the five or six millions acres of that outlet and want to hold on to it in defiance of law and public policy?

Mr. PEEL. Very likely.

Mr. HOOKER. The question is whether the remedy for existing evils is to open up the lands to white settlers.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

For surveys and resurveys under the provisions of the act of Congress approved February 8, 1887, to be repaid proportionately out of the proceeds of the sales of such lands as may be acquired from the Indians under the provisions of said act, $75,000; in all, $100,000.

For continuing the investigation and examination of certain Indian depredation claims, originally authorized, and in the manner therein provided for, by the Indian appropriation acts approved March 3, 1885, and March 2, 1887, $20,000.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment which I offer on behalf of the committee, to come in on page 43 of the bill, after line 1023.

The amendment was read, as follows:

To pay Nimrod Jarrett Smith, chief and delegate of the Eastern band of Cherokee Indians in North Carolina, for services rendered to such band from ——, 1882, to April 15, 1887, as delegate to Washington, D. C., $3,571.66; the same to be paid out of any funds belonging to said Indians in the Treasury, to be immediately available.

Mr. PEEL. I simply desire to say to the committee that this gentleman presented before our committee resolutions and an act of their own council approving his account and authorizing it to be paid.

Mr. BLOUNT. I wish to reserve the point of order on that amendment.

Mr. PEEL. The committee, therefore, thought it was just and right that provision should be made for this item, inasmuch as the Indian council had passed upon the account, and had come to the conclusion that the services had been rendered and that the bill should be paid.

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Chairman, I desire to reserve the point of order on the amendment; not with any view of antagonizing the committee, but because I think the practice is a bad one. This is a bill to provide for the annual expenditures of the Indian service, but this amendment has no relation at all to the general Indian service; it is an amendment providing for the payment of a claim which the Committee on Indian Affairs have examined. Such claims have always been allowed heretofore, when allowed at all, upon deficiency bills, and such an amendment seems to me not to be in order here.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understands that this amendment provides that the money is to be paid out of any Indian funds that may be available in the Treasury, and not out of the funds of the United States.

Mr. BLOUNT. I take it that that is true. That is true also in reference to all such claims that have been audited heretofore and provided for in deficiency bills.

Mr. PEEL. I will say to my friend from Georgia that this money is, of course, to be paid out of the fund of the Indians themselves. From the accounts and papers presented before our committee it appeared that the matter had been very fully and fairly adjusted by their council, all proper credits and charges being made, and that this amount had been found to be due.

Mr. HOOKER. The Cherokee council have recommended this payment?

Mr. PEEL. Yes, sir; they recommend it; and, as the appropriation is to come out of the funds of the Indians to whom the services were rendered, as the council that employed this man may be assumed to know what his services were worth and have audited and adjusted the accounts, it was thought by us that this appropriation might properly be made.

A MEMBER. Who audited the claim?

Mr. PEEL. The council of the Indians themselves.

Mr. BLOUNT. If this were merely a personal matter between my friend from Arkansas and myself, I would gladly waive any objection on my part; but the question presented goes far beyond anything of that kind. I have never understood it to be the province of any committee charged with the subject of appropriations to examine a claim of this kind—to allow persons to come before the committee——

Mr. PEEL. Of course the gentleman does not intend to mislead the House. We have not put this appropriation on the bill.

Mr. BLOUNT. Of course I do not intend to mislead the House. We are discussing the question here in the face of everybody; and I presume members are intelligent enough to understand the situation. But I understand my friend to state that the Committee on Indian Affairs have taken up a claim of a certain Indian, have examined all the facts, and have concluded that it is a good claim and are moving to insert it in a general appropriation bill. I say that this is unprecedented in the legislation of this House. Such a practice is calculated to bring about all manner of abuses. I can not consent to the proposition that any committee of this House has such facility for the examination of claims as would justify the House in departing from its rules and allowing matters of this kind to go on a general appropriation bill.

There are claims of a certain class which are examined and audited by a Department; and after such examination, made with proper instrumentalities for reaching the truth, such claims have been put on a deficiency bill.

So far as concerns the suggestion that this money is to be paid out of the Indian fund, I can not understand that as entering properly into the consideration of the question. But as that suggestion has been thrown out I will make this observation——

Mr. PEEL. The gentleman will allow me to say that we did not audit the claim ourselves. I did not say that. I said that the Cherokee council of North Carolina had audited it, that the papers presented before the committee showed that the council had pronounced the claim correct, and that an order of the council had directed that it be paid. Therefore we saw no objection to offering this as an amendment, though we did not put it in the bill, because we believed it would be subject to a point of order. That is all there is of it.

Mr. BLOUNT. I can not countenance the idea that because a council down in North Carolina, not responsible to the Government in any way, have examined a claim of this kind, we are to accept their auditing of the account, or to be controlled by it in any manner when it is proposed to insert the appropriation in this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. What point of order does the gentleman from Georgia make?

Mr. BLOUNT. My point of order is that here is a claim which it is proposed to pay out of one of the Indian funds to a person claiming that certain Indians are indebted to him for a certain amount of money. It is not an appropriation authorized by law at all; and we are asked to provide for this payment on a general appropriation bill upon the mere recommendation of an Indian council in North Carolina. These being the facts, as I understand them, the proposition is not in order on this bill, and coming in this form would not be in order on any general appropriation bill. I do not understand my friend from Arkansas as claiming that it is in order.

Mr. PEEL. I said that our committee had not incorporated it in the bill, because we did not know that it could be properly reported in a bill of this character. That was simply our judgment.

Mr. BLOUNT. That concedes the whole question.

Mr. PEEL. Let us have the question disposed of.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair does not feel sufficiently advised to decide whether this amendment is out of order or not. So far as the Chair is aware, it may be provided by treaty stipulations between the United States and this tribe of Indians that the Indians should be allowed to determine what shall be considered a proper expenditure of their own money.

It appears that they have money in the Treasury of the United States, and that they desire a portion of that money to be applied, according to the statement of the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, for the purpose contemplated in this amendment—for the payment of one of their own agents who has represented their business in Washington. If the Indians have the right to control the expenditure of their own money lying in the Treasury of the United States, the Chair would be inclined to consider this a proper method of appropriating the money for their benefit.

Mr. RYAN. But there is the difficulty. It is to be presumed the money is in the Treasury for specific purposes prescribed by law——

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is not sufficiently advised on that subject.

Mr. RYAN. And that this money can not be taken from the Treasury except for specific purposes. The object named in this amendment is evidently not one of those purposes. The amendment may be entirely just, and I would hardly feel at liberty to resist its adoption if in order; but I can not see that it is in order, for this expenditure does not appear to be authorized by any law.

Mr. BLOUNT. My only object is to preserve the character of these bills, according to the rules and practice of the House.

The CHAIRMAN. This does not appear to be an ordinary claim. The amendment provides for the payment of an agent selected by these Indians to represent their business at Washington. If, as suggested by the chairman of the committee, these Indians have no way of paying their agent except by an appropriation of this kind from their fund, the Chair thinks this is not to be classed as an ordinary claim which should be presented in the form of a private bill, but as a matter which must come here in this form if it comes in at all.

Mr. BLOUNT. Then, without authority of Congress, these Indians can make any sort of contract they please in reference to the expenditure of this fund, and a provision for payment in accordance with such agreement is in order here on a general appropriation bill?

Mr. CANNON. Allow me to make a single suggestion. Whatever the provision of the treaty may be, after all it looks to me that this is within the spirit of Rule XXI. The Government, in fact, now has to look out for itself and the Indians too; and all through this bill, without any treaty stipulation, provision is made for taking care of the Indians, providing for their education, etc., and it strikes me that it takes money out of the Treasury of the United States and is within the spirit of the rule. The moral obligation as well as the legal obligation of the Government is to provide for the treaty stipulations, and it does not make much difference whether it is the specific money of the Eastern Cherokees that is appropriated or not, the same principle applies. They receive about so much money each year, and the Government has to protect them as well as itself.

Mr. RYAN. It strikes me that this is a part of their school money.

Mr. PEEL. I am not advised as to that. I asked the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. JOHNSTON], representing the district, and he said that there was some act setting apart some portion of that fund for school purposes; but whether this is that fund or not I am not able to say.

Mr. RYAN. It is my opinion that it is the same fund.

Mr. PEEL. And whether that fund is in such condition that the council of the tribe, having audited the claim and directed its payment, can bring it within the scope of the bill, or so that it can go upon an appropriation bill, is a question. In my opinion——

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair would suggest that if there is any question about this matter, the amendment had better lie over until the next session of the committee.

Mr. PEEL. I move that the committee rise.

Mr. CANNON. I hope the gentleman will allow me, before submitting that motion, to offer an amendment, as I shall not be here at the next meeting of the committee.

Mr. PEEL. I understand my friend from Illinois will not be here on Monday, and I will not insist upon the motion now.

Mr. CANNON. I desire to submit an amendment to come in on page 45 of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. If there be no objection, the committee will return to this amendment at its next meeting.

There was no objection.

Mr. CANNON. I now yield to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. JOHNSTON].

Mr. JOHNSTON, of Indiana, rose.

Mr. RYAN. I understand my friend wishes to propose an amendment on page 45.

Mr. CANNON. Yes.

Mr. RYAN. That is in advance of the reading of the bill. I have no objection to the gentleman offering his amendment if there be an understanding that when we meet again we shall commence the reading at this point in the bill.

Mr. STEELE. If we read the bill instead of talking we will get through, and I call for the regular order.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the bill; it will take but a short time.

Mr. PEEL. I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Illinois be allowed to offer his amendment at this time.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

Mr. STEELE. I shall be compelled to object unless I can also have an opportunity to offer an amendment, as I shall probably not be here myself at the next meeting.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will again submit the request of the gentleman from Illinois for unanimous consent to offer an amendment now with the understanding that when the committee again meets we return to this part of the bill.

Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of Indiana. I send the amendment to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert after line 1090:

"For the support of 80 pupils at the Cherokee Training School, at Cherokee, N. C., at $150 per annum each, $12,000."

Mr. CANNON. I take it that there is no objection to that amendment.

Mr. PEEL. I desire to retain the point of order until I know the object of this.

Mr. CANNON. I will explain briefly.

Mr. McMILLIN. Is the point of order reserved?

Mr. PEEL. It has been reserved.

I will state that we increased an item that had been heretofore appropriated for these schools—I believe, $61,000 for schools of which this was one—for the purpose of enabling them to take these pupils, the appropriation for that purpose being taken from another item, so that the Department may give to such schools as this more per capita than they had heretofore. Now, if this amendment comes in as an independent proposition, then, of course, it ought to be deducted from the total amount given for this purpose.

Mr. CANNON. I think there will be no objection to that.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. This applies to a school in the district which I represent, and I do not know by what authority it is offered. As I understand it, Mr. Chairman, the school there is run by contract; that is, that the children are educated at so much per head. I do not know whether this school is a permanent institution or not, or whether appropriations can be made for it in this manner or not. But my understanding is that the Commissioner of Indian Affairs has been in the habit of letting out the education of the children there to the lowest bidder, and that the payment comes out of the general fund. I do not know how that may be and should like to have some explanation of it before this amendment is acted upon.

Mr. CANNON rose.

Mr. PERKINS. Let the point of order be reserved until we can hear from the gentleman from Illinois upon the merits.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. Very well.

Mr. CANNON. Mr. Chairman, to start with, I do not think that this provision is subject to the point of order; but I do not care to discuss that point now.

If the gentleman from North Carolina will notice the clause immediately preceding this in the bill he will see that provision is made for one hundred and fifty pupils at St. Ignatius Mission school, on the Jocko reservation, in Montana Territory, where the appropriation at the rate of $150 per annum each is fixed, and the sum total of $22,500 is given. Again, just after that is a provision for the education and support of one hundred Chippewa Indian boys and girls at St. John's University and at St. Benedict's Academy, in the State of Minnesota, at $150 per annum each, and so on.

Now, the effect of this provision is this: At this school, at Cherokee, N. C., the Government owns the building. The Society of Friends, under the control of the Western Indiana yearly meetings, have charge of all the schools of the Eastern Cherokees, and have had for some years.

I will read from the report of Robert L. Leatherwood, United States Indian agent, Eastern Cherokee agency:

I will next take up the educational work, which has been under the supervision of the Society of Friends for the last five years. There are five schools at this agency. The Cherokee training-school, which is located at Cherokee, N. C., is in a flourishing condition. This school is carried on by the Government. The other four schools are run by the interest of the trust fund belonging to the eastern band of Cherokees, the Society of Friends having control of the entire educational work. It affords me much pleasure to say that the progress in these schools has been wonderful.

The Cherokee training school is carried on ten months in the year, and the four other schools seven months in the year. There are twenty boys and twenty girls in attendance at the Cherokee training school. This number ought to be increased to seventy or eighty, as the facilities are such that eighty could be accommodated. The Government in 1885 completed a large building at this place for educational purposes; this building is known as "the boys' home." There are also two other large buildings at this place used for educational purposes. I am confident that this is the place to educate the Indian. The superintendent of these schools, Professor Spray, is a man of unquestioned ability, a devoted Christian, and has had much experience in the educational work. The teachers have all been educated in the best institutions of the country and are thoroughly competent to impart knowedge to these pupils. Every selfish interest is laid aside and nothing but the interest of the Indians enters the minds of the teachers. If the schools progress as they have in the past there is a glorious future, a bright and happy destiny for the Indians of the Eastern Cherokee agency.

The intellect of the Indian is apparently bright, the students showing a wonderful power of acquisition; very small children have learned to speak, read, and write the English language. Some of the older students will soon be prepared to make good teachers. I hope this work may go on as it has in the past, and if so the time is not far distant when the Indians of this agency will be competent to assert their own rights and protect their own industries.

The Society of Friends giving this instruction and having charge of this education are allowed by the Department, on the ground of a short appropriation $125 for each scholar; whereas at Carlisle and at Hampton and at the other Government schools it costs the Government in round numbers $187 a pupil, as shown by the reports. Professor Hobbs, formerly a superintendent of public instruction in Indiana and an eminent member of the Society of Friends, has given much attention to the status of the Eastern Cherokees, and states that the $125 allowed for each pupil will not enable them to carry on this training school. And it is but fair this training school should be on all-fours with the institution among the Flatheads and the institutions in Minnesota, where $150 per capita is appropriated.

Mr. McMILLIN. May I ask the gentleman from Illinois a question?

Mr. CANNON. Certainly.

Mr. McMILLIN. Does this come out of the trust funds?

Mr. PERKINS. No; it is a direct appropriation.

Mr. CANNON. It is like the direct appropriation made for the support of Indian children at the St. Ignatius institution, where the care the children receive is first-class, but no better than at Cherokee.

Mr. McMILLIN. I shall insist upon the point of order against any provision which makes an appropriation otherwise than in pursuance of treaty stipulations.

Mr. CANNON. If the point of order is good against this it should be good against all the appropriations made for the purposes of education among the Indians, because there is not one of these to which it would not apply; to the Lincoln institution, to the Carlisle institution, to any of the Catholic or Episcopal institutions which are named on page 44 of the bill, and it would apply to the $85,000 recommended in a lump sum on the same page, which Congress has made for years to carry out the policy which is dear to the hearts of the people who believe in advancing the interests of the Indians by education and by training. Every such appropriation would be subject to the same point of order.

Mr. McMILLIN. The trouble about the point of order as to them is that the appropriations are made under existing law.

Mr. CANNON. Ah! so is this. The Government of the United States owns the building of the Eastern Cherokees in North Carolina. It erected the building.

Mr. STEELE. You will take up the whole time on this amendment.

Mr. CANNON. I am entitled to take up enough time to present some of the merits of this amendment.

Mr. PERKINS. Will the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. McMILLIN] permit a suggestion?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule on the point of order. The Chair is of opinion that this amendment is in order under clause 3 of Rule XXI, which permits an appropriation "in continuation of appropriations for such public works and objects as are already in progress."

Mr. PERKINS. I suggest that this school is already maintained at the Government expense. This simply changes the form of appropriation.

The CHAIRMAN. It is for the education of Indians, an object which the Government has been engaged in for many years. The Chair decides that the amendment is in order.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I offer an amendment to the amendment, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Add to the amendment as follows:

"To be paid out to such persons as may be employed by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to superintend said school."

Mr. PERKINS. That, as I understand the amendment of the gentleman from North Carolina, would give it all as compensation to the superintendent, and that is not the object of this appropriation. It goes to the board of the scholars and other purposes. That amendment should not prevail.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I agree to insert the words "to conduct the said schools."

Mr. RYAN. I suggest to the gentleman that a good deal of the money goes to other purposes.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. Then let it simply read—

To be paid out to said persons as may be employed by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

This society undertakes the work by contract, and why should they be paid $150 for a pupil when they have agreed to do it for $125?

Mr. McMILLIN. Is that the situation?

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. It is.

Mr. CANNON. I beg the gentleman's pardon; this appropriation is for the next fiscal year.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I know; but they are now receiving but $125 a scholar.

Mr. McMILLIN. The point which the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON] makes, and, as it seems to me, makes with justice, is that you are now proposing to give by appropriation, before the next fiscal year begins, an amount far in excess of what it now costs to run the school. You destroy competition.

Mr. CANNON. Not at all. It has nothing to do with competition. The school, as I understand it, is not under competition.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. It is under competition.

Mr. PEEL. If you want to control the superintendent, just say:

Provided, That the superintendent shall be employed by the Interior Department.

Mr. CANNON. He is now.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. No, he is not. The school is let out by contract, and by reason of the fact that these people are backed up by the Society of Friends the matter is left entirely in their hands, because nobody in my country can compete with them in conducting the school; but I want to put it in the control of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, so that he can employ whomsoever he pleases down there.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of Indiana. Can not he do that now?

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. No, he can not. It is let out by contract under some law; I do not know what it is.

Mr. CANNON. I think the gentleman had better inform himself about the law. If the appropriation is made of $150 for each pupil, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, in the exercise of a sound discretion, can contract at that price with whom he pleases for the next year.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. Well, I have tried to, and I have got the law from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, to whom I would much rather go for law on this subject than to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. CANNON. But the gentleman from North Carolina does not appear to be ready to point out the law.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. No. But the Commissioner of Indian Affairs has told me that that is the law. I know that men down in my country have tried to get that school, but these people were backed up by their churches and by their society, so that my people could not compete with them because of the low price. Now, if they go down there as a matter of charity, as they say they do, to educate the Indians, then, being backed by their society, they are presumably able to conduct those schools at a hundred dollars a head for each pupil, or even at $75 a head, because they do it as a matter of charity; but if it becomes a matter to be paid for out of the Government money, then I want my people to have some of the benefit of it.

Mr. McMILLIN. What is the purpose of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CANNON] in proposing to make the rate for each student greater than is now required to carry on the work?

Mr. CANNON. The reason is this: When you pick up the report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs you find that where the Government furnishes everything, at Carlisle and at Hampton, the cost for each student is $187. When you pick up this bill you find that the Catholic institutions and the Episcopalian institutions receive from $150 to $157 per student——

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. Let me ask the gentleman right there——

Mr. CANNON. Let me finish my answer first. Now, at Cherokee there is a building erected by the Government. The Friends are in charge of the school and of the day schools, as is stated in this report, but owing to an insufficient appropriation it was found in distributing the money for the current fiscal year that the Commissioner of Indian Affairs was unable to pay them more than $125 per head, and they say that they can not run that school for $125 per head, and as proof of that statement I say the Government is paying for like service elsewhere at the rate of from $150 to $187 per student elsewhere, and with no better service than is had at Cherokee.

Mr. BLOUNT. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question for information?

Mr. CANNON. Certainly.

Mr. BLOUNT. I wish to ask the gentleman if he knows that it is not true that this school is let out by competitive bidding?

Mr. CANNON. I do not understand that it is.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I think I can vouch for that.

Mr. CANNON. Let that be as it may, if this amendment is adopted $150 per capita will be the price next year, and good service can not be had for less.

Mr. MCMILLIN. I suggest to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CANNON] that he had better let this amendment go over, as there is a difference between the friends of the amendment and the gentleman who represents the district in which the school is situated as to the facts of the case.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I have no objection to the price being increased, but I want my people put upon the same footing with reference to this matter as these other gentlemen.

Mr. CANNON. If the gentleman will listen to the reading of the amendment, I think he will find that it includes everything he desires.

The amendment was again read.

Mr. CANNON. Now, Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman has noticed the amendment, he must have seen that it does not mention the Society of Friends, it does not mention any Catholic society, or any other society; it provides for the support of that training school $150 per pupil, and it is left in the power of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to employ any competent person or persons he pleases.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. Then what is the objection to my amendment?

Mr. CANNON. The objection is that your amendment gives the appropriation to the superintendent, while the amendment gives it for the support of the school, the nurture and maintenance of the pupils.

Mr. PEEL. I will say to the gentleman from North Carolina that the phraseology proposed here is exactly like that of all these appropriations for the schools in different localities. We appropriate so much to the support of the school at Carlisle, so much to the Lincoln Institute, etc., naming the rate per pupil in each case.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. The object which I wish to attain by my amendment is that this money shall be disbursed by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to whatever persons he may employ for the purpose of conducting these schools.

Mr. RYAN. Then just add a proviso that the money shall be expended under the direction of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

Mr. CANNON. There is no objection to that, but it is the law now.

Mr. HOLMAN. I move to amend by adding the words "for the support of such schools."

Mr. PERKINS. That is all right.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. Is it understood that this proposition gives the Commissioner of Indian Affairs control, so that he may employ whomsoever he may select?

Mr. RYAN. Certainly.

Mr. MCMILLIN. I suggest that the amendment be modified so as to fix the rate per pupil at the sum now paid.

Mr. CANNON. Not at all. The very object of the amendment is to give $150 for the support of each pupil of that training school in place of $125 per capita, so that the competent and worthy people now in control, or some other worthy people, may receive $25 per capita more than is now paid.

Mr. MCMILLIN. The amendment of my friend does not enable "other worthy people" to get this sum, but only those particular "worthy people" for whom he wants us specially to legislate.

Mr. BLOUNT. Will my friend from Illinois agree to a provision in the amendment that the expenditure shall not exceed $150 per scholar?

Mr. CANNON. One hundred and fifty dollars will be satisfactory. I want this tribe of Indians put on the same basis that is adopted in the case of the other tribes specifically appropriated for in this bill, notably at the Catholic and Episcopal institutions.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Trouble must arise whenever the Government of the United States, entering into the educational business, undertakes to establish or maintain anything like denominational schools.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. At Carlisle and the other schools referred to, are the teachers paid by special contract, or is there a law directing the amount that shall be paid?

Mr. CANNON. The provision applying in those cases is the same as that which applies here. I assure my friend that the Commissioner of Indian Affairs has full control of the matter.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. As I understand, this appropriation is confined to one training school. But there is another settlement about 50 or 60 miles from this training school. Hence, I would like to insert language which will make the provision apply not only to this training school, but to such others as may be established.

Mr. RYAN. Let a separate appropriation be made for the others.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON], as modified by him. The Clerk will read it.

The Clerk read as follows:

To be paid out to such persons as may be employed by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to superintend said schools, and for the support of said schools.

Mr. CANNON. That will not do. It does not even require these persons who may be employed to give bond.

I have no doubt the best way from every standpoint is for the Commissioner to continue to do as he does now, to contract for the support, education, and training of these children; and at this school, under the amendment, he can contract with whom he pleases and the price will be $150 per pupil for the next fiscal year.

The question being taken on the amendment, there were—ayes 10, noes 11.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I raise the point that no quorum has voted.

Mr. BLOUNT. As there seems to be a disagreement on this matter, I suggest that the committee had better rise.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I would like time, at any rate, to consult with the committee on this matter.

Mr. BUCKALEW. This matter is too important to be voted upon when there is no quorum in attendance. One question involved is whether the same sum should be allowed by law for the education of Indian youth in different parts of the country, or whether there should be one price paid in North Carolina, another in Pennsylvania, and a third, perhaps, in some other State. My objection to this, as to similar propositions, is that the measure does not come from that department of the Government which is charged with making contracts or arrangements for these schools. I object to making provision outside of the regular administration of the department in favor of a special institution under the care of the Friends, or the Methodists, or the Catholics, or any other particular denomination.

The danger in opening this field for the education of Indian children all over the country is that we may create a sharp competition among the different religious societies for the patronage of the Government. That is where we are likely to land, especially when persons outside the practical administration of the Indian Department are permitted to determine the prices to be paid, and when one denominational school is perhaps to be pitted against another.

If this measure is to be gravely considered apart from the report of the committee charged with the preparation of the bill, I demand that it be considered when there is a quorum present, not by a body of some twenty or thirty gentlemen who happen to be here and who are incompetent to transact business if objection is raised.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of North Carolina. I renew the point of order of no quorum simply to enable me to look into this matter by the time the House meets again on Monday.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of order being made, the Chair will appoint tellers.

Mr. PEEL. I move that the committee do now rise.

Mr. STEELE. I understood that I was to be allowed to offer an amendment.

Mr. HOLMAN. Regular order.

Mr. PEEL. A point of order that no quorum voted is pending.

Mr. STEELE. The point of order was withdrawn.

Mr. HOLMAN. No; it is pending.

The motion of Mr. PEEL was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and Mr. MCMILLIN having taken the chair as Speaker pro tempore, Mr. SPRINGER reported that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, having had under consideration the Indian appropriation bill had come to no resolution thereon.

REPRINT OF REPORT ON POST-OFFICE APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. BLOUNT. I ask unanimous consent to have reprinted the report on the Post-Office appropriation bill, which I find contains some two or three clerical errors.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

SALARY, CHIEF CLERK DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

Mr. ROGERS, by unanimous consent, introduced a bill (H. R. 9401) to amend so much of section 351 of the Revised Statutes of the United States as fixes the salary of the chief clerk of the Department of Justice; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. ROBERTSON. I ask unanimous consent to take from the Private Calendar the bill H. R. 8965——

Mr. STEELE. Regular order.

I do not believe though, Mr. Speaker, that I ought to make the point on the gentleman's bill because I was treated badly. There was a distinct understanding in committee that I was to have an opportunity to offer a certain amendment, which was not carried out. I withdraw the objection.

Mr. ADAMS. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and accordingly (at 6 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned.

PRIVATE BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED.

Under the rule private bills of the following titles were introduced and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. BRUMM: A bill (H. R. 9384) granting a pension to Henry V. Yeager—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHIPMAN: A bill (H. R. 9385) for the relief of Christian Kunzie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COMPTON: A bill (H. R. 9386) for the relief of Samuel Queen—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. FISHER: A bill (H. R. 9387) for the relief of Emanuel H. Custer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GROUT: A bill (H. R. 9388) to increase the pension of Joseph Holmes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HARMER: A bill (H. R. 9389) granting a pension to Charles Gebler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. S. T. HOPKINS: A bill (H. R. 9390) granting a pension to John Gunner—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. LAFFOON: A bill (H. R. 9391) for the relief of Simon Oberdorfer—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9392) for the relief of Benjamin F. Bruner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MANSUR: A bill (H. R. 9393) granting a pension to Casper Snook—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MASON: A bill (H. R. 9394) for the relief of Catharine Quigley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NORWOOD: A bill (H. R. 9395) for the relief of Joseph White—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. TOWNSHEND: A bill (H. R. 9396) for the relief of General William F. Smith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. VANDEVER: A bill (H. R. 9397) granting a pension to Mrs. Maggie A. Auter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WICKHAM: A bill (H. R. 3998) granting a pension to Mrs. Lana Loder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. G. M. THOMAS: A bill (H. R. 9399) granting a pension to Albert O. Robb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BLISS: A bill (H. R. 9400) granting a pension to Margaret Z. Austin—to the Committee on Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

The following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, under the rule, and referred as follows:

By Mr. ADAMS: Petition against laws restricting immigration—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. A. R. ANDERSON: Petition of the Board of Railroad Commissioners of Iowa, relative to the use of car-couplers on freight trains—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. BOUTELLE: Petition of Morrill Sprague and others, of Dexter, Me., in favor of the protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BOWDEN: Petition of 482 mechanics and laborers, for the passage of the eight-hour bill—to the Committee on Labor.

By Mr. C. R. BRECKINRIDGE: Petition of Harmony Agricultural Wheel, of Centre Hill, Ark., against the Blair bill—to the Committee on Education.

Also, petition of John R. Murphy, of Woodruff County, Arkansas, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of Wolford and others, citizens of Harrison County, Kentucky, to protect the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. CANDLER: Petition of Mary Hensolt, for reference of her claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. COMPTON: Petition of H. F. Wood and others, for the passage of House bill 3343—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CONGER: Papers to accompany House bill 152—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CRISP: Petition of citizens of Wilcox County, Georgia, for increased appropriation for the Ocmulgee River, Georgia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of J. T. Clark and others, of Montgomery County, Georgia, for amendment of the postal law, etc.—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. DINGLEY: Petition of H. C. Stanley and others, for protection of the Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. DORSEY: Petition of citizens of Dixon County, Nebraska, asking that no reduction be made in the duty on flaxseed and linseed oil—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ERMENTROUT: Petition of John B. Raser, McCurdy & Durham, and others, druggists, of Reading, Pa., for repeal of the internal-revenue law which requires them to take out license and pay annually the sum of $25, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FULLER (by request). Petition of Dr. George Henderson and others, for the purchase of Athletic Park, Washington, D. C., to be used by the General Government as a public park—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, memorial and resolutions of the General Assembly of Iowa, against non-resident aliens holding land in the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, resolution of the General Assembly of Iowa, for the permanent retention of the records of the General Land Office at the capital of the State—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. GOFF: Petition of Thomas A. Maulsby, for an increase of pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of R. R. Carpenter and others, of Brookings County, Dakota, that the present tariff be retained on flax and flax products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GROUT: Petition of F. K. Barrows, of Brattleborough, Vt., for better mail facilities between New England and the West—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. HALL: Petition of druggists of Mercer and of Sharon, Pa., for repeal of that portion of the internal-revenue law requiring them to take out license and pay $25 annually therefor—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HAUGEN: Memorial of the railroad commissioners of Wisconsin, relative to House bill No. 8367—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. HUNTER: Resolution of the Kentucky Legislature, for a bill granting pensions to soldiers and widows of soldiers of the Mexican war equal to that now paid soldiers and widows of soldiers of the late war—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. JONES: Petition of the Mobile and Birmingham Railroad Company, for right of way, etc., through Mount Vernon military reservation—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LAFFOON: Petition of Dr. James Rodman and others, citizens of Hopkinsville, Ky., for the protection of the Yellowstone National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. LANHAM: Petition of citizens of Palo Pinto, County, Texas, relative to Indian depredations—to the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

By Mr. MORGAN: Papers in the claim of Mrs. Judith Wilson, of La Fayette County, Mississippi—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. NEAL: Petition of G. D. Taylor, to be placed on the pension-roll—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NELSON: Resolutions of the Board of Trade of Minneapolis, Minn., for a ship-canal around Niagara Falls—to the Committee on Railways and Canals.

By Mr. NEWTON: Petition of citizens of Madison Parish, Louisiana, against tax on cotton-seed oil—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. NORWOOD: Petition of William B. Adams, and of Eva Strauss, widow of Peter Strauss, of Chatham County, Georgia, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. J. J. O'NEILL: Memorial of the board of railroad commissioners of Missouri, in favor of legislation to protect life and limb in coupling and uncoupling cars—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. PETERS: Petition of Local Assembly, No. 3306, Knights of Labor, of Wichita, Kans., favoring the tonnage bill—to the Committee on Merchant-Marine and Fisheries.

Also, medical evidence in support of bill increasing the pension of Martha Parrott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROMEIS: Memorial of M. J. Enright and others, manufacturers of brushes, against reduction of duty on same—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. C. A. RUSSELL: Petition of the board of railroad commissioners of Connecticut, for law to promote the safety of employés and passengers on railroads—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. STRUBLE: Petition of H. V. Sheet and 97 others, citizens of Buena Vista County, Iowa, that the duty on flaxseed and linseed-oil be not changed—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of the National Farmers' Alliance, for the establishment of a department of agriculture—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. E. B. TAYLOR: Petition of A. H. Tidball and others, citizens of Garrettsville, Ohio, for protection to Yellowstone Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. WHEELER: Petition of Thomas O. Gill and of Martha Rountree, widow of William Rountree, of Madison County; of John Hurst, of Colbert County, and of D. A. Yarborough, heir of James D. Coffman, of Limestone County, Alabama, for reference of their claims to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. J. R. WHITING: Petition of Albert W. Wheeler and 59 others, citizens of Sanilac County, and of Peter Doe and 48 others, citizens of Huron County, Michigan, against reduction of duty on wool, but for reduction of duty on woolens—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of J. J. Babcock and 59 others, and of A. W. Wheeler and 69 others, of Sanilac County, Michigan, asking that the eradication of pleuro-pneumonia be continued by the Bureau of Animal Industry, etc.—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. WHITTHORNE: Petition of heir of William Mayfield, of Williamson County, Tennessee, for reference of his claim to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

The following petitions for the more effectual protection of agriculture, by means of certain import duties, were received and severally referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

By Mr. BOUND: Of many citizens of Middleton County, Pennsylvania.

By Mr. BOUTELLE: Of David Varney and others, citizens of Fort Fairfield, Me.

By Mr. GOFF: Of B. M. Wolverton and others, of Doddridge County, and of James B. Meyers and others, of Preston County, West Virginia.

By Mr. NICHOLS: Of citizens of Orange County, North Carolina.
By Mr. NUTTING: Of Abram W. Brooks and 42 others, citizens of Locke, N. Y.
By Mr. REED: Of citizens of York County, Maine.
By Mr. C. A. RUSSELL: Of James M. Cook and others, farmers, of New London County, Connecticut.
By Mr. WEBER: Of farmers of Niagara County, New York.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law to establish a system of telegraphy, to be owned and controlled by the Government of the United States and operated in connection with the Post-Office Department, were severally referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. ADAMS: Of W. J. Ryan and 1,574 others, citizens of the Fourth district of Illinois.
By Mr. BELDEN: Of M. P. Cleary and 20 others, Knights of Labor, of Cortland, and of Charles Hurst and 53 others, Knights of Labor, of Syracuse, N. Y.
By Mr. BLAND: Of 988 citizens of the Eleventh district of Missouri.
By Mr. GROUT: Of William Clifford and 12 others, citizens of Bellows Falls, Vt.
By Mr. HITT: Of 163 citizens of Rockford, Ill.
By Mr. NICHOLS: Of J. W. Cooper and 1,600 others, citizens of the Fourth district of North Carolina.

The following petitions, indorsing the per diem rated service-pension bill, based on the principle of paying all soldiers, sailors, and marines of the late war a monthly pension of 1 cent a day for each day they were in the service, were severally referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

By Mr. BUNNELL: Of George M. Wood and other soldiers of Wayne County, Pennsylvania.
By Mr. HATCH: Of ex-soldiers of Shelby County, Missouri.
By Mr. OUTHWAITE: Of 45 soldiers of Thornville, and of 22 soldiers of Columbus, Ohio.
By Mr. E. J. TURNER: Of J. W. Benjamin and others.

The following petitions, praying for the enactment of a law providing temporary aid for common schools, to be disbursed on the basis of illiteracy, were severally referred to the Committee on Education:

By Mr. BOUTELLE: Of 139 citizens of Washington County, Maine.
By Mr. HATCH: Of 173 citizens of Marion County, Missouri.
By Mr. HAUGEN: Of 96 citizens of Eau Claire County, Wisconsin.
By Mr. ROWLAND: Of 37 citizens of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina.
By Mr. WEAVER: Of 146 citizens of Mahaska and Wapello Counties, Iowa.

The following petition for an increase of compensation of fourth-class postmasters was referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads:

By Mr. BLOUNT: Of J. W. Scarborough and others, citizens of Colquitt County, Georgia.

SENATE.

MONDAY, April 16, 1888.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of Thursday last was read and approved.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting, in response to a resolution of March 26, 1888, a report from the officer in charge of public buildings and grounds respecting a comprehensive system of underground wires for telegraph and telephone service to connect the several Departments and bureaus of the Government in Washington City; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

DISTRICT TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE WIRES.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate a communication from the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia, transmitting, in response to a resolution of March 26, 1888, a report upon a system of underground telegraph and telephone wires for the service of the District; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Kansas, and a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Dakota Territory, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition of the Cleveland (Ohio) Board of Industry and Improvement, praying that an appropriation of $150,000 be made for building the Cleveland breakwater; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented five petitions of citizens of Ashtabula County, Ohio, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of Typographical Union No. 57, praying for the passage of the so-called Chace international copyright bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of 70 citizens of Coshocton, Ohio, praying for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of James Crutchett, of Washington, D. C., praying to be allowed the balance of the amount awarded him by experts on account of damage caused his property by change of the grade fronting his lots in Washington City; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, presented a petition of 79 ex-soldiers of the Union Army, members of W. W. Warren Post, No. 46, Grand Army of the Republic, of Fayette, Iowa, and a petition of 20 ex-soldiers of the Union Army, members of John Knight Post, No. 295, Grand Army of the Republic, of Castalia, Iowa, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented the petition of Erastus T. Roland, late postmaster at Eldon, Wapello County, Iowa, praying to be paid earnings as computed under the act of 1854 in the office of the First Assistant Postmaster-General; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. MITCHELL presented a memorial of the Board of Trade of Portland, Oregon, urging the passage of the Negley or bounty bill looking to the recuperation of the ship-building industry in this country; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of 26 citizens of Wyoming Territory, praying that Congress provide for the payment of Indian depredations committed on the frontier; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SAWYER presented a petition of the Eldorado Gun Club, citizens of Ripon, Wis., praying for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. HALE presented a petition of citizens of Dexter, Me., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the state board of health of Maine, praying for the passage of House bill 1526, to prevent the introduction of contagious and infectious diseases into the United States, and to establish a bureau of public health; which was referred to the Committee on Epidemic Diseases.

Mr. CAMERON presented petitions of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Freeland and Smicksburgh, in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented petitions of citizens of Reading, McKeesport, and Marietta, in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the repeal of that portion of the internal-revenue law which classes druggists as wholesale liquor dealers, and praying for the reduction of the tax on spirits; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Proctor, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of Senate bill No. 283, providing for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. MANDERSON presented a petition of citizens of Nebraska, a petition of citizens of Oakland, Nebr., and the petition of A. L. Ross, of Elwood, Nebr., praying for a repeal of that portion of the revenue law requiring druggists to pay liquor dealers' license; also, that the tax on alcohol may be reduced; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented petitions of citizens of Blair and Columbus, in the State of Nebraska, praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of citizens of the United States, praying for the reduction of duty on glass bottles; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. MANDERSON. I present sundry papers, affidavits, petitions, etc., pertaining to Senate bill 2663, introduced by the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SAWYER], granting an increase of pension to Mrs. Mary Ord, widow of General E. O. C. Ord. I move that they be referred to the Committee on Pensions.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Wadena and other counties in Minnesota, and a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Verndale, Minn., praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. QUAY presented a petition of physicians and druggists of Pennsylvania; a petition of citizens of Lebanon County, Pennsylvania; a petition of citizens of Mercer, Pa.; a petition of citizens of Bedford County, Pennsylvania; a petition of citizens of Centre County, Pennsylvania; a petition of citizens of Uniontown, Pa.; two petitions of citizens of Pennsylvania; a petition of citizens of Washington County, Pennsylvania; a petition of citizens of Sharon, Pa.; a petition of citizens of Fayette County, Pennsylvania, and a petition of citizens of Stoneborough, Pa., praying for the repeal of that portion of the internal-revenue law which classes druggists as liquor dealers, and that the tax on alcohol may be reduced; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of Typographical Union, No. 14, of Harrisburg, Pa., praying for the passage of an international copyright law; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the mayor and councils of Erie, Pa., praying for the retention of the United States Signal Service station in that city; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of Grange No. 606, Patrons of Husbandry, of Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, praying that increased duties be laid upon certain agricultural products, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of Murphy Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Clarion County, Pennsylvania, praying for legislation to prohibit the manufacture and sale of adulterated food products, and for the continuance of the Bureau of Animal Industry under the control of the Commissioner of Agriculture; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a petition of Beavertown Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Pennsylvania, praying for the reissue of fractional currency, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Pittsburgh and Allegheny, Pa., and a petition of citizens of Clearfield County, Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of Senate bill 283 for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Pennsylvania, and a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BLAIR. I present two petitions of the Woman's International Council lately held in this city, there being several hundred individual signatures of members of the council from different parts of the country, praying for the enactment of the House bill now before the Senate for the legal protection of girlhood in the District of Columbia, first amending the same so that the age of consent shall be fixed at eighteen instead of fourteen years. I move the reference of the petition to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. BLAIR. I present a petition signed by many hundred members of the International Council of Women, praying for the enactment of a like bill now pending before the Committee on the Judiciary extending its provisions to all parts of the country. I move the reference of the petition to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. BLAIR. I present a petition of letter-carriers of the city of New York, numerously signed, in which they pray for the enactment of the bill passed for their relief by the House of Representatives, and now pending in the Senate, extending to letter-carriers the benefits of the eight-hour law. They pray for early action. The petition is signed by a very large number of these citizens. I move that it lie on the table, as the bill is now on the Calendar.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. BLAIR. I present two petitions of Mary T. Lathrop Jackson, president, and other officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, representing more than eight thousand members of that order in the State of Michigan, praying for an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which, when ratified, will prohibit henceforth the manufacture, importation, exportation, transportation, and sale of all alcoholic liquors as a beverage in the United States, and in every place subject to their jurisdiction. I move that the petitions be referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. BLAIR presented two petitions of Mary T. Lathrop Jackson, president, and other officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Michigan, praying for the appointment of a commission of inquiry concerning the alcoholic liquor traffic; which were referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. COKE presented a petition of 30 citizens of Young County, Texas, praying that some provision be made at the present session of Congress to pay the Indian depredation claims which have been filed in the Indian Bureau of the Department of the Interior; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CALL. I present the petition of William P. Baya, of Florida, praying for an investigation into the circumstances connected with his being dropped as a naval cadet at his examination in February last.

In presenting this petition I desire to say that I hope a full and entire investigation will be given by the Committee on Naval Affairs into the circumstances of this case. If there shall be found any proper foundation in the charges which are contained in the petition, I hope that some action may be taken by Congress to protect even the humblest citizen of the United States against the exercise of the autocratic power that is now conferred upon the academic board at Annapolis. Certainly the rights of every American citizen ought to be respected, and he should have a fair, equal, and just opportunity in the public institutions supported by the Government.

This petition states, as I understand it, that this young cadet stood higher in mathematics than either of the three lowest cadets that were retained at the examination at which he was dropped; that he was equal in his record of good behavior and inferior only in studies which are not tests of superior intellectual excellence nor of anything like the same difficulty of attainment as excellence in mathematics. The study of mathematics and superior standing in it is a test of excellence, and in all fairness and everywhere should give better standing than a slight superiority in studies requiring inferior capacity and a smaller degree of application. If, therefore, it shall be found on a just examination that the facts warrant a conclusion that the trust reposed in this board of giving an intelligent and truthful judgment as to the merits of the young men has been abused or misused, I shall ask of the Senate such action as will assert its power and duty in the premises.

I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. PLUMB. I present a petition of certain citizens of Wellington, Kans., praying that provision be made for the payment of Indian depredation claims.

I wish to state in connection with this petition that several years ago a provision was inserted in an Indian appropriation bill which required the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to investigate all pending claims for Indian depredations and report to Congress. That investigation has been going on, under ample appropriations, for several years, and I had hoped that it would have been concluded before this time, and I think it perhaps ought to have been. At all events, it is in progress, and I believe that within a short time Congress will have before it all the facts necessary to act upon this very important question.

I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. DAWES. Allow me in this connection to state that at the commencement of the present session of Congress the attention of Congress itself by the Executive was called to the subject of Indian depredation claims, and at the suggestion of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs a special committee of the House of Representatives was appointed to take that matter under consideration. In view of that fact the Committee on Indian Affairs of the Senate has been awaiting action in the other branch upon the subject.

In the mean time a large body of these claims had been sent to the Committee on Claims. The Committee on Claims, as I understand, or the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL] speaking for the Committee on Claims, reported a resolution a few days since, which is on the table, looking to the appointment of a special committee of the Senate upon the subject. The consideration of these measures has been the reason why there has been no report from the Committee on Indian Affairs upon any of these claims.

I quite appreciate with the Senator from Kansas the importance of some definite action with regard to those claims, as well on account of the great magnitude of the claims in the aggregate as because of the justice of the claims on the part of many of the individual claimants.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The petition will be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. PLUMB presented a petition of citizens of Neosha Falls, Kans., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Kansas, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of La Salle County Grange, No. 61, Patrons of Husbandry, of Ottawa, Ill., praying that the Government protect the industry of mining silver by purchasing all the silver mined at $1 for 412½ grains of pure silver, and coining the same; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented the petition of La Salle County Grange, No. 61, of Ottawa, Ill., praying for the repeal of the tax on alcoholic liquors; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of 30 ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Bath, Ill., and a petition of citizens of Foxville, Marion County, Illinois, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented the petition of Albertia Shipman, wife and conservator of Josephus Shipman (insane), late a private in Company B, Fifty-fifth Illinois Volunteers, praying to be allowed a pension; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PASCO presented a petition of the Board of Trade of the city of Fernandina, Fla., praying that the entrance to Cumberland Sound receive such consideration as its importance demands in the appropriations for rivers and harbors; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. HISCOCK presented a petition of 1,100 veterans, citizens of the State of New York, and a petition of veterans of the State of New York, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of citizens of the counties of Westminster and Jefferson, New York, and the petition of Charles E. Kerr and 34 other citizens of Auburn, N. Y., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. SPOONER presented a petition of citizens of Madison, Wis., praying for the passage of Senate bill 283, for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented two petitions of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Richland County, Wisconsin, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. ALDRICH presented a petition of citizens of Rhode Island, and a petition of citizens of North Kingston, R. I., praying that the salary of the keepers of the Life-Saving Service may be increased to $1,000 a year and the pay of surfmen of that service to $75 a month; which were referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Rhode Island, praying for the passage of the bill for the better protection of the Yellowstone National Park; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Barrington, R. I., praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BLACKBURN presented a joint resolution of the Legislature of Kentucky, favoring the passage of a bill granting a pension to the surviving soldiers of the Mexican war, and to the surviving widows of such as have died, equal to that now granted to the widows of soldiers of the late civil war; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FAULKNER presented the petition of Frank Hume, Lansburgh & Co., O. G. Staples, T. E. Roessle, W. B. Moses & Son, Eugene Carusi, Woodward & Lothrop, Hooe Brothers & Co., J. J. Williams, H. O. Claughton, and 400 other citizens of Washington, D. C.; the petition of C. W. Spofford, Walter D. Davidge, C. C. Lancaster, W. W. Wilshire, and 412 other citizens of Washington, D. C.; the petition of Henry McShane & Co., Thomas Somerville, Pettit & Dripps, F. N. Belt, Dr. G. G. Beresford, F. C. Padgett, and 281 other citizens of Washington, D. C.; and the petition of Will H. Way, G. W. Drew, Pohndorff & Co., Stuart & Prichard, Edward L. Dent, and 74 other citizens of Washington, D. C., praying for the passage of House bill 5314 and Senate bill 1408, authorizing the formation of the Independent Automatic Portable Gas Works of Washington, D. C.; which were referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also presented a petition of ex-Union soldiers and sailors, citizens of Harrison County, West Virginia, praying for the passage of the per diem rated service-pension bill; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. REAGAN presented petitions of citizens of Parker and Mason Counties, in the State of Texas, praying that provision be made for the payment of Indian depredation claims; which were referred to the Committee on Claims.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. CLARK, its Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 112) granting a pension to George Schneider;
A bill (H. R. 138) granting a pension to Joseph Perry;
A bill (H. R. 285) for the relief of the legal representatives of H. Corths, deceased;
A bill (H. R. 335) granting a pension to General W. E. Woodruff;
A bill (H. R. 401) granting a pension to Mrs. Jeannie Stone;
A bill (H. R. 404) for the relief of Mary McGrath;
A bill (H. R. 680) granting a pension to Henry H. Stuttsman;
A bill (H. R. 879) granting a pension to Royal J. Hiar;
A bill (H. R. 2071) for the relief of Martha Gray;
A bill (H. R. 2094) to increase the pension of Alonzo B. Chatfield;
A bill (H. R. 2282) to pension Mrs. Theodora M. Piatt;
A bill (H. R. 2664) for the relief of Francis Daniels;
A bill (H. R. 3158) increasing the pension to Howard S. Abbott;
A bill (H. R. 3180) granting a pension to John H. Sayers;
A bill (H. R. 3554) granting a pension to Catharine Black;
A bill (H. R. 3579) granting a pension to Ellen Shea;
A bill (H. R. 3735) granting a pension to Eliza Shreeve;
A bill (H. R. 3844) granting an increase of pension to Wilson C. Moles;
A bill (H. R. 4491) granting a pension to Rosanna Robey;
A bill (H. R. 4579) granting a pension to Mary G. Crocker;
A bill (H. R. 4580) granting a pension to Farnaren Ball;
A bill (H. R. 5195) granting a pension to David W. Seely;
A bill (H. R. 5311) granting a pension to Alonzo H. Gregory;
A bill (H. R. 5545) granting a pension to Nancy F. Jennings;
A bill (H. R. 5966) granting a pension to Mrs. Lepha A. Osborn;
A bill (H. R. 6379) to increase the pension of David M. Rennoe;
A bill (H. R. 6453) granting a pension to George P. Stone;
A bill (H. R. 6576) for the relief of James M. McKeehan;
A bill (H. R. 6582) granting a pension to Elizabeth Ward;
A bill (H. R. 6609) for the relief of Sarah E. McCaleb;
A bill (H. R. 6971) to pension Peter Clark, jr.;
A bill (H. R. 7715) for the relief of Georgia A. Stricklett;
A bill (H. R. 7882) granting a pension to John Kinney;
A bill (H. R. 7913) granting a pension to Nellie Palfrey Goodwin;
A bill (H. R. 8184) granting a pension to William H. Hester; and
A bill (H. R. 8185) granting a pension to David L. Partlow.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bills:

A bill (S. 172) granting a pension to Abbie M. Hay;
A bill (S. 174) granting a pension to Mary Martin;
A bill (S. 450) for the relief of Thomas S. Hopkins, late of Company C, Sixteenth Maine Volunteers;
A bill (S. 465) granting a pension to William Sackman, sr.;
A bill (S. 472) granting a pension to Eliza Summers;
A bill (S. 525) for the relief of Samuel A. B. Woodford;
A bill (S. 753) granting a pension to James D. Whaley;
A bill (S. 819) granting a pension to Christopher Wisemiller;
A bill (S. 838) granting a pension to Mary Sullivan;
A bill (S. 895) for the relief of Mrs. Betsey Winterbottom;
A bill (S. 930) to grant pension to Oscar F. Carpenter, Eleventh Independent Battery of Ohio Light Artillery;
A bill (S. 1354) granting a pension to Helen M. Randolph;
A bill (S. 2067) granting a pension to William O. Doyel; and
A bill (S. 2565) to appropriate a sum of money sufficient to carry out the provisions of the act approved March 5, 1888, entitled "An act for the purchase of a site, including the building thereon, also for the erection of the necessary store-houses, for the use of the office of the Chief Signal Officer of the Army, at the city of Washington, D. C."

The message further announced that the House had receded from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 1584) granting the right of way to the Duluth, Rainy Lake River and Southwestern Railway Company through certain Indian lands in the State of Minnesota, and agreed to the same.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate to the following bills:

A bill (H. R. 1076) authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee River at Chattanooga, Tenn.; and
A bill (H. R. 6051) regulating the times for holding the terms of the United States courts in the northern district of Iowa.

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the reports of the respective committees of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the following bills:

A bill (H. R. 1956) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Gros Ventre, Piegan, Blood, Blackfeet, and River Crow Indians in Montana; and
A bill (H. R. 7315) to divide the Great Sioux Indian reservation into separate smaller reservations, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 7264) for the erection of a public building at Bridgeport, Conn., agreed to the conference asked by the Senate on the said bill and the amendments thereto, and had appointed Mr. DIBBLE, Mr. SOWDEN, and Mr. LEHLBACH managers at the conference on its part.

The message further announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 1983) to ratify an act entitled "An act creating the county of San Juan, in the Territory of New Mexico," agreed to the conference asked by the Senate on the bill and the amendments thereto, and had appointed Mr. KILGORE, Mr. SPRINGER, and Mr. WARNER managers at the conference on its part.

The message also announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 1413) to increase the pension of James Coey, with an amendment in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message further announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the President pro tempore:

A bill (H. R. 3796) to purchase of the widow and children of the late General James Shields certain swords;
A bill (H. R. 4811) for the relief of Robert Johnston, of the State of New York;
A bill (H. R. 5062) for the erection of a public building at Birmingham, Ala.;
A bill (H. R. 5639) for erecting a fire-proof workshop at the National Armory;
A bill (H. R. 5673) to give validity to certain patents for inventions which were irregularly executed;

A bill (H. R. 6291) for the relief of R. S. Stanley, postmaster at Booneville, Miss.;

A bill (H. R. 8044) to change the time of the sessions of the circuit and district courts of the northern division of the eastern district of Missouri;

A bill (H. R. 1076) authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee River at Chattanooga, Tenn.;

A bill (H. R. 1584) granting the right of way to the Duluth, Rainy Lake River and Southwestern Railway Company through certain Indian lands in the State of Minnesota;

A bill (H. R. 1818) for the construction of a revenue-cutter for Charleston, S. C., in maintenance of the service, to replace the United States revenue-cutter McCulloch;

A bill (H. R. 2927) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at Memphis, Tenn;

A bill (H. R. 6732) granting a pension to Mrs. Leora Gear; and

A bill (H. R. 6051) regulating the times for holding the terms of the United States courts in the northern district of Iowa.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. HARRIS, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 5683) to authorize the commissioners of the District of Columbia to complete a contract for the sale of certain real estate to Job Barnard, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. SAWYER, from the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 1070) for the relief of J. A. Wilson, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 577) for the relief of the American Grocer Association of the city of New York, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. VEST, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 1204) conferring civil jurisdiction in certain cases arising in the Indian Territory on the United States courts which now or may hereafter exercise criminal jurisdiction over said Territory, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. VEST. I am also instructed by the Committee on the Judiciary to report back the bill (H. R. 1874) to change the eastern and northern judicial districts of Texas, and for other purposes, with an amendment by way of substitute to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the bill (S. 270) to establish a United States court in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes, which is a general order now upon the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. DAWES, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 4920) for the protection of the officials of the United States in the Indian Territory, reported it with an amendment.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 8394) to authorize United States marshals to arrest offenders and fugitives from justice in Indian Territory, reported it with amendments.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2213) for the relief of John McBean, of Umatilla County, Oregon, reported it with amendments.

Mr. STEWART, from the Committee on Territories, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2671) to created an organize the county of Latah, reported it without amendment.

He also, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2542) to reimburse certain persons who expended moneys and furnished services and supplies in repelling invasions and suppressing Indian hostilities within the territorial limits of the present State of Nevada, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. MITCHELL, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1031) for the payment of Sewell Coulson, and Porter, Harrison and Fishback for legal services, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HEARST, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1503) for the relief of Mrs. S. B. Duvall, widow of the late Rev. W. P. Duvall, deceased, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. FAULKNER, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1927) for the relief of Caroline T. Bancroft, executrix and trustee of William S. Bancroft, deceased, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I ask leave to file a supplemental report on the bill (S. 1914) for the relief of Mary E. Hopkins in lieu of the one I presented to the Senate and withdrew for a correction the other day, and ask that this be substituted for the former report which was withdrawn.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PALMER in the chair). The substitution will be made, if there is no objection.

MISSOURI JUDICIAL DISTRICTS.

Mr. VEST. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary to report with an amendment the bill (H. R. 6831) to detach the county of Audrain, in the State of Missouri, from the eastern, and attach it to the western, judicial district of said State. It is a mere local measure, and I ask for its present consideration.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The amendment reported from the Committee on the Judiciary was to strike out section 2, in the following words:

SEC. 2. That the provisions of this act shall not be construed so as to affect suits and prosecutions which may be pending.

And in lieu thereof to insert:

SEC. 2. That all civil and criminal causes or proceedings pending in the eastern district of Missouri, which originated in said county of Audrain, shall remain within the jurisdiction of the United States court for said eastern district for final disposition, and all offenses committed in said county against the laws of the United States before the passage of this act shall also be cognizable in the United States court for the said eastern district until final disposition of the same.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. VEST. I move that the Senate insist on its amendment and ask for a conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the President pro tempore was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. VEST, Mr. HOAR, and Mr. WILSON of Iowa were appointed.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Mr. QUAY. I ask unanimous consent of the Senate to discharge the Committee on Foreign Relations from the consideration of the bill (S. 1937) to amend "An act to prohibit the importation and immigration of foreigners and aliens under contract or agreement to perform labor in the United States, its Territories, and the District of Columbia," and that it be referred to the Committee on Education and Labor. It was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations by mistake.

The motion was agreed to, and the Committee on Foreign Relations were discharged from the further consideration of the bill, and it was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. PLUMB introduced a bill (S. 2681) for the relief of Jane Boller; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2682) granting a pension to Wilford White; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2683) granting a pension to Andrew J. Foust; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2684) granting a pension to Mary L. Page; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2685) to amend the pension laws; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 2686) granting a pension to Pliny Jewett; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 2687) granting a pension to Joseph Blanchard; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. STEWART introduced a bill (S. 2688) granting a pension to Amelia C. Waite; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. STEWART. I wish to remark in connection with this bill that I introduce it entirely on my own responsibility. I have conversed with no person in regard to it, but it seems to me that the widow of the late Chief-Justice should be placed on the same footing as the widows of ex-Presidents of the United States. I move that the bill be referred to the Committee on Pensions.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 2689) granting a pension to Mrs. Sadie Scott; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PASCO introduced a bill (S. 2690) granting a pension to John Gallagher; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying petition, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HARRIS introduced a bill (S. 2691) to provide for the settlement of accounts with certain railway companies; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. SPOONER introduced a bill (S. 2692) to extend the benefits of section 4 of the act making appropriations for the support of the Army for the year ending June 30, 1866, approved March 3, 1865, and of the act amendatory thereto, approved July 13, 1866, to certain officers of volunteers; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PALMER (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2693) to increase the pension of Mary A. Ripley; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GORMAN introduced a bill (S. 2694) granting a pension to Rev. Henry N. Greninger; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. VEST introduced a bill (S. 2695) for the relief of Lafayette Dawson; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SAULSBURY (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2696) granting a pension to Rosa K. Slicer; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MORGAN introduced a bill (S. 2697) for the relief of A. A. Winston; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. DAVIS introduced a bill (S. 2698) granting a pension to Martha Allen and the minor children of Robert Allen; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2699) granting a pension to George W. Francis; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2700) granting increase of pension to Allen Blethen; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2701) granting increase of pension to Samuel F. Birdsall; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. JONES, of Arkansas, introduced a bill (S. 2702) to amend so much of section 351 of the Revised Statutes as fixes the salary of the chief clerk of the Department of Justice; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. ALDRICH introduced a bill (S. 2703) granting a pension to Anna A. Tallman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2704) granting a pension to James Hope Arthur; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2705) granting a pension to Ellen Smith; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2706) granting an increase of pension to Deborah C. Sayles; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 2707) granting a pension to Samuel Miller; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 2708) granting a pension to Albertia Shipman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 2709) for the relief of Hugh O'Neil; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PAYNE introduced a bill (S. 2710) granting a pension to the widow of John Schafer; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 2711) restoring Phebe McLaughlin to the pension-rolls; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CALL introduced a bill (S. 2712) to donate to the town of Tampa, in Florida, the Fort Brooke military reservation, for the benefit of free schools and other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

COB POINT BAR LIGHT-HOUSE.

Mr. PALMER. I move that the bill (H. R. 1523) for the establishment of a light-house at Cob Point Bar, at the mouth of Wicomico River, in the State of Maryland, be recommitted to the Committee on Commerce.

The motion was agreed to.

SUGAR IMPORTATIONS.

Mr. HOAR submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Select Committee to Investigate the Operations in the Civil Service be directed to inquire and report whether there has within two years been any fraud or maladministration in the New York custom-house in regard to the importation of sugar, and, if so, to report the facts and circumstances connected therewith.

CONSIDERATION OF THE FISHERIES TREATY.

Mr. RIDDLEBERGER. I offer the following resolution, and ask for its present consideration:

Resolved, That so much of Rules XXXVI, XXXVII, and XXXVIII as provides for executive sessions be suspended during the consideration of the fisheries treaty when the same shall be reported to the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it go over and be printed.

Mr. SHERMAN. A resolution I believe in the same words is now before the Committee on Foreign Relations and it will be reported, for or against, I do not know which, but it will be reported before the fisheries treaty is reported. That assurance has already been given to the Senator from Virginia. I do not think it would be wise to precipitate any debate on the subject, because I assure him that before the fisheries treaty is reported for or against, the resolution will be reported. I shall have to object to the resolution to-day, but I assure the Senator that the question will come up long before the fisheries treaty.

Mr. DAWES. If the present consideration of the resolution is objected to, I wish to submit a conference report.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution being objected to, it will go over.

Mr. RIDDLEBERGER. I understand the Senator from Ohio to object to the present consideration of the resolution.

Mr. SHERMAN. For to-day.

Mr. RIDDLEBERGER. And I understand that the resolution is still in the committee of which he is chairman.

Mr. SHERMAN. If the Senator desires, this resolution may be referred, or it may lie on the table.

Mr. RIDDLEBERGER. No, sir; I do not want another one referred to a graveyard. I want it to come up to-morrow.

DIVISION OF GREAT SIOUX RESERVATION.

Mr. DAWES submitted the following report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 7315) to divide the Great Sioux Indian reservation into separate, smaller reservations, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, 30, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 52, 53, 54, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 5: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Insert in said amendment, after "entitled," in line 3, the following: "To be paid out of the proceeds of lands relinquished under this act." Also strike out all of said amendment after "Interior," in line 4; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 14: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Lines 12 and 13 of said amendment of the Senate, strike out "and the form and manner of executing said release shall also be prescribed by Congress;" and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 27: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 27, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Strike out "or," in said amendment, and insert "and;" and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 29: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 29, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Line 7 of said amendment, after "facilities," insert "of and for said railways." Also, at the end of said amendment, add "connected with said railways;" and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 31: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 31, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Strike out all on page 13 of the bill after and including "and," in line 10, and insert:

"And provided further, That said railway companies and each of them shall, within nine months after this act takes effect, definitely locate their respective lines of road, including all station grounds and terminals across and upon the lands of said reservation designated in said agreements, and shall also within the said period of nine months file with the Secretary of the Interior a map of such definite location, specifying clearly the line of road, the several station grounds, and the amount of land required for railway purposes, as herein specified, of the said separate sections of land and said tracts of 188 acres and 75 acres; and the Secretary of the Interior shall, within three months after the filing of such map, designate the particular portions of said sections and of said tracts of land which the said railway companies respectively may take and hold under the provisions of this act for railway purposes. And the said railway companies and each of them shall, within three years after this act takes effect, construct, complete, and put in operation their said lines of road, and in case the said lines of road are not definitely located and maps of location filed within the period hereinbefore provided, or in case the said lines of road are not constructed, completed, and put in operation within the time herein provided, then and in either case the lands granted for right of way, station grounds, or other railway purposes, as in this act provided, shall without any further act or ceremony be declared by proclamation of the President forfeited, and shall, without entry or further action on the part of the United States, revert to the United States and be subject to entry under the other provisions of this act; and whenever such forfeiture occurs the Secretary of the Interior shall ascertain the fact and give due notice thereof to the local land officers, and thereupon the lands so forfeited shall be open to homestead entry under the provisions of this act."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 51: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 51, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Add, after the word "settlements," the following: "with intent to enter the same under the homestead or pre-emption laws of the United States;" and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 55: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 55, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Page 20, line 9, of the bill, strike out "provisions of section 20 of this act," and insert "homestead or pre-emption laws of the United States," and, at the end of line 15, insert, "Provided, That pre-emption claimants shall reside on their lands the same length of time before procuring title as homestead claimants under this act;" and the Senate agree to the same.

H. L. DAWES,
O. H. PLATT,
JAMES K. JONES,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

S. W. PEEL,
THOS. R. HUDD,
KNUTE NELSON,
Managers on the part of the House.

The report was concurred in.

AGREEMENT WITH INDIANS IN MONTANA.

Mr. DAWES submitted the following report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 1956) "to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Gros Ventre, Piegan, Blood, Blackfeet, and River Crow Indians in Montana," having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 2, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 1: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Strike out line 6 of section 3 of said amendment and insert: "the town-site laws and the laws governing the disposal of coal lands, desert lands, and mineral lands."

Also strike out all after and including section 4 of said amendment and insert:

"SEC. 4. The Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to appoint a commission consisting of three persons, with authority to negotiate with the band of Ute Indians of Southern Colorado for such modifications of their treaty and other rights, and such exchange of their reservation as may be deemed desirable by said Indians and the Secretary of the Interior; and said commission is also authorized, if the result of such negotiations shall make it necessary, to negotiate with any other tribes of Indians for such portion of their reservation as may be necessary for said band of Ute Indians of Southern Colorado, if said Indians shall determine to remove from their present location, the report of said commission to be made to and subject to ratification by Congress before taking effect; and for this purpose the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, which shall be immediately available."

And the Senate agree to the same.

H. L. DAWES,
F. B. STOCKBRIDGE,
JOHN W. DANIEL,
Managers on the part of the Senate.
S. W. PEEL,
SILAS HARE,
Managers on the part of the House.

The report was concurred in.

JOHN F. SHORTER.

Mr. HOAR. I move to reconsider the vote by which the Senate, on Thursday last, indefinitely postponed the bill (H. R. 2465) for the relief of the heirs of John F. Shorter, which was reported from the Committee on Military Affairs by the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON]. I move that that vote be now reconsidered and the bill placed on the Calendar. I have the consent of the Senator who made the report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PALMER in the chair). The question is on the motion of the Senator from Massachusetts.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be placed on the Calendar with the adverse report.

NATIONAL BANK NOTE REDEMPTION FUND.

Mr. FARWELL. I move to take up the bill (S. 1216) providing for the investment of certain funds in the Treasury for the purpose of offering some amendments thereto and of making a few observations thereon.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill; which was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed, from time to time, to invest not exceeding 80 per cent. of the fund held in the Treasury for redemption of notes of national banks "failed," "in liquidation," and "reducing circulation," by the purchase in open market of any bonds of the United States bearing interest. That whenever the money on hand to the credit of said fund shall fall below 20 per cent. of the fund deposited, the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed, from time to time, to sell in open market any portion of the bonds purchased for said fund as may be necessary, in his opinion, to enable him to pay as presented any notes of national banks for the redemption of which said fund is held. The purpose of this section being to maintain in the Treasury for such redemption not less than 20 per cent. and not exceeding 30 per cent. of the money deposited.

Mr. FARWELL. Mr. President, the financial question in my judgment is the most important, and legislation upon the subject, the whole subject, is more needed than upon any other at this time. The Finance Committee I had hoped would have reported something which would have cured the financial ills which now afflict the country, but, for some good reason I suppose, nothing yet has been reported to the Senate which will adequately accomplish the desired end.

Impressed with the absolute needs of the situation, Mr. President, I submit two amendments to the bill now under consideration, upon which I will ask a vote of the Senate at the proper time. The first will accomplish all that I desire if the surplus shall not be permitted to accumulate.

The second will be inoperative and unnecessary if the public debt be not further reduced. I ask the Secretary to read the amendments, which I shall offer at the proper time.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to issue and sell, to national banking associations heretofore organized, or that may hereafter be organized, at par for United States notes, coupon, or registered bonds of the United States redeemable after fifty years from the date of their issue, bearing interest, payable semi-annually, at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum, to be used by them as security for their circulating notes. Such bonds shall be exempt from taxation by or under State or municipal authority. Said banking associations are hereby authorized to issue circulating notes to the amount of 100 per cent. of the par value of said bonds.

SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to invest the surplus funds held in the Treasury, including the money received for said bonds (not otherwise appropriated), in the purchase, in open market, of any United States bonds.

SEC. 3. That all laws and parts of laws relating to the establishment of a sinking fund for the payment of the public debt be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

To enable the national banks to maintain their circulation and to increase the same, and to prevent the ultimate destruction of said banks, by the payment or purchase of the national debt, the Treasurer of the United States is hereby authorized to receive from them, to secure their circulating notes, an amount equal in value to the coupon or registered bonds so purchased, canceled, and destroyed, any State, county, or municipal bonds (of the United States) upon which interest has been heretofore promptly paid, and whose market value is equal to or greater than their par value, bearing interest at a rate of not less than 4 per cent. per annum: Provided, That the Treasurer of the United States shall not receive such State, county, or municipal bonds at more than 75 per cent. of their par value: Provided further, That the Treasurer of the United States shall not receive such State, county, or municipal bonds until such bonds shall have indorsed upon them the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Treasurer of the United States, and the Comptroller of the Currency.

Mr. FARWELL. Mr. President, I would, if I could, so amend the financial legislation of the country that our national banking system, which is the best that has ever been devised among men, should be continued. The amendments which I offer at this time will enable them to use the present debt of the United States as a basis of their circulation; and if this debt could be continued at its present volume then the legislation proposed by the first amendment would be adequate to the maintenance of the system. But I recognize the fact that the American people are anxious and are determined to pay this debt.

The original idea in making the national debt the basis for bank circulation was not the security it offered, but the necessity for finding a market for the bonds. The security having proven so satisfactory, it is now confounded with the original necessity.

We must abandon all idea of security on the basis of the national debt; the country would not tolerate the idea of the continuance of this debt for the purpose of preserving a bank circulation.

I am in favor of the largest possible bank circulation which is redeemable in gold on demand; and no circulation could be too large which is redeemable in this manner. The rapid decrease of national-bank circulation is due to the fact of the very large premium which our national bonds are selling for in the market and their near maturity. The banks can not afford to hold them with the absolute certainty of losing this large premium. Therefore they take them up with United States notes and release themselves from the obligations of redeeming their notes. For this reason, since 1882, the national-bank circulation has been reduced from $359,000,000 to about $160,000,000; and I need not inform the Senate that the banks will be compelled to retire the balance of their circulation in a very short time, unless something is done which will prevent it. We can not afford to destroy the best banking system ever devised. Under these amendments the banks will have a new lease of life, and will be enabled to furnish the country with all the circulating medium required, limited only by the amount of the national debt; and if it is desired that their permanent existence shall be secured, and the necessary volume of currency be furnished to the country through them, then authority should be given to them to furnish other bonds for a basis of their circulation, as the national debt is from time to time reduced and retired. Authority of this kind would make it possible to maintain the volume of the circulating medium, to the amount as stated, of the national debt. Without this authority, as the national debt is paid the banks would be compelled to give up the circulation secured thereby, and when fully paid they, of course, would be destroyed.

"The real trouble is in the want of legislation as affecting the circulation—the forcing of all the commercial interests of the country to base its medium of exchange on the national debt, and the retirement of this debt without the substitution of some other basis.

"In order to demonstrate the proposition that a bank circulation is a necessity and can not be replaced without detriment to trade by any fixed governmental issue, in period or quantity, it will be necessary to consider by what means the operations of trade are carried on, the connection of banking with these operations, and to show that the Government, being outside of and disconnected with the commercial requirements of the country, can not assume one of the functions of banking with advantage to trade unless it assumes all.

"In all civilized countries the great bulk of trade and commerce is carried on by means of credit. Credit indeed may be called the cornerstone on which civilization is erected. Every check drawn by an individual, every draft made by a bank, every bond issued by a nation, State, municipality, railroad, or corporation, every promise to pay of any description, whether on demand or in the future, is pure credit.

"Banks and bankers are dealers in credits; they handle money as well, but the operations in credits form such a large proportion of the business of banking that it is strictly accurate to say they are dealers in credits, the money handled being only the reserve or foundation on which the business is conducted.

"What is classified in a bank statement as 'deposits' does not necessarily mean money therein deposited. On the contrary, a very small proportion of 'deposits' represents money deposited. A deposit often is, and usually arises from, a mere exchange of credits. This exchange may be by checks or drafts on some other banker, or it may be in the nature of a discount, as when the banker takes the 'promise to pay' of his customer, which he lists among his assets as 'bills discounted,' and gives in exchange therefor his 'promise to pay,' which he classes among his liabilities as 'deposits.' The result is the exchange of one credit payable in the future for another payable on demand. This 'promise to pay,' or credit or deposit, when put into negotiable form so as to pass by delivery without indorsement, is called bank circulation.

"The Government has assumed control of this form of credit in negotiable form—the circulation—and has placed such restrictions around its issue as to make it impossible for the banks to avail of this most important and necessary function for the business interests of the country. It has legislated out of existence all bank circulation which supplied the medium of exchange prior to the passage of the national-bank act, and has thrown around the national-bank circulation such conditions that the volume is insufficient to meet the requirements of trade. These conditions were not felt by the business community when the Government debt was sufficient in form and amount to afford a satisfactory basis for the bank circulation, so that it might keep pace with the other forms of credit, which the increasing business interests of the country required, but now, with the payment of this debt and consequently the withdrawal of this basis, it becomes necessary either to repeal the legislation which destroyed the bank circulation or else to provide some other mode by which this circulation may be continued.

"A bank circulation is a necessity, unless the Government undertakes, either through a Government bank or by some other mode yet to be ascertained, to grant commercial credits. The relation between the circulation and commercial credits is so intimate that if the Government assumes such control of one as to practically prohibit its issue it necessarily limits the other. No other nation has attempted to separate the two. England, France, and Germany each control their respective circulations; but only through their government banks, and these same banks grant credits—they have some connection with the commercial world. Every one of them regulates and assists commercial credit irrespective of its form by raising or lowering the rate of discount, while under our system, with the best security, even the obligation of the Government itself, no assistance can be rendered the commercial world in the way of credit at any rate of discount, no matter what the necessity may be."

The prejudice existing in the minds of many against national banks and individuals having money is such that I think it quite improbable that the legislation which I deem necessary and useful upon this subject will pass at this time. I would, if I had the power, pass a law now which would perpetuate the national banking system.

Mr. President, Government, in my judgment, is organized and instituted for the purpose of protecting the people and their property. It has no other duties. The people composing the Government are not a partnership, engaged in business for gain, but they elect representatives to frame and make their laws, and elect others to execute them. Having protected the persons and the property of the people its duty is ended.

I will not indulge in ancient history, but confine myself to events happening in my own time. Within the last thirty years a civil war raged four years in this nation, and the Government, in exercising its duty and functions to protect the people and their property, successfully exercised the functions which I have described. But in doing so it involved the people in an immense public debt. The officers of the Government, at the beginning of this war, endeavored to borrow money to bear the expenses of it. These expenses becoming so large, it was found impossible to do so. Under these circumstances the Treasury issued what are commonly called "greenbacks," and declared them to be a legal tender in the payment of debts, and also organized our national banking system to make a market for its bonds. Business has been done from that time, very nearly up to the present, upon this so-called "greenback" or United States note and national-bank notes. It is needless to say that if the Government had had money at that time, or could have borrowed it, the United States note or "greenback" would never have been known. It was not issued for the purpose of furnishing a circulating medium, but was issued for the purpose of preserving the nation.

The war having closed, the Government immediately began to pay its debt, levying large taxes for that purpose, and during the last twenty years has paid nearly two-thirds of the debt contracted for its preservation. At this rate it will only be a few years before the entire debt will be paid, including the so-called "greenback" issue.

Then it will require accurate and careful legislation to so collect the requisite amount of money to carry on the expense of the Government without producing a surplus or a deficit. So long as there is any Government debt, and authority is lodged with the Secretary of the Treasury to invest the surplus in it, it will not be necessary to collect the exact amount required for the expenses of the Government. If our Treasury were like the Bank of England, possessing all banking functions, it would not be necessary to legislate about the currency or the surplus revenues. In Great Britain, all the revenue of the Government being deposited in the Bank of England—which is the treasury of that nation—is in active use for commercial purposes, as our $61,000,000 now deposited in our national banks are in active use for business. Any money, and all money, locked up in the Treasury of the United States might as well be in the bottom of the sea, for any good it is to the business of the country. There are over $600,000,000 now in the Treasury, including the $61,000,000 deposited in the national banks, and the demand debt of the Government is about $130,000,000 more than this sum. Instead of there being a surplus in the Treasury, if the demand debt should be all called for at once, the Government would be short of being able to pay it the amount above stated, namely, $130,000,000. The difference between a bank and the United States Treasury is this: The Government has in the Treasury about $600,000,000. It owes something over $700,000,000, which is due on demand, being something over $100,000,000 more than its cash assets. Now, a well-conducted bank has in its vaults a surplus over and above all its debts. When it lends money it receives an equal amount of bills of exchange or notes therefor. If it lends its own notes it receives the notes of its customers for the same, and it pays its own on presentation; and the bills receivable so taken are adequate to and usually do provide funds for the payment or redemption of its own issues. So that when a hundred dollars of its own notes are loaned it receives the note of the customer for a like amount. This function the Treasury does not possess. It pays out its money in the liquidation of some debt. It does not and can not lend money.

Let me state in a word, if I can, the difference between a "greenback" or United States note and a bank-note. The "greenback," as I before remarked, was issued because the Government had no money. The resources from which this "greenback" will be paid are the taxes which we impose for that purpose. There is no power to compel its payment, for the reason that the Government can not be sued. On the other hand, the national-bank note is issued by a corporation authorized by Congress for that purpose, having capital in money, with the additional security of the liabilities of the stockholders for an equal amount, and is secured also by a deposit of national bonds of a greater value than the notes themselves. The holder of these notes can compel by law their payment in coin. The assets of a bank, the liabilities of the stockholders, and the Government bonds deposited with the Treasury, are security for the payment of these notes.

It is not necessary for the Government to engage in any business for the purpose of making money, nor should it put itself in competition with its citizens.

In view of these facts Congress ought to pay off the debt contracted for the preservation of the nation, both its bonds and demand notes, and authorize the people, under the national-bank act, with suitable amendments, to furnish themselves with all the money which they need. This they can and will do, if some such legislation as is proposed by these amendments is adopted. The people will furnish their own circulating medium in such quantities as the business of the country requires, and they will not be subject to any legislation by Congress, nor will their interests be menaced or jeopardized as they now are by a deposit of sixty-odd million dollars in the national banks subject to the call of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Government should get out of business of all kinds, and especially out of the money business. It might as well go into the railroad business, or steam-boat business, or the dry goods business, or any other business as to continue in the currency business. Its duty and function in regard to money are simply to collect from the people just enough (and no more) to pay the salaries of the executive and other officers and to defray the other necessary expenses of the Government. It should not be possible for Congress to pass any law destroying the business of the country; nor should it be possible for any officer of the Government to create a panic, as the Secretary of the Treasury can do to-morrow, if he so wills. The people should be provided with adequate laws to manage their own monetary and other affairs in their own way.

Banks are one of the evidences of advanced civilization. By them and through them the business of the country is done (and only about 5 per cent. is done with money). The balance is done upon bank credits. In New York City only 3 per cent. of money is needed for business. Where the largest accumulations of money are, and where the largest banks are, money is the cheapest.

I do not regard banks as monopolies, nor do I characterize them as the money power of the country, because I think they are the reverse of all this. The Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER], in his able speech the other day, informed the Senate that more than one-half of the bank capital of the United States was owned by small investors, holding less than $5,000 each of stock, and that but very few men owned any larger sum of bank stock. Women and children and trustees and guardians are large owners of the banking capital of the country. There is no concert of action on their part in the country, nor in any city in the country, either to put up the price of money or to lessen or inflate its circulation. Neither are the profits of these national banks derived from the Government franchise. The profits upon national-bank circulation are so small that many have given up and retired their notes. Any one who has any knowledge of banking operations knows that the bulk of the profits is derived from deposits. Custom has shown that it is perfectly safe to lend from 60 to 75 per cent. of them, and when no interest is allowed to the depositors the interest derived from lending these deposits is nearly all profit to the banks.

Mr. McCulloch, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, says of the national banks:

"Born when the Government was engaged in a tremendous struggle for the maintenance of its integrity, this national banking system is identified with the history of that struggle and shares the honor of its successful termination. Nor is this all. It has proved to be a system admirably adapted to our republican institutions. There is not a single monopolistic feature about it. It is open to all who have money to invest in banking. It furnishes the best bank-note circulation that is known to the world. I do not, therefore, exaggerate, strong as the statement may seem, when I say that the creation of this system was an act of consummate wisdom.

"This system is now in danger, and from a cause which nobody antici pated when it was created, and there are very few intelligent men who do not look forward to its possible discontinuance with grave apprehensions.

"The opinion that money can be created by acts of Congress is a very dangerous opinion to prevail among the people. Government notes which were not declared to be lawful money would, of course, be less objectionable than those which were, but the issue of notes by the Government, whether legal tender or not, is indefensible. The Government was created for no such purpose. The exercise of such power can only be justified by some great national emergency, and then only under the most conservative and stringent regulations. The legal-tender acts were passed in such an emergency, and fortunate was it that Congress was wise enough to limit the issue of notes to an amount that would not jeopardize the national credit or affect injuriously the business of the country.

"If there is one special thing that the Government ought not to do, and never can do without a departure from its proper functions, nor without prejudice to all branches of protective industry, it is to supply by its own notes the demand for a paper currency. It is very clear that the v cuum which would be caused by the retirement of the notes of the national banks ought not to be filled, and unless madness prevails with the law-making powers will not be filled by United States notes.

"Hands off by the Government; hands off from the currency and from business, ought to be and, if the matter were carefully considered, would be the demand of every patriot and of every laborer in the fields of productive industry.

"How, then, are these prospective evils to be avoided? In no other way as I can see but by the perpetuation and enlargement of our national banking system, which can only be accomplished by the continuation of a part of the public debt.

"In some such way as this the national banking system, which, in my opinion, is essential to the well being of the country, might be perpetuated and enlarged. It ought to be enlarged to such an extent that the notes of the national banks, with gold and silver, would occupy the entire field."

The price of money, like everything else, is governed by the law of supply and demand. Where there are no banks money is difficult to be obtained; and when so obtained the rates are unequal and always high. Usury laws preventing the loaning of money above a given rate have always made money dearer wherever they exist. I do not believe in sumptuary laws, legal-tender laws, or usury laws, but I do believe in that kind of government which has the fewest laws, giving the people the largest liberties, and guarantying good order, good morals, and adequate protection.

In pursuance of this position, while deviating from the main subject under discussion, I would not require any one by law to take silver, or greenbacks, or national-bank notes in payment of debts. I would leave that matter entirely to agreement and contract. I would permit any citizen of the United States to go to the mints and have his gold bullion coined into money; I would also permit him to have his silver bullion coined into money to any extent, having gold the standard, and I deem it an impossible thing to have two standards. There can be but one standard.

Certainly for thirty-seven years in the United States gold has measured everything.

As I before remarked, what I will say on this subject will be from facts coming under my own observation, in my own time.

In 1851, owing to the discoveries of gold in California, silver dollars were sold by me for $1.04; Mexican dollars at $1.06, and new Spanish milled dollars at $1.10, in gold. The result of this disparity at that time was that the silver of the country was bought up and exported. Continuing down to the present day, we find a greater difference between these metals, but in an opposite direction. Instead of being worth $1.04, the same quantity of silver is now worth but 70 cents, or a trifle more. The reasons of this disparity, in my judgment, are three: First, the increased production of silver in this country; second, the demonetization of silver by Germany, and, third, the restriction of the coinage of silver by the Latin Union.

Now, the wise thing, in my judgment, the manly thing, the thing that will make no difference to anybody in this country, is to accept the inevitable, and make the readjustment at once. If it is desired to make the silver dollar equal in value to the gold dollar, let the requisite quantity of silver be put into it. I say, it makes no difference to anybody, because it costs nothing to anybody. The amount of silver which the Government buys monthly should be put into an equal number of dollars in silver. Nobody is cheated. Nobody is injured. This silver dollar then could be exported as well as the gold dollar. Instead of $2,000,000 a month being coined, all could be coined that is brought to the mint. Then, if the owners of this silver and gold, coined under the new adjustment, preferred paper to coin, let them deposit it with the Treasury of the United States and receive certificates therefor.

It is claimed by many that the law creates values; that the stamp of the Government upon a piece of paper or anything else saying that it is a dollar makes it so. No one will pretend that the stamp of any Government upon a given quantity of gold adds anything to its value, for the reason that gold has a uniform value among all the civilized nations of the earth. The stamp of the Government is simply a certificate that it contains a given quantity of gold. That is all it does. Now, so far as our present silver dollar is concerned, the reason it is taken is because the Government agrees to take it for its dues. These persons admit that the Government has paid but 70 cents for it, yet they insist that it is a dollar, and is equal in value to the gold dollar. Now, if anybody should make a silver dollar containing precisely the same quantity of silver, and in such a manner that nobody could tell the difference between it and our dollar—in fact, so perfectly made that there would be no difference—the man who would make this dollar of the same ingredients as the Government dollar would be sent to the penitentiary for counterfeiting and forgery. The reason that it is taken, as I said, is because the Government takes it for its dues, and the further reason or belief that if the Government should not take it in this manner eventually it would take it up at 100 cents on the dollar in gold.

The reason that the United States note passes for 100 cents is not that it is intrinsically worth anything, but for the belief that is reduced to an almost absolute certainty that the Government would pay gold for it on demand.

Following this argument further, for the purpose of showing what value is, Confederate bonds have value (50 cents or a dollar a thousand)—not large, it is true. But why do they have any value? The reason given me in London last fall by a very large holder of these bonds was the belief that the Government of the United States at some time would pay them. His argument was this:

Any one of your States—

Said he—

under its limited sovereignty, has the right to issue bonds for any purpose which its Legislature may decide upon. If one State can do it, two States can issue a common bond for a common purpose. If two States, three; if three, more, and so on. So that the Confederate States having issued these bonds for a common purpose, which they deemed to be for a common benefit, brought them over to England to us and sold them to us and we paid our money for them. They are not only anxious but they are able to pay these bonds. But in your amendment of the Constitution readmitting them into the Union, for the purpose of punishing them for their rebellion, you provided that no part of the Confederate debt shall ever be paid by them. You not only do not punish them, but you relieve them from an honest debt which they are anxious to pay. Not only relieving them of the debt which they want to pay, but punishing us. Having prevented us from collecting the debt which they are not only willing but anxious and able to pay, we demand that you who have done this shall pay these bonds.

Now, upon this argument the holders of these Confederate bonds have a very feeble belief that we at some time will pay them; hence their value in the London market.

Further, showing the effect of law in not making values, it is only necessary for me to call your attention to the act of July 17, 1864, to prohibit sales of gold on foreign exchange under penalty, the purpose being to keep the premium of gold down. But the result of this act was to so largely increase the premium that Congress repealed the law within fifteen days after its passage. I call the attention of the Senate to this matter to show that by law we can not create values in anything. We can not make 70 cents' worth of silver worth a dollar; nor can we keep the rate of interest down by an act of Congress; nor did we keep the premium on gold down in 1864 by an act of Congress.

The days of miracles are passed. Laws can not create value. To those who believe that the stamp of a government upon any substance makes it valuable I would ask them why it is that if a twenty-dollar gold piece is taken to a blacksmith shop and mutilated so that it could not be recognized as a gold coin, no value is taken from it? It is worth just as much after the mutilation as it was when it was a new gold twenty-dollar piece. Whereas if you take a twenty-dollar "greenback" and by chemicals extract the printing on it, it does not retain its value the same as the gold piece. When this can be explained, that one under these circumstances is just as good as the other, then it can be fully claimed that one is the equal of the other.

Now, if values can be created by law, as claimed, why is it not the duty of Congress to print at once, upon paper, money enough for all the citizens of the Republic, so that they would no longer be compelled to work? Make each man a millionaire at once. It is just as easy to pass a law to create the amount required for this purpose as it is to create a smaller amount. It seems to me the mere statement of the case shows its absurdity.

In conclusion, under these amendments, or by some other similar legislation, I would refund the present public debt at 2½ per cent. at fifty years, and authorize national banks to receive circulation at par for such amounts as they might use for that purpose. I would require the Secretary of the Treasury to invest his surplus in the purchase of any indebtedness of the Government in the open market from time to time. I would suspend the requirements of the sinking fund, because, if the Secretary is authorized to buy the public debt with the surplus from time to time, the requirements of the law creating that fund would be no longer necessary.

For the purpose of enabling the people to manage their money affairs in their own way, without any interference in any manner whatever on the part of the Government, I would allow them to maintain the volume of the national-bank circulation up to the limit of the present amount of the national debt by a substitution of State, county, and municipal bonds, as provided for in the last amendment which I have proposed.

If such legislation can be passed we will hear no more of bank stringency or panics produced by the contraction of the currency. The people will, under this machinery, have the power to manage their own monetary affairs in their own way, and the Government can go on and retire and pay its debt as rapidly as its revenues will permit, the people attending to their business and the Government returning to its legitimate function of protecting its people and their property.

Mr. REAGAN. While I do not feel physically able to address the Senate this morning, I am unwilling to allow the proposition and remarks of the Senator from Illinois [Mr. FARWELL] to pass without a protest.

One of the features of his proposition is to create an interest-bearing bonded indebtedness to run for fifty years. I wish to see the country relieved from a bonded debt as early as possible. I do not agree with the argument that a public debt can in any sense be made a public blessing, nor that we ought to employ the public debt as an agency of promoting any other interest in this country.

I do not deny that the national-bank system has subserved a very valuable purpose, both during the war, in keeping up the finances of the country and enabling the Government to tide through its then difficulties, and subsequently, in furnishing as good a currency as any bank, government, or institution could furnish. So it will be understood that I do not object to the quality of the national-bank issues; but I have not the same regret that the time is approaching when the national banks shall become extinct that is manifested by the Senator from Illinois.

One reason for my making this remark is the fact that the national banks have shown themselves to be guided by a policy peculiarly their own and adverse to the best interests of this country, by the cultivation and promotion of class interests. They have shown a purpose to oppose such legislation as the Congress of the United States thought necessary for the welfare of this country; and in doing this in 1878 they came well nigh producing a financial panic; and it is believed, and I feel that there is little doubt of the truth of it, that but for the action of the Secretary of the Treasury at that time in placing money on the market to buy bonds, the course of the banks in the sudden contraction of the volume of the currency as a political move would have produced a financial crash such as this country has rarely experienced, at a sacrifice of all the best interests of the country, to gratify a purpose to rule the legislation of this country.

I allude to the efforts which the banks made in combination with bondholders in 1878 to prevent the passage of the law which repealed the law that required the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem and cancel the legal-tender notes, and that law by which we proposed to remonetize silver. The object of the act—sometimes called the Bland act, and improperly so called—which was introduced and passed in the House, was to provide for the free and unlimited coinage of silver like gold; and it was subsequently amended in the Senate so as to limit the coinage to not less than two nor more than four million dollars of silver monthly.

In addition to this, any one who will examine the proceedings of the national banks in their annual meetings and see the policy they have pursued in their own interest and against the interest of the country, can not doubt that they have an interest peculiar to themselves and hostile to the best interests of this country.

For these reasons, if I had the power—and I trust such may be the policy of the Government—I would allow the charters of these banks to expire. I would not renew them. I would not adopt any measure that would suddenly repeal the law if I had the power of abolishing the banks at once, but I would allow their charters to expire and refuse to recharter them as banks of issue. I should not have any objection to them as banks of deposit and discount. For that they subserve a very valuable purpose without endangering the public interests; but I would allow their charters to expire, and as they expired I would supply the place of the bank notes retired from circulation in one of two ways: First, by providing as far as the Government could command the coin to issue coin certificates—not gold certificates or silver certificates—based upon the gold and silver in the Treasury to supply the place of the retired national-bank notes; and if we failed to have coin enough to supply a sufficient circulation, next to that I would provide that the Government should issue its Treasury notes, such as it has issued on many occasions in the history of the country—not with the legal-tender clause, for I doubt the power of the Government, notwithstanding the decision of the Supreme Court, to make paper a legal tender for private debts—but if there was not coin sufficient to supply the necessary currency, then I would require Treasury notes to be issued in an amount equal to the retired bank notes, which should have exactly the qualities and properties that the present national-bank notes have. They should be redeemable in coin at the will of the bill-holder, and they should be received for all taxes and dues of every kind, but without the declaration that they were legal tender.

In this way I would furnish the country exactly the quality and kind of paper that it has had from the national banks. And now, as it would be then, the inquiry would not be made by officers collecting money on execution whether they were receiving Treasury notes or legal-tender notes, because these notes would be at par, but I would provide in this way for the supply of any deficiency in the circulation created by the retirement of the national-bank notes.

Mr. FARWELL. Will my friend answer a question?

Mr. REAGAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. FARWELL. Will the Senator from Texas inform the Senate how the Treasury of the United States can issue a Treasury note when it does not want to buy anything or does not owe anything?

Mr. REAGAN. If the Government had no occasion to pay its public officers, its Army, its Navy, for its civil service, no occasion to pay debts or interest on the public debt, I admit the question the Senator from Illinois puts would be a pretty hard one to answer; but inasmuch as it has to supply money for all these purposes, and has often found it necessary to supply it by the issue of Treasury notes, I do not see the difficulty presented in his question.

Mr. FARWELL. I beg the Senator's pardon. I ask the question, in this state of facts, when the public debt is paid, as everybody admits that the public debt shall be paid, then I ask the Senator how the Treasury is going to issue a dollar of notes or anything else for any purpose except to pay the debts incurred and due from time to time?

Mr. REAGAN. I think I have just answered the Senator's question by saying that the notes can be used in payment of all the services rendered to this Government.

Mr. President, I do not see how in this way the public could suffer. If we may allow the Government to issue and guaranty the notes of the national banks, why put the people to the expense of meeting the contingencies and expenses of putting notes into the hands of banks and having them issued by banks? Would not the people be benefited by their being issued directly by the Government? If they would, then the adverse policy is simply a question about preserving and conserving the interests of that particular class of people who hold the capital stock of and are interested in the national-bank notes.

The Senator objects and says that this Government was not created for the purpose of issuing notes. If it was not, it has departed very seriously and frequently from the object of its creation. It has heretofore done so, and even now the very national-bank notes which he desires shall be continued and to guaranty the payment of, are issued by the Government, and if the Government issues these notes and guaranties their payment, sending them through the agency of national banks to the people, why not issue them directly and let them go to the people through the agency of the Government itself? So the Senator will see that the very national-bank notes which he advocates overthrow the position he has taken, that the Government was not created for the purpose of the issuance of notes as money.

Mr. President, there are a number of propositions submitted by the Senator from Illinois which, if my strength permitted, I should like to review, and especially so if I had had time to look into the question. I have simply made these points by way of protest against the policy of continuing the public debt for fifty years, protest against the policy of perpetuating the national banks which have shown themselves the enemies of the public, and to insist that our currency shall be issued by the Government, based upon coin, or if we have not coin enough to supply the necessary currency that it shall be supplied by Government Treasury notes.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, as the debate progresses one thing becomes more and more evident. The question at issue in this country is whether some new scheme shall be devised to continue the national debt in existence and use it for the purpose of enabling national banks to issue paper which passes as money, though it is not a legal tender. The effort is to devise some scheme in favor of piecing out this system which originated to please a class of banking men and make them loyal, a system which enabled private parties to exercise sovereign functions and issue money. In order to perpetuate this scheme what is proposed? The destruction of silver as money. People here and there talk about being the friends of silver; I am not a friend of silver; I am a friend of the people and believe in honest money. These men are very friendly to silver; they want to make the dollar as large as a cart-wheel! Now, they have a process by which they can depreciate the value of silver. The parties engaged in the scheme to demonetize it are not in this country alone. The Bank of England controls the price of silver and fixes it for us. With all her interest to get it cheap, she draws on India what are called consol bills. Taxes are collected in Indian silver. Silver is a legal tender, and gold is not allowed by law to circulate there. Taxes are collected in silver; consol bills are drawn on India payable in silver, and they are drawn not only against the taxes that are collected there, but they are drawn against shipments of silver. They are enabled, as I have examined and found, to draw a large amount. They can hold back silver, and then when they want silver they keep cutting it down, sell their bills cheaper, perhaps lose a little, but keep working it down until they have it down to 74, and now it is proposed to put enough silver in the dollar to make it in market worth a gold dollar, and we are told that silver has declined. Who made it decline? Legislation and manipulation—nothing else. It did not decline for two hundred years preceding this scheme. When I am told that the alleged decline has anything to do with the production, I point to the fact that for two hundred years preceding this war on silver the two metals stood comparatively stationary at the ratio of 15½ to 1.

Mr. PLATT. Will the Senator allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. STEWART. Yes.

Mr. PLATT. If the demonetization of silver accounts for its decline, is not production and that question nearly related? When it was demonetized it was not wanted for coinage. Then, of course, there was no production in that sense. Demonetization checked the demand for coinage, and then there was more silver than was needed for other purposes.

Mr. STEWART. That did check the demand; and for what purpose was it done? Why was it demonetized? The object of demonetization was declared in Europe. It has never been declared in this country. The object was to advance the value of securities so as to make the rich richer and the poor poorer. That was distinctly avowed. For twenty years the effort was to demonetize gold for that avowed purpose. No one ever dared to avow that here, but it was avowed in Europe. During twenty years of discussion when they were trying to demonetize gold, and when finally they demonetized silver they declared it was for that purpose. That was what made it decline. There has not been an overproduction of it.

For two hundred years, as I have before remarked, silver and gold stood substantially stationary at a ratio of 15½ to 1. When it was demonetized silver fell. What was the production during that time? During those two hundred years preceding 1846, when Russia produced some gold, the quantity of silver produced was 70 per cent. to 30 per cent. of gold, and still it did not change the ratio. From 1846 to 1850 the production was about equal. From 1850 to 1875, when this crime was consummated by refusing silver at all the mints, the product of gold was about 70 per cent. to 37 per cent. of silver, but still they remained the same; and why should they not remain the same?

It does not make any difference what amount of either metal you put into a dollar provided you fix the amount that you put in by law; for if 412½ grains of silver can be exchanged for a dollar, and 25$\frac{8}{10}$ grains of gold can be exchanged for the same amount—a dollar—they can be exchanged for each other. It does not make any difference about the quantity. It is the dollar that the people want. Now, the proposition to increase the amount of silver in the silver dollar is to demonetize silver because its price can be depressed from time to time, measured by gold, and increase the bulk of the silver dollar until a man can not carry it.

I believe in standing by the contract, standing by the conditions, and before I will lend my voice to getting up any other scheme to issue national-bank currency which is not a legal tender, for the benefit of private corporations, I will contend as long as I have the power in favor of using the silver of the world, using honest money, and I protest against the destruction of one of the precious metals and the disuse of it for the purpose of bringing into existence this mushroom stuff that has already brought the country into a state of distress everywhere. Right here when we were having a surplus, when our revenues were producing a surplus, the machinery of the national-banking system so operated as to retire $60,000,000 in a short time. If it had not been for the retirement of these national-bank notes by the payment of bonds the country would not be in so bad a condition as it now is. This shows that there was no foresight in it. The national-bank system was not organized with a view of furnishing the country with a permanent, constant, and equal supply of money, but was merely capricious, to be dealt out by schemers, dealt out by combinations, dealt out by consultations between the Secretary of the Treasury and Wall street.

I say a system that can only live a few years as it now stands, that has not served a good purpose while it did live, which is attempting to displace one of the precious metals, ought not to be fostered any longer. No country ever suffered from too much of either of the precious metals; no country has ever had too much of them; and let us use these two metals, use what we can get of them; and then when we do not have circulation enough it will be time to see what can be done to add to the circulation; and when that is done I want it done by the Government of the United States and not by private corporations, for private corporations having the issue of money at their disposal, being able to make hard times or good times to suit speculation, are the greatest enemies any country can have. Witness the condition of the country, witness the price of cotton, the price of wheat, and the mortgages accumulating on the farmers of this country and say they do not want more money.

No one has been able to point out that silver ever did any harm. Why not have it instead of this national-bank failure which has done so much harm? That is the issue before the country. Shall some hot-bed scheme be invented to enable speculators to control the currency of this country, or shall we return to the money of our fathers? Let us use what there is and what can be produced of the precious metals, and if they do not furnish enough currency, it may be that there will be genius enough in the country to invent more money if it is needed; but first let us use what the world has recognized as money from time immemorial.

One thing further. I have heard much said about intrinsic value. I contend that there is no such thing as that. It is a misnomer to say in a commercial sense that anything has intrinsic value. The Senator from Illinois [Mr. FARWELL] talked about intrinsic value. For example, suppose one of you were on Lake Superior in a skiff, would you pay anything for a drink of water? Would it have any market value? Suppose again you were in the Sahara Desert with a gallon of water, 25 miles from any supply of water, the thermometer 120°, and you were half way, what would you take for that gallon of water? The intrinsic qualities of the water are the same on the lake as in the desert. It has intrinsic quality, not value. Value depends on two things—the limitation of coinage in the first place. It can not be unlimited in quantity and have any value. The limitation is the place where the value is. It is fixed by statute. It must be limited at that place in quantity and it must be desired. The desire of man and the limitation of quantity are the two qualities that make value. When you talk about intrinsic value in gold or intrinsic value of silver, it does not exist. Suppose all the rocks were silver, it would have no marketable value, because everybody could pick it up. The same would be true of gold, and the same is true of any other material. Air is extensive, it is everywhere; but it has no marketable value.

Mr. BECK. I think I can suggest the case, which the Senator will probably recall, of a celebrated banker in Calcutta who failed with £20,000 of gold coin in his vaults, because gold was not a legal tender in India and he could not get coinage for it with which to pay his debts.

Mr. STEWART. Yes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the Senate resumes the consideration of the unfinished business.

Mr. STEWART. Just one word further. That thing has been done in this country and men fell down like straw before a fire on Black Friday with all their securities in their hands when Jay Gould & Co. made a corner on money through their banking establishments. They used to corner gold, and men with any amount of securities were doomed to destruction. That is one of the reasons why I object to any system that places the destinies of the people in the hands of speculators. Let the Government issue any money that is to be issued, and nobody else. It is a sovereign right, and it ought not to be parted with or given away to any class of favored individuals.

RECOMMITTAL OF A BILL.

Mr. HOAR. I desire to ask that the bill (S. 442) to extend the time for filing claims in the Court of Claims under the provisions of an act entitled "An act to provide for the ascertainment of claims of American citizens for spoliations committed by the French prior to July 31, 1801, which was reported adversely from the Committee on the Judiciary, be recommitted to that committee. When it was reported adversely it was placed upon the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Massachusetts moves that the bill be recommitted to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 285) for the relief of the legal representatives of H. Corths, deceased, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (H. R. 112) granting a pension to George Schneider;
A bill (H. R. 138) granting a pension to Joseph Perry;
A bill (H. R. 335) granting a pension to General W. E. Woodruff;
A bill (H. R. 401) granting a pension to Mrs. Jeannie Stone;
A bill (H. R. 404) for the relief of Mary McGrath;
A bill (H. R. 680) granting a pension to Henry H. Stuttsman;
A bill (H. R. 879) granting a pension to Royal J. Hiar;
A bill (H. R. 2071) for the relief of Martha Gray;
A bill (H. R. 2094) to increase the pension of Alonzo B. Chatfield;
A bill (H. R. 2282) to pension Mrs. Theodora M. Piatt;
A bill (H. R. 2664) for the relief of Francis Daniels;
A bill (H. R. 3158) increasing the pension to Howard S. Abbott;
A bill (H. R. 3180) granting a pension to John H. Sayers;
A bill (H. R. 3554) granting a pension to Catharine Black;
A bill (H. R. 3579) granting a pension to Ellen Shea;
A bill (H. R. 3735) granting a pension to Eliza Shreve;
A bill (H. R. 3844) granting an increase of pension to Wilson C. Moles;

A bill (H. R. 4491) granting a pension to Rosanna Robey;
A bill (H. R. 4579) granting a pension to Mary G. Crocker;
A bill (H. R. 4580) granting a pension to Farnaren Ball;
A bill (H. R. 5195) granting a pension to David W. Seely;
A bill (H. R. 5311) granting a pension to Alonzo H. Gregory;
A bill (H. R. 5545) granting a pension to Nancy F. Jennings;
A bill (H. R. 5966) granting a pension to Mrs. Lepha A. Osborn;
A bill (H. R. 6379) to increase the pension of David M. Rennoe;
A bill (H. R. 6453) granting a pension to George P. Stone;
A bill (H. R. 6576) for the relief of James M. McKeehan;
A bill (H. R. 6582) granting a pension to Elizabeth Ward;
A bill (H. R. 6609) for the relief of Sarah E. McCaleb;
A bill (H. R. 6971) to pension Peter Clark, jr.;
A bill (H. R. 7715) for the relief of Georgia A. Stricklett;
A bill (H. R. 7882) granting a pension to John Kinney;
A bill (H. R. 7913) granting a pension to Nellie Palfrey Goodwin;
A bill (H. R. 8164) granting a pension to William H. Hester; and
A bill (H. R. 8185) granting a pension to David L. Partlow.

ADMISSION OF DAKOTA.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 185) to provide for the admission of the State of Dakota into the Union, and for the organization of the Territory of Lincoln, the pending question being on the amendment proposed by Mr. BUTLER to the amendment reported by the Committee on Territories as amended.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President, I am entirely mindful that little if any virgin soil remains to be broken by a new-comer into this debate. The extraordinary research and ability which have characterized the work of the Committee on Territories at the last session of Congress and at this, and the speeches which have been made in support of this bill, have rendered it difficult indeed for any one to make an original contribution to the subject, either by way of precedent, argument, or even illustration. But aside from the general interest which invests this subject, involving as it does important considerations, present and permanent, to the Union, and involving also justice or gross injustice to the people of South Dakota, I have peculiar reasons for an intense interest in the fortunes of that people.

It is a little less than twenty-three years since I marched as a soldier over several hundred miles of that Territory and remained many months in the service within its boundaries. At that day, north of Yankton, no herds grazed upon its plains except herds of buffalo and antelope, and one traveling hundreds of miles saw no human habitation save the rude forts of the Government and the lodges and villages of the Sioux Indians.

From the standpoint of that day I have watched with absorbing interest the growth of Dakota Territory, and its development, only just begun, has made it to me the wonderland of this continent. My home is not far from its border and thousands of the people of Wisconsin, many of whom are acquaintances and friends, have settled within its limits. I therefore do not feel at liberty to hold aloof from this debate.

I listened with great care to the speeches submitted at the last session and at this against the admission of South Dakota to the Union. I concede their eloquence and ingenuity; but, with respectful deference to those who delivered them, I venture to say that I have never heard a ground suggested for denying the petition of South Dakota and turning her people empty-handed away from the door of the Union, at which they have so long begged for admission, that at the time or upon reflection has seemed to me to be well-founded in precedent, in law, or in reason. The people of South Dakota base their demand, or rather their petition, for admission into the Union upon three grounds, each, in my judgment, entirely adequate.

The first, and I will spend but a moment upon it, is the guaranty contained in the Louisiana treaty of April, 1803, the third article of which is as follows:

ART. 3. The inhabitants of the ceded territory shall be incorporated in the Union of the United States, and admitted as soon as possible, according to the principles of the Federal Constitution, to the enjoyment of all the rights, advantages, and immunities of citizens of the United States, and in the mean time they shall be maintained and protected in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property, and the religion which they profess. (8 Stat. L., p. 202.)

This article has been successfully invoked again and again as a basis for the claim of statehood. Repeatedly it has been recognized by Congress as affording sufficient support therefor, and it is too late in the political history of this country for any one, for partisan purposes or otherwise, to successfully impeach its adequacy. Recognition of it has sometimes, it is true, laid great stress upon the statesmen who have had to deal with it. When Arkansas stood at the door demanding admission as a slave State, upon the strength of this article of the Louisiana treaty, John Quincy Adams, every fiber of whose being protested against slavery and the extension of the lines of slavery, felt himself obliged, because of the obligations put upon him by his oath and this treaty, to vote for her admission. Permit me to read (for it exhibits a patriotism and lofty sense of duty worthy of emulation in this connection) what he said upon the subject:

I can not, consistently with my sense of my obligations as a citizen of the United States, and bound by oath to support their Constitution, I can not object to the admission of Arkansas into the Union as a slave State; I can not propose or agree to make it a condition of her admission that a convention of her people shall expunge this article from her constitution. She is entitled to admission as a slave State, as Louisiana and Mississippi and Alabama and Missouri have been admitted, by virtue of that article in the treaty for the acquisition of Louisiana, which secures to the inhabitants of the ceded territories all the rights, privileges, and immunities of the original citizens of the United States; and stipulates for their admission, conformably to that principle, into the Union. Louisiana was purchased as a country wherein slavery was the law of the land, and Arkansas must come in with slavery.

Observe that he did not seek discretionary power to justify him in dishonoring this pledge of his Government. He read the treaty, recognized the obligation of the agreement, found in the Constitution the power to perform it, and he performed it.

Its applicability to South Dakota is not denied, and why that people shall now be excluded from its operation is inexplicable, save for a reason which I will later attempt to give. The treaty is as virile to-day as it was the day it was ratified by the Senate.

But, Mr. President, Dakota justifies her formation of a proposed constitution and State government without a precedent enabling act, and her claim to admission as a State, upon the ordinance of 1787 and the legislation of Congress, and upon this foundation also her claim may securely rest. Article 6 of the ordinance is as follows.

And whenever any of the said States shall have 60,000 free inhabitants therein such State shall be admitted, by its delegates, into the Congress of the United States, on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever, and shall be at liberty to form a permanent constitution and State government: Provided, The constitution and government so to be formed shall be republican and in conformity to the principles contained in these articles; and so far as it can be, consistent with the general interest of the confederacy, such admission shall be allowed at an earlier period and when there may be a less number of free inhabitants in the State than 60,000.

May I ask the Senate for a moment to consider the circumtances under which the ordinance was made and of the men who framed it? This was not the first attempt at a governmental scheme for the Territory of the Northwest. For eight years prior to the adoption of this ordinance the subject was under debate. It had been considered by more than one Congress, and draught after draught had been reported. The number of inhabitants which should be essential to the foundation of a State received special attention. I beg leave to read from an address recently made by the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR] at a centennial celebration at Marietta, Ohio. I wish I might put it all in the RECORD, for it is rich in historical information, patriotic in sentiment, and eloquent in language. He says:

In 1786 a new committee was raised to report a new plan for the government of the territory. This committee made a report which provided that no State should be admitted from the Western territory until it had a population equal to one-thirteenth of the population of the original States at the preceding census. This would have kept out Ohio till 1820, Indiana till 1850, Illinois till 1860, Michigan till 1880, and Wisconsin till after 1890.

At last, after much debate and investigation, the ordinance was adopted as we find it, the requisite number of free inhabitants being fixed at 60,000. Those men never could have dreamed, Mr. President, that the time would come when six times 60,000 free inhabitants of a Territory, as much entitled to the privileges and benefits of that ordinance as if originally included within its scope should knock year after year in vain at the door of the Union for admission.

But let us consider this article with some regard to the men who made it. They knew what it was to conquer a wilderness. They knew better than we know the hardships, the isolation, the dependence, and the danger involved to those who sought to build for themselves homes in a new country. They understood the cunning and the merciless cruelty of Indian warfare. They were not neophytes either in government. They had experienced almost every conceivable governmental ill. That ordinance and especially this article of it was the outgrowth of their own experience. They had known what colonial government meant. They had eaten of its bitter fruit, had endured in their own persons the outrage, the humiliation, the dependence, the taxation without representation, and all the other evils which invested the colonial system. They knew what it was to be ruled over by men appointed thousands of miles away, who had borne no part in their hardships, who had no lot or part in their struggles, who came simply to rule and then to leave, who were not accountable to them for misfeasance or malfeasance, in whose selection they had no voice, to secure whose removal they were absolutely impotent. It will too be admitted by all, that however grave might be the concerns of the present, those men never lost sight of the future.

The ordinance of 1787, of which this article is one of the most pregnant, born out of their experience, was intended to protect their children and their children's children, who were expected to settle in the time to come the Territory of the Northwest, against the ills which their fathers had borne. Other provisions of the ordinance plainly reveal how strongly within their thought and care was the necessity for protection from the selection of officials without interest in the prosperity of the people. They made it an element of eligibility to the appointment of officers for the temporary government that they should be owners of land among the people whose affairs they were to administer. Thus they declared as to the governor:

He shall reside in the district and have a freehold estate there in 1,000 acres of land while in the exercise of his office.

The secretary and the judges were required to reside in the district, and to each own therein, while in the exercise of his office, a freehold estate in 500 acres of land. The object is manifest.

Read in the light of the surroundings of the men who framed this instrument, bearing in mind the experience which they had had and the evils against which they sought to guard, who can deny that it was a purpose near to their hearts that in the Territory of the Northwest, whenever 60,000 free inhabitants should be gathered together, they should have a right to put an end to Territorial government, to establish a constitution, republican in form, and to be then entitled to admission into the Union?

It is said that this ordinance was repealed by the adoption of the Constitution. The Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] so asserted, I believe, in argument at the last session of Congress. I think the assertion is well founded, and that the Supreme Court of the United States has so determined in the Strader case in 10th Howard. But while it may not be material to this discussion, I desire in passing to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that the men who framed the Constitution did not so understand it, and that they did not so intend it. At the very first session of Congress after the adoption of the Constitution, an act was passed which demonstrates this beyond question. It is entitled, "An act to provide for the government of the territory northwest of the river Ohio." This is the preamble:

Whereas in order that the ordinance of the United States in Congress assembled, for the government of the territory northwest of the river Ohio may continue to have full effect, it is requisite that certain provisions should be made so as to adapt the same to the present Constitution of the United States:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, etc., That in all cases in which by the said ordinance, any information is to be given or communication made by the governor of the said Territory to the United States in Congress assembled, or to any of their officers it shall be the duty of the said governor to give such information and to make such communication to the President of the United States, and the President shall nominate, and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint all officers which by the said ordinance were to have been appointed by the United States in Congress assembled, and all officers so appointed shall be commissioned by him; and in all cases where the United States in Congress assembled, might, by the said ordinance, revoke any commission or remove from any office, the President is hereby declared to have the same power of revocation and removal.

Section 2 simply confers upon the Secretary power to discharge the duties of the governor in case of the death, removal, resignation, or necessary absence of the latter.

Here is plainly evinced the understanding that it survived the adoption of the Constitution and the purpose that it should continue in force. The only respect in which they supposed it necessary to change the ordinance so as to adapt it to the Constitution was in this matter of detail as to the appointment of officers, etc. But it is immaterial in this debate whether it was superseded or not. Various acts were adopted by Congress from time to time extending its provisions to other Territories than that of the Northwest. The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS], in the exhaustive speech which he made upon this subject (and I congratulate his State upon the auspicious entry which he has made into this high arena of debate), has rendered it unnecessary for one hereafter, in order to trace the different statutes applying the ordinance to the present Territory of Dakota, to do more than to consult his speech. It is sufficient to say that by the act of Congress approved April 20, 1836, making this region a portion of the Territory of Wisconsin, it was declared—

That the inhabitants of the said Territory shall be entitled to and enjoy all and singular the rights, privileges, and advantages granted and secured to the people of the territory of the United States northwest of the Ohio River by the articles of the compact contained in the ordinance for the government of the said Territory passed on the 13th day of July, 1787.

This act remains unrepealed and unimpaired, and it will be observed that by its terms it extends all of the privileges, immunities, etc., granted by the ordinance, not simply a portion of them.

Mr. President, article 6, thus extended by this statute, constitutes a continuing promise on the part of the Congress of the United States to the people that if they would go into Dakota, brave the ferocity of the savage Sioux, endure the hardships of that rigorous climate, till the soil and build up homes, when their numbers should aggregate 60,000 they should be entitled to form a State government and to be admitted into the Union. This construction has been repeatedly placed upon the ordinance by Congress, and by some of the most distinguished of our statesmen, including Mr. Madison, so often justly lauded here, and its obligation has been repeatedly recognized and enforced.

But this is not the only legislative promise of statehood to be found upon our statute-books. I beg leave to refer to another. In the joint resolution of Congress approved March 1, 1845, admitting the "empire" State of Texas—that seems to be a favorite term in this debate—into the Union is found the following legislative declaration:

New States, of convenient size, not exceeding four in number in addition to said State of Texas, and having sufficient population, may hereafter, by the consent of said State, be formed out of the territory thereof, which shall be entitled to admission under the provisions of the Federal Constitution.

That was wise foresight in the interest of Democracy and slavery. The Democratic party may not have laid up treasures in heaven, Mr. President, but it certainly has laid up treasures in Texas. In the womb of that monster State lie concealed, ready to be summoned forth whenever the exigencies of a solid South shall demand it, four great States, each one of which may have quite 55,000 square miles of superficial area, each one of which would be larger than any one of twenty-six States of this Union, each one of which would be larger than the State which my friend from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] terms the empire State of New York or the empire State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, does not this clause in the act admitting Texas into the Union contain any pledge of statehood? Will any Senator on the other side of this Chamber say that it is not an enabling act, authorizing the people of Texas, proceeding under its authority, to divide that State into four States, and to form a constitution for proffer to Congress? And if those States should come, having been so divided, with convenient territory (an equal division, if you choose), bringing an unobjectionable constitution, and with requisite population, demanding admission under that act, who could gainsay them? Senators might be placed in the condition in which John Quincy Adams found himself placed as to Arkansas. Senators on this side of the Chamber might dislike to recognize it, might be glad to find opportunity in harmony with obligations under the Constitution and laws to reject those Democratic Senators, but upon what ground could they do it; and if they did do it, if they denied effect to this clause in the Texas act, it would be interesting to hear the Senators on the other side of this Chamber, including my eloquent friend from South Carolina, in their indignant denunciation of such a repudiation of a pledge made by the people of the United States.

Mr. GRAY. Will the Senator from Wisconsin allow me to ask a question?

Mr. SPOONER. Certainly.

Mr. GRAY. In the event supposed of four new States carved out of the territory of Texas applying for admission into the Union and recognition by Congress, I understand the Senator to say that he would consider himself deprived of discretion as a legislator in passing upon an act for the admission of such States.

Mr. SPOONER. No, sir; the Senator must not understand me to say that I would consider myself deprived of discretion. But I want to say to the Senator that as to the pledge to Texas—and the same is true as to the pledge to Dakota—if I found the pledge to be plain, and if I found the Constitution to be plain, and to give me the power, I would seek no discretionary theory upon which to repudiate and dishonor the pledge. If the great State of Texas were divided into five equal parts, and the four proposed new States came with 360,000 population each—for I will put it as it is in South Dakota to-day—with constitutions republican in form, petitioning for admission into the Union, I would seek no discretionary power or mere pretext to enable me to repudiate an outstanding promise of the Government, in good faith accepted.

Mr. GRAY. Would not the Senator exercise discretion?

Mr. SPOONER. I should exercise my discretion, but I would not consider that I had discretion to violate in spirit an obligation made by the Congress of the United States and acted upon by the people to whom it was addressed. Mr. President, no Democrat could be found in the Senate of the United States, I venture to say, who in the case which I put would not assert the right of the people of Texas, without any further enabling act than that, to divide the State and to demand admission into the Union. How does it differ from this act of 1836 extending the ordinance of 1787 to the people of Dakota, except in this: that it was less patriotic in its purpose, less pure in its origin, and it is less definite in its terms?

But, Mr. President, this guaranty contained in the sixth article of the ordinance of 1787, and tendered by Congress these many years to the people of Dakota, has been accepted by that people. Why has it been allowed to stand upon the statute-book since 1836, an open offer from the people of the United States to those who should settle that Territory, if it was intended to break it? Has this promise been left outstanding only to be broken? If it was intended to seek excuses for delaying or neglecting its performance, why, in justice to that people, has it not been repealed? It constitutes a high order of political compact, not susceptible, of course, like an engagement between individuals, of compulsory performance. The fact that Congress has absolute power to disregard it simply affords stronger reason why it should not be done. It is a pledge by the whole people to a portion of the people, binding in conscience if not in law. I say, Mr. President, it is a higher order of statemanship to seek power in the Constitution, if it were not plainly conferred, to enable us to keep that pledge, than to seek there the existence of a discretion to enable us to dishonor and repudiate it. Let us deal with it as

> Romans that have spoke the word,
> And will not palter.

But, Mr. President, I assume, for the purposes of the argument in what I desire further to say, that the ordinance of 1787 drops out from under South Dakota's case. I dismiss also from consideration the Louisiana treaty, and I contend that upon every principle of fair dealing, and in accordance with precedent and justice, South Dakota is entitled to be admitted as a State into the Union, and that it is an unjust partisanship which turns her people away. Is not this true?

Is the area adequate? The Senator from South Carolina does not dispute it. I do not understand that any opponent of her admission disputes it. This proposed State has 77,000 square miles. There are but seven States in the Union of larger area. Are our friends who oppose the admission of South Dakota wiser in this day and generation as to what should be the size of a State than were the men who framed the ordinance of 1787, and the men who administered it by Congressional enactments running through many years? The framers of the ordinance provided that the territory should be divided into not less than three nor more than five States. The total area of the Northwest Territory was 239,000 square miles. If it were equally divided into three States each would be a little over 79,000 square miles. They therefore considered that no State of that territory should be greater than 79,000 square miles. South Dakota is almost as large in superficial area. Divided by five, the superficial area of each State would be only about 48,000 square miles, which they evidently intended should be the smallest State. It has been divided by Congress into five States, of area as follows: Ohio, 40,000 square miles; Indiana, 34,000 square miles; Michigan, 56,000 square miles; Illinois, 55,000 square miles; Wisconsin, 54,000 square miles. The proposed State of South Dakota, as has been many times said in the hearing of the Senate, is larger than the great State of New York, or Pennsylvania, or Ohio, or Indiana. Who is to say that it has not sufficient area to fairly entitle it to statehood?

The other day, when the Senator from South Carolina was making his very eloquent speech, the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT] interrupted him to call his attention to the fact that by a bill passed in this Congress 11,000,000 acres of land within the limits of South Dakota hitherto within the Sioux reservation would be thrown open to settlement by a bill which had passed both Houses. The Senator from South Carolina replied that the bill had not passed yet. That bill while not passed yet has made some progress since then. I feel warranted in calling the attention of the Senate and the people to it. The differences existing between the two Houses have been adjusted, the conference report has been presented in each House and adopted, so that unless the exigencies of the political situation, unless the necessity of keeping one more obstruction in the way of South Dakota shall prevail, we may fairly presume that it will become a law. It adds to the public domain open to settlement within the limits of South Dakota 11,000,000 acres of land. Think of it! That makes 68,751 farms of 160 acres each, larger than one-third of the agricultural area of the State of New York, and I venture to say that the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. DAWES] will next year, when 300,000 people shall have found homes on that tract, receive, and he will deserve it, their earnest gratitude for the persistence and the ability with which through five years he has labored to bring out from Indian reservation and to place within reach of the people such a vast area for the opening of farms and the building of homes.

Now, Mr. President, let us consider the question with reference to the population of the proposed State. Does the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] deny that the population is adequate? South Dakota has 360,000, now probably 400,000, people. This population exceeds that of any other State of the Union at the time of its admission. I have in my hand a table which I will not trouble the Senate by reading, but will insert in my remarks:

State.	Date of admission.	Representative ratio on previous census.	Population by previous census.			Population when admitted.			Population by following census.	Rate per cent. of increase during decade of admission.
			Free.	Slave.	Total.	Free.	Slave.	Total.
Vermont	1791	33,000	85,425	.....	85,425	85,425	.....	85,425	154,446	80
Kentucky	1792	33,000	61,247	12,430	73,677	61,247	12,430	73,677	220,955	200
Tennessee	1796	33,000	32,274	3,417	35,691	*60,000	*7,000	*67,000	105,602	195
Ohio	1802	33,000	45,365	.....	45,365	45,365	.....	45,365	230,760	408
Louisiana	1812	35,000	41,896	34,660	76,556	41,896	34,660	76,556	152,923	100
Indiana	1816	35,000	24,520	.....	24,520	63,897	.....	63,897	147,178	500
Mississippi	1817	35,000	23,264	17,088	40,352	45,441	30,061	75,512	75,448	403
Alabama	1819	35,000							127,901
Illinois	1818	35,000	12,282	.....	12,282	34,620	.....	34,620	55,162	350
Maine	1820	35,000	228,705	.....	228,705	298,269	.....	298,269	399,445	33
Missouri	1821	40,000	56,335	10,222	66,557	56,335	10,222	66,557	140,445	111
Arkansas	1836	47,700	25,812	4,576	30,388	*33,000	*9,240	52,240	97,574	221
Michigan	1837	47,700	31,639	.....	31,639	*65,000	.....	*65,000	212,267	570
Florida	1845	70,680	28,769	25,717	54,477	*34,000	*30,000	*64,000	87,445	60
Texas	1845	70,680	.....	.....	.....	*105,000	*38,000	*143,000	212,592	.....
Iowa	1846	70,680	43,112	.....	43,112	78,819	.....	78,819	192,214	345
Wisconsin	1848	70,680	30,945	.....	30,945	*180,000	.....	*180,000	305,391	886
California	1850	93,423	92,597	.....	92,597	92,597	.....	92,597	379,994	310
Minnesota	1858	93,423	6,077	.....	6,077	*120,000	.....	*120,000	172,023	2,730
Oregon	1859	93,423	13,294	.....	13,294	*50,000	.....	*50,000	52,465	294
Kansas	1861	127,381	107,206	.....	107,206	107,206	.....	107,206	364,399	240
West Virginia	1863	127,381	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	*350,000	442,914	.....
Nevada	1864	127,381	6,857	.....	6,857	*40,000	.....	*40,000	42,491	520
Nebraska	1867	127,381	28,841	.....	28,841	*100,000	.....	*100,000	122,993	322
Colorado	1876	131,425	39,864	.....	39,864	*100,000	.....	*100,000	194,640	388

*Estimated.

One feature of this table I desire to bring to the notice of the Senate, and that is the fact that at the taking of the next census in each case after admission the population had more than doubled, and in some instances in very much less than a decade, which I refer to only to base upon it what seems to me a fair inference that statehood has a potential influence in inducing settlement; and it is certainly not unnatural to suppose that men would prefer to go with their families for settlement and investment into a State where government is complete and local self-government is established than to go into a Territory.

It must not be forgotten in this connection that probably hundreds of thousands of men are waiting in the United States to take to themselves out of the public domain the farms covered by the bill opening the Sioux reservation. It is not unfair to assume that inside of a year, by reason of this increase, the population of South Dakota will have increased by at least a quarter million of people.

What about the intelligence of the population of the proposed State of South Dakota? Does the Senator from South Carolina question that? Will any one seek to impeach the claim of statehood upon the ground that the population is deficient in intelligence? Certainly not. Upon this point South Dakota proudly points to her magnificent system of free schools; she points the Senator and his confreres to the fact that in the year 1886 there were expended in the Territory $1,900,000 in aid of popular education, one-half of which may fairly be put to the credit of the people of South Dakota. There are in Dakota five thousand school-teachers. The standard of education in that Territory is as high as in almost any State in this Union, I am told. The annual expenditure for the support of schools in aid of education, common and higher, is greater than in almost any Southern State. The people of South Dakota, Mr. President, may safely invite comparison in respect of intelligence, educational facilities, and advantages with the State of South Carolina and several other Southern States with detriment to the latter. I do not say this to reflect upon the people of those States, for I realize thoroughly the disadvantages which have surrounded them in this respect. I make the contrast only for the purpose of showing that by the comparison is proven, on the score of popular intelligence, the title of that people to permanent government in the Union, and to draw attention to the singular fact that notwithstanding this the Senators who represent in this Senate the Southern States stand in solid phalanx athwart the pathway of South Dakota into the Union.

Are the people of the proposed State of South Dakota attached to the Constitution of the United States? Are they loyal to the flag which waves over this Capitol? Are they obedient to the laws? Who dares assert the contrary? Why, Mr. President, within the limits of South Dakota are now over ten thousand men who followed Grant, Sherman, and Sheridan, and the dear dead soldier Senator from Illinois (Logan)—who, in the last debate for the admission of South Dakota, stood here manfully championing the rights of that people—on many a field of battle in defense of our flag and to maintain and perpetuate the Union into which they have vainly sought to be admitted.

Is that people deficient in morality? Is that people deficient in anything, Mr. President, which goes to make up the high quality of statehood? If it is so claimed, I invite the Senator from South Carolina or some other Senator opposed to this bill to indicate in what the deficiency consists.

Is the constitution republican in form? Indisputably so. Why, Mr. President, the objections made to the admission of the State of South Dakota if uttered anywhere else than in the Senate of the United States, or by men less eminent and distinguished than those who utter them here, would be properly termed pretexts rather than reasons.

Suppose the Territory of North Dakota were blotted out, and South Dakota, with its proposed limits, were the Territory of Dakota and the people of that Territory were here asking for admission into the Union, what could be justly said in opposition? Suppose North Dakota were the Territory of Dakota and the people of North Dakota, as they will be should South Dakota be admitted as a State, were here asking for admission, what could be fairly said against it? I deny that any one could successfully impeach her qualifications for admission into the sisterhood of States.

What, then, are the objections?

It has been insisted that the petition for admission of South Dakota should be denied because she comes without an enabling act. Is an enabling act essential then? I ask the Senators from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] and Indiana [Mr. TURPIE] where they find authority for the proposition that under the Constitution an enabling act is necessary as a precedent condition to the admission of a new State into the Union? Such a prerequisite is not found in the Constitution. It provides that: "New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union." Here there is conferred upon Congress full power, and, if it pleases our friends who are opposed to the admission of South Dakota, I admit, full discretion in the premises. But where is to be found a restriction upon this power? Who can spell out from these words a requirement that there shall be an enabling act?

I need not call attention again to the fact, but I will, that of the twenty-five States added to the original thirteen, Vermont, Kentucky, Tennessee, Maine, Michigan, Arkansas, Florida and Iowa have been admitted by Congress in the exercise of this unrestricted power without any precedent enabling act. Oregon and California are to be added to the list, as my friend from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS] kindly suggests to me. When before has precedent gone for so little? When before in the history of this country has the demand of a free people possessing every element of statehood been denied upon any ground? Congress has admitted State after State without an enabling act, and why must South Dakota await an enabling act?

Mr. PLATT. Congress never turned away a State for that reason.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator from Connecticut truly says that Congress has never turned away in all the history of this Government a State otherwise entitled simply because it had not an enabling act. Mr. President, how was Texas admitted into the Union? Texas had no enabling act. Texas had not even been a Territory of the United States, and yet she was admitted.

If the proposed State posesses the other requisites of statehood there is no merit, nothing other than form in the objection that there has been no enabling act. I assert, Mr. President, as has been repeatedly asserted before, that the people of South Dakota have an inherent right as a free people to meet in convention, to adopt a constitution, to propose a division of the Territory, and to come here asking to be admitted into the Union. Her attitude here is not different from this. It is one simply of petition. It is not claimed that anything done by the people of South Dakota has made her a State or been potential to change her boundaries.

The Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE] referred to this as a de facto State. No one in Dakota except a few men, so far as I know, has ever suggested that it was a de facto State. The people have understood that it was only tentative. Their proposition and prayer is that, having sufficient area, population, intelligence, loyalty, and all the elements of permanent prosperity and wealth, and having made a constitution republican in form, they be admitted into the Union as a State. Their petition is respectful and dignified.

But the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] seemed to be afraid that if this inherent power in the people should be recognized by the admission of South Dakota it would endanger the safety of this Government. He said it would be a "temptation to lawlessness," to violence, and by illustration he said, in substance: Suppose 200,000 socialists, and anarchists, and communists should get together out in the Territory of Washington and hold a convention and form a constitution and demand to be admitted into the Union. Suppose they did; how would it hurt anybody? When has petition endangered the safety of any interest in this country? Suppose they met in convention. The people have a right to. Suppose they adopted a constitution. The people have a right to. It rests only in proposition. Suppose they appointed a committee to bring here a petition asking that they be admitted into the Union; what of it? Would it injure anybody? Would it endanger seriously this country? Must they necessarily be admitted? Not at all.

Mr. BUTLER. If the Senator will pardon me for interrupting him, he has just struck the point exactly which I made in that part of my speech in reply to what I understood to be the proposition of the Senator from Connecticut, that where such a number of people met together and formed a constitution and had a sufficient area of territory, etc., they had the right to demand admission. It was that which I was combating, and I illustrated it by what the Senator has just stated.

Mr. SPOONER. The right to demand?

Mr. BUTLER. The right, and inherent right, to come in.

Mr. SPOONER. They have an inherent right to try to come in, just as some States of this Union claimed that they had an inherent right to go out and tried to get out. I do not admit, no man who favors the admission of South Dakota admits for a moment, that they have a right to force their way into the Union.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator says they have just as inherent a right to get in as certain States had an inherent right to get out. He must bear in mind that we did not get out.

Mr. SPOONER. I did not say that; I said they had as much an inherent right to try to get in as some States had an inherent right to try to get out.

Mr. BUTLER. Nobody has denied that proposition. I did not deny it at all.

Mr. SPOONER. I do not know, then, where the Senator and myself differ. I do not contend that they can force their way into the Union. I insist only this, that in the exercise of the right of petition they may come here and ask to be admitted.

Mr. BUTLER. Nobody has denied that.

Mr. SPOONER. If socialists, anarchists, and communists should come we would deny their petition. Even though they had area sufficient, and population sufficient, and wealth sufficient, and intelligence sufficient, we would deny their petition and turn them away because they are not attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. BUTLER. I agree with the Senator entirely. Therefore Congress would be exercising that discretion which I have been contending for and which the Senator admits.

Mr. SPOONER. I never have denied for a moment that Congress is to determine this matter. No one has denied it. How would a State get into the Union, how would Senators be entitled to walk into this door and vote without precedent action of Congress? No one contends that they could.

At the last Congress it was claimed as an argument against the admission of South Dakota that her people were in an attitude of defiance here. It is so suggested now. The Senator from South Carolina in his speech the other day read an item from some memorial protesting in strong language against the boundaries which those who oppose her statehood insist upon forcing upon her, and he cited that in support of the proposition that South Dakota is here in a condition of defiance. South Dakota is in no position of defiance. South Dakota formed her constitution. No one pretends that it has taken effect. South Dakota in the exercise of her inherent right and under the enabling act constituted by the ordinance of 1787 elected her officers. They have discharged no functions, nor was it intended that they should until the favorable action of Congress. I wish to read one sentence from their memorial. They say:

> The people of that part of Dakota south of the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude, having adopted a constitution republican in form, and taken the necessary preliminary measures toward organizing a State government, now, through their properly constituted agents, present such constitution to the President and Congress of the United States, and, confidently relying upon the rights which pertain to American citizens like circumstanced, respectfully but earnestly pray to be admitted as a State into the Union of States.

What self-respecting people could come in other attitude than that to ask admission? It was assumed over and over again in the last Congress that their State officers proposed to exercise their functions independent of action by Congress. The constitution itself provides the contrary, as follows:

> SEC. 32. Nothing in this constitution or schedule contained shall be construed to authorize the Legislature to exercise any powers except such as are necessary to its organization, to elect United States Senators, to provide and pass means and measures necessary, preliminary, and incident to admission to the Union, and to assemble and reassemble and adjourn from time to time; neither to authorize any officer of the executive or administrative departments to exercise any powers of his office except such as may be preliminary and incident to admission to the Union; nor to authorize any officer of the judiciary department to exercise any of the duties of his office until the State of Dakota shall have been regularly admitted into the Union, except such as may be authorized by the Congress of the United States.

The Territorial government has gone right along in Dakota since the adoption of this constitution, and since the election of those officers. No one has interfered with it or proposed to; and the President of the United States has kept right along, in violation of the pledge made by the platform upon which he was nominated and elected, appointing non-residents of that Territory to rule over that people.

It is objected that the Territory has not been divided; that no power but Congress can divide it, and that these people are in a revolutionary position in attempting to divide the Territory and to fix the boundaries of a State.

The complete answer to this is that they have attempted no such thing. They only propose to Congress that the Territory be divided, and that the boundaries which they recommend be accepted. They do not assume that this is binding upon Congress. The present bill does not recognize it as binding, for it changes the boundaries. This is not the first attempt of people to propose boundaries. It has been done repeatedly, and the boundaries proposed have more than once become the boundaries of States.

But the Senator from South Carolina made a point which I thought at the time had some little force in it as an objection to this bill. He called attention to the fact that the present constitution was adopted by comparatively a small vote of the people having a right to vote who lived within the boundaries of South Dakota, and he asked, "Is it fair to impose upon that people by the passage of this bill a constitution for which so few of them voted; a constitution two and a half years old?" The Senator from South Carolina forgot, or if he did not forget it he did not care about it (for precedents seem to be entitled to no weight upon this question of the admission of South Dakota), that the constitution of Florida when she was admitted into the Union was six years old. Moreover, the Senator ought to have remembered that his objection was without strength, for the reason that the people of Dakota would have a right at will to amend this constitution.

But an absolute answer to the point which the Senator made is the fact, and it escaped his observation strangely, that in this very bill which Congress is asked to enact into a law it is declared that this constitution shall be resubmitted to a vote of the people, and if a majority of the legal voters do not adopt it, that this act shall be null and void, and if this act shall be thus rendered null and void, and Dakota be kept longer out of the Union, I suppose it would bring great grief to the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. President, a great point is made, and it is made by the Senator from South Carolina the pivotal point on which his argument turns upon the question of dividing this Territory. He said almost at the outset of his speech that it resolved itself into a question whether the Territory of Dakota should or should not be divided.

First, on the question of division I desire to say that I deny the right of the people of a Territory to demand that it shall be left absolutely to them to decide for the Congress of the United States whether that Territory shall be divided or how it shall be divided, although Congress would doubtless generally consult them. But in the case of South Dakota, the very act—and I refer to it to make special use of it—under which the Territory of Dakota was organized contains a provision that nothing therein shall be construed to inhibit the Congress of the United States from dividing the Territory into two or more whenever, in the judgment of Congress, the interests of the people of the United States should demand it. That reservation of power was not necessary in that act. Why? Because the Congress under the Constitution retains the power to be exercised when it chooses to divide a Territory. Why was this unnecessary provision incorporated in the act? It was manifestly because it was feared that unless it were put there the people of Dakota might claim a vested right to determine as to the division of that Territory, that they might claim they had been warranted by the terms of the organic act in believing that the power was vested in them or that it constituted an agreement not to divide. It was put there as a legislative notice to the people of South Dakota that, come what would, they should have no right to determine the question as to the division of that Territory except Congress should choose to permit them so to do.

In this connection I desire to read from the very able report made by the Senator from Connecticut, representing the majority of the Committee on Territories, to show that in Dakota they have legislated constantly in recognition of this right reserved by Congress to divide the Territory, and evidently in contemplation that the power might be exercised. Allow me to call attention to this legislation, for it is exceedingly significent.

By act of February 22, 1879, an insane asylum was located at Yankton, in South Dakota, for which bonds have been issued to the amount of $215,900.

By act of March 9, 1883, the North Dakota hospital for the insane was located at Jamestown, in North Dakota, for which bonds have been issued to the amount of $168,000.

By act of February 17, 1881, a penitentiary was located at Sioux Falls, in South Dakota, for which bonds have been issued to the amount of $94,000.

By act of February 27, 1883, a penitentiary was located at Bismarck, in North Dakota, for which bonds have been issued to the amount of $41,000.

By act of February 3, 1883, the University of Dakota was located at Vermillion, in South Dakota, and bonds to build the same were authorized to the amount of $85,000.

By act of February 27, 1883, the University of North Dakota was located at Grand Forks, in North Dakota, and bonds for the same have since been issued to the amount of $74,000.

By act of February 21, 1881, an agricultural college was established at Brookings, in South Dakota, for which bonds have been issued to the amount of $100,000.

By act of February 23, 1883—

Coming from the beginning down almost to date—

an agricultural college was located at Fargo, in North Dakota, but the buildings have not yet been constructed.

By act of March 5, 1881, a normal school was located at Madison, in South Dakota, and bonds have been issued therefor to the amount of $55,600.

By act of March 9, 1883, a normal school was authorized at Larimore, in North Dakota, the buildings for which are yet to be constructed.

In all these acts authorizing the issuing of bonds for the erection of permanent structures for public institutions in North Dakota and in South Dakota it is provided that in the event of a division of the Territory the Territory of North Dakota shall be liable for the bonds issued for buildings which shall be in North Dakota, and that the Territory of South Dakota shall be liable for the bonds issued for the erection of buildings which shall be in South Dakota.

Mr. BUTLER. Would it disturb the Senator if I should ask him if he is reading from an act of Congress? I did not catch what he is reading from.

Mr. SPOONER. I am reading from ten or a dozen acts of the Territorial Legislature of Dakota and attempting to establish that from the beginning the Legislature of the Territory of Dakota has legislated and provided for improvements permanent in their nature, with reference to the division of this Territory as proposed by this bill.

But if it be admitted that the people of the Territory of Dakota have a right to determine for themselves whether the Territory shall be divided, and if so how it shall be divided, Senators opposed to this measure insist strenuously that there has been no sufficient expression of the popular will in Dakota upon that subject.

I assert the contrary, and I am quite willing, so far as I am concerned, to rest the claim of South Dakota to statehood upon the correctness of my assertion. I do not intend to read the various memorials passed by the Legislature of Dakota petitioning Congress for a division. They have been read to the Senate by the Senator from Illinois, and they are conclusive so far as a legislative expression is entitled to weight. Nor do I intend to call attention, save by mere mention, to the election held for delegates to a constitutional convention. I am prepared to lay all these evidences of the popular will aside, and to rest the case on the vote taken on the subject in 1887. The Democratic convention of the Territory of Dakota in 1887 passed a resolution, as I recollect it, requesting the Legislature to enact a law providing for the submission to the people of the whole Territory of the question of division. The Legislature enacted the law, and provided that the election should be held on the 8th day of November, 1887. It was held on that day. About 67,000 voters in the Territory of Dakota voted on that day upon that question, and of the total vote about 5,000 or thereabouts were found to be in favor of dividing the Territory substantially as proposed by the pending bill.

By what process of reasoning does the distinguished Senator from South Carolina attempt to convince himself or any one else that this was not a fair expression of sentiment upon the part of the people of Dakota? Tested by every test which we at the North apply to elections, that was as fair an election as ever was held. It was ordered by law, it was regularly notified to the people, it was held by officers of the law, such duty being imposed upon them. Every man within the limits of Dakota who had a right to vote could go to the polls and vote, and presumably every man in the Territory of Dakota having a right to vote who wanted to vote did go to the polls and vote.

How is the fairness of that election to be successfully attacked? How is its conclusiveness as an expression of the popular will to be impeached? There was no fraud or corruption there. There were no tissue ballots used in that election to defeat the will of that people. There were no organized raids upon the ballot-box in that Territory. The election was free and open as the air, and as the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT] suggests, every vote which was cast was counted as it was cast, and I add, it was returned as it was counted.

I repeat, that tested by the tests which we at the North apply to elections there is no tribunal in this country that would impeach or discredit for one moment the election held in Dakota in 1887 as a fair, just, and intelligent expression of the wishes of that people on the question of division.

But my friend from South Carolina analyzes the vote, and he concludes upon that analysis, what? He makes this proposition, as I recollect his speech, that from his computation and his analysis it appears that 30,000 voters in that Territory either were opposed to the division of the Territory or were indifferent upon the question and staid away from the polls. Up in the North, I beg to inform the Senator from South Carolina, we do not count the men who are indifferent and who do not care to go to the polls. A man who has a right to vote, who knows that if he votes his vote will be counted and that it will be returned, who does not care enough about the question involved to go to the polls and express his wish in the lawful way, is estopped from asserting politically afterwards, either in mass convention or by letter to members of Congress, that he was opposed to the result at that election.

I want to say to the Senator from South Carolina that whether the absence of voters from the polls affects the fairness of the election depends upon the causes of that absence. If they stay away from the polls because, having full right, they do not care to participate, the election, notwithstanding, must be considered a fair one. If they stay away from the polls because a system has been adopted by which the ballot-boxes and the ballots are so multiplied that an unlettered man, no matter how clear his choice may be, and how sincerely attached to this Government he may be, can not expect to vote and have his vote deposited in the proper box, it does affect the fairness of the election. If he is led to remain away from the ballot-box on election day because he does not dare to go there, because he has been taught to fear that an exercise of the rights of an American citizen will put his life in jeopardy, it does impeach the fairness of the election.

Ah, Mr. President, where large numbers of voters remain absent from the polls not because of indifference, but because they shudderingly recall outrages perpetrated and tolerated by the intelligent men of whole communities and whole States year after year through ku-klux clubs, night-riders, tissue ballots, bloodshed, intimidation, and fraud; if they remain away because there is ever present with them the remembrance of burning shanties, of colored Republicans driven to the swamps, lashed, exiled, pursued, hunted down in order to extinguish in them a desire to vote or to implant in their breasts a permanent fear equivalent, and intended to be equivalent, to disfranchisement; if they remain absent from the polls because there is always before their eyes at every polling place, in front of every ballot-box, the bleeding form of Print Matthews falling within sight of his own home, shot dead pursuant to an organized conspiracy on election day, with his uncast ballot in his hand; if they remain away from the ballot-box because of the horrid memories of Yazoo, of Coushatta, of Copiah, then Mr. President, their absence from the polls does affect the fairness of the election, and does impeach it as an honest expression of the popular will.

We do not impeach the fairness of elections in some of the Southern States simply because of the small vote cast, simply because men who did not care to vote staid of their own free will away from the polls; but we impeach the fairness of those elections because of the causes which keep men from the polls and bring about a minority rule; a condition by which the State of Georgia has ten Representatives in the Congress of the United States elected by an aggregate vote of only about 26,000, which is less than the vote cast in any of the nine Congressional districts in the great State of Wisconsin.

But, Mr. President, none of these elements of outrage, intimidation, or fraud were present to discredit the result in Dakota on the 7th day of November, 1887. The election, I repeat, was fair, orderly, and peaceable, and a majority of all the voters of that Territory attended and cast their votes, who cared to vote, and upon that election a majority was canvassed and counted in favor of dividing Dakota.

But, Mr. President, what party necessity is it that in the face of a popular expression like this leads Democratic Senators solidly almost to bar the pathway of South Dakota into the Union upon the alleged ground that there has been no fair expression of the people of that Territory in favor of division? The contention is an idle one, and the great people of the United States will not fail to understand it. Their sober judgment will sift the wheat from the chaff in all this opposition, and their verdict will be one of condemnation.

Mr. Lincoln once said, and I commend it to our Democratic friends:

A political party may deceive part of the people all of the time and all of the people part of the time; but no party can deceive all of the people all of the time.

Mr. President, some one said the other day in the debate that the de jure expression of the people of Dakota upon this subject was made after this election. Within a few days ensuing the election a convention was held at Aberdeen, upon the voice of which the Senator from South Carolina, as I understand him, and the Senator from Indiana, base their claim that the people of Dakota are opposed to the division of the Territory. To place the action of that convention at Aberdeen against the election held under the forms of law in November as a fair expression of the people of Dakota seems to me to be a travesty on fair judgment, and nothing else. How were the delegates to that convention elected? The Senator from South Carolina and other Senators here know how easy it is to secure the election of a few delegates to a convention; almost as easy as it is to get a petition signed. Men uniformly sign petitions without knowing what they are, and a few men often meet in caucus and send delegates to a convention.

We have no data upon which to determine with any degree of accuracy, even if it were important to determine it, how many participated in the various counties in the election of delegates to the Aberdeen convention. One thing I think we do know fairly enough, and that is that it was a convention to be distinguished in the history of conventions for the number of delegates elected to it who personally were not present at it.

I hold in my hand a statement upon the subject, which is signed by the author, and which I am informed is quite accurate, to which I ask the attention of the Senate:

Number of delegates covered by the call	909
Number actually present	180
Not present	729
Number represented on a test vote	679
Of which the "proxies" numbered	499
Not present in person or by proxy	230

And the voice of this famous convention is to control the destiny of South Dakota! This correspondent asserts that in the proceedings of that convention seven men cast 192 votes, as follows:

A. W. Edwards, of the Fargo Argus, 55 votes—and I doubt not they were unanimous against division. F. M. Burdick, capital commission councilman, cast 30 votes, of course against division. Dr. Alloway, Territorial veterinary surgeon, cast 41 votes, unquestionably unanimous against division. Bud Reeves cast 17 votes, a united voice against division. F. A. Wilson, assistant Territorial superintendent, cast 23 votes against division. M. H. Jewell, auditor, 11 votes against division. Colonel Gale, asylum director, 15 votes against division.

And the action of this convention is set by the opponents of South Dakota against the majority of 5,000 out of 67,000 of the voters of that Territory who, not by proxy, but in their own proper persons, deposited their ballots upon that subject upon election day.

It has been argued that the Territory should be admitted as a whole because it has not been customary in the action of Congress to erect a State except with boundaries coterminous with the Territory. I shall spend no time, Mr. President, upon this suggestion for the reason that it is not founded as I understand it in fact. When Kansas was made a State, 300 miles of the Territory of Kansas extending to the Rocky Mountains were cut off and excluded from the boundaries of the State of Kansas. It now forms the eastern half of Colorado. The boundaries of neither Iowa, Minnesota, nor Wisconsin are coterminous with the Territorial boundaries out of which they were created. Out of this great territory Wisconsin was carved and Iowa as a Territory took the remainder. Out of that Iowa as a State was carved, and Minnesota as a Territory took the remainder. Out of that Minnesota as a State was carved, leaving the Territory of Dakota as now bounded.

The Senator from Indiana argued very strenuously the other day against division. He said substantially let us take Dakota in as a whole. South Dakota has 77,000 square miles of area; all of Dakota has more. South Dakota has 360,000 population, all of Dakota has more. Therefore let us admit Dakota as a whole. This evidently was not the view of those who have preceded us in the legislation of this country. That argument would have led to the admission of the entire Territory of the northwest as one State, and would justify the adding of Montana, Washington, and Dakota Territory and admitting them all as one State.

But the Senator from Indiana argued with pathetic eloquence in favor of admitting the Territory of Dakota as a whole also upon the ground that to divide it as proposed by this bill would sunder the ties which have been formed between the people of North Dakota and the people of South Dakota. "Blest be the tie that binds." The argument was exceedingly touching as the Senator's speech was exceedingly eloquent, and while I can not impeach, and would not if I could, the sincerity of the Senator's position, I think I am quite able to impeach his consistency in taking it. He will not submit to a division of the Territory of Dakota, thereby ruthlessly sundering the ties existing between the people of North and South Dakota, and yet a bill is on the table of the Senate reported by the Committee on Territories at this very session of Congress with a minority report, not signed by the Senator from Indiana, a member of that committee, and not signed by the Senator from South Carolina, also a member, but signed only by the Senator from Illinois [Mr. CULLOM], the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON], and one other, which it is proposed to enact into law admitting the Territory of Washington into the Union, and, in order to make it large enough, dismembering the Territory of Idaho by taking therefrom 24,000 square miles, an area larger than the State of West Virginia, and larger than Maryland, Vermont, and Rhode Island put together.

Why are not the ties that bind the people of the Panhandle of Idaho to the people who live in the remainder of that Territory as sacred to the Senator from Indiana as those which bind together the people of North and South Dakota? Are the people of Idaho permitted to vote on the question of dismemberment of their Territory and the departure of eighteen thousand of their inhabitants? Not at all. That bill which the Senators join in the majority report favoring, provides, not that the people of Idaho shall have a voice in determining whether these tender ties shall be sundered or not, but that the area and the people shall be taken without consulting them, provided only the eighteen thousand who are to be taken consent; and where does that leave Senators who support that proposition? They are willing to leave it to a vote of the people in the Panhandle of Idaho whether they shall be severed from that Territory or not without consulting the people of the remainder of the Territory, but they are not willing to leave it to the three hundred and sixty thousand people in South Dakota to determine whether they will come into the Union as a State with the boundaries which they have proposed.

But, Mr. President, that is not all. At the last session of Congress there passed this body a bill which further illustrates the inconsistency of Senators on the other side of this Chamber who are opposed to the admission of South Dakota. A bill was passed through the Senate, without a single dissenting vote, providing for an enabling act for Washington Territory, taking off the Panhandle of Idaho and its inhabitants, without submitting to a vote of any of the people of Idaho the question whether that Territory should be dismembered or not, and that, too, notwithstanding the fact that the population of Idaho is small and that her dismemberment would defer necessarily for a long period a condition of statehood.

Why is it that Democratic Senators are willing to vote for a bill giving to Washington Territory an enabling act at all; authorizing that Territory to come into the sisterhood of States, and yet vote here solidly session after session against the admission of South Dakota?

Mr. BUTLER. Will the Senator allow me to answer that?

Mr. SPOONER. Certainly.

Mr. BUTLER. I think it is due to truth and fairness that I should do so. Of course I do not mean to say that the Senator is suppressing the truth; he is evidently doing so, but I think not intentionally. I think it is due to fairness to state, and I think the chairman of the committee should state to the Senate, that that bill was adopted at the last Congress because there was not a syllable or a word of protest by way of anybody from Idaho against it; but the moment that protests came at this session the matter was discussed and decided upon as he states. I think it is fair to have that stated in this connection.

Mr. SPOONER. I am glad to have that statement made, if it is true.

Mr. PLATT. I can hardly say that there was no protest. I would say, however, that we reported that bill and passed it because we did not believe that there was any considerable objection to it in that part of the Territory.

Mr. BUTLER. If there was any objection it escaped me. I never heard a word of protest against it.

Mr. SPOONER. But that does not change the force of my argument, if there is force in it. I said that at this session even the Senator from South Carolina and the Senator from Indiana are willing to dismember the Territory of Idaho, leaving it only to a vote of the 18,000 people who live in that portion which is to be taken off, and yet they are not willing to leave it to a vote of the 360,000 people of South Dakota whether they shall come into the Union apart from North Dakota or not.

Why is it that the Senator from South Carolina at the last session and doubtless at this session is willing to vote for the admission of Washington Territory and not for the admission of South Dakota? Wherein is Washington Territory stronger in the elements of statehood than South Dakota? She has not the wealth; she has not the school system; she has not the population; she has not, I believe, the arable acreage; she has not any element of statehood to the extent possessed by South Dakota. Why is it, then, that Senators on the other side so persistently favor making a State of Washington Territory and so persistently oppose making a State of South Dakota? I think the reason is to be found in the fact that South Dakota elected two Republican Senators to come into this Chamber and that Washington Territory has been represented in the other House for four years by a Democratic Delegate. It may not be that, but if it be not that I fancy it will puzzle Senators to explain how they can think Washington Territory entitled to statehood and South Dakota to vassalage.

Why must we have Dakota as one State? The Senator from South Carolina says it would be an "empire" State. We call New York an empire State. The people of the United States have become accustomed to look upon New York as the essence of an empire in area, wealth, intelligence, and all that goes to make power in a commonwealth. The people of the United States look also upon Pennsylvania as an empire State, upon Illinois as an empire State. Why is not South Dakota, larger in area, fairly to be considered, if admitted, sufficiently an "empire" State?

Senators talk about there being no danger in empire States. The greatest "empire" State in the Union, so far as territory is concerned, is the State of Texas, and I undertake to say in this presence to-day that the State of Texas does menace by her monstrous territory the interests of sections of this country.

The great empire State of Texas furnishes in the other House the chairman of the Judiciary Committee. The great empire State of Texas furnishes in the other House the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, a position second only in power and influence to that of the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the chairmanship of a committee which deals with the dearest interests of New England, of New York, of Pennsylvania, of all this country, next to personal liberty itself. The empire State of Texas does more than that. She furnishes the chairman of the Committee on Claims in the House of Representatives.

The great State of New York has no voice upon the Committee on Ways and Means. Why this remarkable preponderance of political influence from the "empire" State of Texas as against other "empire" States of this Union? I do not intend to reflect upon the "empire" State of Texas when I say that this preponderance is not due to her wealth or to the loyalty or intelligence of her people. It is due to two things, her solid Democracy, and her everlasting territory.

I believe that we want no more such "empire" States in the Union. The people of the great Northwest, of the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan, and Illinois have a peculiar interest, which should be heeded, as to the area of the States which are to be erected out of the remaining territory of this Union. Although all members of one governmental family, attached to the Constitution and the Union, loyally loving and ready to defend our flag, recognizing the fact that generally the prosperity of one section is the prosperity of all sections, save when the prosperity of one is gained at the expense of another, Senators should not forget that this common bond and general fealty do not require or bring about a necessary or natural oneness of industrial interests. The great agricultural States to which I have alluded, and the great States, agricultural and mineral, yet to come in to the northward and westward, will inevitably have a set of industrial interests of their own, peculiar somewhat to that region.

Their interests may not at all times be identical in all respects with the interests of manufacturing New England or of the central or southern section of the country. I submit it is but just, keeping in view the fact that in the erection of States we legislate not for the present but for all time to come; that the States yet to be born are to come from territory of resources illimitable, certain of speedy development; that their population, to be recruited from the older States and from the whole world beside, will rapidly grow to millions, that some reference should be had, in defining the boundaries and establishing the area of the new States, to the average size of the States hitherto admitted, and to affording fair representation in the Senate and in the House for the protection of the industrial interests of the newer portions of the Union. It is not fair, regard being had to the area of the States East and South, that another State like Texas should be carved out of the great Northwest.

But, Mr. President, a word further and I have done. This remarkable obstruction to South Dakota, this willingness to pass a bill enabling one Territory to come into the Union, this refusal to pass a bill enabling another more entitled to statehood to come into the Union, must have some foundation. What is it? I think it is not difficult to discover it. Here in the Senate the proposition of the majority to admit the State of South Dakota and to give an enabling act to the Territory of North Dakota is antagonized by a proposition to admit the Territory as a whole. But it does not follow from that that the Democratic party in control of this Congress proposes to admit even the Territory of Dakota as a whole. I think the evidence is abundant, so plain that no man can gainsay it, that it is resolved that Dakota, as a whole, shall not come into the Union except upon conditions unreasonable and founded only in partisan policy.

I have on my table a report made by the majority of the Committee on Territories in the House of Representatives in support of a remarkable bill, properly called an omnibus bill, a report and a bill, which it is due to the people of the United States should find some place in the discussion of South Dakota's right to statehood. It is a bill giving an enabling act to the Territory of Dakota as a whole. What else? The same bill gives an enabling act to the Territory of Washington; and what else? The same bill gives an enabling act to the Territory of Montana; and what else? The same bill gives, mirabile dictu, an enabling act to New Mexico. What means this?

I have on my table also evidence that this proposition, which is to antagonize this bill in the other House when it passes the Senate, as it will, meets with more than the concurrence of the majority of the Committee on Territories in that body. I find by the newspapers that there was a secret caucus, and therefore I feel entitled to assume that its proceedings have been reported with absolute accuracy.

I read from the Sunday morning Post:

The Democratic caucus held in the Hall of the House of Representatives last night lasted over three hours. About 130 Democrats attended, which was a pretty full attendance.

There had been a couple of all-night sessions, I believe, two nights previous to the caucus, which may explain the small attendance, or, perhaps some Democrats may have staid away because they were "indifferent," but as they might have attended it does not affect the conclusiveness of the result.

The business was to settle a party policy with regard to the admission of Territories to statehood.

The business was to settle a party policy with regard to the admission of Territories to statehood.

Mr. SPRINGER, as chairman of the Committee on Territories—

The same Mr. Springer who sent the pronunciamento to the Aberdeen convention to help the free people of Dakota to form and express their opinion upon the question of division—

Mr. SPRINGER, as chairman of the Committee on Territories, expounded the merits of the bill already reported to the House by his committee. This bill, called the omnibus bill, aims at the admission of Dakota, Montana, Washington, and New Mexico; and the caucus finally agreed to stand by the policy of that bill.

Here is the resolution:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the caucus that an enabling act for the Territories of Dakota, Montana, Washington, and New Mexico should be passed at this session, providing for constitutional conventions in each Territory, and the submission of those constitutions for ratification at an election in November, 1888, substantially as provided for in the bill reported by the Committee on Territories at this session.

Thus it is seen that it is not a party policy to admit even the great Territory of Dakota alone. There must come with her, and in the same bill, the Territory of Montana. But that might be Republican. There must come with her, and in the same bill, the Territory of Washington, which is safely enough Democratic from all external appearances. And there must come with her, and in the same bill, the Territory of New Mexico. The purpose and partisanship of it all is rendered concrete by a comparison of the title of New Mexico to statehood with the title of North and South Dakota to statehood. I read an extract from the able report of the minority of the House Committee on Territories:

Can it be said that Dakota, both North and South, are not strong enough to stand alone, that New Mexico is, and that Dakota shall neither be divided nor admitted without New Mexico and two other Territories are made States? Is it justice to insist on such conditions when Dakota has 600,000 people, nearly all Americans of intelligence and thrift, and New Mexico with less than 150,000, over two-thirds of whom are Mexicans and many ignorant and thriftless, about 9,000 Indians, and the remainder Americans and foreigners; when Dakota has 70,000 farms and New Mexico less than 10,000; when Dakota has only 46,000 acres of untillable land and New Mexico 74,000,000 acres; when Dakota in 1887 produced 60,000,000 bushels of wheat and New Mexico less than 1,000,000 bushels, Dakota 40,000,000 bushels oats, and New Mexico less than half a million, Dakota 24,000,000 bushels corn, New Mexico less than 1,000,000 bushels; when of 99,849 children in Dakota over ten years old in 1880 only 3,094 could neither read nor write, and of 87,849 children of same ages and in same year in New Mexico 52,994 could neither read nor write; when Dakota has 4,000 school-houses and New Mexico but few, none being reported in last report of the Bureau of Education; when Dakota has 5,000 school-teachers and New Mexico 164; when Dakota has 328 periodicals published within her borders and New Mexico but 30; Dakota with 1,032 post-offices on June 30, 1887, and New Mexico but 215; increase of post-offices in Dakota in the year ended June 30, 1887, 39, in New Mexico 4; when Dakota has thousands of church buildings, fine capitol, 2 penitentiaries, 2 universities, 2 insane asylums, and 1 agricultural college, and New Mexico but few church buildings worthy of note, a moderate capitol and penitentiary building, but not one other public institution of charity or learning?

The committee might have gone further than that. They might have shown what the fact is, as I understand it, that quite 100,000 of that population belong to a different race than the Anglo-Saxon, speak a different language, have a different civilization. The comparative unfitness of New Mexico for statehood is emphasized by a fact which will be apparent to the Senate when I ask your attention to the fact that in 1885 the Legislature of New Mexico adopted a revised statutes, which I hold in my hand, and from one lid to the other one page is in the English and the other is in the Spanish language. The population is such that it was not deemed just to subject so large a population to the operation of laws unless they were printed in a foreign language which they could understand; and yet that Territory is proposed to be admitted into the Union, not alongside of South Dakota, not alongside of North Dakota, but alongside of the whole great Territory of Dakota, and in the same bill, for obvious reasons. I do not feel warranted in challenging the evident judgment of the Democracy that the population of New Mexico would be certainly Democratic.

Another thing is entitled to mention which makes all this more remarkable. The chairman of the Committee on Territories in the House of Representatives states in his report in favor of the admission of the Territory of New Mexico that her people have not asked authoritatively for admission since the Forty-fourth Congress. I ask again what is the meaning of all this? It is not inexplicable.

In the old days when slavery existed in this country, when it was a bone of contention, and there was a struggle for political power between the forces of slavery and the forces of freedom, it came about, not unnaturally, that a slave State must be brought into the Union alongside of a free State. The Senators from no State pledged to freedom could walk into this Chamber unless there came by their side or ahead of them Senators pledged to the extension of African slavery. Slavery is dead.

The first gun fired by South Carolina upon the flag of the United States gave slavery its death wound, but the relative position of political parties to-day in this country is not changed with the disappearance of that institution. It seems that to-day as in ante-bellum days the exigency of Democracy, solid at the South and complaisant at the North, demands that no Territory which will be Republican in its politics, which will send Republican Senators into this Chamber, shall be permitted to come into the Union unless alongside of it is admitted, regardless of its possessing elements of statehood, a Territory which shall be surely Democratic, so that the one may counterbalance the other. The power of the solid South in the electoral college, secured and kept by means suggested, is from this time forth to be maintained at all hazards.

Mr. President, I firmly believe that South Dakota will not be admitted by this Congress into the Union. I do not think it is the plan to open the door of the Union and invite her to sit at the table with the rest of the sisterhood. I believe the people will not fail to understand why it is that this political outrage is longer perpetrated upon that free, enlightened, brave people.

But if I could reach with my utterance the people of South Dakota I would pray them to be patient. I would say to them, "wait; 'patience is powerful.' Your cause is a just one. Refinements and pretexts may delay you but can not defeat you." I would ask them to stand by their guns; not to surrender; not to be cajoled or frightened under the threatened penalty of being kept in Territorial weakness and degradation, to abandon their right and claim to statehood and to follow the lead of the Aberdeen convention; because, sir, I believe that as sure as to-morrow is to follow to-day, the people of the United States will soon take a deep interest in this question. They are slow to anger, but a wrong upon a people is sure to arouse them, and I think we may safely prophesy to the people of South Dakota that before long, independent of what is done to-day, there will be elected a Congress which will recognize their rights and gladly welcome the proposed new State into the Union of States.

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President, I have listened, in common I believe with the whole Senate, with delight to the very able, eloquent, and original speech of the honorable Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER]. It is unnecessary to say that I agree with the conclusions which he has stated and with the whole of his argument; but I was especially interested in his demonstration of the proposition that the good faith of the United States had been in the most solemn manner pledged to the people who are interested in the admission of South Dakota. But the Senator used one illustration, which I think ought not to pass without a suggestion of a caveat or disclaimer from some Northern Senator.

The Senator illustrated his argument by supposing the case of Texas having divided herself into one or more States, not exceeding five, and those States being presented for admission to the Union; as I understood my honorable friend, he thought that the same obligation of good faith, which, as he believes and as I believe, rests upon Congress in dealing with the proposition of the people of South Dakota would rest upon us without an exception in dealing with such a proposition from the State of Texas.

Mr. President, I am aware that such an opinion exists, that it exists in all parts of the country to some extent, but I think I ought to say before the Senator's speech passes into history that there are many persons who do not take the view, as to the existing obligation growing out of the joint resolution for the admission of Texas to the Union, which is suggested by the honorable Senator in his very admirable illustration.

Mr. SPOONER. I ask the Senator from Massachusetts if he knows of any who are now opposing the admission of South Dakota who disagree with my position?

Mr. HOAR. I do not. As I understand it, the language, in the first place, of the enabling act of the State of Texas, if it may be so called, is very different from the language of the treaty with regard to the Louisiana territory or the language of the ordinance of 1787 and the legislation which has been based upon that. The treaty with France of 1803, for instance, for the acquisition of Louisiana, is this:

> The inhabitants of the ceded territory shall be incorporated in the Union of the United States, and admitted as soon as possible, according to the principles of the Federal Constitution, to the enjoyment of all the rights, advantages, and immunities of citizens of the United States; and in the mean time they shall be maintained and protected in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property, and the religion which they profess.

The language in regard to the admission of Texas is this. I read from the third clause of the second section of the joint resolution:

> New States, of convenient size, not exceeding four in number in addition to said State of Texas, and having sufficient population, may hereafter, by the consent of said State, be formed out of the territory thereof, which shall be entitled to admission under the provisions of the Federal Constitution.

They "may" be formed——

Mr. SPOONER. And shall be admitted.

Mr. HOAR. The Senator will see the point; I am merely stating an existing theory which has many advocates, without indicating my own opinion.

> New States, of convenient size, not exceeding four in number in addition to said State of Texas, and having sufficient population, may hereafter, by the consent of said State, be formed out of the territory thereof, which shall be entitled to admission under the provisions of the Federal Constitution. And such States as may be formed out of that portion of said territory lying south of 36° 30′ north latitude, commonly known as the Missouri compromise line, shall be admitted into the Union with or without slavery, as the people of each State asking admission may desire. And in such State or States as shall be formed out of said territory north of said Missouri compromise line slavery or involuntary servitude, except for crime, shall be prohibited.

My honorable friend from Wisconsin will see the purpose which Congress had in mind. A portion of the territory of the State of Texas lay north of the Missouri compromise line, lay in that latitude which had been forever dedicated to freedom by the compromise of 1820. If Texas came in and remained as a whole, as a single State, and became filled with population, in the course of time we should have presented the singular anomaly of a State in the Union a portion of whose territory (then, however, the uninhabited portion) must, if the Missouri compromise remained in force, be forever free, and another portion of the same territory subject to slavery being established and maintained in it by the action of its own people. Therefore to meet that condition of things it was provided that there might be a proposition to divide Texas, which should come in the first place from Congress, at its discretion. The State of Texas might be divided, with the consent of the State, the proposition, the enabling act, the affirmative action, the original action, coming from the national authority, and of course to depend on its discretion of the public necessities, the condition being the assent of the State of Texas.

It seems to me that the argument which has carried conviction to so many minds is a very strong one, without expressing my own opinion upon it, that that was not intended as a compact with Texas to admit at her discretion and on her proposition, by the consent of Congress, new States, but was intended to reserve to Congress in future the discretion to make that proposition to Texas, the proposition which made to any other State in the Union, New York, or Ohio, or Wisconsin, would be regarded undoubtedly as a great piece of discourtesy and indignity to the State.

But, secondly, supposing that view to be wrong, the whole consideration and purpose and thought of that provision has been done away with by the abolition of slavery. When Texas, in the great war, went out of the Union and returned again, slavery being abolished, without any stipulation renewing the binding force of her original act of admission, I believe a very large number of the jurists, statesmen, and lawyers of the United States are of opinion that the obligation is gone, if it ever existed. Cessante causâ cessat et effectus.

Mr. President, what I have said does not in the least detract from the force of the argument of my honorable friend from Wisconsin; but it seemed to me that if this question shall ever arise for practical action anywhere, it ought not to be said that the view which my honorable friend has put merely as an illustration of his argument was announced by a Northern Senator without a suggestion being made at the time that it was not universally assented to by the Senators who listened.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President——

Mr. BUTLER. I take it for granted the Senator from Missouri does not desire to proceed this evening, and I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. PLATT. Will the Senator allow me one word before that motion is put?

Mr. BUTLER. Certainly.

Mr. PLATT. Of course I can hardly object at this juncture in the debate to a motion of that kind if the Senator from Missouri does not desire to proceed this afternoon; but at the same time I am very anxious to bring this debate to a close. Can we not have an understanding that we shall have a vote to-morrow?

Mr. BUTLER. I should not like to make such an agreement at present.

Mr. PLATT. Well, I make no objection to the motion to-day.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. I rise to ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of Order of Business 691, being the bill (S. 1592) to continue the publication of the Supplement to the Revised Statutes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator from South Carolina withdraw his motion to proceed to the consideration of executive business?

Mr. BUTLER. What is the proposition of the Senator from Iowa?

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. If this bill shall induce debate I shall withdraw the request. I am very anxious to have the bill acted upon in order that it may go to the other House in time to receive action there at this session.

Mr. BUTLER. Of course I withdraw for that purpose if the bill will not lead to debate.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. I think it will not lead to any debate.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVALS.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had on the 12th instant approved and signed the following acts:

An act (S. 550) granting a pension to William C. Wait;

An act (S. 733) granting a pension to Abbie S. Hutchinson; and

An act (S. 803) granting a pension to Delia M. Peck.

The message also announced that the President had on the 13th instant approved and signed the following acts:

An act (S. 854) granting a pension to Sarah E. Branson;

An act (S. 1784) granting a pension to Ida M. Welton;

An act (S. 1785) granting a pension to Stephen D. Redfield;

An act (S. 404) for the relief of Margaret S. Murray; and

An act (S. 815) granting a pension to Angerone P. Cole, mother of George H. Cole, private Company B, Fourth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteers.

PUBLICATION OF HISTORICAL MANUSCRIPTS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Pending the consideration of that motion of the Senator from Iowa, the Chair lays before the Senate a message from the President of the United States.

The message was read, as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith, and commend to your favorable consideration, a letter from the Secretary of State outlining a plan for publishing the important collections of historical manuscripts now deposited in the Department of State.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, April 12, 1888.

The message was referred to the Committee on the Library, and ordered to be printed.

VENEZUELAN SEIZURES OF AMERICAN STEAM-SHIPS.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate of the United States:

In response to the resolution of the Senate dated March 8, calling for the correspondence respecting the seizure of the American steam-ships Hero, San Fernando, and Nutrias, the property of the Venezuela Steam Transportation Company of New York, and the imprisonment of their officers by the authorities in Venezuela, I transmit herewith the report of the Secretary of State on the subject, together with accompanying documents.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, April 12, 1888.

HANNAH R. LANGDON—VETO MESSAGE.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read:

To the Senate:

I return herewith without approval Senate bill No. 549, entitled "An act granting a pension to Hannah R. Langdon."

The husband of the beneficiary named in this bill entered the military service of the United States as assistant surgeon in a Vermont regiment on the 7th day of October, 1862, and less than six months thereafter tendered his resignation, based upon a surgeon's certificate of disability on account of chronic hepatitis (inflammation of the liver) and diarrhea.

On the 12th day of June, 1880, more than seventeen years after his discharge, he filed a claim for pension, alleging chronic diarrhea and resulting piles. He was allowed a pension in January, 1881, and died of consumption on the 24th day of September in the same year.

Prior to the allowance of his claim for pension he wrote to the Bureau of Pensions a full history of his disability as resulting from chronic diarrhea and piles, and in that letter he made the following statement: "I have had no other disease, except last September (1880) I had pleurisy and congestion of my left lung." From other sources the bureau derived the information that the deceased had suffered an attack of pleuro-pneumonia on his left side, and that his recovery had been partial.

In December, 1880, he was examined by two members of the board of surgeons at Burlington, Vt., of which board he was also a member, and the following facts were certified:

"For the past fifteen years claimant has practiced his profession in this city, and has, up to within a year or a year and a half of this date, shown a vigor and power of endurance quite equal to the labor imposed upon him by the popular demand for his services. About a year ago he evinced symptoms of breaking down, cough, emaciation, and debility."

These results, "breaking down, cough, emaciation, and debility," are the natural effects of such an attack as the deceased himself reported, though not made by him any ground of a claim for pension, and it seems quite clear that his death in September, 1881, must be chargeable to the same cause.

His widow, the beneficiary named in this bill, filed her claim for pension December 5, 1881, based upon the ground that her husband's death from consumption was due to the chronic diarrhea for which he was pensioned. Upon such application the testimony of Dr. H. H. Atwater was filed to the effect that about 1879 he began to treat the deceased regularly for pleuro-pneumonia, followed by abscesses and degeneration of lung tissue, which finally resulted in death, and that these diseased conditions were complicated with digestive affections, such as diarrhea, dyspepsia, and indigestion. Another affidavit of Dr. Atwater, made in 1886, will be found in the report upon this bill made by the House Committee on Invalid Pensions.

The claimant's application for a pension was rejected by the Pension Bureau on the ground that the cause of her husband's death was not shown to have been connected in any degree with the disease on account of which he was pensioned, or with his military service.

I am entirely satisfied that this determination was correct.

I am constrained to disapprove the bill under consideration, because it is thus far our settled and avowed policy to grant pensions only to widows whose husbands have died from causes related to military service, and because the proposed legislation would in my opinion result in a discrimination in favor of this claimant unfair and unjust towards thousands of poor widows who are equally entitled to our sympathy and benevolence.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, April 16, 1888.

Mr. EDMUNDS. On the reference of that message I wish to say a word.

I am satisfied that the President of the United States has been greatly misled in the information upon which he has sent this message to the Senate. The gentleman who was the husband of this lady was personally known to me for thirty years or more, living in my town and village. He was a young doctor when the war broke out, and he went as other doctors did to do his duty for the side he was on, and confessedly he contracted in the service disease of chronic diarrhea, which hung on to him. He came back from the war, not having speculated in cotton or otherwise gained a great estate, to resume against his natural competitors in our little town his profession, on which alone, from day to day, he subsisted with his wife and children—I do not know how many he had—and being a proud, brave man, he did not apply to his country for a pension until a long time afterwards, because so long as he could step one foot before another he would not do it. Finally he was compelled to do it, and he got a pension on the ground that is stated there, of this chronic disease that confessedly he had contracted in the service; and anybody who knows anything in this world knows that that particular disease leads to a continual depression of the vital forces, and at last will produce some catastrophe; it may be a fever, it may be consumption, it may be one thing or another, but it is sure to come. It did come to him, so that he died instantly and immediately of a disease of the lungs which he never would have had in the world but for the fact that he had been run down to death's door by the disease contracted in the service.

I feel bound to say that it is a great injustice to my personal knowledge and I hope that the Committee on Pensions will examine into it, and if there is any way for the President to recall such a message, I should hope that he would do it; but if there is not, let the committee report to us what they find the truth to be. This is a very great injustice.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill, with the accompanying message, will be referred to the Committee on Pensions.

BETSEY MANSFIELD—VETO MESSAGE.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and referred to the Committee on Pensions, and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate:

I return herewith without approval Senate bill No. 809, entitled "An act granting a pension to Betsey Mansfield."

It is propsed to grant a pension to the beneficiary named in this bill as the mother of Franklin J. Mansfield, who enlisted as a private April 27, 1861, and died in camp of disease on the 14th day of November in the same year. His mother filed an application for pension in June, 1882.

The testimony filed in the Pension Bureau discloses the following facts:

At the time of the death of the soldier the family, beside himself, consisted of three persons—his father and mother and an unmarried sister. They owned and resided upon a homestead in Wisconsin comprising 293 acres, 20 of which were cleared, the balance being in timber, all unincumbered. The assessed valuation was $1,170, the real value being considerably more. The father was a farmer and blacksmith, healthy and able-bodied and furnishing a comfortable support; but shortly after the soldier's death he began to drink, and his health began to fail. Upon the marriage of the daughter he deeded her 50 acres of the land. He became indebted, and from time to time sold portions of his homestead to pay debts; but in 1882, at the time the mother's application for pension was filed, there still remained 110 acres of land, valued at about $3,300, 40 acres of which was mortgaged in 1880 for $600. Since 1879 the farm had been rented, except 8 or 10 acres reserved for a residence for the family. They owned two cows, and the rent averaged about $125 a year.

This was the condition of affairs as late as 1886, when the claim of the mother for a pension was, after investigation, rejected by the Pension Bureau, and it is supposed to be substantially the same now.

It also appears that a son, born since the soldier's death, and upwards of eighteen years of age, resides with his parents and furnishes them some assistance.

The claimant certainly was not dependent in the least degree upon the soldier at the time of his death, and she did not file her claim for pension until nearly twenty-one years thereafter.

Though the lack of dependence at the date of the soldier's death is sufficient to defeat a parent's claim for pension under our laws, I believe that in proper cases a relaxation of rules and a charitable liberality should be shown to parents old and in absolute need, through default of the help which, it may be presumed, a son would have furnished if his life had not been sacrificed in his country's service.

But it seems to me the case presented here can not be reached by any theory of pensions which has yet been suggested.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, April 16, 1888.

INDEX OF PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

Mr. DAWES submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Library.

Resolved, That the Librarian of the Senate prepare a consolidated index of the public documents of the Forty-seventh, Forty-eighth, and Forty-ninth Congresses for the use of the Senate.

FOURTH VIRGINIA COLLECTION DISTRICT.

Mr. VANCE. I enter a motion to reconsider the vote by which the Senate on Thursday last passed the bill (S. 2613) to amend an act approved June 15, 1882, changing the boundaries of the fourth collection district of Virginia. I ask that the motion be entered.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The motion to reconsider will be entered accompanied by a request to the House of Representatives to return the bill, it having been sent to the House.

SUPPLEMENT TO REVISED STATUTES.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa. I now renew my motion.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Iowa moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 1592.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 1592) to continue the publication of the Supplement to the Revised Statutes.

The bill was reported from the Committee on the Revision of the Laws with an amendment in section 2, line 19, to fill the blank with the words "five thousand dollars;" so as to read:

For preparing and editing said Supplement, including the legislation of the Fiftieth Congress, and the indexing and all clerical work necessary to fully complete the same, there shall be paid to said editor the sum of $5,000, which is hereby appropriated therefor out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be paid when the work is completed.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PLATT. I do not want to object to the passage of this bill, for I think it is very necessary that it should be passed for the convenience of people who have occasion to consult the statute-books of this nation; but I want to suggest that it seems to me we ought to have a thorough, full, complete, and accurate revision of the statutes, and I wish the Committee on the Revision of the Laws had gone even further than this. I trust they will take under consideration the question of a revision so that we can have all of our statutes in one book, and I will say more carefully arranged, indexed, and annotated than the present edition, which was last made in 1878, ten years ago.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LIGHTS AT CHARLOTTE HARBOR, FLORIDA.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. CALL. I ask the Senator from Vermont to allow me to have a bill taken up to which I am sure no one will object, for the establishment of a light at Charlotte Harbor, Florida. It is absolutely needed, and I am certain the bill will take no time.

Mr. EDMUNDS. If it does not require me to yield to anybody else, as we are obliged to have an executive session, I will yield to the Senator from Florida.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Vermont withdraws his motion, to enable the Senator from Florida to move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Order of Business 658, Senate bill 1431.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 1431) making an appropriation for the erection of a light-house at Boca Grande Pass, Charlotte Harbor, Florida.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments, in line 3, before the word "thousand," to strike out "fifty" and insert "thirty-five," and in line 5, after the words "for the," to strike out "erection of a light-house at Boca Grande Pass" and insert "establishment of a light or lights and other aids to navigation to guide into;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the sum of $35,000 be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the establishment of a light or lights and other aids to navigation to guide into Charlotte Harbor, Florida, the said amount to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The amendments were agreed to.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I assume that that bill is reported from the Committee on Commerce favorably.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It is reported favorably from the Committee on Commerce.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill making an appropriation for the establishment of a light or lights and other aids to navigation to guide into Charlotte Harbor, Florida."

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. CLARK, its Clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the enrolled bill (H. R. 9381) to facilitate the prosecution of works projected for the improvement of rivers and harbors.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. EDMUNDS. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 4 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, April 17, 1888, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate the 16th day of April, 1888.

ASSAYER.

Frank Nicholson, of Missouri, to be assayer of the United States assay office at St. Louis, Mo., vice Eliot C. Jewett, to be removed.

UNITED STATES CONSUL.

W. T. Walthall, of Biloxi, Miss., to be consul of the United States at Demerara, vice David T. Bunker, deceased.

SURVEYOR OF CUSTOMS.

Robert Calvert, of Wisconsin, to be surveyor of customs for the port of La Crosse, Wis., vice Frank I. Phelps, resigned.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS.

Eli H. Reynolds, of New Jersey, to be collector of customs for the district of Newark, N. J., vice William A. Baldwin, deceased.

RECEIVER OF PUBLIC MONEYS.

Harvey E. Shields, of Terre Haute, Ind., to be receiver of public moneys at Seattle (formerly Olympia), Wash., vice James R. Hayden, removed.

(The nomination of said Shields to be receiver of public moneys at Olympia (now Seattle), which was sent to the Senate January 4, 1888, is withdrawn.)

CONFIRMATION.

Executive nomination confirmed by the Senate April 11, 1888.

UNITED STATES CONSUL-GENERAL.

Jared Lawrence Rathbone, of San Francisco, Cal., to be consul-general of the United States at Paris.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, April 16, 1888.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of Saturday was read and approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. MCSHANE for one week, on account of sickness.

To Mr. GROSVENOR indefinitely, on account of important business.

To Mr. FINLEY indefinitely, on account of important business.

To Mr. CROUSE, for one week.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. KENNEDY, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found duly enrolled a bill (H. R. 6732) granting a pension to Mrs. Leora Gear; when the Speaker signed the same.

Mr. FISHER, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found duly enrolled bills of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same, namely:

A bill (H. R. 2927) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at Memphis, Tenn.;

A bill (H. R. 1584) granting a right of way to the Duluth, Rainy Lake River and Southwestern Railway Company through certain Indian lands in the State of Minnesota;

A bill (H. R. 6051) regulating the times for holding the terms of the United States courts in the northern district of Iowa; and

A bill (H. R. 1076) authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee River at Chattanooga, Tenn.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. BROWN, of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to discharge the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union from the further consideration of the bill (H. R. 1740)——

Mr. WHITING, of Michigan. I demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The regular order is the call of States and Territories for the introduction and reference of public bills and resolutions. On this call petitions and memorials of State and Territorial Legislatures and resolutions addressed to the heads of Departments are in order.

DAILY HOUR OF MEETING.

Mr. HERBERT introduced the following resolution; which was read, and referred to the Committee on Rules:

Resolved, That until otherwise ordered the daily hour for the meeting of the House shall be 11 o'clock a. m.; and committees engaged in the preparation of general appropriation bills may sit for that purpose during the sessions of the House.

Mr. HATCH took the chair as Speaker pro tempore.

MINTER P. KEY.

Mr. WHEELER (by request) introduced a bill (H. R. 9402) making an appropriation to test a system of fortifications devised by Minter P. Key; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

REGISTRY-LETTER ENVELOPES.

Mr. WHEELER (by request) also introduced a bill (H. R. 9403) in relation to registry-letter envelopes; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads, and ordered to be printed.

J. B. READ AND MINTER P. KEY.

Mr. JONES (by request) introduced a bill (H. R. 9404) making an appropriation to test river improvements devised by John B. Read and Minter P. Key; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

RIGHTS OF INDIANS.

Mr. COBB introduced a bill (H. R. 9405) to protect the rights of the Indians; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

ALLOTMENT OF LANDS TO INDIANS.

Mr. COBB also introduced a bill (H. R. 9406) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the allotment of lands in severalty to Indians on the several reservations and to extend the laws of the United States and of the Territories over the Indians, and for other purposes," approved February 8, 1887; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

ARSENAL AT BENICIA, CAL.

Mr. McKENNA introduced a bill (H. R. 9407) to make the arsenal at Benicia, Cal., an arsenal of manufacture, construction, and repair; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

STEPHEN L. KEARNEY.

Mr. DOUGHERTY (by request) introduced a bill (H. R. 9408) granting an increase of pension to Stephen L. Kearney; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions, and ordered to be printed.

GYMNASIUM AT WEST POINT.

Mr. TOWNSHEND introduced a bill (H. R. 9409) for the erection of an academic building and gymnasium at West Point; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

DISTRIBUTION OF PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

Mr. PAYSON introduced a bill (H. R. 9410) providing for the distribution of public documents to depositories and other public libraries; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Printing, and ordered to be printed.

BRIDGES ACROSS OHIO RIVER.

Mr. HOWARD introduced a bill (H. R. 9411) fixing the height of high water, to be used in determining the height of bridges to be built under the general law authorizing the construction of bridges across the Ohio River; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

BOUNTIES.

Mr. STEELE introduced a bill (H. R. 9412) to equalize the bounties of soldiers, sailors, and marines; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

BUSINESS OF COMMITTEE ON THE PUBLIC LANDS.

Mr. HOLMAN submitted the following resolution; which was read, and referred to the Committee on Rules:

Resolved, That Saturday, the 21st day of April, just after the reading of the Journal, be assigned and set apart for the further consideration of House bill No. 7901, "A bill to secure to actual settlers the public lands adapted to agriculture, to protect the forests on the public domain, and for other purposes;" that a recess shall be taken at 5 o'clock p. m. on said day until 7.30 p. m. thereof for further consideration of said bill, or, if the same shall have been completed, for the consideration of such bills declaring the forfeiture of grants of lands heretofore made by Congress as the Committee on the Public Lands shall determine.

REVENUE-CUTTER IN NEW YORK HARBOR.

Mr. BRYCE (by Mr. HOLMAN) introduced a bill (H. R. 9413) for the construction of a revenue-cutter for harbor duty at New York; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

SECTION 4233, REVISED STATUTES.

Mr. BRYCE (by Mr. HOLMAN) also (by request) introduced a bill (H. R. 9414) to amend section 4233, Article VI, of the Revised Statutes; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

RECORDS OF LAND OFFICE IN IOWA.

Mr. LYMAN presented a joint resolution of the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, asking the passage of a law to retain the records of the United States land office in Iowa when the office shall be discontinued; which was referred to the Committee on the Public Lands.

ALIEN OWNERSHIP OF REAL ESTATE.

Mr. LYMAN also presented a memorial and joint resolution of the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, in favor of the submission to the several States of a constitutional amendment prohibiting alien ownership of real estate in the States and Territories; which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. WEAVER presented a memorial and joint resolution of the Legislature of the State of Iowa, praying Congress to take the necessary steps to have the Constitution so amended as to prohibit the ownership of real estate by non-resident aliens; which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. CONGER presented a memorial and joint resolution of the Legislature of the State of Iowa, in favor of the submission to the several States of a constitutional amendment prohibiting alien ownership of real estate in the States and Territories.

Mr. CONGER. I ask to have the memorial and joint resolution read.

The memorial and joint resolution were read, and were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

INVESTIGATION OF RESTAURANT.

Mr. CONGER introduced the following resolution; which was read, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds:

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds be directed to investigate the management of the House restaurant, as to quality of food furnished, prices charged, service rendered, and general management thereof, and, if any evils are found to exist, to take immediate measures to correct them and make report of their findings and doings to this House.

PUBLIC BUILDING, WELLINGTON, KANS.

Mr. PETERS introduced a bill (H. R. 9415) for the erection of a public building at Wellington, Kans.; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and ordered to be printed.

RAILROADS UNDER JUDICIAL FORECLOSURE OR FORFEITURE.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Kansas, introduced a bill (H. R. 9416) providing for the control and regulation of railroads acquired by the United States under judicial foreclosure or forfeiture, and for other purposes; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Pacific Railroads, and ordered to be printed.

CITY OF LOUISVILLE.

Mr. CARUTH introduced a bill (H. R. 9417) for the relief of the city of Louisville; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

WASHINGTON AND WESTERN MARYLAND RAILROAD COMPANY.

Mr. CARUTH also (by request) introduced a bill (H. R. 9418) to incorporate the Washington and Western Maryland Railroad Company; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, and ordered to be printed.

INCREASE IN PENSIONS TO SURVIVORS OF MEXICAN WAR.

Mr. CARUTH also presented resolutions of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, in favor of an increase in pensions to be paid survivors of the Mexican war; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

PUBLIC BUILDING, BOWLING GREEN, KY.

Mr. HUNTER introduced a bill (H. R. 9419) for the erection of a public building at Bowling Green, Ky.; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and ordered to be printed.

SURPLUS FOR PURCHASE OF BONDS.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky, offered the following resolution; which was read, and referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

Resolved, That it is the judgment of this House that under section 2 of the act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year 1882, approved March 3, 1881, the Secretary of the Treasury has the power to use the surplus at any time in the Treasury for the purchase of the bonds of the United States; and that so much of such surplus as may from time to time accumulate in the Treasury ought to be so used.

STATISTICS BEARING UPON THE TARIFF.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, of Kentucky, also offered the following; which was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and is hereby, requested to report to this House a computation, based upon the returns of the census of 1880, showing—

1. What number of persons in each of the gainful occupations (professional and personal service, trade and transportation, manufactures, mechanics, mining, and agriculture) were engaged in branches of which a product of like kind could be imported from a foreign country other than Canada in any measure or quantity sufficient to call for the attention of legislators, and what additional number could be in part or wholly submitted to competition from Canada.
2. What number in each category might be considered wholly free from foreign competition.
3. What number of persons might be considered in some small measure subject to foreign competition.
4. The number of persons represented by the export of the profits of agriculture, manufactures, and mining; to be estimated upon the relation of the value or quantity of such exports to the value or quantity of the total product; in other words, the number occupied in production for export.

BRIDGES ACROSS BAYOU BARTHOLOMEW, LOUISIANA.

Mr. NEWTON introduced a bill (H. R. 9420) authorizing the Houston, Central Arkansas and Northern Railway Company to construct and maintain bridges across Bayou Bartholomew and across the Ouachita, Red, Little, and Sabine Rivers, in Louisiana; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

COMPENSATION OF OFFICERS AND EMPLOYÉS, NEW ORLEANS MINT.

Mr. GAY introduced a bill (H. R. 9421) to regulate the compensation of the officers and salaried employés of the United States mint at New Orleans, La.; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the Treasury Department, and ordered to be printed.

COMPENSATION TO CHIEFS OF DIVISION, GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

Mr. GAY also introduced a bill (H. R. 9422) to regulate and increase the compensation of chiefs of division in the General Land Office; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department, and ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC LANDS EAST OF MISSISSIPPI RIVER IN LOUISIANA.

Mr. GAY also introduced a bill (H. R. 9423) to restore to the public domain and to regulate the sale and disposition of certain lands east of the Mississippi River in the State of Louisiana; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Public Lands, and ordered to be printed.

JUDICIAL DISTRICTS OF LOUISIANA.

Mr. BLANCHARD introduced a bill (H. R. 9424) to amend and reenact section 5 of an act entitled "An act to divide the State of Louisiana into two judicial districts," approved March 3, 1881; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

FENCING RAILROADS.

Mr. MILLIKEN introduced a bill (H. R. 9425) to provide that railroads be securely fenced; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Railways and Canals, and ordered to be printed.

CANNON FOR MONUMENT AT METHUEN, MASS.

Mr. ALLEN, of Massachusetts, introduced a bill (H. R. 9426) authorizing the Secretary of War to deliver to the town of Methuen, Mass., one condemned gun-carriage and cannon to be used for monumental purposes; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

RECORDING OF BILLS, SALES, CONVEYANCES, ETC., OF VESSELS.

Mr. CHIPMAN introduced a bill (H. R. 9427) to provide for the recording of bills of sale, conveyances, mortgages, and instruments of hypothecation of vessels; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

BUREAU OF PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

Mr. BURROWS introduced a bill (H. R. 9428) providing for the establishment of a bureau of public documents; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Printing, and ordered to be printed.

PENSIONS TO SURVIVORS OF INDIAN WARS.

Mr. BARRY introduced a resolution to set apart Tuesday, the 22d of May, for consideration of House bill 8594, granting pensions to survivors of Indian wars from 1832 to 1842 inclusive; which was referred to the Committee on Rules.

LANDS IN RAILROAD LAND GRANTS.

Mr. DORSEY introduced a bill (H. R. 9429) to protect purchasers of land withdrawn by the Executive Department as lying within the limits of land grants to aid in the construction of railroads or patented to such railroad companies as indemnity lands; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Public Lands, and ordered to be printed.

GOLD MEDAL TO CAPT. THOMAS SAMPSON.

Mr. COX introduced a bill (H. R. 9430) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to award a gold medal of the first class to Capt. Thomas Sampson, of New York City, for rescuing five boys from drowning; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

TAX ON DEALERS IN SPIRITUOUS LIQUORS.

Mr. COX also presented a joint resolution of the Legislature of the State of New York, in relation to tax on dealers in spirituous liquors; which was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, and ordered to be printed.

CONSIDERATION OF CENSUS BILL.

Mr. COX also introduced the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules:

Resolved, That the 23d day of May, 1888, be assigned for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 1659) for the taking of the Eleventh and subsequent censuses of the United States, the same not to interfere with the morning hours or revenue and appropriation bills.

REGULATION OF COMMERCE.

Mr. CUMMINGS introduced a bill (H. R. 9431) to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

REFUND OF INCOME TAX.

Mr. BLISS introduced a bill (H. R. 9432) for the refunding of the income tax levied during the rebellion upon the salaries of commissioned officers of the Army and Navy of the United States; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

PAYMENT OF PENSION AGENTS.

Mr. BLISS (by request) also introduced a bill (H. R. 9433) to amend the provisions of the act of July 4, 1884, relating to the payment of pension agents; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions, and ordered to be printed.

DISTRICT COURT, NORTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

Mr. DE LANO (by Mr. NUTTING) introduced a bill (H. R. 9434) to amend the Revised Statutes of the United States establishing the times, places, and provisions for holding terms of the district court in the northern district of New York; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

REAL ESTATE TITLE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Mr. BINGHAM (by request) introduced a bill (H. R. 9435) changing the name of the Real Estate Title Insurance Company of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, and ordered to be printed.

AMENDMENT OF REVISED STATUTES.

Mr. DALZELL introduced a bill (H. R. 9436) to amend section 2307 of the Revised Statutes; which was read a first and second time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HATCH). From the title of this bill the Chair can not determine the proper reference, but will examine it.

Mr. DALZELL. It should be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (after examining the bill). The Chair thinks this bill properly belongs to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. DALZELL. The necessity for the bill, as I understand, arises out of a construction put upon this section of the Revised Statutes by the Secretary of the Interior, and it would appear the bill ought properly to go to the Committee on the Judiciary. However, it makes no difference to me.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks the bill belongs to the Committee on Public Lands.

The bill was referred to the Committee on the Public Lands, and ordered to be printed.

REPORTS OF DISTRICT RAILWAY COMPANIES.

Mr. ATKINSON introduced a bill (H. R. 9437) to require the street railway companies of the city of Washington to make annual reports; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, and ordered to be printed.

CONFEDERATE DOCUMENTS IN THE DEPARTMENTS.

Mr. PHELAN introduced a resolution directory to the heads of Departments, requesting a list of the Confederate documents in the Departments; which was referred to the Committee on the Library.

BANKRUPTCY.

Mr. CULBERSON (by request) introduced a bill (H. R. 9438) concerning bankruptcy; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

ABOLITION OF NATIONAL BANKS.

Mr. MARTIN introduced a resolution instructing the Committee on Banking and Currency to report a bill to repeal the law authorizing national banks; which was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

TAXATION OF GREENBACKS.

Mr. MARTIN also introduced a resolution to instruct the Committee on Banking and Currency to repeal the law exempting greenbacks from taxation; which was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

AMENDMENT OF REVISED STATUTES.

Mr. MARTIN also introduced a bill (H. R. 9439) amending sections 5449, 5450, and 5451 of the Revised Statutes, Title LXX, Crimes, chapter 5, and to repeal sections 5499, 5500, 5501, and 5502 of Title LXX, Crimes, chapter 6; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

OFFICERS IN MARINE CORPS.

Mr. WISE introduced a bill (H. R. 9440) to equalize the grades of officers of the Marine Corps; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

WHARF AT FORTRESS MONROE.

Mr. BOWDEN introduced a bill (H. R. 9441) for the enlargement of the wharf at Fortress Monroe, Va.; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

NATIONAL CEMETERY AT HAMPTON, ETC.

Mr. BOWDEN also introduced a bill (H. R. 9442) to provide for widening the entrance to the national cemetery at Hampton, etc.; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

REPEAL OF TOBACCO TAX.

Mr. GAINES submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

Whereas the agitation of the internal-revenue tax as applied to tobacco has the effect of depressing trade and occasions great loss to planters, dealers, and manufacturers: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Committee on Ways and Means be instructed to report to this House one of the many bills introduced for the repeal of the tax.

J. F. SEAGER.

Mr. SNYDER submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Accounts:

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to J. F. Seager, out of the contingent fund of the House, the sum of $75, for services rendered in the document-room during the month of November, 1887.

EMPLOYÉS OF THE GOVERNMENT NAVY-YARDS, ETC.

Mr. SMITH, of Wisconsin, introduced a bill (H. R. 9443) to regulate the manner of adjusting the pay of employés of the Government attached to the navy-yards and Naval Arsenal, and to secure them the highest wages paid for like services by private firms and corporations; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

BOUNTIES OF SOLDIERS.

Mr. SMITH, of Wisconsin, also introduced a bill (H. R. 9444) to regulate the bounties of soldiers who served in the late war for the Union; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

ADMISSION OF DAKOTA INTO THE UNION.

Mr. GIFFORD submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules:

Resolved, That Saturday, the 2d day of June, and Tuesday, the 5th day of June, 1888, immediately after the reading of the Journal, be set apart for the consideration of the bills upon the Calendar relating to the admission of Dakota into the Union of States. And if the consideration of said bills be not completed upon said days, that the consideration thereof shall continue from day to day until a final vote is taken thereon.

SEVENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT, DAKOTA TERRITORY.

Mr. GIFFORD (by request) also introduced a bill (H. R. 9445) creating the seventh judicial district of Dakota Territory, and providing for a judge therefor; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BUILDING, SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

Mr. CAINE introduced a bill (H. R. 9446) for the erection of a public building at Salt Lake City, Utah; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BUILDING, DETROIT, MICH.

Mr. CHIPMAN introduced a bill (H. R. 9447) to restore certain money to the fund for erecting a public building at Detroit, Mich.; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and ordered to be printed.

UNCLAIMED PENSION FUNDS.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, introduced a bill (H. R. 9448) to provide for the disposition of certain unclaimed pension funds; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Education, and ordered to be printed.

LARD.

Mr. ENLOE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a petition, signed by 187 citizens of Jackson, Tenn., protesting against any effort to brand or tax good, nutritious, healthful, and wholesome food products, omitting the names of the petitioners, and have it referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

There was no objection, and it was ordered accordingly.

The petition is as follows:

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

We, the undersigned, consumers of refined lard, such as is manufactured by Messrs. N. K. Fairbank & Co., and other lard refiners, hereby protest against any and every bill designing to brand or tax such product, knowing it, through personal experience, to be good, nutritious, healthful, and wholesome.

We also consider cotton-seed oil as wholesome and as valuable food as the leaf lard from swine, and we oppose any attempt to restrict or stigmatize either of these products in favor of the other.

On the other hand, we hereby strongly protest against the traffic prevailing among pork-packers and butchers in many localities of rendering and selling fat from objectionable parts and entrails of swine as lard, leaf lard, or prime steam lard, we believing such to be unfit for human food.

Dated March, 1888.

POOLS AND OTHER COMBINATIONS DECLARED UNLAWFUL.

Mr. MACDONALD introduced a bill (H. R. 9449) declaring all interstate trusts, pools, or combinations limiting or otherwise regulating or controlling the production, manufacture, shipment, sale, or price of any article of trade or commerce, to be unlawful and a criminal conspiracy, and for the punishment of the same; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Manufactures, and ordered to be printed.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. Speaker, I present the petition of 2,669 residents of the Fourth Congressional district of Michigan, placed in my hands by the Knights of Labor, asking for the establishment of a postal telegraph, which I move be referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads; and I further request that the petition be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. MCMILLIN. With the understanding, of course, that the names are to be omitted.

The SPEAKER. Of course.

There was no objection, and it was ordered accordingly; and the body of the petition is as follows:

To the United States Congress:

We, the undersigned, citizens and residents of the United States living in the Fourth Congressional district of the State of Michigan, represented by Hon. JULIUS C. BURROWS, respectfully call your attention to the dangers which threaten our country and her institutions through the consolidation of the various systems of telegraphy.

We ask that the Fiftieth Congress take immediate steps to establish a system of telegraphy, to be owned and controlled by the Government of the United States, the same to be operated in connection with the Post-Office Department.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. WHITTHORNE submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules:

Resolved, That Rule —— of the House of Representatives be so amended as to authorize the formation of a special committee to be known and designated as the committee on the order of business, to whom shall be referred all resolutions requesting the assignment of special days or hours for the consideration of any bill or resolution reported to the House or of the business of any committee; and said committee may, with a view to the consideration and dispatch of business pending before the House, report on the order of such consideration.

PUBLIC BUILDING, PARSONS, KANS.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (H. R. 9450) to construct a public building at Parsons, Kans., and for other purposes; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BUILDING, INDEPENDENCE, KANS.

Mr. PERKINS also introduced a bill (H. R. 9451) to construct a public building at Independence, Kans., and for other purposes; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BUILDING, ARKANSAS CITY, KANS.

Mr. PERKINS also introduced a bill (H. R. 9452) to construct a public building at Arkansas City, Kans., and for other purposes; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and ordered to be printed.

SETH C. MOFFATT EULOGIES.

Mr. SEYMOUR introduced joint resolution (H. Res. 148) to print 12,500 copies of the eulogies on Seth C. Moffatt, late a Representative